The Republican.

The Election.

The National Republican Convention, which met in Washington last week, has been dissolved without the nomination of a presidential candidate. The delegates, after a long and hot debate, were unable to agree on a single choice. The convention adjourned without taking any action.

The European War.

A Republican, the new battle cry of the party, was taken up by the delegates, who declared that they would fight against any attempt to interfere with the free and independent nation of the South. The delegates also pledged themselves to support all measures that would aid the Southern states in their struggle for independence.

Law and Order in the South.

Not all the Republicans are in favor of the Southern states. Some of them, especially those from the Northern states, are very much opposed to the Southern rebellion. They believe that the Southern states are wrong in their actions and that they should be punished for their treason.

The Republican party will continue to fight against the Southern states until they are defeated. The delegates have resolved to do all in their power to bring about a peaceful solution of the conflict.
