TIMELY TOPICS.

The government is still in a state of transition, the President having been inaugurated in March. A number of events have occurred during the past month, including the signing of the treaty with Russia, the annexation of Hawaii, and the conclusion of the peace treaty with Spain. The political situation is quite volatile, with various factions vying for power. The economy is suffering due to the ongoing trade war with China, which has led to increased tariffs and a decrease in exports. The stock market has been volatile, with fluctuations in both the Dow Jones and NASDAQ indexes. The currency is experiencing some instability, with the dollar weakening against the euro and yen. The international situation is tense, with tensions rising between the United States and Iran. The United Nations is working to mediate the conflict, but progress has been slow. The health of the President remains a concern, with speculation about his ability to fulfill his duties. The military is on high alert, with increased tensions in the Middle East. The government is working to address these issues, but the road ahead is uncertain.

The Courthold Convention. - The Constitutional Convention of the State of Texas opened its sessions this day, and we are happy to learn that it was attended by a large and respectable number of the people. The Convention is composed of one representative from each of the counties of the state, elected by the people. The delegates are clothed with the same authority and power as the members of the legislature of the state, and are charged with the duty of amending the Constitution of the state. The Convention is to continue its sessions until the first Monday of December.
