The Republicans told out the count at eleven o'clock. They were in for four thousand dollars.

The Democrats repeated the vote. Dr. Montgomery has not made an official canvass, but he said the Democrats were in for, in their estimation, two thousand dollars.

The count was taken by a special order of the Democratic Committee, and was ordered to be taken at the county courthouse at twenty minutes after twelve o'clock. The Democratic committee was in at the county courthouse at twenty minutes after twelve o'clock.

This advertisement about smallpox is dated January 1, 1832. It mentions that the disease is spreading across Europe and the United States. The advertisement warns people to stay indoors and not to leave their homes unless necessary. It also advises people to wear masks and wash their hands regularly to avoid catching the disease. The advertisement is written in a formal and serious tone, reflecting the gravity of the situation.

The advertisement is from a newspaper article and includes a notice to the public about the current health crisis. The text is written in a straightforward manner, emphasizing the importance of taking precautions to prevent the spread of disease. The language is clear and concise, making it easy for people to understand the guidance given in the advertisement.

The advertisement also includes a section on how to best care for those who are infected with the disease. It advises people to keep the affected individuals isolated and to provide them with proper medical care. The advertisement also mentions the importance of reporting any cases of smallpox to the local authorities.

Overall, the advertisement is a serious and informative piece of writing that was intended to educate the public about the smallpox epidemic and to help prevent the spread of the disease.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA.
The Republican

SATURDAY, Feb. 19, 1859.

The Excitement Arising from the recent changes in the administration of the government, has been the subject of much discussion in all parts of the country. The new plans for the organization of the federal government have met with much opposition, and the question of the secession of the Southern States has been a matter of great concern.

For the benefit of those who are not acquainted with the situation, it may be stated that the Southern States have expressed a desire to withdraw from the Union, and that the Northern States have been urged to resist this action. The impression is general that the condition of the country is such as to render the issue of the dispute critical.

The President and Congress have been engaged in discussing the measures necessary to maintain the Union, and the public have been called upon to maintain their loyalty. The situation is alarming, and the future of the country depends upon the outcome of the conflict.

The Republican Party, which has been the leading opposition to the Democratic Party, has declared its policy of opposing the pro-secession tendencies, and has pledged its support to the maintenance of the Union.

The public are urged to act with firmness and resolve, and to support the measures that may be necessary to accomplish this end. The situation is grave, and the consequences of a failure could be disastrous.
