THE SECRET INFIRMITIES OF YOUTH AND MATURITY.

Just Published Gratis, the 25 Thousand.

A FEW WORDS ON THE INFIRMITIES OF YOUTH, AND MATURITY, WITHOUT MEDICINE, OR THE USE OF DRUGS, OR ANY OTHER ARTIFICIAL MEANS, BY B. DE LANEY, M. D.

The important fact that the many alarming complaints, originating in the impurity and impotence of youth, may be cured without medicine, is in this small tract, explained by means of which every one is enabled to cure himself perfectly and at the least possible cost, thereby avoiding all the adverse influences of the day.

Sent by express, gratis, and post free in a sealed envelope, by remitting (post paid) two postage stamps to Dr. B. DE LANEY, 25 East 14th Street, New York City.

FOR RENT.

The following beautiful poem commends itself to every heart. Bennett is one of England's choicest poets, and is taking a little time in his country's literature.

It was a strange place for two little girls to enter, and at such an hour; but after standing a moment, they pushed against the green door, which turned lightly upon its hinges, and stepped in to a large and brilliantly lighted room.

"Bless us!" exclaimed a man who sat reading. "Here are those babes again."

Ady and Jane stood near the door and looked all around the room. But they did not see the object of their search, and going up, they looked behind the door, and found it locked.

"Has papa been here to-night?"

The man leaped over the bar and hid his face close to the children, when he said in an angry way:

"I don't know anything about your father. And see here don't you come any more into my house. I'll call my dog out of the yard and make him bite you."

Ady and Jane felt frightened, as well by the harsh manner as the angry words of the man, and started back from him, and were turning towards the door with sad faces, when the person who had first marked their entrance, called out loud enough for them to hear him:

"Come here my little girls."

The children stopped and looked at him, when he beckoned them to approach him, and they did so.

"Are you looking for your father?" he enquired.

"Yes, sir," replied Ady.

"And what did the man at the bar say to you?"

"He said that papa wasn't here; and that if we came any more he would set his dog on us."

"He did?"

"Yes, sir."

The man knelt his brow for an instant, and said:

"Who sent you here?"

"Nobody," answered Ady.

"Don't your mother know that you have come?"

"Yes, sir. She told us to go to bed, but we couldn't go until papa was home, and we came for him first."

"Is he here?"

"Is he?" And the children's faces brightened.

"Yes he is at the other side of the room, asleep—I'll wake him for you."

Half-intoxicated, and sound asleep, it was with some difficulty that Mr. Freeman could be aroused.

As soon, however, as his eyes were fairly opened, and he found that Ady and Jane had each grasped one of his hands, he rose up, and yielded passively to their direction, suffered them to lead him away.

"Oh dear!" exclaimed a man who had looked on with wonder and interest, "that's a temperance lecture that I can't stand. God bless the little ones," he added, with emotion, and gave them a sober father."

"I guess you never saw them before," said one of the bar-keepers, lightly.

"No, and never wish to again; at least in this place. Who is their father?"

"Freeman, the lawyer."

"Not one who a few years ago conducted with so much ability the case against the Marine Insurance Company?"

"Is it possible?"

A group now formed about the man, and a good deal was said about Freeman's fall from sobriety. One who had several times seen Ady and Jane come in and lead him home as they had just done, spoke of them with much feeling; all agreed that it was a most touching case.

"To see," said one, "how passively he yields himself to the little things when they come after him. I feel sometimes when I see them, almost weak enough to shed tears."

"They are his good angels," remarked another. "But I'm afraid they are not strong enough to lead him back to the path which he has forsaken."

"You can think what you please about it gentlemen," said the landlord, "but I can tell you my opinion upon the subject; would it give much for the mother who would let two little girls like these go wandering off about the streets, alone at this time of night?"

One of those who had expressed interest in the children, felt angry at this remark, and retorted, with some bitterness:

"And I would give less for the man who would make their father drunk."

"Ditto that," responded one of the company.

"And here is my hand for that," said another.

The landlord finding that the majority of the company were likely to be against him, smothered his angry feelings and kept silence. A few minutes afterwards, two or three of the inmates of the bar went away.

About ten o'clock on the morning, when Freeman was generally sober, he went to the part of the day, was in his office, a stranger entered, and after sitting down, said:

"I must crave your pardon before-hand for what I am going to say. I will promise not to be offended."

"If you offer me an insult, I shall resent it," said the lawyer.

"So far from that, I came with the desire to do you a great service."

"Very well, say on."

"I was at Lawson's Refectory last night."

"Well."

"And I saw something there that touched my heart. If I slept at it, it it not with accounts of sorrow. Let the mind."

They did not speak a word to each other as they hastened along. After going a distance of several blocks, they stopped before a house, over the door of which hung a handsome ornamental gas lamp, bearing the words, "Oysters an Refreshments."

It was a strange place for two little girls to enter, and at such an hour; but after standing a moment, they pushed against the green door, which turned lightly upon its hinges, and stepped in to a large and brilliantly lighted room.

$20 REWARD.
Runaway

 FROM the premises of the undersigned, on the night of the 4th of August, a negro man named YORK, of a dark copper color, twenty or twenty-one years of age, five feet nine or ten inches high, and weighing about 150 or 160 pounds. His name is perceptible on both wrists, scratched in with blue ink. Any person catching him and delivering him to me, or bringing him in any jail, so that I get him again, will be entitled to twenty dollars reward. He will probably try to make his way back to North Carolina, having been originally brought from that State.

THIS, the age of advancement, manhood and invaluable have been introduced by telephones and clergies as of old, but new ones will prove more useful. In no department is progress so lacking or more visible. It is even that medical, when originating with medicine, and confined to scientific limits of that character, cannot follow the progress of the age. The progress of the age is so often needed.

LITTLE'S XODYNE COUGH DROPS.

It is the certain cure for Coughs, Whooping Coughs, also Croup, Whooping Coughs, among children.

It is a pleasant, cooling tonic to take, producing a healthy action on the system, and is a most valuable remedy for the most violent of all the Lunges of any remedy known, often more violent in a few hours, than a quart of any other remedy.

and on suppositories have been proved by using a few bottles, and wearing the Strengthening Plasters on the back, the patient, without any other treatment, is cured. In the case of the bowels, it stands paramount to all mixtures.

LITTLE'S FRENCH MIXTURE is prepared from a French Recipe (first used by No. 1 and 2, the first for the cure of the French King) that has long since proved improved upon in the use of the unmixed success is likely to succeed every other remedy for the cure of the Kidneys and Bladder Complaints, Bile, Dropsy, Gravel, and Rheumatic Affections. This extensive experience has proved that the medicinal and purgative properties, totally different in character from anything to be found in any other medicine, are in composition of the most delicate and in perfect and effective, and is not maligned in America.

Land for Sale.
 THE undersigned now offers for sale or lease an unimproved tract of Land containing 4 1/2 miles east of Jacksonville, within TWO HUNDRED ACRES. About 1/2 mile of the boundary is on the State of cultivation. The improved portion is of a comfortable dwelling house and necessary out houses; a good apple and peach orchard; a large well of constantly flowing water in the yard, and two flush air-laid branches running through the yard, and discharging into the water. The land is so situated that the mountain view from the house affords excellent range for the sportsman. The price is very low and can be bargained upon for advance cash payment. The land is situated in the interest of any one wishing to purchase, to call and examine the land and take possession.

Scribbler Sale.
 BY virtue of one Execution, issued from the Circuit Court of Calhoun County,
 Alabama, and to me directed, in favor of D.
 M. HARRIS, against J. M. HARRIS, J. M. Harriss and George W. Pinson, I will sell to the highest bidder for cash, before the Court House door, in the Town of Jacksonville
 Fla. on MONDAY the FIFTH DAY OF AUGUST NEXT, the following described property to-wit: all the interest right title and claim of said J. M. Harris, J. M. Har-

Land for Sale.
THE undersigned now offers for sale, on accommodating terms, her tract of Land, containing 41-2 miles east of Jacksonville, about two HUNDRED ACRES. About one-half of the same is water land and is well adapted for a fine state of cultivation. The improvements consist of a comfortable dwelling house and all necessary out houses, a good apple orchard and other fruit trees, a large pump and never-failing water in the spring and well.

never-ending branches running through the land, affording very convenient stock water. The land is so situated that the mountain lying on the west affords excellent range for stock, and cannot be burned up. These and other advantages which might be mentioned will be given in full to any one wishing to purchase, to call and examine the place for themselves.
