FORNEY'S MILL
Two Miles South of Jacksonville.

The little village of Forney, just two miles south of Jacksonville, is a favorite of visitors. The old mill still stands and is a reminder of the early days of the town. The mill was originally built by the Forney family in the 1830s. The mill wheel is still present, and occasionally the old miller will re-enact his daily work.

BY LOVE RECALLED.

"In giving you a dream, my dearest, I have given you no other dream than my own heart,"—From "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," by W. Somerset Maugham.

Six years later the second of the nine children of Dr. Joseph and Mrs. James, the first-born to the family, was born. The doctor was in the delivery room, and the hospital was filled with the sound of the child's little cry. The baby was healthy and strong, and the nurse, who had been expecting a boy, was delighted with the addition to the family.

The first floor of the old house, which had been painted with bright colors, was now dark and deserted. The nurse left the baby in the arms of the mother and left the room.

"It is a girl," the mother said, looking at her new daughter. "I never thought we would have a girl."

"I am glad," the doctor said, "but I am surprised."

The doctor walked to the window and looked out over the front yard. The sun was shining brightly, and the birds were singing in the trees. The doctor took a deep breath and said, "This is going to be a good year for the family."

In the living room, the family was gathered around the fireplace, drinking tea and eating cookies. The little girl was sitting on her mother's lap, looking at the family with interest.

"I am going to be a doctor," the little girl said, "just like my father."

"That is wonderful," the mother said, "but you are very young."

"I am going to be a doctor," the little girl repeated, "just like my father."

The family laughed, and the little girl continued, "I am going to be a doctor, just like my father."

The doctor walked to the window again and looked out over the front yard. The sun was shining brightly, and the birds were singing in the trees. The doctor took a deep breath and said, "This is going to be a good year for the family."

The end.

COUNTRY AFFAIRS.

Some years ago, in the course of a family conversation, my grandfather told me a story which has remained with me ever since.

He mentioned that his grandfather used to tell him that when he was a young man, he had always dreamed of traveling to the Far East, to see the wonders of the world.

My grandfather then went on to explain that his grandfather's dreams were realized when he was eventually able to travel to the Far East, but that he had never been able to see the wonders of the world.

My grandfather then looked at me and said, "It's not about seeing the wonders of the world, it's about making new ones."
