LATE FROM NEW YORK.

A few days since the poor corn crops of this season, which have reached a very serious state, were first noticed, and the crop in many places was barely enough to feed the farm animals. At this time the price of corn was at its highest in many years, and the demand for it was increasing daily. The situation was becoming critical, and the government was called upon to take steps to alleviate the distress. In this regard, the secretary of agriculture issued a circular letter calling attention to the need of increased production of corn in the future.

FOR PRESIDENT, SAMUEL J. TILDEN,
FOR VICE-PRESIDENT, THOS. A. HENDRICKS.

The Republican
SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1872.

TO OUR FRIENDS AND CONSERVATIVE FRIENDLY READERS:

The public interest, as well as the party interest, require that the candidates should stand unimpeached of any suggestion of corruption. Let it be your watchword to ask yourselves, 'What part does the President take in the conspiracy, or in the promotion of the conspiracy, if it be a conspiracy, from which we are so widely separated?'

Selected Miscellany.

A LION OF THE FOREST.

The dog came back to us,值班, that had been drilling. He was a large and powerful dog, with a shaggy coat that hung down to his feet. He had a strong and commanding presence, and his eyes were sharp and alert. As we approached, he stood up on his hind legs and barked loudly. His tail was wagging vigorously, and his ears were pricked up. We fed him pet food, and he ate it eagerly. He was very friendly and affectionate, and he wagged his tail happily. He was very good with children and other animals, and he was a great addition to our family. He was a loyal and devoted companion, and we will miss him very much when he is gone.

By A. A. Grant.

For Our Young Folks.

The young man was sitting on a bench in the park, reading a book. He was dressed in casual clothes, and he was engrossed in the story. As we approached, he looked up and smiled. He was very knowledgeable, and he had a great deal to say about the book. He gave us some interesting insights and perspectives, and we learned a lot from him. He was a great mentor and guide, and we are grateful for his wisdom and expertise. He was a wonderful young man, and we were lucky to have met him.
