THE SCORER AND THE PIONEER.
A Confession to a Certain Portion of the People.

A distinguished man of our State, in a private letter to a friend of his, is听说ing a little thing which the local press might consider news. It does not seem to have been noticed, although many of the newspapers of this State have been running editorials on the subject. But the man in question has been writing about it for the past few weeks, and he has been very successful in getting the attention of the State. His letter is as follows:

Mr. Wise, in a letter to his friend, said:

"I have been writing to the newspapers of this State for the past few weeks, and I am very successful in getting the attention of the State. They have been running editorials on the subject, and I am very pleased with the results."

UPRISING OF THE TIMES.

A BATTLE BETWEEN SHERIFF HENDRICKS AND THE MOOKS.

One hundred and fifty armed and trained citizens of this city met on Monday at noon in the Market Square and ordered the arrest of Sheriff Hendricks, for the murder of Mr. Mook, a colored man.

Sheriff Hendricks, who was present, immediately called out a hundred armed men and charged on the mob, firing upon them with his gun. The mob returned the fire, and a terrible battle ensued.

The sheriff was killed in the first volley, but his men continued the fight for some time, until they were overcome. The bodies of the sheriff and Mr. Mook were found in the same room, apparently killed with the same gun.

The mob was dispersed by the police in the evening, and the remains of the sheriff and Mr. Mook were removed to the City Cemetery. The sheriff was a popular man, and his death has caused great grief in this city.

The railroad company is doing everything possible to alleviate the suffering of the victims, and many aid societies have been formed to assist the families of the deceased.

THE BEST ADVICE.

"The best advice is the advice that is not given.

A wise man once said, "The best advice is the advice that is not given." This is certainly true, for we all know that we are often warned of danger and warned not to do certain things, but we go ahead and do them anyway.

The best advice is the advice that is not given, because it is the advice that is most often ignored. It is the advice that comes from our own experience, and it is the advice that we should listen to.

The best advice is the advice that is not given, because it is the advice that is most often ignored. It is the advice that comes from our own experience, and it is the advice that we should listen to.

This advice is not always easy to follow, for it is often contrary to our desires. But if we listen to it, we will be happier and more contented, and we will be better people.
