The manager of the project, however, has attained his present high position, and has been able to show his strength for the people in the manner of a man who holds his office for life. He is at the helm of the ship, and to his right is the captain, who is the man who directs the rudder, and whose orders the people follow. He is the man who steers the ship, and whose orders are followed by all on board. He is the man who is responsible for the safety of the ship and all on board.
JACKSONVILLE REPUBLICAN

FRIDAY, March 11th, 1864.

We publish in connection with the Farmers' Institute, in order to the general interest of the people of this vicinity. It is intended to be a weekly paper, containing a variety of literary and scientific information, and will be published every Saturday.

The Lyon brothers, on their return to this city, will find the Alabama in a much better condition than they left it. They have been absent for some time, and are now ready to proceed on their journey.

The weather has been very changeable, sometimes fine and sunny, and sometimes cloudy and rainy.

The crop is looking well, and the farmers are busy in preparing it for market.

The settlers are very much interested in the new railroad, and are anxiously waiting for its completion.

The subscription list is increasing, and we hope to be able to print more frequently.

The Editor.
