

APRIL

JOHN C. CALHOUN.

The Cincinnati Enquirer does justice to one of the most distinguished of American statesmen—a man who has been more unjustly vilified and abused than any other in the nation, occupying the elevated position he has during a long and eventful public life.

The controversy between Messrs. Botta and Uphur, has, among other things, caused a greater development of the objects of the nullifiers—and a more complete elucidation of the motives of Mr. Calhoun.

It will be remembered that when Mr. Calhoun announced his belief in nullification, he was next to Gen. Jackson, the favorite of the democratic party.

For Mr. Calhoun saw that nullification was unpopular. But the enemies of Mr. Calhoun resolved not only that his power and his prospects should be blasted.

It is seldom that any man has exerted such immense and such salutary influence over the destinies of his country.

Disruptions in the University of Alabama. The public will learn with regret, that occurrences within the last two weeks, have made it the duty of the Faculty of this institution, to dismiss a number of the students.

By a law of the College, each student was placed on his own excupulation, to admit or deny his agency in the disorders.

UNFORTUNATE OCCURRENCE. We understand that, some time last week a citizen of this county, of the name of Bazer, was killed, while turkey hunting.

How does printers raise money these hard times? Do you give it up? By hard pressing!

neighbors. Mr. Bazer was an honest, well disposed man, and is much regretted by his neighbors.—Mont. Adv.

FAREWELL TO THE BOTTLE. Farewell—a long farewell Thou mirth-creating spell.

No more to thee My song shall be Drinking, singing, Glasses, singing, More on mine ear; Shall never hear.

And all that mad'ning train Ofills, that ever fill the brain, For now that evil working hour Hath ceased to charm me with its liquid power.

The Ice Trade.—Sixteen companies are now engaged in shipping ice from Boston to the East and West Indies and New Orleans.

One hundred and seventy five millions of dollars is the estimated per annum of the alcoholic beverage consumed in these United States.

Knowledge and Ignorance.—The man of knowledge lives entirely after death while his members are dust beneath the tomb.

Death Bed Charity.—The Index printed at Alexandria, D. C., makes the following sensible remark under this head:—

Many a man sees the poor starving around him without a sigh; and when his day of departure draws near gives his whole substance to some foreign charity, which to say the best of it, is calculated only to lay the foundation for knowledge among a bloody, bigoted, and unthankful race.

UNFORTUNATE OCCURRENCE. We understand that, some time last week a citizen of this county, of the name of Bazer, was killed, while turkey hunting.

How does printers raise money these hard times? Do you give it up? By hard pressing!

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.—We publish this morning a message from President Tyler, which demands the attention of a whole country as a not explanatory & illustrative of the change wrought about by the election of 1840.

BRITISH INSOLENCE. The London Times, the organ of the British Government, as if speaking by authority says that "it is idle for the United States to complain against the exercise of this law, or to offer any opposition to its enforcement."

playing... I have no objection to the publication of these adventures in Britain, though I know they will not obtain credit; but I should not like that the incident mentioned in the Sydney Gazette, as I intend to receive value for the stock left at the settlement, for I have a feeling that my family is scarcely safe, as long as I remain on the coast of Africa. And for the sake of my rising family, I have an aversion to its being known that they were ever in the hands of a British merchant. Do not write till you hear from me again; and believe me ever your old affectionate friend.

These animals always remain distinct and are perfectly subordinate to a chief or ruler, and his secondary chiefs. In their expedition to our gardens, they had brought their savage's sole help along with them, as they never leave any of the royal family behind them. In fear of a surprise, it was that we killed; and the queen of the pongo, having been wounded by the loss of her darling, the old monarch, that set out by night to try, if possible, to recover her and not finding it, she sat on my bed in its place, carried her to my room, and she did so. The queen of the pongo, and her attendants, were then taken to the house, and were kept in a room, and were allowed to walk, and to do as they pleased.

CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.

In the most dreadful trepidation, I entered between the bigons flies, being well guarded by soldiers on either hand, and followed by the rest of the settlers; and there I indeed beheld my wife, my beloved Agnes, standing ready to receive me, with little William in her right hand, and a beautiful chubby daughter in her left, about two years old, and the very image of her mother. Conceive, if you can, sir, such a meeting. Were there ever a husband and wife under such circumstances before? Never since the creation of the world. Two children looked healthy and contented with their aprons, but I saw at first that my beloved was much altered; it was only, however, caused by her internal commotion, by feelings which overpowered her grateful heart, as if my first embrace she faints in my arms, which kept us all in suspension and confusion for a long space. The children fled from us, crying for their mother, and took shelter with their friends, the pongos, who seemed in great amazement, and part of them began to withdraw, as if to hide themselves.

As soon as Agnes was somewhat restored, I proposed that we should withdraw from the camp of her savage colony; but she refused, and told me that it behoved her to part with her protectors on good terms, and that she must depart without any appearance of compulsion, which they might resent; and we actually rested ourselves during the heat of the day, in the shades erected by those savage inhabitants of the forest. My wife went to her board of provisions, and distributed to every one of the pongos his share of fruit, succulent herbs, and roots, which they ate with great composure. It was a curious scene, something like what I had seen in a managerie; and there was my little William, serving out food to the young orang-outangs, cutting them, and telling them in the broad Amandale dialect, to do this, that and the other thing; and they were not only obedient, but seemed flattered by his notice and correction. We were then presented with delicious fruits; but I had no heart to partake, being impatient to have my family away from the midst of this brutal society; for, as long as we were there, I could not conceive them safe, or fairly in my own power.

Agnes then stood up, made a speech to her subject, accompanying her expressions with violent emotions and contortions, to make them understand her meaning. They understood it perfectly; for when they heard that she and her children were to leave them, they set up such a jabbering of lamentation as British ears never heard. Many of them came cowering and fawning before her, and she laid her hand on their heads; many too, of the young ones, came running, & lifting up their children's hands, they put them on their own heads. We then formed a close circle round Agnes, and the children, to the exclusion of the pongos, that still followed behind, howl-

E. I. WOODWARD.
Jacksonville, Feb. 22, 1842.—4t.

Having seen the "Alabama Justice of the Peace" by William R. Smith, Esq., mentioned frequently in the papers, in terms of high praise, I was induced to examine it with a view to satisfy myself as to its merits, and to give my opinion publicly, by the press, and by gentlemanly assistance for legal learning. Its great utility, in the simplicity of the arrangement, its rate adaptation of the forms to the requirements of the statutes, and the plain directions and instructions which appear under every head, both in the civil and criminal departments. There is scarcely any information requisite to the administration of justice in a magistrate's court, which cannot be found in this volume.

The criminal division is arranged under the Penitentiary code—and the laws are brought down through the latest published decisions of the supreme court.

I cheerfully recommend it to your readers generally, and especially to all Judicial officers, assuring them that it will prove to be a book of great convenience in the discharge of their public duties.

With great respect,
Your obt. servt.,
W. GARRETT.

CANE CREEK ACADEMY

THIS institution is situated six and a half miles South of Jacksonville, Benton County Alabama. The Patrons take great pleasure in informing the Community, that they have again secured the services of Rev. J. Warnock as principal, who has had charge of it for nearly two years. The healthful and retired location, combined with good regulations and thorough teaching, have secured for this Institution public favour beyond the expectations of its friends. The course of instruction is such as to prepare young gentlemen for College, for a professional or for the active duties of life. Particular regard is paid to the morals of students, and every reasonable opportunity is improved to impress upon their minds the sacred principles taught in the word of God, not only in reference to their eternal interests, but in their important bearings on our civil and political institutions, and all the social relations of life. The Principal, utterly repudiating the superficial systems of education that have found their way into many of our literary Institutions, endeavours to make the instruction substantial in every branch. The discipline is parental, but decided. The requirements made are mild, but most certainly enforced. The immoral, or idle, without reformation, cannot long remain in the school.

The scholastic year is divided into two sessions of five months each, and usually students will not be received for a shorter period than one session.

CONGRESSIONAL.

From the Correspondent of the Charleston Courier.

Washington, March 22.

The question of privilege, in the House, was the absorbing subject today. You have seen, in the papers, the resolution offered by Mr. Giddings of Ohio. They are so drawn as to declare a dangerous and revolutionary principle in terms as offensive as possible to the South.

You will also find in the newspapers of this morning, the preamble and resolutions concerning Mr. Giddings, as drawn by Mr. Botts, but offered by Mr. Weller.

The subject was taken up as soon as the House met. The previous question on the resolution of censure had been moved yesterday, and was, to-day, ordered to be put. There was of course no debate. Mr. Giddings did not wish to make any defence. There were many proceedings, however, the object of which was to postpone or get rid of the subject. Mr. J. Q. Adams moved to lay the preamble and resolutions on the table, which was rejected, yeas 70, nays 124.

The question was first taken on the preamble which was agreed to, yeas 119, nays 66.

The resolution was next adopted, yeas 125, nays 69. So the House resolved that the conduct of Mr. Giddings of Ohio, was altogether unwarranted and unwarrantable, and deserving the condemnation of the people of this country, and of this body in particular.

This being done, Mr. Giddings gathered up his books and papers and sent them off. Left his seat & went around the hall taking leave of his friends—the 69—and is to put out to-morrow to Ohio, where he will make a flaming appeal to his constituents, and tell them that they are not freemen unless they have the right to cut the throats of the slaveholders. It is evident that this whole affair was got up in an abolition caucus. It has every appearance about it of pre-concert.

The House went into the Committee on the Loan Bill. Mr. Gentry, who was entitled to the floor, yielded it, with a view to afford an opportunity to vote on the amendments.

Mr. Everett's subject for the bill, authorising the Government to borrow the money, at par, on the shortest time, not exceeding twenty years, was lost.

Mr. Everett moved an amendment, setting apart the proceeds of particular duties, for the redemption of the loan, but the Chairman ruled it out of order. An appeal was taken, and a long debate on this concluded the business of the day.

In the Senate, a great throng was present, to hear Mr. Clay closing speech in support of his tariff and revenue resolutions. But they were disappointed. Mr. Clay rose at one o'clock, when the resolutions were called up, and stated that he was too unwell to proceed to-day. The change of the weather, he said, had affected him very severely, but he hoped to-morrow morning to be able to go on. The subject was, therefore, passed over. The question on Mr. Clay's resolutions: is to be taken next Monday, the 28th.

Mr. Allen presented resolutions, to-day, from some public meeting in Ohio, denouncing Mr. Adams and J. R. Giddings, of Ohio, as traitors. I learn, however, Giddings' district is a strong hold of abolitionism.

Washington, March 23.

In the House to-day, the Speaker committed a letter from Mr. Giddings of Ohio, resigning his seat as a member of the House. He goes home, to rally his constituents, under the abolition flag, and to be elected by a large majority, with instructions to continue his incendiary course. He will come back before the termination of this session, and of course will draw his mileage a second time for the same session.

Most of the day was spent in correcting, or rather attempting to amend, journal account of the proceedings against Mr. Giddings. But every motion to amend was negatived.

The loan bill was taken up in the Committee of the Whole, and Mr. Wise moved an amendment, repealing the distribution land bill. The chair decided the motion to be in order but Mr. Wise objected to declining the question without debate. The House could not keep a quorum, on account of the greater attraction in the Senate.

Mr. Clay said, he would take this opportunity, as he might not again address the Senate, to give his views of the present relations between this country and England. He regretted to see, in the press, much scandalous abuse of the messenger of peace proposed to be sent to us by Great Britain. Nothing could be so ungenerous, so unmanly. The nobleman who had been appointed to this errand he personally knew—and he was a great man of great worth and wisdom, and of liberal and humane sentiments. With the backing house which he established he had had no connexion for twenty years. However a fratricidal press might violate the hospitalities of the land he trusted that the administration would receive him in a becoming manner. There is no danger whatever, said Mr. C., of any rupture between the two countries, if there is any ability in the management of the controversy on our side. Mr. Clay reviewed the questions at issue. The North Eastern Boundary question was nearly settled. The basis of the arrangement was concluded, and only some minor points were left, which could be settled by arbitration.

The Caroline question was under negotiation was under negotiation, & though it was one in which our territory had been violated, yet it was a mixed affair, and there was some palliation for it. This could not of itself lead to a war. The Creole case was one in which Great Britain was manifestly wrong, and she ought to indemnify us. This was a subject of negotiation, and at all events there was no ground of immediate apprehension from it. The right of search was a question upon which Lord Aberdeen and Mr. Stephens were perfectly agreed. Great Britain did not pretend to a right to search our vessels. Lord Aberdeen went so far as to say—all we wish is to ascertain whether a vessel found on the African coast is American, and she may then pass free, even if laden with slaves. But we claim, that if a Pirate or a Spaniard shall hoist the American flag, that flag shall not be sufficient proof of the nationality of the vessel. The United States once proposed a treaty giving a qualified right of search in the West Indies, and on the African coast. The Senate struck out the West Indies, and the British Government from pique refused to ratify it. But some such arrangement would now be made. Mr. Clay did not think there was immediate danger of war even with the upstart tyrant of Mexico, who repaid the hospitalities of the United States, with the abuse and slander of her citizens. But, at the same time, the best means of prevention were to be found in preparation.

Washington, March 24.

In the Senate to-day, Mr. Preston submitted a resolution declaring that the actual condition and credit of the country were such as to render necessary prompt and decisive action on the part of Congress, and that this end a loan ought to be authorized on terms that would ensure success. Mr. Preston, in some remarks, on this motion, intimated that his object was to stimulate the other House to action. A state of things has arisen that required combined and concerted action. He left depressed and sick at heart in viewing the situation of the country and the government. The resolution lies over till to-morrow.

Mr. Clay's resolutions were taken up, and Mr. Rives submitted some amendments, the object of which was to declare that the distribution Bill ought to be repealed. Mr. Preston offered amendments, calling on the Secretary of the Treasury for his opinion whether a duty of 20 per cent. will afford a sufficient revenue; and, if not, what rate of duty will be adequate. The time had come, he said, when it might be necessary to levy duties, at the rate of 25 or even 30 per cent., in order to afford sufficient revenue. Mr. Clay remarked, that the repeal of the land Bill would afford no relief to the Treasury this year or the next, but that the instability of legislation, which it would show, would of itself be a great shock to the public credit. He said his stay here would be short, and he wished to see some action on the subject of the resolutions. He proposed to take the question on the last resolution, which calls on the heads of departments for a statement of such retrenchments, as can be made in their departments. This resolution was agreed to.

Washington, March 25.

There is much excitement here on the subject of the invasion of Texas. A disposition exists to connect it with the Abolition Question. The Abolitionists are already on the qui vive, and say they will watch the Administration closely, to see that they connive at no expeditions set on foot in the United States for the purpose of aiding Texas, or conquering Mexico and spreading the empire of slavery. They have already accused President Tyler of an intrigue, the object of which, they say, is to bring Texas into the Union, by the exercise of the treaty making power. It is acknowledged that there is an extreme probability of a war soon arising between this country and Mexico. There are now causes enough of collision, but, as the sympathies of our citizens will naturally and properly incline them to lend their aid to their Texian friends; and, as the Mexican army, and its Indian allies, will be very apt to intrude, in some mode or other, upon our territory or property, in the progress of the war, it will become difficult for us to keep aloof. In the midst of this war, England may seize upon Cuba, and perhaps become an ally of Mexico against the United States. We shall have stirring times for some years to come.

Mr. Wise, in his speech on the Loan Bill, to-day, said that it was time to make preparation for war with Mexico and England. We should soon have both of these wars on our hands. Our youthful sister Republic, Texas, has already been overrun by the Mexican tyrant, and at the same time he was fulminating insults and menaces at us and keeping our citizens in captivity. He had not gone to war with his own means—he had neither credit nor resources—but he must have been aided by English capital and English war steamers. For his own part he would demand the release of our citizens at the mouth of the cannon, and he would not tamely see a republic which we were the first to acknowledge as an independent nation, overrun by the tyrant. Mr. Wise said no one could tell how this Ashburton mission would terminate. But here we are, said Mr. W., without a revenue without means of defence.

The Senate did not sit to-day. The Secretary of the Treasury sent a communication to the House, informing them that by a mistake in the last statement of the amount of Treasury notes issued, the sum of $1,556,000 was omitted. That sum is to be added to the amount stated to be out.

The Loan Bill was taken up soon after twelve o'clock, and Mr. Wise took the floor, and he spoke five mortal hours. He replied to Mr. Fillmore and Mr. Marshall—accused the Whigs of factious opposition to the Administration; and of a deliberate and fixed design to embarrass and paralyse the Government, and to throw every thing into confusion; hoping thus to gain, at last their favourite object of making Mr. Clay President. He defended Mr. Tyler's Message, in all its parts, and called upon the Whigs to oppose it, if they dared to do it. The issue now made between them and the President and the country was to be the judge. He said the Whigs of the House would refuse to repeal the Distribution Bill and the consequences of that would be the loss of the Tariff and Revenue Bill. So Congress would go home leaving the country much worse than they found it.

Washington, March 27.

Several gentlemen have arrived here from Mexico, and unite in representing that Santa Anna, is aided by England, in his enterprise against Texas. Others suppose, however, that the Catholic Church furnished him with the means to pay off his troops and to undertake the expedition. From this source he will doubtless obtain further supplies, or perhaps confiscate the whole of the Church property in aid of his objects. The impression gathers strength that the United States will become involved in the war. The repudiation of Mexico, of all her debts, except that due to England, will alone be a just cause of war. The claims provided for under our treaty with Mexico, and for which Mexican Treasury notes or bonds have been given are of course embraced in general repudiation. It would be a good point for us to war upon, in order to show the world that our States do not intend to repudiate.

The agent despatched to Mexico, by Mr. Bailey Peyton, District Attorney at New Orleans, on the occasion of the capture of the Santa Fe Expedition, has arrived here, and states that his representations were of no effect and were not listened to.

The more formal and authentic demand for the release of Mr. Kendall and other American citizens, has been treated with equal disdain. In the meantime Gov Vanness, who was still in this city, and Gen Leslie Combs of Ky., who is now here, interfered personally for the release of their sons, and succeeded without difficulty. Young Vanness was secretary to the expedition, and Mr. Combs was a volunteer—and both were Texian citizens; yet these gentlemen were set at liberty by Santa Anna, from respect to their connexions, while the demand of our government, for the release of its citizens is unheeded. Mr. Kendall is a citizen of the United States; and he went out with the expedition, from motives of curiosity or information, and, by the usages of war, was entitled to immediate release. But the requests and even the demands of this government are unavailing for that object. This is a cause of war—it is a direct insult to the United States, and ought not to be borne.

The Whigs generally, are bitter against the President's last special message, and against Mr. Wise, many wish an opportunity to reply to Mr. W. and to attack the message. I do not think, however, that the motion to reconsider will prevail.

As was expected, the President's recommendation of a suspension of the land distribution creates the greatest sensation here. It is considered, notwithstanding the president's explanation of the circumstances under which he assented to the law as a direct attack upon Mr. Clay, the extra session, and the Whig policy. Even the more moderate of the Whigs say that Mr. Tyler ought not to send in such a message after the House had decided not to repeal or suspend the law. The fact is, that the House has made no such decision. But on a point of order, they ruled out Mr. Wise's motion to pledge the land revenue for the redemption of the loan. This might have been done on strict parliamentary principles, without reference to the merits of the proposition. I believe, however, that when the proposition comes to a direct vote in the House, it will be rejected. The Pennsylvanians all go for the distribution. The democratic members from some of the indebted States cannot oppose it. Mr. Wise anticipates, as a consequence of the failure of the proposed recall of the land fund, the defeat of the revenue bill.

Washington, March 28.

In the Senate to-day, Mr. King of Alabama submitted a resolution calling upon the President for the correspondence with the Mexican government, in relation to the citizens of the United States held in captivity in Mexico. Some little debate took place upon the resolution, in which a decidedly hostile spirit was manifested towards Mexico and her upstart tyrant, as Mr. Clay calls him. But Mr. Sevier rallied the Senate a little upon their disposition to exact justice from this "petty power," Mexico, while they allowed Great Britain with impunity, to keep American citizens in oppressive confinement in Van Drimen's Land. The resolution was passed over.

The arrangements for the Clay Ball are to be very splendid; the 12th of April (Mr. Clay's birth day) is fixed for the fête.

Mr. Allen made a vehement attack upon the Whig Party, and its resources and principles, and asked with that face they could come to the Democrats whom they had been denouncing for ten years, and call on them for aid in relieving the country from the embarrassments into which the Whigs had within one year plunged it. He recognised no difference between the Whig factions, but looked upon them in the mass, as alike responsible for the disasters of the country.

Washington, March 29.

The opinion seems to be universal here that the government is bound to enforce its demand on Mexico for the release of the American citizens there held in oppressive captivity.

Mr. King gave notice that he would call up his resolution to-morrow, fixing the day for the termination of the session.

In the House, to-day, the loan bill was considered in Committee of the Whole. Mr. Colquitt, of Georgia, spoke with much spirit, in reply to Mr. Bayner, of N. C., and in opposition to the Whig policy as disclosed at the extra session. The debate was continued by Mr. Shields of Alabama, Mr. Cushing and others till a late hour. To-morrow the subject will be disposed of.

Washington, April 6.

Lord Ashburton had his first audience with the President, to-day, and was courteously received. He has also been introduced to the members of the cabinet. Those who have had an opportunity to notice the first impression made by Lord Ashburton here, say it was decidedly favorable. He is in his manners kind and unassuming.

A most unfortunate accident took place to-day in the river below Alexandria. The Missouri Steam Frigate had run aground somewhere near Fort Washington. A boat was got out with anchor and chain. The anchor it would seem, was prematurely and carelessly thrown out, and every person in the boat, was injured and thrown overboard by the chain, which I believe, is placed in a coil, with the men in the centre. A lieutenant and fifteen men have thus suddenly been destroyed.—The Mississippi coming down to assist the Missouri is coming up.

The Senate, to-day took up the Loan Bill, and Mr. Wright concluded his speech against the bill. He was unwilling moreover, to vote any thing for the recall of Mr. Buchanan has taken the floor for to-morrow. It would, seem therefore that there is little chance for the speedy disposition of the bill. In the mean time, you will recollect that a large batch of treasury notes are about to fall due, and it is now evident that they will be protested, in consequence of this new way of the Senate. Treasury notes are already falling in prospect of this result.

The House, to-day, passed a resolution on motion of Mr. Warren, of Georgia, calling for information in regard to the alleged outrages of the U. S. Troops, on the citizens of Georgia. The resolutions, which proposed proceeding on the presumption of the truth of the allegations were lost.

The House went into committee on the general appropriation bill. Yesterday, Gen. Doty, of Wisconsin was the subject of debate—to-day it was Justice McKimley—the allegation against the Judge being that he cannot possibly attend to every State in his widely extended circuit.

There was great difficulty, to-day, in keeping a quorum. In fact, it was found impossible. There is scarcely a quorum from the hour of adjournment for five minutes at a time. It is not strange that it should be so when you reflect that the House has solemnly determined to do nothing, and that the long speeches, are, of course, an insupportable bore.

About forty members were arrested to-day and fined, by order of the House. But it will be the same thing to-morrow.

Who would sit in the hall, knowing that nothing is to be done? Who would be compelled to listen to the long dull and prosy speeches addressed to Buncombe.

Trade is terribly depressed.

The Bank has reduced discount to 4 per cent.

Dates from China to Nov. 30th. Nothing new.

Tens had advanced 3d per lb. money. The deliveries are lower, but a fair business is doing—Company's Congos closed at 1s. 11d. 3d per lb.

We have London dates to the 3d, and Liverpool to the 4th March.

In England the prospects of business are dismal at present, but the necessity of increasing the forces in China is promoting employment for the army and navy departments.

The Right of Search has been signed by all the parties, with the exception of France; she refuses to sign it at present. The Charter is in full force in Portugal and the intended insurrection in Spain progresses. The accounts of distress in England continue to be as gloomy as before, and trade does not appear to improve. The cotton market, however, is in a better state and the money market, is easy.

The burning in effigy and corn law meetings still continue.

PARLIAMENTARY SUMMARY.

A tedious debate on the corn laws occupied the House of Commons during five successive nights, during which no new arguments were brought forward of particular interest. Mr. Villers moved, that all duties payable upon the importation of corn, meal or flour, do now cease or determine, when the committee divided, the numbers were for the motion 90, against it 393. On the 26th ult. Mr. Christopher proposed a higher scale of duties. His proposition was that the maximum duty should be 5s higher than the maximum duty proposed by the government. The division was taken on the question, and the original proposition was carried by 306 to 104.

SLAVE TRADE TREATY.

In the House of Lords, 21st ult the Earl of Aberdeen laid on the table the treaty of the slave trade signed by all the great powers of Europe except France. He regretted that he was under the necessity of informing their lordships that the ratification of the king of the French had not been exchanged with those of the other powers; neither was he able to inform the house of the time when that ratification might be expected. The treaty with France concluded in 1831 and 53, remained in full force and vigor.

RIGHT OF SEARCH.—We learn from Paris that a delay of four months has been asked and obtained for the French Government to ratify the right of Search.

There is terrible work in Ireland. A tremendous ribbon conspiracy has been discovered. The Great Western steam ship leaves Liverpool on her next trip.

FRANCE.

The non-ratification of the slaves treaty by France still engages the attention of Paris papers.

A great sensation was created in the French capital on Wednesday morning, by the announcement of the London papers that the slave treaty had been ratified without the participation of France.

From the Mason Telegraph.

BLOODY RIOT—TWO MEN KILLED—FOUR DAN-GEROUSLY WOUNDED.

Our city was disgraced by another bloody affray on Wednesday night last. It seems a grudge had existed for some time between a constable of the name of Nathan Duke, and an Irishman named Henry Summers, who occupied a small shop on Bridge row. A fresh difficulty had occurred on the afternoon above mentioned, and about 9 o'clock, as Duke was standing on the side walk at a shop near Summers, he was assailed by Summers with abusive language and dared to come where he was. Dukes armed himself with a gun and went towards him—he had no sooner reached the front of the shop when the firing commenced. It is uncertain which fired first. Duke's gun went off, the ball passing through the facing of the door into the shop and through the counter. One man in the shop, named Thomas Kanan, was badly wounded in the hip, whether from Dukes' gun or from one inside is not certainly known, as the precise situation in which he stood has not been ascertained. Two guns, some say three, were fired from the shop, by H. Summers and others.—Duke received a full charge of buck and gouse shot in his breast and arms—and his recovery is thought doubtful. A very respectable mechanic named M. E. Hebbard who was standing in a door near by, received three balls, one in his breast and died instantly. A man who was passing at the time, by the name of Sweeney, it is said received a charge in the abdomen, and has since died. Two others named John Welch and Doster, were also dangerously wounded. No one was with Dukes.—The others who were killed and wounded had no participation in the affray.

The two Summers, Henry and Peter, were arrested and after a careful investigation before the magistrates C. A. Higgins, J. L. Owens, Wm. Cummings and E. E. Brown, were committed to jail for trial before the Superior Court which sits on the first Monday in May next.

MEXICO AN EMPIRE.

It is pretty evident that Santa Anna contemplates erecting an empire in Mexico, bestowing on himself the imperial title. He intends, as preparatory to his design to create four Marshals—by a man of the name of Jostling, were was on the premises of Jostling in Floyd county, when the affair occurred. Jealousy on the part of Jostling, was alleged as the cause of the horrid deed. Jostling had once cautioned him against coming on his premises, and when he found him there, a few words passed, when Jostling shot him in the body, the ball passing through him and he died instantly. Jostling gave himself up, but had no part committed at the last accounts.—Chattanooga Gaz.

AUGUSTUS YOE, R. D. ROWLAND. Jan. 12, 1842—17.

The terms upon which Cock of the Rock would stand having been fixed during the absence of the undersigned; since his return he has concluded in consequence of the hardness of times to reduce the rate to $20 the season. A rumor has also got afloat that he is not the genuine horse represented. That this rumor is entirely unfounded I have documents in my possession to prove, and no man patronizing the horse shall be charged a cent, if I cannot prove it to his satisfaction.

TUSCALOOSA, Jan. 28th, 1842.

Having seen the "Alabama Justice of the Peace" by William R. Smith, Esq. mentioned frequently in the papers, in terms of high praise, I was induced to examine it with a view to satisfy myself as to its merits; and am prepared to concur fully with the flattering opinions already expressed of it, both by the press, and by gentlemen distinguished for legal learning. Its great utility consists in the simplicity of the arrangement, accurate adaptation of the forms to the requirements of the statutes, and the plain directions and instructions which appear under every head, both in the civil and criminal departments. There is scarcely any information requisite to the administration of justice in a magistrate's court, which cannot be found in this volume.

The criminal division is arranged under the Penitentiary code—and the laws are brought down through the latest published decisions of the supreme court.

I cheerfully recommend it to your readers generally, and especially to all Judicial officers; assuring them that it will prove to be a book of great convenience in the discharge of their public duties.

With great respect, Your obt. servt., W. GARRETT.

THIS magnificent Stallion and distinguished Race Horse, considered by Mr. Hare as the best son of that renowned imported horse Fyde, out of the no less renowned mare Fantail, by old Sir Archie, and which for perfection of form, size, substance and every thing requisite to constitute a superior race horse, has few equals and no superiors in the United States.

will stand the Spring season, 1842 at the Race Track near Jacksonville, Benton Co. Ala. at the stable of Col. John T. Pope, and will render the services of this truly fine Horse to the citizens of Alabama, who do so confidently offer him as of the very best stock horses in the United States, without any exception whatever, and if blood be any desideratum, he certainly stands pre-eminent in the zoology of horses—Black Prince has been a winner from New Market, Va. to Long Island, New York; and beaten the most celebrated horses at the North.
