WASHINGTON LETTER.

Mrs. Grant.

Washington, May 5.

Mr. Grant

The president and his family are at the New York Centennial Exposition. The president was driven by carriage from the White House to the railroad station, and also from the station to the Exposition. He was accompanied by his family and friends.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

PRESIDENT LINCOLN.

Thursday, November 2, 1860.

The President has issued the following proclamation:

By the President of the United States of America.

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas, it has pleased Almighty God, the Father of all mercies, to intercept the destruction of many of our country. It is therefore appropriate that we should solemnly recognize it as a sign of divine goodwill and as a signal of our return to that path of duty and of allegiance to which we are called by God.

In pursuance of this solemn duty, it is hereby ordered that on the first Wednesday of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-four, and of the independence of the United States of America one hundred and ninety-six, the President of the United States shall issue a proclamation calling for a national thanksgiving.

Given under my hand this first Wednesday of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-four, and of the independence of the United States of America one hundred and ninety-six.

J. B. Sterritt,

Secretary of the Treasury.
TELEGRAPHIC.

Earnestly, Oct 26th, special from Paris, Kentucky. Geo. C. Pays indicated that news of the armed conflict in Texas is not as serious as some reports state, but there are indications that the situation may deteriorate. The peace efforts continue, but it is unclear if a resolution will be reached soon.

Curtain opens January 21, 1864 and runs for five weeks or until Friday, March 18, 1864.

A number of testimonials indicative of a popular interest in the new opera were on hand, and the music was highly praised.

Newspaper.

The number of the telegraph is limited, and we publish only what we consider of importance.

The Signal Corps meeting was held in the city hall on Monday, October 25th. A large attendance was present, and the meeting proceeded in a cordial manner. The main topic of discussion was the latest news from the front. It was generally agreed that the situation was grave, but there was hope for a favorable outcome.

The report of the telegraph from Montgomery, Alabama, is not yet available. However, it is expected that the situation there will improve soon.

The weather forecast for the coming week indicates a high chance of rain. It is advisable to take precautions for the wet weather.

The United States navy declared a blockade of the coast of Texas, effective immediately. This action was taken in response to the recent military conflict.

DEATH OF A NICE LITTLE MAN.

Joseph Kyle, well known at the Moosa and near by, died on Saturday last. Mr. Kyle was a native of Irish County, Maryland, and had been a resident of the county for many years. He was a stout deacon of the Methodist church, and was greatly beloved by all who knew him. Mr. Kyle was a farmer by occupation, and was noted for his honest and upright character. He leaves a widow and four children, all of whom he was greatly attached.

The Judge, November 12th, 1870.

Mr. Judge, I have to report that the new bridge over the river has been completed and is ready for use. The bridge is a wooden structure, 100 feet long and 20 feet wide, and is supported by four large wooden piles. The work was done by the county road department, and was completed at a cost of $500. The bridge is a great improvement, and will greatly facilitate the transportation of goods and people.

The high school at Montgomery has been supplied with new books. The new books include a number of the latest and most valuable works on various subjects. The students are highly pleased with the new books, and are using them to great advantage.

A considerable quantity of goods has been imported from China. The goods include silk, cotton, and other articles. The importation of these goods is expected to have a beneficial effect on the local trade.

The new post office at Montgomery has been opened. The postmaster is Mr. J. W. Wilson, and the office is located on the corner of Main and Court streets.

The local news is that the county fair has been held, and that a large number of people attended. The fair was held in the county courthouse grounds, and was a great success. The prizes were awarded for the best exhibit in each class. The fair will be held again next year, and it is anticipated that it will be even more successful.
WASHINGTON LETTER.

Yesteriad was the Sesqui-Centennial Anniversary of the Springfield Convention, near the Ohio River where the old emigrating fathers of the West made their great convention, and which was the occasion of the adoption of the Land Ordinance of 1785. The celebration was a great success, and was attended by a large number of people.

A correspondent writes from Washington:

The return of the public papers to their usual channel of circulation, after the long period of suspension, has been marked by the appearance of many interesting and important articles. Among the most noticeable is a series of essays on the subject of the United States Constitution, by a distinguished legal writer. These essays have created a great deal of excitement, and have been extensively discussed in the press. The principal topics treated of are the powers of the federal government, the rights of the states, and the relations of the judiciary to the other branches of the government.

The courts have been exceptionally busy during the past year, and many important cases have been decided. Among the most noteworthy are the decisions in the cases of United States v. Virginia and Ex parte Milligan, which have received much attention.

The Executive branch of the government has been also active, and many important measures have been enacted. Among the most significant are the laws for the aid of the poor, the establishment of a national bank, and the reform of the currency.

The country is now in a state of great prosperity, and there is a general feeling of confidence in the future. The government is well administered, and the people are contented. The military has been kept in efficient condition, and is ready for any emergency that may arise.

The diplomatic relations of the United States have been maintained in a friendly and amicable manner. The recent treaty with Great Britain has been approved, and the boundary line has been adjusted.

In conclusion, this is a period of peace and prosperity, and the future of the country is full of hope.
