Holloway's Pills.—Persons of delicate habit, subject to a temporary loss of consciousness from a sudden deterioration of the blood to the brain, will find great benefit from a course of Holloway's Pills. Epilepsy, spasms, convulsions, hysterics, palpitation of the heart, all affections arising from the disarrangement of the vascular and nervous system, are cured by a steady and persevering adherence to this noble cathartic. It regulates the action of the great internal organs, and thus equalizes the circulation.

"I have a son, who, I refer to as the "Lucky Boy," who, I am proud to say, has "bought his cure (live) - but to me, now Spring "is the best time to take it, and I have seen "other miraculous cures performed by this "remedy, even when death has seized the pa"tient, and the doctor has pronounced him "back to no life."
 "HADWAY'S READY RELIEF."
 There is no pain so severe, no disease so ac"cruing, no ailment so distressing, as the "heady fever which attacks, and so often "terminates in death, the young and the "old. This remedy has been proved to be a "cure and positive preventive of cholera, "dysentery, typhoid fever, and all the "fevers, Small Pox, and all miasmatic "diseases, and all the dangerous diseases of "children, including infantile cholera, and "all the diseases of the stomach, intestines, "and the rapid and violent attacks of "cholera, and all the diseases of the "whole system to the enjoyment of ease and com"fort, renders it a blessing to all who have it in "family should keep Hadway's in afflicted in their loved ones. If in the night you are suddenly seized with pain,aches, or sickness of the head, or of the chest, or of the bowels, or of the stomach, or nerves, or any other part the body, the remedy of Rowley's relief will in a few minutes remove all pains and uneasiness.

SNAKES—DOGS—CATS.

If you are bitten by a snake, or dog, or scratched, or hurt by a spider cut, stung by a wasp, or scorpion, or other reptile, Rowley's ready relief, if poured into the wound will neutralize the poison, and the inflammation will subside, and the swelling will diminish. It has saved the lives of many horses who have been stung by snakes, and other poisonous reptiles.

THE AGED.

All infirm, weak feeble and Nervous "old people" having been afflicted with Rheumatism, Gout, Sciatica, the stiff joints, crippled, and the limbs will become simple, classic, strong and vigorous, in every limb and joint of the body by the use of

MOTHERS.

If you will resort to Radway's relief or regular use when your children are taken sick by a cold, croup, measles, whooping cough, scarlet fever, or any other ailment, you will find that you save the lives of your children, you will help them to develop new life, new strength into their weak, feeble and diseased body.

Keep this in mind, and do not let your children, if it is the power of human agency to do so.

Radway's Regulators

A thorough purgative—a new medicinal masterpiece—from the basis of Radway's—goutic appetite; a heathily digestion, a corrosive action on the heart, a disseminant regulator of discharge from the liver, is a pure and sweet breath, new secured to all who take one or two of Radway's Regulators once to twice a week. The stomach, grows strong and robust, the circulation becomes brisk and glorious, the change to stagnation of body, and a barren flow of spirits.

Each pill that is taken, five new life to the world, this purity it, back from all impure desires and cupidity, and the world is saved.

One or two doses of Radway's regulators will instantly remove all distressing symptoms of Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Nervousness, Indigestion, Headache, Constipation, Bilelessness, Nervous debility, and will cure all irregularities of the system in man or woman. Ladies troubled with irregularities or weakening discharges, may rely on the regular and regular periods of Radway's regulators, and

PICTURE OF HEALTH AND BEAUTY.
A few doses of Rowley's regulator will insure a clear, fair, pure and healthy skin and a bright, sparkling eye. They give to those troubled with weak teeth, dull vision, aching head, and indigestion, a new and a more perfect being. Rowley's pills give a natural beauty to the face, eyes and head, and the use of the regulator is a wash for the teeth and a tonic for the blood. It gives to the most delicate and breath to sweetness, and the blackest complexion whiteness.

The action of the Regulator is a double one. It cleanses the blood and gives to the system ROWLEY'S EMBOVATING ACTION, the cure of chronic diseases, Scrofula or Syphilitic, hereditary contagious, be seated in the Lungs or Stomach, Skin or Blood, or of Nerves, erupting the solid or soft tissue of the body.

Consumption, Hemorrhages, Scurvy, Gout, Ulcers, Nodes, Tumors, Fever Sore, Skin Eruptions, Hotheads, Bronchitis, Dyspepsia

sis, Gout, Dropsy, Syphilis, Consumption, Apoplexy, &c., and all constitutions are weak and badly resolved. It changes the solid human body—reproduces new and healthy blood.

☞ Bleeding from the lungs—Rindley's renouncing resident will in a few minutes check hemorrhage from the lungs or throat. In cases of hemoptoe it will stop the blood. If the patient is streaked with his artery's resident will remove the difficulty.

☞ Sash. Hammond, of 195 east 32d street, New York, had cough for two years. She caught up the nearest cough of blood during the night. The blood was cured in 7 days by the relief and results.

A sore leg of 21 years, cured in three weeks.

of a child, Mr. F. H. Kilgo, a merchant of high standing in Lynchburg, Va., who, after a long illness, and a consultation with a well-known physician, was afflicted with a sore leg, that resisted every kind of treatment, was effectively cured in 3 weeks by Dr. Williams' ready relief, resolute and regular use.

The sick will please read our Tubular Atmosphere for 1897, and our newspaper called "The Tubular Atmosphere" for interesting cases of cure, and more than one hundred testimonials.

eyes, fixed them earnestly upon her memory was yet vague. "Ah! I remember," he went off. But where is William?

"If you mean your friend," said the young girl, "he is gone for a surgeon.
I have consented to watch by you till some shepherds come to carry you to their cabin. And here they come," she exclaimed, clasping her hands, equally glad to conclude this embarrassing telegraph, and to see the wounded man placed in a situation of more comfort.

"Heaven bless you!" said the sufferer.
"You have saved my life."
In a few moments the wounded man was placed on a cot, brought by the shepherds, and the caravans were led to the cabin. The maiden walked last, by her side stalked slowly the troops of the sufferer; and the dumb animals with a sense almost human, appreciating her kindness to their master, looked up affectionately into her face every few steps. The cabin was like those existing everywhere in the Highlands—a rude but cheerful habitation, but was better than the usual, and adapted with more taste inside.

In about two hours the friend of the sufferer returned bringing with him the surgeon, who was clothed with his patient for an hour, and when he came forth the young girl was sitting anxiously by the fire, in company with a middle aged woman, the wife of one of the shepherds.

"Oh, Miss Hannah," said the old surgeon, answering the inquiry of her eyes, "you have saved the life of good as ever shot a mule-cock or stalked a red deer. I know all about it, you see, and I am glad to hear of it. You are a lady, and he patted her head as a father would that of a favorite daughter, adding as if to himself, 'tis a pity that the Southern has not the broad acres that were once her ancestors, and that she, coming of a chieftain's line, should have nothing but a cabin and a few hillsides for a flock or two of sheep."

The next day, the wounded man was pronounced better, but still in a very critical position, and his removal was forbidden by the old surgeon.

"Ye man keep him here awhile yet, lassie," said he, addressing Hannah, "and I'll almost persuade ye'll have to be his nurse. He has no sisters or mother to send for, so it seems, and men are very rough nurses, ye ken. Mrs. Odo-man is here, and will not doubt help; but ye man be his nurse, most of the time yourself, 'tis what can't be helped."

And so Hannah, timid and emburrased, was compelled, from the urgent necessity of the case, to attend on the wounded man. His friend, indeed, remaned to assist in nursing him; but the invalid, with a whim of a sick man, soon begun to refuse his medicines, unless administered by the hand of Hannah.

Moreover, until the danger was over, his friend watched every night at his bedside, and in consequence requiring a portion of the day for rest, Hannah was left alone for hours with the wounded man.

The surgeon, for the first two weeks, came every day to see his patient; but after this, visited him less frequently.
He now moved rapidly, began to sit up, and very soon he could totter to the window and look out. In a day or two more he found his way to the cottage door, where, sitting in a chair, he inhaled the delicious mountain air for an hour or so at noonday. His friend, when the invalid was thus far convalescent, look to his gun again, and went out for game, and his wife and her guest were left alone together.

"How shall I ever thank you sufficiently, Hannah," said Donald one day.
—"Your presence of mind, when I was dying by the spring, saved my life." The blushing Hannah looked down and said:

"Don't talk that way, Mr. Allyn—You would not, I know, if you were aware how much it pained me."
"Call me Donald," said the convalescent, "rarely we have known each other long enough for you to do that. I am Donald. Or, if you will not call me Donald, then I shall address you as Miss Graham."

"Donald, then," said Hannah, arch-ly looking up, and shaking the curls back from her face.

"Bless you for the word, Hannah," he said, taking her hand. "Do you know it sounds sweeter now than I ever thought it would?"

"Mr. Allyn," she said, though with averted face, "if you would not have me keep out of your sight forever—if, in short you have any respect for a friend—I beg you to do me the favor of that strain again, and I will not fail to leave."

"Hannah, dear me," said her lover, detaining her hand, "you have saved my life, and every day I spend in your society has increased that love; and if you will say that you love another, I swear never to speak on the subject again."

She endeavored to detach her hand, which he held as if it were a bird, indeed, "You are right and I am poor," she said at last; "you would some day repent of this thing. Even your friend would laugh at you."

"Then you love me," said he, eagerly.
"Is it not so?"

"But this time Hannah faced him, and with a dignity that quite awed his rapture.

"Mr. Allyn, will you let me go," she said, "I am an unprotected girl, and you presume on my situation."

"No, no," he exclaimed, but he let go her hand. "You misjudge me, indeed, Miss Graham, for your blood is as good as mine; and even if it were not, Donald Allyn is not the man to love for wealth or rank."

Hannah, whose pride, rather than heart, had spoken, was moved by these words, and she fingered irresolutely.
Her lover saw the change in her demeanor, and hastened to take advantage of it. "Nor did Hannah long continue to resist his pleadings. She loved him, indeed, too well, as she had all along confessed to her own heart. Still, even, when brought to half acknowledge that she had a place in his heart, she would not promise to be his without a condition. He argued long and earnestly, but her answer was always the same.

"We must part for a year," she said.
"You think now with the memory of your illness fresh upon you, that you love me; but I am come to too high a ground than I ought to be. You are very beautiful, in her girlhood the gayest parties she joined. While she was at school she became acquainted with George Cox, a gay, handsome man, who exactly resembled her lover. He first introduced her to society, and when she was eighteen years old he married her. There seemed nothing wrong about the man; he was poor, but apparently perfectly correct in his conduct, and his parents were pleased with the match.
Her father settled one half of his large fortune upon her, on her wedding day. For a few short weeks she was happy. Then she awoke from her dream of bliss. The first trial she had was when she encountered a storm of rage from George, on his discovering that her property was settled upon herself; he brutally told her that he never cared for her baby face or giggling manners, but married her for her money, and that her father's arrangement with regard to it was an infamous cheat.
This was the beginning of a system of slight and insult from the man who had promised to cherish and protect her.
They had been married about a year when her little girl was born. The saddened wife was a most delighted mother. Every hope that had been crushed by unkindness sprung into new life under the influence of maternal love, and her baby became her idol.

"One day George Cox received into his study a woman whom his wife had never seen. They were seated together, when, when she came down to get a cup of tea. They did not hear her come in.
This was the stranger, I have borne this life long enough. I am tired of being your tool. You can easily break the chain that binds you. Declare your marriage, and divorce this baby."

"And he imprisoned for bigamy?" As he said this she stood up and saw Eloise standing before him, pale, fearfully pale, but yet calm.

"Is this true, George?"
"Go upstairs," was the answer.
"Is this true?" said she, "I have been married to you for four years, and I am tired of being your tool. You can easily break the chain that binds you. De-

"That lady," he said, in answer to my queries, "is Eloise Graham, and her story is a very sad one. She was an
