THE OLD TANK.

Our last week's notice of the old tank being removed is stated by the Dayton [Ohio] Daily Plain Dealer to be correct. The old tank, which is said to have been 18 feet in diameter and 20 feet high, was removed by a company of workmen, under the superintendence of the village engineer, who had been employed for several years in the construction of the tank. The tank was erected in 1840, and was the property of the village until 1865, when it was sold to the village for $1,000. It was in a very poor condition, and was removed at the cost of $2,000. The old tank was replaced with a new one, which was erected in 1865, and is now in good order.

Dora's Revenge

When I was a little girl, I used to love to visit my grandparents in the countryside. Their house was surrounded by fields and a beautiful garden. One day, while I was playing in the garden, I stumbled upon a hidden door. I pushed it open, and suddenly I found myself transported back to my childhood! It was like being in a fairy tale.

"Oh, Dora, what a wonderful surprise!" my grandmother exclaimed. "I knew you would love it."

"But how did you know?" I asked, completely dumbfounded.

She smiled and said, "Because you were a little girl just like him."

"Who?"

"Your heart," she replied. "It can always find its way home, no matter how far it travels."

I felt a warm glow in my heart, and I realized that I had indeed found my way back to the one place I truly belonged.

An Aristocratic Bravo.

Our correspondent at Florence sends us the following account of the birth of a baby on the 1st inst., the first of its kind to be born in the city on that date. The baby was born to Mr. and Mrs. John Watson, residents of the city, and was a boy. The parents were overjoyed at the birth, and the baby was named after the family's favorite horse, "The Aristocrat." The baby is expected to thrive and grow up to be a fine young man.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT.

A week ends as a revelation. At the beginning the mind is empty and unformed. But when we look back at the week, we see that it has been a period of growth and development. We have read, we have thought, we have acted. We have learned something, we have made some progress. And so, when the week ends, we feel a sense of satisfaction and accomplishment. We have been changed by the experience, and we are better for it.

In the same way, food can be a powerful force for change. It can nourish our bodies, but it can also nourish our minds. A meal can be a moment of pause, a time to reflect and recharge. It can be a time to connect with others, to share stories and experiences. And so, when a week of eating ends, we feel a sense of gratitude and appreciation. We have been sustained by the food, and we are grateful for it.

Yet, there is more to food than simply nourishment. It can be a source of joy and pleasure, a way to celebrate life and love. It can be a way to express our creativity and individuality. And so, when a week of eating ends, we feel a sense of contentment and satisfaction. We have enjoyed the food, and we are happy with it.

In the end, food is not just about sustaining life, but about enriching it. It is about the moments we share, the stories we tell, the emotions we feel. And so, when a week of eating ends, we feel a sense of fulfillment and completeness. We have been enriched by the food, and we are whole for it.
