CANCERS CURED.

The Superstitions in Cures.

The late Senator Houston, in his address at the State Convention, said that there was a cure for cancer and that it had been proved to the satisfaction of the medical profession. It is true that there are cases of cancer which have been cured by entirely natural means, but in most cases the disease has only been arrested and the patient has recovered from it. In many cases the cancer has returned at a later date, and in some cases it has proved fatal. It is therefore advisable to caution all persons against trusting to any cure for cancer which has not been tested and proved by scientific means.
