RICHARDSON'S IRISH LINENS,
DAMASKS, DIAPERS, &c.
CONSUMERS of RICHARDSON'S LINENS, and those desirous of obtaining the GENUINE GOODS, should see that the articles they purchase are sealed with the full name of the firm,
RICHARDSON, SONS & OWDEN,
as a guarantee of the soundness and durability of the Goods.
This caution is rendered essentially necessary as large quantities of inferior and defective Linens are prepared; season after season and sealed with the name of RICHARDSON by Irish Houses, who, regardless of the injury thus inflicted alike on the American consumer & the manufacturers of the genuine Goods, will not readily abandon a business so profitable, while purchasers can be imposed on with Goods of a worthless character.

JOB WORK
NEATLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE

POETRY.

ALONE.

Patient & faithful, & tender and true,
Praying and thinking, and working for you—
Bearing all silently sorrow for years—
Hopefully striving to conquer my fears;
Say, did my patience, my tenderness, truth,
Merit not more than the blight of my youth?

Give me once more my wild energy back
Give me the hopes that illumined life's track;
Give me the faith that I wasted on you—
Give me the love that I squandered thereto—
You cannot; too lightly you cast them aside,
And for you and all others these feelings have died.

Yet, though the hopes that I cherished are dead,
Though the light from my spirit forever hath fled,
Tho' 'twas doubting in God when I doubted in you,
As my standard and type of the real and the true;
O'er the wreck of my life I would never repine,
If the peace I have lost were but added to thine.

The Mocking Bird.

BY HON. A. B. MEEK.

From the vale, what music ringing
Fills the bosom of the night;
On the sense, entranced, flinging
Spells of witchery and delight!
O'er magnolia, lime and cedar,
From you locust to it swells,
Like the chant of serenader,
Or the rhyme of silver bells!
Listen! dearest, listen to it!
Sweeter sounds were never heard;
'Tis the sound of that wild poet—
Mimic & minstrel—Mocking Bird.

See him, swinging in his glory,
On you topmost bending limb,
Carolling his amorous story,
Like some wild crusader's hymn?
Now it faints in tones delicious
As the first low vow of love!
Now it breaks in swells capricious,
All the moonlight vale above!
Listen! dearest, &c.

Why is't thus, this sylvan Petriarch
Pours all night his serenade?
'Tis for some proud woodland Laura,
His said sonnets all are made;
But he changes now his measure—
Gladness bubbling from his mouth—
Jest, and jibe, and mimic pleasure—
Winged Anacreon of the South!
Listen! dearest, &c.

Bird of music, wit and gladness,
Troubadour of sunny climes,
Disenchantar of all sadness—
Would thine art were in my rhymes
O'er the heart that's beating by me,
I would weave a spell divine;
Is there aught she could deny me.
Drinking in such strains as thine?
Listen! dearest, &c.

A NEW REVOLUTIONARY STORY.

ONE-EYED SAUL:

OR THE

Tory League of Seven.

A TALE OF SOUTH CAROLINA.

BY DR J. H. ROBINSON,

Author of "Nick Whiffles," "Buck Bison," "Half Witted Nat," "Marion's Brigade," "The Pioneers of Kentucky," etc.

CHAPTER I.

THE LEAGUE OF THE SEVEN.

Seven men, coming from different points, urging their way with great difficulty through almost impervious walls interlaced and opposing shrubbery, met at midnight beneath the spreading branches of a cypress tree, at a place called Laurel Swamp, in South Carolina, in the year 177–. They gathered sticks and leaves and made a fire. The flames springing up from the dry heap, threw a red glare upon their faces, which were seamed and disfigured by the play of bad passions. They were young men—the oldest not being more than thirty five years of age. As they stood in a circle around the fire, they resembled a group of vagabond English gipsies, fresh from the stocks or the whipping post. They were armed with sabres, knives, pistols and muskets. Their faces were smutched with powder, their beards and hair long and neglected, their garments torn by conflict and the sharp teeth of cypress hedges. The names of these men were respectively as follows: Martin Vantassle, Nathaniel Herrick, Philip Langford, Simon Arrowswith, John Nicolson, James Pollard, and Timothy Becker.

Vantassle, a tall, athletic, ill-visaged fellow, was the leader of these fierce & intractable spirits. Unsheathing his heavy-sabre, and planting its point in the ground between his feel, he addressed his companions.

"Men," he said, in a hard, harsh voice that harmonized well with his general prestige, "we've met here to-night to bind ourselves together in perpetual fellowship by solemn oath and mutual agreement. Every man's hand is agin us—leastwise, in these parts—and ours, in turn, is agin every man. We've sworn allegiance to his gracious Majesty, the King of Great Britain and rightful ruler of these colonies, have touched his money, and will do his work."

"It isn't the king I care so much about," muttered Nat Herrick, "but the utter destruction and extermination of the Whigs. South Car'liny is already more'n half conquered. The rebel cause is rapidly growin' weaker, & we'll soon sweep 'em away like chaff. It'll be strange if Nat Herrick don't have his share of the plunder."

There was an applauding murmur around the grim circle.

"I was comin, to that subject," added Vantassle, impatiently. "I reckon I know the merits of the case, and understand the natur of your feelin's, my lads. We never seed the King of England, any of us; and if we should, it's agin reason to s'pose, that he'd speak to us; and to tell the truth, we care little about him. I love Martin Vantassle better nor I do any king in the world. I fight the Whigs because their side is the weakest, and I hate 'em; and there's a prospect of makin' somethin' by it. When we've driven 'em out, which will be soon, 'cordin' to present appearances, we'll be masters of the country ourselves. We'll have houses and lands, and niggers to wait on us."

"That's the kind o' talk I like to hear," said Jim Pollard.

"It's a kind of talk, too, that'll prove prophetic," rejoined Vantassle.

"It would, if we could keep Marion and Sumpter still," interposed Langford.

"The Swamp Fox will soon be still enough, I'll warrent ye! Colonel Tarleton is in his track, and he'll trap him afore he's a week older. However, that's neither here nor there; let them fight for glory who will—our motto is 'Booty and Beauty.'"

"We know who your beauty is," said Simon Arrowsmith, with a leer; "it is Jessie Burnside."

"And he shall have her, too!" said Herrick, with an oath.

"Thank'e, Nat Herrick; and if you don't succeed with Ruth Haviland, it'll be no fault of mine."

"And will nobody speak a word for me?" asked Langford.

"A hundred, if you like!" cried Pollard, "though to me it appears like the greatest nonsense to be runnin' arter women when there's so much real fightin' to be done. My mistress is a bloody one, and I find her wherever there is a Whig to hang, a till to rifle, or a house to burn. Howsomdever, if you like Judith Burnside, it's none o' my business, and I reckon none on us'll stand in your way. She's very handsome, & proud as she is handsome; and if you win her at all, it'll be by foul and not by fair means. I don't want to be hard on ye, Phil Langford, but I'm sure you can't do much in the way of what folks call honest courtish. But don't be down-hearted, lad, for we're bound to aid each other under all carcumstances, and in all cases."

Martin Vantassle drew his sabre from the earth and thrusting it forward, held it over the blazing fire; the blade was dinted and serrated with service, and there were red stains upon it. The other six unsheathed theirs and crossed them upon his, when he dictated a terrible and impious compact which they severally repeated. It was too profane and shocking to be put verbatim upon paper. They pledged themselves to mutual brotherhood and crime; to exterminate the struggling- and hunted Whigs; to give no quarter to the captured foe; to pursue the flying fugitive with remorseless fury; to commit every enormity upon the defenceless patriots; to rob, to run, to outrage helpless innocence.

When this fearful and unnatural compact had been made, Vantassle turned to Herrick and asked:

"What names have you brought?"

Herrick drew a soiled paper from his waistcoat pocket, and bending toward the fire, read the following names:

"Paul Hazelhurst, Frank Haviland, Tom Hutter, Podijah Makepeace, Gideon, Grant, Blinko, a nigger, and One-eyed Saul of Laurel Swamp."

"Man," said Vantassle, "these are for the sword! We are to hunt them down and kill them. By virtue of my authority, and by the oath which you have sworn, I command you to pursue the persons whose names you have heard, night and day, till you have swept them out of existence!"

"There are seven of them and seven of us—a man for each," said Herrick.

"Let us determine our respective men by lot," suggested Langford.

"The idea is good, and by lot the matter shall be decided," added Vantassle.

This suggestion was eagerly received; its novelty made it welcome. The names of the parties doomed to destruction were written upon seven slips of papers, and drawn from Vantassle's cap by his associates. Herrick drew the first ballot.

"Frank Haviland!" he exclaimed

"The brother of Ruth!" said Pollard, with a shrug, and looking inquiringly at his comrade.

"Tom Hutter," said Langford, drawing, and reading his ballot.

"And I, Blinko, the black," said Nicolson.

"And I, One eyed Saul!" cried Pollard, in dismay.

"You've got something to do," laughed Vantassle. "If you outwit Saul of Laurel Swamp, you'll be the greatest man among us."

"Podijah Makepeace, an infernal Yankee!" declared Tim Becker, looking at his ballot.

Simon Arrowsmith was the last to draw. He drew Gideon Grant, leaving Paul Hazelhurst for Vantassle.

"It is just as I wish it," observed the latter, while a scowl of hatred gave additional malignance to his expression.

"He has visited the Burnsides at Laurelwood," remarked Langford.

"Is it Judith or Jessie?" asked Pollard, with a sneer.

"It shall be neither!" thundered Vantassle, casting fierce glances around him. "Let us join hands," he added, "and swear that we will respectively abide by the ballot."

This was instantly done; with clasped hands and unsheathed sabres they renewed their terrible compact, invoking direful penalties of they proved recreant to their oath. The League of Seven was complete.

They separated, and went their several ways. A moment later, and nothing but the smouldering embers of their fire remained to mark the spot where they had met.

CHAPTER II.

LAURELWOOD.

Twilight stole silently upon Laurelwood; it curled in upon the mansion & surrounding trees like a pale, soft mist. It was a very quiet hour, but to Jessie Burnside there was something inexpressibly oppressive in the air. Her fair companions, Ruth Haviland and Judith Burnside, her sister, sympathized with these feelings of uneasiness.—With the exception of Blinko, a black servant, and Jupe, a mulatto girl, these ladies were, at this time, the sole occupants of the house; Mrs. Burnside, being absent in attendance upon a sick relative, while Mr. Burnside was serving in Marion's brigade. It was at that period when the struggle for liberty seemed dark and hopeless. South Carolina was overrun with pitiless enemies, and devastated with fire & sword. Toryism was rife, and stalked abroad like a destroying angel, smiting old & young. No man trusted his neighbor until he stood shoulder to shoulder with him in battle. No one knew where to find faith and good fellowship till danger and death had come to apply the test to friend and brother.

Burnside's mansion—which had received the name of Laurelwood on account of its proximity to Laurel Swamp—was so far distant from towns and cities that he flattered himself its quietude would not be intruded upon by marching armies or wandering bands of loyalists. It is true that he left his beloved ones with reluctance, and was often harassed with fears for their safety; but duty—yea, necessity—called him to the field, and he went, hoping that Providence would protect those he left at home. So far, Laurelwood had not been molested. The terrible tales of the atrocities committed in neighboring towns and hamlets were daily reaching him. The young ladies had recently, too, had their fears excited by the persecution of certain persons, whose characters and principles were alike obnoxious. With these parties we shall soon become better acquainted.

Wishing to conceal her dejection of mind, and see if the open air were not more exhilirating, Jessie Burnside opened the door, & stepped out, as she believed, unobserved by Ruth & Judith. There was a small summer house overgrown with vines, a few yards distant; she entered it, and sat down. She had scarcely done so, when she heard a voice pronounce her name. She sprang up with a cry of terror. A large rough hand was laid rudely over her mouth; it was the hand of Martin Vantassle.

"Come, Miss, don't be frightened, for I am niether a wolf nor a panther, but plain Martin Vantassle—as good a man as you can find atween here and the mouth of the Santee. What's better, I'm a king's man, and the king's men have it all their own way, now."

"You are rude and unmannerly, sir!" cried Jessie, pushing him from her indignantly. "If you have business with me, speak it, and begone!"

"Well. Mistress. I have a matter of business with ye, I reckon which shall last for life, if you like it. I a'n't a person that can talk much, and haven't a great deal of time to spend in that soft palaver they call love-making; but I want a wife right hard, and you're the gal I've a kinder fixed my mind on."

"Oh, this is your wooin!" said Jessie, contemptuously. "Let me tell you, Martin Vastassle, that your wooing is odious. You are a bear!"

"That's right, Miss; call me pet names. You can make me the best natured bear in the world, if you will."

Vantassle attempted to tap her playfully under the chin with his clumsy hand.

"Don't touch me! there is contamination in the touch of one who turns traitor, and betrays his own countrymen to foreign invaders. I have no patience with you, nor those of your character or habits of thinking, who are associated with you in your crime and spoliation. The word Tory makes me shudder; your presence disgusts me, while your deeds fill me with horror!"

She tried to escape from the summer-house. Vantassle caught her by the wrist.

"Not so fast, my scornful! Now is the reign of might over-right. Law & order are fled the land. Fear of magistrates is not now before our eyes. We don't ask, 'Shall we do this or that?' but we do as we list. I want you, and am come for you."

"This is frightful!" gasped Jessie.—"I shall die with terror! Blinko! Blinko! Help—help!"

At that moment she heard the report of a rifle not far off.

"Did you hear that?" asked the Tory, with a triumph. "It was for Blinko, I'll be sworn! I left a man on his track that can knock over a dollar at a hundred yards."

"Spare me! Have we not been neighbors? Were we not friendly before this terrible war? Remember, I entreat of you, that I am a poor, trembling girl, with no protector."

"I shall have no trouble in remembering the last, I'll warrant. I shouldn't trusted myself here if you'd been surrounded by the cursed rebels. Come, gal, our home is in Laurel Swamp."

With a quick, unexpected movement, Vantassle drew her to him, lifted her in his arms, and moved toward the dark and tangled mass of wood lying in the rear of the mansion at the distance of a hundred rods, and covering an area of ten miles in circumference.

By this time Ruth and Judith had missed her, and came running to the spot as he was bearing her away. They cried loudly for assistance, while terror nearly deprived them of sense and volition. At the moment when the catastrophe seemed complete, a tall man, with a large black patch over his left eye, and a long rifle in his hand, sprang from a clump of shrubbery, seized Vantassle by the throat, wrested Jessie from his grasp, and choking him till he was black in the face, hurled him to the ground. While Vantassle lay stunned upon the earth, his vanquisher took his musket from his unnerved hand, discharged it into the air, and broke the stock against the trunk of a tree. He then drew the pistols from the Tory's belt and thrust them into his own, from which already protruded the butts of four. The blade of Vantassle's knife he snapped by thrusting it into the cleft of a rock, but the heavy sabre he buckled to his side, leaving the ruffian entirely unarmed.

"In, gals, in!" cried the rescuer.—"Bar your doors, and say your prayers, for the Tory hounds have scented blood, and will not rest till they have gorged themselves."

The tall, wild looking man glanced at Jessie, and observing that she was faint, caught her up as if she were an infant, and carried her to the door. Placing her carefully within the threshold, he repeated his startling warning, & vanished in the deepening shadows of night. He was gone before the young ladies had recovered sufficiently from their dismay to thank him.

While they gazed at each other in a stupor of wonder, a man leaped a high fence at the right, and crossing the intervening ground, stood before them, panting and covered with perspiration. It was Tom Hutter, the partisan and scout, who was known to the neighboring loyalists as a staunch and unswerving patriot and a brave man, shrinking from no danger, and shunning none of the responsibilities of the part he had chosen.

"Tom Hutter!" exclaimed Judith and Ruth, simultaneously, "what has happened? You are excited with effort; you can scarcely stand."

"I have been pursued," said Hutter. "I have had a race for dear life. In, and barricade the doors! A party of the miserable renegades will be here in a minute! Where's Blinko?"

"I don't know," said Judith, "He went out a few minutes ago."

"Which way?" asked Hutter.

Judith indicated the direction with her finger.

Hutter started off like a racehorse. He saw a dark object suspended from the branch of a tree. It was Blinko, who was swaying to and fro, and quivering in the agonies of strangulation Hutter cut him down in an instant, and tearing the rope from his neck, staggered toward the house beneath the weight of his great body. A half dozen musket shots were poured after him from the nearest copse. The balls perforated his clothes and grazed his skin in several places, but he reached the house in safety with the half dead black. Leaving him to the care of Jupe, the mulatto girl, he barred the doors and fastened the windows.

Jessie, who had partially recovered her self-possession, looked out and saw forms moving to and fro among the shrubery. Her heart missgave her. How could they resist so many enemies? She thought of the strange man who had so opportunely appeared to save her from Vantassle. She wondered why he had left them at such a juncture! His deep, resonant voice still rang in her ears.

"Stand back from the window!" said Tom Hutter.

The warning was timely; a charge of buckshot crashed through the panes as she stepped aside, some of which perforated her dress, while one of the hurtling messengers drew blood from her white neck.

"These miscreants make war upon women!" exclaimed Ruth Haviland.

"Make war upon women, Miss Haviland? They are more savage nor the wolves and catamounts that prowl through Laurel Swamp. Neither beauty nor tears can move 'em. They are ten times worse nor the Britishers themselves! They've marked their way through Car'liny with fire and blood, outrage and robbery."

Tom Hutter suddenly thrust his rifle through the shattered pane and fired. A cry came back trough the smoke.

"There was mischief in that," he said, quietly, reloading his piece.

Resistance," cried Jessie, "hopeless. What can you expect from them if you are taken Tom Hutter?"

"A rope from the branch of the nearest tree," answered the Partisan, coolly.

"Then fly—escape from the back door when you may! They certainly will not be so brutal as to harm us young girls," said Judith, entreatingly.

"My poor gals, you don't know 'em so well as I. I've followed their terrible trail, and looked upon their infarnal work. I know what happens to sich as you, and should be tempted to kill you with my own hand, rather than leave you to their ruffian violence. If my time's come, and I'm to go the way of all the airth, I'll die here in defense of beauty and innocence."

"Noble Tom!" cried Ruth.

"If you've any firearms and ammunition, hurry to bring 'em and lay 'em down beside me, and be keerful to keep out of the range of the winders."

By this time Blinko had revived, and hearing this order, said:

"I'll tend to dat, Mars'r Tom. Only let the young misses keep out de way, and I'll stand by ye long's there am a breff o' life in me."

Blinko disappeared, but soon returned with a blunderbuss, two muskets, a brace of dueling pistols, a bag of buckshot and a horn of powder. Hutter took the blunderbuss and charged it heavily. There was no light in the house save a single candle, which was placed behind a door in a corner to prevent serving as a guide to the Tory marksmen.

Hutter cast himself upon the floor and watched the movements of the assailants over the window-sill. His person was somewhat exposed to shots of enemy, but his coolness [illegible] a moment deserted him.

"The cowards are about to charge upon the door in a body," [illegible] presently. "Blinko give me the blunderbuss."

The black handed the [illegible] destructive weapon to the scout, whose muscles were firm and obedient [illegible] young ladies observed his movements with indescribable interest. Their fate seemed to rest upon his single arm. A chilling sensation of horror [illegible] them when they reflected upon the consequences of defeat and capture.

The Tories rushed toward the door with a shout. Hutter quickly aimed his weapon and poured to handful of buckshot into the midst of them. They recoiled and retreated to the covert of the shrubbery. A knocking was heard in the rear door.

"Who's there?" demanded Hutter.

"Well, I ruther guess one on 'em's me!" said a genuine Yankee voice.—"Podijah Makepeace is pooty gener'ly abeout when there's skrimmagin' goin on."

Blinko immediately unfastened the door and admitted two persons. Podijah Makepeace had a figure of imposing height, but which lacked that fulness of development which gives symmetry and comeliness to the human organization His hair was flaxen and long, his mouth large and good humored, his nose somewhat sharp, while his eyes, which were small and hazel, sparkled with drollery. He was manifestly a man who meant to be pleased with life as he found it, and to make himself as comfortable as possible under all circumstances.

His companion was more youthful and presented a different type of humanity. He impressed the beholder at once with the idea of manly beauty, courage and integrity.

"Paul Hazlehurst!" cried, Jessy, joyfully.

The young man sprang forward and grasped the hands that were eagerly extended to greet him.

"We've come jest abeout in the nick o' time, I should say, by gum! The blasted critters are a peggin' into ye, ain't they? Well, we'll show 'em trick worth tu of that. Wax my flax, if we don't!"

It may be well to remark here that Podijah was by trade a shoemaker, and that his language was generally highly seasoned with the technicalities of the cordwainer's art. As Podijah finished this eloquent peroration, he brought the breech of his rifle upon the floor with a great crash, and squinted of the window with his twikling eyes. The movement was nearly fatal to Podijah, for a bullet, aimed at random from outside, severed one of his flaxen locks from his neck.

"Cramp uppers! Now that's what I call pooty close work. A feller's jest as likely to be shot righ square through the head as any way; close up my seams if he isn't."

For a few minutes the shouting and firing ceased. The terrified girls flattered themselves that the Tories were retiring; but were presently undeceived, for they had silently surrounded the house, and now commenced the assault from different quarters with great resolution and fury. Each felt that the crisis was rapidly approaching.—Tom Hutter and Blinko, reinforced by Hazlehurst and the Yankee, stood by their weapons, resolved to make a desperate resistance.

BLOODY FIGHT WITH THE INDIANS. FORD'S RANGERS CUT OFF.—The Centreville Herald, published at Centreville, Leon county, Texas, in its issue of the 8th inst, received yesterday, publishes the following account of a desperate conflict with the Indians, on the Northern frontier of the State, in which Capt. Ford's company of Rangers was surrounded by eight hundred Indians, and all killed except five:

I give you below a brief statement of the loss of forty-three of our brave Rangers in an unfortunate engagement with the Indians.

Capt. Ford, with 47 of his men, left camp in pursuit of the Indians, who had carried off four hundred horses. He was joined by two hundred friendly Indians, and afterwards by Major Van Dorn, with two hundred and eighty regulars. After the united forces had passed the headwaters of Red River, Major Van Dorn not deeming it prudent to press the pursuit further without additional supplies for men and horses, turned back. Capt. Ford and men, with the friendly Indians, continued two days travel in the direction of Kansas. Between midnight and daybreak of the second night, the friendly Indians left the camp of Capt. Ford.—About daylight Capt. Ford found himself surrounded by eight hundred warriors, who demanded his surrender. He refused, and ordered his men to prepare for fight, each being armed with two revolvers and a rifle. They fought bravely and desperately, but were overpowered by numbers, and all butchered except Captain Ford and four of his men, who cut their way through and escaped.

Among the names of those who fell fighting bravely, are the two nephews of Gen. Ed. Burleson, Aaron and his brother, whose father was killed in a former engagement with the Indians, and whose untimely fate will be deeply regretted by friends and relations in our county.

The above information was brought me direct from Austin upon the arrival of the express from Capt. Ford, and is reliable.

Great excitement prevails in Travis and adjoining counties, and it is supposed that a large company will start in pursuit of the Indians so soon as preparations can be made. Respectfully,

THOMAS W. BLAKE.

An Inducement.—We now propose to all our subscribers who owe for over one, two, three or more years, to receive their dues at two dollars per year, until after the close of our approaching spring term of the Circuit Court.

Subscribe while at Court.

We will mention several reasons why many citizens, who are not subscribers to their County Newspaper, should become so at once.

1st. They get the paper published in their own County free of postage, even where they take it out of a Post office out of the County.

2nd. This is the year in which all our elections come on, from Governor down; and every good citizen is interested in knowing who are candidates, and what are their sentiments.

3rd. The European nations seem to be on the eve of a bloody & protracted war, which may either involve our country eventually, or affect its interests in various ways

4th. The affairs of our own country, foreign and domestic, are in a critical and complicated condition; and every citizen should keep himself well informed of the progress of events that he may be prepared for the full and intelligent discharge of his duties.

5th. By taking their County paper, they have the double advantage of getting the foreign news, as well as that relating to their own immediate interests and improvements.

6th. They owe it as a duty to their children, to place the means of information in their reach, in the cheapest possible way, in order that the blush of shame may not frequently mantle their cheeks, in consequence of their ignorance of the most common place matters.

Our Circuit Court

Is still in session, has thus far progressed very well with business, and seldom more smoothly or with more entire satisfaction to officers of Court, Attorneys & parties in interest. Judge Hale, by his patient, yet firm and prompt discharge of duty, his courteous dignified, yet unostentatious bearing, his strict sense of justice and impartiality, as manifested in all his acts, has won the esteem and good opinion of all. Gen. S. K. McSpadden has also given the most unqualified satisfaction in the able and faithful discharge of his duties as acting Solicitor.

Lowry convicted of house braking has been sentenced to six years imprisonment in the Penitentiary; and we understand a strong petition will be gotten up for his pardon, with probabilities of success.

Virgil Lankford, charged with larcery, plead guilty, and sentenced to the Penitentiary three years.

The case of the State against Charles, a Slave, for attempt to murder has been fixed for Friday.

We understand that it is the intention of the Judge in case business is not pretty well finished this week to continue on into the next.

The following is a list of the Attorneys in attendanse on this session of Court, from this and other Counties.

We were shown yesterday, by Dr. J. F. Edwards, a sample of molasses made from the African sugar cane, of beautiful clear yellow color, which had grained considerably. It was without the slightest appearance of souring, and was said by the Doctor to be three lbs. heavier in the gallon than the New Orleans molasses.

Get your pictures while you can.—Mr. R. E. Neeld, Daguerrean Artist is now in our place, and will remain we understand during the session of the Circuit Court. His rooms are in the upper story of Ry[illegible] new store-house building, on the sqare. We would advise persons who live at a distance, who are in attendance at Court, to avil themselves of the opportunity offered. Mr. Neeld is well prepared; and is taking very beautiful and lifelike likenesses. His terms too are really very moderate.

Yoost's Patent Self-adjusting Washing-Machine.—It affords us pleasure to speak in terms of approbation, and recommend to others, any labor saving improvement, when we can do so with sincerity, from personal knowledge, and without a shadow of doubt of its practical workings. We can most assuredly do so in relation to the above named Washing Machine; having seen one in operation elsewhere, and had one in use in our own yard for several days. The following advantages among others, may be safely enumerated, as possessed by this admirable machine: With it, one hand will probably do the work of at least three or four, and with more ease than one fourth the work could be done on the old plan or mode of washing, & without the usual uncomfortable position, exposure or getting wet. By its use there is a great saving of soap; and by its self adjusting apparatus, it will wash the finest clothing, without injury to the fabric or breaking off of the buttons. Many other advantages might be enumerated, were it thought necessary; but any one on examining the machine will be convinced of its utility, even without seeing it in operation.

The patent for this very useful invention, for this and Talladega counties, is owned by Mr. E. A. Cowan, who has disposed of several machines in this place and vicinity during the present session of our Circuit Court, all of which has given encire satisfaction, so far as we have heard. We believe it is his intention to keep a number of machines for sale in this place.

Our thanks are due to Mrs. Walker for the fine bowl of strawberries, the receipt of which is hereby acknowledged. For this manifestation of her kindness, for which she is proverbial, we tender our sincere wishes, that she may be recognized next winter in Montgomery, as Mrs. Senator Walker.

Public Meeting in Jacksonville, Alabama.

On Thursday the 28th day of April, during the recess of the Circuit Court at noon, a Public Meeting was held at the Court room, when and where the following proceedings were had, to-wit:

On motion of Judge Thomas A. Walker, seconded by Col. Thos. B. Cooper, Chancellor John Foster was unanimously called to the Chair, and on motion of Col. John T. Heflin, seconded by Gen. J. B. Martin, B. A. Brooks was requested to act as Secretary. The House being thus organized—Judge Walker proceeded in an eloquent and enthusiastic manner to explain the object of the meeting to be, to ascertain the sense of the meeting in regard to the action of the Post Office Department in curtailing the mail service on the Stage Line from this place to Chattanooga in the State of Tennessee, from a daily to a tri-weekly service. After which, on motion of Daniel P. Forney, Esq., it was unanimously held, that a committee be appointed to draw resolutions expressing the sense of the meeting—whereupon the chairman appointed the following gentlemen to compose said committee. Daniel P. Forney, E. L. Woodward, John D. Hoke, J. B Forney, D. T. Ryan, George Stipes, B. C. Wyly, Col. John R. Clark, John Montague, Dr. J. C. Francis, Dr. J. Y. Nesbit, Geo. L. Alexander, Dr. A. Pelham, S. J. T. Whatley, Joseph McAuley, F. Ross, Andrew Adams, John H. Crawford, B Quattlebum, Absolum Littlejohn, L. Bedwell, Dr. Wyly Glover, Maj. Spartan Allen, Daniel Bush and E. S. Simmons of Calhoun—Gen. S. K. McSpadden, John W. Ramsey, Wm. L. Whitlock, D. L. Nickolson, J. L. Cunningham, Col. Thos. B. Cooper, of Cherokee—B. T. Pope and Gen. Thos. Hayden of St. Clair—and Taul Bradford, Gen. J. B. Martin and John Henderson of Talladega.

The committee thus appointed after having retired a short time returned, and through their chairman, Daniel P. Forney, Esq., asked leave to submit the following as their report, which was read aloud to the meeting and unanimously adopted, as follows, to wit:

Whereas we have just learned with deep regret, that it has been the pleasure of the Post Office Department to reduce the mail service upon route No. 7203, from Jacksonville, Ala., to Chattanooga, Tenn., from a daily to a tri-weekly service.

We regret it 1st. Because it is the most important mail route to and within the North Eastern portion of Ala., Western Georgia and East Tennessee, connecting the Ala. & Tenn. R. R. R. with Chattanooga, the great radiating point of the railways from Savannah, Charleston, Washington city by way of the Valley of Virginia, Mississippi and Nashville, and destined at no distant day to be the culminating point of the immense travel from the Gulf to the Eastean cities. 2nd. Because of the local advantage the said route is to the particular counties through which it passes, affording facilities to the postal, commercial and social relations of the country, indispensable to the wants of the people, and for the want of which we have suffered many privations—these compose the counties of Calhoun and Cherokee, Ala., of a population of over 25,000 inhabitants each, and the counties of Chattanooga and Walker in Geo. of dense and intelligent population.

3d. Because we have no hesitancy in affirming, that the contractors, Messrs. Kennedy & Divine have at a great outlay of means, spared no pains in stocking the road with the very best coaches, splendid teams, accommodating and faithful Drivers to be found in any section of the Union—and that the reduction of the mail services at this time would place these enterprising contractors in a ruinous condition. 4th, Because that this route connects with daily lines at each end which is just now beginning to develop the benefits the travelling public are to derive from the wise administration of the Post Office Department in its establishment, and the change to a tri-weekly would subject the travelling public to many great inconveniences and delay—so much so, as to materially affect the travel on the road, and of great pecuniary loss to the contractors.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of the meeting that their services ought to be restored, and that we most respectfully request the Department to pass an order to that effect, and that if the action of the last Congress has rendered retrenchment indispensable we do hope it will be visited upon objects of less importance to the community.

D. P. FORNEY,
Chairman of Com.

Col. Thos. B. Cooper, of Cherokee, then offered the following amendment to the above report, which was read and adopted, as a part of the report, to-wit:

Resolved, That we fully endorse the editorial of the Jacksonville Republican of this date, relative to the said mail route, and incorporate the same as a part of our proceedings.

The Stage line of Messrs. Kennedy & Divine, from Jacksoncelle to Chattanooga.—We discharge a grateful and most agreeable duty, in directing the public eye to this enterprize. It is one in which the traveling public, and especially those interested in mail facilities, are much concerned; and we are quite sure that persons who shall patronize it, will find themselves, in all which can promote speed, comfort and security, greatly the obliged parties. It is no improper use of terms, indeed, to say, that a more splendid and better conducted line of four horse post coaches, does not run in the South: and that the most improved and completed parts of the country, might well be proud in possessing it. Messrs. Divine & Kennedy have been governed by no unworthy desire of pecuniary profit, in supplying this line. The coaches are of most capacious size, and admirable finish, and the teams the most magnificent and best broken stock we have ever seen any where. As for the Drivers, they cannot be excelled for skill, soberness and politeness. We were in lately observing their conduct, forcibly reminded of an expression once made to the writer by Sir Charles Lyell, who complained, that the Stage drivers called him fellow, and each other gentlemen. The term may be quite safely applied to the drivers on this line. Certainly if a most faithful performance of duty, if extreme decency of deportment, and an entire absence of every low and vulgar act or expression, makes a gentleman, these conductors are truly so. But this is not all. Every improvement in a travel or mail line, shortning distance, promoting comfort and safety, deserves to be especially noted. These ends have been grately advanced by the establishment of this line. The route is unrivalled in beauty of scenery, and in expedition, and it is admitted that persons by it, can reach Memphis and Nashville, twelve hours sooner than any other.

We trust the public will encourage the very liberal efforts of these gentlemanly contractors, in thus advancing the general interest of the country, they have gone far beyond the point, usually reached in supplying similar lines with coaches and stock: and their is no praise which can be given them in this respect which is not most richly merited.

We hope, that from the economy to which the Post Office Department has been driven by the unpardonable conduct of Congress, it will not be found necessary to affect this line. In fact, we trust it will be extended to the Rail Road; and continue to grow in the public favor, until the public spirit of the Contractors be fully rewarded.

On motion of James B. Farmer, Esq. It is ordered that the Jacksonville, Centre, Chattanooga and Talladega papers be respectfully requested to copy these proceedings, and it is ordered that the Secretary forward a copy of the same to the P. O. Department—whereupon the meeting adjourned.

JOHN FOSTER,
Chairman.

The women of East Alabama can convert these hundreds into thousands.—Allow me in conclusion to submit an extract from one of the most eloquent of living statesman.

"Apart from its direct claims upon our reverence as the depository of a divine revelation, we cannot but respect the Bible as the foundation of our civilization. Strike from the political, moral, and intellectual condition of modern society, all that has flowed directly and indirectly from this source, and you would reduce European and American Christendom to the state of the barbarous and semi-civilized countries, whose character has been powerfully influenced by the Koran or other religious codes of the East. The highest historical probability can be adduced in support of the proposition, that if it were possible to annihilate the Bible, and with it all its influences, we should destroy with it the whole spiritual system of the modern world—all our great moral ideas—refinement of manners—constitutional government—equitable administrations of law and security of property—our schools, hospitals and benevolent associations—the press—the fine arts—the equality of the sexes—and the blessings of the fire-side; in a word, all that distinguishes America and Europe from Turkey and Hindostan."

Let those who wish to save the expences of an agent send up the gifts for the Bible and Mission cause to the convention.

The Crisis in Europe—Austria Between the Upper and Nether Millstone.

The news received yesterday by the Saxonia and Arabia is the most important that has come across the Aatlantic for a long time. For a thousand years Europe has not witnessed such a crisis as to-day combines to throw everything into one man's hands

In England we have a dissolution of Parliament, and an appeal by the ministry to the people, which deprives the present government of Great Britain for months to come of much of its moral strength on the Continent. The military monarchies continuing their vast preparations for war, talking all the while about a Congress to settle the pending difficulties, but which no one believes will settle anything. Austria is on the verge of a financial crisis. All the other Powers—Russia, England and Sardinia—have negotiated the loans they had applied for, but the Rothschilds had given up the attempt to place the Austrian scrip. Russia is hand in glove with France. Germany is divided, and under the action of a division of opinion she will follow, through Prussia, England in her course of inaction. Thus the House of Hapsburg is brought between the two millstones. France and Russia, and the interests of three hundred millions of civilized people hang upon the will of two men—Alexander on one side, and Louis Napoleon on the other.

But it is the latter that is more particularly the master of the situation. His position is one that knows no parallel in history. Absolute master of thirty-six millions of men in the highest state of intellectual and industrial developement; with a navy superior in numbers and weight of metal to that of England, and first in the world; possessing railroads crossing his territory in every direction, and fleets of steam transports at command upon the sea; his empire flourishing and almost virgin in its financial resources; England, the only power that could possibly close the paths of the ocean to him, his friendly ally, Napoleon III. wields to day a far greater power than ever did Napoleon I. in his palmiest days. Add to this that he is not bound by the treaties that bind the rest of Europe, for France was ignored at the Congress of Vienna; that he has no dynastic ties such as bind other royal rulers; and that, with the most unscrupulous brain in Europe, his sole aim is to create not to follow precedents; and we have the secret of that triumph of diplomacy, backed by bayonets, which makes him the arbiter of the European world.

He has, too, the gift of silence, combined with tenacity of purpose, in a remarkable degree: and when he speaks it is more frequently for the purpose of disguising his intentions than of announcing them. He said "The Empire is peace," and straightway made war with Russia. Everywhere he proclaims England as his best ally, and so fortifies Cherbourg that every Englishman looks upon it as a standing menace to England. With the softest assurances of peaceful views upon his lips, he arms France as France never before was armed, and by so doing brings half the time-worn monarchs of Europe to the verge of bankruptey, by forcing them to follow his example, so that they may be prepared to meet him should he assume to take offence. Thus on the one hand he weakens his enemies, while by the exercise of an astute diplomacy he puts them in the wrong, and forces them in self defence to become the aggressors.

This is precisely the position to which he has reduced Austria. He has forced her to such immense expenditures in arming her Italian possessions that she is on the verge of a financial relapse, from which she can escape only by war, and a resort to measures that only a foreign war will enable a government to impose upon its people. In this state of things he talks of negotiation, and seeks an international Congress. But all the while he continues his own warlike preparations to such a degree that Austria cannot in any way diminish hers. Thus delay becomes more dangerous to her than war itself. She can escape from domestic convulsion only by the breaking out of hostilites, and she must commence them in self-preservation. But the first gun that Austria fires upon the Ticino isolates her from the sympathies of the rest of Europ.e, and leaves her to cope single handed against her powerful enemy.

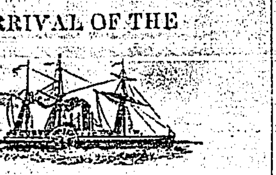

Then comes what Louis Napoleon intends, and what the first Napoleon ardently longed for. The alliance with England makes the Mediterranean a French lake. It was Nelson who prevented the first Napoleon from using the naval power of France in his Italian wars. Now Louis Napoleon can freely pour that power into the Adriatic; and the certain capture of Venice and Trieste outflanks the Austrian armies in the Lombardo Venetian kingdoms. Such a movement revises the treaties of Vienna, if their total destruction can be called a revision. This is what Louis Napoleon aims at, and what he will attain. His diplomacy triumphs by threatening war, backed by his admitted power to make it; and in war he triumphs by isolating his opponents through diplomacy, for by it he puts them in the position of being the aggressors. He is the master of Europe, and his policy has converted it into one vast military camp. How long it will consent to this anomalous state of things time only can determine.—New York Herald.

A man chopping in the woods, near Lexington, Florida, was attacked by a ferocious wolf, which, at first signal, grasped his victim by the throat. The wife, standing in the door of the house, saw the position of her husband, and running up seized his axe, and with one blow upon the back of the wolf so disabled him as to make him release his hold. A few more blows finished him entirely, but not till the wolf had succeeded in cutting the throat of her husband so that he expired almost immediately.

LATER FROM EUROPE.
ARRIVAL OF THE STEAMSHIP
AFRICA.

NEW YORK, April 28.—The Royal Mail Steam Ship Africa, Capt. SHANNON, from Liverpool April 16, has arrived at this port.

LIVERPOOL, April 16.—It is reported that the Peace Congress will assemble at Carlsrahe, in Western Germany, on the 23d of April. The report is confirmed that Austria refuses to participate in the deliberations of the Congress unless there is first a simultaneous disarming of all the powers.—The London News says that it is just possible that the Congress may hasten the approach of war, instead of averting it. The London Herald's Paris Correspondent says that he has reasons for believing that the proposals of Austria as to the points to be submitted for deliberation are not acceptable to the French government. The Paris Patrie says that France cannot be expected to diminish her army or remand a single cannon to her arsenals. The French naval officers have been ordered to join their ships forthwith. The materials of war of every description are accumulating at Marseilles to an alarming extent. Five French steam frigates have gone to Algeria for troops. The late interview between Lord COWLEY and Count WALEWSKI is believed to have developed very serious differences of opinion, affecting the amicable feeling existing previously between France and England. The smaller German States are actively engaged in warlike preparations. The Bavarian army is being placed upon a war footing. It is reported that the Pope of Rome will protest against any assembling of the Peace Congress. It is rumored that the King of Naples was either dead, or in the last extremities. Holland and Belgium are said to have concluded a treaty of mutual amity and defence, in case of war.

HON. J. L. M. CURRY, OF ALABAMA.—The Mobile Register of the 16th instant, says than Constitution, does nothing more the justice in the compliment paid to one of the distinguished representatives from Alabama contained in the extract below. The ability displayed by Mr. Curry in the investigation and elucidation of the important subjects connected with the administration of the Federal Government entitles him to be classed among the first of the useful and intelligent young statesmen of the Republic.—The return of Mr. Curry to Congress will be an honor to his State and a benefit to the whole country:

"As for Hon. J. L. M. Curry, (we hope we are not interfering with the opinion of his district in saying so) there is no earthly reason why he should not be returned again to his seat in Congress. Few men are endowed with clearer minds, brighter talents or warmer sentiments of genuine patriotism than this gentleman; none have discharged their duties as representatives more ably and conscientiously than he; and, whether as an individual or public servant, none have held their trust with more elevated honor and fidelity than Mr. Curry. And therefore, whatever may be thought in his district as to the necessity of a convention, we can see no reason to believe that his constituents would be benefited by a change."

Fidelity and Perseverance of Woman. A curious story of conjugal affection is told by an Illinois paper: "Five years ago a carpenter moved from Bucyrus, Ohio, to Missouri, where he sold a pair of horses to a stock buyer, receiving all his pay in bills on a Kentucky bank. When he attempted to pass them they were found to be counterfeit, and the carpenter was arrested; the horse dealer swore he paid him in Indiana bills and the man was sentenced to the Penitentiary. His wife wishing to obtain a pardon, followed the horse-dealer for two and a half years, seeking evidence that he, not her husband, was the counterfeiter; at length her efforts were rewarded. At Newton, N. J., recently, he was taken sick; the wife told her story to the physician who dosed his patient heavily, and then told him he was about to die. The sick man was frightened, sent for a minister, and confessed that he was connected with a gang of counterfeiters, and had paid the bad bills to the carpenter. Furnished with proofs of this confession, the wife returned to Missouri, secured the release of her husband, and the couple are now residing in Knoxville, Ill."

For Grant's Republican.

To My Sister.

He was my hearts idol;
And O, could you have seen that wayward one—
His manly form—his pale & thoughtful brow—
And listened to the accents of a tongue
As deeply musical as low flute tones,
You too, my gentle sister, would have loved
Him, O, so much, that your forgiveness, long
Ere this, had fell like sweetest balm upon
My ruined heart.
Even now I hear the intonations
Of his rich, melodious voice; and while
I listen to those more than angel lips,
Discoursing thus to me so sadly sweet,
There comes upon my girlish heart that spell—
That witching spell—which I too oft have felt
When I was wont to dream of love & heav'n.
'Twas in the dreamy twilight hour
I met him first. The Day's last blush was in
The west, and like a gorgeous bride, was soon
Embosomed in the arms of Night.
——I may not tell the all he said to me;—
But O, his earnest eyes did woo my soul,
As sweetly as the hallowed stars, that Breathe their purest lessons in the heart, when Tearful, upturn'd eyes of prayer, have gazed
Up n their quiet beauty.
At midnights lone & solemn hour, I've look'd
Upon those blessed orbs, & read from their Bright beams of realms where n'er the sunlight fades.
Nor flowers are blighted—nor yet the heart
That loves.
In feverish dr ams I oft have wish'd me
There; for I am sick of earthly vanities,
And even now, would turn me from them,
I would woo the sweet visions of the past,
The visions of deathless love that haunted
My girlhood, ere the blight of unrequited
Passion had fell upon my young & sinless
Years.
As fade the sunset beauties of the cloud;
As melts the rainbow from the sky, so passed
Away the wild sweet dreams of youth,—
Nor may they e'er return, save as they come
Like spectres from the tomb of buried, love,
Pale dim messengers of despair, that bring
Hope's withered garlands to bind round my brow,
And mock the ruined hopes that once were mine!
I feel the poor dead wreath upon me now,
And as the pale memorial of my
Hopes do clasp my marble brow, there is a
Hand upon my heart—a hand of ice, to Stay the surging tide of passions, and press
Back the fierce convulsion from my quivering
Lips! CRAZY JANE.

Rail Road Meeting.

OPELIKA, ALA., April 23, 1859.

After the adjournment of the meeting which was held as a joint meeting by the friends of the Dadeville and La Fayette roads—the delegates of the La Fayette road met at their room in Sledge's Hotel, when McKendree Tucker, Esq., was called to the Chair, and J. W. Philips acted as Secretary.

The following resolutions were offered and unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we can and will increase the subscription for stock in said road to the sum of three hundred thousand dollars, and that we will use our best efforts to do so at as early a day as possible.

Resolved, That the President and Directors of said Road are hereby requested at as early a day as they can procure a competent Engineer, to have that part of the route from La Fayette to Oxford examined surveyed and located.

Resolved, That said President and Directors are further requested to cause the grading of said road to be commenced at as early a day as circumstances will admit.

Resolved, That these proceedings be signed and published in the papers at La Fayette, and that all papers friendly to our road be requested to copy.

MCKENDREE TUCKER, Ch'n
J. W. PHILLIPS, Sec'ry.

The Crevasse at Point Bonnet Carre.

A special messenger sent up by the New Orleans and Jackson Railroad last night to the break in the levee at Bonnet Carre Point, states that it is believed at that place that the levee was cut.

Eight o'clock, night before last, there was no evidence of water soaking through the levee, and it seemed capable of resisting a much greater pressure than was then upon it.

At ten o'clock the negro stationed as watch upon the levee came in and reported the water running over the levee. What is singular, the part of the levee where the break is situated is the strongest portion of the whole levee, while the weaker parts of it remain uninjured.

The breach is about 200 feet in width, and has not within the past twelve hours widened. The fall of the water is about eight feet, and of course it rushes out of the river with great velocity.

Last night the water had extended to Mrs. Humphrey's plantation, about six miles below on the river, covering the back of her place and some of her finest cane.

The New Orleans and Jackson Road, in a direct line from this crevasse, is only about five miles distant, and fears are entertained, if not soon closed, that the road will be seriously injured.

Last evening nothing had been done to arrest the flood, but a meeting of the planters of the vicinage was called for this morning to take measures to avert the danger, if possible.—[Evening Picayune.

THE HIGH WATER AND CREVASSES. The Vicksburg True Southron, 17th inst, says:

At this point we have no abatement of the flood to chronicle It continues to rise, and we are getting sick and tired of making the announcement, but there is no help for it.

We regret to have to record two more crevasses in Madison parish; the first occurring at noon on Friday, at the plantation of the late John L. Harris, and the second at the Culbertson place, about 4 o'clock yesterday morning. Both these breaks are a few miles above Young's Point, and the water is rushing through with great force and violence. The crevasse at the Culbertson place let in a volume of water at least fifteen feet deep at the outset. This crevasse is about thirty yards wide and increasing hourly. The break at the Harris place was not quite so wide but this, like the other, is constantly increasing in width. These two crevasses will about complete the overflow of all the central and lower portions of Madison parish, and if the levees give way above Milliken's Bend, an event now anticipated momentarily, the whole parish will be submerged.

The immense levee at Diamond Island Bend, a few miles below this city, a break which was recorded in these columns some time since, is gone to the extent of five or six miles. This must pour an immense flood of water down on the parish of Tensas, and produce great damage in that wealthy and productive parish. We deeply sympathize with our overflowed friends, but we fear their troubles have not yet ceased. Our own impression is that nearly every levee on the river will be swept off by the rushing waters.

Terrible Steamboat Disaster.

By a slip from Memphis, furnished us by our friend, Jere Murphy, Jr., mail agent, we learn that the steamer St. Nicolas from St. Louis to New Orleans, exploded her boilers at Island 63, below Memphis on Sunday night last, which place she left that evening. By this accident the boat was totally lost, and about forty lives. Such of the passengers as were saved were brought to Memphis on Monday, including sixteen persons who were shockingly wounded. Among the lost, we regret to see the name of our friend, Murdock of Franklin county, Ala. Most of those on the boat were up river people.

P. S.—Mr. & Mrs. Crisp, the actors, were not on the boat—but another family named Crisip.

THE NEXT PRESIDENCY.—The following is the vote to which each State will be entitled at the next Presidential election;

Deleware 3; Maryland 3; Virginia 15; North Carolina 10; South Carolina 8; Georgia 10; Alabama 9; Florida 3; Texas 4; Louisiana 6; Mississippi 7; Missouri 9; Arkansas 4; Tennessee 12; Kentucky 12; California 4; Oregon 3; Maine 8; New Hampshire 5; Massachusetts 13; Rhode Island 4; Connecticut 6; Vermont 5; New York 35; New Jersy 7; Pennsylvania 27; Ohio 23; Michigan 6; Illinois 12; Indiana 13; Iowa 4; Wisconsin 5; Minnesota 3.

The foregoing gives an aggregate of 303 electoral votes, namely; 183 from the free States and 120 from the slaves.

From The Press.

Mr. John Jackson, publisher of the Calais Advertiser, writes: I know it to be all it is recommended, having used it in my family for six or seven years.

Eevery mother and housekeeper must often act as a family physician in the numerous illnesses and accidents that occur among children and servants. For many of these cases, Davis's Pain Killer, is an indispensable article. In diarrhea it has been used and effected cures. For cuts and bruises it is invaluable.—N. Y. Examiner.

PERRY DAVIS'S PAIN KILLER.—This medicine has become an article of commerce—a thing no medicine ever became before. Pain Killer is as much an item in every bale of goods sent to country merchants, as Tea, Coffee or Sugar This fact speaks volumes in its favor. Glens Falls Messenger.

DAVIS' VEGETABLE PAIN KILLER. Notwithstanding the many imitations of this article, and many other medicines in the market pretending to answer the same purpose, yet the sale of Perry Davis' Vegetable Pain Killer is more than the whole of them put together. It is one of the few articles that are just what they pretend to be. Try it. Brunswick Telegraph.

Holloway,s Pills—Condition of the blood. As the blood, and the blood alone, sustains and renovates every part of the living system, it is manifest that no medicine, which does not reach the circulation can exterminate disease. Professor Holloway claims that his Pills operate direcly, powerfully, and beneficially upon the whole mass of the blood, venous and arterial, nor can we question the fact when we see dyspepsia cured, liver complaint arrested, the oppressed lungs brought into healthy play, and every physical function renewed and strengthened by their agency. That their regulating and purifying effect tends to promote long life, as well as to expel disease, there cannot be a reasonable doubt The family that has them not lacks a "material guarantee" of health and life.

Perry Davis' Pain Killer has been used with great success in cases of what is called painters' colic, by taking it in molasses and water, and bathing the stomach and bowels with the medicine laid on warm with flannel cloths; repeat as often as they get dry. Sold by all dealers in family medicines.

Extraordinary as it may appear says an exchange, a piece of brown paper, folded and placed between the upper lip and gum will stop bleeding at the nose. Try it.

THE LIVER

INVIGORATOR!

PREPARED BY DR. SANFORD.

COMPOUNDED entirely from GUMS,

IS ONE OF THE BEST PURGATIVE and Liver Medicines now before the public, that acts as a Cathartic. It is not only a Cathartic, but a Liver remedy, acting first on the Liver to eject its morbid matter, then on the stomach and bowels to carry off that matter, thus accomplishing two purposes effectually, without any of the painful feelings experienced in the operations of most Cathartics. It strengthens the system at the same time that it purges it; and when taken daily in moderate doses, will strengthen and build it up with unusual rapidity.

SANFORD'S LIVER INVIGORATOR

The Liver is one of the principal regulators of the human body; and when it performs its functions well, the powers of the system are fully developed. The stomach is almost entirely dependent on the healthy action of the Liver for the proper performance of its functions; when the stomach is at fault, the bowels are at fault, and the whole system suffers in consequence of one organ—the LIVER—having ceased to do its duty. For the disease of that organ one of the proprietors has made it his study, in a practice of more than twenty years, to find some remedy wherewith to counteract the many derangements to which it is liable.

To prove that this remedy is at last found, any person troubled with liver Complaint, in any of its forms, has but to try a bottle, and conviction is certain.

These Gums remove all morbid or bad matter from the system, supplying in their place a healthy flow of bile, invigorating the stomach, causing food to digest well, purifying the blood, giving tone and health to the whole machinery, removing the cause of the disease—effecting a radical cure.

Billious attacks are cured, and what is better, prevented by the occasional use of the LIVER INVIGORATOR.

One dose after eating is sufficient to relieve the stomach & prevent the food from rising & souring.

Only one dose taken before retiring, prevents Nightmare.

Only one dose taken at night, loosens the bowels gently, and cures Costiveness.

One dose taken after each meal will cure Dyspepsia.

☞ One dose of two teaspoonfuls will always relieve Sick Headache.

One bottle taken for female obstruction removes the cause of the disease, and makes a perfect cure.

Only one dose immediately relieves Cholic, while one dose often repeated is a sure cure for Cholera Morbus, and a preventive of Cholera

☞ Only one bottle is needed to throw out of the system the effects of medicine after a long sickness.

☞ One bottle taken for Jaundice removes all sallowness or unnatural color from the skin.

One dose taken a short time before eating gives vigor to the appetite, and makes food digest well.

One dose often repeated cures Chronic Diarrhœa in its worst forms, while Summer and Bowel complaints yield almost to the first dose.

One or two doses cures attacks caused by Worms in Children: there is no surer, safer, or speedier remedy in the world, as it never fails.

☞ A few bottles cures Dropsy, by exciting the absorbents.

We take pleasure in recommending this medicine as a preventive for Fever & Ague, Chill Fever, and all Fevers of a Bilious TYPE. It operates with certainty, & thousands are willing to testify to its wonderful virtues.

ALL WHO USE IT ARE GIVING THEIR UNANIMOUS TESTIMONY IN ITS FAVOR.

MIX WATER IN THE MOUTH WITH THE INVIGORATOR, AND SWALLOW BOTH TOGETHER.

The Liver Invigorator

IS A SCIENTIFIC MEDICAL DISCOVERY, and is daily working cures, almost too great to believe. It cures as if by magic, even the first dose giving benefit, and seldom more than one bottle is required to cure any kind of Liver Complaint, from the worst Jaundice or Dyspepsia to a common Headache, all of which are the result of a Diseased Liver.

COLLECTIONS this season have not equalled my expectations. The crop of cotton was large, prices good, and funds comparatively, abundant. Consequently, I expected much. True, some have done well: others, nothing. To the latter I would suggest, "that now is the time." 'Tis much more easy to make payment now, than it was last season, or, than it may be next. Is it not wise then, to improve this "GOLDEN" opportunity, and while money is cheap, to extinguish old liabilities?

I am anxious to collect my old debts From those who have done nothing, or but little yet I shall expect liberal payments in March.

RADWAY'S REGULATING PILLS.

Dr. Radway & Co. have recently discovered a method for extracting from roots, herbs, plants and gums, a nutritious extract of such wonderful nourishing power—which they have combined with Radway's Regulating Pills—that six of these Pills will supply the blood with the same amount of nutrition as one ounce of ordinary bread; so that, while the system is undergoing a thorough physicking, and regulating process, it daily becomes strengthened.

Persons afflicted with Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Heart Diseases, Fullness of blood, and all Females who are subject to Irregularities, Hysteria, &c., are particularly recommended to use these Pills. They are pleasant to take—elegantly coated with gum—free from taste, and will not gripe, sicken or weaken the system, or leave the bowels costive.—Mothers nursing should likewise take one or two of these Pills once or twice per week.—They will not only keep your system healthy and regular, but will protect your infants against Cramp and Pains in the stomach, and insure not only a healthy child, but will invest every child, thus suckled, with a sweet disposition.

RADWAY'S REGULATING PILLS

Regulate each and every organ of the system, and correct all derangements of the Liver, Bowels, Stomach, Heart and Kidneys.

They Cure

Costiveness,	Indigestion,
Heart-Burn,	Dyspepsia,
Biliousness,	Headache,
Dropsy,	Constipation,
Palpitation of the Heart,	Congestion,
	&c., &c., &c.

They are entirely vegetable & harmless; an infant at the breast can take them with safety, and persons who are subject to Fits of Apoplexy, Epileptic, Heart Diseases, &c. should always keep a box on hand.

CONSUMERS of RICHARDSON'S LINENS, and those desirous of obtaining the GENUINE GOODS, should see that the articles they purchase are sealed with the full name of the firm,

This caution is rendered essentially necessary as large quantities of inferior and defective Linens are prepared; season after season and sealed with the name of RICHARDSON by Irish Houses, who, regardless of the injury thus inflicted alike on the American consumer & the manufacturers of the genuine Goods, will not readily abandon a business so profitable, while purchasers can be imposed on with Goods of a worthless character.

POETRY.

Little Bessie,
AND THE WAY IN WHICH SHE FELL ASLEEP.

"Hug me closer, closer mother,
Put your arms around me tight,
I am cold and tired, mother,
And I feel so strange to night:
Something hurts me here, dear mother,
Like a stone upon my breast;
Oh, I wonder, wonder, mother,
Why it is I cannot rest!

"All day long while you were working,
As I lay upon my bed,
I was trying to be patient,
And to think of what you said;
How the kind and blessed Jesus
Loves his lambs to watch and keep;
And I wished he'd come and take me
In his arms that I might sleep.

"Just before the lamp was lighted,
Just before the children came,
While the room was very quiet,
I heard some one call my name.
All at once the window opened,
In a field were lambs and sheep
Some from out a brook were drinking,
Some were lying fast asleep.

"But I could not see the Saviour,
Though I strained my eyes to see,
And I wondered, if he saw me,
Would he speak to such as me?
In a moment I was looking
On a world so bright and fair,
Which was full of little children,
And they seemed so happy there!

"They were singing, oh! how sweetly!
Sweeter songs I never heard!
They were singing sweeter, mother,
Than can sing our yellow bird.
And while I my breath was holding,
One so bright upon me smiled;
And I knew it must be Jesus,
When he said, 'Come here, my child!'

"Come up here, my little Bessie!
Come up here and live with me,
Where the children never suffer,
But are happier than you see!'
Then I thought of all you told me
Of that bright and happy land;
I was going, when you called me,
When you came and kissed my hand.

And at first I felt so sorry
You had called me—I would go—
Oh! to sleep, and never suffer!
Mother, don't be crying so!
Hug me closer, closer, mother,
Put your arms around me tight,
Oh! how much I love you mother,
But I feel so strange to-night!"

And the weeping mother pressed her
To her overburdened breast;
On the heart so near to breaking,
Lay the heart so near its rest,
In the solemn hour of midnight,
In the darkness, calm and deep,
Lying on her mother's bosom,
Little Bessie fell asleep!

CHAPTER III.
FIRE AND SWORD.

The four defenders of Laurelwood ran from point to point to meet & repel the invaders, who endeavored to force an entrance through the windows and doors simultaneously. The voice of Tom Hutter swelled loudly above the din of conflict. The struggle was kept up with determined spirit by the besieged. While each was engaged with an enemy, Jessie Burnside cried out that a party of them had beaten down one of the doors and were pressing into the hall.

Podijah and Hazelhurst sprang to meet them. For a time the result was doubtful, but victory finally turned in favor of the defenders, whose powerful blows and hearty courage they could not withstand. Those who were not repulsed were left upon the floor with broken heads. The door was repaired and everything movable piled against it.

The Tories ignominiously withdrew to the shelter of the surrounding trees and shrubbery, and Hutter hoped that the attack would not again be renewed.

The girls, during this scene, behaved nobly. Overcoming the natural timidity of their sex, they made themselves useful to their brave friends in various ways. Paul Hazelhurst fought like a lion. If he entertained fears, they were not for himself, but for Jessie Burnside and her companions. When he paused from the conflict, panting & thirsty, she brought him water; her little hand presented the cooling draught to his lips. He would gladly have imprisoned that ministering member in his own and pressed grateful kisses upon it, had propriety sanctioned the act.

"Are you wounded?" she asked, hurriedly.

"I do not know," he replied. "I have not thought of myself; I have thought only of you and your friends. I never have time to think of myself when you are near; I should despise myself if I did."

"You are too brave, too generous!" answered Jessie, with emotion. "You expose yourself needlessly; You have too much contempt for danger."

"There is no such word as danger when I do battle for the safety and honor of Jessie Burnside."

"Too chivalrous! too chivalrous!" exclaimed Jessie.

"I can't quite understand this silence," said Hutter, approaching Hazelhurst.

"Wax my flax, if I don't believe the critters has got enough on 'em," said Podijah. "You see they can't stan' near so much hammerin' as folks can as are fightin' for liberty. A few right smart knocks takes the starch right out of 'em."

"They're cowards if they don't try it again," returned Hutter. "There's a dozen of 'em, at least, and they ought to be a match, in the course of natur', for four; but we've got something within us that they haven't—love of friends, home, country and justice. See what work they've made of your house, Miss Jessie: the winders are riddled, the doors broke, the furnitary ruined, and everything at sixes and sevens."

"We love Laurelwood," replied Jessie, "but we love the cause of freedom better' The destruction of property will grieve us but little, if valuable lives are spared and the Tory miscreants punished."

"Punished?—be assured that they will!" exclaimed Paul Hazelhurst.—"Heaven is just! Some of them are even now reaping the reward of their villainy. Look at those expiring wretches who fell near the door. Listen to their moans of anguish! What thought have they to comfort them and soften their pains of dissolution? They die—a horror to themselves and every justice-loving mind. What a remembrance the Tories of South Carolina will leave to posterity!"

"The word Tory will be the synonym of infamy," said Judith.

The night had set in quite dark, and objects could be seen at a short distance only. The trees looked dim and misty in the nocturnal gloom. Tom Hutter and his comrades strained their eyes in every direction in search of their foes, but without discovering them. The surrounding scenery was as quiet as if it had never been disturbed by the sound of human conflict; nothing broke the quietude save the groans of the wounded in the house, and, at long intervals, the cry of a wolf in the tangled hedges of Laurel Swamp.

The fears of the young ladies began to subside; an assurance—faint and trembling, at first—that those lawless men had retired and would not return to renew the conflict, took possession of their minds. A glow of hope returned to their pale cheeks. As their own danger grew less imminent, in their estimation, feelings of compassion for the wounded Tories visited their hearts.—They would have produced lights to examine their condition, and make remedial applications, had they not been cautioned by their more experienced defenders.

Half an hour elapsed. The silence continued unbroken. Tom Hutter was not at ease, but walked about nervously, casting prying glances from one window, then from another. He was suspicious and unsatisfied. He knew that they had suffered loss, but not enough to prevent brave men, or persons of even ordinary hardihood, from making farther attempts.

Paul Hazelhurst at first shared Hutter's inquietude, but finally joined the ladies, confident that there was no immediate danger to apprehend.

"I can't comprehend it!" muttered Hutter, in a perplexed manner. "There's allers mischief goin' on when folks are still."

"That's about my own way o' thinkin'," remarked Podijah, who heard Tom's remarks. "The most mischief is done with the least noise, 'cordin' to my experience fust and last, here and there, by and large, as the world goes. Did you ever go a courtin', Mister?"

"I never did," said Tom.

"Well, that's abeout the stillest work you can find, I reckon, though sometimes there's a heap o' business done."

"Hark!" said Tom.

"I don't hear nothin' but Paul & the gals. Paul's ruther sweet on one of 'em, I should say, though 'twould be hard to choose atween 'em. Wax my flax, if it wouldn't!"

"It strikes me," said Tom, "that the air is growing hot and oppressive.—Listen! be quiet there, Paul and the gals."

A hissing roaring sound was heard overhead.

"The house is on fire!" cried Hutter. "Some of the blood-thirsty villions have effected an entrance through the roof."

The scout rushed up stairs & threw open a door. A dense volume of smoke mingled with flame, met him & drove him back. Beds, garments, everything combustible had been piled in a heap and fired. The straw, the feathers, the linen, were like tinder: it needed but a spark to kindle the mad blaze, and that had been applied some minutes before by a cunning and malicious hand.

Scorched by the furious element, & half suffocated, Hutter mounted the stairs again, in hopes to combat the destructive power by scattering the material which fed it, but it was too late.—Podijah Makepeace ran after him and dragged him back, half choked by the penetrating, hot and smoke-loaded air.

Paul Hazelhurst, in defiance of the black, asphyxiating vapors, rushed to the chamber to close the door that had been left open, but sank blinded and overpowered upon the threshold. It was with difficulty that he could retrace his steps. He was gasping for breath like a drowning man when he rejoined the anxious group below.

"That door must be shet," said Podijah, "or we shall be smoked to death, like rats in a hole! I'll shet it, or suffocate tryin'. Wax my flax, if I don't!"

The tall form of Podijah disappeared in the mass of smoke that rolled from above like thunderclouds. There was a moment of intense anxiety, then the door was heard to close. Almost simultaneously Podijah tumbled down the stairs, covered with cinders, his face & hands blistered, and some of his white locks withered to ashes.

"Bravely done!" cried Jessie. "If you have not saved us, you have at least given us a reprieve."

"Don't praise me" returned Podijah, "The praises of a gal intoxicates me like ardent sperit—the peotier the gal, the drunker it makes me. I never shall git away from this place alive if there's anything desperate I can do."

"Desperate! all is desperate!" said Hutter. "We might cut our way through and save ourselves, perhaps, if there was nothin' of a feminine natur' to look arter; but these gals can't stan' musket balls, nor they can't stan' fire."

"Heaven!" exclaimed Paul. "What shall we do?"—not for ourselves, but for these poor girls."

"Escape as you can through the darkness; and as for us girls, we will trust to the mercy of the enemy, and yield ourselves prisoners," answered Jessie eagerly.

"Yes, we will trust ourselves to the humanity of the Tories," said Judith and Ruth, hurriedly.

"You will find it a poor trust!" returned Hutter, looking compassionately at the three girls. "It'll be miserable mercy you'll git from them. No, no! we can't think of that."

"God bless you Tom Hutter, no!—We can't, indeed, think of that. We will die, if it be Heaven's will, for these dear & helpless ones; but forsake them, never!"

A loud shout arose from without.—The Tories were exulting in their success.

"What must be done?" asked Paul, in an agony of anxiety.

"We can do two things," replied Hutter. "Remain here and be burnt, or rush out and be shot."

"We'll neither be burnt not shot!" retorted Podijah stoutly. "I'm bound to live as long as uppers and unders 'll hold together. I ain't goin' to knock under in the mornin' o' my days, by gum! I know that all flesh is grass, but I don't want my grass cut while it's so green. I'll hold on to existence to the last gasp, I swow! Tom Hutter, I'm goin' to cut jest about my bigness and the bigness of one of these gals through the Tarnal Tories, a leetle quicker'n you, can load a load o' hay when there's a thunder shower comin' up like a race-horse!"

Laurelwood House shook with the violence of the devouring flame, which had eaten through the roof and now enveloped tile and rafter. While the group looked up in alarm, a red sword of fire was thrust down through the ceiling.

"It is the flamingsword! it waves us from our Paradise!" cried Jessie.

"Nay," said Paul, impressively, 'some of us may be going to an eternal Paradise."

The fire above growled angrily in answer, and the black smoke poured into the room like the rank and destructive breath of a demon.

"To the right, friends—to the right! Keep under the smoke as much as you can and stoop as you go.'

They glided unmolested to the end of the dwelling.

'Now for the shrubbery in the direction of Laurel Swamp!' whispered Hutter.

'A crisis approaches. Dear young ladies, be brave!' admonished Paul, whose steady bearing and flashing eyes told that he was ready to do battle for the fair beings under his protection.

'Now for a dash—fast, faster—stoop—give as small a mark to the enemy as possible!'

When two or three rods from the burning building, the flames shot up with increased brilliancy, throwing a strong glare upon the fugitives. A dozen men sprang from the grass and foliage to dispute their progress.

'Stop!' shouted a voice that was startlingly familiar to Jessie Burnside.

'Down!' thundered Hutter, springing toward him with a fierce bound, and aiming a blow at his head with his rifle. Vantassle staggered and fell upon one knee. The tall Yankee pressed to the side of Hutter and the Tory fell crushed at his feet.

'Have at you, you 'ternal critters!—Podijah Makepeace didn't come out here for nothin'. Come on—a dozen of ye at once! There's a score of airthquakes shut up in my bones!'

'Shoot down the rebels—shoot 'em down!' cried Vantassle, over whose prostrate form four stout fellows were contending.

Blinko discharged his blunderbuss, and the scattering storm of buckshot wounded several.

'Seize the gals! seize the gals!' shouted Langford.

'I'm with you!' exclaimed Nat Herrick, and both approached the terror-stricken girls.

'Oh, Paul, save us from those wretches!' shrieked Judith.

'Here's for you, Mister!' said Herrick leveling a pistol at Paul. A bullet whistled close to the young man's face, who putting himself between the young ladies & the villians, held them at bay. His person was the target for a dozen furious blows, with surprising adroitness, he turned aside and baffled.

The four men were now engaged in an unequal conflict.

'Fly to the swamp, girls, while we keep the miscreants in check!' admonished Hazelhurst.

The maidens ran like frightened deer, but their defenders had the mortification to see two Tories in pursuit of them without being able to go to their assistance. Overpowered by numbers, they gave ground, but inch by inch. They were bruised and bleeding: they began to despair.

'Take 'em alive, boys; take 'em alive, that we may have the pleasure of hangin' 'em!' shouted Vantassle.

A single rifle shot rang sharp and deadly through the air. A Tory, who was pressing hard upon Hutter, threw up his arms and fell dead at the feet of his comrades.

'Hoands of hell!' cried a thundrous voice. 'You love blood, and slaughter and carnage; you shall have it!'

An athletic man' with a black patch over his left eye, a rifle slung at his back, a pistol in each hand, and a large sabre swinging at his side, appeared in the midst of the Tories as if he had suddenly fallen from the clouds. He fired his pistols and unsheathed his sabre.

'Tremble, miscreants, for One-eyed Saul is among us!'

The sabre flashed like lightning around the stranger's head. The tones of his voice, the fierceness of his countenance, and the fatality of his arm, struck terror and consternation to the hearts of the Tory renegades. The survivors turned and fled for life.

'Cowards! wretches! come back, and I will meet you single-handed!'

One-eyed Saul looked wildly around and laughed mockingly, then turning to Hutter and his panting and bleeding companions, and pointing in the direction the girls had fled, exclaimed:

'Why do you stand here? After them—after them, for they need your help. There are shrieks, yonder; a way—away! It is Saul, of Laurel Swamp that commands you. I have work to do; must go this way and that way, and there is no rest for my head this night."

With these words, rapidly and vehemently uttered, One-eyed Saul strode away, and in an instant was lost to view.

CHAPTER IV.
IN THE SWAMP.

Casting anxious looks behind them, the fair fugitives saw the flames of their burning home, and groups of men struggling in the light of the red glare. It was a mournful, thrilling spectacle, and they hurried on to escape it. Jupe, who had proved courageous and active, encouraged them by precept and example. Ruth Haviland, being a little behind her companions, heard the footsteps of pursuers and admonished her friends of the fact, who needed no new stimulus to excite them to the greatest effort of which they were capable. They reached the Swamp and took shelter in it like frightened birds. The laurel was well nigh impenetrable; innumerable vegetable arms were stretched out to oppose them, a net-work of vines and branches disputed their passage. Their hands were lacerated by contact with continually projecting points, and shreds of their garments were left upon brake and briar. Urging their way along in the darkness and terrible intricacy, they soon and unwillingly became separated, while their attempts to find each other involved them in new labyrinths. Torn, bleeding, fainting with fear and exhaustion, Jessie Burnside sank upon the earth.

For a time her physical and mental faculties were in such a whirl of a tempest, that the consciousness of everything around her seemed slipping away from her. There remained with her only a heavy realization of something fearful and shocking. At length the chilliness of the ground and the night air cooled her fevered system and restored her coherency of thought. She raised herself and supported her head upon her hand. Her disheveled tresses, her disordered garments, and her lacerated person reminded her of the ordeal through which she had passed. There was a lattice-work of vines around and above her. She thought of the sudden change of her circumstances. When the sun went down last, she had a comfortable and beloved home; now she had none, but was a hunted, persecuted fugitive, cowering in a darksome swamp, the resort of wild beasts and lawless men. She could not be so selfish as not to think of her companions. Where were they? She shuddered at the possibility of what might have befallen them. A painful recollection in regard to her brave defenders added unspeakably to the distraction of her mind. Far off in the depths of the swamp she heard the shriek of the panther, the howl of the wolf, and the dismal notes of the owl. Frightful contrast to the peace and security of Laurelwood? Looking upward through the tenacious foliage into the dim sky, she beheld a black cloud of smoke—all that remained of her father's mansion, save a few charred and smouldering brands that still sent up a mournful incense from the family hearthstone. She wept, sorrowed, prayed—for it is upon God, at last, that the tossed, stricken, and disappointed mind turns. The instincts and experience of the whole human race prove beyond the shadow of question, that He alone can confer blessing and consolation upon the bereaved, afflicted, & world-crushed soul. Prayer to Him made her calmer. A strange, balmy influence, unexpected and sweet, stole into her being. She would not, she did not quite despair.

There was a sound in the laurel hedges. She listened with every sense awake. Persons were working their way through the tangled masses in the direction of her covert. Their progress was slow and difficult. She heard muttered curses & imprecations. Her fears were immeasurably increased for the voice of Martin Vantassle was so odious, and made so many disagreeable impressions upon her memory, that she could not but recognize its slighter tones. She shrank and crouched to mother earth for protection, as the startled partridge hides itself beneath a bough or in the friendly brake, to escape the hurtling shot of the hunter.

Discovery appeared inevitable, for the crackling of the limbs and the struggling and the low-breathed curses came nearer and nearer.

"Perdition seize these brambles!" exclaimed Vantassle. "One can neither stand up nor lay down, go forrard nor go back!"

Jessie heard the speaker cast himself recklessly upon the ground a few yards from her. The laurel bent and complained beneath his weight, communicating a wave of motion to the vines around her. A volley of oaths followed the remark.

"You'er in bad temper, Cap'n," said another, who proved to be Simon Arrowsmith.

"Who wouldn't be in bad temper to be baffled in this way?" growled Vantassle. "Twice the gal seemed to be in my power to-night, and twice have I been defeated by that unknown devil, One-eyed Saul of the Swamp."

"It's the gal—there's where the shoe pinches. The loss of the silver plate is what troubles me. 'Twas a fool's trick to set the house afire and burn it up, arter all. There was enough on it to take Laurelwood by storm, and we ought to done it. I'd been content with the booty, and them that preferred it might had the beauty, and welcome. Women are well enough to do the cookin' and housework, but as for havin' one on 'em agin her will, I can't see no sense in it, though them may have different views that please. Whoever gets a chance to look among the ashes yonder first, 'll git richly paid for their trouble."

"A greater treasure than all the plate of Burnside House has slipped through my fingers this night. Simon Arrowsmith, who, in the fiend's name, is this One-eyed Saul, who is sich a terror to our fellers all along the Santee, especially in the neighborhood of this cussed swamp?"

"It's more'n I can tell, Cap'n, but I know that he fights like a hurricane, and is never still. First you hear of him at one place, then at another a long way off. He goes from p'int to p'int like a racehorse, and allers leaves his mark on the kin men. He has a burnin' hatred for Tories, and woe to them that he puts his eye on for vengeance, for they don't live long arter. Jim Pollard has got somethin' to do, I reckon. I'm glad it wasn't me that drew his name from the hat on the night we crossed our sabres over the red blaze, and swore—we seven—to stand by each other to the last, in all cases and under all circumstances."

"Poor luck we've had," sneered Martin, "though we had the advantage in p'int of numbers. There's seven on us matched agin seven; we'll see how it'll end."

"A dozen of us seem to be no match for four, to night," returned Arrowsmith, morosely. "I wonder if any of our seven got their quietus? Satan takes care of his own, they say."

We'll know, to-night, when we meet at the cypress tree. I got a broken skull, and noticed that two or three others had some ugly marks; but it's my opinion that the seven will all turn up at the proper time. Some of our friends went under; the bodies of a few were burnt in the house, I s'pose, but it's the fate of war, and can't be helped. It's Jessie Burnside that worries me the most!"

Imagine the feelings of the young girl! Picture to yourself her trepidation, her trembling horror, at the proximity of villains whose religion was Passion and Plunder, and whose depraved instincts hurried them to the commission of enormities too shocking for the mind to dwell upon. She was like the dove hiding from the hawk—the hare shrinking from the teeth of the hound.

"All hope of the gal isn't lost yet," said Arrowsmith, hopefully. "Herrick and Langford folldred 'em, you know?"

"How fur could they foller 'em through these infernal meshes of wood?"

"As fur as the frightened little bodies could go. How do you think they could fight their way through such diffikilties as these? Why, they'd leave some of their clothes at every step, and wouldn't have a rag left on 'em by the time they'd gone a dozen rods. Think how the pretty dears must have torn their soft flesh!"

Arrowsmith laughed, as if the idea was a very pleasant one.

"They couldn't go a great ways, that's certain," replied Martin, reflectively.

"They may be 'thin ten yards of us!" asserted Arrowsmith, with confidence.

The effect of this remark was anything but agreeable to Jessie, for the distance was much less than the ruffian had named.

"We might look about some," added Arrowsmith. "They'd be apt to smuggle into the fust hidin' place they come to; that's the way of the critters. When they're frightened, they run their silly heads under the fust bush they find."

"You forget that Tom Hutter, Paul Hazelhurst, the tall Yankee, and the nigger, started after 'em the minute we took to our heels. They've found 'em, I'll warrant, and that arch rebel, Hazelhurst, is whisperin' fine things in Jessie's ears by this time. The days 'll be long and the nights restless till I've covered him with the muzzle of my rifle. Little shall I sleep till he ceases to stan' atween me and Jessie Barnside."

"It isn't best to let out any secrets, Cap'n, for we don't know what ears may hear us."

A twig broke beneath the slight weight of Jessie's person. The circumstances added fresh terror to her situation.

"What was that?" whispered Arrowsmith.

"It was a noise!" said Vantassle suddenly, whose bad temper made him reckless.

"I know it was a noise, but it allers takes somethin' to make a noise. What did I tell you? Your beauty may be concealed hereabout; push ahead and see."

Jessie heard Vantassle parting the laurels and pressing slowly toward her. Her heart beat violently; she believed if he paused he could hear it. The crisis of her fate, it seemed to her, had arrived. Should she spring up and attempt to fly, or remain silent a moment longer? She chose the latter. Vantassle was within three yards of her.

PURSUIT OF KNOWLEDGE.

Dr. Marshman, the Serampore missionary, born in an humble sphere of life, raised himself to a position of distinguished eminence by his unaided exertions and his indomitable energy. He plied the shuttle with the Greek grammar before him, and before he was twenty had filled his mind with vast stores of knowledge, and thus laid the foundation of future usefulness.

SECRESY. There is a Hebrew proverb, "Thy secret is thy prisoner; if thou let it go, thou art a prisoner to it:" and another, "Thy friend hath a friend, and thy friend's friend hath a friend; and therefore what thou wouldst have kept as a secret, reveal not to thy friend."

THE RECOMPENSE OF REWARD. Be often remembering what a blessed thing it is to be saved, to go to heaven, to be made like angels, and to dwell with God and Christ to all eternity. Bunyan.

TEMPTATION. The devil entangles youth with beauty, the miser with gold, the ambitious with power, the learnd with false doctrine.

WISDOM. Wisdom is the olive that springeth from the heart, bloometh on the tongue, and beareth fruit in the actions. Grymestone.

FRIENDSHIP. Friendship is the only thing in the world, concerning the usefulness of which all mankind are agreed. Cicero.

EATING. In general, mankind, since the improvement of cookery, eat about twice as much as nature requires Franklin.

CONVERSATION. "Time passes away," says the Hindoo proverb, "but sayings remain.

GUILT. One crime must be concealed by the commission of another. Seneca.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—John B. Gilmer, Esq., son of the late Secretary and Ex-Governor of Virginia, who was killed on board the seamer Princeton, several years ago commited suicide early this morning, at the railroad depot, by throwing himself under the moving locomotive. He resided at Charlottesville, and was editor of the Exponent. He was about 30 years old. Mr. Roger A. Pryor took charge of the body, will be sent home in the evening train.

GOLD.—The recent discoveries of Gold which have been made in this region of the country promises to be of great importance. New discoveries are being daily made, and parties are rapidly organizing for the purpose of mining. The gold is found in quartz and also in the gulches and streams.

We understand that a placer, has been discovered on the Rob Roy place, belonging to the Messrs Curry, which yielded from seven pansfull of dirt, as many pennyweights of fine gold. Much excitement prevails.—Talladega Watchtower.

HOMICIDE.—As we go to press, we regret to learn that Zachariah Brantley of this county, lost his life at Isabella, Ga., on Tuesday evening last in a rencounter with John Giles, John Howell, and James A. Hoy. Giles and Hoy are in the custody of the sheriff. Howell made his escape, ran off bleeding, and is supposed to have died in the woods.

The wounds received by Brantley were made with a Bowie knife. One in the back, another in the pit of the stomach, and the other above the right knee. Not being informed of the circumstances which led to this melancholy affair, we withhold any comment. Albany (Ga,) patriot, April 21.

JACKSONVILLE, ALA.

May, 12, 1859.

☞ Mr. F. H. GOODWIN, is our authorized Agent, to receive and receipt for subscriptions to the Rebublican, coutract and receipt for advertising, &c.

Our friends and patrons will confer a favor upon us, which will be gratefully appreciated, by affording him every facility in their power, in the transactionof business.

Bartlett Owen, Esq. Tax Assessor of Calhoun County, will receive and transmit to us the names of persons who may wish to subscribe for this paper at his various appointments for assessing or other places. He is also authorized to receipt for any subscription money which may be paid to him.

☞ In our paper of week before last, we published a poetical gem, entitled "The Dream of Beauty," by Kit Kelvin, and intended at the time to ask for other contributions from the same gifted pen, but neglected to do so. Although the author lives more than a thousand miles distant, we hope yet to receive other similar favors from him.

☞ We invite particular attention to the advertisement of Messrs. Kyle, Winn & Co. of Gadsden, who are now offering an extensive stock of Goods for sale at very reduced prices. We have been hearing, occasionally, for more than a year past, that this enterprising and accommodating firm laid in larger stocks of superior and well assorted Goods, and sold them at cheaper rates than any house in the country; and we doubt not, they will make it the interest of all who call upon them to trade. So well assured are we of this fact, that we intend to prove our faith by our works, the first opportunity we have, by making purchases from them.

In all our experience, we have never known a firm that laid in extensive stocks, advertised them liberally so that purchasers could know it, and gave other indications of enterprise, that did not give good bargains to their customers. And on the other hand, we have never known those that laid in meagre stocks, informed nobody of their arrival, crouched down over them, and preferred to be five years selling them at enormous prices, rather than quick sales and small profits, but what a man would make money by keeping away from them.

Among other unmistakeable evidences of the enterprising character of Gadsden Merchants, it will be seen that they have made arrangements to have the Ferry free to all persons from this side, who visit that place on business.

War News.—It will be seen by reference to our telegraphic head, that the war news is more definite and threatening than heretofore. We may have to record an actual collision of the armies, even in our next paper.

Morris Merchant Mills.

These extensive and superior Mills, on Cane Creek and Choccolocco, as will be seen by reference to advertisement in another column, are now in complete order, and the Proprietors prepared to manufacture flour of the best quality in any quantities that may be desired.

The well known skill and mechanical genius of the Messrs. Morris, added to the fact, that they employ none but the best and most experienced Millers, affords ample assurance to all who may send to their Mills, that their interest will be carefully guarded.

Rust in Wheat.—We have heard of several crops of wheat in this County, which have been already totally destroyed by rust, and many others more or less injured. Hopes were entertained some days since that fair weather would arrest its progress; but the weather is now, (Tuesday 10th,) cloudy and unfavorable.

☞ We invite the attention of parents and guardians to the school notice of MRS. MCCRACKAN, in another column. Mrs. M. has had considerable experience, and can give the most satisfactory references, and reliable evidences of her qualifications as a teacher.

The communication of "Zeno" will have a place in our next.

☞ It will be seen, by reference to the advertsement of Mrs. Hill, that she will offer a valuable tract of Land for sale to the highest bidder, on the 12th of July next, unless sooner disposed of. From what we have learned, we suppose this to be a valuable tract of land, and think the prospect of obtaining it on a reasonable termf, very good.

ETOWAH HOUSE, Rome, Ga.—We have been advertising this House some weeks, but in the hurry of business, neglected to call the attention of the traveling public to its excellent accommodations. Mr. L. P. Thomas, who has had considerable experience in the business is the present proprietor, and persons who have recently visited his house in Rome, speak of it in the highest terms. We think we may safely say he is the most popular proprietor the Etowah House has ever had.

BAD Acconnt From The Wheat.—We take the following extract from a private letter dated Fenns Bridge, Jefferson county, Ga., April 17:

"I think we will make no wheat this year. It has the rust now very badly. It is on the blades as it was last year, though commenced much earlier. I have heard of two other crops having the rust, and I guess it will be a general thing.

Similar, if not worse, accounts have been received in this city from Scriven county. Some of the planters there are seriously thinking of turning in their entire crops and planting something else. Savannah Republican, April 20.

THE STATE OF ALABAMA, } Calhoun County. }

Circuit Court, Spring Term, 1859.

To the Hon. S. D. Hale, Judge of said Court.

The Grand Jurors, sworn at the present term of the Court, beg leave to report, that they have fully discharged the duties devolving upon them as such Grand Jurors.

1st. By making a personal inspection of the condition of the jail in said county, which they find is insufficient for the safe keeping of prisoners—yet they are pleased to report, that the court of County Commissioners of said county have taken steps to build a new and safe jail—that the contract for building the same, has been taken by an efficient contractor, and that the new jail will be completed within one year from this date.—In the mean time they beg leave to report, that the present jail has been well kept since the last term of this court, so as to secure the accommodation and health of the prisoners.

That by a settlement of the Treasurer with the Court of County Commissioners on the 10th day of February, 1859, there was remaining in his hands the sum of $870 19

That he has since received the sum of 1601 75

Making in all the sum of $2471 94

4th. They are pleased also to state that the books of the Judge of Probate and Clerk of the Circuit Court are neatly and correctly kept and that no county officer has over charged for fees, as far as they can learn from inspection, or otherwise.

5th. They have diligently inquired into all indictable offences, committed or triable in said county, and true presentments made as far as has come to their knowledge by information, or otherwise.

6th. Having fully reported as to their duties, they beg leave to return their sincere thanks to the honorable the presiding Judge for his satisfactory and lucid charge, and also to the officers of the county, and of the court, for their prompt attention in assisting them in the performance of their duties.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Mr. Hilliard

Addressed his fellow-citizens of Macon county on Tuesday last, at Tuskegee, in a speech abounding with argument and eloquence, and silenced much of the opposition which has existed in his party, to his candidacy for Congress in this District.

We were prevented by sickness from hearing this speech, but understand that it was so thoroughly braced all around, that few could object to it.

Judge Rice was posted to reply to it on Wednesday. His objection doubtless is, that Mr. Hilliard is not a disunionist per se. The people will agree with Mr. Hilliard, that the time is not yet for disunion.—Auburn Signal.

The above, Mr. Editor, is the production of Wm. F. Samford, the gentleman who has been pretending to be a Southern Rights man for years. He is at times lauding Hon. Wm. L. Yancy, at others, extalling others as opposed to him as the Polls are to each other. I have no earthly objection to Mr. Hillard as a man, but as a politician, he will not do. He is too gentle and yielding for the great interests of the South at this eventful crisis. There are too many nice men at the North with whom Mr. Hillard might pair off, as he used to with Mr. Winthrop. if I am not mistaken, Mr. Samford, the sapient (?) editor of the Auburn Signal is not a good adviser for the South. If he were able to be up and could look around him and see where things are drifting, he would not write such loose squibs—we trust that Sam Rice riddled the Hon. Parsons speech as he or Yancy alone are competent to do. Mr. Hillard never will be for disunion as long as he can dip his finger in the flesh pots of a vacillating administration. Mr. Hillard can brace things all around to suit some folks like our invalid Editor of the Signal, but as for me, give me Yancy, Tucker, Sayre or Sam Rice forever.

Yours,
SOUTHERN RIGHTS.

The River and Crevasses.

The Picayune says:

The Mississippi, in front of this city, and for some distance above, is three inches higher than it was ever before known to be. With unusually long, rainy winter, and the continued heavy rises of water in the great rivers that pour into the Mississippi, this is not to be wondered at. The telegraph has announced that at Memphis the river is not rising, and that at Vicksburg it is falling; we can thence derive hope of a speedy lowering of the waters here.

The Delta says:

The city was overflowed last evening at various points. The sudden rise of yesterday destroyed several weak points in the levee or batture in front of the city, through which the water gushed quite threateningly, and flooded the streets and sidewalks, and converted vacant lots into ponds and lakes. The principal of these weak points were in front of the old market and Jackson Square, in the Second District, at the foot of Orange street in the First District, and near the foot of Josephine street in the Fourth District. Through these inlets the waters ran all last night, though it was quite easy to have stopped them by the manifestation of the most ordinary care and energy.

From Mr. McGee, in the parish of Plaquemines, on the opposite bank, we learn that a crevasse took place yesterday in the levee near his place, just above the lower end of the Cut-off Road. The break was about fourteen feet wide and four & half a feet deep. The alarm was immediatly given; the hands from the plantations of Messrs. Packwood, Villere, Zunts and others were hurried to the spot and set vigorously to work. Strong hopes were entertained that the break would be closed to-day.

Farther up, however, there were very heavy rises as will be seen from the following despatches:

Louisville, April 27.—The river has risen at this point three feet and nine inches within the last twenty-four hours. The twenty-four hours previous the rise was one foot and a half.

Cincinnati, April 27.—The river here is rising very rapidly—three inches an hour. The rise for the twenty-four hours previous was twenty inches.

Loss of the St. Nicholas.

DETAILS OF THE CATASTROPHE.

The Memphis Avalanche, of the 26th inst., brings us the particulars of this great calamity, correcting in some respects the telegraphic reports previously published.

At the time of the explosion the boat was under full headway, opposite Island 60. It is the opinion of all the survivors that the explosion of all the boilers was simultaneous, causing a complete and instant wreck of the entire boat. The explosion was at once followed by a conflagration, which with great rapidity enveloped the entire wreck in flames. To this concurrence of the greatest of disasters the large loss of life is attributed.

The scene, it is said, beggars all attempts at description. Think of fifty human beings composed of men, women and helpless children, suddenly hurled into mid heaven or left to choose between the merciless waves and the less merciless element which lighted up the horrible scene with lurid flame, and some faint idea may be entertained of the awful spectacle

No cause is assigned for the awful accident. The boilers are acknowledged to have been old, but were regarded perfectly safe, and those in charge of them had the reputation of being most reliable and intelligent officers. It is sincerely to be hoped that an investigation will be had that shall throw some light upon the as yet inexplicable accident

There are some details of this great catastrophe which are very interesting.

The death of the captain is not the least exciting of these details. The Avalanche says:

In the vast record of disasters which have occurred on our western waters, there is nothing to compare with the heroism exhibited by Capt. McMullen. the commander of the ill-fated St. Nicholas. At the time of the explosion he was on watch and was in the pilot-house. A heavy piece of timber, displaced by the explosion, caught his feet and held him fast. By almost superhuman effort he disengaged his right foot, but his left still remained fast. During this time he exhibited great solicitude for the safety of persons on the boat, and not until the flames had come within reach of his own body did he exhibit any anxiety for himself. Then finding that he could not release himself, he implored those within reach of his voice to relieve him from his dreadful dilemma; requesting at last that some one bring an axe and cut off his leg. Every exertion was made to relieve him, but without avail, and the noble captain and true man was consumed by the flames, meeting death manfully at his post.

A signal case of female heroism was exhibited by Miss. Kennedy, a cousin of Mr. Glime, the chief clerk and one of the owners of the boat:

She was thrown by the explosion from her state-room into the river and floated down to the stern of the boat, when she caught her hand in one of the rings attached to the hull and hung in perilous dilemma, when death stood threatening upon either hand. To loose her hold was to sink into the waves, and to hold on was to burn with the wreck to which she was clinging—every moment being an age of alternating hope and despair. She remained in this position until the flames actually burned the hair and skin from her head, the only part of her body above the water, except the hand by which she clung to the wreck, and that was burned to a crisp. While in this awful suspense, and suffering intensely from the heat, such was her presence of mind and her wonderful heroism, that, as a man who was worse stunned, perhaps, than herself, by the explosion, was floating by her, in a drowning condition, she seized him by the hair with her disengaged hand, and held his face out of the water until a skiff was brought to the rescue of both. It often falls to the strong arm of man to assist the helplessness of woman, but in this instance the strength of endurance, and a courage that was stronger than her arm, made a woman the preserver of herself and one of the stronger sex.

The case of Mr. and Mrs. Chrysup, and their son George, is one that cannot fail to excite sympathy. The statement of the lad is as follows:

George W. Chrysup, an intelligent lad fourteen years old, was on the St. Nicholas, together with his father and mother. They were from Pittsfield, Ill., and were going to Vicksburg, Miss. George was in his state-room in bed when the explosion occurred. He left his room, badly frightened, and while running along the guards was knocked over-board by the rush of grown up persons. Finding himself in the water, and being an expert swimmer, he struck out for the shore and had nearly gained it, when the current carried him back to the boat. He succeeded in getting on a plank with Augst. Helsler, mess-room tender of the boat. While upon this plank he saw for the last time his father and mother, who were also upon a plank. His father, knowing that George could swim, called to him to take care of himself, and that he would take care of his mother His father's voice was cheerful.

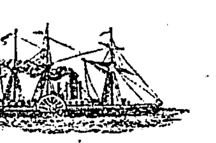

The four (George and Helsler, and Mr. and Mrs. Chrysup) drifted near each other for a little time, when they lost sight of each other. While within hearing, however, the father called to George to the effect that if he did not see him to morrow, and was saved himself, to go back to his friends in Pittsfield. What became of the wife—whether the two are now upon some "waste of troubled waters" on the inundated shores of the river—or whether the mother, fainting from terror or anxiety, let go her hold from the friendly plank, and the husband and father, in seeking to save the partner of his bosom, himself perished—conjecture alone is left us.

Nearly sixty lives were lost and only thirty-nine saved—a disproportion of the lost to the saved almost without a precedent. The cargo and the boat are a total loss. The St. Nicholas was bult in 1853, at Pittsburg, and when she was launched was considered one of the best boats on the river,—[Picayune.

The old routes will be continued as heretofore.

Attempt to Assassinate the English Indian Minister.

HALIFAX, N. S., May 4.—The steamer Niagara, Capt. Miller, from Liverpool on the 23d ult., arrived here at forty-five minutes past nine o'clock, to-night bringing 33 passengers for Halifax and fifty for Boston. The cotton market was unusually quiet. Qualities under Middling were one-eighth lower; Fair to Good equal to last week's quotations.

General News.

The ministers express considerable anxiety about the approaching war, which is now considered to be inevitable; the Earl of Derby intimating that Great Britain will maintain a fully armed neutrality, and will sympathize in the strict maintainance of the treaty of Vienna. It is rumored that strong words have passed at Paris between Lord Cowley and Count Walewski. On this subject the Paris correspondent of the Times, writing on Friday night says: "We were yesterday, it is believed within a few hours of a declaration of war by Austria, owing to the prevarication of the Imperial Government of France, on the question of a general disarmament; its only object being to gain time. England asked for an immediate answer on the point, and France plead that it could not exercise its influence with Sardinia to enforce its compliance. Austria then declared that if an answer were not got in a given time she should consider it equivalent to a declaration of war, and would act instantly, and her troops would probably be at Turin in ten days.—The French government then said that the terrible responsibility for general war would fall upon them alone. It was felt that Russia could not be relied on, and that France would not have the sympathy of any Government except Piedmont. The Paris correspondent of the Globe says that the dislike of the French masses to a war with Austria, or any other war, is most gratuitously assumed. A discovery is said to have been made of another attempt to assassinate the French Emperor. The design is affirmed to be one of the deadly plans of a secret society of Marrieanne; [?Mazini] but nothing has yet been fixed upon as proof of the intimation which has been conveyed to the Government by an anonymous letter. In case of war the staff of the French army will be composed as follows: the Emperor Commander-in-Chief, Gen. Canrobert, Gen. Well, Gen. De Service, Gen. Lebeuf; Commissioner of Artillery, Gen. DeMartinprey, of the Staff. The Vienna correspondent of the Times states that the Austrian Government will be satisfied if the Moniteur will inform the world that the first step taken by the Congress will be to make arrangements for placing the armies of Sardinia, Austria and France on an equal peace footing. Austria wishes merely to give the mediating powers another proof of her moderation and wish to avoid war. The Paris correspondent of the London Herald points out how consistent the conduct of Emperor Napoleon has been. He means to see this question settled in his own way. Unless Austria recedes this war cannot be avoided, whether the Congress meets or not. The Austrian ultimatum to the Sardinian threat of immediate war is given in the following most important telegraphic dispatch from Turin. Gen. Gyulai has been ordered to present the ultimatum for disarmament and the sending away of volunteers; if this be refused war is to be declared in three days. DRESDEN, April 21.—The Moniteur of this morning contains the following: Austria has not given in her adoption of the propositions made by England and accepted by France, Russia and Prussia; besides which it appears that the Cabinet of Vienna has resolved on addressing a direct communication to the Cabinet of Turin, in order to obtain the disavowment of Piedmont. In consequence of these facts, the Emperor has ordered the concentration of the divisions of the army on the frontier of Piedmont. The following dispatch was delayed nine hours on its way by telegraph.

PARIS, April 21.—The Patrie of this evening states that serious reports have been in circulation here to-day. The entry of the Austrian troops into Piedmontese territory has been spoken of, but nothing is officially confirmed. It is however certain that Gen. DeLamarmora, has informed the French government by telegraph, that the Austrian army has made significant movements on a strategetical line of ticons, and that he feared being attacked at any moment. Reports were also current, that Austria refused to give in her adhesion to the propositions of England, who had asked for it in twenty-four hours. The Constitutional announce, that part of the army of Paris has received orders to hold itself in readiness to march. The first and fourth infantry divisions of the army of Paris are under orders to proceed to Toulon by railway. The first division was to leave Paris last evening. The delay granted by Austria to Piedmont for disarmament, will as it appears, expire on Sunday evening next. Till now, nothing has confirmed the report here circulated, that an engagement has been fought on the Ticine.

TURIN, April 21.—Threatening movements of the Austrian army on the frontiers of Piedmont have taken place. The Austrian authorities have directed the managers of the Lombardy railway to suspend the usual trains tomorrow. All locomotives have been ordered back for the transport of soldiers.—Troops are expected on the road from Milan to the Ticine. The evening a Council of Ministers was held under the presidency of the King. Letters from Leghorn announce warlike manifestations on the part of Sardinia.

Accounts from Rome, transmitted by telegraph from Marseilles, show that the political excitement is rapidly increasing in the Papal States.

Great numbers of volunteers have departed to join the Piedmont army—250 young men having left the town of Perugia alone.

In a letter from the Berlin correspondent of the Daily News, we are told, that the Prussian cabinet has now cast off its habitual vascillation, and made up its mind to the course it will pursue in the event of war. On the evening of the 11th, the Prince Regent declared, in the hearing of the whole Court, that Prussia was determined to support Austria through thick and thin.

It is stated in Berlin that an offensive and defensive alliance between Austria and Prussia has been arranged, and the Austrian officers of the four different branches of the service have been specially selected to make the needful arrangements for the extent of the co-operation of their own particular branch.

TO INEZ MAY.

A LOVER'S FAREWELL.
(Translated from the heart.)

I strained her to my breaking heart,
But did not—could not—say farewell;
That is to me, the saddest word,
That e'er from human lips hath fell.

One moment in that fond embrace,
And then our fonder hearts were riven;
Tho' lost to me, and I to her,
We hoped to meet again—in heaven!

They said she waved one snowy arm,
To bid a lingering, last adieu,
As fading o'er the distant hill,
Our little troop was lost to view:—

I did not turn me back to see,
But sad and silent, brooded o'er
The joys that now were lost to me—
Joys that the world could not restore.

Sweet Inez, hast thou lost a friend?
And didst thou hear the funeral knell?
I know 'tis sad; but sadder still
The solemn, awful word farewell!

Again, I would not hear that sound,
For all this wretched world can give;
I would not see that white arm wave—
Indeed, I could not look and live!

DIED—On Wednesday morning the 4th May—MARY ALICE HOKE.

"Lallie," bright, joyous, "Lallie" has gone.—Nevermore, save in dreams will we see her here again—yet how can we wish her back again. What have we poor mortals to give in exchange for her heavenly resting place? Nothing—but a part in the great drama of life—a constant scene of disappointment and change; and what are a few fleeting years on earth, in compensation for a home secure with "Him" in whose sight, "a thousand years are but as yesterday."

Is it not natural; when we wish to pluck a flower to choose the loveliest bud upon the stem—then how can we murmur at our "Heavenly Father" for gathering to his bosom this beautiful floweret; Why should we wish "Him" to wait until this little bud has blown into maturity, and then to take it, when blighted and crushed by rude earth winds.

Deeply—bitterly do we mourn for thee "Lallie," but with thy beautiful example of patience, loveliness and affection, ever before us, in thy little footprints we'll strive to wend our way to Heaven.

From The Press.

Mr. John Jackson, publisher of the Calais Advertiser, writes: I know it to be all it is recommended: having used it in my family for six or seven years.

Eevery mother and housekeeper must often act as a family physician in the numerous illnesses and accidents that occur among children and servants. For many of these cases, Davis's Pain Killer, is anindispensable article. In diarrhea it has been used and effected cures. For cuts and bruises it is invaluable.—N. Y. Examiner.

PERRY DAVIS'S PAIN KILLER.—This medicine has become an article of commerce—a thing no medicine ever became before. Pain Killer is as much an item in every bale of goods sent to country merchants, as Tea, Coffee or Sugar This fact speaks volumes in its favor. Glens Falls Messenger.

DAVIS'. VEGETABLE PAIN KILLER. Notwithstanding the many imitations of this article, and many other medicines in the market pretending to answer the same purpose, yet the sale of Perry Davis' Vegetable Pain Killer is more than the whole of them put together. It is one of the few articles that are just what they pretend to be. Try it. Brunswick Telegraph.

A SINGULAR CALAMITY.—The Lafayette, Indiana, papers give the particulars of a distressing calamity that occurred a few miles south of that city last week. A young man was so affected at the sight of a fearful gash made by an axe, in the foot of his brother, that finding himself about to swoon, he started for the adjoining room for some camphor that was placed upon the mantel-piece above a blazing fire. Just as he attempted to reach the camphor he fainted and fell into the fire where he remained until his groans attracted the attention of the persons in another room. He was taken from the fire by them, but was burned in such a terrible manner that no hopes are entertained of his recovery.

SAD AFFAIR—TWO BOYS POISONED. A sad affair happened in Hermon village on Friday, the 6th inst, resulting in two deaths. It seems that two boys, one a son of Mr. Kinney, and the other a son of Mr. Ladd, went to work in a garden with a spade, and dug up a root known commonly as a muskrat root. After washing the root, they went to Ladd's barn and ate freely of the same. A short time after, the son of Mr. Ladd felt sick and started for home. After arriving there he was taken with cramps, frothing at the mouth, and other evidences of poison, and died shortly after in great agony. The other boy started for home at the same time across lots, and was found in a field an hour afterwards. He probably became weak from the effects of the poison, and fell where he was afterwards found. The ground near him was considerably torn and rooted up, the result of his struggles during the spasms. He was taken home and died soon afterwards. Both boys were buried on Saturday, the 9th. Exchange.

QUENTIN DURWARD, by Sir Walter Scott. Peterson & Brothers have given us, in the above named volume, the fifth number of their cheap edition of the works of Sir Walter Scott, and a popular edition it is too, and we are glad to find they have made a tremendous hit with this cheap edition of the Waverley Novels. There is a constant demand for these immortal productions of the Scottish Shakespeare, and here, at last, we have an edition for the million—each volume costing but twenty-five cents, and the whole series comprised in twenty-six volumes being furnished for the small sum of five dollars, and sent post-paid to any part of the United States. "Quentin Durward"—which teems with romantic incidents and fine portraitures of character—has just been issued. Such an opportunity to obtain these glorius fictions has never before been presented to the masses of this country, in no other shape can these works be obtained in so desirable a shape for anything like the price.—Address all orders to T. B. Peterson & Brothers, 306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Holloway,s Ointment and Pills.—The various and frightful ulcerations of the low limbs, known by the general term of "sore leg," yield every where with surprising rapidity to the influence of the Ointment. We are informed, from sources in which we have full confidence, that abscesses and sores of this class, that had been discharging for many years, keeping the sufferers in constant pain, and in a most debilitated condition, have been dried up in a few weeks by this wonderful disinfectant. It dose not merely suppress the discharge, which would be dangerous, but, striking through the surface to the nucleus of the disorder, obliterates at once both its source and its symptoms. The Pills, by their mild aperient action, expedite the cure.

Dyspepsia can be, and by the use of Perry Davis. Pain Killer. This is the most wonderful and valuable Medicine ever known for this disease, its action upon the system is entirely different from any other preparation ever known.—The patient while taking this medicine may eat anything the appetite craves. Sold by all medicine dealers.

THE MIGHTY HEALER!

WORLD KNOWN AND WORLD TRIED

Holloway's Ointment.

The free admissions of all Nations, as well as the verdict of the leading Hospitals of the Old as well as the New World, stamp this powerful remedial Agent as the greatest healing preparation ever made known to suffering man. ERYSIPELAS AND SALT RHEUM

Are two of the most common and virulent disorders prevalent on this continent, to these the Ointment is especially antagonistic, its "modus operandi" is first to eradicate the venom and then complete the cure.

Piles and Fistula.

Every form and feature of these prevalent and stubborn disorders is eradicated locally & entirely by the use of this emolient; warm fomentations should precede its application.—Its healing qualities will be found to be thorough and invariable.

Both the Ointment and Pills should be used in the following cases:

Bunions,	Mercurial Eruptions,
Burns,	Piles.

THE LIVER INVIGORATOR!

PREPARED BY DR. SANFORD,
COMPOUNDED entirely from GUMS,

IS ONE OF THE BEST PURGATIVE and Liver Medicines now before the public, that acts as a Cathartic. It is not only a Cathartic, but a Liver remedy, acting first on the Liver to eject its morbid matter, then on the stomach and bowels to carry off that matter, thus accomplishing two purposes effectually, without any of the painful feelings experienced in the operations of most Cathartics. It strengthens the system at the same time that it purges it; and when taken daily in moderate doses, will strengthen and build it up with unusual rapidity.

SANFORD'S LIVER INVIGORATOR.

The Liver is one of the principal regulators of the human body; and when it performs its functions well, the powers of the system are fully developed. The stomach is almost entirely dependent on the healthy action of the Liver for the proper performance of its functions; when the stomach is at fault, the bowels are at fault, and the whole system suffers in consequence of one organ—the LIVER—having ceased to do its duty. For the disease of that organ one of the proprietors has made it his study, in a practice of more than twenty years, to find some remedy wherewith to counteract the many derangements to which it is liable.

To prove that this remedy is at last found, any person troubled with Liver Complaint, in any of its forms, has but to try a bottle, and conviction is certain.

These Gums remove all morbid or bad matter from the system, supplying in their place a healthy flow of bile, invigorating the stomach, causing food to digest well, purifying the blood, giving tone and health to the whole machinery removing the cause of the disease—effecting a radical cure.

Billious attacks are cured, and what is better, prevented by the occasional use of the LIVER INVIGORATOR.

One dose after eating is sufficient to relieve the stomach & prevent the food from rising & souring.

Only one dose taken before retiring, prevents Nightmare.

Only one dose taken at night, loosens the bowels gently, and cures Costiveness.

One dose taken after each meal will cure Dyspepsia.

One dose of two teaspoonfuls will always relieve Sick Headache.

One bottle taken for female obstruction removes the cause of the disease, and makes a perfect cure.

Only one dose immediately relieves Cholic, while one dose often repeated is a sure cure for Cholera Morbus, and a preventive of Cholera.

Only one bottle is needed to throw out of the system the effects of medicine after a long sickness.

One bottle taken for Jaundice removes all sallowness or unnatural color from the skin.

One dose taken a short time before eating gives vigor to the appetite, and makes food digest well.

One dose often repeated cures Chronic Diarrhœa in its worst forms, while Summer and Bowel complaints yield almost to the first dose.

One or two doses cures attacks caused by Worms in Children: there is no surer, safer, or speedier remedy in the world, as it never fails.

A few bottles cures Dropsy, by exciting the absorbents.

We take pleasure in recommending this medicine as a preventive for Fever & Ague, Chill Fever, and all Fevers of a Bilious TYPE. It operates with certainty, & thousands are willing to testify to its wonderful virtues.

ALL WHO USE IT ARE GIVING THEIR UNANIMOUS TESTIMONY IN ITS FAVOR.

MIX WATER IN THE MOUTH WITH THE INVIGORATOR, AND SWALLOW BOTH TOGETHER.

The Liver Invigorator

IS A SCIENTIFIC MEDICAL DISCOVERY, and is daily working cures, almost too great to believe. It cures as if by magic, even the first dose giving benefit, and seldom more than one bottle is required to cure any kind of Liver Complaint, from the worst Jaundice or Dyspepsia to a common Headache, all of which are the result of a Diseased Liver.

Listen!!!

COLLECTIONS this season have not equalled my expectations. The crop of cotton was large, prices good, and funds comparatively abundant. Consequently, I expected much. True, some have done well: others, nothing. To the latter I would suggest, "that now is the time." 'Tis much more easy to make payment now, than it was last season, or, than it may be next. Is it not wise then, to improve this "GOLDEN" opportunity, and while money is cheap, to extinguish old liabilities?

I am anxious to collect my old debts From those who have done nothing, or but little yet I shall expect liberal payments in March.

RADWAY'S REGULATING PILLS.

Dr. Radway & Co. have recently discovered a method for extracting from roots, herbs, plants and gums, a nutritious extract of such wonderful nourishing power—which they have combined with Radway's Regulating Pills—that six of these Pills will supply the blood with the same amount of nutrition as one ounce of ordinary bread; so that, while the system is undergoing a thorough physicking, and regulating process, it daily becomes strengthened.

Persons afflicted with Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Heart Diseases, Fullness of blood, and all Females who are subject to Irregularities, Hysteria, &c., are particularly recommended to use these Pills. They are pleasant to take—elegantly coated with gum—free from taste, and will not gripe, sicken or weaken the system, or leave the bowels costive.—Mothers nursing should likewise take one or two of these Pills once or twice per week.—They will not only keep your system healthy and regular, but will protect your infants against Cramp and Pains in the stomach, and insure not only a healthy child, but will invest every child, thus suckled, with a sweet disposition.

RADWAY'S REGULATING PILLS

Regulate each and every organ of the system, and correct all derangements of the Liver, Bowels, Stomach, Heart and Kidneys.

They Cure

Costiveness,	Indigestion,
Heart-Burn,	Dyspepsia,
Biliousness,	Headache.
Dropsy,	Constipation,
Palpitation of the Heart,	Congestion, &c., &c., &c.

They are entirely vegetable & harmless; an infant at the breast can take them with safety, and persons who are subject to Fits of Apoplexy, Epileptic, Heart Diseases, &c., should always keep a box on hand.

POETRY.

King and Queen.
BY L. B. ADAMS.

I am a king in my own domain,
And my little wife is queen;
And jointly over our realm we reign,
A royal couple, I ween.

Beauty and grace are the robes that flow
From her lilly shoulders down;
The gems of truth on her bosom glow,
And love is her golden crown.

But her dainty hands are brown with toil—
Her cheeks with the breezes kiss,
And she works for a tiller of the soil
As if toil for him were bliss.

I am the king and the tiller too;
My farm is my proud domain,
And the will to dare and the strength to do
Are the sceptres of my reign.

At my touch the teeming earth yields up
Her wealth for my feast and store,
The nectar of health brims high my cup,
My measure of bliss runs o'er.

Oh! ne'er was a happier realm, I ween,
Than ours, 'neath the arching sky,
And never a happier king and queen
Than my little wife and I.

The Old Cottage Clock.
BY CHARLES SWAIN.

Oh! the old, old clock of the household stock
Was the brightest thing and neatest;
Its hands, though old, had a touch of gold,
And its chime rang still the sweetest,
'Twas a monitor, too, though its words were few,
Yet they lived though nations altered:
And its voice, still strong, warned old and young,
When the voice of friendship faltered!
"Tick, tick," it said—"quick quick to bed
For ten I've given warning:
Up up you go, or else you know,
You'll never rise soon in the morning."

A friendly voice was that old, old clock,
As it stood in the corner smiling,
And blessed the time with a merry chime
The wintry hours beguiling;
But a cross old voice was that tiresome clock,
As it called at daybreak boldly;
When the dawn looked gr-y o,er the misty way,
And the early air blew coldly:
"Tick, tick," it said—"quick, out of bed,
For five I've given warning:
You'll never have health, you'll never get wealth,
Unless you're up soon in the morning."

Still hourly the sound goes round and round
With a tone that ceases never;
While tears are shed for the bright days fled,
And the old friends lost forever!
Its heart beats on—though hearts are gone
That warmed beat and younger;
Its hands still move—though hands we love
Are clasped on earth no longer!
"Tick, tick," it said—"to the church-yard bed,
The grave hath given warning—
Up and rise, and look to the skies,
And prepare for a heavenly morning."

Miscellaneous.

The Gambler's Duel.

On the evening of the 4th of June, 1845, the steamboat "Rob Roy" started from St. Louis to New Orleans with a full crowd of passengers. Immediately after "getting under headway," to adopt a favorite back woods phrase one person attracted universal attention by the annoying eagerness with which he endeavored to make up a party at cards. Indeed his oft repeated and persevering efforts to that end became insulting and unendurable; and yet his appearance was such as to deter the rest on board from administering the chastisement he so richly deserved. He was a huge mass of mighty bones and muscles, with swarthy features, bearing the impress of many a scar; piercing black eyes that seemed to possess the power of blasting the beholder—cold, gleaming eyes, such as make the memory painful; a rank, luxuriant, coal black hair, immense whiskers and moustache. The savage-looking figure was habited in the costliest clothing and adorned with a profusion of jewelry, while the outline of several murderous weapons was plainly distinguishable beneath his gaudy vest and superfine coat. Nor did he need those to make him an object of terror. A connoisseur in the science of gymnastics would have confidently pronounced him a match for any five men on deck, without the aid of lead or steel.

At length after many failures, he prevailed on a wealthy young merchant, of Natchez, to join him in a game of poker. They sat down by a small table near the bar, and were soon in the most perilous of all excitement, of which the two alluring ingredients are vanity & pride of individual skill, and the uncertainty of general hazard. At first the stakes were small, and the run of cards seemed wholly in favor of the merchant; but presently they bet more freely, & gold eagles and hundred dollar notes were showered down on the board with extravagant ardor—and then the current of fortune changed—ebbed from the young merchant and flowed to the professional gambler. As usually happens in such cases, his want of success only piqued and maddened the loser, who sought to recover himself by venturing such desperate ventures as he could not but strengthen and confirm his ruin.—And thus they continued during that long summer night. The intensity of their excitement became equivalent to insanity. Every nerve was strung—every energy of the brain was taxed to the utmost—their teeth were set as those of antagonists in the tug of mortal strife; the sweat rolled from their brows like great drops of rain. The passengers formed a circle around the players, and looked on with that interest which such extraordinary concentration of intellect, and passion never fails to inspire, even in the bosoms that shudder at its excess. The merchant & gambler attracted all eyes, and kept many awake and gazing till morning.

Among the latter, presenting a countenance so pitcous that it might have melted hearts of marble to tears, a pale and exquisitely formed face peeped incessantly from the half open door of the ladies' cabin, weeping all the while, as if oppressed by a dreadful sensation of some irremediable sorrow. It was the merchant's wife, weeping her farewell to departed hope!

There was one spectator, also, whose appearance and actions excited as much curiosity as did the players themselves. He was a tall spare man of thirty years, with handsome features, golden hair, keen blue eyes, of perpetual brightness; and his firm, thin lips wore a perpetual smile of the most inscrutable meaning. With the exception of his red calico shirt, his person was dressed wholly in buckskin, ornamented with long, flowing tassels, and wild figures wrought of variagated beads, after the fashion of some Western Indians. He stood behind the card table, and held in his left hand a sheet of paper, and in his right a large pencil, with which ever and anon, he dashed off a few words, as if engaged in the game.

Still the gambler and merchant persevered in their physical and mental toil.

The dial of the stars, with its thousand fingers of golden fire, pointed to the world shadows of midnight; but still they did not pause. It was "shuffle & cut, and cut and pass, ante up, and I call you and rake down the pile."

Towards the morning a tremendous storm arose. The red lightning flashed awfully—the rain and hail poured down like a frozen cataract—the great river roared till it rivalled the loudest thunder of heaven; and the very pilot at the wheel was alarmed. But the mad players heard it not. What was the tumult of this raging to them, whose destiny hung over the turning of a card? And the smiling, blue-eyed stranger in a buckskin still stood by them with his pencil and paper, calmly noticing the development of the game.

Finally the storm passee, & the beautiful day-break came on like a thing of glory in the east. Then the infatuated merchant, distracted with heavy losses, dared the climax of folly. He staked five thousand dollars, comprising his last cent in the world, on "two pair of kings." The whiskered gambler 'called' him; they showed hands. The blackleg had "two pair of aces," and raked the board. The merchant dropped to the floor as if he had been shot through the brain, and that beautiful young wife flew to his side and fell shrieking to his bosom. They were borne away insensible to the ladies' cabin.

As he deposited the winnings in his pocket, the gambler emitted a hoarse laugh, that sounded frightful as the chuckle of a fiend; but he instantly lost color, as a low, calm voice remarked in his ear:

"Villian, you play a strong hand at many games, but here stands one that can beat you at all of them!"

He turned, met the glance of those keen blue eyes, so preternaturally bright, and shuddered. But he immediately gained his presence of mind, for he was no coward, and then he frowned till his shaggy brows met like the coil of a serpent, and sternly demanded—

"Beggar, who are you, to banter a gentleman thus rudely!"

"I am James Bowie, of Texas," the other answered with a ringing laugh; "and you are John Lafitte, a bastard of the old pirate!"

The gambler reeled in his chair as if he had been struck with a thunderbolt, but recovered again from the shock in a moment, he asked in a firm tone,

"What game do you wish with me?"

"Poker first and pistols afterwards, if you play foul!" replied Bowie.

"Very well," rejoined the other, and they took their seats at the table.

For a time the success seemed equally balanced, the gain and loss being alternate. At last the gambler ventured one of his skillful manœuvres in dealing.

Bowie smiled strangely as his quick eye detected the trick. He said nothing, however, but looked at his hand & bet five thousand dollars, staking the money in ten large bills. The gambler went five thousand dollars higher, which resulted in a "call." Bowie held "four jacks;" but his antagonist, with his habitual chuckle, showed "four queens," exclaiming, as he did so—

"By heavens! the pile is mine!"

"Not yet!" shouted Bowie, as with both hands he raked the heap of notes to the tune of twenty thousand dollars in his own pocket.

Choking and purple with rage and shame the gambler roared:

"To the hurricane deck and let pistols, be trumps this turn!"

"As good as gold!" replied Bowie, & the two hastily ascended the stairs, and assuming their separate positions—the gambler over the stern and Bowie over the bow.

At that instant the sun was just rising in a cloudless sky. Nature looked sublime—a bride worthy of her Almighty Husband, God. The woods and waters appeared as part of one divine picture, with the boundless blue of Heaven for its back ground. The broad bosomed river rolled away like a sheet of burnished silver, speckled here and and there with the flash of golden bubbles; shining fish gambolled in the wave; and all the bright birds—those sweet singers; whose life is a dream, and that dream only music—chattered their wild anthems to the new day, while the great duelists, the most deadly known in the south-west, stood with cocked pistols, eye to eye, and their fingers fixed to their trigger; prepared to slay and be slain.

"I am ready, you give the word," cried Bowie, in his clear, ringing voice, and with that inseperable smile of strange meaning on his lips.

"I am ready—fire!" shouted the gambler in tones as murderous as death.

The two pistols roared simultaneously. Bowie did not move, though he had barely escaped with his life; for the bullet of his foe had cut away one of the golden locks of his yellow hair.

The gambler was shot through the heart, and dropped on the brink of the deck, and almost tumbled into the river. He was buried by the squatters at the next wood yard. And thus perished, justly, the bastard son of the great pirate, Lafitte.

There never was a jury impannelled in the West who would have brought in a verdict against any man for killing him, and more especially under these circumstances, because public opinion pronounced that "he ought to be killed." And such were the desperadoes Bowie exterminated.

The victor immediately proceeded to the ladies' cabin, and restored the winnings of the gambler to the young merchant and beautiful wife, who both received the boon as from heaven, with much gratitude and joy.

If we should write a volume concerning the exploits of James Bowie, his character would not be rendered more transparent than is revealed in the foregoing anecdote. He was always the same—the friend of the oppressed and the sworn enemy of tyrants. He was brave without fear, and generous beyond precedent; and though he had faults, gigantic ones, too, he attoned for all errors of a stormy life by the splendor of his magnificent death. His tomb is in the Alamo, his epitaph is the word "Texas," and his name will fill an humble, though safe niche in the temple of freedom through all time. He can never be forgotten till the bowels of the earth cease to furnish metal for the fabrication of those bright blades of steel which bear his imperishable name.

An Affecting Scene.

There is now confined in the jail at Cincinnati, an old man named Kain, charged with murder. More than two years ago he killed a young man named Singleton, who had seduced one of his two motherless children. He was tried and convicted, and after a long series of legal proceedings, the conviction was set aside and a new trial ordered. During the interval he has been in prison. In the meantime, however, the daughter, in revenge or punishment of whose wrongs he had committed the homicide, being without home, parents, or friends, descended with regular steps the pathway to shame and crime. Her younger sister also became an outcast, and a few months ago both were arrested upon a charge of larceny. For three months, the father and daughter have been in adjoining cells, but during that time, and indeed not since he killed the seducer of the elder, has he spoken to them. A few days ago the counsel for Kain succeeded in producing a reconciliation between the parent and his children, and the scene that took place is described by the Enquirer:

By the kindness of the jailor, the daughters were allowed to visit their father in the cell, when a most affecting interview took place; the girls falling on his neck and weeping like children, while from the eyes of the srern, strong man, who had slain the vile destroyer of his child's honor, & had known her to fall step by step to degradation and despair, the great tears rap like rain—the agony of a heart wrung by affliction and agonised by terrible suffering to a woman's tenderness.

For some minutes no one of that trio spoke. Sobs choked their utterance, & the memory of the fearful past awed them into silence. Their sorrow melted them to sympathy, and love and grief, remorse and repentance, filled their hearts to bursting. In that moment they were purified; in that hour their errors were blotted out by the tears of deepest contribution, and atonement made to nature and themselves.

At last one of the girls, the dishonored and avenged, fell at her father's feet, and said, with still streaming eyes:

"O, father, dearest father, can you forgive me?"

"Yes, yes, my child, with all my heart," was the solemn and impressive answer, "as I hope to be forgiven"

Then both his daughters knelt and received his blessing, and a moment after he was by their side offering up a prayer for strength to resist temptation and avoid evil in the future. The father embraced them tenderly again and again, and assured them of his entire forgiveness, while they promised amendment and reform, and resolved to seek comfort and support in the faith their parent recently had sought.

The scene as witnessed was extremely pathetic, and such as our plain pencil cannot paint. Several who witnessed the reconciliation, were, in spite of themselves, melted to tears, and left the cell with a better opinion of that human nature which, however it may err, is always held by a golden, though invisible, thread to its native Heaven.

An exchange says, that it is just as sensible a move to undertake to get married without courting, as to attempt to succeed in business without advertising. True as preaching. Our business folks "can stick a pin there"

Rufus Choate on Religion.

Rufus Choate, one of the most brilliant, inexhaustible and interesting of all Boston's "hundred orators," and one of the most eminent of her many hundred lawyers, has reneently been delivering himself on the subject of Religion. We had supposed, and do yet, that he is rather a novice as regards a practical experince in this matter. We hope, however, that he thinks and acts as well on the subject as he speaks. For that he speaks well and interestingly upon the subject, we think that the following extract from what he said on the "silver anniversary" of the pastorate of the Rev. Nehemiah Adams, of the "Essex Street Orthodox Congregational Church," abundantly proves. After dilating at length upon the Scriptural faith which he entertained, he went on to inquire:

"And now, is there anything; my friends, in all this, which is incompatible, in any degree, with the warmest and most generous and large and liberal and general culture, which the most expansive and hopeful philanthropy, with the most tolerant, most cheerful, most charitable love of man? Do we not all of us hold this outside of this special, authoritative, written revelation, thus promulgated, collateral with it, the creation of the same nature, which we may with great propriety expose, and which we may very wisely and fitly study and enjoy? Into that system are we forbidden to pry, lest we become, or be in danger of becoming, Atheists, Deists, Pantheists, or Dilletant, or Epicurean? What is there to hinder us from walking with our faith, and the preaching of which every Sunday we are privileged to listen? what is there to hinder us from walkling on the shore of the great ocean of general truth, and gathering up here and there one of its pebbles; and listening here and there to the music of one of its shells? What is there to hinder us from looking at that natural revelation that shall be true hereafter? What is there in all this to prevent us from trying to open, if we can that clasped volume of the elder, if it may be that obscurer Scripture? What is there to hinder us from studying the science of the stars, from going back with geologists to the birth-day of real creation, and thus tracing the line through the vestiges of a real and a true creation down to that later and greater period of time, when the morning stars sang together, exulting over this rising ball? What is there to hinder, us if we dare to do it, from going down with the chemists and physiologists to the very chambers of existence, and trying thence to trace, if we may, the faint, lines by which matter rose to vitality, and vitality swelled up first to animals, and then to man? What is there to prevent us from trying to trace the footsteps of God in history, from reading His laws in the policies of States, in the prinples of morals, and in the science of government;—His love in the happiness of all the families of the human race, in animals and in man; His retribution in the judgments that are "abroad in all the earth?"

Is there anything to hinder in the faith we hold from indulging the implanted sense of beauty, in tracing the last tracks of summer eve, or the first faint flush that precedes or follows the glorious rising of the morning? Because we happen to believe that a written revelation is authoritative upon every man, and that there is contained in it, distinctly and expressly, the expression of the need of reconciliation—is there anything in all this, let me ask you, my friends, which should hinder us from trying to explore the sprit of Plato, from admiring the supremacy of mind which is at least the inspiration of the Almighty, that gives you understanding, in such an intellect as that of Newton; from looking at the camp-fires, as they glitter on the plains of Troy; from standing on the battlements of Heaven with Milton; from standing by the side of Macbeth, sympathizing with' or at least appreciating something of the compunction and horror that followed the murder of his friend, and host, and king; from going out with old Lear, gray hair steaming and throat choking, and heart bursting with a sense of filial ingratitude; from standing by the side of Othello, when he takes the life of all that he loves best in this world, "not for hate, but all for honor;" from admiring and saddening to see how the fond and delicate spirit of Hamlet becomes oppressed and maddened by the terrible discovery, by the sense of duty not entirely clear, by the conflict of emotions, and by the shrinking dread of that life to come, as if he saw a hand we could not see, and heard a voice we could not hear? Certainly, there can be no manner of doubt that our faith, such as you profess it and such as you hold it, will give a direction in one sense, and a certain extent it baptizes and holds control over those studies; certainly, also, it may be admitted that it creates tendencies and tastes that may a little less reluctantly lead away a man from the contemplation of these subjects; but is it incompatible with them? Do you think that Agassiz, Everett, each transcendant in his own department of genius, has become so because he held or did not hold, a specific faith? Because you believe the Old Testament, as well as the New, cannot you read a Classic in the last and best edition if you know how to read it? That is the great question at last, and I apprehend that the incompatibility of which we sometimes hear, has no foundation in the things that are to be compared.—Did poor, rich Cowper think them incompatible, one with another when for so many years he soothed that burning brow and stayed that fainting reason, and turned back those dark billows that threatened to overwhelm him by his translation of the Iliad and Odyssey? What did he say of the incompetibility himself? "Learning has borne such fruit on all her branches, piety has found true friends, in the friends of science, even prayer has flowed from her lips wet with Castilian dews."

OLD AGE.—With many people the thought of getting old is a great bugbear. As disconnected with its proximity to the grave, we dread not oft time of ripened years when reflection, like deep water, go on all noisless but stirring to the profoundest depths of soul. We do not dread the "bleak December of life, its quiet nightfall and silver stars. We shall then love to wander back upon the great broad theatre of by-gone years, while panoramas of beauty in the green foliage float around us, and merry laughter, like recollecting music, is sadder and sweeter. Happy is the venerable man who with years has put up associations upon which to learn, as a tired giant, wearied with the long and incessant toil of life.

Gems of Thought.

Be kind to your friends, that they may continue such, and to your enemies that they may become your friends.

Passion are the gales of life. It should be our care to see that they rise not into a tempest.

Industry is an excellent guard of virtue; the more active your life, the less opportunity have the passions to corrupt you.

We should often blush for our best actions, if the world could see all our secret motives to them.

Though the great book of nature lies open to all, how few there are who can read as to understand it.

Catch not too soon at an offence, nor give way to anger; the one shows a weak judgment, and the other a perverse nature.

Value the friendship of him who stands by you in the storm; swarms of insects will surround you in sunshine.

When the curious or impertinent would pick the lock of the heart, put the key of reserve in the inside.

Hear no ill of a friend, nor speak any of an enemy; believe not all you hear, and appear what you are.

Money will be a blessing or a curse, according to the discretion or indiscretion of its possessor.

True religion cheers adversity, tempers prosperity, and animates us with hope in the hour of death.

THE DYING NEVER WEEP.—It is a striking fact—the dying never weep!—The circle of sobbing, agonized hearts around, produces not one tear. Is it that he is insensible and stiff already in the chill of dissolution? That cannot be; for he asks for his father's hand as if to gain strength in the mortal struggle, and leans on the breast of mother, brother, or sister, with still conscious affection; and just before expiring, at eve, after a long day's converse with the Angel of Summer he says to his oldest brother—last audible "good night" of earth—"Kiss me, kiss me!" It must be because the dying have reached a point too deep for our earthly crying and weeping. They are face to face with higher and holier beings, with the Father in Heaven and his angel throng led on by the Son himself; and what are griefs of a mourning, tears of a dying farewell—be it that they are shed by the dearest on earth—in that vision bright of immortal life and everlasting reunion!—Christian Inquirer.

A WHITLOW.—For the information of those afflicted with these troublesome and painful sores, we publish the following, which seems reliable:

A SURE REMEDY FOR A FELON.—It is said by somebody, who pretends to know all about it, that the following is a sure remedy for the felon:

"Take a pint of common soft soap, and stir it in the air-slacked lime till it is of the consisteney of glazier's putty. Make a leather thimble, fill it with this composition, and insert the finger therein, and change the composition once in twenty minutes and a cure is certain."

We happen to know that the above is a certain remedy, and recommend it to any one who may be troubled with that disagreeable ailment.—Buffalo Advocate.

The Crops of Texas Destroyed by Frost.—The following extracts of letters just received will show that the frosts on the nights of the 21st and 22d April have been most disastrous to the corn and cotton crops all over the country. We have no time to comment on this painful intelligence. The loss is doubtless amounted to millions of dollars in our own State, and has probably extended all over the South. We have no time to give in full all the letters we have received on this subject. The prospects are gloomy indeed.—Prof. Forshey says the corn, two feet high, and the cotton, are entirely killed on all the low grounds in the Colorado country. The thermometer was down to 32 degrees.

☞ MR. F. H. GOODWIN, is our authorized Agent, to receive and receipt, for subscriptions to the Republican, contract and receipt for advertising, &c.

Our friends and patrons will confer a favor upon us, which will be gratefully appreciated, by affording him every facility in their power, in the transaction of business.

☞ We are authorized to announce MAJ. SPARTAN ALLEN, as a candidate for Sheriff of Calhoun County.

☞ We are authorized to announce ABRAM S. BURNS, as a candidate for Representative of Calhoun County in the next Legislature.

The War Commenced.

We give in to day's paper copious extracts from the telegraphic intelligence of the progress of the war in Europe: and as anticipated in our last, it will be seen, that hostilities have actually commenced. All conjectures as to the probable effects of this war upon the various interests of this country, must of necessity be very uncertain: this will probably depend greatly upon the length of its continuance.

The principal cause of this war, about which there is little known and a good deal of enquiry, may be briefly stated as follows: Austria has heretofore made treaties with several of the Italian States, which give her the right to occupy their territory & intervene to put down any popular uprising of the people in favor of liberty. Under these treaties Austria has established a most odious & oppressive military despotism, under which the Italian States have become restive, and appealed to other nations of Europe for aid. France demands an abrogation of these treaties, and some concession by Austria to the liberal spirit—not as supposed, because she loves liberty any more than Austria, but wishes to curtail her power & humble her as a rival, and fears a general uprising of the masses in Italy which may spread to other nations, and endanger all the despotisms of Europe.—So far as Italy is concerned, it may be only a choice of despotic masters, but it cannot make things worse for her, and may make them much better.

R. S. Norton & Son.

The advertisement of these enterprising Merchants of Rome, Ga. has been received, but owing to the pressure upon our column, and the amount of matter previously received and in type, we are compelled to defer it a few days. It shall receive due attention next week.

☞ We learn that TISDALE S. LOGAN, was elected Judge of Probate of St. Clair County, on the first Monday of this month.

☞ While in Rome, a few days ago, we stepped into the Store of SLOAN, ALLMAN & CO., where we found the finest assortment of Goods we have seen in many a day. Their Store House is fitted up in the most tasty manner imaginable, and filled from top to bottom with the latest styles and most fashionable Staple & Fancy Goods.

Our old friend, T. Hooper, (one of the firm,) "showed us 'round," and at every turn we were greeted by huge piles of Merchandize of every description, from the finest Dress Goods, down to a bunch of Factory Thread.

We would advise all our friends who go to Rome to buy their Goods, to call on Messrs. Sloan, Allman & Co. before purchasing elsewhere, as we are confident that this firm will make it to the interest of all who want Goods, to buy of them. Orders sent to these gentlemen, will meet with prompt attention. Again we say, call on them & we guarantee you good bargains.

☞ We have received the proceedings of a Public Meeting, held by the citizens of Cedar Bluff, Cherokee Co., on the 9th inst. on the subject of the reduction of mail service on the line from Chattanooga to Jacksonville.

We will give these proceedings a place in our next. In the mean time, we are much gratified to learn, that the Department has wisely reconsidered the matter, and restored daily service on this important line.

☞ We renew our call of attention to the advertisement of Mr. A. R. Harper. He has the largest stock of Hardware ever before brought to Rome, comprising every article found in a wholesale Hardware House.

His stock of Reapers and Wheat Fans, and in fact all kinds of Agricultural Implements is unequalled; and as the wheat crop is just coming in, this is the time to buy your Reapers and Threshers. He proposes to sell on better terms than any house in the city.

☞ We are compelled to postpone several articles from our poetical friends, until next week. We tender our thanks for their favors, and assurances of regret at the delay.

Fort & Hargrove, Rome, Ga.

These gentlemen have a very large and varied assortment of Groceries, at their Store on Broad Street.

Our friends in this and other border counties of Alabama, who have business in Rome will find it to their interest to give them a call. They will find them very correct and accommodating gentlemen, ever ready to furnish them with the very best of articles upon the most reasonable terms. We hope they will be liberally patronized from this section of country.

See advertisement in another column.

Steam Engine Works.

Messrs. Noble Bros. of Rome, Ga. have their Foundry and Engine Works in good order and complete operation; and are putting up Engines of all sizes. We saw one of their Engines at work the other day, and in our opinion it cannot be excelled, either in point of workmanship or ease of motion, by any Engine made at the North. These gentlemen are very enterprising and deserve patronage. The advantages accruing from having a manufactory of this kind in our midst, besides the great saving of freight on such heavy articles, are many and obvious; and we trust that those who want work in their line will patronise them liberally.

CUBAN FILLIBUSTERS.—The late demonstration of fillibusters against Cuba, about which there has been so many misterious hints in the papers of late, has turned out more ridiculous and insane than any that has preceded it.—About 35 in number, attempted to make landing from the schooner Africa, Capt. Button, but failing to do so, the vessel continued her voyage to Hayte, where the captain landed them in a destitute condition, not even able to get away; and at last accounts Gen. Concha had sent a war steamer to demand their persons, arms, munitions, &c. They may probably be taken to Havanna, placed against a wall and shot, for the special amusement of the ancient Spanish families of that city. Hereafter we shall take about as much interest in the rumored revolutions in Cuba as we do in the continual stream of "Late and important news from Mexico."

The recent election for Probate Judge of Madison County, seems to have been a very closely contested one. The papers report Scruggs 1114 & Hammond, (former Judge) 1101.

There was said to be more excitement in this election than any other ever held in the county.

Sad Accident.—We are informed that a lady was killed instantly, while washing some 8 miles east of White Plains by the falling of a tree, on Saturday last. Name not recollected by our informant.

MR. EDITOR: We think Moses Lee, Esq., an honest & safe Southern Rights Democrat. The able manner in which he has discharged the duties of Justice of the Peace, proves to us that he would make a good and faithful Legislator; and he will be liberally supported as a farmer, if he will consent to have his name used as a candidate. We ask the use of his name.

MANY VOTERS.

To the Candidates for Senate & Representative of Calhoun County.

We the voters of said County desire each of you to answer the following plain questions, in a plain and frank manner, in the Jacksonville Republican and from the stump—viz:

Are you, or are you not in favor of an ad valorem system of Taxation; that is, all taxable property given in at its real value.

Are you in favor of an alteration in the State Constitution, so as to make the counties smaller?

Are you in favor of the 3 per cent. fund being applied to the completion of the Ala. & Tenn. R. R. Road?

COOSA & TALAPOOSA.

For the Republican.

MR. EDITOR:—When I commence an article for the Press I am at a loss how to begin, or what to write, but before I get through I am as equally put to it how to close.

To commence then about the weather. Spring has come at last, in the lap of Summer, thanks to the clerk of the weather, and the beautiful flowers and early fruits, which were delayed, now smile upon and tempt us at every step. We can scarcely keep from trespassing upon some of our friends' fine strawberry beds, but the slight distinction of meum and tuum and delicacy forbid.

Those pelting storms which have flooded us for months past have ceased, and the bright lamp of day again asserts his sway. He has dissolved those perpetual fogs which have lowered about our mountain tops for many days gone by. He has dried up the roads for the accommodation of travelers and thanks to his benign influence, we pedestrians can now resume our walks undisturbed.

All hail glorious month of May, with all thy fruits and flowers. I would celebrate thy return in verse, but "my muse plucks me by the ear," quoth my favorite Heathen bard, and your correspondent must tell his simple story in prose. Let us go forth towards night fall, when the hurry and bustle of the day are over, let us take this path that leads up to the foot of the mountain.—Now turn your face to the west, and behold what nature hath done for this blessed land of the South. I wish I had MEEK's poems by me, I would give you a quotation worth noting, but see, oh see, how beautifully the sun sinks down behind the beautiful green clad mountain, and leaves a stream of golden light behind him, which diffuses itself all over the western horizon, and forms imaginary myriads of "golden boats in a sunny sea." Such a soft tint of vermilion and roseate colors were never blended more beautifully in Italian skies, than they are around Jacksonville. 'Tis sweet then to linger upon the brow of the mountain, or close beside some gurgling brook, that ripples away so joyously. It is at such times that I delight to leave the busy crowd and take some friend and steal away, fit time for reflection and meditation.

"A feeling of longing and sadness,
Which is not akin to pain,
It resembles sorrow only,
As the mist resembles the rain.

And the night shall be filled with music,
And the cares that infest the day,
Shall fold their tents like the Arabs
And as silent steal away."

Mr. Editor, please allow me to inform your readers at a distance that this is one of the most romantic, mountain retreats that your correspondent has seen for many years. It only lacks the whistle of the Locomotive to make it a place indeed.

The mountains are beautiful. They are undulating, precipitous, gently rising one above another, until they die away in the distance, presenting a contrast of a living green sheet of tree tops, not unlike "the dark deep blue ocean" in a storm. To the pleasure seeker, I would say come to Jacksonville and see these beautiful sights. If you love lime water, we have a spring of the living carbonate gushing from the rugged rock, affording water enough to slake the thirst of the army of Waterloo.—None of your silently moving waters either, but struggling with a rappid whirl to gain the flowery meads below, where it forms a large creek.

Then roll on ye whistling cars' I care not how soon ye may come from below. I want to see all the stalwart sons of South Alabama up here in these mountain plains. In the language of the Highlanders of Scotland to Englands soverign, we will say, welcome to your Highland Glens.

More hereafter,
ZENO.

The Rebellion in British India—A Remarkable Leader.

The Bombay correspondent of the N. Y. Herald, of the date of January 10, says that at the present time there are at least two hundred thousand of the Sepoy rebels in the field against the British Government. The mutiny is yet very far from being subdued. Retreating to their almost inaccessible fortresses and jungles, the Sepoy rebels are constantly sallying out and committing forays upon the cities and towns in the prairies. The great rebel leader, Nena Sahib, and his lieutenants, are yet at large to encourage the spirit of disaffection and mutiny, and until they are taken and hanged, there can be no peace or security to British India. Of one of Nena's lieutenants the Herold's correspondent thus speaks:

"Decidedly the most singular character that has been brought forth by the Indian mutiny is Tantia Topee.—About the time of the fall of Ihansi, Tantia seems to have made his appearance—at least at this time he first began to be formidable. Suddenly appearing at the head of some twenty-five thousand troops, he has now for nearly a year kept the English forces in unceasing motion. Brigade after brigade, battalion after battalion, and regiment after regiment, have been sent against him, till the columns in pursuit outnumbered him by tens of thousands, and his army has dwindled from the number above-mentioned to a mere handful. He has been met and defeated again and again; hardly a week passes but that some new account is furnished us of a fight with Tantia; but always the wily fox escapes, and the next day comes down on some unprotected village, plunders it, remounts his troops and away he flies like a meteor, to be again met and defeated, and again slip through the fingers of the pursuers.—At least a dozen times we have been told lately that at last Tintia was surrounded, no hope left, &c. The next day would find him out-leading all his pursuers some sixty or seventy miles. I do not exaggerate; sixty or seventy miles is no uncommon march for this Maharatta Will-o'-the-Wisp. He reminds me more of our own Indian hero, King Phillip, than any other personage which has appeared upon the stage since the days of scalps and tomahaws. Some of our novelists, hard up for a subject, would find a grand one in him—for, let me tell you, no one knows him, no one can give the least clue as to his connections—he is wholy shrouded in mystery, and by some believed to be but a mythical representative of the Nena himself. How he has managed to escape the numerous traps laid for him I cannot conceive; he has lost all but about one thousand men, and yet keeps at least forty thousand English troops at the top of their speed, from day to day, week to week, month to month, and I might almost add year to year.

The Rivers.

The Delta says:

The Mississippi still continues to roll its turbid flood toward the Gulf in increasing volume, and on yesterday the water was four inches above the highest known watermark. From the condition of the levees between Kennerville and this place the city is in momentary danger of an overflow, and as the river still continues to rise, nothing but the most untiring diligence and work can prevent such a disaster from taking place.

The Picayune says:

NEARLY A CREVASSE.—On Friday afternoon the alarm was given far and near among the plantations in the neighborhood of the English Turn, that a crevasse was likely to take place at Morgan's plantation. Some sixty feet of the inner portion of a long and large new levee fell over into the road, and the other portion soon became something like very stiff mud. Several hundred hands were speedily at work, putting up a new levee. But this again fell off the next day; but as the force of laborers was speedily increased, an entire new embankment, braced with planks and stout lumber, was put up so as to protect the whole of the new levee. At last accounts, there was every prospect of the river being completely banked out.

And the Bullettin says:

The Bonnet Carre Crevasse And The Jackson RailRoad.—The conductor on the last night train on the Jackson Railroad, reports that a portion of the track in the vicinity of the crevasse opposite Bonnet Carre is under water. It is thought that trains on this road will be compelled to stop running by to morrow, when passengers and freight will be carried to Manchac by steamboat.

THE HON. EDWARD EVERETT & LOTERIES. In his eloquent discourse on the career and character of Thomas Downes, the Hon. Edward Everett mentions the interesting fact that the subject of his eulogy drew a prize in a London lottery which enabled him to lay the foundation of his fortunes, or which promoted them in an extraordinary degree. In the onslaught upon lotteries, it is well to note this fact; and particularly, to remind our readers that, by sending $10, $5, 2½, to Wood, Eddy & Co., Wilmington, Delaware, or Augusta, Georgia, they will receive in return a ticket in their legalised lottery which if successful, will win the prize of $50,000, or its proportion.

Something Worth Knowing.—One day last week, while purchasing a lot of dried fruit, we discovered small pieces of sassafras bark mixed amongst it and upon inquiry, were informed that it was a preventive against the worm. It is (say said that dried fruit put away with a little bark, a handful to the bushel,) will save for years unmolested by those troublesome little insects which destroy hundreds of bushels in a single season. The remedy is cheap and simple, and we venture to say a good one.' Lexington, (S C) Flag.

Austria was expected to cross the Ticino at any moment, although the report prevailed that she had agreed to another proposed mediation.

Great warlike activity prevailed throughout France. The legislature met at Paris on the 26th April, to receive the government's statement.

The Prench contingent force for the year will be raised to 140,000 men.

It is reported that the crossing of the Ticino is not officially confirmed.

No actual engagements have yet taken place, although the French are pouring into Piedmont.

Tuscany has joined France and Sardinia.

The Russian-French alliance is denied, but the London Times published the provision of the treaty, which caused a great panic on the London Exchange. Consols at one time declined to 88, causing about forty failures among stock operators.

Additional by the Steamship Adelaide.

ST. JOHNS N. B., May 10.—In addition to the news telegraphed last night, we send you the following:

A telegram from Paris, dated on Saturday, 30th April, says:

"The Austrian troops have crossed the Ticino and have commenced hostilities. This is official and reliable."

It was announced that Austria had issued a manifesto, which was tantamount to a declartion of war, and it had been previously asserted that she had advanced her posts, and crossed into Sardinia, and that the main body would do so on the 29th of April.

The King of Sardinia had gone to join his army at Alessandria.

The Tuscan army had called on the Grand Duke to join France in Piedmont and declare war against Austria. The Grand Duke declined and fled.

Tuscany had declared in favor of a military dictatorship.

The latest intelligence from France reports that the greatest activity in military and naval preparations continue throughout the empire.

Eighty thousand French troops were expected to be in Italy by the 30th April.

It was reported that Denmark and France had concluded an offensive and defensive treaty.

The Paris Bourse had been greatly excited, but less so than the London exchange.

Warlike preparations are in progress throughout England, and great arsenal depot of England.

Several English steamers have been chartered to convey troops and munitions of war to the Mediterranean.

War premiums were generally demanded at Lloyd's. The Parliamentary elections were progressing quietly.

The panic at London has been very great. Consol have fluctuated excessively.

The ship Pomona, from Liverpool for New York, was wrecked off Wexford on the 17th April, with four hundred persons on board. The loss of life is unknown.

Super intendent Public Pring.

Washington May 10.—Mr. John Heart formerly one of the publishers of the Chaleston Mercury, has been appointed Superintendent of Public Printing, in the place of Mr Bowman, of the Washington Union.

Arrival of the Steamship Persia.

NEW YORK, May 11.—The steamship Persia arrived at noon to-day. She left Liverpool several hours before the Adelaide sailed from Galway.

The details of the news brought by this arrival are interesting. London papers of the 30th April are divided in their opinions regarding the crossing of the Ticino; but the Times reiterates its former statment, saying that the advanced post of the Austrian army had crossed the river on the 29th, and had taken position in the enemy's territory. The main army crossed on the 29th.

Austria appears determined to strike a blow before the French reach the field of hostilities.

The Post says that there was some probability of mediation, as Napoleon was seriously considering England's proposition to that effect.

Alluding to the treaty between France and Russia, the Times says that if these powers attack Austria on German soil, it behooves England to consider whether it is better to defend herself on the continent or at her own homestead, as the existence of the great Germanic powers are necessary to her safety. Every precaution has been taken to prevent the Austrians from reaching Turin. The country was overflowed, and the roads rendered impracticable.

The report that Tuscany had joined the allies is confirmed; her army consists of fifteen thousand men.

The English channel fleet has been ordered to return from the Mediteranean.

It is stated that Russia and France have been procuring large supplies of charts and surveys of the English coasts and the Mediterranean stations.

It is surmised that Spain will join the allies, as she is considerably augmenting her naval force with new ships and gunboats and has ordered large numbers of English charts.

The French army of the Alps have met with serious obstructions at Mount Cenis. Four thousand men are employed in clearing the roads of snow.

France was taken by surprise at the rapidity of the movements of the Austrians. France thought that the war would be commenced leisurely; and her troops are arriving at Genoa badly provided for an immediate campaign.

The Emperor has received intelligence of an outbreak in Algeria, which will probably require a return of the troops lately sent to Itly.

A system of police, similar to that of Napoleon I., is about to be instituted in Paris.

Over fifty stock brokers have failed in London, in consequance of the panic.

A very important & large operator in the Liverpool Exchange, named Roberts has been declared a defaulter to the amount of between three and five hundred thousand pounds sterling.

Many Facts in Small Compass.

The number of languages spoken is 4,064 The number of men is about equal to the number of women. The average of life is 33 years. One quarter die before the age of 7. One-half before the age of 17. To every 1,000 persons 1 only reaches to 100 years.—To every 100 only 6 reach 75 years; and not more than 1 in 500 will reach 80 years. There are now on earth 1,000,000,000 of inhabitants. Of these 33,333,333 die every year; 91,824 die every day; 7,780 every hour; and 60 per minute, or 1 every second. These losses are about balanced by an equal number of births. The married are longer lived than the single; and above all those who observe a sober and industrious conduct. Tall men live longer than short ones. Women have more chances of life previous to the age of fifty years than men, but fewer after. The number of marriages are in proportion of 76 to 100. Marriages are more frequent after the equinoxes, that is, during the months of June and December. Those born in spring are generally more robust than others.—Births and deaths are more frequent by night than by day. Number of men capable of bearing arms is one fourth of the population.

TRY IT.—A cheap and handy remedy for diarrhea is simply to take a tumbler of cold water and thicken it with wheat flour to the consistency of cream, and then drink it This is to be repeated several times during the day, or often as you are thirsty; and it is not very likely that you will need it on the second day.

Closing Scenes of the Sickles Trial—Great Excitement.

The retiring of the Jury at ten minutes before two, was the signal for throwing off the restraint which had, up to this time, weighed upon every one in the Court. Lawyers, officers, spectators and all, seemed to think themselves at liberty to talk as much as they pleased, and to give vent to their feelings and impressions. All got to their feet and indulged in conversation. Many crowded round the dock to cheer and support Mr. Sickles in this "the pregnant moment of his fate." Among those who gathered around Mr. Sickles, was an estimable clergyman of this city, Rev. Dr. Sunderland, of the Fourth Presbyterian Church, who, taking Mr. Sickles by the hand, said: "Sir: I come to express to you my heartfelt sympathy, and to say that if the voice of the people of this city could speak at this moment, your acquittal would be instantaneous. In case, however, an adverse verdict should be rendered, be assured that you have hearts around you, and mine not the least warm of them, to sustain you in your affliction.

Mr. Sickles was much moved by this incident, and expressed his thanks as well as his emotion would permit him.

As time wore on, the noise and confusion grew greater, and the Judge, in a good natured manner, remarked that although under the present circumstances he could not expect the audience to keep silence, he hoped there would be a slight regard for the place where they were.

As the minutes grew into quarters and half hours, there was some expression of disappointment on the part of many, who thought that the jury should not have retired at all, much less spend any time in consultation.

The clock struck three, and before the sound had passed away, there was a movement at the door by which the jury had entered, indicative of their being on the point of returning to the court room.

THE JURY RETURN—VERDICT, NOT GUILTY.

The door is opened. The Deputy Marshal calls out to make room for the jury. In they come, one by one, and proceed to take their seats in the box. There is a general movement in the crowded court room to get a look at their faces. All restraint is forgotten—benches and forms and tables are mounted by the most excited or more venturesome.

"Here they come." is heard hurriedly spoken on all sides.

Then there is a succession of cries of "Down in front!" "Get off the benches!" "Sit down!" "Silence in court!" "Order! order!"

But it seemed impossible to restore order till the Judge directed the Clerk to call the names of the jury.

The uproar instantly subsided, and the Clerk called the jurors and they severally responded, one of the officers calling out their number. When the twelfth name was called and responded to, a pin might have been heard to drop in the suddenly stilled crowd.

The jury all standing—

The Clerk said—Daniel E. Sickles stand up and look to the jury.

Mr. Sickles stood up.

The Clerk—How say you, gentlemen, have you agreed to your verdict?

Mr. Arnold—we have.

The Clerk—How say you, do you find the prisoner at the bar Guilty or Not Guilty?

Mr Arnold—Not Guilty!

THE CONCLUDING SCENES.

As these words fell from the lips of the foreman, there was one loud, wild, thrilling, tumultous huzza sent up by the spectators. Cheer after cheer was responded to in the court room, and was taken up by the multitude on the out side and repeated. Hats and handkerchiefs were waved, and there was one general rush towards the dock.

In the midst of the uproar the stentorian voice of Mr. Stanton was heard addressing the court in these words: "I move that Mr. Sickles be discharged from custody."

Marshal Selden—Come to order, gentlemen, come to order! This is a place where there should be no noise.

No one paid any attention to the old Marshal.

Mr. Stanton—(boiling over with excitement)—In the name of Mr. Sickles and of his counsel, I desire to return thanks to the jury.

Judge Crawford (who appeared to be the only person in the Court not excited)—Mr. Stanton, wait till the verdict is recorded.

Mr. Stanton—Of course, your Honor—you must excuse excitement on this occasion.

The Clerk to the jury—Your record is, gentlemen, that you find Daniel E. Sickles not guilty?

The jury nodded affirmatively.

The Clerk—And so say you all?

Another affirmative nod from the jury.

Mr. Stanton—I now move that Mr. Sickles be discharged from custody.

Judge Crawford—The Court so orders it.

Mr. Stanton (turning round)—Now go it.

The Judge—No noise.

The prohibition was unheeded.

Mr. Sickles, amid the renewed cheers of the audience, was taken out of the dock by Capt. Wiley and Mr. Bregy. The former, who is one of Mr. Sickles's most devoted friends, kissed him the moment of his deliverance, and held fast by him as they tried to make their way to the door. It was slow work—for congratulations, earnest, loud, and frankly expressed, saluted Mr. Sickles at all points. Though strong emotion was exhibited in the swollen veins of his temples, his eye was calm & steady, and the effort which he manifestly made to retain calmness and composure was successful. His expression betrayed no feeling of joy, but was rather that of a man who felt conscious that he had run no risk, and that the trial through which he had passed could have had no other result. It was some minutes before he reached the jury box, which lay on his road to the door. The jury evinced a desire to congratulate him, and he stepped over the forums to meet their salutations, which were heartily tendered.

The counsel for the defence also exchanged compliments and congratulations with the jurors.

Finally, by dint of much crushing and great exertion, a passage to the door was effected. So soon as he was recognized from the outside, the cheers were again taken up. The news ran like wildfire through the city, and from all sides crowds were hurrying up to the same point. The excitement was as intense as it was instantaneous.

A PICTURE OF THE MISSISSIPPI FLOOD.—The Memphis Appeal has the following in regard to the flood in the Mississippi:

The sights that met our eyes at intervals were of the most painful description.—Plantations and villages were everywherer overflowed, and wet and mould, the effects of the overflow, were in and about all the houses. The houses themselves were either in or over the water; the tenants prisoners within, the skiff or dugout being the only 'vehicle' for going abroad. Houses less elevated were deserted, and the universal flood was carrying desolation, decay, and, too probably, disease into every apartment. In many instances flatboats were moored beside such habitations, two-thirds of which were occupied by horses, hogs, cows and chickens, a portion of the remainder was roofed over, and there lived the negroes, and there the feed and provisions brought down by passing boats was preserved. Every boat is hailed with earnest anxiety for news of the state of the river above.

Many of the citizens show signs of great depression. They bore up bravely against the calamitous flood of last summer, but a second infliction of the same kind, following so closely on the heels of the first, has proved too much for their courage, and heartrending complaints are made of difficulty and privation. This is, however, by no means universally the case. There are brave hearts that bear their misfortunes cheerfully. We heard of one of the "drowned out" who congratulated himself, that if meat and "chicken fixens" were scarce, he could keep lent like a bishop, having nothing to do when he wanted a breakfast but to let down a rail and permit a catfish to enter.

"At Helena the levee has successfully kept the place from overflow. Napoleon is also tolerably well protected; the levees along both the Mississippi and the Arkansas rivers are in good condition, the seepage water, however, fills the low grounds in the rear of the place. The graveyard, more extensively tenanted than the city itself, lies along the banks of the Arkansas, and between the river and the levee; the consequence is the abodes of the dead lie beneath the flood, and the gravestones and monuments peep above the flowing waters. At Lake Providence the water is excluded, but the whole place looks moist and muddy. At Vicksburg we did not find, as was recently announced in a western paper that 'the whole city was swamped by the rushing tide of the Mississippi;' the fine old hills on which the city stands still raise their heads proudly beyond the 'winding wave and mirror their image in the glassy tide.' So high have the waters risen, however, even in this elevated spot, that the boats 'cheek by jowl' with the house, some of the awnings of which they have knocked down."

Signs of the Times.

It is unusual for public men of the South, in the hight of their fame and influence, to persist in retiring from service. But now, this singular spectacle is shown in several instances. Mr. Stephens, of Georgia, peremptorily withdraws. There is a smash up coming, he is said to have remarked, and it is time to get off the train. George W. Jones, of Tennessee, takes a similar course. The same is true of Mr. Dowdell, of Alabama. Not least, Mr. Orr, of South Carolina, late Speaker of the House, has likewise refused a re-election, and gone into voluntary retirement. We have before mentioned the opinion of Douglas, as to coming events, and the following, from the Washington correspondent of the New York Express, shows that Mr. Orr has just the same presentiment.

After the adjournment of the last Congress, the Speaker, Mr. Orr, of South Carolina, was requested by a friend to give him his views on the political future. Mr. Orr replied, without hesitation—"In my opinion, the Opposition will organize the next House of Representatives, and, if they select a conservative, national candidate, will also elect the next President.

WAVERLEY NOVELS FOR THE MILLION.—That enterprising firm of publishers, T. B. Peterson & Brothers, Philadelphia, has just begun an under taking, which cannot fail to be beneficial to the whole reading community. We allude to the edition of Sir Walter Scott's novels, now in the course of publication by them, and which is to be completed in twenty-six volumes, at twenty-five cents a piece, or five dollars for the whole. These volumes are printed in double octavo, and each will contain about one hundred and twenty-five pages. The entire sett of twenty six volumes will be mailed, free of postage, to any person remitting five dollars to the publishers. This is an opportunity, never before had, for obtaining the Waverly Novels entire, at a price within the means of everybody: for it is the cheapest edition ever published, and for those who remit five dollars, and thus subscribe for the series, secure each volume for less than twenty cents. The price of the Edinburgh editio, from which this edition is reprinted, is seventy-two dollars. Very properly have Peterson & Brothers called this the "Edition for the Million," for they ought to get a million of subscribers to it, in this reading nation, and doubtless will. KENILWORTH, forming the fourth volume of their series of the Waverley Novels is published this day

Dreadful Homicide.

Stephen Petty killed his mother-in-law Mrs. Mary Aikens, a defenceless old lady aged some eighty years, in the eastern part of this county on Sunday last. He stabbed her with a pocket knife in some five or six places killing her almost instantly. Petty has been a preacher, and heretofore regarded as a peaceable and orderly citizen by all who knew him, but a demoniacal thirst for inoncent blood seems to have suddenly taken possession of him on the particulars which are supposed to have prompted him to the commission of the awful and bloody deed but as he has been lodged in jail to await a judicial investigation, we forbear stating anything that might forestall public opinion, or wound the feelings of his unfortunate family, further than to say that those who have been most, intimate with him for the past few months consider him deranged. The unparalleled atrocity of the deed and the peculiar circumstances surrounding it, would seem to indicate a mind diseased.

Petty at first refused to be arrested, and with gun in hand, as we are informed threatened to shoot any man who should attempt it, but through the well directed efforts of Mr. J. P. Whorton and others he was finally overpowered and brought to their place.—Cherokee Argus.

A Misfortune Remedied.

We were told the other day an amusing little incident, which, if true, is very good indeed; and we do not see any reason to deny its truth, particularly as our informant related it as a fact within his knowledge. A gentleman in the employ of a Commercial House in New York city, in his annual visit to the South, stopped at Savannah. The steamer arrived at Savannah on Wednesday, too late for the New Orleans cars, and the stranger in strolling through the streets of the city hit upon the splendid rooms of the Georgia State Lottery, McKINNEY & CO., Managers, in the new Masonic Building, Bull street. He says to our informant, that he was impressed to purchase a ticket. Did so, and gave directions to send the drawing to the St. Charles Hotel, N. O. The night but one after his arrival in the Crescent City "in seeing the sights" our verdant friend was robbed of every dollar he had—about $900. The robbery was not discovered until he got home to his room. He says that it was an awful remnant of a night to him—the very longest he ever experienced. Sleep was banished from his eyes. His heart filled with remorse and shame; and want was his spectre companion—no hope was left to him—at last morning came, and with it chill despair. He had but one friendly hope—The 'Ticket'—he gazed upon it and shaking his head and soliloquizing said, "how the sinking heart clings to the slightest thread!" The door opened, and the mail boy from the office stood before him. He soon found that he had drawn a prize of a Thousand Dollars in the Georgia State Lottery. We are told that he says he will look better to himself after this

A SHOCKING AFFAIR.—A gentleman from Washington county, has informed the Vicksburg Southren of one of the most shocking affairs, including fratricide and suicide, that has ever come to our knowledge. It appears that two brothers named William and Robert Buford, have been residing near Bogue Phaliah in Washington county, for some time past. The elder William Buford, had a very prety wife, with whom the younger brother Robert, became madly infatuated. A criminal intercourse between the two had been carried on some time, but growing weary of the restraint imposed by the presence of the injured husband, the younger brother determined to add to his other crime the damning one of fratricide. On Wednesday evening of last week the outraged husband and brother was murdered, and on the Sunday following Robert Buford, the double murderer, committed suicide by taking strychnine. The misguided wife of the murdered man, with two children, are left the sole memorials of this chapter of horrors.

The Murder Epidemic.—At South Wellfleet, Massachusetts, on Monday, Samuel Fish shot Mr. Evan S. Ward, his father in-law. Fish then tried to shoot himself, but the gun missed fire. The murderer first alarmed the family by throwing bricks through the windows, when Mr. Ward and his wife got out of bed lighted a lamp, and looked out to find the cause of such strange proceedings. Soon after the fatal shot was fired through the window. Fish has been arrested and confessed the commission of the deed. On the same day the town of Sand Lake, about fourteen miles from Troy, N. Y., an old man, named John Belding, beat out his daughter Christian,s brains with a hammer. He was laboring under a fit of insanity, and imagined that his daughter was possessed of a devil. The murdered girl was about nineteen years of age,

Holloway's Pills.—When the stomach is in an irritable condition the whole system sympathizes. Hence sick headache, nervousness, and incapacity for mental or physical exertion. There are few who have not experienced these unpleasant effects of indigestion, more trying sometimes than serious illness. Now we take it upon ourselves to say, not from report, but from actual experience, that Holloway's Pills are a positive and immediate remedy for all such depressing and annoying disorders. They set the stomach right at once, and the controlling organ of the system being regulated and put in order, the return of bodily and mental health is a necessary consequence.

A VOICE FROM VIRGINIA.

CABIN POINT, Surry Co., Va.

Dr. Seth S. Hance:—I was in Baltimore in April, 1854, and from a paper I received of yours was induced to buy a box of your Pills, recommended as a soverign cure for the Epileptic Fits. At that time one of my servants had been afflicted with fits about twelve years. When reaching home, I commenced with the pills according to directions. I do not think she has had one since. My wife, though, is somewhat induced to believe she may have had one only. Enclosed you will find five dollars, for which you will please forward me two boxes. I suppose you can forward them by mail. Your compliance will oblige me. Yours respecrfully.

M. P. SLEDGE.

Dr. Hance's Epileptic Pills are also a sovereign remedy for every modification of nervous diseases. The nervous sufferer, whether tormented by the acute, physical agony of neuralgia, ticdoloreux, or ordinary headache, afflicted with vague terrors, weakened by periodical fits, threatened with paralysis, borne down and dispirited by that terrible lassitude which proceeds from a lack of nervous energy, or experiencing any other pain or disability arising from the unnatural condition of the wonderful machinery which connects every member with the source of sensation, motion and thought—derives immediatiate benefit from the use of those pills, which at once calms, invigorates, and regulates the shattered nervous organization.

OBITUARY.

Many hearts will be saddened by the announcement that Mrs. ANN, wife of Major B. C. Wyly of this place is no more. She was called to her heavenly inheritance on the 13th inst., having just entered upon the 42nd year of her earthly pilgrimage.

Distinguished for fine social feelings, genuine sympathy, kindness of heart and affability of manner in the various relations of life, she drew to herself the merited esteem and warm affection of a wide circle of friends—she has left a devoted husband, one son, one sister (now in N. C.) with other relatives to mourn her absence; but they are not left without strong consolation.

She openly acknowledged her Saviour by uniting with the Presbyterian church of Jacksonville Ala. in 1844, since which time, her conversation has ever been that of an humble, consistent christian. She suffered long under the hand of a wasting disease. During the last three months while confined mostly to her bed, she seemed to advance rapidly in spirituality of mind and deadness to the world. She distrusted herself, spoke of her own unworthiness, but rested calmly upon the merits of Christ.

In the midst of her sorest trials, she enjoyed the presence of her Saviour—eternal things came before her in their excellency and glory, and faith, growing stronger inspired her with christian fortitude, and calm resignation to the will of God. She frequently said, "all is well" "no cloud—no doubt, I am waiting the Lord's time to call me away."

Having commended her family to God, and expressed an earnest desire to meet them all in heaven, she fell asleep. She proved victorious in death & now she lives;—lives in reality—lives where Christ lives and beholds his glory.

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: Yea saith the spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them."

THE LIVER
INVIGORATOR!
PREPARED BY DR. SANFORD.
COMPOUNDED entirely from GUMS,
IS ONE OF THE BEST PURGATIVE and Liver Medicines now before the public, that acts as a Cathartic. It is not only a Cathartic, but a Liver remedy, acting first on the Liver to eject its morbid matter, then on the stomach and bowels to carry off that matter, thus accomplishing two purposes effectually, without any of the painful feelings experienced in the operations of most Cathartics. It strengthens the system at the same time that it purges it; and when taken daily in moderate doses, will strengthen and build it up with unusual rapidity.
SANFORD'S LIVER INVIGORATOR
The Liver is one of the principal regulators of the human body; and when it performs its functions well, the powers of the system are fully developed. The stomach is almost entirely dependent on the healthy action of the Liver for the proper performance of its functions; when the stomach is at fault, the bowels are at fault, and the whole system suffers in consequence of one organ—the Liver—having ceased to do its duty. For the disease of that organ, one of the proprietors has made it his study, in a practice of more than twenty years, to find some remedy wherewith to counteract the many derangements to which it is liable.
To prove that this remedy is at last found, any person troubled with Liver Complaint, in any of its forms, has but to try a bottle, and conviction is certain.
These Gums remove all morbid or bad matter from the system, supplying in their place a healthy flow of bile, invigorating the stomach, causing food to digest well, purifying the blood, giving tone and health to the whole machinery removing the cause of the disease —effecting a radical cure.
Billious attacks are cured, and what is better, prevented by the occasional use of the LIVER INVIGORATOR.
One dose after eating is sufficient to relieve the stomach & prevent the food from rising & souring.
Only one dose taken at night, loosens the bowels gently, and cures Costiveness.
One dose taken after each meal will cure Dyspepsia.
☞ One dose of two teaspoonfuls will always relieve Sick Headache.
One bottle taken for female obstruction removes the cause of the disease, and makes a perfect cure.
Only one dose immediately relieves Cholic, while one dose often repeated is a sure cure for Cholera Morbus, and a preventive of Cholera
☞ Only one bottle is needed to throw out of the system the effects of medicine after a long sickness.
☞ One bottle taken for Jaundice removes all sallowness or unnatural color from the skin.
One dose taken a short time before eating gives vigor to the appetite, and makes food digest well.
One dose often repeated cures Chronic Diarrhœa in its worst forms, while Summer and Bowel complaints yield almost to the first dose.
One or two doses cures attacks caused by Worms in Children: there is no surer, safer, or speedier remedy in the world, as it never fails.
☞ A few bottles cures Dropsy, by exciting the absorbents.
We take pleasure in recommencing this medicine as a preventive for Fever & Ague, Chill Fever, and all Fevers of a Bilious TYPE. It operates with certainty, & thousands are willing to testify to its wonderful virtues.
ALL WHO USE IT ARE GIVING THEIR UNANIMOUS TESTIMONY IN ITS FAVOR.
MIX WATER IN THE MOUTH WITH THE INVIGORATOR, AND SWALLOW BOTH TOGETHER.
The Liver Invigorator
IS A SCIENTIFIC MEDICAL DISCOVERY, and is daily working cures, almost too great to believe. It cures as if by magic, even the first dose giving benefit, and seldom more than one bottle is required to cure any kind of Liver Complaint, from the worst Jaundice or Dyspepsia to a common Headache, all of which are the result of a Diseased Liver.
PRICE ONE DOLLAR PER BOTTLE.

RADWAY'S REGULATING PILLS.
Dr. Radway & Co. have recently discovered a method for extracting from roots, herbs, plants and gums, a nutritions extract of medicinal nourishing power—which they have combined with Radway's Regulating Pills—that six of these Pills will supply the blood with the same amount of nutrition as one ounce of ordinary bread; so that, while the system is undergoing a thorough physicing, and regulating process, it daily becomes strengthened.
Persons afflicted with Liver Complaints, Dyspepsia, Heart Diseases, Fullness or blood, and all Females who are subject to Irregularities, Hysteria, &c., are particularly recommended to use these Pills. They are pleasant to take—elegantly coated with gum—free from taste, and will not gripe, sicken or weaken the system, or leave the bowels costive. Mothers nursing should likewise take one or two of these Pills once or twice per week. They will not only keep your system healthy and regular, but will protect your infants against Cramp and Pains in the stomach, and insure not only a healthy child, but will a vest every child, thus suckled, with a sweet disposition.
RADWAY'S REGULATING PILLS
Regulate each and every organ of the system, and correct all derangements of the Liver, Bowels, Stomach, Heart and Kidneys.
They Cure

Costiveness,	Indigestion,
Heart-Burn,	Dyspepsia,

POETRY.

The Forget-Me-Not.

Go, at moonlight's dreamy hour,
Where the silvery ripples shine;
Mark a little, lovely flower;
Be that lovely floweret thine.

Mild as heaven's own blue, it beameth
Like a clear and cloudless day;
Image of true love, it seemeth
To the heart sweet words to say.

And methinks its blue eyes glisten,
Full of love and tender thought,
While from far it whispers, (listen,)
"O forget, forget me-not!"

The Soul Conflict.

BY PAUL H. HAYNE.

Defeated! but never disheartened!
Repulsed! but unconquered in will,—
Upon dreary discomfitures building
Her virtue's strong battlements still,
The soul, through the siege of Temptations
Yields not unto Fraud, nor to Might,
Unquelled by the rush of the Passions,
Serene 'mid the tumults of fight.

She sees a grand prize in the distance,
She hears a loud voice of acclaims,
The crown wrought of blooms Amaranthine,
The music far sweeter than Fame's,
And so 'gainst the rush of the Passions,
She lifts the broad bucklers of Right,
And so, thro' the glooms of Temptation,
She walks in a splendor of light.

Truth and Falsehood.

There's a tuneful river,
In Erin's Isle—
Where the sunbeams quiver
In silvery smile;
Where the leaves that fall
'Neath the autumn sky,
Grow gem-like all,
And never die:

And such is the stream, by truth enlightened,
That leaves the breast by wisdom brightened,
Where even the joys that the storms dissever,
Are turned to gems that glow forever.

There's a darkling tide
In the Indian clime,
By whose herbless side
There's a sulphury slime—
To the flower that it touches,
A scorching wave—
To the bird that approaches,
A weltering grave!

And such are the waters of bitterness rising,
In the desert bosom of dark disguising;
And the birds of joy, and the the flowers of feeling,
Must perish, wherever that wave is stealing.

THE BROKEN HEARTED.

A SAD, BUT TRUE STORY.

"What though the spicy breezes
Blow soft o'er Ceylon's Isle,
Though every prospect pleases,
And only man is vile."

Curiously enough, I was just repeating this stanza, when my new acquaintance called for me. I had met him while on a business visit to Ceylon, as a countryman of mine, and was pleased with the opportunity that afforded me a more intimate personal knowledge.

I thought myself fortunate in falling in with so agreeable a gentleman, and considered his face and manners peculiary refined. On our second meeting I noticed a singular restlessness of the handsome dark eyes, an irritable bitting of the lips, and a disposition to be constantly on the move, shown in the tapping of a light bamboo cane, or the motion of foot or hand.

These things, however, did not strike me as singular at the time, but coupled with what I afterward learned, were certain evidence, that the man felt already the gnawing of the worm that never dies.

One forenoon we left the little seaport town where I was sojourning, and rode a short distance into the interior of the gorgeous Island. Most glorious were the surrounding on every hand.—With a prodigality quite undreamed of by the inhabitants of a colder clime, nature had showered her most exquisite floral gifts everywhere. Trees loaded with sweet-smelling flowers their intense colors vieing with the foliage of richer green, from out of which they smiled; tall cactus plants, with crimson goblet shaped blossoms; lilies, gorgeous in the queenly unfolding of form and color—everything rich, lavish, wonderful met our eyes, feasted to fullness with this tropical luxuriance.

"This is my house;" said my new friend, pointing to a low-roofed cottage, surrounded by a wide verandah, from whose clinging vines, sweet odors were flung upon the soft atmosphere—but from the moment the words were uttered, his geniality departed.

"Surely," though I, "here is a paradise, if only love be not wanting."

Within the cottage inclosure were walks, bowers, and fountains. Chaste statuary were dispersed over the grounds with most charming effect. The house seemed almost a fairy structure, rising in the midst of flowers and foliage.—And the man who sat beside me, whose smile mounted no higher than his lips—the dreamy far-looking discontent in his eye, growing every moment more perceptible—was the owner of this Eden-like home.

We were met on the threshold by a lovely child of some eleven summers. Her hair hung in curls. Her eyes were particularly lustrous, yet mournful in their beauty, and on the young brow I seemed to see a something—a shadow of sadness—an unchild-like quiet, as she greeted my new friend.

Dressed in pure white, she glided in before us, and to her was left the duty of entertaining me; while Mr. C., excusing himself in the remark, that sickness necessarily called him away, for a half hour or so, left the room.

Ah, thought I, there is always some ill. This man whose manner to me seemed uneasy and at times constrained, bears upon his heart the dread, perhaps, that a beloved wife may die.

"Is your mother very unwell?" I asked of the little girl, who with those shadow-filled eyes of hers, was regarding me, gently, but attentively.

"Yes; sir, mamma has been sick a long time," replied she, dropping her eyes, while her lips trembled.

"Did you come from America?" she asked timidly, after a long silence.

"Yes, my dear. Do you know any thing of that country?" I returned, growing more and more pleased with her expressive face.

"Only that mamma came from there, and I think," she added, hesitatingly, "that I did. But Mr. C. will never let me talk about it."

"Are you not then the little daughter of Mr. C?" I asked, somewhat astonished.

"I am my mother's daughter," answered the child, with a grave dignity unusual in one so young— and a minute after she arose & quietly left the room.

I sat watching her white robes flitting through the long shady walk opposite my window, and knew that the child brooded over some dark sorrow, for her eyes were filled with tears.

Why was it, I questioned myself, that painful thoughts took possession of me as I sat there? It seemed as if I were sojourning in an enchanted spot, and that some horror was suddenly to break upon me.

At my side, nearly covering a beautiful table of letter-wood, were several costly gift-books. I took them up carefully—for I have a reverence for books—and turning to the fly-leaf of a splendidly bound copy of Shakespeare, read—

"To Mary Francis F——, from her devoted husband—Henry E. F——."

A thrill of surprise and anguish ran from vein to vein. My thoughts seemed paralyzed. The truth had burst upon me with such suddenness that the blood rushed with a shock to my heart.

I knew Henry E. F——, had known him intimately for years. He was a friend, toward whom all my sympathies had been drawn, for he had seen such sorrow as makes the heart grow old before its time.

His wife, whom he loved, had deserted him. She had taken with her his only child. She had desolated a household; and forgetting honor, shame, every thing that pertains to virtue and to God, had fled from the country with the man whose arts had won her wanton love.

How could I remain under this roof that now seemed accursed? How meet the destroyer of virtue—the fiend who had revelled in such a conquest?

For a moment or two I strode up and down the room uncertain what to do.—The child entered the apartment just then. How my heart bled for her.—Sweet, innocence! she had been made in some sense a partaker in the consequences of this wickedness—a sufferer, and a victim, through one whom she called by the holy name of mother.—Did she remember the injured father about whse neck in the holy hours of the past, her arms had clung so lovingly? Alas! to cloud a child-life with bitter, heart-breaking, memories, never, never to be blotted out this side the gate of death!

God forgive me, if in my feelings of desperation, hard, unkind thoughts toward the erring, took Christian charity from my soul! I could only think of the evil they had done—not what they might suffer through the tortures of remorse. It was some time before the seducer came into the room where I still sat with the child, determined to meet him once more before I left the house.

O! how guilty! how heart-stricken his appearance! Remorse sat on his forehead—looked out from his eyes—spoke when he was silent.

"Will you come to dinner?" he asked.

I hesitated. Sould I partake of his hospitality; the hospitality of one of those fiends in human shape whose steps take hold on hell? I knew his guilt—why delay to declare it? Why not at once, in burning words upbraid him for his villiany, and flee as from a pestilence his sin-cursed house? The man noticed my hesitation. He could not, of coure, interpret its cause. As he repeated his request, the look of distress upon his face, excited a feeling of pity, which for the moment slightly disarm my resentment, and under the influence of this feeling, almost unconsciously I passed into the dining-room.

"I am so—y little Nelly's mamma,"—(I was glad he did not dare to use the sacred name of wife)—"is not able to sit down with us," he said. "It is many months since we have had her presence at our meals. She is suffering from the effects of a slow fever induced by the climate;" he added, gravely, as he motioned me a seat before him.

The table glitered with silver-plate. Odedient servants brought, on the most costly servers, delicacies such as I had never seen before.

But, the skeleton sat at the feast!

I could not talk, save in monosylables. My host ate hastily—almost carelessly—waiting upon me with many abrupt starts and apologies.

Wine came He drank freely. Soon he sent the little girl and the servants from the room, and seemed striving to nerve himself to conversation.

"You are from —— city," I believe, he said nervously.

I answered an affirmative.

"Did you ever know a gentleman there by the name—of—H. E. F——?"

"I knew him, sir," I said sternly, looking the man in the face, "and I knew him also as a ruined, heart-broken man."

With an ejaculation of anguish, he put his handkerchief to his eyes. It would have seemed hypocritical, but the suffering on his face was unmistakable.

"Perhaps you have suspected then" —he began in a quivering voice.

Not calmly, but with the words of an accuser I told him what I had seen, and thought, and felt.

"Sir," said he, in tones which I shall never forget, "if I have sinned; God in heaven knows I have suffered; and if in F's bereavement, he has cursed me, that curse is fearfully fulfilled?—Poor Mary is dying—has been dying for months, and I have known it. It has been for me to see the failing steps—the dimming eye;—it is for me, now, to see the terrible struggles of her nearly worn-out frame; it is to me to listen to the language of remorse; that sometimes almost drives me mad. Yes, mad—mad—mad"—he said in frenzy, rising and crossing the floor with long strides. Then, burying his face in his hands he exclaimed, "Too late—too late—I have repented." There was a long pause, and he continued more calmly. "No human means can now restore my poor companion. Her moral sensibilities become more and more acute as she fails in strength, so that she reproaches herself constantly."

A weary, mournful sigh broke from his lips, as if his heart would break.

"O! if he knew," he exclaimed again, "he knew how bitter penalty she is paying for the outrage she has committed upon him—he would pity her—and if it could be, forgive."

"Will you see her, sir?"

I shrank from the very thought.

"She has asked for you, sir; do not deny her request. Hearing that you came from America, she entreated me to bring you to her. I promised that I would."

"I will go, then."

Up the cool, wide, matted stairs he led me into a chamber oriental in its beautiful furnishing, its chaste magnificence.

There, half-reclining in a wide, easy chair—a costly shawl of lace thrown over her attenuated shoulders; the rich dressing grown, clinging and hollowed to the ravages sickness had made; her thin, transparent fingers, clasped and interclasped; sat one whose great beauty, and once gentle gifts, had made the light and loveliness of a sacred home

But now! O pity! pity!

The eyes only retained their lustre; they were wofully sunken. The blazing fire kindled at the vitals, burned upon her sharpened cheeks, burned more fiercely, more hotly as she looked upon my face. I could think no more of anger—I could only say to myself,

"O! how sorry I am for you!"

She knew probably, by her husband's manner, that I was aware of their circumstances.

Her first question was,

"Are you going back to America, sir?"

The hollow voice startled me. I seemed to see an open sepulchre.

I told her that it was not my intention to return at present.

"O! then who will take my little child back to her father?" she cried, the tears falling. "I am dying, and she must go back to him! It is the only repairation I can make—and little enough, for the bitter wrong I have done them."

"I hoped, sir, you might see him," she added a moment after, checking her sobs; "I hoped you might tell him that his image is before me from morning till night, as I knew he must have looked when the first shock came. O sir—tell him my story—warn, O warn everybody. Tell I him have suffered through the long, long hours, these many weary years; ah, God only knows how deeply."

"Mary, you must control your feelings," said my host, gently.

"Let me talk while I may," was the answer, "Let me say that since the day I lift my home, I have not seen a single hour of happiness. It was always to come—always just ahead—and here is what has come—the grave is opening and I must go to judgment.—O how bitterly have I paid for my sin. Forgive me—O my God—forgive."

It was a solemn hour, that which I spent by that dying penitent. Prayer she listened to—she did not seem to join—or, if she did she gave no outward sign. Remorse had worn away all her beauty, even more than illness. She looked to the future with a despairing and kind of hope, and but feeble faith.

Reader, the misguided woman of Ceylon, lies beneath the stately branches of the palmtree. Her sweet child never met her father in her native land. She sleeps under the troubled waters of the wide sea. Where the betrayer wanders I cannot tell, but wherever it is, there is no place for him. How often ring that hollow voice in my ear—"tell him my story! Warn, O warn every body."

"Ah! it is true, that so certainly as the wife forsakes the duty that she has with sacred vows taken upon hereself, just so surely shall the curse of God follow her—just so surely will the soul seek for some place of rest, and seek in vain—IN VAIN!

O! heart—wrap thyself in the white garment of virtue, and let no profane hand defile thy purity—for God hath said—He will not let the wicked go unpunished.

BAD COMPANY.—A skunk once challenged a lion to single combat. The lion promptly declined the honor of such a meeting. "How," said the skunk, "are you afraid?" "Very much so," quoth the lion, "for you would only gain fame by having the honor to fight a lion, while every one who met me for a month to come would know I had been in company with a skunk."

The News from Mexico—Disgraceful Conduct of the British Minister—Juarez's only Hope.

We give elsewhere to-day full and interesting details of the news from Mexico. The civil war in that republic is rapidly degenerating into a war of anarchy and mutual butchery that is a disgrace to the age. The slaughter of prisoners and innocent victims by the centralists at Tacubaya is the most disgusting narrative it has been our duty to publish for a long time, and the murder of the surgeons, whose only mission in war is to mitigate the sufferings of its victims, gives to the picture a peculiarly Spanish air of barbarity. We regret that we cannot say that one at least of the contending parties is free from this barbarous blemish. But such is not the case. In several instances the federalists have shot their prisoners, and perhaps have provoked the present horrible retaliation. Not that we believe that President Juarez, or his Cabinet, or Governor Zamora, sanction this brutal warfare.—Where they are such barbarous scenes do not occur. Yet so little under their control are the partisans fighting in their name, in many parts of the country, that their merciful orders are unheeded.

But there is yet a higher responsibility before the civilized world than that of the Mexican party leaders that must be called to an account. Mons. Gabriac and Mr. Otway, the French and British Ministers in Mexico, are well known to sympathize actively with the priest-ridden government of Miramon and yet they have lifted neither hand nor voice to stay the slaughter of the innocent. Mr. Otway, it is true did save one English boy, at the urgent request of the American Consul, Mr Black; but furthur than this he declined to go. And now that the humane American Consul is expelled from Mexico, the British Minister refuses to extend to or citizens the usual international comity of assuming the official representation of their interests before the government to whom he is accredited. Either Mr. Otway is crazy or every Anglo-Saxon sentiment is curdled in his heart. He is unworthy to represent the civized government of England, and we call upon that government to administer to him a severe rebuke. He has proved himself to be no Briton, and we should be glad to learn that he was not born on English soil. Such sentiments as his belong to the Iberion, and not to the Saxon race.

As for Mexico, we have long since recorded our belief in regard to her.—She is worn out. Disorganization and decay are the laws that now govern her existence. Anarchy and fratricidal strife are her destiny until she is reinvigorated with new blood. That she can get only from the young and vigorous race that dwells in these States. If Miramon and the church party succeeds she may obtain it from us by conquest, for he has already declared virtual war against us. But such a result implies the extermination of the liberal spirits that are now battling against him, and this would leave little in Mexico worthy of invigoration. To avoid such a misfortune President Juarez must obtain an American contingent force. We want no filibustering, and he must therefore make a treaty with our government by which American officers and citizens may lawfully enter into his service without infringing the neutrality laws. Let him then seek the right class of military leaders amongst us, and he will get the right class of followers. He must avoid the Walkers, the Lockbridges and all the rest of the filibusters small fry, and take men who have something to lose as well as to win in going to Mexico. Then he will succeed in reconstructing society and government in Mexico, and re-establishing its liberties. But until he dees this he will not succeed. He may hold Vera Cruz—he may drive the church militant out of the capital—but that does not pacify Mexico. It is strong, it is full of life, and it will take to the fields and fastnesses of the land, and from there wage a guerilla warfare against the government, consuming its resources in futile marches and barren victories, as the federalists are now consuming those of Miramon.—N. Y. Herald.

A MOTHER'S PRAYER.—An exchange well says: The boy that feels his name is mentioned in a good mother's prayer is comparatively safe from vice and ruin to which it leads. The sweetest thoughts that N. P. Willis ever penned grew out of a reverence to his pious mother's prayer for him. Tossed by the waves, in a vessel which was bearing him homeward, he wrote.

"Sleep safe, O wave-worn mariner,
Nor fear the night, nor storm nor sea!
The ear of Heaven bends low to her;
He comes to shore who sails with me."

The Southern Baptist Convention met in Richmond, Va., on Friday the 6th inst A very large delegation is understood to be in attendance. The Rev. Dr. HOWELL, of Nashville, Tenn., was elected President on first ballot, and after having thanked the Convention for the honor conferred, and the expression of their confidence, he declined the honor; whereupon, on the 4th ballot, the Rev. Dr. FULLER, of Baltimore, was elected

FATAL AFFAIR IN TENNESSEE. From the last issue of the Shelbyville Expositor we learn of a terrible tragedy in Bedford county. A man by the name of Allen had reason to suspect the fidelity of his wife, and charged a man named Handy with being her seducer. The latter indignantly denied the charge, using abusive language. Infuriated by a positive knowledge of the great wrong that had been done him, Allen rushed upon his adversary and stabbed him to death. He then surrendered himself to the legal authorities.

THE AUSTRIAN LINE OF DEFENCE.—All accounts agree that the Austrian army is well officered and abundantly provided with the munitions of war. The two great lines of Austrian defence, says a recent writer, are the line of the Mincio, and the line of the Adige. Of these two the former is the strongest; it is difficult, indeed, to conceive anything stronger.

"The Mincio, Virgil's river—smooth sliding Mincius, crowned with vocal reeds—runs with a deep, sluggish stream right across the plain of Lombardy from the bottom of the Lago di Garda on the north, to the Po on the south. Just where it issues from the lake is Peschiera, a fortress always formidable, but by the efforts of the last ten years, rendered almost impregnable. At the other extremity of the line of defence stands Mantua—situated in the midst of marshes, which in a few hours can be converted into a lake by the simple management of a few dams and sluices. Mantua, thus strong by natural position, has been trebly strengthened by art. It is practically impregnable; its earth-works defy artillery; its swamps are mortal with malaria. For a weaker force to endeavor, in face of a stronger force, to pass the line of the Mincio with Peschiera on one flank and Mantua on the other, would be among the most hazardous of military enterprises; and yet until the line of the Mincio is forced, Austria remains strategically the mistress of Lombardy. The line of the Adige resting on the vast entrenched camp of Verona is at least equally strong. The command of the Austrian troops will devolve upon General Hess."

I. AND J.—There are no two letters in the manuscript alphabet of English language which occasion so much trouble or cause so much misconstruction as these two letters I and J, as many persons inadvertently write them. The rule for writing them properly, and which should be universally understood and adopted, is to extend the J below the line. If those who write I for J knew how it sometimes puzzles printers, they would remember the above suggestion

The Empire of God.

Prof. Mitchell, in closing his series of Lectures on Astronomy, said "Now, my friends, I must close this long course of lectures.—We have passed from planet to planet, from sun to sun, from system to system. We have found other island universes sweeping through space. The great unfinished problem still remains—Whence came this universe? Have all those stars which glitter in the heavens been shining from all eternity? Has our globe been rolling around the sun for ceaseless ages? Whence, whence this magnificent architecture, whose architraves rise in splendor before us in every direction? Is it all the work of chance! I answer, no. It is not the work of chance. Who shall reveal to us the true cosmography of the universe by which we are surrounded? Is it the work of an Omnipotent Architect? If so, who is this August Being? Go with me to night, in imagination; and stand with old Paul the great Apostle, upon Mars Hill and there look around you as he did.

Here rises that magnificent building, the Parthenon, sacred to Minerva, the Goddess of Wisdom. There towers her colossal statute, rising in its majesty above the city of which she was the guardian—the first object to catch the rays of the rising, and the last to be kissed by the rays of the setting sun.—And yet I tell you these gods and these divinities, though created under the inspiring fire of poetic fancy, Greek imagination never reared this stupendous structure by which we are surrounded. The Olympic Jove never built the heavens. The wisdom of Minerva never organized these magnificent systems. I say with St. Paul: "Oh Athenians, in all things I find you too superstitious, for in passing along your streets, I find an altar inscribed—To the unknown God—Him whom ye ignorantly worship; and this is the God I declare unto you—the God that made heaven and earth, who dwells not in temples made with hands."

No, here is the temple of our divinity.—Around us and above us rise Sun and System, Cluster and Universe. And I doubt not that in every region of this vast Empire of God, hymns of praise and anthems of glory are rising and reverberating from sun to sun and from system to system—heard by Omnipotence alone across immensity and through eternity!

Beautiful Extract.

Some fifteen years ago the Rev. John N. Maffit, then in his prime, delivered a lecture which closed with the following passage:

The Phoenix, fabled bird of antiquity, when it felt the chill and silent advances of age, built its own funeral urn, and fired its pyre, by which means nature's instinct taught.

All its plumage and its form of beauty became ashes; but ever would rise the young—beautiful from the urn of death, and chambers of decay would the fledgling come, with its eye turned toward the sun and essaying its dark velvet wings sprinkled with gold and fringed with silver, on the balmy air rising a little higher until at length, in the full confidence of flight, it becomes a speck in the deep bosom of the aerial ocean—lovely voyager, bound on its heavenward journey to the sun.

So rises the spirit-bird from the ruins of the body, the funeral urn which his Maker built, and death fires. So towers away to its everlasting home in the pure elements of spirituality, the intellect Phoenix, to dip its proud wings in the fountain of eternal bliss.

So shall dear, precious humanity survive from the ashes of a burning world. So beautifully shall unchanged soul soar within the disc of Eternity's great luminary, with undazzled eyes and unscorched wings—the Phoenix of immortality—taken to its rainbow home, and cradled on the beating bosom of eternal love.

JACKSONVILLE, ALA.

May, 28, 1859.

☞ We are authorized to announce ELI BYNUM, as a candidate for Representative of Calhoun County in the next Legislature.

☞ We are authorized to announce JOHN YOE, as a candidate for Seriff of Calhoun County.

☞ We invite attention to the advertisement of Messrs. R. S. Norton & Son, Rome, Ga., in another column. These truly accommodating and thorough going Merchants have already become so well acquainted with many of our friends and readers, as to need no recommendation on our part. They have a very extensive establishment, and large and varied stock, with rooms devoted expressly to particular branches of their business. Call upon them while in Rome, and we are very sure they will make it your interest to trade, whether you wish to purchase little or much.

LAW LECTURES.—We are gratified to learn that it is the purpose of the HON. B. F. PORTER, to deliver a series of Law lectures, commencing on the 1st Monday of June, and continuing three months, at the Mineral Springs, Black Creek Falls, near Gadsden. Our young friends in the surrounding country, who are studying law, and others more advanced, will find this a most favorable opportunity to unite recreation & business—the acquisition of important knowledge, as well as health and vigor of body and mind. Judge Porter is known throughout the State as a gentleman of extensive law knowledge, & great facility of imparting information; and none perhaps would be more industrious or take more pleasure in advancing students.

☞ The special attention of our numerous readers in White Plains and vicinity, is invited to the advertisement of Messrs. Williams & Argoes. These gentlemen have laid in a fine stock of Goods, purchased in New York and Philadelphia; and in order to increase their trade, are offering them at lower prices than usual.

It needs no argument to prove to rational men that it is not only good policy to encourage home manufactures and industry, but home trade also. In these fast days, when "time is money," a man cannot afford to lose a day's work of man and horse to go to a distance for an article costing perhaps not more than one dollar—then encourage your merchants to keep every thing you need near home, They can better afford to sell $10,000 worth of goods at 25 per cent. than one or two thousand at fifty or one hundred per cent.

Call on Messrs. Williams & Argoes, and these enterprising and accommadating gentlemen will make it your interest to trade with them.

HEAVY RAIN.—On Wednesday night the 18th inst. we had the heaviest rain which has fallen here for 20 years, or perhaps since the first settling of the country. It commenced about 8 o'clock and continued very hard for about 3 hours, and less violently for some time longer; and during the time scarcely two seconds between the flashes of lightning, which seemed at times a continued blaze. Fences were removed, from places never before reached by high water, and the small creeks higher for a short time than ever before known.

Commencing some ten miles east of this, and extending to an unknown distance in that direction, as also in the neighborhood of Oxford, there was considerable hail doing some damage to the growing crops: But from the following letter addressed to the Editor of the Selma Reporter, it appears that the hail was much more destructive in the lower part of Talladega County, and south, as far as heard from.

WILSONVILLE, May 19th, 1859.

Messrs. Shelley & Williams:—Gentlemen—Yesterday evening about 5 o'clock, we had a Hail Storm in this neighborhood, commencing about 200 yards above the Depot. The hail stones were from the size of a partridge to a goose egg. I saw a bucket full about dark the size of hen eggs, which had melted some. It tore off & split the shingles and boards from every house on Mrs. Robertson's and D. B. Oden's places; killed the geese, chickens, &c. The corn and cotton will have to be planted over. Fences and timbers were blown down; the like never before seen.—Worse over the river than on this side. The woods look like dead of winter—limbs and leaves stripped off. The hail was from 6 to 8 inches deep. As far as heard from, it has been very destructive to crops. Yours truly,

ROBT. R. KING.

☞ We mentioned a short time since, to the credit of Gadsden merchants, that they had established a free ferry across the Coosa river at that place. Justice to another worthy and enterprising merchant of that County, requires that we should mention a similar fact, which has recently come to our knowledge. Mr. Daniel Hoke of Hoke's Bluff, has for several years kept a ferry boat at that place for the accommodation of the neighborhood; supplying the boat with a new one, whenever carried off by high water, unaided and at his own expence. Such evidences of enterprise and public spirit, on the part of a merchant is enough to convince all, that he will give good bargains and deal liberally with his customers.

Mr. Ernest Monch, Professor of Music and Modern Languages, is at present in this place, and will remain a few days. During his stay he will tune and repair Pianos, Melodeons, &c.

He may be found by those wishing his services at Weir's Hotel.

DIFFICULT AND DELICATE SURGICAL OPERATION.—Dr. C. J. Clark, of this place, about two weeks ago, performed the very difficult surgical operation, called in medical works, Tracheotomy, which consists in cutting into the wind-pipe, to remove any foreign substance that may be lodged there, obstructing the breathing. The subject of the operation in this instance, was a little girl, aged only 13 months, child of L. C. Obriant, of Terrapin creek valley; and the difficulty and danger of the operation, consisted in the fact, that the subject was a very fat short-necked child, and the obstruction, a grain of corn, had been lodged their long enough to produce considerable inflamation & swelling and so difficult was the breathing, that the child must have died in a short time, without relief. So accurately and skillfully was the operation performed, that there was but little bleeding, and the grain of corn flew out, by the first impulse of breathing, after the incision was made in the wind-pipe. The grain of corn was found to be swelled and sprouted. The operation was entirely successful—the child showing signs of relief immediately upon its performance, and now almost entirely recovered even from any soreness.

This is we believe the second successful operation of this character performed by Dr. Clark; and we have heard of many others, of equally difficult nature.

Persons in this section of country, who may require the assistance of a Surgeon, need not go hundreds of miles to the cities in search of one, for we believe they could not there find one more thoroughly qualified, or more skillful and successful in practice than Dr. Clark.

The Deepst Well in the World.—The Artesian Well at Louisville, Ky., is 2087 feet deep, and discharges 330,000 gallons of water in 24 hours, at an elevation of 170 feet above the surface. Its mechanical force is equal to a steam engine of 20 horse power. The water has medicinal qualities similar to the far-famed Kissingen watar of Bavaria, and the Blue Lick Springs of Kentucky, and is said to be very efficacious in the cure of various diseases.

Arthur's Home Magazine.—This interesting and justly popular Magazine for June has already been received by its patrons here. Its high moral tone and chaste literary character, commend it to the favor of all. In beauty of embellishments and interest of contents, the June number is equal to any of its predecessors.

Truthful & Eloquent Extract.

The following extract from a speech of a leading statesman is full of truth and eloquence: we commend its perusal at this time, particularly to those Southern whigs, who unite with the northern Black Republicans in complaints of the present disastrous condition of the Post Office department; a condition brought about by the efforts of the opposition to create, by extravagant appropriations, a necessity for a high protective tariff, and not by a democratic Congress, as falsely alleged by them.

"Democratic principles are moulded into the very being of this country—The proportions of that country's gigantic stature are formed out of the material of Democratic hands. Where on the statute-book can a law be found of finance or revenue settling the internal policy of our country, and acquiesced in by our countrymen of all parties, that has not been placed on the statute-book by Democratic votes, and stereotyped on the hearts of the people by Democratic argument? The iron hand of Jackson struck the blow that severed the money of the people from a mammoth bank; and the Democracy followed up the blow by dissolving its connection with the lesser monopolies that had grasped the spoil. Democratic argument and votes have approximated the tariff, after protracted struggles, to the revenue standard; and the principle at this late day is too strongly fixed in the affections of the masses to be abandoned to temporary policy, or surrendered to greedy appetite for spoils. Not less identified with the growth of our empire is the name and fame of the Democratic party. Associated with them are a thousand memories, interweaving them with every garland of her past progress and glory. The Mississippi, so long as it pours its flood of waters to the Gulf, shall mingle with the hum of its immense commerce the name of Jefferson, the father of Democracy. Every breath of wind that stirs the magnolia groves of Florida bring from the land of flowers fresh fragrance to the memory of Monroe, another of the patriot sages of Democracy. The immense cotton and sugar fields of Texas, and the golden sands of California, all attest the past triumphs of the Democratic policy, & point with unerring finger to Cuba destined soon to be added, with her tropical fruits & tobacco and sugars to swell the practical triumphs of Democratic rule. Talk about the destruction of such a party, because there are quarrels in our ranks! Sir, the Democracy always have quarreled, & they always will quarrel, among themselves. But these quarrels are but summer thunder clouds destined soon to pass away and leave the atmosphere purer than before; but bubbles upon the surface of the stream, necessary to let off this noxious gas beneath. The great current rolls on, & must roll on forever—at least while the Constitution strictly construed, needs defenders, and the rights of the States friends & champions. Those who argue from present distractions the destruction of the Democratic party have failed to read, or read with little profit, their country's history. They miscalculate the inherent strength of its principles, and fail to appreciate the confidence its past career inspires Look at it in 1840, disconfitted and overwhelmed North & South. See it in 1844, triumphant again. Behold it in 1854, weakened & distracted; yet in 1856 we saw it again victorious. Though the elections of 1858 have been disastrous to its prospects, they are scarcely worse than those of 1854; and who shall say that 1860 will not usher in another victory as brilliant as that of 1856?"

SLAVE AND HIRELING LABOR.—Senator Seward last summer oracularly declared, that there was an "irrepressible conflict" between free and slave labor in the United States, and that it would not terminate until the complete destruction of slavery. But wherein is this conflict? Slave labor is confined to agricultural and tropical staples, and its production of Cotton, Sugar, Rice and Tobacco, instead of interfering with white pursuits and investments, furnishes material to their enterprise, and a widened sphere to their achievements, profits and influence. The industry of the one is the correlative of the other, and their united results have given wonderful progress and power to the United States. The conflict is not one of labor or industry, unless it may be so regarded as to the exceptional case of an occupancy of the Territories. And even in that, the Anti-slavery settlers mar the value and interests of their landed investments, by excluding slave population and labor, which would rapidly augment them.

The conflict is for political power—rather, for party power, sectional power, individual power, spoils power. Is such a conflict repressible by truth, justice, the Constitution and the salvation of the Union? If it is, then the "moral victory" will be gained. If it is not, then Disunion is inevitable In any event, Slavery as existent at the South is a rock, which all the Sewards of the world cannot move nor crush. Nor will the arch demagogue dare the attempt, which may brain him upon it. Charleston Evening News.

RULES FOR SLEEPING IN CHURCH.—A correspondent of the Pacific, in an article on "the proper manner of sleeping in church"—a custom which, he remarks, has been consecrated into a duty by common practice since the days of Paul—gives the following valuable hints upon this interesting subject:

1. It is an improper manner of performing this duty to nod, and for the plain reason that the worshipper attracts too much attention. Now we are everywhere taught to avoid ostentatious display in our worship. The Pharisees were condemned for praying at the corners of the streets, that they might be seen of men On the same principle the nodding worshipper is condemned, for he is making too public a display of his devotions.

2. Nor is it proper to snore in the performance of this duty, partly for the foregoing reason; but mainly because it is a direct infraction of the golden rule. Suppose, for instance, that your next neighbor is a-sleep; by your snoring he will be disturbed, probably entirely awaked. This, you perceive, is not doing to others as you would that they should do to you.

3. I deem it unchristian to sleep with the head thrown back, and the mouth wide open. It is wrong to injure one's health while offering worship; and all physicians admit that such a position is liable to produce sore throat and hoarseness. Besides flies sometimes get into the mouth on such occasions, and by their injudicious explorations, tickle the delicate membranes, and cause horrible sternutation and coughing, which I am told are very injurious to the health.

A CURIOUS BIT OF HISTORY.—How the Old North State was done out of her copper mines.—Looking along the boundary between North Carolina and Tennessee; it will be seen that the line after pursuing a general southwest course for nearly the whole way, suddenly bends directly south as it approaches the Georgia border. Now this line should have kept on southwest, as it started, but the boundary commissioners being so near the close of their labors, resolved, it is said, to indulge in a general "spree," in the course of which the Carolinians got gloriously inebriated, and their Tennessee confreres amused themselves by changing the line, and cheating them out of a small corner. It was considered a capital joke at the time on both sides, for the land "stands on its edge," and appears to be of the sort that makes a man poorer the more he has of it. But it has lately been found to be no joke, as far as "Old Rip" is concerned, at any rate, for this very corner has within it the great copper deposit of Ducktown, which contains an inexhaustible supply of that valuable metal Mining is in its infancy there, yet the valley already pours out its ores millions' worth, and constantly increasing every year. In ten years, probably, the market value of this region will be not less than a hundred millions. The line was run about fifty years ago, and North Carolina is barred by the statute of limitation from reclamation. The "mountain dew" was decidedly unwholesome that time for the good old State.

The Farmer's Motto.

Gen. Oicroe closed an Agricultural Address at Twinsburg Ohio, Sept. 17th, as follows:

"Let the farmer's motto be, then, good farmers, good stock, good seed, and good cultivation."—Make farming a science, in which your head as well as your hands are employed; let there be system, reason in all your operations; study to make your farm beautiful, and your lands lovely; entice by kindness, the birds to visit, and cheer your dwelling with their music. I would not associate with the man or boy that would wantonly kill the birds that cheerfully sing around our dwellings and farm; he is fitted for treason and murder. Who does not, with the freshness of early morning, call up the memory of the garden of his infancy in childhood? The robin's nest in the old cherry tree, and the nest of young chirping birds in currant bushes; the flowers planted by his mother and nurtured by his sister? In all our wanderings, the memory of childhood's birds and flowers are associated with our mothers and sisters? and our early home. As you would have your children intelligent and happy, and their memory in after life, of early home, pleasant or repulsive, so make your farms, & your children's home."

Wolf & Co., of Berlin, have suspended.

A considerable number of failures are reported at Vienna.

It is expected that the impoverishment and ruin at the Paris Bourse this and next week will be unexampled.

No more failures had occurred on Monday.

A dispatch from Viena, dated April 20th, says: Count Buol had notified the foreign governments that there were diplomatic and political reasons for the Emperor's declaration of war.

FOUR DAYS LATER FROM EUROPE.

ARRIVAL OF THE STEAMSHIP

CITY OF BATIMORE.

COTTON ADVANCED.

Breadstuffs Declined.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., May 20.

The steamship City of Baltimore was boarded off Cap Race to day by the yacht of the Associated Press. The steamer brings dates to the 11th inst., being four days later than previous arrivals.

The sales of cotton for three days were 26,00 bales, with an advance of three sixteenths to one fourth penny.—The market closed quiet & steady.

There was a considerable decline in breadstuffs.

Additional by the Canada.

HALIFAX, May 19.—The Archbisop of Vienna has issued a pastoral letter, attacking those who permit the existence of crimes in Pedimont, & in which he censures the ambitious designs of the Emperor Napoleon.

The latest intelligence from the Austrian army seemed to give color to the opinion that the army was retrograding. The manœuvre, however was not understood.

A letter from Vienna, to the editor of the London Times; say: "Turkey is on the eve of raising one hundred and wenty thousand men, to be concentrated at Schumla." This is a fortified city of European Rurkey; located in a gorge protected on three sides by mountains; and is on the great rout from Wallachia to Constantinople. The Russians attempted in vain to take Schumla in 1774, 1810, and 1828 and it is probable Turkey appehends another attack by the Russians in 1859.

A battle was hourly expected to take place between the belligerents in Sardinia, but up to the sailing of the Canada, no action had been reported.

The attempt of the Austrians to cross the river Po at Trassinto, was unsuccessful, after fifteen hours of cannonade. The loss was inconsiderable. They report having crossed the river at Cornate and were fortified at the head of the bridge

A troop train had come in collision near Verona, with the powder wagons. Some of the kegs had exploded, killing 23 & wounding 124 Austrians.

AUSTRIAN & SARDINIAN

Declarations of War.

VIENNA, April 25.—The subjoined manifesto, which was published in the Wiener Zeitung of this morning, is posted at the corners of the principal streets of the city:

Imperial Manifesto—To my People.

I have ordered my faithful and gallant army to put a stop to the inimical acts (anfiendangen) which for a series of years have been committed by the neighborhood State of Sardinia against the indisputable richte of my Crown, against the integrity of the realm placed by God under my care, which acts have lately attained the very highest point (auf ihrem hohenpunkte angelangt) By so doing I have fulfilled the painful (schwere) but unaviodable duty of a sovereign. My conscience being at rest, I can look up to an omnipotent God, and patiently await His award.—With confidence I leave my decision to the impartial judgment of contemporaneous and future generations. Of the approbation of my faithful subjects I am sure. More than ten years ago the same enemy—violating international law and the usages of war, and without any offences being given—entered the Lombardo—Venetian territory with the intention of acquiring possession of it. Although the enemy was twice totally defeated by my gallant army, and at the mercy of the victor, I behaved generously and proposed a reconciliation (reichte die hand zur versohnung). I did not appropriate to myself one inch of his territory. I encroached on no right which belongs to the Crown of Sirdinia, as one of the members of the European family of nations. I insisted on no guarantees against the recurrence of similar events. The hand of peace which I in all sincerity extended, and which was taken, appeared to me to be a sufficient guarantee. The blood which my army shed for the honor and right of Austria, I sacrificed on the alter of peace (dem friefen brachte Ich das blut meiner armee zum opfer). To reward for such unexampled forbearance was an immediate continuation of enmity, which increased from year to year, and perfidious agitation against the peace and welfare of my Lombardo-Venetian Kingdom. Well knowing what a precious boon peace was for my people and for Europe, I bore with these new hostilities. My patience was not exhausted when the more extensive measures which I was forced to take, in consequence of the revolutionary agitation on the frontiers of my Italian provinces and within the same, were made an excuse for a higher degree of hostility. Willingly accepting the well-meant mediation of friendly powers for the maintenance of peace, I consented to become a party to a Congress of the five great Powers. The four points proposed by the Royal Government of Great Britain as a basis for the deliberations of the Congress were forwarded to my Cabinet, and I accepted them, with the conditions which were calculated to bring about a true, sincere, and durable peace. In the consciousness that no step on the part of my Government could, even in the most remote degree, lead to a disturbance of the peace, I demanded that the power which was the cause of the complication and had brought about the danger of war should, as a preliminary measure, disarm. Being pressed thereto by friendly Powers, I at length accepted the proposal for a general disarmament. The mediation failed in consequence of the unacceptableness of the conditions on which Sardinia made her consent dependent. Only one means of maintaining peace remained. I addressed myself directly to the Sardinian Government, and summoned it to place its army on a peace footing and to disband the free corps. As Sardinia did not accede to my demand, the moment for deciding the matter by an appeal to arms has arrived.

I have ordered my army to enter Sardinia.

I am aware of the vast importance of the measure, and if ever my duties as a Monarch weighed heavily on me, it is at this moment. War is the scourge of mankind. I see with sorrow that the lives and property of thousands of my subjects are imperrilled, and deeply feel what a severe trial war is for my realm, which, being occupied with its internal developments, greatly requires the continuance of peace. But the heart of the Monarch must be silent at the command of honor and duty On the frontiers is an armed enemy, who, in alliance with the revolutionary party, openly announces his intention to obtain possession of the dependencies of Austria in Italy. To support him, the ruler over France—who under the pretexts (nichtige vorwande) interferes in the legally established relations of the Italian Peninsula, has set his troops in movement. Detachments of them have already crossed the frontiers of Sardinia. The crown which I received without spot or blemish from my forefathers has already seen trying times. The glorious history of our country gives evidence that Providence, when there is a foreshadowing that the greatest good of humanity is in danger of being overthrown in Europe, has frequently used the sword of Austria in order to dispel that shadow. We are again on the eve of such a period The overthrow of the things that by is not only aimed at by factions, but by names of present manngers are a guarantee for the faithful discharge of all pecuniary obligations incurred by them forced to draw is sanctified, inasmuch as it is a defence for the honor and rights of all peoples and states, and for all that is held most dear by humanity.

To you, my people, whose devotion to the hereditary reigning family may serve as a model for all the nations of the earth, I now address myself. In the conflict which has commenced you will stand by me with your oft-proved fidelity and devotion. To your sons whom I have taken into the ranks of the army, I, their commander, send their martial greetings (weifen grusse). With pride you may regard them, for the Eagle of Austria will, with their support, soar high.

Our struggle is a just one, and we begin it with courage and confidence. We hope, however, that we shall not stand alone in it. The soil on which we have to do battle was made fruitful by the blood lost by our German brethren, when they won those bulwarks which they have maintained up to the present day. There the crafty enemies of Germany have generally begun their game when they have wished to break her internal power. The feeling that such a danger is now imminent prevails in all parts of Germany, from the hut to the throne; from one frontier to the other. I speak as a sovereign member of the Germanic Confederation when I call attention to the common danger, and recall to memory the glorious times in which Europe had to thank the general and fervent enthusiasm of Germany for its Liberation.

For God and Fatherland!

Given at my residence and metropolis of Vienna, on this 28th day of April, 1859.

FRANCIS JOSEPH.

Manifesto of the King of Sardinia.

Soldiers! Austria, which increases its army on our frontiers and threatens to invade our territory, because liberty here reigns with order—because not force, but concord and affection between people and sovereign here rule the State—because the cries of suffering, of oppressed Italy here find a hearing—Austria dares to intimate to us, armed only in defence, that we are to lay down our arms and put ourselves in her power.

The outrageous intimation called for a worthy reply. I have disdainfully rejected it.

Soldiers I announce this to you, certain that you will take to yourselves the outrage offered to your King—to the nation. The announcement I give to you is the announcement of war. To arms, then, soldiers!

You will find yourselves opposed to no new enemy; but, if he be brave and disciplined, you do not fear the meeting and may boast of the days of Goito, of Pastrengo, of Santa Lucia, of Somma Campagna, of Custosa itself, where only four brigades contended for three days with five corps d'armee.

I will be your leader. On former occasions we have known a great part of you in the heat of combats; and I, fighting by the side of my magnanimous father, admired your valor with pride.

On the field of honor and of glory you, I am certain, will know how to preserve, and also to increase, your fame as valiant soldiers.

You will have for your companions those intrepid soldiers of France, conquerors in so many great battles, whose comrades you were on the Tchernaya, and whom Napoleon III., ever hastening thither where there is a just cause to defend and civilization to uphold (da fur prevalere), generously sends to our aid in numerous bands

Advance, then, confident of victory, and adorn your banner with fresh laurels; that banner which, with its tri-colors, and with the chosen youth which, here assembled from all parts of Italy, are gathered together beneath it, points out to you that you have for your task the independence of Italy—that just and holy enterprise which will be your war cry. VICTOR EMANUEL.

A Leaf from Hazel Dell.

BY FILLBERT.

The shadows around me are darkening,
As I wander away and lone,
The dew-drops are silently falling,
And breezes sigh, that day is gone:
A dream on my spirit is floating
Like the shadows o'er the sea,
And my tears like the dew drops are falling;
I dream—loved one of thee.

Hark! the spirits fly over the forest,
I know by the sweet sad moan,
That the harps of the pines are breathing;
List! 'tis no mortal tone,
Sweet voices float dreamily round me,
That spark of happier years,
Bright scenes, methinks throng near me,
Bright still—though dimmed by tears.

Dost thou eve at morn or e'en tide,
Dream as I dream of thee?
It is sweet thus to cherish thy memory,
Though thou art naught to me;
They cannot of that boon deprive me,
Love yieldeth not to might,
The beam that once gilded my pathway
Sheds still a beacon light.

Those that crushed the bright flowers from my grasp
Deemed falsely that they'd die,
But from their bruised and withered leaves,
Sweet perfume floateth by—
Then chide me not to cherish them,
Is joy untold to me,
Thy memory now, is all I claim,
Say—may I think of thee!

A SUGGESTION FOR THE NEW YEAR.—With the beginning of the New Year, we all, more or less, from plans for the future. We revise the books of the past, and examine wherein we have committed errors. Let us strive to improve upon our experience. If we have been unfortunate in enterprise or speculations, let us see wherein we can remedy our mistakes. The world is made up, in a great measure, by haphazzards. We are all, to a great extent, governed by the ebbs and flow of the tide of fortune. Should you wish to "take it at its flood," you cannot do better than to enclose $10, 85, or $24, to Wood, Eddy & Co., Wilmington Delaware, or to the same firm at Augusta, Georgia. These gentlemen are the proprietors of the legalised lotteries of these States—secured by charter of their respectve legislatures—and previously under the management of Messrs. Gregory and Maury, and Messrs. S. Swan & Co. The Holloway's Ointment and Pills—Frauds. There are no frauds so execrable as those which imperil health and life. Therefore the late attempts to disseminate counterfeits of the above-named great balsamic remedies are infinitely more detestable than the operations of the common forger. The victims of scrofula, eruptions, cancers tumors, sore legs, etc., throughout the union, look to the Ointment as the only element of cure. Sufferers from dyspepsia bilious disorders, affections of the bowels, etc., have an equally firm reliance on the Pills. What, then, should be the punishment of the miscreant who offers a pernicious salve in the place of the one and a vile drastic compound under the name of the other? In order to be sure you have the genuine article, see that the water-mark, "Holloway, New York and London," is on every leaf of the book of directions enclosing each.

THE MIGHTY HEALER!

Holloway's Ointment.

The free admissions of all Nations, as well as the verdict of the leading Hospitals of the Old as well as the New World, stamp this powerful remedial Agent as the greatest healing preparation ever made known to suffering man. Its penetrative qualities are more than marvellous, through the external orifices of the skin, invisible to the naked eye, it reaches the seat of the internal disease; had in all external affections its anti inflammatory & healing virtues surpass anything else on record, & is Nature's great ally.

ERYSIPELAS AND SALT RHEUM

Are two of the most common and virulent disorders prevalent on this continent, to these the Ointment is especially antagonistic, its "modus operandi" is first to eradicate the venom and then complete the cure.

Bad Legs, Old Sores, and Ulcers.

Cases of many years standing that have pertinaciously refused to yield to any other remedy or treatment, have invariable succumbed to a few applications of this powerful unguent.

Eruption on the Skin,

Arising from a bad state of the blood or chronic disease are eradicated, and a clear & transparent surface regained by the restorative action of this Ointment. It surpasses many of the cosmetics and other toilet appliances in its power to dispel rashes & other disfigurements of the face.

Piles and Fistula.

Every form and feature of these prevalent and stubborn disorders is eradicated locally & entirely by the use of this emolient; warm fomentations should precede its application—Its healing qualities will be found to be thorough and invariable.

Both the Ointment and Pills should be used in the following cases:

Bunions,	Mecurial Eruptions,
Burns,	Piles,
Chapped Hands,	Rheumatism,
Chilblains,	Ringworm,
Fistula,	Salt Rheum,
Gout,	Scalds,
Lumbago,	Skin Diseases,
Swelled Glands,	Sprains,
Sore Legs,	Stiff Joints,
Sore Breasts,	Tetter,
Sore Heads	Ulcers,
Sore Throats,	Veneral Sores,
Sores of all kinds,	Wounds of all kinds.

☞ CAUTION!—None are genuine unless the words "Holloway, New York and London," are discernible as a Water-mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each pot or box; the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detections of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicines or vending the same, knowing them to be spurious.

Sold at the Manufactories of Prof. Holloway, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and by all respectable Druggist and Dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes at 25 cents, 63 cents, and $1 each.

☞ There is considerable saving by taking the larger sizes

THE LIVER
INVIGORATOR!
PREPARED BY DR. SANFORD.
COMPOUNDED entirely from GUMS.

IS ONE OF THE BEST PURGATIVE and Liver Medicines now before the public, that acts as a Cathartic. It is not only a Cathartic, but a Liver remedy, acting first on the Liver to eject its morbid matter, then on the stomach and bowels to carry off that matter, thus accomplishing two purposes effectually, without any of the painful feelings experienced in the operations of most Cathartics. It strengthens the system at the same time that it purges it; and when taken daily in moderate doses, will strengthen and build it up with unusual rapidity.

SANFORD'S LIVER INVIGORATOR.

The Liver is one of the principal regulators of the human body; and when it performs its functions well, the powers of the system are fully developed. The stomach is almost entirely dependent on the healthy action of the Liver for the proper performance of its functions; when the stomach is at fault, the bowels are at fault, and the whole system suffers in consequence of one organ—the LIVER—having ceased to do its duty. For the disease of that organ, one of the proprietors has made it his study, in a practice of more than twenty years, to find some remedy wherewith to counteract the many derangements to which it is liable.

To prove that this remedy is at last found, any person troubled with Liver Complaint, in any of its forms, has but to try a bottle, and conviction is certain.

These Gums remove all morbid or bad matter from the system, supplying in their place a healthy flow of bile, invigorating the stomach, causing food to digest well, purifying the blood, giving tone and health to the whole machinery, removing the cause of the disease—effecting a radical cure.

Bilious attacks are cured, and what is better, prevented by the occasional use of the LIVER INVIGORATOR.

One dose after eating is sufficient to relieve the stomach & prevent the food from rising & souring.

Only one dose taken before retiring, prevents Nightmare.

Only one dose taken at night, loosens the bowels gently, and cures Costiveness.

One dose taken after each meal will cure Dyspepsia.

☞ One dose of two teaspoonfuls will always relieve Sick Headache.

One bottle taken for female obstruction removes the cause of the disease, and makes a perfect cure.

Only one dose immediately relieves Cholic, while one dose often repeated is a sure cure for Cholera Morbus, and a preventive of Cholera

☞ Only one bottle is needed to throw out of the system the effects of medicine after a long sickness.

☞ One bottle taken for Jaundice removes all sallowness or unnatural color from the skin.

One dose taken a short, time before eating gives vigor to the appetite, and makes food digest well.

One dose often repeated cures Chronic Diarrhœa in its worst forms, while Summer and Bowel complaints yield almost to the first dose.

One or two doses cures attacks caused by Worms in Children; there is no surer, safer, or speedier remedy in the world, as it never fails.

☞ A few bottles cures Dropsy, by exciting the absorbents.

We take pleasure in recommending this medicine as a preventive for Fever & Ague, Chill Fever, and all Fevers of a Bilious TYPE. It operates with certainty, & thousands are willing to testify to its wonderful virtues.

ALL WHO USE IT ARE GIVING THEIR UNANIMOUS TESTIMONY IN ITS FAVOR.

MIX WATER IN THE MOUTH WITH THE INVIGORATOR, AND SWALLOW BOTH TOGETHER.

The Liver Invigorator

IS A SCIENTIFIC MEDICAL DISCOVERY, and is daily working cures, almost too great to believe. It cures as if by magic, even the first dose giving benefit, and seldom more than one bottle is required to cure any kind of Liver Complaint, from the worst Jaundice or Dyspepsia to a common Headache, all of which are the result of a Diseased Liver.

PRICE ONE DOLLAR PER BOTTLE.

RADWAY'S REGULATING PILLS.

Dr. Radway & Co. have recently discovered a method for extracting from roots, herbs, plants and gums, a nutritions extract of such wonderful nourishing power—which they have combined with Radway's Regulating Pills—that six of these Pills will supply the blood with the same amount of nutrition as one ounce of ordinary bread; so that, while the system is undergoing a thorough physicking, and regulating process, it daily becomes strengthened.

Persons afflicted with Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Heart Diseases, Fullness or blood, and all Females who are subject to Irregularities, Hysteria, &c., are particularly recommended to use these Pills. They are pleasant to take—elegantly coated with gum—free from taste, and will not gripe, sicken or weaken the system, or leave the bowels costive.—Mothers nursing should likewise take one or two of these Pills once or twice per week.—They will not only keep your system healthy and regular, but will protect your infants against Cramp and Pains in the stomach, and insure not only a healthy child, but will invest every child, thus suckled, with a sweet disposition.

RADWAY'S REGULATING PILLS

Regulate each and every organ of the system, and correct all derangements of the Liver, Bowels, Stomach, Heart and Kidneys.

They Cure

Costiveness,	Indigestion,
Heart-Burn,	Dyspepsia,
