The earthquake.

The news of the earthquake which has shaken the North East of the State this week, has been a matter of great interest and concern to all persons in the vicinity. The effects of the earthquake were felt over a large area, including parts of several counties. The damage caused by the earthquake is estimated to be considerable, with many buildings and structures suffering significant damage.

The state of emergency has been declared in several counties, and authorities are working to assess the damage and provide assistance to those affected. The state is working closely with federal and local authorities to coordinate response efforts and ensure that necessary resources are available to those in need.

The state has activated its emergency management agencies, and personnel are being deployed to affected areas. The state is also providing resources such as water, food, and shelter, and continues to coordinate with local authorities to ensure that all needs are met.

The state is working to restore power and other utilities as quickly as possible, and is coordinating with other agencies to provide necessary support to those affected. The state has also activated its disaster response plan, and personnel are being deployed to affected areas to provide necessary assistance.

THE REVI W S PROJECT

The State Capitol, at Montgomery, Ala., is one of the most beautiful and well-lighted buildings in the United States. It is situated on a hillside, and the view from the roof is unsurpassed.

The interior is arranged in a manner to accommodate the legislative work of the State, and the various rooms are furnished in a tasteful manner.

The State Capitol has been the scene of many important legislative sessions, and has witnessed the opening of many significant events in the history of Alabama.

The building is of considerable size, and contains several large rooms, each of which is well lighted by windows.

The State Capitol is situated in the center of the city of Montgomery, and is accessible by a short walk from any part of the town.

The legislative work of the State is carried on in the State Capitol, and the sessions are held regularly every year.

The building is well cared for, and is in a good state of repair.

The State Capitol is a fine example of American architecture, and is a monument to the ingenuity and skill of the builders.

The State Capitol is open to the public, and visitors are cordially invited to come and see it for themselves.
