POETRY.

TAKE THE PAPERS.

Why don't you take the papers?
They're the life of my delight;
Except about election time,
And then I read for spite.

Subscribe, you cannot lose a cent—
Why should you be afraid?
For cash thus paid is money lent
On interest four-fold paid.

Go, then, and take the paper,
And pay to-day, nor pay delay,
And my word, it is inferred,
You'll live till you are gray.

An old newspaper friend of mine,
While dying from a cough,
Desired to hear the latest news,
While he was dying off.

I took the paper and I read
Of some new pills in force,
He bought a box—and is he dead?
No!—hearty as a horse.

I knew a printer's debtor once,
Racked with a scorching fever,
Who swore to pay her debt next day,
If her distress would leave her.

Next morning she was at her work,
Divested of her pain,
But she forgot to pay her debt,
'Till taken down again.

"Here Jessie, take these silver wheels,
And pay the printer now!"
She slept, and slept, and then awoke,
With health upon her brow.

I knew too men, as much alike
As e'er you see two stumps,
And no phrenologist could find
A difference in their bumps.

One takes the paper, and his life
Is happier than a king's;
His children all can read and write,
And talk of men and things.

The other took no paper, and
While strolling through the wood,
A tree fell down and broke his crown,
And killed him, "very good."

Had he been reading of the news
At home, like neighbor Jim,
I'll bet a cent that accident
Would not have happened him.

Why don't you take the papers?
Nor from the printer sneak,
Because you borrow of his boy
A paper every week.

For he who takes the papers,
And pays his bills when due,
Can live in peace with GOD and man,
And with the printer too.

To which—please excuse us, John A. L.,—we would add:—

But he who takes the paper,
And will not pay the bill,
Is fit for neither Heaven or Earth,
And ought to be in—Utah,

teaching Brigham Youngs children the science of pocking picket.—[ED].

Miscellaneous.

From the Diary of a Late Physician.

THE MERCHANT'S CLERK.

Many more such scenes as the one above described followed between Mr. Hillary and his daughter. He never left her from the moment he entered till he quitted his house on his return to the city. Threat, entreaties, promises—magnificent promises—all the artillery of persuasion or coercion that he knew how to use, he brought to bear upon his wearied and harassed daughter, but in vain. He suddenly took her with him into Scotland; and after spending there a wretched week or two, returned more dispirited than he had left. He hurried her to every place of amusement he could think of. Now he would give party after party, forgetful of his poor wife's situation; then let a week or longer elapse in dull and morose seclusion. Once he was carried by his passion to such a pitch of phrensy, that he struck her on the side of her head, and severely! nor manifested any signs of remorse when he beheld her staggering under the blow. But why stay to particularize these painful scenes? Was this the way to put an end to the obstinate infatuation of his daughter? No, but to increase and strengthen it; to add fuel to the fire. Her womanly pride, her sense of justice came—powerful auxiliaries—to support her love of the injured Elliott.—She bore his ill treatment at length with a kind of apathy. She had long lost all respect for her father, conscious as she was that he had acted most atrociously towards Elliott: and presently, after "some natural tears" for her poor mother, she became wearied of the monotonous misery she endured at Bullion House, and ready to fly from it.

Passing over an interval of a month or two during which she contined to keep up some correspondence with Elliott, who never told her the extreme misery, the absolute want he was suffering, since her father refused to give him a character such as would procure his admission to another situation, and he was therefore reduced to the most precarious means possible of procuring a livelihood. Miss Hillary, overhearing her father make arrangements for taking her on a long visit to the Continent—where he might, for all she knew, leave her to end her days in some convent—fled that night in desperation from Bullion House, and sought refuge in the humble residence of an old servant of her father's.—Here she lived for a few days in terrible seclusion; but she might have spared her alarms, for her father received the news of her flight with sullen apathy, merely exclaiming, "Well, as she has made her bed she must lie upon it." He made no inquiries after her nor attempted to induce her to return.

When at length apprized of her residence, he did not go near the house.—He had evidently given up the struggle in despair, and felt indifferent to any fate that might befall his daughter.—He heard that the banns of marriage between her and Elliott were published in the parish church where her new residence was situated, but offered no opposition whatever. He affixed his signature when required to the document necessrry to transfer to her the sum of money—600*l.*—standing in her name in the funds in sullen silence.

So this ill-fated couple were married, no one attending at the brief and cheerless ceremony but an early friend of Elliott's and the worthy couple from whose house Mrs. Elliott had been married.

Elliott had commenced legal proceedings against Mr. Hillary on account of his malicious prosecution. He was certain of success, and of thereby wringing from his reluctant and wicked father-in-law a very considerable sum of money; a little fortune, in his present circumstances. With a noble forbearance, however, and yielding to the entreaties of his wife, who had not lost, in her marriage, the feelings of a daughter towards her erring parent, he abandoned them; his solicitor writing, at his desire, to inform Mr. Hillary of the fact that his client had determined to discontinue proceedings, though he had the certainty of success before him; and that, for his wife's sake, he freely forgave Mr. Millary.

This letter was returned with an insolent message from Mr. Hillary, and there the affair ended.

A few days after her marriage Mrs Elliott received the following communication from Mr. Jeffreys:

"MADAM,

"Mr Hillary has instructed me to apprize you, as I now do with great pain, of his unalterable determination never again to recognise you as his daughter, or receive any communication of any description, from either your husband or yourself, addressed either to Mr. or Mrs. Hillary; whom your undutiful and ungrateful conduct, he says, has separated from you for ever.

"He will allow to be forwarded to any place you may direct whatever articles belonging to you may yet remain at Bullion House, on your sending a list of them to my office.

"Spare me the pain of a personal interview on the matter; and believe me when I unfeignedly lament being the medium of communicating such intelligence.

"I am, madam,
"Your humble servant
"JONATHAN JEFFRES."

With a trembling hand, assisted by her husband, she set down a few articles—books, dress, one or two jewels, and her little dog Cato. Him, however, Mr. Hillary had caused to be destroyed the day after he discovered her flight. The other articles were sent to her immediately; and with a bitter fit of weeping did she receive them, and read the fate of her merry little favourite, who had frisked about her to the last with sportive affection, when almost everybody else scowled at and forsook her. Thus closed for ever, as she too surely felt, all connexion and communication with her father and mother.

Elliott regarded his noble-spirited wife, and well he might, with a fondness bordering on idolatry. The vast sacrifice she had made for him overpowered him whenever he adverted to it, and inspired him not only with the most tender and enthusiastic affection and gratitude, but with the most eager ambition to secure her, by his own efforts, at least a comfortable home. He engaged a small but respectable lodging in the borrough, to which they removed the day after their marriage; and, after making desperate exertions, he had the gratification of obtaining a situation as clerk in a respectable mercantile house in the city, and which he had obtained through the friendly but secret services of one of the members of the firm he had last served. His superior qualifications secured him, a salary of 90*l.* a year, with the promise of its increase if he continued to give satisfaction. Thus creditably settled, the troubled couple began to breathe a little more freely; and in the course of a twelvemonth Mr. Elliott's poignant grief first declined into melancholy, which was at length mitigated into a pensive if not cheerful resignation.—She moved in her little circumscribed sphere as if she had never occupied one of splendour and affluence. How happily passed the hours they spent together in the evening after he had quitted the scene of his daily labours, he reading or playing on his flute, which he did very beautifully, and she busily employed with her needle! How they loved their neat little parlour, as they sometimes involutarily compared it; she with the spacious and splendid apartments which had witnessed so much of her suffering at Bullion House, he with the dreadful cells of Newgate! And their Sundays! What sweet and calm repose they brought! How she loved to talk with him after church hours in the fresh and breezy places, the parks; though a pang occasionally shot through her heart when she observed her father's carriage, he the solitary occupant, rolling leisurely past them! The carriage in which she and her little Cato had so often driven! But thoughts such as these seldom intruded; and, when they did, only drove her closer to her husband; ipsam to her, indeed—if it may be not irreverently spoken—of great price; a price she never once regretted to have paid.

Ye fond, unfortunate souls! what days of darkness were in store for you!

About eighteen months after their marriage, Mrs. Elliott, after a lingering and dangerous accouchement, gave birth to a son, the little creature I had seen. How they consulted together about the means of apprizing Mr. Hillary of the birth of his grandson, and faintly suggested to each other the possibility of its melting the stern, stubborn resolution he had formed concerning them! He heard of it, however, manifesting about as much emotion as he would on being told by his housekeeper of the kittening of his kitchen cat! The long fond letter she had made such an effort to write to him, and which poor Elliott had trudged all the way to Highbury to deliver; with trembling hand and beating heart, to the porter at the lodge of Bullion House, was returned to them the next morning by the twopenny post unopened. What delicious agony was it to them to look at to hug to their bosoms the little creature that had no relative on earth but them! How often did his little blue eye open surprisedly upon her as her scorching tear dropped upon his tiny face!

She had just weaned her child, and was still suffering from the effects nursing, when there happened the first misfortune that had befallen them since their marriage. Mr. Elliott was one night behind his usual hour of returning from the city, and his wife's anxious suspense was terminated by the appearance of a hackney coach, from which there stepped out a strange gentleman, who instantly knocked at the door, and returned to assist another gentleman in lifting out the apparently inanimate figure of her husband. Pale as death, she rushed down stairs, her child in her arms, and was saved from fainting only by hearing her husband's voice, in a low tone, assuring her that he was "not much hurt;" that he had had "a slight accident." The fact was, that in attempting most imprudently to shoot across a street between two approaching vehicles, he was knocked down by the pole of one of them, a postchaise; and, when down, before the postboy could stop, one of the horses had kicked the prostrate passenger upon his right side The two humane gentlemen who had accompanied him home did all in their power to assuage the terrors of Mrs. Elliott. One of them ran for the medical man who fortunately lived close at hand; and he pronounced the case to be, though a serious one and requiring great care, not attended with dangerous symptoms, at least at present.

His patient never quitted his bed for three months; at the end of which period his employers sent a very kind message, regretting the accident that had happened, and, still more, that they felt compelled to fill up his situation in their house, as he had been now so long absent, and was likely to continue absent for a much longer time; and they at the same time paid him all the salary that was due, in respect of the period during which he had been absent, and a quarters salary beyond it. Poor Elliott was thrown by this intelligence into a state of deep despondency, which was increased by his surgeon's continuing to use the language of caution, and assuring him (disheartening words!) that he must not think of engaging in active business for some time yet to come. It was after a sleepless night that he and his wife stepped into a hackney-coach and drove to the bank to sell out 50*l.* of their precious store, in order to liquidate some of the heavy expenses attendant on his long illness. Alas! what prospect was there either of replacing what they now took, or of preserving the remainder from similar diminutions? It was now that his admirable wife acted indeed the part of a guardian angel; soothing by her fond attentions his querulous and alarmed spirit; and, that she might do so, struggling hourly to conceal her own grievous apprehensions, her own despondency. As it may be supposed, it had now become necessary to practise the closest economy in order to keep themselves out of debt, and to avoid the necessity of constantly drawing upon the very moderate sum which yet stood in his name in the funds How often, nevertheless, did the fond creature risk a chiding, and a severe one, from her husband, by secretly procuring for him some of the little delicacies recommended by their medical attendant, and in which no entreaties could ever prevail upon her to share!

Some time after this her husband recovered sufficiently to be able to walk out; but being peremptorily prohibited from engaging for some time to come in his old situation, or any one requiring similar efforts, he put an advertisement in the newspapers, offering to arrange the most involved merchant's accounts, &c., "with accuracy and expedition," at his own residence, and on such very moderate terms as soon brought him several offers of employment. He addressed himself with a natural but imprudent eagerness to the troublesome and even exhausting task he had undertoken; and the consequence was, that he purchased the opportunity of a month's labour by a twelvemonth's incapacitation for all labour! A dreadful blow this was, and borne by neither of them with their former equanimity. Mrs. Elliott renewed her hopeless attempt to soften the obduracy of her father's heart. She waited for him in the street, at the hours of his quitting and returning to the city, and attempted to speak to him, but he hurried from her as from a common street-beggar. She wrote letter after letter, carrying some herself and sending others by the post, by which latter medium all were invariably returned to her! She began to think with horror on her father's inexorable disposition; and her prayers to Heaven for its interference on her behalf, or, at least, the faith that inspired them, became fainter and fainter.

Shad in the Alabama.—Within the last week, quite a number of white shad have been caught in set baskets, in the Alabama river, at this place. There is a great deal about these being the genuine white shad, which goes to prove, [illegible] can be transported from one [illegible] water to another. They have never been caught, this Spring are the Tallapoosa river, some years ago, by Col. A. J. Pickett and others, and deposited in the Tallapoosa river, at Fort Decatur.—Selma Reporter.

Speech of Hon. J. F. H. Curry

The CHAIRMAN. Upon the President's message, the gentleman from Alabama is entitled to the floor.

Mr. CURRY. Mr. Chairman, none of the opinions I shall utter will probably meet the approbation of a majority in this House, but I shall seek to challenge confidence, if not concurrence, by the manner in which I shall avow and discuss them. Much of what I shall say will not be new to those who have studied the questions, but it has been said, with much truth, that it is necessary for each generation to discuss anew the great problems of human speculation, which continually come back, after certain intervals, for reexamination.

Scarce a speech has been made or an essay written, for ten years, against slavery, in which the opinions of the early fathers of the Republic are not introduced. These, however, were but mere speculations, and were not ingrafted upon the organic law; and actual results are a safer standard by which to measure abstract principles. Besides, times have changed since this Government was first inaugurated as an experiment, not yet satisfactorily tested. Then there were but little over half a million slaves; and scarce a pound of raw cotton exported. In 1784, a vessel containing eight bags of cotton was seized at the custom house in Liverpool, on the conviction that so much cotton could not be the growth of America. In 1787, in the debate on representation, in the convention that framed the Constitution, Mr. Pinckney said:

"North Carolina, South Carolina, and Georgia, in their rice and indigo, had a peculiar interest which might be sacrificed."

Cotton was not mentioned, for in that year there were but one hundred and eight bales shipped from the United States. Now there are near four million slaves, worth $3,500,000,000; and of southern products, there were exported last year $200,000,000 and those exports enter materially into the comforts, necessities, and luxuries of the world. Last year the cotton crop of the South, was near four million two hundred and fifty thousand bales; $161,000,000 worth was exported. Bain, in his history of cotton manufacture, says:

"It is impossible to estimate the advantage to the bulk of the people from the wonderful cheapness of cotton goods."

And—

"The peasant's cottage may, at this day, with good management, have as handsome furniture for beds, windows, and tables, as the house of a substantial tradesman sixty years since."

African slavery is now a great fact—a political, social, industrial, humanitarian fact. Its chief product is king, and freights northern vessels, drives northern machinery, feeds northern laborers, and clothes the entire population. Northern no less than southern capital and labor are dependent in great degree upon it, and these results were wholly unanticipated by the good men who are so industriously paraded as clouds of witnesses against the institution.

Slavery has altered, and men's opinions have altered. It is now of tremendous significance and consequence. The interests associated with and dependent upon it are too momentous for it to be treated as an idle thing—made the football of politicians and fanatics, and its existence and security imperiled by rash counsels and rasher action. Involving and comprehending so much; being the source of wealth and power and greatness; contributing so abundantly to civilization and humanity, is it unreasonable that the South should demand its extension and protection, and exhibit sensitiveness at the threat to surround her "with a cordon of free territory, and to compel slavery, like a serpent in a ring of fire, to sting itself to death?"

The North has demanded expansion; and is now so urgent in getting rid of a superabundant population as to demand that the Government shall gratuitously provide free homes as an inducement to emigration. But for an outlet, subsistence would have pressed close on the heels of production, & there would have been that irrepressible conflict between capital and labor which excites so much apprehension among reflecting men, and of the disastrous harvest of which New England is now reaping the "first fruits" in the strikes at Lynn, Natick, Marblehead, and other neighboring towns. To deny future expansion to the South, is either cold, ferocious, malevolent cruelty, or it is a significant concession that our system is not subject to the same evils which afflict or threaten the more populous North. The South needs expansion, now or hereafter. The right, the liberty, must not be gainsaid or restricted. We legislate for the future. A decade, a century, may be but a span in a nation's history. He is a poor statesman, and worse philanthropist, who will do nothing for posterity because posterity has done nothing for him. Keeping the slaves, increasing rapidly, within circumscribed limits, while the whites diminish by emigration, is the inexorable effect or purpose of the merciless policy which denies to us expansion. The numerical ascendency of the blacks, or the vast disproportion of the races, with the exhaustion of the productive capabilities of the soil, will render emancipation certain, or slavery unprofitable, or the destruction of the white race probable, or the establishment of another Jamaica but a question of time, where, according to a late English work, (Trollope's) there are three hundred thousand blacks, seventy thousand colored people, and only fifteen thousand whites; and the African breed, through the parliamentary system and the electoral franchise, has the control of the Government.

This normal law or national being, this necessity of growth, must find due expression in our system, or [illegible] can be [illegible] the [illegible] to another. [illegible] been caught, this Spring are the Tallapoosa river, some years ago, by Col. A. J. Pickett and others, and deposited in the Tallapoosa river, at Fort Decatur.—Selma Reporter.

precipitate trend of anti slavery [illegible] in 1847:

"We should take the first [illegible] occasion which offers, to oppose the [illegible] of slavery."

And, in 1848:

"I shall oppose all such extension, at all times and under all circumstances, even against all inducements, against all limitations of great interests, against all combinations, against all compromises."

The Republican party, so powerful and well disciplined, harmonizes to-day solely in its advocacy of this one controlling, overmastering dogma.

All "territory," outside the limits of a sovereign State, "belonging to the United States," is common property, and every citizen has equal rights in and to it. It was acquired by the Federal Government for the common benefit of the States united. It is held by the Government, acting as the agent of the people of the several States, for their common use. The universal conviction at the South is, that we have the right to emigrate unmolested, with our slaves, to any Territory belonging to the United States. SEWARD and the Republicans say, "No; Congress, by positive legislation, must exclude us." Prominent men in the North, some of whom act with a more healthy organization than the Republican, say, "No; the Territorial Legislature, may lawfully exclude us"—only a question about the mode of exclusion, which is to be accomplished by either process. In one event, we are to be killed by the congressional garrote; in the other, by the more stealthy process of territorial poison. Bear with me, while to both I endeavor to apply the touch-stone of logic.

The doctrine of congressional exclusion is tersely and badly expressed in the Republican platform, which declares that "the Constitution confers upon Congress sovereign power over the Territories of the United States for their government; and that, in the exercise of this power, it is both the right and duty of Congress" to prohibit slavery in the Territories. The powers of the Federal Government are expressed in the grants of the Constitution; and, to authorize the exercise of power, it is not barely necessary to show the absence of prohibition, but an affirmative grant, or a "necessary and proper" implication from such affirmative grant.

What clause warrants the inference of such supreme power? The unsuccessful search of the bird sent out from Noah's ark typifies the effort to locate the exact clause which authorizes this gigantic aim of sovereignty. As Mr. Clay said of the constitutional power to incorporate a national bank, it is a vagrant power. Mr. Curtis in his argument in the Dred Scott case, had been called upon by the opposing counsel to point out the precise clause on which he based the power of Congress, and not to support an assertion of the power by citing the Constitution entire. "Their call," said Mr. Curtis, "shall be answered. I give them notice that my argument will be confined to the third section of the fourth article." And in his elaborate argument, as well as in his recent able pamphlet, he confined himself to that clause. Mr. Benton, in his review of the Dred Scott decision, scornfully repudiated the idea that that clause contained any such substantive power, and asserts that the Territories, as political entities, are never once mentioned in the Constitution, and the word "territory" occurring but once, and that as property, assimilates to other property—as land, in fact, and as a thing to be "disposed of—to be sold."

Most usually, however, the advocates of this power agree with Mr. Curtis and the distinguished gentlemen from Ohio, [Mr. CORWIN,] and base the assumption upon the power of Congress "to dispose of and make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territory or other property belonging to the United States." This clause was adopted without debate in the convention; and, says Judge Cambell, "was demanded by the exigencies of an exhausted Treasury, and a disordered finance, for relief by sales, and the preparation for sales of the public lands." It was little imagined that there was lurking under this apparently innocent verbiage a supremacy in Congress over the territory nearly equal to that claimed by the British Parliament over the colonies; and that Congress, when it exercised jurisdiction over this public property, could launch out into the shoreless, starless sea of discretion, determining the rights and disabilities of inhabitants, and disfranchising whole communities of their property rights. It is an assertion of the power to create and establish the social and political system of every new State; and hence the action of the Republican Legislatures of Ohio, Vermont, Connecticut, &c., instructing their members of Congress to vote against the admission of new States into the Union this session, in the recommendation of the Hartford convention, to curtail the slave power by preventing the admission of any more slave States.

In this clause, "territory or other property" is the subject, the corpus of the grant. The power given is to make needful rules and regulations for the property of the United States. The most common analysis of the phraseology shows that "territory is spoken of as one of the kinds of property. It is but a general, absolute, unlimited power, a plenary grant of legislative control over the property, the other clause in the Constitution giving exclusive legislation over the seat of government and places purchased for forts, magazines, arsenals, dock yards and other necessary buildings, is entirely unnecessary, if there was a quantum [illegible] and specific grant of [illegible] but was therefore granted [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

...ion, will the conclusion seems irresistible?—Congress can exclude slavery from every foot of the public domain, in Alabama or in Kansas, whether in the States or in the Territories. The power to make rules and regulations "applies as well to territory or other property" in the States as in the uninhabited wilderness. From this clause alone does Congress derive the power to dispose of the public lands, and this power operates in as well as out of the States. Towards the common territory, Congress cannot adopt any rule which is not common and uniform to every State, and has no rightful power to exclude property recognized by the Constitution of the United States, or by the constitution and laws of any particular State.

The claim of sovereign power over the inhabitants of the soil, as derived from the power to dispose of the soil, or lands, or territory, is a reenactment and revival of one of the essential facts and constitutive elements of the feudal system." That system blended sovereignty with property, and attributed to the proprietor of the soil, over the inhabitants, almost all the rights we call sovereignty, and such as are possessed by the Government. It ascribed to the possessor of the fief all the rights of the public power, and the proprietor of the soil could enact laws, impose taxes, and render justice. Guizot, in his history of civilization in France, says the feudal regime was considered by the mass of the population as an enemy to be fought and exterminated at every hazard. From its origin to its destruction, from its epoch of splendor, and at the period of its degradation and decay, the feudal system was never accepted by the people. The Republican doctrine, deduced from the proprietorship of the soil, from the possession of real property, is as repugnant to all American ideas of personal rights and personal liberty—to the elemental necessity of the consent of a people to the existing Government—as feudalism was to France, when whoever struck a blow at it had popularity.

To this claim of sovereign power over the Territories, as derived from any source, I might, as against the Republicans, have conclusively interpose the decision in the Dred Scott case, wherein the act of Congress prohibiting slavery in the Territory was solemnly adjudged to be unconstitutional and void. The decision was full and proper, and essential. So satisfactory and grateful was it to the South, there is danger of forgetting one of the old State-rights landmarks. The Supreme Court is not to be regarded as the ultimate arbiter for the decision of all constitutional questions. Besides the fact, that the judiciary can only take cognizance of technical cases—and there are many political questions that cannot be drawn within its authority—it should never be elevated above the sovereign parties to the Constitution, who, as sovereign and independent States, having formed the compact, have the unquestionable right to judge of its infraction. The judiciary, as well as the Executive or Legislature, may usurp dangerous powers, and is alike subject to the ultimate right of judgment by the parties to the Constitution. To use the language of Madison's report:

However true it may be, that the judicial department is, in all questions submitted to it by the forms of the Constitution, to decide in the last resort, this resort must necessarily be the last in relation to the authorities of the other departments of the Government; not in relation to the rights of the parties to the constitutional compact, from which the judicial, as well as the other departments hold their delegated trusts. On any other hypothesis, the delegation of judicial power would annul the authority delegating it."

We accord to this decision a higher authority than that claimed for the ordinary current of judicial decisions, because the court, in this instance, was made the umpire of the question by express legislative enactment; and to its weight as an adjudication is superadded the authority of a law, admitted by its opponents to be not unconstitutional.

The second mode by which exclusion from the common property is to be accomplished, or the right of the South to expansion, is to be or may be defeated, is through the alleged power of a Territorial Legislature. This theory is of recent birth, and is differently explained and limited—sometimes not without confusion of ideas and misapplication of terms; but its zealous advocates press it, under euphonious and popular names, as if, like some quack medicine, with equally attractive nomenclature, it were the never-failing catholicon for all the ills that our body politic is heir to. It is an erroneous opinion that this mode of exclusion is advocated solely by a fragment of the Democratic party at the North. Not an instance can be cited, since 1850, wherein the Republicans or Free Soilers, whatever may have been their paper theories, have failed to vote for every measure practically carrying it out. During the Kansas controversy, various amendments were proposed and sustained by the Republicans, empowering the Territorial Legislature to exclude slavery, or construing the bill so as to recognize this power. I am informed that that party in Kansas, Nebraska, Minnesota, and Oregon, incorporated this doctrine in their platforms, and conducted their political campaigns on that issue. Once a Territorial Legislature was regarded as the creature of Congress, limited in its powers of legislation, as having no sovereignty, and as being wholly subordinate to the creative power. Its action was revisable; and a single act of Congress could sweep it out of existence. Its power being derivative, it must conform to the law of its being; and neither by direction or indirection could it transcend the powers of its Federal creator. Latterly, however, territory is only common property if then, until it is organized into a territorial government; when, by some legerdemain or locus pocus, it becomes a quasi or absolute sovereign, and is invested with the indefeasible right of self government. If, on any subject, the will of the Territory is not supreme, slavery is not the exception; for the great expounder of this new dogma asserts that a "Territorial Legislature can lawfully exclude slavery, either by nonaction or unfriendly legislation." This power is variously derived. From the alleged inherent power of self-government, resulting in ev... distinct political community, and ... Kansas-Nebraska bill, as in... Cincinnati platform. To ...ction, I have no answer ... the Attorney ... that it ...istency with the first ... squatter sovereign... the Slave ... Cal... ...ion into the ... on under the circumstances was the most unparalleled outrage ever perpetrated on a people pretending to be free. To the second source of power, I reply that, if found there, the South was most miserably duped in that famous measure of silencing agitation. What ever may have been the purpose of the framer of that bill—and he says in his contribution to Harper, that it was to remove any obstacle to the free exercise of popular sovereignty—it was supported at the South because of its repeal of the Missouri restriction, and because we thought we had secured a safeguard against territorial unfriendly legislation, by the provision rendering all such legislation subject to the Constitution of the United States, and by the further provision giving an appeal to the courts of the United States, in all cases where property in slaves was involved. If we were mistaken; this power to exclude slavery by unfriendly legislation—this squatter sovereignty covered up under ambiguous language in the Kansas bill, after the repeal of the Missouri restriction—is but a refined imitation of the barbarity of the petty Celtic tyrant, who fed his prisoners on salted food till they called eagerly for drink, and then let down an empty cup into the dungeon, and left them to die of thirst.

A territorial government is the creature of Congress; is provisional and temporary; and it is idle to pretend that it can usurp authority not conferred in the act of organization, and exercise power beyond the constitutional competency of its creator. Any argument drawn from the supposed analogy between such governments and the American colonies is imperfect and illusory, as most analogical reasoning is. According to the British theory, Parliament is omnipotent; and no American statesman has ever claimed over the Territories what has been claimed over the colonies—the power to bind in all cases whatsoever. The dependencies are essentially different, and are held by a different tenure. The British Government regards the colonial condition as permanent and unchangeable. Canada was a colony one hundred years ago. She is a colony now. Territorial governments are temporary and permissive public corporations; and the Federal Government leaves them to manage their local affairs, in the full control of their domestic policy, save as restrained by the limitations of the Constitution and the purpose of equal enjoyment, for which Congress, as the trustee of the common and joint property, holds and exercises its trusteeship. The colonies relied upon the charters received from the Crown as the guarantees of their freedom from oppressive interference by the mother country; and also upon revolution—the power to make good their claim to liberty by the bloody arbitrament of the sword. Our organized Territories are mere subordinate communities outside the limits of the States; held in pupilage and training, until prepared to take rank and position with sister confederate sovereignities.

If an organized Territory possess inherent rights of self government, and can, during its pupilage, fix and determine absolutely its social institutions, decide what shall and what shall not be property, and by unfriendly legislation exclude slavery, it is superior, in some respects, to a State organization; and it is gross tyranny not to pass the bill introduced by the gentleman from Illinois, [Mr. Morris,] providing for the election of all officers by the inhabitants of a Territory. We should forthwith abdicate our ill held power, and carry out to its logical consequences this doctrine of squatter sovereignty. Our laws appointing Governors and judges, our defrayment of the expenses of the government, and our claim of authority to repeal the organic act, and transfer the inhabitants to a different jurisdiction, are unauthorized and indefensible assumptions of control and superiority.

If a Territorial Legislature be sovereign, if it can exercise legislative supremacy while it does not violate the Federal Constitution, even, if its authority to that extent be unlimited, then, to use a solecism, it is more sovereign than a State government, and the difficulty presented in the case of Utah is remediless; for obviously it is contrary to this neoteric theory of popular sovereignty to repeal the act organizing the Territory, so long as nothing is done in conflict with the Constitution of the United States. In addition to the Federal Constitution, States are restrained by fundamental laws of their own imposing. Judicial, executive, and legislative powers are accurately mapped out, and their limits strictly defined; but under this modern political discovery, a majority in a Territory is absolute, save, as hindered by the prohibitions of the Federal compact, the Government may become despotic or anarchical, and outrages may be committed revolting to public decency, shocking to the moral sense, & subversive of personal and proprietary rights. A political theory involving such consequences is an instructive lesson against departing from established constitutional landmarks!

Every southern State has repudiated this doctrine of squatter sovereignty, and pronounced it a wrong, destructive of their rights and equality. Last summer it was announced and heralded by telegraph, that a distinguished candidate for the Presidency would not accept from the Charleston convention a nomination it tendered to him, if that convention should declare that slavery existed, by virtue of the Constitution in the Territories beyond the power of the inhabitants to exclude it. Whether conditions so defiantly prescribed will be accepted, remains to be seen. Certainly the nomination of such a man would be an indorsement of his doctrines, and a consternation of the platform, according to his views, to be carried into the practical administration of the Government; would be dishonoring to the South; demoralizing to the party succumbing to a menace, and a practical negatation of the right of southern citizens to emigrate to the common territory with that form of labor to which they have been accustomed. If the southern States have been sincere in their declarations of hostility to squatter sovereignty, or the claim set up the power of the Territorial Legislature to exclude slavery, they will insist upon a clear, distinct, and unequivocal repudiation of the heresy. It should be done in unambiguous terms, not susceptible of a double construction. We want no Villafranca treaties discussed in tedious Zurich conferences, but a manly and honest assertion of principle. However sincere ...may act, Alabama has spoken. For twelve years nearly every political convention, of all parties, held in the State, has condemned this doctrine of popular sovereignty, as applied to Territories. Between its advocates and her, there is a great gulf fixed, which the mechanical genius and inventive faculties of a presidential convention cannot bridge over.

Jacksonville Republican.

JACKSONVILLE, ALA.

April 5, 1860

☞JOSEPH WALKER, Paper Commission dealer, Charleston, S. C., is the authorized agent of this paper, to contract, receive and receipt for advertising and subscriptions.

☞We are authorized to announce GEN. JAMES B. MARTIN, as a candidate for Judge of the Circuit Court in this, the 10th Judicial Circuit.—Election 1st Monday in May next.

☞BARTLETT OWEN, Tax Assessor of this County, at his various appointments, will receive the names of persons who may wish to subscribe for the REPUBLICAN.

He is authorized to offer very liberal terms, and also to receive and receipt for subscriptions.

☞H. W. Box, Esq., Tax Assessor of St. Clair County, will receive and forward the names of persons who may wish to subscribe for the Jacksonville Republican. He is also authorized to receive and receipt for subscription paid to him.

CHARLESTON TRADE.—We have been much gratified to see from the various notices in the papers, that the trade of Charleston this Spring has exceeded the most sanguine expectations of its friends; and what is more gratifying, that all who have purchased there have been highly pleased with the superior quality and cheapness of the goods, exceeding in these respects their former purchases from northern cities.

If those who have traded there have done as well on a large, as we have on a small scale, we are certain they have no right to complain. We have heretofore purchased paper for Tax Books for this and several other Counties, at Philadelphia and New York. This Spring we sent an order for the paper to Mr. Joseph Walker, paper Commission dealer of Charleston We expected it to be at least as high as we had formerly paid; but to our agreeable surprise we found the price twenty per cent lower than that of Philadelphia and New York.

Again, we entreat all our friends to encourage the trade of Charleston, by continuing their orders through the Summer: and particularly recommend all who may wish to purchase paper and stationery, to forward their orders to Mr. Joseph Walker. From a long business and personal acquaintance, we can safely say, that they will find a worthy, correct and accommodating gentleman, and that they will be well pleased with the manner in which he will fill their orders.

ABERNATHY'S MERCHANT MILLS.—We passed through these Mills on Saturday last, for the first time, since the application of improved water power, and thorough renovation. Although we are not very well versed in the intricacies of machinery; we understood enough to see that everything was admirably and most conveniently arranged This mill is now capable of converting several hundred bushels of wheat into the finest quality of flour, per day. On account of its nearness, it is a great convenience to our Town and vicinity, and we heartily wish its liberal and public spirited proprietor, success and good fortune in its management.

Rome Steam Engine Works.

The attention of persons, who may wish to erect mills or machinery of any kind, is invited to the advertisement of this company in another column. Persons who have procured Engines and Machinery from these works, in this section of country, have been highly pleased with them, and find them as perfect in construction as any manufactured at the North.

In addition to their Steam Engines, they have constantly on hand Castings of Iron and Brass of almost every size and description, for Gins, Thrashing and Mining Machinery. Also cast iron railing of beautiful patems, for yards, cemeteries, &c.

The Messrs. Noble Brothers & Co. have become justly esteemed for their liberal, accommodating, just and upright manner of business. They warrant their steam Engines and other work to be equal to the best made any where, and not excelled in durability of construction. We sincerely hope their already liberal patronage from this section, may be greatly increased.

Sales of Public Lands—

The attention of pre-emption claimants, and those who may wish to purchase public lands, is invited to the advertisement of the sales of public lands, in todays paper. These sales embrace the lands which have heretofore been withdrawn from market, in consequence of donations of alternate sections to various railroads, and lying within six miles, on either side of said roads. The sales will take place at the land offices mentioned in the months of June and July next.

More New Goods.—We invite attention to the advertisement of Messrs Kahn & Fleischl, who have received their Spring and Summer Goods, and are now prepared to supply the wants of their friends and customers, and the public generally, from a stock, seldom surpassed in extent, variety and beauty.

We were shown, yesterday by the proprietors, and Mr. Dodson, Clerk, a large quantity of splendid silks, and other descriptions of Ladies Dress Goods, which we thought surpassingly beautiful, and some of which were of entirely new descriptions.

Their store room seemed crowded with goods, below and above, and we were informed that large quantities were yet to arrive.

Call upon them, and examine the quality and price their goods, and if you cannot be suited, you must indeed be very hard to please.

GEN. R. G. EARLE.

We understand that this gentleman, whose card appears to-day in our paper, is about to resign the office of Register & Master in Chancery, which he has filled for many years, with honor to himself & satisfaction to the community. He has proven himself to be one of the best of officers, and on all occasions where his office allowed of it, given evidence of great ability and high legal attainments. He is now recommencing the practice of the law and will devote himself exclusively to his profession, and we bespeak for him the position and success which his talents and experience deserve. He is, like most men of merit, modest in pressing his own claims, but may be fully trusted where the rights or honor of his clients are entrusted to his care.

☞OUR NEW JAIL, we believe is about finished, with the exception of some plastering and one door, and we presume will be ready for use in a few weeks. When finished, it is believed, it will be the strongest prison in the State, if not in the whole of the Southern States.

If the certainty of punishment is a greater terror to evil-doers, than its severity, this jail ought to exercise a salutary influence in the prevention of crime. And although it has cost the County a considerable amount of money, (between 17 and $18,000,) it will doubtless, in the long run be the best economy, not only in the prevention of crime, but in expense of guards, and removal of prisoners to and from other counties. There can hardly ever be any necessity for a guard in factany man who could break this jail would almost deserve to escape. It would be a fine thing if we could have Spencer back once more to try his hand a jail breaking.

Such a jail may save many a good citizen of Calhoun, from having a valuable horse or mule stolen. Horse thieves and such like artists, will soon learn, but not soon forget that we have a very safe place for their accommodation.

When it is entirely finished, we will try to procure from the Architect, G. W. Mathews, Esq. a full description of the building, which we have no doubt will be interesting to our readers, far and near.

Grape Culture.—We visited, on Thursday last, the vineyard, recently planted by Mr. Thos. L. Wakely, 2 miles north of this place. Mr. W. has selected a beautiful location, about half a mile east of the Rome road, about 200 feet above the common level of the valley. He has bestowed a great deal of labor in clearing and fencing the land, and has already planted, last year and this about 25,000 grape roots and cuttings. He has also a large number of cuttings set out for future planting. The location is a very favorable and beautiful one, situated to face the rising sun, and about half a mile west of Wakely mountain, which rises to the height of near 500 feet above the level of the vineyard. On the northern side, and adjoining his vinyard, is a handsome plot of ground for a residence, and for yard, garden, fruits, and ornamental shrubbery. Altogether, we have seldom seen a place, with which we were more delighted.

Mr. Wakely has entered into the experiment of the grape culture upon a liberal scale, and with a zeal and energy worthy of all praise. We sincerely wish the pioneers in this new, useful and profitable branch of industry great success; and hope to see the number of vinyards greatly increased in our vicinity in a few years.

Bank of the Empire State.—The Rome Courier of the 29th ult., says this Institution has recently passed into the hands of a new company, and will be entirely reorganized and established upon a solid basis of $200,000 cash capital. Arrangements will be made to place it upon an equal footing with the banks of Charleston and Augusta, and its bills will be received at par at their counties.

COUNTY SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT.—Last week we published a paragraph from an exchange in South Alabama, giving a synopsis of a law it said had passed the Legislature abolishing the office of County School Superintendent. We also saw the law itself, which had "approved February 14," to it. But, as such law was passed, and the office has not been abolished.

Huntsville Advocate

A AMERICAN CLERGYMAN.—In the town of Carthage, Leake county, there resides a family consisting of an old man, of the name of Beaver, and his four sons, who had often laughed to scorn the advice and entreaties of a pious, though very eccentric minister, who resided in the same town. It happened that one of the boys was bitten by a rattle snake, and was expected to die, when the clergyman was sent for in great haste. On his arrival he found the young man very penitent, and anxious to be prayed with. The minister calling on the family, knelt down and prayed in this wise:

"Oh, Lord, we thank thee for rattlesnakes! We thank thee because a rattlesnake has bit Jim! We pray thee to send a rattlesnake to bite John, and send us one to bite Sam, and one to bite Bill; and Oh, Lord, send the biggest kind of a rattle-snake to bite the old man; for nothing but rattle-snakes will ever bring the Beaver family to repentance.

DOUBLE MEANING.—A person who was recently called into court for the purpose of proving the correctness of a doctor's bill, was asked by the lawyer whether the doctor did not make several visits after the patient was out of danger." "No" replied the witness, "I considered the patient in danger as long as the doctor continued his visits."

A late number of the New Orleans Picayune publishes the following condensed tragedy as "a volume in eleven lines by Mary Forrest." The gem originally appeared in the New York Ledger, for which the proprietor gladly paid something like two dollars a line. "Mary Forrest" is Mrs. Freeman of this city, and of our most modest and meritorious writers—altogether too good for the "sensation newspaper" of the day:

O, Roland Wright,
There is mourning to night.
In the house down under the hill;
A child is born, and the babe is dead,
And the soul of its maiden mother is fled
And white and cold, and stark and still
Lie mother and child down under the hill;
Gray hairs are tossing to and fro;
Swayed by the fitful breath of woe.
A curse goes hissing out into the night
Whom is it seeking Roland Wright?

The whole five acts of the sad drama are there, and I know of nothing to match the gem in the way of suggestiveness, but the following lines of Sir Walter Scott:

"Gone was her maiden glee and sport—
Her maiden girdle all too short."

AN IMPORTANT DISCOVERY.—The Nashville Union announces the following important mineral discovery in Tennessee:

We are informed that four English miners from Mansfield and New Castle, England, have recently found, and opened a coal field on Obed's river, in Fentress county, in this State, belonging to Gen John B. Rodgers, consisting of one thousand acres of a solid coal bed, four feet thick, of the best article of bituminous coal, containing an extra quantum of gas and petroleum, the best they have found in the United States. It is on the margin of the river, and easy of access to Nashville by water. We understand a specimen of this coal, coked and in its natural state, will be in the Nashville market the coming spring. A specimen of the coke and tar may be seen in the hands of Prof. Safford, our State Geologist. This coal is overlaid in many places with fire-proof tile rock, suitable for making coke ovens, parapet wall, paving streets, covering houses, and the like, and may be obtained of any thickness from one inch to six, squaring right of itself, if desired, and can be tradsported to Nashville by water at a trifling expense.

General News by the Arabia.

EUROPE.

The Savoy question was the principal topic of discussion. Sardinia had consented for her inhabitants to vote on the subject.

Lord John Russell has stated that Austria and Prussia had concurred in the views of England. Russia had not yet replied.

The House of Commons had voted an address to the Crown approving of the French treaty. The amendments were rejected by a large majority.

It was reported subsequently that Sardinia had rejected Napoleon's programme for Italy.

The French troops had received orders to be ready to march on the first notice.

Experiments have been made in England with the Armstrong guns. The floating batteries used for the purpose were completely riddled by them.

The additional duties imposed on tea went into effect on the 7th inst.

The Western Powers promise to assist the Turkish Porte in his rights in Servia and the Danubian Principalities in case of an armed intervention.

In London, on Saturday, the funds revived, under the impression that France had modified her programme; and had offered joint aid to Turkey as an evidence of the entente cordiale existing between France and England.

The Preble at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, March 22.—The United States sloop-of-war Preble, is below with the prisoners taken from the Mexican steamers at Vera Cruz. All well on board. No farther news relative to the action.

Interesting News from Vera Cruz.

NEW ORLEANS, March 24.—The schooner Virginia Antionette, which left Vera Cruz on the evening of the 15th inst., has arrived here. Her officers state that the military conference, for the purpose of suspending hostilities with the forces under Miramon and Juarez, had broken up without any favorable result.

Miramon commenced a bombardment of Vera Cruz on the morning of the 15th, which was continued with unabated fury until the schooner Virginia left. The shot and shells were falling in the city, killing several, and doing much damage. Many shots fell among the shipping, under the castle, but without effect, so far as was known up to the sailing of the Virginia Antionette.

Two Spanish war steamers arrived at Vera Cruz on the 15th inst.

FABULOUS WEALTH.—The California mails bring the most astounding news of the richness of the Washoe silver mines. Potosi sinks into insignificance compared with the almost fabulous richness of Western Utah. The recent assays in San Francisco exhibit the extraordinary yield of $13,000 of silver and gold to the ton, and it is estimated that the yield of the veins already opened will amount to $10,000,000 for the ensuing year, and no possible conjecture can cover future developments. Thirty thousand Californians are patiently awaiting the disappearance of the snows to precipitate themselves upon this new country.

MOBILE AND COTTON.—A merchant of Mobile (a native of Connecticut,) thus writes of that city:

"The cotton receipts here this season will be over 800,000 bales—a value, say, of near fifty millions of dollars. You may judge this money, put in circulation, makes every interest prosperous here. The fact is, with my experience and observation for the past twenty years, I think no interest in the country so safe and permanent as the cotton interest, and of course all connected with it.

"By this time next year the Mobile and Ohio Railroad will be complete, and a trip to New York can be made in three days, and at about a cost per day equal to the price of board in a first-class hotel."

Indian Massacre in Oregon.

ST. LOUIS, March 20.—Advices from Oregon state that the white inhabitants of the Eel river settlements had attacked the neighboring Indian villages, and indiscriminately massacred three hundred men, women, and children.

Highest Peak of the Earth's Surface.—Humboldt, in his "Aspect of Nature," states that the highest peak of the earth's surface is Dwalagiri. It is 8,187 meters above the level of the sea. A higher has since been discovered, according to the "Annuaire" for 1860. It is Kenchinginga, on the western range of the Himalayas. It reaches the enormous altitude of 8,588 meters—about 28,200 feet.

Large Sale.—The Natchez Free Trader, of the 17th inst, says: "The largest sale ever made in this county was consummated yesterday. D. D. Withers sold out his place, in the lower part of this country, (900) acres of land, with improvements and 515 slaves,) to John K. Elgee, of Louisiana, for one million and twelve hundred dollars."

Reported for the Advertiser & Gazette.

LATER FROM EUROPE.

ARRIVAL OF THE STEAMSHIP BOHEMIAN.

COTTON DECLINED--MARKET DULL.

PORTLAND, March 27.—The steamship Bohemian has arrived from Liverpool.

The sales of cotton for three days previous to her departure amounted to 19,000 bales, at a partial decline of from 1-16 to ⅛.

Money market slightly easier.

Consols 94.

Later from Washington.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—The bill authorizing the different States with arms passed the Senate yesterday.

In the House, Mr. Garnett introduced a bill to enable citizens of the slave States to carry slavery into Kansas.

A Resolution was offered instructing the Judiciary committee to report a bill interdicting slavery where Congress has the power, which was negative by a majority of forty-six.

LATEST FROM CALIFORNIA.

NEW YORK, March 25.—The steamship Baltic has arrived from Aspinwall. She brings a small shipment of specie, which is caused by heavy investments in the Washoe mines.

MARKETS.

CHARLESTON, March 24.—Sales of cotton to-day 500 bales at unchanged prices.

MOBILE, March 24.—Sales of cotton to day 2500 bales, at irregular but unchanged prices.

NEW ORLEANS, March 25.—Sales of cotton to-day 500 bales, at easier and unchanged prices. Sugar steady at 6¼ to 7¾ cents. Flour very dull. Freights and exchange unchanged.

[Dispatch to the Charleston Courier.]

Items from New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, March 30.—Gov Houston, of Texas, is preparing for an immediate and extensive campaign against the Indians, and also threatens an invasion of Mexico, in case the Mclane treaty is not ratified by the Senate.

Com. Marin testifies that the Indianola had no flag hoisted when she made the attack upon his vessel.

ARRIVAL OF THE STEAMSHIP ARABIA.

NEW YORK, March 30.—The steamship Arabia, Capt. Stone, from Liverpool, Saturday, March 17, has arrived.

LIVERPOOL COTTON MARKET, March 16.—The sales of the week foot up 60,000 bales, of which speculators took 3500 and exporters 13,000 bales. The market, which was firm and quiet, opened with a declining tendency for Upland, but closed firm and steady.

GENERAL INTELLIGENCE.—The House of Lords has agreed to the resolution of the House of Commons, approving of the French Commercial Treaty.

The American ship Lady Suffolk, from Liverpool for Calcutta, had been abandoned at sea. Her crew was saved.

Switzerland has sent a protest against the annexation of Savoy to France—The vote of Central Italy is overwhelmingly in favor of annexation to Sardinia.

An insurrection in Naples is considered imminent.

The Paris Bourse closed dull at 68f. By means of the telegraph, news from Calcutta now reaches England in six days.

Later from Europe.

NEW ORLEANS, March 29.—The steamer Ware, from Vera Cruz, March 22, put into Berwick's Bay to day, short of coal. She comes here for supplies and ammunition, and brings further intelligence relative to affairs in Mexico.

The bombardment of Vera Cruz was continued until the morning of the 17th, when Miramon made an attack upon the city, but after a half hour's combat, was repulsed with considerable loss. The women and children, to the number of 2500, were in the Castle. The bombardment was resumed the same day with renewed vigor, doing much damage. One bomb bursted in the building occupied by the American Consul, which seemed a special mark for Miramon's sharp shooters.

On the night of the 19th, another assault was attempted, but quietly repulsed.

Gen. Caravajal's forces captured a convoy of fifteen wagons, near Jalapa. They were loaded with provisions and munitions of war, and had besides $2400 in specie. They were attended by guard of 700 men, which he put to flight, and were intended as reinforcements for Miramon.

Gen. Miramon raised the seige of Vera Cruz on the 21st inst., and withdrew with his troops in the direction of the City of Mexico.

On the 18th, after the capture of Miramon's steamers, Miramon sent a decree to the capital, confiscating all American property, and ordering Americans out of the country.

Congressional.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—SENATE. Mr. Clay, of Ala., made a favorable report upon the bill levying tonnage duties upon all craft navigating the Mississippi River, to be expended in the improvement of the bar at pass a l'Outre.

A resolution for a recess of a month during the coming Conventions was rejected.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.—President Buchanan sent in a message, denying the right to investigate his conduct, except by a charge and impeachment. This fell like a bombshell among the Black Republicans, who fiercely attacked the message and the President. He was ably defended by Messrs. Bocock, of Va., and Craige and Winslow, of North Colina. It was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

WASHINGTON March. 30.—SENATE. The session was almost entirely occupied in the consideration of private bills.

A bill passed providing for the return of unpaid letters to their writers.

Replies to the despatches of the naval officers in command of U. S. vessels in the Gulf of Mexico, relate to the capture of Miramon's steamers, have been forwarded. It is understood that the Navy Department approves the course of conduct pursued by them.

In the House of Representatives the Pacific Telegraph Bill was discussed.

Savannah Cotton Market.

SAVANNAH, March 29.—The market is depressed; sales to-day of 660 bales. The sales of the week sum up 3800 bales, and the receipts 8000 The stock on hand is 53,350 bales.

SAVANNAH, March 30.—There was an improved demand manifest in the Cotton market this morning, especially upon the poorer grades, which resulted in the sale of 1600 bales.

"My wife," said a critic, is the most even tempered person in the world she is always mad."

"I've risen from the bar to the bench said a lawyer, on quitting the profession and taking up shoemaking.

AYER'S

Ague Cure.

FOR the SPEEDY CURE of Intermittent Fever or Fever and Ague, Remittent Fever, Chill and Fever, Ague, Periodical Headache, Bilious Headache, and Bilious Fever, hence for the whole class of diseases originating in biliary derangement, caused by the Malaria of miasmatic countries.

No one remedy is more called for by the necessities of the American people than a sure and safe cure for Fever and Ague. But we are now enabled to offer, with a perfect certainty that it will eradicate the disease and with assurance founded on proof, that no harm can arise from its use in any quantity.

That which protects from or prevents disorder must be of immense service in the communities where it prevails. Prevention better than cure, for the patient escapes the risk which he must run in violent attacks of this baleful distemper. This "CURE" expels the miasmatic poison of FEVER AND AGUE from the system and prevents the development of the disease, if taken on the first approach of its premonitory symptoms. It not only the best remedy ever yet discovered for this class of complaints, but also the cheapest. The large quantity we supply at a dollar brings it within the reach of every body; and in bilious districts, where FEVER AND AGUE prevails, every body should have and use it freely both for cure and protection. It is hoped this price will place it within the reach of all—the poor as well as the rich—a great superiority of this remedy over any other ever discovered for the speedy and certain cure of Intermittents is, that it contains no Quinine or mineral, consequently it produces no quinism or other injurious effect whatever upon the constitution. Those cured by it are left as healthy as if they had never had the disease.

Fever and Ague is not alone the consequent of the miasmatic poison. A great variety of disorders arise from its irritation, among which are Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Headache, Blindness, Toothache, Earache, Catarrh, Asthma, Palpitation, Painful Affection of the Spleen, Hysterics, Pain in the Bowels, Colic, Paralysis, and Derangement of the Stomach, all of which, when originating in this cause, yield to the specific action of this remedy.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

FOR ALL THE PURPOSES OF A FAMILY PHYSICIAN

are so composed that disease within the range of their action can rarely withstand or evade them. Their penetrating properties search, and cleanse, and invigorate every portion of the human organism, correcting its diseased action, and restoring its healthy vitalities. As a consequence of these properties, the invalid who is bowed down with pain or physical debility is astonished to find health or energy restored by a remedy at once so simple and inviting.

Not only do they cure the every-day complaints of every body, but also many formidable and dangerous diseases. The agent below named is pleased to furnish gratis my American Almanac containing certificates of their cures and direction for their use in the following complaints: Costiveness, Heartburn, Headache arising from disorders of the Stomach, Nausea, Indigestion, Pain in and Morbid Inaction of the Bowels, Flatulency, Loss of Appetite, Jaundice, and other Hundred complaints arising from a low state of the body or obstruction of its functions. They are an excellent alterative or the renovation of the blood and the restoration of tone and strength to the system debilitated by disease.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

FOR THE RAPID CURE OF

Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Hoarseness, Croup, Bronchitis, Incipient Consumption, and for the relief of Consumptive Patients in advanced stages of the disease.

So wide is the field of its usefulness and so numerous are the cases of its cures, that almost every section of country abounds in persons publicly known, who have been restored from alarming and even desperate diseases of the lungs by its use. When once tried, its superiority over every other medicine of its kind is too apparent to escape detection, and where its virtues are known, it is idle to longer hesitate what antidote to employ in the distressing and dangerous affections of the pulmonary organs that are incident to our climate. While many inferior remedies thrust upon the community have failed and been discarded, the ones gained friends by every trial, conferred benefits on the afflicted they can never forget, and procured cures too numerous and too remarkable to be forgotten.

Economy & Progression.

In this, the age of advancement, many things new and invaluable have been introduced—not the phantoms and chimeras of other ages, but new ones of sound and practical utility. In no department is progression better marked or more visibly to be seen than in the medical, when originating with competent men, and confined to scientific limits. Precisely of that character are the following remedial agents; none will prove more efficient, or are so often needed.

DR. LITTLE'S ANODYNE COUGH DROPS.

A new and certain cure for Coughs, Asthma Pain in the Breast; also Croup, Whooping Cough, Colds etc., among children.

This is a pleasant medicine to take,d reducing immediate relief, and in nine out of ten cases a prompt cure. It exercises the most controlling influence over Coughs and Irritation of the Lungs of any remedy known, often stopping the most violent in a few hours, or at most in a day or two. Many cases thought to be decidedly consumptive have been promptly cured by using a few bottles, and wearing the Little's Strengthening Plasters on the chest. As an anodyne expectorant, without astringing the bowels it stands paramount to all cough mixtures.

DR. LITTLE'S FRENCH MIXTURE.

This is prepared from a French Recipe (in the forms of No's. 1 and 2, the first for the acute, and No. 2 for the chronic stage,) that has been much improved upon in this country, & from its unexampled success is likely to supercede every other remedy for the cure of the diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Gonorrhœal, Blenorrhœal and Leucorrhœal or Flour Albus Affections. This extensive compound combines properties totally different in taste and character from anything to be found in the United States in Pharmacopœa or in private practice; and in point of safety and efficiency is not rivalled in America.

DOLLAR VERMIFUGE.

Prepared and put up in bottles and vials, only by C. W. Little. In using, nothing else is required to relieve children of worms: and besides being one of the best and cheapest ever offered to the public, its frequent use in families will save much trouble and expense, as well as the lives of many children; for eight out of every ten cases generally require it.

DR. LITTLE'S RINGWORM & TETTER OINTMENT.

Hundreds of cases of Chronic Tetters, Scald Heads, and diseases of the skin generally, have been cured by this remedy, and since the introduction of the No 2 prepaation (being stronger) scarcely a case has been found that it will not effectually eradicate in a short time. For the cure of Cancerous Sores and Ulcers it is applied in the form of Plasters, and is almost infallible.

In addition, the Proprietor prepares, for the great convenience and certainty in prescribing, Strengthening Plasters, of the most superior quality, Improved Cook's Pills (an easy billious cathartic) Vegetable Pills (a mild cathartic to obviate costiveness) Antacid (for tightness and acidity of the stomach.) Tonic Bitters, etc., which will be sent on consignment if ordered.

Medicines, like everything else, are better and more economically supplied to the great mass of the people by merchandise than in any other way.

Physicians are referred to the 13th page of Dr. Little's phamplet, to the catalogue of medicines of the Materia Medica, that he uses in compounding his different remedies, and asked to say if they are not the chief reliance of the profession, as he himself has practised medicine extensively for more than ten years, before retiring to the drug business.

In more than two hundred places in Georgia, and in all the Southern States they are to be had; and as there are scamps about who are counterfeiting his remedies, by palming off their own or something else, by using the same or similar names (for no patent is wanted or secured amid the absurd patents of the day.)

N. B.—All orders and letters on business are to sent in future to LITTLE & BRO. Macon, Georgia, instead of Philadelphia.

TO THE PUBLIC.

Ever since my "Aromantic Schiedam Schnapps"—the purest and best Gin for medical purposes—became fully appreciated throughout this country, I have been constantly solicited by druggists, apothecaries, and large numbers of the most eminent physicians, in all parts of the Union, to add to my Gin importations pure Brandies and Wines, and to bottle them the same as I am and have been doing with the Schnapps; to seal with my seal and give my certificate guaranteying their undoubted purity.

I should long ago have endeavored to comply with the flattering requests, but I found it impossible to do so, especially in regard to the important articles of Brandy, Port and Madeira Wines, owing to the high prices in Europe, occasioned by short grape crops for some years. Happily for the success of my new enterprise, the grape crops for the last and the previous years were abundant.

Another point in my favor is this: the duty now on French Brandy is 70 per cent. less than it was when my medical friends began to solicit me to furnish pure Brandy and Wines. These favoring circumstances have enabled me to commence a new enterprise.—I have concluded to import Cognac Brandy and Wines, to bottle them for medical as well as to private use. I am well aware, from the bitter experience, the vile attacks, the misrepresentation of motives and enmity of dealers and mixers of bad articles which I met with & conquered in the case of my Schnapps before obtained its present proud pre-eminence over all other Gins, that the new enterprise will be attended with equal opposition more trouble, and involve an immense outly of capital. These difficulties and expenses will be much greater, because I shall have to encounter the malignity and enmity of countless thousands who are engaged in the liquor trade, and making fortunes by the manufacture of infamous imitations of "Brandy" made from poisonous compounds—their use being alike destructive to healthy human life, and of course speedy death to the feeble invalid, or those in whose behalf eminent physicians have urged upon me the importation of a pure, invigorating article of Brandy. I shall do so, in spite of all opposition, even that of the dealers and sellers of the stuff in bottles called "Brandy," of which millions of bottles are annually sold, and which is no better than the worst of poisons.

I am perfectly willing and well satisfied to embark in this new enterprise, and have no fears, no doubts about the most ultimate success for my self and the druggists and apothecaries in the thirty-three States, if they will heartily co operate with me in my efforts to drive out of use the vilest of compounds, called "Brandy," and replace it with the pure unadulterated article, which I will faithfully and truly supply.

The medical virtues of French Brandy need not to be told. The Brandy imported by me I will bottle, seal with my seal, my label, and add my certificate that it is of the first quality, and pure and unadulterated as when it left the distillery in France.

I will stake my reputation as a man, my standing as a merchant, and my tried commercial integrity, that what I pledge and certify to with my seal, my label, and my certificate is correct, and can be relied upon by purchasers in any section of the Union to which my Brandy may be sent. I have made arrangements with the best Brandy manufacturers in France, with those who have a world wide renown as the first Brandy exporters. I have selected four eminent firms who will ship me their Brandies. I shall not designate the article by any other name than Wolfe's Genuine Cognac Brandy. If I were to do otherwise it would be useless to then unprincipled persons, who are incessantly engaged in the nefarious traffic of imitating all valuable articles, would soon imitate and adopt my mark as a cloak under which to sell their compound of poisons to cover the vile imposition.

I am now prepared to receive and execute orders for Wolfe's Genuine Cognac Brandy addressed to me, No. 22 Beaver Street. Prices will be given to personal application, or in reply to letters.

In this circular I have thus far written mainly about pure Cognac Brandy; I have now to call your attention to other liquors and wines.

I am prepared to supply orders for "Jamaica Rum" imported and bottled by me; also Irish and Scotch Whiskey." The purity and genuineness of the last named articles, imported for "medical use?" I will also guaranty with my seal, my label, and my certificate.

I shall also import the purest and best "Madeira," "Port," and "Sherry" Wines for Medical purposes. These I also guaranty with my seal, my label, and my certificate

In conclusion permit me to add that I shall be happy to hear from those that this circular reaches, and who-se personal or pecuniary interests it may effect, in the combination of articles that I engage to supply. Should any such person visit New York—especially a Druggists, Apothecary or Physician—I shall be most happy to receive a personal call.

There is no importer who possesses more actual experience and knowledge of the importing liquor and wine trade than I do, I have been engaged in it over thirty years.

I have narrated some facts connected with my new enterprize for the particular information of those connected with the practice or the sale of medicines. If I am favored with the visits of any such, or by friends to whom they give letters of introduction to me, they can see with their own eyes, and test my truthfulness by their own observation.

I respectfully crave, for this Circular and its contents a careful and attentive perusal. I am, respectfully, your obedient servant,

The enterprising proprietor of

CHESTNUT GROVE WHISKEY,

(The Purest Medicinal Agent ever known,) has furnished the community a Stimulant, pure, healthful and invigorating, at the same time a mild delicious beverage. It is calculated to do away with the vile drugged stuff that is palmed off on the community, and which is injurious to body and mind. In addition to the certificates beneath, he has received a Diploma from the STATE AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY, and additional testimony from DR. JACKSON, of Boston, who testifies under oath to its absolute purity.

CERTIFICATES.

We have carefully tested the sample of Chestnut Grove Whiskey which you sent us, and find that it contains none of the Poisonous substance known as Fusil Oil, which is the characteristic and injurious ingredient of the wiskeys in general use

New York, Sept. 3d, 1858.

I have analized a sample of Chestnut Grove Whiskey, received from Mr. Charles Wharton, Jr., of Philadelphia, and having carefully tested it, I am pleased to state that it is entirely free from poisonous or deleterious substances. It is an unusually pure and fine flavored quality of whiskey.

JAMES R. CLINTON,
Analytical Chemist.

Boston, March 7th, 1859.

I have made a chemical analysis of commercial samples of Chestnut Grove Whiskey, which proves to be free from the heavy Fusil Oils, and perfectly pure and unadulterated.—The fine flavor of this Whiskey is derived from the Grain used in manufacturing it.—

POETRY.

[Written for the Ga. Temperance Crusader]

THE POET'S BRIDE.

RESPECTFULLY INSCRIBED TO F. H. G.

It was a summer's eve: the sun
And level with the mountain tops
The dying day threw golden kisses
On the tranquil lake, upon whose flow'ry
Banks the lovers met.
Beneath a high projecting cliff of hoary
Rocks, embroidered with a green net work
Of creeping vines, they sate in converse sweet:
His large and dreamy eyes intently fix'd
On her, whose wondrous beauty claim'd
His heart's deep love. Her cheek was pale
Nay paler than the little flower,
Which he, in playful mood had pluck'd
And placed amid the glossy braids
Of her dark hair.
Caressingly, one jewell'd finger lay
Upon his arm—then pointed to the dim
Expanse of that calm lake, where scarce
A ripple gleam'd to kiss the wanton breeze.
Thus woo'd its silver lips.
We did not hear her murmered words,
But watched her humid eyes, and saw
The gathering tear-drops fall like diamonds
From the satin fringe that veiled those eyes
Of love—but there were shadows
Of a darker kind—a grief uncon'd
By tears—which curtain'd, like a pall
Of rayless gloom, her widowed heart;
But this she kept from him; she dared
Not wound his noble love.
Yet, when in reverie wrapp'd, he'd often
Dream'd of her as fortune's child—while he,
Contrasted thus with her, did seem too poor,—
But that her father's frowns menaced
Their life-long joys, he had not thought,
For, hitherto, love's sky, to him, had seem'd
Intensely blue! [young
'Twas Emma's ears which heard her father
His gold at night. He loved the yellow God
And gazed at it with that ferocious joy
Which jackalls feel that follow up
The scent of blood!
A viper hissing from the pit of hell,
Had fastened on his soul, and fed upon
The roots of love, even to his heart's red
Core, and left him but the remnant
Of himself—a grovelling wretch—
A crawling worm—most hateful
In the sight of God!
Her fathers fiat she had heard;
Which was to her a stunning blow—
A funeral knell to all her hopes!
Torn loose from him, she saw but darkness
On the sea of life, and fragments
Of the ark of love adrift on every wave!
Oh, there is oft a dread suspense
Involving torture deeper far
Than certainty of present ill;
Thus Walter felt—then gently spake
To her:—"Darling, thou art not so just
To me as I can wish; nay love,
I wish no mercy now—'tis truth
I crave, tho', sometimes, that will kill!
But there is luxury in grief when shared
By one we love. I know thy spirit's
Arms are wreath'd around my soul,
And that sufficeth now to make me blest.
Tho' all the world did heap its frowns on me!
See love! Behold you fleecy cloud
Which slumbers tranquilly so near the moon:
My hopes are anchored far beyond
That fragile thing!
Believest thou that we will live, and love,
In that sweet life to come?
Thank God, I read thy answer from those
Quivering lips—and from those melting eyes
That meekly look above!
No; no! This is not all of life.
Else it were better had we never lived,
Since living, we are doom'd to love.
And yet 'tis sad, even in this little sphere—
This exiliade which merely opes to endless life,
To be bereft of that, for which, we mostly yearn,
It is the poorest recompense for breath,
If in the cup of joy, our sweetest drops
Have turn'd to gall!
I do believe that we will live and love
When all the stars reflected in yon wave
Have turned to dust!
'Tis true that we are girt by storms;
This world itself hangs pendant in the blackest
Clouds!—and yet, serenest skies do smile
And rainbows of unfading love—
Seen by the eyes of faith alone! [woe:
Come! I would share alike thy weal & My heart is swollen with this pent up grief
And I do feel that I would love to weep—
Yea, give thee tear for tear.
It will not be too much if I do drink
The dregs—since thou, so long' withheld
This cup for me."
Thus importuned, she gazed, at him awhile
With mournful eyes, and then replied.
"It is not meet that I should tell thee all,
Yet I may not disguise the truth,
To which, thou art entitled now—
Alas, my love, it was a hapless day
When first we met—for otherwise,
We had not loved, nor known the bitter pangs
Of this sad hour.
Thy name is hateful to my father's ear;
It writhes upon his lips, and is pronounc'd
With fierce, vindictive scorn!
He would devour thee with remorseless wrath
And fling me, as a thing accurs'd
From his embrace, were I to kneel,
And plead for thee again!
Oh, Walter! I can never love thee less—
Oh, I could die for thee!
But after this we must not meet again!
'Tis fate's decree and cannot be revoked.
Farewell! Thy name shall ever live
Upon these lips: and in the utterance
Of prayer it will be wings to faith!
It is the darkest hour before the dawn!
The Heavens do seem to frown on us!
Oh, 'tis most hard to part: the future
Has no charms—its sunshine, and its cloudless
Skies all, all is but sublimest
Mockery to us who part alas, to meet no more
While yet she spake, the cold dew
Beaded on his brow in large and glit'ring drops,
While tremors of convulsive woe crept thro his frame,
Then turn'd to leaden weights & froze
Like ice around his heart!
A moment more and she was gone
But he unconscious of the lapse of time—
Still musing, sate; his misty eyes
Intently fix'd upon the shadowy lake,
Whence low sad murmurs came, in muffle sobs,
Like mem'ries of blighted love,
Oh, there is in our sojourn here
One fatal pang, reserved for all,
Which curdles more than life-long woe!
Eternity is thus compress'd, and hell
Epitomized with all its endless
Writhings of tremendous pain! [love!
Sweet hope! thou art Heavens descending
Which builds a nest in human hearts;
And sometimes comes in seraph guise
To hover o'er life's broken shrines,
Repairing all the sacred wreck—
Yet lifting up the drooping head;
And fanning with thy radiant wing
The brow of death!
"A moment!" Oh, what interests prepoised
Upon that atom of affluent time!
A moment! and his lion spirit bounded
Forth in furious might! His lips
Where purple with sublimest scorn!
He stood erect, self balanced on a pedestal
Of lofty pride, and threw his gauntlet
High as Fame's dread Mount:
He swore to "win a name!" a name
That would outshine a miser's gold.
He had not felt till now the power of wealth
Nor yet the torture of a despot's frown,
Beneath whose golden heel his glorious
Manhood turn'd to dust Thus with an impulse
Of returning strength, he threw his sorrow
To the winds—nor look'd behind—
But onward press'd towards the goal!
'Tis but too true that man was made
To mourn;" but from this furnace life's
Pure gold is coined. Experience
Is a school of fire which burns
The swaddling rags from off the mind,
And purges it from earth's encumbering
Dross while Angels wait, on bright wings
Stooping from the clouds, to pilot
It above, to graduate in Heaven!
God's plan is but a scaffolding of sighs
And tears, by which we climb to Him!
We are but exiles here earth's narrow
Bounds do compass us like prison walls,
For tho, the world is beautiful,
And Heaven doth nightly sucker us
With its unfading wreathe of glorious star
Its galaxies of light ineffable
Still, we do weep: alas, the soul's
Fruition is not here!

Ten years elapsed:
A miser lay upon the couch of death—
No friend was near to soothe the poor old man,
But bags of gold were there. 'Twas thus
He died—while she his daughter, held
His withered hands and gazed at him
Through floods of tears while o'er his eye balls
Came the film of death
She was alone! The solitude of death
Threw down its blackets shadows on her heart,
And shrouded, with its drapery
Of midnight gloom, the longliness
Of that sad hour!
Walter Where was he Alas, for her,
Had too was gone but whither none
Could tell. Enquiry sought him far & near
And yet no tidings came conjecture
Died on every lip, and Walter's name
Did share the common — he was forgot
Even Emma's cheek grew pale with fear,
For she too felt that he was dead
Dear woman! Oh how placidly
She yields her's vest! Fe up whe rafter year
Of uncomplaining grief her hop s expire
In life's bright morn she culls the land west
Flowers, and waters them with constant tears,
And when they fade, she too lies down to die
It was a bright Autumnal day
When o'er the mountain's misty top
A traveller came, revisiting his native land
Yet none knew augat of him till Emma gazed
In his dark eyes and shriek'd aloud!
Their pale lips met,
And Emma was a poor's Bride

THE MERCHANT'S CLERK.

Mr. Hillary's temper had become ten times worse than ever since his daughter's departure, owing to that as well as several other causes. Several of his speculations in business proved to be very unfortunate, and to entail harrassing consequences, which kept him constantly in a state of feverish irritability. Poor Mrs. Hillary continued still a hopless paralytic, deprived of the powers both of speech and motion; all chance, therefore, of her precious intercession was forever at an end. In vain did Mrs. Elliott strive to interest several of her relatives in her behalf; they professed too great a dread of Mr. Hillary to attempt interfering in such a delicate and dangerous matter; and really had a very obvious interest in continuing, if not increasing, the grievous and unnatural estrangement existing between him and his daughter. There was one of them, a Miss Gubbley, a maiden aunt or cousin of Mrs Elliott, that had wormed herself completely into Mrs. Hillary's confidence, and, having been once a housekeeper in the establishment, now reigned supreme at Bullion Lodge; an artful, selfish, vulgar person, an object to Mrs. Elliott of mingled terror and disgust; this was the being that, of her father, probably daily suggesting every hateful consideration that could tend to widen the breach already existing between him and his daughter.—This creature, too, had poor Mrs. Elliott besieged with passionate and humiliating entreaties, till they were suddenly and finally checked by a display of such intolerable insolence and heartlessness as determined Mrs. Elliott, come what would, to make no farther efforts in that quarter. She returned home, on the occasion just alluded to, worn out in body and mind. A copious flood of tears accompanying her narration to her husband of what had happened, relieved her excited nerves, and she took child into her arms, and his playful little fingers unconsciously touching the deep responsive chords, of a mother's heart, she forgot, in the ecstasy of the moment, as she folded him to her bosom, all that had occurred to make her unhappy and add to the gloom of their darkening prospects. Closer and closer now became their retrenchments, cutting off every source of expenditure that was not absolutely indispensible. None ceasioned them, she told me, a greater pang than giving up their little pew in —— church, and breaking themselves Sunday after Sunday to the humbler and more appropriate sittings provided in the aisle. But was this their communion, their compact with poverty, unfavourable to devotion?—No—The serpent pride was crushed, and dared not lift his bruised head to disturb or alarm! God then drew near to the deserted couple, "weary and heavy laden," and "cast out" by their earthly father! Yes, there she experienced a calm, a resignation, a reality in the services and duties of religion, which she had never known when sitting amid the trappings and ostentation of wealth in the gorgeous pew of her father!

'Toadlike sat squatting at the ear'

They were obliged to seek a cheaper lodging—moderate as was the rent required for these they so long occupied—where they might practise a severer economy than they chose to exhibit in the presence of those who had known them when such sacrifices were not necessary, and which also had the advantage of being in the neighborhood of a person who had promised Elliott occasional employment as a collector of rent, &c., as well as the balancing of his books every month. Long before his health warranted did he undertake these severe labours, driven to desperation by a heavy and not over reasonable bill delivered him by his medical attendant, and of which he pressed for the payment. With an aching heart poor Elliott sold out sufficient to discharge it, and resolved at all hazards to recommence his labours; for there was left only 70 or 80*l.* in the bank, and shuddered when he thought of it! They had quitted this their second lodging for that in which I found them about three months before her first visit to me, in order to be near another individual, himself an accountant, who had promised to employ Elliott frequetly as a kind of deputy or fag. His were the books piled up before Elliott when first I saw him! Thus had he been engaged, to the great injury of his health, for many weeks, his own mental energy and determination flattering him with a delusive confidence in his physical vigour!

Poor Mrs Elliott also had contrived, being not unacquainted with ornamental needlework, to obtain some employment of that description. Heavy was her heart as she sat toiling beside her husband, who was busily egaged in such a manner as would not admit of their conversing together, when her thoughts wandered over the scenes of their past history; and anticipated their gloomy prospects. Was she now paying the fearful penalty of disobedience? But where was the sin she had committed in forming an honest ardent attachment to one whom she was satified was every way her equal save in wealth? How could her father have a right to dictate to her heart who should be an object of her affections? To dispose of it as of an article of merchandize? Had he any right thus to consign her to perpetual misery? To unite her to a titled scoundrel merely to gratify his weak pride and ambition? Had she not a right to resist such an attempt? The same Scripture that has said Children, obey your parents, has also said, Fathers, provoke not your children to wrath. But has she not been too precipitate, or unduly obstinate in adhering to the manner in which she had offended? Ought anything to have caused her to fly from her suffering mother? Oh, what might have been her suffering! But surely nothing could justify or extenuate the unrelenting spirit which actuated her father! And that father she knew to have acted basely, to have played the part of a devil towards the man whom he hated; perhaps, may, probably, he was meditating some equally desperate scheme concerning herself She silently appealed to God from amid this conflict of her thoughts & feelings, and implored his forgiveness of her rash conduct. Her agonies were heightened by the consciousness that there existed reasons for self condemnation: but she thought of she looked at her husband, and her heart told her that she should act similarly were the past again to happen.

So, then, here was this virtuous unhappy couple—he declining in health just when that health was most precious: she too, worn out with labour and anxiety, alas! to bring another heir to wretchedness into the world, for she was considerably advanced in pregnancy—both becoming less capable of the labour which was becoming daily more essential, with scarcely 40*l.* to fall back upon in the most desperate emergency Such was the dreadful situation of Mr and Mrs Elliott soon after the period of my first introduction to them. It was after listening to one of the most interesting and melancholy narratives that the annals of human suffering could supply, that I secretly resolved to take upon myself the responsibility of appealing to Mr. Hillary in their behalf, hoping that, for the honour of humanity, my efforts would not be entirely unavailing.

He had quitted Bullion House with in a twelvemonth after his daughter's flight, and removed to a spacious and splendid mansion in —— Square, in the neighborhood of my residence; and where—strange coincidence!—I was requested to attend Mrs. Hillary, who at length seemed approaching the close of her long protracted sufferings. Mr. Hillary had become quite an altered man since the defection of his daughter Lord Scamp had introduced him freely into the society of persons of rank and station, who welcomed into their circles the possessor of so splendid a fortune; and he found, in the incessant excitement and amusement of fashionable society, a refuge from the accusations of conscience, from the "compunctious visitings of remorse," which made his solitude dreadful and insupportable. I found him just such a man as I have already had occasion to describe him; a vain, vulgar, selfish, testy, overbearing old man; one of the most difficult and dangerous persons on earth to deal with in such a negotiation as that I had so rashly, but, Heaven knows, with the best intentions, undertaken.

"Well, Mr. Hillary," said I, entering the drawingroom, where he was standing alone, with his hands in his pockets, at the windows, watching some disturbance in the square, "I am afraid I can't bring you any better news about Mrs. Hillary. She weakens hourly!"

"Ah, poor creature! she does—indeed!" he replied, quitting the window, and [illegible] of the many beautiful [illegible] in the splendid apartment. [illegible] has been a good wife to me, a very good wife, and [illegible] thought and said so." Then hands into the pockets of his white waistcoat, he walked up and down the room. "Well, poor soul! she's had all that money could get her, doctor, however, and she knows it—that's a comfort; but it ain't money can keep death off, is it?"

"No indeed, Mr. Hillary," said I, "but even [illegible] would be a slave State yet and [illegible] mitigate some of its terrors. What a consolation will it be for you hereafter to reflect that Mrs. Hillary has had everything your noble fortune could procure for her!"

"Ay, and no grudging neither! I'd do ten times what I have done; what's money to me! Poor Poll, and she's going! We never had a quarrel in our lives!" he continued, in a somewhat subdued tone. "I shall miss her when she is gone. I shall, indeed. I could find many to fill her place if I had a mind, I'll warrant me: but I—I—poor Poll!"

* * "Yes," I said in answer to some general remark he had made, "we medical men do certainly see the worst of human life. Pain, illness, death, are bad enough of themselves, but when poverty steps in too—"

"Ay, I dare say. Bad enough as you say; bad enough!"

"I have this very day seen a mournful instance of accumulated human misery; poverty, approaching starvation, and illness, distress of mind. Ah! Mr Hillary, what a scene I witnessed yesterday!" I continued, with emotion; "a man who is well born, who has seen better—"

Better days—ah, exactly. Double-refined misery, as they would say in the city By the way, what a valuable charity that is!—I'm a subscriber to it—for the relief of decayed tradesmen! One feels such a pleasure in it! I dare say now—I do believe—let me see 200*l.* would not cover what I get rid of one way or other in this kind of way every year. By the way, doctor, I'll ring for tea—you'll take a cup?" I nodded; and in a few minutes a splendid tea-service made its appearance.

"Do you know, doctor, I've some notion of being remembered after I'm gone, and it has often struck me that, if I were to leave what I have to build a hospital, or something of that sort in this part of the town, it wouldn't be amiss."

"A noble ambition, sir, indeed. But, as I was observing, the poor people I saw yesterday—such misery! such fortitude!"

"Ah yes! Proper sort of people, just the right for to put into—them!—Hillary's Hospital. It don't sound badly, does it?"

Speech of Hon. J. L. M. Curry.

[Concluded.]

The true principle is, that if a master can go into the Territories or upon territory, his slave can accompany him; and neither Congress nor a Territorial Legislature can divest him of the title to his property. Just as soon as territory is acquired slave property is legal and constitutional, and no power can invalidate until a sovereignty interposes. The Constitution, proprio vigore and instanter, extends over the acquisition; and, in the language of Chief Justice Taney, in the Dred Scott case, "the right of property in a slave is distinctly and expressly affirmed in the Constitution" The condition of a negro is not changed by his entrance into a Territory. There is no law, constitutional, international, or local, which will make him a slave or a freeman. If he was a slave at the time of entering, he remains such; if free, his status is not changed. Slavery or freedom adheres to him on the territory belonging to the United States. There can be no law in a Territory excluding slavery, as there is no power having jurisdiction competent to emancipate or alter the condition of the negro. If a negro was a slave in a State, his servitude continues in a Territory.

Slavery is not anywhere, as asserted in the Harper Magazine article, "the creature of legal legislation," or she creature of local or municipal law. That it must be established and supported solely by positive municipal law, is a gross error, sustained chiefly by judicial dicta, which were irrelevant to a decision of the particular facts of the cases decided. No law, I believe, is found on our statute-books authorizing the introduction of slavery; and if positive precept is essential to the valid existence of slavery, the tenure by which our slaves are held is illegal and uncertain. A citizen of a southern State, or a slaveholding country like Brazil or Cuba, can carry with impunity his slave into any country where, by the laws thereof," slavery is not prohibited. The passage of a master with his slave through the territory of a non slaveholding State, does not change the condition of the slave, unless there is a legislative enactment to that effect; and the law of nations protects the master in transitu, enforces the law of the domicil, if that protection does not contravene public policy and the essential interests of the community. It is a well settled legal principle that a person born into slavery in a foreign State, would not be liberated by the accident of introgression into another country, where there was no law opposed to the existence of slavery. The law of nations recognizes the relation; and any interference with the rights of the master, without valid cause, by the authorities of another State, is a violation of that law. (See Judge Campbell's opinion in the case of Dred Scott vs Sanford.) Unless there is a positive prohibitory law in a foreign State, I can take my slave there, and have him protected. Mr. Webster, in his recently, by the Constitution, made correspondence in the Creole case, con- the supreme law of the land, recognized tended that property in slaves did not ized "property in negroes." The Government extra-territorially, and our Constitution of the United States discriminates, in several instances, in favor of slave States specially in favor of slave property, provides for its increase, for its tained the same doctrine. It has been frequently asserted in permanency, for its security; and Congress the slave was not included its representation in this body. It recognizes property in slaves, and in admitted a single British colony by no- Louisiana, and that there is not a Supreme Court has affirmed the statute in any slaveholding State, decision to emigrate to, and occupy with slaves, lizing African slavery, or constituting the common territory, and to remain the original basis and foundation of the- cognition and guarantee, protection to slave property. Mr. BENJAMIN, a lawyer and statesman, Judge Berrien argued, recognizes slavery in a free State, speaks of it in such free State as an actually subsisting debt of service or labor, and prohibits the discharge of the slave. If the Constitution recognizes slavery in Alabama, and guaranties it in a sovereign State forbidding emancipation, does it deny my title to a slave in territory which is common property?

The treaty of peace between Great Britain and the United States, signed at Paris, on the 3d of September, 1783, on the part of the United States by three northern men—Adams, Franklin and Jay—and which treaty was ratified unanimously, by the Constitution, made the supreme law of the land, recognized "property in negroes." If the Constitution recognizes slavery in Alabama, and guaranties it in a sovereign State forbidding emancip

The affirmative power to establish is not delegated, and there are no inherent powers in this Government. The power to abolish or exclude is not given, and the property character of slaves includes them within one of the positive prohibitions of the Constitution. All the power this Government has is to recognize as property, in the territories, whatever is recognized as such in the States; and, if need be—but not officiously and impertinently—to adopt such regulations for its security and protection as the nature of the case may require. Congress cannot abdicate its authority. If so, the executive and judiciary can do likewise. The Federal Government, through some or all of its departments, must recognize and protect what the States ascertain & determine to be property. War and treaties are made to defend, and are, in many instances, dependent upon what the States decide to be property. An American citizen whose slave property is invaded on the high seas can demand protection of his Government; a fortiori, when that property is endangered on territory belonging to the United States. In the language of a resolution adopted by the Alabama Democratic convention in 1856, and reaffirmed, in 1860—the sentiment of which was taken from the speech of a northern Democrat in this House—the South is entitled to the protection of its property in the States, in the Territories, and in the wilderness, where territorial governments are as yet unorganized. To refuse it is to deny her equality in the Republic, and to fail to fulfill the great purpose for which governments are ordained.

It may not be amiss to sustain this claim to protection by high authority. The President, crowning a long life of usefulness, patriotism, and devotion to the Constitution, congratulates the country upon the just settlement of the question of slavery in the Territories by the Supreme Court, and asserts the right of every citizen to take his property of any kind, including slaves, in to the common Territories, and have it protected there under the Federal Constitution. The Vice President, so justly popular with the American people, vindicates the same right. One of the most eminent lawyers of this or any other country, now an honored member of our highest court, in 1850 said that "the doctrine, that the Government, holding the power of peace and war, of making compacts and alliances, of acquiring territories and forming governments, owing no duties to the property of fifteen States or those Territories, is a proposition addressed to the credulity of the South, and which nothing but credulity can tolerate." Mr Calhoun, who stood—

"Like a great sea-mark, standing every flaw,
And saving those that eyed him," in his letter to Co'onel Benton, writing of the character and object of the Government, says:

"Its power and authority having for their object the more perfect protection and promotion of the rights and safety of each and all, it is bound to protect, by their united power, the safety, the rights, the property, and the interests of the citizens of all, wherever its authority extends. That was the object for confering whatever power and authority it has; and if it fails to fulfil that, it fails to perform the duty for which it was created. It is enough for it to know, that it is the right, interest, or property, of a citizen of one of the States, to make it its duty to protect it, whether in the Territories or on the high seas, or anywhere else. Its power and authority were conferred on it not to establish or abolish property or right of any description, but to protect them."

The resolutions of the Senate caucus, which were called for by the exigencies of the times, and which are sustained by every Democratic Senator but two, concede the same right of protection.

It is objected by some to this claim for Federal protection, that it necessarily involves or concedes the right of congressional prohibition. Nothing can be more illogical than to confound protection with destruction—the power, by legislation, of facilitating the enjoyment of a right and of throwing obstructions in the way of the exercise of such a right. Numerous instances will readily occur to any thoughtful mind, where Congress has the power of affirmative without the power of negative legislation Congress can make no law abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; nor depriving a person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor interfering with the trial of crimes by jury, except in cases of impeachment; but Congress can certainly legislate affirmatively to secure the enjoyment of, or remove obstructions to, these constitutional prerogatives. If the right to hold slaves in a Territory cannot be interfered with prejudicially by Congress, it must assuredly can prevent its creature from accomplishing the same unconstitutional purpose by unfriendly legislation It is simply absurd to pretend that to destroy is to correlative of to protect.

A less consequential, but with some a more important objection to the claim, is its alleged inconsistency with non-intervention, as proclaimed in the Cincinnati platform. If this were true, I might simply say, "Grant it, and what then?" But it is not true, and the application of the same term to the States and this District, as to the Territories, demonstrates, without further argument, the baselessness of the charge. To restrict us to non action. I challenge the production of a line in the legislation of 1850, as applied to the Territories, in the Kansas bill, or in the Cincinnati platform, which can fairly be tortured into a relinquishment by the South of its right to protection. Non interference or non-intervention could mean nothing else than that Congress would abstain from questions over which it had no control; would neither establish nor abolish slavery; would not interfere to accomplish purposes of doubtful constitutionality.

Non-intervention, as used by some, is a shallow device, and means that the Federal Government is the enemy of slavery; that it ignores it, and will not recognize or protect it; and that it will not lend its power to uphold and sustain it. It is a shuffling, but disastrous, compromise between our right to protection, and the power claimed to cripple and abolish. It is a relinquishment of the duties of the Government, and an abandonment of our equality and manhood. Complete non intervention in reference to slavery, is aggressive action against us; is discrimination exceptional and adverse to slave property; is "accumulated and unequal protection to antagonist & rival interests." We entered the compact, and delegated the exercise of certain sovereign powers, that they might be used more efficiently for our protection and security. The Federal Government refuses to perform unfriendly legislation, or refuses to carry the claims of the slaveholder for redress to the proper tribunal, the slaveholders must establish a Government that will render adequate protection, or become an easy prey to foreign rapacity or domestic fanaticism." "If the slaveholder is to have no surrender of his fugitive slave, he must have an army or navy to guard his frontiers or coasts, and to punish the enemy who harbors his property. If the slaveholder can enjoy no share of the common property of the Union, he must be exempt from taxes and military contributions. Protection is the price paid by Government for the support of its citizens, and I can conceive of no disgrace more heavy, no degradation more bitter, than the denial of this right of protection, with a simultaneous claim for maintenance against the slaveholder.

It may be said that there are judicial questions and mere abstractions, which can be safely left to the future, to be determined as exigencies may arise. In a late memorable case, appeals have been made from the Supreme Court to popular prejudice and passion and interpretations of the decision form parts of political platforms. History is full of instances of judicial subservience, and political opinions very often control judicial conduct. The famous Somerset case, the direful spring of unnumbered woes, was decided under circumstances that reflect no credit on the moral courage of the eminent judge. The proposition of Senator SEWARD, to put the Supreme Court on the side of freedom, is fearfully admonitory of the influence of popular excitement on the judiciary. If I could lift my voice so as to be heard by the South, if she would heed the admonition of a loyal son, in tones of earnest entreaty, I would beseech her not again to commit the fatal mistake of yielding to party necessity what may be essential to future safety; not to concede a principle, which, however apparently abstract or impracticable, may, in the hands of hostility or fanaticism, prove a potent engine of mischief or destruction.

[The hour expired at this point, but, by unanimous consent, Mr. CURRY was allowed to proceed]

As said Pitt, on the East India bill:

"It would be folly in the extreme, that the principle once admitted would operate only on the present occasion. Good principles might sleep; but bad ones never. It is the curse of society that, when a bad principle is once established bad men will always be found to give its full effect."

Mr. Chairman, for what is the Democratic party contending? Is it for spoils and patronage, or for principle? Is this immense array of means, this combination of agencies, this drilling for the strife, but to win a victory, barren and fruitless and Pyrrhan? Are we to struggle for a President, merely to dispense executive patronage and feed a greedy swarm of leeches? This is of no avail, is mischievous, unless accompanied by practical results, by a triumph of principle. The election of a President, however pure and patriotic, will be as deceptive as Dead sea fruit, unless accompanied by a corresponding elevation of popular sentiment Sir, there is no strength in numbers, in a mere aggregation of men. A party must be animated by a common faith; be vitalized by principle; must embody imprishable truth; and its principles must not be mere exceptional maxims, politic and convenient forms, applicable only to temporary exigencies, and to be laid aside as a snake sloughs off its skin.

I have finished, Mr. Chairman, what I have to say on these questions, endeavoring to compress into one hour what, if properly elaborated, would have required several; but I cannot close without repelling an accusation which has been made on this floor, and at Chicago and elsewhere, that the President and the Democratic party, in favoring the admission of Kansas, with the Lecompton constitution, were endeavoring to fasten on Israel" upon the country, and coerce a constitution upon the people of Kansas against their will." One Senator, [Mr. DOUGLAS,] who was most conspicuous in his hostility to the Administration, and his warefare on the Democratic organization, while recording his own services, and fighting the battle against such an "arrogant demand," and against the consummation of such a "fraud" as the admission of Kansas congratulated his Republican allies for the successful and valuable aid rendered in that contest against the Lecompton fraud."

The Kansas struggle has passed into history. Violence and wrong were committed on both sides, and there is much connected with the question discreditable to the country. As one member of the last Congress, I repeal with scorn all imputation, whether it come from Republican or disorganizing and recusant Democrat, of a purpose to "consummate a fraud," or "force" an unwilling State into the Union. It is demonstrable that the Lecompton constitution was legally and validly made and ordained as the organic law of the people of Kansas so far as they had power to institute a government. The "sense" of the inhabitants was taken upon the expediency of calling a convention to frame a State constitution. That decided in favor of the convention, and the Legislature passed a law authorizing the election of delegates, and, at a subsequently legal and fair election, the delegates were chosen. The country will not forget that there is no allegation of the slightest fraud, nor of a single illegal vote at any of the elections I have specified. Up to this time, there is no pretense of fraud or illegality; and the refusal of a majority, even to vote on the questions, does not affect the previous legal proceedings, and the right of a convention thus summoned to frame & ordain a fundamental law. I only interpose this brief explanation lest silence might be construed into acquiescence, into an unfounded censure.

The Alabama Legislature unanimously passed resolutions authorizing the Governor to call a convention of the State, in the event of the refusal to admit Kansas under the Lecompton constitution, supposing that these alleged irregularities were but flimsy pretenses to keep a slave State out of the Union. The President and the Cabinet, and the great bulk of the Democracy in Congress, including every Democrat from the South, sustained and favored the admission of Kansas under that constitution. It is too heavy an exaction upon party fidelity, too entire a surrender of personal manhood, to demand support at this time for the highest office in the world for any man who denounced with so large a majority of the Democracy desired & sought to accomplish, as "the consummation of a fraud."

St. Clair Democrat.

This is the name of a new paper, the first number of which will be issued in Ashville, St. Clair County, in two or three weeks, by Mr. Thomas J. Mangham, Editor and proprietor.

Mr. Mangham is a practical printer and has had considerable experience in the details of a Newspaper office, and we think we may safely predict that he will make a neat, useful and interesting paper. The Democrat will be in politics what its name indicates, and besides, have a portion of its columns filled with literary, scientific, agricultural and miscellaneous articles, original and selected, together with the commercial and current news of the day.

We hope that the good people of St. Clair County, who ought to have had a paper long since, will extend a liberal patronage to this new enterprize.

PIANO FORTES.—We invite the attention of our readers to the advertisement of A. H. GALE & CO., of New York, in another column. These gentlemen have largely increased their manufacturing facilities, and are now prepared to supply all orders promptly with their justly celebrated Instruments. They have constantly on hand a fine assortment of Pianos, and those wishing a first class Piano Forte at a moderate price will not fail to give them a call before purchasing. 107 East 12th street, New York.

Steamboats Burnt.—Two steamboats, the Cherokee and Calhoun, were burnt at the wharf in Rome, Ga. about 2 o'clock on Sunday morning the 1st inst. There was but little freight on board, but that little was lost. The Cherokee belonged to the Alabama company, and the Calhoun, ran above Rome, on the Oostanula river. Capt. Coulter and his little son were sleeping on the Calhoun, and barely escaped with their lives. Mr. D. C. Daniel, of Blue Pond also met with a heavy loss, in having papers burnt, belonging to estates of Williamson and Webber, amounting to $20,000 or $40,000.

Narrow Escape.—On Thursday last, as Mrs. Ellis Read was returning from the house of a neighbor, in a buggy in company with her sister, daughter, and a child some 2 years old, they got out to walk up a hill; two of them in front, one by the side of the buggy and the child on the seat; when about half way up, a tree fell across the horse's neck, killing him instantly. None of the persons were hurt, though they were all in a very few feet of where the tree struck, the child on the buggy seat, said to have been the most distant.

☞We spent a short time, on Friday evening last, at the Jacksonville Male Academy, at present under the superintendence of Messrs. Goodwin and Dodson We were pleased to find a full school, and all wearing the appearance of good discipline on the part of the teachers, and great attainment, laudable ambition and application on the part of the pupils. Messrs. Goodwin and Dodson, have given the most satisfactory evidence of their entire capacity to teach all the branches necessary in the academy, to prepare young men for any business, or for College, and deserve great credit for their zeal, industry and fidelity in imparting instruction. We sincerely hope they may continue to receive a liberal patronage, commensurate with their merits so long as they may be willing to continue in their very useful and honorable employment.

We also, on the same evening, visited the school in the neighborhood of Messrs. Abernathy and Douthit, at present under the charge of Miss. Sarah E. Williams. Here too we found an interesting school of young ladies, small girls and several small boys; but the school we were informed was not as full as usual. We listened to some recitations, compositions and spelling, all of which were creditable to teacher and pupils. Miss W. is a young lady of only a few months experience as a teacher, yet from what we saw and have otherwise learned, we do not doubt her capacity to be exceedingly useful, both as a disciplinarian and in imparting instruction. She has our best wishes for her success.

☞We respectly invite attention to advertisement of the reception of New Goods, at White Plains, by C. G. Morgan & Co.

These gentlemen have been some years established in business, and are well and favorably known. They have laid in this spring a large and superior stock, besides having arrangements made to keep constantly supplied with fresh goods. They promise as much as their friends and customers could wish or ask—that is to furnish them with superior and fashionable goods, as cheap as any other house in the County. For whatever else you may wish to learn, respecting their goods, we advise you to call at their store and examine them.

A NEW ARTICLE.—Our townsman, Mr. J. H. Crawford, has been for some week engaged in the manufacture of a new kind of tobacco pipes, which seem to have decided advantages over those heretofore in use. They are handsomely turned of Curly Maple, Cherry, Dogwood, Mountain Ivy, Walnut, Red Elm, and other hard woods which are susceptible of a very fine polish and may be beautifully stained or colored, to suit the fancy. The stems are made of Hydrangea, or Seven Barks, a superior article for the purpose, without joints, and can be made of any length desired. After the first week's smoking, these pipes become charred on the inside and will not burn any further, always keeping perfectly clean, by absorbing the oil of tobacco, a very poisonous substance, which accumulates in pipes made of clay, stone, porcelian, &c.

Mr. Crawford, we understand, will keep a number of these pipes deposited at the Stores and Groceries of this place and in the surrounding country.

New Revelations About John Brown.

A correspondent of the Richmond Enquirer, writing from Harper's Ferry, expresses the opinion that the true character of the late invasion, or foray, of John Brown is very imperfectly understood, even in Virginia, where it occurred, and furnishes some curious information, in addition to what has already been made public. This information, elicited partly during the late trials of Stevens and Hazlett, and partly by means of other investigations, leads to the belief that the preparations of Brown were on a much larger scale than has been generally supposed, and the number of his associates much greater. The apparent folly and boundless absurdity of the enterprise, as attempted by him, have all along been difficult to reconcile with the shrewdness and intelligence which he manifested in other respects, and with the skill and prudence exhibited by him during his mischievous career in Kansas.

This difficulty can only be removed by supposing that Brown's expectations were founded upon a much broader basis of operations than the little handful of adherents captured with him in the arsenal at Harper's Ferry would indicate, and the writer in the "Enquirer" gives several strong evidences in confirmation of this belief. Brown stated to one of his prisoners—a gentleman of great intelligence and perfect veracity and reliability—that he would be reinforced, in the course of the day by at least 1200 men. Coppoe also remarked, in the presence of several of the captured citizens, that, although assistance had been sent for from Charlestown, yet that they (the invaders) would be sufficiently reinforced to meet it, before its arrival. It is in evidence, also, that when a body of armed men was first seen on the Maryland side of the Potomac, coming down the tow-path of the canal, there was a consultation and a difference of opinion between Brown and Stevens as to whether it was a party of their own friends or not. Stevens was sent out to ascertain, and it was then that he was shot.

The writer thus explains why it happened that these expectations of the marauders were disappointed:

"The question here may naturally be asked, why did not these expected reinforcements reach Brown, and what became of the men supposed to be assembled; or, according to the plan, intended to have been assembled in the vicinity of Harper's Ferry? The first query may be well answered by the fact, that the judicious movement of two parties of our volunteers and armed citizens, making together a considerable body of men on the Maryland side of the river, and the occupation of the Potomac bridge about the middle of the day, anticipated and overawed the concerted rendezvous at the school house, where the arms were placed as before stated; and, as to the second, a knowledge of the locality, at the western base of the uninhabited Blue Ridge mountains, will readily explain how a large number of men, approaching singly or in small squads, from different quarters, could have lurked there during the after part of the day, when the daring attempt had became hopeless; and during the night following scattered and resumed the character of harmless and unoffending citizens. In fact, several guns, blankets, and other indications of such an occupation of the mountain recesses were afterwards found there."

From all the circumstances brought to light since the transaction, it is therefore concluded that "Old Brown" was neither a fool nor a madman as regarded the preparations made for the execution of his wicked design. If the writer is correct, the affair was not so insignificant as it has been supposed to have been, and Wise was not so unnecessarily fussy about it, after all

Devlish Act of a Negro Woman.

We learned through a gentleman from Penfield, on yesterday that a negro woman belonging to James Lankford, of that place, becoming tired of life, threw three of her children into a well, said to be 65 feet in depth, and then jumped in herself.

"Curt." Lankford went down after them, and found her still living and not seriously injured; when he reached her she attempted to drown him, and it was only by main force that he subdued her and brought her up; the children were all dead.

She is confined in jail and will no doubt be hung as a murderess.

She assigned as a reason for the rash and inhuman act, that she wished to die, and didn't want to leave any of her children behind.—Atlanta Locomotive.

This earth is very beautiful,
Its Forests shaded green,
Its rocks & hills, its murmuring rills,
With mossy banks & flowers ranks
Of pale & deepest dye—
The earth indeed is beautiful
To every gazing eye.

"It is world is very beautiful. How often we hear this exclamation; and how often we ourselves give utterance to it! We all feel the effect of earth's varied beauties & even the unimpassioned express it. Indeed it is difficult for us to imagine an individual, entirely indifferent to the beauties of nature. Yes! God's works are so perfect, that they force praise to him, even from the lips of the unbelievers in his existence, or in their admiration of the works of his hands, involuntary & unintended praise to their maker is given. Dear Reader Lay aside this sheet for a few minutes, look out with me, and enjoy the beautiful scene before us. What wonderful beauty is stamped upon everything, in every direction surrounding us! Behold the beautiful outline of the trees, hills, and mountains, against the heevy sky! Notice the beauty of the shades of the forest livery and the verdure covering the hills! What graceful slopes in every direction meet our eyes! And the budding, blossoming, vegetation, how beautiful! We are indeed every-where surrounded by beauties. Having revelled a few minutes in the enjoyment of scenes within range of our vision, let us imagine others! Let us stand by the Sea and view the Ocean in all its majesty. See the rolling crested waves as they rise and come toward us! See them break upon the rocks and fall like a shower of diamonds, or roll until they are lost, over the white sand and shining pebbles. See them play with the tossing craft which ventures on its bosom! Beautiful indeed! Yes sublimely beautiful, is the vast, vast Ocean! Beautiful even in its wild fury, when its inky waves with crests of foam, rise like mountains to the sky! But let us now leave the Ocean to view another of earths beauties! Oh, how surpassingly beautiful is the clear, calm, beautiful lake! See the irregular indentations of the shore shadowed deep in its clear waters! those lovely Islands above and below the surface! No wonder the children in that tiny boat, are not afraid on such a peaceful sheet of water! The very fish are at play, and leaps into the air making tiny rainbows of the drops which fall from them! Yes; it is very beautiful, the peaceful lake! We will now take a different view of earths beauties! We will stand now upon the high mountain tops. What a sensation comes o'er us! Oh, how little are we, and all the works of man! We see a glittering spot in the distance, with a smoky cloud above it. That is a city! A city filled with such Pigmies as ourselves! A city! Great work of man! How small to us! The entire hopes of many are confined to that little spot. The entire worships of many are to the ruling Pigmies of that little glittering space! But how insignificant those things seem to us now, on this mountain top. Here we can bow to none but God, and in our very littleness as we shrink into ourselves, we pay involuntary homage to his greatness. Oh! the beauty, the surpassing beauty of the campaign below us! We see the thousand meanderings of a gliding stream, here widening into peaceful waters, there rushing over shoals, and again it is a cataract falling over ledges of rock! The plantations appear but as spots, in the vast sea of foliage below! and the neighboring peaks, of differing altitude in majestic stateliness seem with us to view the scene. We involuntarily say. This earth is so beautiful! and we wish that when in the city, and oppressed by the mountain loads of pigmy troubles, cares, toils and strifes, so weighty there, that we could be transported to the mountain top, to look down at all below us, and feel how vastly, wonderfully beautiful this earth is! We have viewed together now, the scenery around us, the mighty Ocean and peaceful lake, the gliding stream and earth's loveliness seen from the great mountains top, but we will not part company yet dear reader! Let us close our eyes, and imagine that by one fell stroke all these beautiful scenes are forever shut from our sight, a wall of darkness is between, through which we strive in vain to look. We can never again behold the outline of forest hills, and mountains against the blue above, varieties of shade and color are no more visible to us! Neither graceful slope of hills, or winding of streams, or indentations of shore will again be viewed by us! No view from mountain top! No looking afar o'er the waves; and even the beauty which surrounds our home shut out, that which the hand of Industry has added to the rural scene—the lines of fence picturesquely dividing the fields—the deep, rich color, of the freshly broken land—the pale green of the new grain field, and its fine contrast with the sedgy hill—all vanished except as memory with a yearning heart ache recalls the scene! We are blind! Yes blind! We grope our way among our fellow-men We avoid woods and shores as dangerous? The mountain top is no more for us! We grope our way among our fellow-men to shun the glances which fall upon us. Does sympathy, curiosity, scorn or anger beam upon us, it is all the same! We know no more the face of a friend. We are blind! Let us go farther together dear reader! Let us imagine that we had never beheld any of these beauteous scenes, that blind from childhood, though living in the midst, our eyes had never beheld them. What a darkened life! What a void—a blank it seems to us. No color! No outlines of scenery! No countenance of friend! No light!—No, life, we exclaim. A living death! we cry. "Total eclipse! No sun! No moon! All dark amid the blaze of noon." Let us try to feel what it is to be thus deprived of "Gods prime decree" and then bring to our minds, that in our own happy beautiful Alabama there are such! Yes! numbering into hundreds there are such! Where are they! do you ask? In next weeks paper you will find the answer, headed "where are they?" Where?

Fever and Ague,

JUDSON'S

Mountain Herb Pills.

ABOVE, we present you with a perfect likeness of TECUMSEH, chief of a tribe of the strange Aztec Nation, that once ruled Mexico. You will find a full account of him and his people in our Pamphlets and Almanacs—to be had gratis, from the Agents for these Pills.

The inventor and manufacturer of "Judson's Mountain Herb Pills," has spent the greater part of his life in traveling, having visited nearly every country in the world. He spent over six years among the Indians of the Rocky Mountains and of Mexico, and it was thus that the "MOUNTAIN HERB PILLS" were discovered. A very interesting account of his adventures there, you will find in our Almanac and Pamphlet.

It is an established fact, that all diseases arise from

IMPURE BLOOD!

The blood is the life! and when any foreign or unhealthy matter gets mixed with it, it is at once distributed, to every organ of the body. Every nerve feels the poison and all the vital organs quickly complain. The stomach will not digest the food perfectly. The liver ceases to secrete a sufficiency of bile. The action of the heart is weakened, and so the circulation is feeble. The lungs become clogged with the poisonous matter; hence, a cough—and all from a slight impurity at the fountain-head of life—the Blood! As if you had thrown some earth, for instance, in a pure spring, from which ran a tiny rivulet, in a few minutes the whole course of the stream becomes disturbed and discolored. So quickly does impure blood do its work, and leave its sting behind. All the passages become obstructed, and unless the obstruction is removed, the lamp of life soon dies out.

These pills not only purify the blood, but regenerate all the secretions of the body; they are, therefore, unrivalled as a

CURE FOR BILIOUS DISEASES,

Liver Complaint, Sick Headache, &c. This Anti-Bilious Medicine expels from the blood the inimical seeds of disease, and renders all the fluids and secretions pure and fluent, cleansing and resuscitating the vital organs.

Present indeed, is it to us, that we are able to place within your reach a medicine like the "MOUNTAIN HERB PILLS," that will pass directly to the afflicted parts, through the blood and fluids of the body, and cause the sufferer to brighten with the flush of beauty and health.

Judson's Pills are the Best Remedy in existence for the following Complaints:

Bowel Complaints,	Debility,	Impaired Weakness,
Coughs,	Fever and Ague,	Liver Complaints,
Colds,	Female Complaints.	Lowness of Spirits,
Chest Diseases,	Headaches,	Piles.
Costiveness,	Indigestion,	Sores and Gravel.
Dyspepsia,	Influenza,	Secondary Symptoms.
Diarrhœa,	Inflammation,
Dropsy,

GREAT FEMALE MEDICINE

Females who value health, should never be without these Pills. They purify the blood, remove obstructions of all kinds, cleanse the skin of all pimples and blotches and bring the rich color of health to the pale cheek.

☞ The Plants and Herbs of which these Pills are made, were discovered in a very surprising way among the Tetracera, a tribe of Aborigines, in Mexico. Get the Almanac of our Agent, and you will read with delight, the very interesting account it contains of the "GREAT MEDICINE" of the Aztecs.

Observe.—The Mountain Herb Pills are put up in a Beautiful Wrapper. Each box contains 40 pills, and Retail at 25 cents per box. All genuine, have the signature of B. L. JUDSON & CO., on each box.

DR. M'LANE'S CELEBRATED LIVER PILLS,

FOR THE CURE OF

Hepatitis or Liver Complaint,

DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increase on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for a rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness, the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. M'LANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them A FAIR TRIAL.

Economy & Progression.

In this, the age of advancement, many things new and invaluable have been introduced—not the phantoms and chimeras of other ages, but new ones, of sound and practical utility. In no department is progression better marked or more visibly to be seen than in the medical, when originating with competent men, and confined to scientific limits. Precisely of that character are the following remedial agents; none will prove more efficient, or are so often needed.

DR. LITTLE'S ANODYNE COUGH DROPS.

A new and certain cure for Coughs, Asthma Pain in the Breast; also Croup, Whooping Cough, Colds etc., among children.

This is a pleasant medicine to take,d reducing immediate relief, and in nine out of ten cases a prompt cure. It exercises the most controlling influence over Coughs and Irritation of the Lungs of any remedy known, often stopping the most violent in a few hours, or at most in a day or two. Many cases thought to be decidedly consumptive have been promptly cured by using a few bottles, and wearing the Little's Strengthening Plasters on the chest. As an anodyne expectorant, without astringing the bowels, it stands paramount to all cough mixtures.

DR. LITTLE'S FRENCH MIXTURE.

This is prepared from a French Recipe (in the forms of No's. 1 and 2, the first for the acute, and No. 2 for the chronic stage,) that has been much improved upon in this country, & from its unexampled success is likely to supercede every other remedy for the cure of the diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Gonorrheal Blenorrhœal and Leucorrhœal or Flour Albus Affections. This extensive compound combines properties totally different in taste and character from anything to be found in the United States in Pharmacopœa or in private practice; and in point of safety and efficiency is not rivalled in America.

DOLLAR VERMIFUGE.

Prepared and put up in bottles and vials only by C. W. Little. In using nothing else is required to relieve children of worms; and besides being one of the best and cheapest ever offered to the public, its frequent use in families will save much trouble and expense as well as the lives of many children; for eight out of every ten cases generally require it

DR. LITTLE'S RINGWORM & TETTER OINTMENT.

Hundreds of cases of Chronic Tetters, Scald Heads, and diseases of the skin generally, have been cured by this remedy, and since the introduction of the No 2 preparation (being stronger) scarcely a case has been found that it will not effectually eradicate in a short time. For the cure of Cancerous Sores and Ulcers it is applied in the form of Plasters, and is almost infallible.

In addition, the Proprietor prepares for the great convenience and certainty in prescribing, Strengthening Plasters of the most superior quality, Improved Cook's Pills (an easy bilious cathartic) Vegetable Pills (a mild cathartic to obviate costiveness) Antacid (for lightness and acidity of the stomach,) Tonic Bitters, etc., which will be sent on consignment if ordered.

Medicines, like everything else, are better and more economically supplied to the great mass of the people by merchandise than in any other way.

Physicians are referred to the 13th page of Dr. Little's phamplet, to the catalogue of medicines of the Materia Medica, that he uses in compounding his different remedies, and asked to say if they are not the chief reliance of the profession, as he himself has practised medicine extensively for more than ten years, before retiring to the drug business.

In more than two hundred places in Georgia, and in all the Southern States they are to be had; and as there are scamps about who are counterfeiting his remedies, by palming off their own or something else, by using the same or similar names (for no patent is wanted or secured amid the absurd patents of the day.)

N. B.—All orders and letters on business are to sent in future to LITTLE & BRO. Macon, Georgia, instead of Philadelphia.

Wholesale Agents, Dr. P. M. Cohen & Co., Charleston, S. C., McKesson & Robins, New York, & T. M. Cunningham, Selma, Ala.

This caution is rendered essentially necessary as large quantities of inferior and defective Linens are prepared, season after season and sealed with the name of RICHARDSON by Irish Houses, who, regardless of the injury thus inflicted alike on the American consumer & the manufacturers of the genuine Goods, will not readily abandon a business so profitable, while purchasers can be imposed on with Goods of a worthless character.

Analytical Chemists.

New York, Sept. 3d. 1858.

I have analized a sample of Chestnut Grove Whiskey, received from Mr. Charles Wharton, Jr., of Philadelphia, and having carefully tested it, I am pleased to state that it is entirely free from poisonous or deleterious substances. It is an unusually pure and fine flavored quality of whiskey.

JAMES R. CLINTON.

Analytical Chemist.

Boston, March 7th, 1859.

I have made a chemical analysis of commercial samples of Chestnut Grove Whiskey, which proves to be free from the heavy Fusil Oils, and perfectly pure and unadulterated.—The fine flavor of this Whiskey is derived from the Grain used in manufacturing it.—

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

POETRY.

IF WE KNEW.

BY RUTH BENTON.

If we knew the cares and crosses
Crowding round our neighbor's way,
If we knew the little losses,
Sorely grievous, day by day,
Would we then so often chide him
For his lack of thrift and gain—
Leaving on his heart a shadow,
Leaving on our lives a stain?

If we knew the clouds above us,
Held by gentle blessings there
Would we turn away all trembling,
In our blind and weak despair?
Would we shrink from little shadows,
Lying on the dewy grass,
While 'tis only birds of Eden,
Just in mercy flying past?

If we knew the silent story,
Quivering through the heart of pain,
Would our womanhood dare doom them
Back to haunts of guilt again?
Life hath many a tangled crossing;
Joy hath many a break of woe;
And the cheeks, tear washed, are whitest;
This the blessed angels know

Let us reach in our bosoms
For the key to other lives,
And with love towards erring nature,
Cherish good that still survives;
So that when our disrobed spirits
Soar to realms of light again,
We may say, dear Father, judge us
As we judged our fellow-men.

A Hundred Years to Come.

Where, where will be the birds that sing,
A hundred years to come?
The flowers that now in beauty spring,
A hundred years to come?
The rosy lips,
The lofty brow,
The hearts that beat,
So gaily now?

O, where will be love's beaming eye,
Joys pleasant smiles, and sorrow's sigh,
A hundred years to come?

Who'll press, for gold, this crowded street,
A hundred years to come?
Who tread you church with willing feet,
A hundred years to come?
Pale, trembling age,
And fiery youth;
And childhood, with
Its brow of truth:

The rich, the poor; on land and sea;
Where will the mighty millions be,
A hundred years to come?

We all within our graves shall sleep,
A hundred years to come;
No living soul for us will weep,
A hundred years to come.
But other men
Our land will till,
And other men
Our streets will fill.

While other birds will sing as gay,
As bright the sunshine as to-day,
A hundred years to come!

Miscellaneous.

The Stuffed Cat.

The Parisian papers tell singular stories, sometimes, and in such a style, too, that we are compelled to believe them Here is one of them:

An old rag-picker died, recently in Paris, in a state of abject poverty. His only relation was a niece, who lived as a servant with a green-grocer. The girl always assisted her uncle as far as her means would permit. When she learned of his death, which took place suddenly, she was on the point of marriage with a journeyman baker, to whom she had been long attached. The nuptial day was fixed, but Suzette had not yet bought her wedding clothes. She hastened to tell her lover that the wedding must be deferred; she wanted the price of her bridal finery to lay her uncle decently in the grave. Her mistress ridiculed the idea, and exhorted her to leave the old man to be buried by charity. Suzette refused. The consequence was a quarrel, in which the woman lost her place and her lover who sided with her mistress. She hastened to the miserable garret where her uncle had expired, and by the sacrifice not only of her wedding attire, but nearly all the rest of her slender wardrobe, she had the old man decently interred.

Her pious task fulfilled, she sat alone in her uncle's room weeping bitterly, when the master of her faithless lover, a good looking, young man, entered, "So, my Suzette, I find you have lost your place," said he; "I am come to offer you one for life. Will you marry me?"

"I sir? You are joking."

"No, faith, I want a wife, and I'm sure I can't find a better."

"But everybody will laugh at you for marrying a poor girl like me.

"Oh! if that is your only objection, we shall soon get over it; come, come along, my mother is prepared to receive you. Suzette hesitated no longer, she wished to take with her a testimonial of her deceased uncle—it was a cat he had for many years. The old man was so fond of the animal, that he determined that death should not separate them, for he had her stuffed, and placed her on the tester of his bed. As Suzette took down puss, she uttered an exclamation of surprise at finding her so heavy. The lover hastened to open the animal, when out fell a shower of gold There were a thousand Louis concealed in the body of the cat, and this sum, which the old man had starved himself to amass, became the just reward of the worthy girl and her disinterested lover.

FORTY NINE CHILDREN DROWNED.—Mr. Brooks, editor of the Sunday Herald, says the St. Louis Republican, of the 18th ult., furnishes an account of the most tragical occurrence of which we have heard. He says:

That a most terrible calamity, rivaling that of the Pemberton Mills, occurred on Thursday last, near the town of Harden, Ill., on the Illinois river, and about twenty five miles above Alton. Fifty school children, in attendance at a university at that place, went out upon the ice to play. The ice gave way, and, with one exception, all were lost. Our informant was unable to give further particulars, but he represents that the village was a scene of universal mourning, almost every family in it having lost one or more of its members.

The Little Outcast.

"Mayn't I stay, ma'am? I'll do anything you give me; cut wood, go for water, and do all your errands."

The troubled eyes of the speaker were filled with tears. It was a lad that stood at the outer door, pleading with a kindly-looking woman, who still seemed to doubt the reality of his good intentions.

The cottage stood by itself on a bleak moor, or what in Scotland would have been called such. The time was near the latter end of September, and a fierce wind rattled the boughs of the only two naked trees near the house, and fled with a shivering sound into the narrow doorway, as if seeking for warmth at the blazing fire within.

Now and then a snow flake touched with its soft chill the cheek of the listener, or whitened the angry redness of the poor boy's benumbed hands.

The woman was evidently loath to grant the boy's request; and the peculiar look stamped upon his features would have suggested to any mind an idea of depravity far beyond his years. But her woman's heart could not resist the sorrow in those large but by no means handsome gray eyes.

"Come in, at any rate, till the good man comes home. There, sit down by the fire; you look perishing with cold;" and she drew a rude chair up to the warmest corner; then, suspiciously glancing at the child from the corners of her eyes, she continued setting the table for supper.

Presently came the tramp of heavy shoes, the door was swung open with a quick jerk, and the "good man" presented himself wearied with labor. A look of intelligence passed between his wife and himself. He, too, scanned the boy's face with an expression not evincing satisfaction, but nevertheless made him come to the table, and then enjoyed the zest with which he dispatched his supper.

Day after day passed, and yet the poor boy begged to be kept "only till to-morroww." So the good people, after due consideration, concluded that so long as he was so docile and worked so heartily they would retain him.

One day, in the middle of the winter, a peddler, long accustomed to trade at the cottage, made his appearance and disposed of his goods readily, as if he had been waited for.

"You have a boy out there splitting wood, I see," he said, pointing to the yard.

"Yes; do you know him?"

"I have seen him," replied the peddler evasively.

"And where? Who is he? What is he?"

"A jail-bird;" and the peddler swung his pack over his shoulder. "That boy, young as he looks, I saw in court myself, & heard his sentence, 'Ten months, He's a hard one; you'd do well to look carefully after him."

O! there was something so horrible in the word 'jail," the poor woman trembled as she laid away her purchases; nor could she be easy till she called the boy in, and assured him that she knew that dark part of his history.

Ashamed, distressed, the child hung down his head; his cheeks seemed bursting with hot blood; his lips quivered, and anguish was painted as vividly on his forehead as if the words were branded into the flesh.

"Well," he muttered, his whole frame relaxing, as if a burden had suddenly fallen off. "I may as well go to ruin at once; there's no use in my trying to do better; everybody hates and despises me; nobody cares about me; I may as well go to ruin at once."

"Tell me," said the woman, who stood off far enough for flight if that should be necessary, "how came you to go so young to that dreadful place? Where was your mother—where?"

"O!" exclaimed the boy, with a burst of grief that was terrible to behold; "O! I hain't any mother ever since I was a baby. If I'd only had a mother," he continued; his anguish growing more vehement, and the tears gushing out from his strange-looking gray eyes, "I wouldn't ha' been bound, and cuffed, and laid on with whips I wouldn't ha' been saucy, and got knocked down and run away, and then stole because I was hungry O! I hain't got no mother; I hain't got no mother? I haven't had no mother since I was a baby!"

The strength was all gone from the poor boy, and he sank on his knees, sobbing great choaking sobs, and rubbing the hot tears away with his poor knuckles. And did that woman stand there unmoved? Did she calmly bid him pack up and be off—the jail-bird?

No, no. She had been a mother, and though all her children slept under the cold sod in the churchyard, she was a mother still. She went up to that poor boy, but to lay her fingers kindly, softly on his head; to tell him to look up, and from henceforth find in her a mother. Yes she even put her arms about the neck of that forsaken, deserted child; she poured from her mother's heart sweet, sweet, womanly words—words of counsel and tenderness.

O how sweet was her sleep that night! how soft her pillow! She had linked a poor suffering heart to hers by the most silken, the strongest bands of love; she had plucked some thorns from the path of a little sinning but striving mortal.

Did the boy leave her? Never! He is with her still, a vigorous, manly, promising youth. The unfavorable cast of his countenance has given place to an open, pleasing expression, with depth enough to make it an interesting study. His foster father is dead; his foster mother aged and sickly; but she knows no want. The once poor outcast is her only dependence, and nobly does he repay the trust.

THE LONDON TIMES ON THE SLAVERY QUESTION.—The London Times, in a leader on slavery in the United States, and the revulsion in favor of the southern States, caused by the vagaries of the Abolitionists, says the union of the American people is not only of importance to themselves, but the world at large. It has been fully proved, not only on the American continent, but in our own colonies, that the enforced equality of the European and African tends not to the elevation of the black, but to the degradation of the white man. We cannot find any sympathy for those who could try in the United States the plan of a half-caste Republic, and we trust that the Federal government and the right-thinking part of the community will protect the South from a repetition of such outrages as that at Harper's Ferry.

Chamois-Hunter.

A chamois-hunter's life is regarded as the most enviable that can fall to the lot of man; and the daring climber the skillful stalker, and the sure shot, receives due appreciation on all sides. Among the most daring deeds of his life is the obtaining of the "Edelweis" —Gnaphalium Leontopodium—a flower met with only on some of the highest mountains in certain parts of Tyrol and Bavaria. It is much valued for the snowy purity of its color, as well as on account of the difficulty of getting it. The very name, "noble purity," has a charm about it, and strangely enough, it always grows in a spot to be reached only with the utmost peril. You will see a tuft of its beautifully. white flowers overhanging a precipice, or waving on a perpendicular wall of rock to be approached but by a ledge, where perhaps a chamois could hardly stand. But it is this very difficulty of acquisition which gives the flower so peculiar a value, and impels many a jager to brave the danger, that he may get a posy of edelweis for the hat or breast, of his lady love, and often has such a one fallen over the rocks, just as he had reached it, and been found dead with the flower of such fatal beauty still held firmly grasped.

The Land Beyond the Mountains.

BY HELEN BRUCE.

The little child was dying. His weary limbs were racked with pain no more.—The flush was fading from his thin cheeks, and the fever that for many day had been drying up his blood, was now cooling rapidly, under the touch of the icy hand that was upon him.

There were sounds and tokens of bitter, but suppressed grief, in that dim chamber, for the dying little one was very dear to many hearts.

They knew that he was departing, and the thought was hard to bear; but they tried to command their feelings, that they might not disturb the last moments of their darling.

The father and the mother, and the kind physician, stood beside dear Eddy's bed, and watched his heavy breathing. He had been silent for some time, and appeared to sleep. They thought that it might be thus he would pass away, but suddenly his blue eyes opened wide and clear, and a beautiful smile broke over his features. He looked upward and forward at first, then turning his eyes upon his mother's face, said in a sweet voice, 'Mother, what is the name of the beautiful country that I see beyond the mountains—the high mountains?"

'I can see nothing, my child," said the mother, "there are no mountains in sight of our home."

"Look there, dear mother," said the child, pointing upwards, "yonder are the mountains. Can you see them now? he asked in tones of the greatest astonishment, as his mother shook her head. "They are so near me now—so large and high, and behind them the country looks so beautiful and the people are so happy—there are no sick children there Papa, can you not see beyond the mountains? Tell me the name of that land."

The parents glanced at each other, and with united voice replied, "The land you see is heaven, is it not my child?"

"Yes, it is heaven; I thought that must be its name O, let me go—but how shall I cross those mountains? Father, will you carry me? O, take me in your arms and carry me, for they call me from the other side, and I must go."

There was not a dry eye in that chamber, and upon every heart there fell an awe, as if they stood upon the very vergo of eternity—as if the curtain which concealed its mysteries was about to be withdrawn.

"My boy," said the father "will you stay with us a little while longer? You shall cross the mountain soon, but in stronger arms than mine. Wait—stay with your mother a little longer. See how she weeps at the thought of losing you."

"Oh, mother. Oh, father, do not cry, but come," and thus he entreated with a strength and earnestness that astonished all.

The chamber was filled with wondering and awe-struck friend. At length he turned to his mother, with a face beaming with rapturous delight, and stretching out his little arms to her for one last embrace, he cried, "Good bye mother, I am going; but don't you be afraid—the strong man has come to carry me over the mountains."

These were his parting words: upon his mother's breast he breathed his last and they laid the little fair body down again upon the pillows, and closed the lids over the beautiful blue eyes, over which the mists of death had gathered heavily, and bowing by the bedside, prayed with submissive, though bleeding hearts, and said, "The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord."—Exchange.

We should do well to take counsel from the wise and warning from the foolish.

BEATEN TO DEATH.—The Aberdeen (Miss.) Sunny South, of the 22d inst., says:

"A man by the name of Henry Henderson, recently employed by Mr Timb flake, stage agent at this place, to drive the stage from here to Prarie Station, literally beat to death a negro man belonging to W. J. Gordon, at the last named place, on Saturday night last.—The negro, it seems had disobeyed some order given him by Henderson, when the latter took up a poll strap of the stage, weighing one and a quarter pounds, with a large buckle on one end, and gave the negro, as he said himself, about one hundred and seventy lashes, beating him into a mush from his thighs to his shoulders, and fracturing his scull. We do not know how long the boy lived after the whipping, but it could have been but a very short time, as he was found dead at the stable where he was whipped, during the night.

Henderson (who it appears is a New Yorker, and went to Aberdeen three or four weeks since with Van Amburg's Circus Company,) started to escape when he ascertained that the negro was dead, but was arrested and committed for trial. N. O. Delta.

THE MERCHANT'S CLERK.

BY SAMUEL WARREN, F. R. S.

"Excellently well. But the fact is"—I observed that he was becoming rather fidgety, but I was resolved not to be beaten from my point—"I'm going, in short, Mr. Hillary, to take a liberty which nothing could warrant but—"

"You're going to beg, doctor, now an't you?" he interrupted briskly; "but fact is, my maxim has long been never to give a farthing in charity that any one shall know of but two people: I and the people I give to. That's my notion of true charity: and, besides, it saves one a vast deal of trouble. But if you really think—if it really is a deserving case—why—ahem!—I might, perhaps—Dr.——is so well known for his charitable turn—now an't this the way you begin upon all your great patients?" he continued, with an air of supreme complacency. I bowed and smiled, humoring his vanity. "Well, in such a case—hem! hem!—I might, once in a way, break in upon my rule," and he transferred his left hand from his waistcoat to his breeches pocket; "so there's a guinea for you. But don't, on my account, name it to any one. Don't doctor. I don't want to be talked about; and we people that are known do get so many—"

"But, Mr. Hillary, surely I may tell my poor friends, to whom your charity is destined, the name of the generous—"

"Oh, ay! Do as you please for the matter of that. Who are they? What are they? Where do they live? I'm a governor of——." I trembled.

"They live at present in——street; but I doubt, poor things, whether they can stop there much longer, for their landlady is becoming very clamorous—"

"Oh, the old story! Landlords are generally, especially the smaller sort, such tyrants, an't they?"

"Yes, too frequently such is the case! But I was going to tell you of those poor people. They have not been married many years, and they married very unfortunately." Mr. Hillary, who had for some time been sitting down on the sofa, here rose and walked rather more quickly than he had been walking before. "Contrary to the wishes of their family, who have forsaken them, and don't know what their sufferings now are—how virtuous—how patient! And they have got a child too, that will soon, I fear, be crying for the bread it may not get." Mr. Hillary was evidently becoming disturbed. I saw that a little of the colour had fled from about his upper lip, but he said nothing, nor did he seem disposed to interrupt me. "I'm sure, by-the-way," I continued, as calmly as I could, "that if I could but prevail upon their family to see them before it is too late, that explanations might—"

"What's the name of your friends, sir?" said Mr. Hillary, suddenly stopping, and standing opposite to me, with his arms almost akimbo, and his eyes looking keenly into mine.

"Elliott, sir."

"I—I thought as much sir!" he replied dashing the perspiration from his forehead; "I knew what you were driving at! D—n it, sir, I see it all! You came here to insult me, you did, sir!" His agitation increased.

"Forgive me, Mr. Hillary; I assure you—"

"No, sir! I won't hear you, sir! I've heard enough, sir! Too much, sir! You've said enough, sir, to show me what sort of a man you are, sir! D—n it, sir, it's too bad!"

"You mistake me, Mr. Hillary," said I, calmly.

"No I don't, sir, but you've cursedly mistaken me, sir. If you know these people, and choose to take up their—to—to—patronise, do, sir, d—n it! if you like, and haven't anything better to do!"

"Forgive me, sir, if I have hurt your feelings!"

"Hurt my feelings, sir? What d'ye mean, sir? Every man hurts my feelings that insults me sir; and you have insulted me, sir!"

"How, sir?" I inquired, sternly, in my turn. "Oblige me, sir by explaning these extraordinary expressions."

"You know well enough! I see through it. But it you—really, sir—you've a guinea of mine, sir, in your pocket. Consider it your fee for this visit; the last I'll trouble you to pay, sir!" he stuttered, almost unintelligible with fury.

I threw his guinea upon the floor, as if its touch were pollution. "Farewell, Mr. Hillary," said I, deliberately drawing on my gloves. "May your deathbed be as calm and happy as that I have this day attended up stairs for the last time."

He looked at me earnestly, as if staggered by the reflections I had suggested, and turned very pale. I bowed haughtily and retired. As I drove home, my heated fancy struck out a scheme for shaming or terrifying the old monster I had quitted into something like pity or repentance, by attacking and exposing him in some newspaper; but, by the next morning, I perceived the many objections there were to such a course. I need hardly say that I did not communicate to the Elliotts the fact of my attempted intercession with Mr. Hillary.

It was grievous to see the desperate but unavailing struggle made by both of them to retrieve their circumstances and provide against the expensive and trying time that was approaching. He was slaving at his account-books from morning to midnight, scarce allowing himself a few minutes for his meals; and she had become a mere fag to a fashionable milliner undertaking all such work as could be done at her own residence, often sitting up half the night, and earning the merest trifle. Then she nursed—took entire her husband and child, for they could not afford to keep a regular attendant. Several articles of her husband's dress and her own, and almost all that belonged to the child, she often washed at night with her own hands!

As if these unfortunate people were not sufficiently afflicted already—as if any additional ingredient in their cup of sorrow were requisite—symptoms of a more grievous calamity than had yet befallen poor Elliott began to exhibit themselves in him. His severe and incessant application by day and night, coupled with the perpetual agitation and excitement of his nervous system, began to tell upon his eyesight. I found him, on one of my morning visits, labouring under great excitement; and, on questioning him, I feared he had but too good reason for his alarm, as he described, with fearful distinctness, certain sensations and appearances which infallibly betokened, in my opinion, after examining his eyes, the presence of incipient amaurosis in both eyes. He spoke of deep-seated pains in the orbits; perpetual sparks and flashes of light; pearline halos seen around the candle; dimness of sight; and several other symptoms, which I found, on inquiry, had been for some time in existence, but had never entered a thought of noticing them till they forced themselves upon his startled attention.

"Oh, my God!" he exclaimed, clasping his hands and looking upward, "spare me my sight! Oh, spare my sight!

became of me?' Beggary seems to be my lot, but blindness 'to be added!" He paused, and looked the image of despair.

"Undoubtedly I should deceive you Mr. Elliott," said I, after making several further inquiries, "if I were to say that there was no danger in your case. Unfortunately there does exist ground for apprehending that unless you abstain, and in a great measure, from so severely taxing your eyesight as you have of late, you will run the risk of permanently injuring it."

"Oh, doctor! it is easy to talk!" he exclaimed, with involuntary bitterness, "of my ceasing to use and try my sight; but how am I to do it? How am I to live! Tell me that! Will money drop from the skies into my lap, or bread into the mouth of my poor wife and child? What is to become of us? Merciful God! and just at this time, too! My wife pregnant!"—I thanked God she was not present—"our last penny almost slipping from our hands and I, who should be the stay and support of my family, becoming BLIND! Oh, God! oh, God! what frightful crimes have I committed to be punished thus? Would I had been transported or hanged," he added suddenly, 'when the old ruffian threw me into Newgate! But"—he turned ghastly pale—"if I were to die now, what good could it do?" At that moment the slow, heavy, wearied step of his wife was heard upon the stairs, and her entrance put an end to her husband's exclamations. I entreated him to restrain, at least for a time, his attentions to business, and prescribed some active remedies, and he promised to obey my instructions. Mrs. Elliott sat beside me with a sad, exhausted air, which touched me almost to tears. What a situation, what a prospect was hers! How was she to prepare for her coming confinement; how procure the most ordinary comforts, the necessary attendance! Deprived as her husband and child must be, for a time, of her affectionate and vigilant attentions, what was to become of them? Who, supply the place? Her countenance too plainly showed that all these dreadful topics constantly agitated her mind!

A day or two after this interview I brought them the intelligence I had seen in the newspapers of Mrs. Hillary's death, which I communicated to them very carefully, fearful of the effect it might produce upon Mrs. Elliott in her critical situation. She wept bitterly; but the event had been too long expected by her to occasion any violent exhibition of grief. As they lay awake that night in melancholy converse, it suddenly occurred to Mrs. Elliott that the event which had just happened might afford them a last chance of regaining her father's affections, and they determined to seize the opportunity of appealing to his feelings when they were softened by his recent bereavement. The next morning they set out on their dreary pilgrimage to —— Square: it being agreed that he should accompany her to within a door or two of her father's house, and there await the issue of her visit. With slow and measured steps, she approached the dreaded house. She paused for a moment, holding by the area railings.

What dark and bitter thoughts and recollections crowded in a few seconds through her mind. There lay the remains of her poor good mother, whom she had fled from whose last thoughts might perhaps have been about her persecuted daughter, and that daughter was now trembling like a guilty thing before the frowning portals of her widowed, and it might be, inexorable father! After walking slowly round the square, she returned, as before, to the gloomy mansion of her father, ascended the steps, and with a shaking hand pulled the bell.

"What do you want young woman?" inquired a servant from the area.

"I wish to see Joseph; is he at home?" she replied, in so faint a voice that the only word audible was that of Joseph, the porter, who had entered into her father's service in that capacity two or three years before her marriage. In a few minutes Joseph made his appearance at the hall door.

"Joseph! Joseph! I'm very ill, let me sit in your chair for a moment."

"Lord have mercy on me; my young mistress!" exclaimed Joseph, casting a hurried look behind him, as if terrified at being seen in conversation with her. 'You see, ma'am, though I suppose you know—my poor mistress!"—She shook her head and sighed.

"Yes, Joseph, I know it! Did she—did she die easily?" inquired Mrs. Elliott, in a faint whisper, grasping his hand.

"Yes, ma'am," he answered, in a low tone; "poor lady, she'd been so long ailing, that no doubt death wasn't anything particular to her, like; and so she went out at last like the snuff of a candle, none of us not my master even, heard the sound of her voice for months not to say years even!"

"And my—my father, how does he—"

"Why he takes on about it, ma'am, certainly; ruf, you see, he's been so long expecting of it!" Do you think, Joseph," said Mrs Elliott, hardly able to make herself heard that—that my father would be very—very angry if he knew I was here, would he see me?"

"Lord, ma'am!" exclaimed the porter, alarm overspreading his features, "it's not possible! You can't think how stern he is! You should have heard what orders he gave us all about keeping you out of the house. I know 'tis a dreadful hard case, ma'am," he continued, wiping a tear from his eye, "and many and many's the time we've all cried in the kitchen about- hush!" he stopped, and looked towards the stairs apprehensively; "never mind, ma'am, it's nobody! But won't you come down and sit in the housekeeper's room! I'm sure the good old soul will rather like to see you, and then, you know, you can slip out of the gate & be gone in a minute!"

"No, Joseph," replied Mrs. Elliott, with as much energy as her weakness would admit of "I will wait outside the street door, if you think there is any danger, while you go and get this letter taken up stairs, and say I am waiting for an answer!" He took the letter, held it in his hand hesitatingly, and shook his head.

"Oh, take it, good Joseph!" said Mrs. Elliott, with a look that would have softened a heart of stone; it is only to ask for mourning for my mother! I have not money to purchase any!" His eyes filled with tears.

"My poor, dear young mistress!" he faltered; his lip quivered, and he paused. "It's more than my place is worth, but I'll take it, nevertheless! that I will, come what will, ma'am! See if I don't!! You see ma'am," dropping his voice and leaning towards the staircase, "it isn't so much the old gentleman after all, neither, but it's—it's Miss Gubbley that I'm afraid of! It is she, in my mind, that keeps him so cruel hard against you! She has it all her own way here! You should see how she orders us servants about ma'am, and has her eyes into everything that's going on; but I'll go and take the letter, any how, and don't you go out of doors unless you hear me cry "hem!" on the stairs!" She proceeded to attend to this hint, as did also the female servant whom he left with her, and Joseph disappeared. The mention of Miss Gubbley excited the most painful and distressing emotions in the breast of Mrs. Elliott. Possibly it was now the design of this woman to strike a grand blow, and force herself into the place so recently vacated by poor Mrs. Hillary! Mrs. Elliott's heart beat fast, after she waited for some minutes in agonizing anxiety and suspense, as she heard the footsteps of Joseph hastily descending the stairs.

"I can't get to see master, ma'am, though I've tried. I have indeed, ma'am! I thought it would be so! Miss Gubley has been a-saying it me, ma'am; she says it will cost me my place to dare to do such an unlucious thing a-going; and I told her you was below here, ma'am, and she might see you; but she tossed her head, and said it was a piece with all your other shameful behavior to your poor, broken-hearted father, she did ma'am"—Mrs Elliott began to sob bitterly—"and she wouldn't, on any account whatsoever, have him shocked at such a sad time as this, and that she knows it would be no use your coming"—his voice quivered—"and she says as how"—he could hardly go on—"you should have thought of all this long ago; and that only a month ago she heard master say it was all your own fault if you came to ruin, and as you'd made your bed you must lie on it; her very words ma'am; but she's sent you a couple of guineas, ma'am, on condition that you won't, on no account, trouble master again; and—and" he continued, his tears overflowing, "I've been so bold as to make it three, ma'am; and I hope it's no offence, ma'am, me being but a servant," trying to force something, wrapped up in paper, into the hand of Mrs. Elliott, who had listened motionless and in dead silence to all he had been saying.

"Joseph!" at length she exclaimed, in a very low but distinct and solemn manner, clutching out her hands, "if you don't wish to see me die, help me, help me to my knees!" And with his assistance and that of the female servant she sank gently down on her knees upon the floor, where he partly supported her. She slowly clasped her hands together upon her bosom, and looked upward; her eye was fearless, and an awful expression settled upon her motionless features. Joseph involuntarily fell upon his knees beside her, shaking like an aspen leaf, his eyes fixed instinctively upon hers and the sobs of several of the servants, who had stolen silently to the top of the kitchen stairs to gaze at this strange scene, were the only sounds that were audible. After having remained in this position for several minutes, she rose from her knees slowly and in silence.

"When will my mother be buried?"

"Next Saturday," whispered Joseph, "at 2 o'clock."

"Where?"

"St. St ——'s ma'am."

"Farewell, Joseph! You have been very kind," said she, moving slowly to the door.

"Won't you let me get you a little of some thing warm, ma'am! You do look so bad, ma'am so pale, and I'll fetch it from down stairs in half a minute."

"No, Joseph, I am better, and Mr. Elliott is waiting for me at the outside."

He strove again to force into her hand the paper containing the 3 guineas but she refused.

"No, Joseph, I am very destitute, but yet Providence will not let me starve. I cannot take it from you; here I will not, I ought not!"

With this the door was opened; and with a firmer step than she had entered the house, she quitted it. Her husband rushed up to her and inquired the result of her application. He listened with the calmness of despair to her narrative of what had taken place. "Then there is no hope for us then," he muttered through his half-closed lips.

"But there is hope dearest, with him who invites the weary and heavy laden, who seems to have withdrawn from us but has not forsaken us," replied his wife, tenderly, and with unwonted cheerfulness in her manner. "I feel—I know—he tells me that he will not suffer us to sink in the deep waters! He heard my prayer, Henry, and he will answer it wisely and well!"

Elliott listened to her in moody silence. His darkening features told not of the peace and resignation on Heaven had shed into the troubled bosom of his wife, but too truly betokened the gloom and despair within.

The National Democratic Convention will meet in Charleston on Monday next; and perhaps, before we issue another paper, the telegraphic wires, will have conveyed the news of its selection of candidates from President and Vice President to the most remote sections of the Union.

We know it is common to speak of assemblages of this character, as the most important of all that have preceded them. But peculiar circumstances, and continued and increasingly violent agitation of the only question that seriously endangers the perpetuity of our Union, beyond all question or doubt renders this more important than any that have preceded it, whatever those which are to follow, if any, may be. It seems to have concentrated upon it, all the responsibilities of its predecessors, and the results of its deliberations, may possibly preserve or destroy the fruits of the labors of all the statesmen and patriots that have gone before, since the foundation of our government. Under these circumstances, the people will very naturally fell a deep interest in its proceedings, and a great anxiety, to obtain the earliest intelligence of the result of its labors.

We received a letter from a friend in Washington the other day, which stated that the prospects of R. M. T. Hunter, of Virginia, for the nomination for President, were daily brightening; but in case a southern democrat could not be nominated, that Gen. Joseph Lane of Oregon, stood the next best chance: the friends of Mr. Douglas too, appear very sanguine of his success.

The new Union party have decided upon the 9th of May as the time, and Baltimore as the place for holding their national Convention. The Black Republican convention is to meet in Chicago, early in June. Should the Union Convention nominate a stronger man than Fillmore, or one who can get more than one State, the election will probably go into the House of Representatives. That event may perhaps be as favorable to the South as any other, from the fact, that in an election by the House, such small States as Delaware or Florida, have as much weight as New York, Pengylvania or Ohio.

Should we receive the news of the nomination of the Charleston Convention, two days in advance of our regular publication, we will send it out to our readers in an extra.

☞We hope our patrons will not forget our proposition to receive two dollars per year for all back dues, up to the close of the ensuing Spring term of the Circuit Court.

New Steam Grist and Saw Mill—We mentioned some weeks ago, that our enterprising Countyman, W. C. McMahan, Esq. had completed a new steam gris' mill, and would in a short time have also a saw mill in operation We are gratified to learn that his saw mill has since been finished, and that it, as well as the grist mill, performs to the admiration of all who have witnessed them. We hope his energy and perseverance may be rewarded with success, and that his mills may prove a profitable investment of capital.

Confectionary Store.—Our town can now boast of at least one fine and complete establishment of this sort. Mr. Henry Gutman, has taken the large and well arranged store room, adjoining Messrs. Ryan & Rowland's store, and filled the shelves from floor to ceiling, with a splendid assortment of Confectionaries, Fruits, Preserves, Jellies, Pickles, Oysters, Fish, fine Cigars, Tobacco, Wines, &c., in short the greatest variety, and finest articles in this line, ever brought to this place, and in fact rivaling some of the finest houses of this description in the cities. The ladies will find it an agreeable place to while away an hour, in examining and selecting from his great variety of luxuries and beautiful articles. Our village "urchins" too will find it a very good savings bank, where they may deposit their loose change, and get that in return, which they like better than money.

We hope our friends from the country, while in Town during Court, or at other times, will step into this fine establishment, and select from its great variety, such articles as they may wish to take home. They will find Mr. G. a very polite, friendly and agreeable gentleman, and his establishment altogether worthy of their patronage.

The Daily Locomotive, is the title of a very handsome and interesting sheet, published at the office of the "Crusader," in Atlanta, by Messrs. John H. & A. B Seals. The head is very beautiful and appropriate in design; and in contents, it seems to have that go ahead character which its name indicates. Persons in this section who may wish to take a daily paper, could hardly be better suited than by the "Locomotive."

☞We invite attention to the card of Dr. V. B. Burton, who has permanently settled himself at White Plains, for the practice of his profession. Dr. B. has recently returned from attendance on the lectures at the Medical College of Augusta, and has heretofore had considerable experience in the successful practice of his profession.

The Montgomery Daily Post.—We have received several numbers of the Daily Post, for which we tender our thanks to the publishers. Thus far we have found it an uncommonly neat and interesting paper, containing several columns more of reading matter than any other daily we know of in the country. Being a new paper, we have of course seen but few numbers as yet; but we have already learned to greet its smiling face with a feeling of glad welcome, and an assurance that we shall find many things of interest. It is published by Messrs. Smith, Prince & Larkins, at $5 per annum for the daily, $3 for the tri-weekly, and $2 for the weekly.

Indian War on the Texas Frontier.—We received a letter yesterday from A. Willingham, formerly of this county, dated 7th inst. at Bosque Co. Texas. This letter states that that section is nearly in a state of active warfare, the Indians butchering men, women and children, and stealing horses by the thousand—the country scarce of breadstuffs and farmers unable to leave their families long enough to plant their crops, on account of the savages. Gov. Houston he says has ordered a sufficient number of mounted men to be raised to repel, pursue and punish the Indians.

By the same mail, we received from Mr W the "Belton Democrat" and the "White Man," two frontier papers recently started. One of these papers, the White Man, says the troubles are caused by the Reserve Indians, and that they would have been chastised long ago, but for the protection afforded them by the U. S. troops, who declared "their intention of defending the Indians so long as a button remained on their jackets." If these representations be true, it is a disgrace to the war department. And if the government has no other use for soldiers on the frontier than to protect ruthless savages in their depredations, they had better withdraw them altogether.

We would invite the attention of our readers to the new "Ague Cure" advertised in our columns. It is from such a quarter as will give the public confidence in its efficacy, and we have learned from reliable sources, that its virtues will sustain their fullest expectations. Citizens of the west can not fail to appreciate the paramount value of such a safe and certain remedy for this afflicting distemper without either Quinine, or minerals, and consequently without injury to the constitutional health. We have more than ordinary satisfaction in proclaiming this remedy, because we are convinced it will answer a crying want among us, and serve to relieve a great amount of suffering. Republican, Warsaw Ind.,

Massachusetts & Virginia.

1775 and 1859.

Pending the late contest in the election of Speaker, the Hon. Mr. Botelor of the Harper's Ferry District, in Virginia spoke as follows.—

When, sir, I have heard the name of a gentleman called here day after day first on the roll—a great historic name, (Mr. Adams)—I have been reminded of Massachusetts in her grander day in the heroic age of the Republic. I have been reminded of a historical incident connected with the county in which I live—that county selected by John Brown for his bloody raid, and feel that I have a right to appeal to the Massachusetts delegation here if they are not deaf to the voice of consanguinity and if they are, I appeal from them to their people on this question; I demand of them to come up to the rescue of the country now as they did in the good old times of their Revolutionary fathers. The district which I represent and the county where I live—that county made famous by the raid of Brown—was the first, the very first in all the South to send succor to Massachusetts in the time of her direst necessity In one the most beautifull spots in that beautiful county within rifle shot of my residence, at the base of a hill, where a glorious spring leaps out into sunlight from beneath the guarled roots of a thunder riven oak, there assembled on the 10th of July, 1775, the very first band of Southern men who marched to the aid of Massachusetts. They met there then, and their rallying cry was, "A bee-line for Boston." That beautiful and peaceful valley—the Valley of the Shenandoah,—have never been polluted by the footsteps of a foe for even the Indians themselves had according to tradition kept it free from the incursion of their enemies. It was the hunting range and neutral ground of the aborigines The homes of those who lived there then were far beyond the reach of danger. But Boston was beleaguered! The hearths of your fathers were threatened with pollution, and the fathers of those whom I represent, rallied to their protection.

"They left the ploughshare in the mould, Their flocks and herds without a fold, The sickle in the unshorn grain, Their corn half-garnered on the plan, And mustered in their simple dress, For wrongs of yours to seek redress."

Thus they mustered around the spring I speak of, and from thence they made their bee line for Boston.' Before they marched they made a pledge that all who survived, would assemble there fifty years after that day. It is my pride and pleasure to remember that I, though but a child then was present at the spring when the fifty years rolled around. Three aged, feeble, tottering men—the survivors of that glorious band of one hundred and twenty were all who were left to keep their trust, and be faithful to the pledge made fifty years before to their companions, the bones of most of whom had been left bleaching on your Northern hills. Sir, I have often heard from the last survivor of that band of patriots the incidents of their first meeting and their march; how they made some six hundred miles in thirty days—twenty miles a day & how as they neared their point of destination, Washington, who happened to be making a reconnoisance in the neighborhood saw them approaching & recognizing the buisey woolsey hunting-shirts of Old Virginia, galloped up to meet and greet them to the camp; how when he saw their captain, his old companion-in-arms, Stephenson, who stood by his side at the Great Meadows, on Braddock's fatal field and in many an Indian campaign—who reported himself to his commander-in the right bank of the Potomac—he sprang from his horse and clasped his old friend and companion-in-arms with both hands. He spoke no word of welcome; but the eloquence of silence told what his tongue could not articulate. He moved along the ranks shaking the hand of each, from man to man, and all the while, as my informer told me, the big tears were seen rolling down his cheeks. Ay, Sir, Washington wept! And why did the glorious soul of Washington swell with emotion? Sir they were tears of joy! and he wept because he saw that the cause of Massachusetts was practically the cause of Virginia; because he saw that her citizens recognized the great principles involved in the contest These Virginia volunteers had come spontaneously. They had come in response to the words of her Henry, that were leaping like live thunder through the land, telling the people they must fight for Massachusetts They had come to rally with Washington to defend your fathers' firesides, to protect their friends from harm. Well, the visit has been returned! John Brown selected that very county, whose citizens went so promptly to the aid of the North when the North needed aid, as the most appropriate place in the South to carry out the doctrines of the irrepressible conflict; and, as was mentioned in the Senate yesterday, the rock where Leeman fell was the very rock over which Morgan and his men marched a few hours after Stephenson's command had crossed the river some ten miles further up. May this historical reminiscence rekindle the embers of patriotism in our hearts! Why should this nation of ours be rent in pieces by this irrepressible conflict?' Is it irrepressible? The battle will not be fought out on this floor. For when the dark day comes, as come it may, when this question that now divides and agitates the hearts of the people, shall be thrust from the forum of debate, to be decided by the bloody arbitrament of the sword, it will be the saddest day for us and all mankind that the sun of heaven has ever shone upon.

Another Row in Congress.

On Thursday, the 5th, the House of Representatives being in Committee of the whole, with the tariff bill before it, Lovejoy, a Black Republican Representative from Illinois, availed himself of the opportunity to make a violent anti-slavery speech. We gather, from a telegraphic report, that Lovejoy "passed from his seat the area in front of the Clerk's desk, in full view of all the members, and spoke in a loud tone with emphasis and earnest gesticulation," denouncing the "spirit of slaveholding as the spirit of the devil," etc.

Several gentlemen called him to order. Mr. Pryor said the gentleman from Illinois had no right to shake his fist at gentlemen on this side. It was bad enough to stand in his own place and talk his treason and insolence.

Mr. Barksdale—Let him keep on his own side of the House.

The confusion soon became general, and members began to press into the area.

Mr Cox said the gentleman from Illinois ought to speak from his seat.

Mr. Pryor—Let him stand there and talk. He shan't come on this side of the hall.

Mr. Barksdale was seen shaking his cane, and in the midst of the confusion was heard to say "rascal," as applied to Mr. Lovejoy.

Mr. Adrian, as if to quiet the tumult, said the gentleman could speak from his seat.

The Chairman, Mr. Washburn, of Maine, in vain rapped to restore order

Mr. Adrian, in a conciliatory tone, supposed nobody wanted to intimidate the gentleman.

Mr. Pryor—No one wants to intimidate him.

Mr. Lovejoy—Nobody can intimidate me.

Many Representatives now crowded around Mr Lovejoy, who exclaimed to them,—"Oh, I'm safe enough!"

Mr. Burnett elevating his voice above the din, said the rules required the gentleman to speak from his seat. He must and shall do it. He shall not shake his fist at gentlemen on this side in a menacing manner.

The Chairman called loudly for the Sergeant at Arms, as if to attend to Mr. Burnett—who said, you may call the Sergeant-at Arms, but the members shall not do it.

The glittering mace of the Sergeant-at-Arms did not quiet the disorder.

Mr. Kellogg, of Illinois, came to the support of his colleague, saying, He shall not commit a breach of the rules, but shall have his rights.

A general fight at one time seemed imminent, and the wildest excitement everywhere prevailed.

The Speaker was called to resume his seat, when the Chairman reported that the Committee rose owing to the disorder.

Finally comparative quiet was restor d.

Mr. Sherman said, We are in good order now.

This was succeeded by a burst of laughter.

The House then again went into Committee of the Whole.

The speaker continued his offensive and abusive harrangue, subject to similar interruptions—the last of which was as follows:

Mr. Martin, of Virginia—if you will come into Virginia we will hang you higher than we did John Brown.

Mr. Lovejoy—No doubt of it.

The Committee arose, and the house adjourned.

Manchester advices were favorable at an advancing tendency, and with a better enquiry.

General News.—The King of Sardinia has formally accepted annexation of Tuscany, and signed a decree to that effect.

The French army was daily quitting Lombardy. This is not regarded as coldness towards Sardinia, but because the independence of Italy is irrevocable

It is announced that the Sardinian troops have commenced the evacuation of Savoy.

A French dispatch, explaining the necessity for the annexation of Savoy, has been published, which, however, contains nothing new. France disavows the theory of natural frontiers.

Parliamentary proceedings are unimportant. Further progress has been made with the budget, and the income tax has been debated.

The ex-Duke of Tuscany is preparing a protest against his expulsion.

Advices from India report an increase in the supply of Cotton from that quarter for the year

Knights of the Golden Circle.

New Orleans, April 7—The Knights of the Golden Circle met yesterday, and expelled Gen. Bickley and appointed Col. Greenhow Commander in-Chief of the Organization. W. E. Starke will meet all liabilities.

Market Reports.

New Orleans, April 7.—The Cotton market closed dull, with sales of 2500 bales, Middlings 10¼a11c. Sugar closed steady at 6¼a7c.

Mobile, April 7.—Sales of Cotton to-day 1000 bales, at unchanged prices.

Great Excitement in Kentucky—Abolitionists Defying the Inhabitants.

Lexington, March 27.—Mr Hanson, who was recently expelled with other Abolitionists from Madison county, has returned with twenty-five or thirty associates.

He was again warned by a committee of citizens of the same number to leave the county.

Hanson's company replied by firing at the committee, but no one was injured.

Subsequently, Hanson's men entrenched themselves in a neighboring building.

The committee armed themselves with revolvers but did not fire upon them.

The committee then sent to Lexington for cannon and ammunition.

The Governor also sent to Louisville for percussion caps.

It is supposed that the military will be ordered from Lexington to Beven the scene of action.

The latest accounts promise a settlement of the affair without further difficulty

Horrible Case of Poisoning.

The New Orleans papers contain accounts a most horrible poisoning case in that city in which an entire dinner party comprising some twenty ladies and gentlemen and children were poisoned. After the graduation of the medical students of the University of Louisiana, on Tuesday, a dinner was given by Mr. T. L. Lemley, a prominent lawyer of New Orleans, in compliment to Dr. Hunt, one of the graduates At this dinner besides Mr. Lemley and his family and the young doctors were present as guests a number of ladies be longing to different families in the neighborhood. At night all those who had partaken of the dinner became sick at their different residences; on Wednesday many of them got worse; on Wednesday night a little boy died; and on the following day the suspicions of the physicians were confirmed to their satisfaction that the whole of the sick persons were suffering from poison.

It seems that arsenic was administered by Mr Lemley's cook in the Charlotte Russe, which was not only partaken of by all at the table, but by several friends in the neighborhood, to whom portions of it were sent, and who were also poisoned. The cook, a morose, ill-tempered mulatress and her son have been lodged in jail.

Some fifteen of the sufferers were at last accounts, dangerously ill several of the young ladies not being expected to recover.

Horrible Murder.

One of the most fiendish murders was committed on the plantation of Mrs. Sarah Morris, five miles west of this place on the Memphis and Charleston Railroad on Wednesday last, (14th inst.,) about 10 o'clock, A M. The circumstances as gathered from the confusion of the murderer are these: A youth about 14 years of age, a son of Mrs. Morris, named Wiley F. had the management of the plantation, and attempted to correct a slave named Jack, who was ploughing in the field—The negro resisted the young man, and struck him on the head with a rock, knocking him down, Jack then ploughed a round and on returning to the young man discovered from his groans, that he was still alive He then gave him a blow on the head with a club, and carried him a short distance to a dry well and threw him head foremost. The young man being missed, Mrs. Morris sent the negro back into the well to search for him, she having some suspicions of foul play. The fiend acknowledged that he stood upon the poor child's body and heard his groans while in the well, but returned and said he was not there. Soon after the negro made his escape; but the neighbors pursued with dogs and captured him. He was brought to this place and tried before Justice Evans, who committed him to Jail to await his trial.

Decatur Times.

Ladies Should Read Newspapers

It isone great mistake, in female education, to keep a young lady's time and attention devoted to only the fashionable literature of the day. If you would qualify her for conversation, you must give her something to talk about—give her education with the actual world and its transpiring events.—Urge her to read newspapers and become familiar with the present character and improvement of our race. History is of some importance, but the past world is dead, and we have little, comparatively, to do with it. Our thoughts and our concerns should be for the present world to know what it is and improve its condition. Let her have intelligent conversation concerning the mental moral political and religious improvements of our times. Let the gilded annuals and poems on the centre table be kept, a part of the time, covered with weekly journals. Let the family—men, women and children—read the newspaper.

OBITUARY.

Miss Rosinia Caroline Skelton, daughter of Mrs Elizabeth & Asa Skelton, of our County, departed this life, April 12th, at 12 o'clock, aged 19 years, six months and 11 days, of inflamation of the Stomache, after a protracted and severe suffering for about four weeks, which she bore with the greatest meekness and christian fortitude. Not a murmur was ever heard to escape her lips. Having at the age of about 13, sought and obtained the pardon of her sins, and washed her robe and made it white in the blood of the Lamb, from that time until her death she has been a steady, devoted member of the M. E. church. The writer being personally acquainted with her, is fully authorized to say, not only a member, but a useful and an unexceptionable one; rendering service to the church and to the Sabbath school, and any other duty for the promotion of the Redeemer's cause. She loved and constantly attended the house of prayer, and the ordinance's of the church. She was one of those blessed with a strong and active mind. She was a quiet, still, modest, unassuming, unpretending christian kind and social with all she had to do! Obedient to her parents, affectionate to brothers and sisters, indeed was the idol of the family. During her sickness she told her friends, different ones and at different times, that she had rather stay a little longer with parents & friends, but she was resigned to the will of God; she was prepared for the awful change, and that she was at peace with everybody.

She suffered not malice to have a place in her breast, and if she had any enemies, we know it not: indeed her character as a lady and a christian was pure and spotless, therefore parents and friends weep not—the Lord most high has done right.

"The pains of death are past,
Labor and sorrow cease
And life's bitter warfare closed at last,
Her soul is found in peace
Saint of Christ well done
Praise be thy new employ,
And while eternal ages run
Rest in thy Saviour's joy."

The Sinner Disqualified for Heaven

Who think'st, thou in the courts of heaven reside?
Tney, who with malice burn, with envy pine,
Ply the full feast and quaff the midnight wine.
Love pleasures daughters, and the sons of pride?
They who from meek affliction turn aside,
Its plaints unheard: and bow at mammon's shrine,
Moloch's or Bell's; and blind to truth divine,
Neglect God's mercy: and his power deride?
If such heaven's inmates, well thou runn'st thy race,
Man of the world! But oh! let conscience tell,
If holy hearts the holy city grace,
What part hast thou therein; and ponder well,
Ponder well betimes that other place,
And who its tenants, and with whom they dwell
To close the eyes on earth; to wake in hell,
And lift them up in torments, mid the pains,
Deep curses, loud laments, and penal chains
Of those who dar'd against their God rebel,
The Great, the Good, and from their station fell
Of glory and bliss; with them, where darkness reign,
Where the worm dies not, and the fire remains
Unquenched amid everlasting flames to dwell!—
Whose is that lot, thou knowest God undid
The veil which screens his dreadfulness that so
Man might be warn'd and fear. What pangs are hid
Beneath that lot, those sights and, sounds of woe,
Thou know'st not yet, nor canst thou, God forbid
Then e'er by feeling shouldst their anguish know.

POSTPONED SALE

UNDER and by virtue of a Deed of Trust, to me executed for the use of S. Edwards, on the 7th day of October, 1858 by John Wagnon, and recorded in Book L, page 453, in St. Clair county, to satisfy a certain promisory note executed to Stephen Edwards, for the sum of eight hundred dollars and due 25th December, 1859, I shall, on Saturday the fifth day of May next, in the Town of Gadsden, in Cherokee County sell to the highest bidder, at public outcery for cash, the following described Land, viz:

"Where are They?"

A week of sunshine and beauty has used dear Reader since we together owed Earths loveliness. A week (of me merely) added to the long, long ght of those living in the "total E- pse" of blindness.

Where are they? We have asked awakened interest in their sad sit- tion? Where are our Alabama blind? here? Deeply interested we will now k them. In this elegant dwelling, rrounded by finely cultivated grounds d shaded by these stately trees be- ath which such fine shrubbery is owing. A few years since a child s lying very low with scarlet fever. it survived it would be blind all ife. It lived. We will see! It seems us whilst enjoying the gentle breeze, ider this fine shade, and inhaling the rfume of those rare exotics, that e- en blindness would be quite tolerable the midst of so much luxury, for in- nd here with closed eyes, we enjoy high degree of luxurious perception nd is the heir to this beautiful estate ind?—We enquire!—"It is true he ne very near being so, but his pa- nts were wealthy and such very good rsing and attendance was given to s case that although he was confined veral months in that large chamber ined with green for his benefit) and nearly despaired of his recovery, t he became well enough to visit a ry celebrated Oculist in a far-off ty, and he is not blind!"

"Let him ever thank God, for the essings of wealth, we say as we leave s palace home, to prosecute the search have begun, for the Alabama blind.

In yonder comfortable farm dwelling boy was expected a few years since to one of the unfortunates we seek. e will call there, and as we are on ir way will bring to mind the circum- nces as we then heard them. While play an arrow rebounded, and en- red his right eye, and such a high gree of sympathetic inflamation in s left eye followed that the best ysicians in the country expressed o inions all agreeing that his sight must irrecoverably lost. He is doubtless ind! We enquire again. We are staken! His mother had servants to tend to all her usual duties, and all r time was devoted to her suffering ild. So very anxious was she that servant, who slept during the day. atched and awakened her at every ur of the night that she might her ll apply the fresh cool Elm to the in- amed organ. The boy recovered and joys the blessings of sight from one e. Again we say "let him thank od for the blessings of wealth!"

We must turn our steps from the a- des of wealth, for although sometimes the accidental discharge of a gun, indeed by disease, the Scion of some use is visited with this great misfor- ne! Yet it is not common among em. We will turn our steps to the reets & lanes" the "highways and dges" to the "homes of the lowly! e "cabins of the poor. Ah! here we nd them. Children exposed to cold their infancy often have "sore eyes" nd the hard working mother has no rvant to relieve, or awaken her, to at- nd to her afflicted child! The little ufferer even while lying on her arm ets uncovered and "takes fresh cold, hile its worn and exhausted mother leeps. The inmates of this cabin are onest people. They are too poor to ave a physician called for a little in- ant troubled with "sore eyes." No! a life and death case" is the only kind hat calls him to their door! Improp- r treatment completes the destruction f the delicate organ! The babe is blind! he Scarlet Fever and Measles leaves any blind among the poor and neg- ecting vaccination the small pox en- rs their doors and if death spares em, it is often to the living death of overty, and darkness.

Ah! yes! Here we find them! In the abins of the lowly! Burdens too often e find them to their relations who feel hat it is a hard life they lead in pro- iding for their own necessities. They o never acknowledged burdens to heir mothers, but mothers die. And he wail of the poor blind orphan is the ost pitiful of all. As she is lowered nto her last resting-place.

The blind in all conditions of life are xtremely sensitive accustomed always o the feeling that they are "in the way" nd shrinking and striving to "keep out f the way" together with a sense of sefulness and dependance generally, hey become morbidly sensitive, and any an honest well-meaning father ends daily arrows to his blind childs reast. "Yes! he replies to us, as we otice his large family, "I have had hard time of it in keeping up with o many little mouths I used to think ohn there would be some help to me, ut you see the Measles left him blind ust as he was getting to be a little elp." Tom here is a nice boy, he ill help after awhile to save his Pa, went he?"

Ah! poor John! such words not only ound you now, but little Tom, unto hose tender mercies you fall in future ars left in his natural brute pride of ersonal ability, by his Father's words, ready works as he thinks of his superiority! Poor John! We pity you when hat mother who now shields and pro- ects you is laid low! Tom will heed er dying request, and give you "bread nd meat and a shelter according to romise" as you will often hear but, om's wife will be "under no promise." s you will often hear, and although ou will nurse her cross babes and sit close into the corner as possible yet our close corner will be coveted and ou will die with a sense of giving re- ief in so doing to the whole family! oor John! We pity you! We pity you or your nativity's occurring in our eautiful Alabama! For poor and help- ss as is your situations in all other tates nearly, something is done for uch as you!—Yes! something might be one for you here we think, and with he vision of your future fate,—of om's Wife, and cross-babes, the covet- d corner and the begrudged allotment ccording to promise," constantly be- re us, we will try with God's blessing nd see if something can not be done for m and all the "Alabama blind!" We ill try!

JUDSON'S

Mountain Herb Pills.

ABOVE we present you with a perfect likeness of Tecuco, a chief of a tribe of the strange Aztec Nation that once ruled Mexico. You will find a full account of him and his people in our Pamphlets and Almanacs—(to be had gratis, from the Agents for these Pills.

The inventor and manufacturer of "Judson's Mountain Herb Pills," has spent the greater part of his life in traveling, having visited nearly every country in the world. He spent over six years among the Indians of the Rocky Mountains and of Mexico, and it was thus that the "MOUNTAIN HERB PILLS" were discovered. A very interesting account of his adventures there, you will find in our Almanac and Pamphlet.

It is an established fact, that all diseases arise from

IMPURE BLOOD!

The blood is the life! and when any foreign or unhealthy matter gets mixed with it, it is at once distributed to every organ of the body. Every nerve feels the poison, and all the vital organs quickly complain. The stomach will not digest the food perfectly. The liver ceases to secrete a sufficiency of bile. The action of the heart is weakened, and so the circulation is feeble. The lungs become clogged with the poisonous matter; hence, a cough—and all from a slight impurity at the fountain-head of life—the Blood! As if you had thrown some earth, for instance, in a pure spring, from which ran a tiny rivulet, in a few minutes the whole course of the stream becomes disturbed and discolored. As quickly does impure blood fly to every part, and leave its sting behind. All the passages become obstructed, and unless the obstruction is removed, the lamp of life soon dies out.

These pills not only purify the blood, but regenerate all the secretions of the body; they are, therefore, unrivalled as a

CURE FOR BILIOUS DISEASES.

Liver Complaint, Sick Headache, &c. This American Medicine expels from the blood the hidden seeds of disease, and regulates all the fluids and secretions pure and sweet, clearing and reinvigorating the vital organs.

Pleasant indeed, is it to us, that we are able to place within your reach, a medicine like "Montezuma Blood Pills," that will pass directly to the afflicted parts through the blood and fluids of the body, and cause the sufferer to brighten with the flush of beauty and health.

Judson's Pills are the Best Remedy in existence for the following Complaints:

Bowel Complaints,	Debility,	Inward Weakness,
Coughs,	Fever and Ague,	Liver Complaints,
Colds,	Female Complaints,	Lowness of Spirits,
Chest Diseases,	Headaches,	Piles,
Costiveness,	Indigestion,	Stone and Gravel.
Dyspepsia,	Influenza,	Secondary Symptoms
Diarrhœa,	Inflammation,	&c.

GREAT FEMALE MEDICINE

Females who value health, should never be without these Pills. They purify the blood, remove obstructions of all kinds, cleanse the skin of all pimples and blotches, and bring the rich color of health to the pale cheek.

☞ The Plants and Herbs of which these Pills are made, were discovered in a very surprising way, among the Tezucans, a tribe of Aborigines in Mexico. Get the Almanac of our Agent, and you will read with delight, the very interesting account it contains of the "GREAT MEDICINE" of the Aztecs.

*Observe.—The Mountain Herb Pills are put up in a Beautiful Wrapper. Each box contains 40 pills, and Retail at 25 cents per box. All genuine, have the signature of B. L

Economy & Progression.

In this, the age of advancement, many things new and invaluable have been introduced—not the phantoms and chimeras of other ages, but new ones of sound and practical utility. In no department is progression better marked or more visibly to be seen than in the medical, when originating with competent men and confined to scientific limits. Precisely of that character are the following remedial agents; none will prove more efficient, or are so often needed.

DR. LITTLE'S ANODYNE COUGH DROPS.

A new and certain cure for Coughs, Asthma Pain in the Breast; also Croup, Whooping Cough, Colds etc, among children.

This is a pleasant medicine to take, & reducing immediate relief, and in nine out of ten cases a prompt cure. It exercises the most controlling influence over Coughs and Irritation of the Lungs of any remedy known, often stopping the most violent in a few hours, or at most in a day or two. Many cases thought to be decidedly consumptive have been promptly cured by using a few bottles, and wearing the Little's Strengthening Plasters on the chest. As an anodyne expectorant, without astringing the bowels, it stands paramount to all cough mixtures.

DR. LITTLE'S FRENCH MIXTURE.

This is prepared from a French Recipe (in the forms of No's. 1 and 2, the first for the acute, and No. 2 for the chronic stage,) that has been much improved upon in this country, & from its unexampled success is likely to supercede every other remedy for the cure of the diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder. Gonorrheal Blennorhoeal and Leucorrhoeal or Flour Albus Affections. This extensive compound combines properties totally different in taste and character from anything to be found in the United States in Pharmacopoea or in private practice; and in point of safety and efficiency is not rivalled in America.

DOLLAR VERMITUGE

Prepared and put up in bottles and vials only by C. W. Little. In using, nothing else is required to relieve children of worms; and besides being one of the best and cheapest ever offered to the public, its frequent use in families will save much trouble and expense, as well as the lives of many children; for eight out of every ten cases generally require it

DR. LITTLE'S RINGWORM & TETTER OINTMENT.

Hundreds of cases of Chronic Tetters, Scald Heads, and diseases of the skin generally, have been cured by this remedy; and since the introduction of the No 2 preparation (being stronger) scarcely a case has been found that it will not effectually eradicate in a short time. For the cure of Cancerous Sores and Ulcers it is applied in the form of Plasters, and is almost infallible.

In addition, the Proprietor prepares, for the great convenience and certainty in prescribing, Strengthening Plasters, of the most superior quality, Improved Cook's Pills (an easy billious cathartic) Vegetable Pills (a mild cathartic to obviate costiveness) Antacid (for tightness and acidity of the stomach.) Tonic Bitters, etc., which will be sent on consignment if ordered.

Medicines, like everything else, are better and more economically supplied to the great mass of the people by merchandise than in any other way.

Physicians are referred to the 13th page of Dr. Little's pamphlet, to the catalogue of medicines of the Materia Medica, that he uses in compounding his different remedies, and asked to say if they are not the chief reliance of the profession, as he himself has practised medicine extensively for more than ten years, before retiring to the drug business.

In more than two hundred places in Georgia, and in all the Southern States they are to be had; and as there are scamps about who are counterfeiting his remedies, by palming off their own or something else, by using the same or similar names (for no patent is wanted or secured amid the absurd patents of the day.)

N. B.—All orders and letters on business are to sent in future to LITTLE & BRO. Macon, Georgia, instead of Philadelphia.

Wholesale Agents, Dr. P. M. Cohen & Co., Charleston, S. C., McKesson & Robins, New York, & T. M. Cunningham, Selma, Ala.

Feb. 24, 1859.

TO THE PUBLIC.

Ever since my "Aromantic Schiedam Schnapps"—the purest and best Gin for medical purposes—became justly appreciated throughout this country, I have been constantly solicited by druggists, apothecaries, and large numbers of the most eminent physicians, in all parts of the Union, to add to my Gin importations pure Brandies and Wines, and to bottle them the same as I am and have been doing with the Schnapps; to seal with my seal and give my certificate guarantying their undoubted purity.

I should long ago have endeavored to comply with the flattering requests, but I found it impossible to do so, especially in regard to the important articles of Brandy, Port and Madeira Wines, owing to the high prices in Europe, occasioned by short grape crops for some years. Happily for the success of my new enterprise, the grape crops for the last and the previous years were abundant.

Another point in my favor is this the duty now on French Brandy is 70 per cent. less than it was when my medical friends began to solicit me to furnish pure Brandy and Wines. These favoring circumstances have enabled me to commence a new enterprise.—I have concluded to import Cognac Brandy and Wines, to bottle them for medical as well as for private use. I am well aware, from the bitter experience, the vile attacks, the misrepresentation of motives and enmity of dealers and mixers of bad articles which I met with & conquered the case of my Schnapps before obtained its present great preeminence over all other Gins, that the new enterprise will be attended with equal opposition more trouble, and involve an immense outly of capital. These difficulties and expenses will be much greater, because I shall have to encounter the malignity and enmity of countless thousands who are engaged in the liquor trade, and making fortunes by the manufacture of infamous imitations of "Brandy" made from poisonous compounds—their use being alike destructive to healthy human life, and of course speedy death to the feeble invalid, or those in whose behalf eminent physicians have urged upon me the importation of a pure, invigorating article of Brandy. I shall do so, in spite of all opposition, even that of the dealers and sellers of the stuff in bottles called "Brandy," of which millions of bottles are annually sold, and which is no better than the worst of poisons.

I am perfectly willing and well satisfied to embark in this new enterprise, and have no fears, no doubts about the most ultimate success for myself and the druggists and apothecaries in the thirty-three States. If they will heartily co operate with me in my efforts to drive out of use the vilest of compounds, called "Brandy," and replace it with the pure unadulterated article, which I will faithfully and truly supply.

The medical virtues of French Brandy need not to be told. The Brandy imported by me I will bottle, seal with my seal, my label, and add my certificate that it is of the first quality, and pure and unadulterated as when it left the distillery in France.

I will stake my reputation as a man, my standing as a merchant, and my tried commercial integrity, that what I pledge and certify to with my seal, my label, and my certificate is correct, and can be relied upon by purchasers in any section of the Union to which my Brandy may be sent. I have made arrangements with the best Brandy manufacturers in France, with those who have a world wide renown as the first Brandy exporters. I have selected four eminent firms who will ship me their Brandies. I shall not designate the article by any other name than Wolfe's Genuine Cognac Brandy. If I were to do otherwise it would be useless for then unprincipled persons, who are incessantly engaged in the nefarious traffic of imitating all valuable articles, would soon imitate and adopt my mark as a cloak under which to sell their compound of poisons to cover the vile imposition.

I am now prepared to receive and execute orders for Wolf's Genuine Cognac Brandy addressed to me, No 22 Beaver Street. Prices will be given to personal application, or in reply to letters.

In this circular I have thus far written mainly about pure Cognac Brandy; I have now to call your attention to other liquors and wines.

I am prepared to supply orders for "Jamaica Rum" imported and bottled by me; also Irish and Scotch Whiskey." The purity and genuineness of the last named articles, imported for "medical use" I will also guaranty with my seal, my label, and my certificate.

I shall also import the purest and best "Madeira," "Port," and "Sherry" Wines for Medical purposes. These I also guaranty with my seal, my label, and my certificate

In conclusion permit me to add that I shall be happy to hear from those that this circular reaches, and who as personal or pecuniary interests it may effect, in the combination of articles that I engage to supply. Should any such person visit New York—especially a Druggists, Apothecary or Physician—I shall be most happy to receive a personal call.

There is no importer who possesses more actual experience and knowledge of the importing liquor and wine trade than I do, I have been engaged in it over thirty years

I have stated some facts connected with my new enterprize for the particular information of those connected with the practice or the sale of medicines. If I am favored with the visits of any such, or by friends to whom they give letters of introduction to me, they can see with their own eyes, and feel my truthfulness by their own observation.

I respectfully crave, for this Circular and its contents a careful and attentive perusal. I am, respectfully, your obedient servant,

UDOLPHO WOLFE.

New York, Sept. 3d, 1858.

I have analized a sample of Chestnut Grove Whiskey, received from Mr. Charles Wharton, Jr., of Philadelphia, and having carefully tested it, I am pleased to state that it is entirely free from poisonous or deleterious substances.

It is an unusually pure and fine flavored quality of whiskey.

I have made a chemical analysis of commercial samples of Chestnut Grove Whiskey, which proves to be free from the heavy Fusil Oils, and perfectly pure and unadulterated.—The fine flavor of this Whiskey is derived from the Grain used in manufacturing it.—

Charleston Convention.

FIRST DAY'S PROCEEDING'S

COMMITTEES APPOINTED.

CHARESTON, April 23.

The Democratic National Convention met at noon to day.

Judge Smiley called the Convention to order.

On motion, Col. Thos. R. Flourney, of Arkansas, was appointed temporary Chairman, by acclamation. Wm. F. Richie, of Virginia, was appointed Secretary.

Convention opened with prayer by Rev. Dr. Henkle.

A Committee consisting of two from each State was appointed to report on permanent organization.

A Committee was also appointed to report on credentials.

Adjourned to Tuesday 10 o'clock.

The city is crowded with strangers from all parts of the Union. A very exciting time is anticipated.

Hon. A. B. Clitherall.

We publish in this week's paper, to which we invite attention, the letter of the Hon. A. B. Clitherall, to the Editor of the Pickens Republican, in response to the request previously made by him, calling on Judge Clitherall for his reasons for voting for the 3 per cent. Bill passed at the last session of the legislature.

We are gratified to know that Judge C. will in future give his views in extenso; and fully agree with the Editor of the Republican, that there is no member of the late Legislature better able to collate and array in solid columns, an exposition of all the facts and reasons in favor of the 3 per cent bill, than Judge Clitherall. We are rejoiced to see that one possessing the talent and capacity, so eminently as he does, will undertake the task. The more we reflect upon the Railroad Bill, the more fully are we convinced that it is the greatest measure that has been adopted by any Legislature of our State, since its organization, for the good of the people. See what it proposes to do if carried out, to the extent contemplated. By its passage, the Legislature has initiated measures—beautifully and truly said by Hon. A. B. Meek—"by which the iron pathway of commerce and communication are to be laid down through all parts of our State; by which the mountain barriers of the North are to be overleaped by the Fire Horse, and the sands of the South are to glitter in the light of his flaming eyes; by which the wilderness and waste places are to be made populous and glad; by which the beautiful valley of the Tennessee is to clasp hands with the sunny shores of the Gulf; by which the rich mineral treasures of the interior are to be unlocked from the coffers of nature, and poured, with the opulent products of our soil, through improved and cheapened channels, into the markets of the world;" and by which Alabama will assume among the States of the Union that high and grand position which nature has assigned her—the Eden of America—the "Queen of the South."

The Legislature has sown the right seed, which we hope has fallen upon rich soil; and from which we believe, in less than a decade, our people will be reaping a rich harvest—and our children's children continue to reap, through untold generations.—For all this will Alabama be indebted to such men as the Hon. A. B. Clitherall—men who not courting home popularity for the hour; but men who looked forward to accomplish that which in the end will redound, not only to the benefit of their immediate people, but the whole people—to make their State truly an independent sovereignty—among sovereignties. Upon such men as Judge Clitherall and his co-laborers, the meed of praise cannot be too lavishly bestowed. We feel that the State owes him a debt of gratitude for his services rendered in securing the adoption of this great measure, and we trust the day is not far distant, when the whole people will reward him, by calling him to some high and honorable position, which his talents, integrity and sterling worth so justly merit.

GRAND AND PERILOUS BALLOON ASCENSION,

Man went up with Balloon on Fire.—Mons. Wells, of New Orleans, the Aeronaut, made the first Balloon Ascension, ever witnessed at this place, on Saturday last. The temporary furnace for inflating his balloon was erected on the public square, north of the Court House. A large number of persons of the town and vicinity collected, at various places around the square to witness the feat. The inflation commenced about 2 o'clock, & was continued about two hours, the furnace being supplied during the time with wood and pine, and alcohol burned several times to hasten the process. When fully inflated, M. Wells got into his hoop and basket, which was suspended by small cords, some 8 or 10 feet below the balloon and gave orders to those holding it down to "let go." In lifting the bottom over the chimney of the furnace however, the lower edge of the cloth of which it was made took fire. Some of those holding it told the Aeronaut, and tried to put it out, but he not understanding them again gave orders to "let go," which they did. He arose rapidly and majestically, waving his cap over his head, while the numerous spectators below, rent the air with their loud and repeated huzzas. It reached an altitude where M. Wells did not look much larger than a man's hand, and was wafted by a gentle breeze in a north-east direction, and landed in a large oak tree about a mile from the court house. Mons W. discovered the fire when the balloon had got several hundred feet high, and used all the means in his power to effect a speedy landing, fearing the fire might burn the cords an I let him fall. Soon after landing, the fire, which perhaps had been kept from running up the balloon by its rapid motion, blazed up and soon burnt most of it to ashes. When he struck the tree he caught some limbs while his balloon fell over on the other side and below, out of his reach, and also out of reach of those who were soon on the ground, and assisted him, not without considerable difficulty to get down out of the tree. The blazing balloon was distinctly seen from town, and caused some painful apprehension for his safety, which however was soon relieved by his safe return.

Mons. Wells informs us that he has made in all about 140 ascensions, and never met with but two accidents in addition to having his balloon burnt here. Some years ago he made 3 ascensions from Baton Rouge; the third time, coming down in the night, his balloon struck the top of a high tree before he saw it, threw him suddenly out. He grasped a limb with his hands while his feet became entangled in the cords. When his feet got loose he pitched forward and fell, striking his head against a limb in his descent, which made a dent yet plainly visible. He struck the earth in a sitting posture, which so injured his spine that he was confined to his bed for 10 months.

The other accident occurred recently at Wetumpka, and is thus described by the "Spectator" of that place.

FEARFUL ASCENSION.—Professor Well an Aronaut attempted an ascension in this city on Saturday last, which came very near proving disastrous to him.—The Balloon having been inflated he stepped into the basket and gave the word to "let go" and was not obeyed, but immediately afterwards when he was not ready they did "let go," and the wind blowing from the West the Balloon with lightning speed was borne upwards, he swaying forward and back with but one foot in the basket, first struck a wire dipile, then a fence, then the side of the Coosa Hall kitchen, then the eaves of the kitchen knocking off the shingles, and afterwards the eaves of the Coosa Hall, in striking which last place it threw him some five feet from the basket, dangling in the air, holding nearly by his hands to the ropes. With a wonderful presence of mind on arriving just over the Coosa Hall while some eight feet from the roof he swung loose from the Balloon and lit on it but [illegible] inflated "machine" would have hung him perfectly helpless in the air holding merely by his hands, whose strength must have soon fallen and a horrible death would have resulted to him by a fall of some thousand feet to the earth; a spectacle which would have been too horrible to witness. A large crowd was present, anxious to see the ascension and a sigh of relief was breathed from every bosom when he safely alighted on the hall.

Mons. W. we understand has proposed to make one or two ascensions from this place during the present and next week, for an amount sufficient to purchase cloth for a new balloon, which is already being made up. The one burned contained 1000 yards of cloth and was 75 feet in heighth and 150 in circumference.

☞See in another column, the new advertisement of Jones, Scott, Omberg & Co

These gentlemen, we have been informed are selling extraordinary cheap bargains in Dry Goods. But you can find out all about this, by stepping into their store while in Rome.

THE CENSUS.—According to the act of Congress, no deputy will be allowed over twenty thousand inhabitants. Those who may be appointed by the United States Marshall will be required to commence operations on the first of June and conclude their work six weks thereafter.—This arrangement will make small districts a necessity.

☞Frost.—We had a slight frost on yesterday morning, 25th inst. We fear that it has injured young corn and cotton in low places.

Messrs. J. B. & G. H Forney, as will be seen, by reference to their advertisement in another column, have received their usually large and splendid assortment of new, beautiful and fashionable goods; and are now ready to wait on their friends and customers, in supplying their wants with every variety of goods of superior quality, upon the most reasonable terms. We have seldom if ever seen their shelves more full of fine and fashionable goods. Call and examine them without fail.

After the first of June, the junior member of the firm will be permanently located in New York, from whence he will keep the house constantly supplied with fresh and reasonable goods. We shall sadly miss his sunny face and cheerful voice, his kindly greetings and genial wit; but shall be at least in part compensated and consoled by the fact, that we shall be the beneficiaries of the employment of his unusual business tact and talent, in forwarding, constant supplies of goods of the best quality, purchased upon the most favorable terms in the commercial emporium of America. May he in his new home find as many and as true friends as he leaves behind.

☞We propose to persons who may wish to take one of the best Literary Magazines in the Union, to let them have "Arthur's Home Magazine," published at Philadelphia, and the Jacksonville Republican, both for one year for $3.50.

Each number of the Magazine has several fine steel Engravings, also colored fashion plates, and a number of other splendid embellishments; and in literary contents has no superior.

Our friends who may wish to get this paper and the Home Magazine, at these cheap club rates, will please send in their names, and we will order the Magazine immediately.

Valuable Lands and Personal Property for Sale.—The attention of persons who may wish to purchase truly desirable and valuable lands, upon good terms, is invited to the advertisement of Dr. J. F. Edwards, in another column. A considerable portion of the land is fine creek bottom, is well watered with fine springs and has abundance also of stock water, conveniently situated. The dwelling house is new and commodious and other houses well arranged, with good orchard, &c. The Dr. has also a valuable negro woman, some valuable stock, and a large quantity of first class furniture which he wishes to dispose of upon favorable terms to purchasers.

We may add here, that the Doctor has been for several years engaged in the successful practice of medicine, & it is said to be a good location for a physician.

☞We invite the attention of the the purchasers of Jewelry, to the notice of the extensive auction sale of J. C. Billings & Co., to commence on the 26th inst. The ladies will doubtless find in their large stock, many beautiful articles suited to their fancy.

New Goods and Groceries.—We invite attention to the advertisement of Mr. J. A Stevenson, who has opened a new store on the south-west corner of the public square. He has also on hand a heavy stock of Groceries, which he is selling at very reduced prices for cash. Mr S. has heretofore had considerable experience in the mercantile business, and will doubtless afford every facility, and offer every reasonable inducement to purchasers.

☞We acknowledge with pleasure the reception, on Saturday last of a beautiful silver cup, with the inscription—"Presents to J. F. Grant, by W. Coleman Land."

We have heretofore stated, that in the course of long experience and observation, we had noticed that kindly remembrance of the Printer, was generally a prelude to business success and prosperity. We hope it may prove eminently so in this case; and that the friends and patrons of the [illegible] ner of this cup, may have the same appreciation of his skill as a workman, and his good qualities as a citizen and gentleman that they have of the pure and beautiful metal of which the cup itself is composed.

It being court week and a very busy time with us, we have not had time to step into Mr. Land's store, but learn that he has recently received an additional stock of beautiful and genuine silver ware and jewelry. Remember that it is better to give a fair price for a good article, than to be cheated and defrauded with a low priced, but base and worthless counterfeit.

☞We acknowledge the reception from Mr. H. Gutman, of a very acceptable present, in the shape of a Buffalo tongue, a delicacy which would make the mouth of an epicure water, and for which we have not tongue sufficient to express our gratitude

Our New Jail has been finished, received by the Commissioners, and used in the reception of a prisoner, all within the last week. We understand the prisoner expressed himself better pleased with his new House than the old one from which he was transferred. This was probably owing to the fact that he was relieved from his chains for which there is no use now.

The Commissioners were well pleased with the manner in which the contractor, G. W. Matthews had executed the work. Mr. W. very generously made a present to the Commissioners of various pieces of extra work not embraced in the contract.

L. W. LAWLER'S LETTER.

MOBILE, February 10, 1860

Editor of the Mobile Register:

SIR:—Inasmuch as disapproving editorial comments upon the tenth resolution of the series adopted by the late Democratic State Convention, have appeared in your paper and a few others in this State, and as preference has been expressed by the same journals for the amendment offered by General Jackson, of Autauga, on the subject of instructions to our delegates to the Charleston Convention, it is proper that the amendment of Gen Jackson, as it stood when the vote on the previous question was taken, should be correctly understood by the people, to whom appeals are being made to condemn what was done at Montgomery by their representatives. I beg leave, therefore through the columns of your paper, to supply the information which I deem of some moment at this juncture.

Immediately before the vote was taken on the previous question, moved by Col Yancy. I offered an amendment to Gen Jackson's amendment, to this effect: Strike out all after the word "States," in the last line but one, and insert the words—"So far as they can without a surrender of the principles laid down in the platform; but our delegates are expressly instucted to take no action in convention or out of it, which will not be in conformity with said principles."

My proposition was accepted by Gen Jackson, and his amendment or resolution, of instruction, as amended, read thus:

Resolved, That our delegates having thus respectfully presented our declaration of principles, as avowed by this Convention, failing to secure such action on the part of the Charleston Convention as should be in conformity therewith, and be satisfactory to the South, then, and in that case, our delegates are instructed to co operate with those from the other slave States, so far as they can without a surrender of the principles laid down in this platform; but our delegates are expressly instructed to take no action, in the convention or out of it, which will not be in conformity with said principles."

I have italicised the part incorporated upon my motion (which was accepted by Gen. Jackson,) for the purpose of showing that I did nothing which would impair the force of the resolutions adopted by the Convention with almost entire unanimity, embodying important and vital principles. My object in introducing my amendment was, to secure as nearly as was possible, a unanimous vote in favor of the resolution of instructions, deeming it important that the delegates should have the prestige of unanimity at home, both in reference to principles and policy.

When the resolution which was adopted, and the substitute offered, as amended, are compared, in what do they essentially differ? The phraseology is not the same, but is not the substance? Whether the motion for the previous question, at the time and under the circumstances attending it, was in good taste, is not material to the object I now have in view. I am satisfied however, that my amendment would have been adopted, almost unanimously, if time had been afforded to scrutinize it.

Will it be offered the substitute of Gen Jackson, as amended, to the tenth resolution adopted. I do not feel inclined, nor deem it proper, to assail the Convention for adopting the entire report of the Committee on platforms.

In this communication it is not my purpose to impugn the motives of those who manifest a readiness to find fault with some portions of the platform and instructions adopted at Montgomery; and yet I know that injustice has been done the Convention. Its action is either not understood or not fairly represented in some quarters. It has been charged that it was a body of disunionists. This is not true. There may have been men in it who desire a dissolution of the Union, and are per se disunionists, but the number was evidently small. I was present as a delegate from the County of Talladega, and attended every sitting from the organization to the adjournment and I do not hesitate to assert that a conservative disposition was manifested in all its deliberations upon questions involving political principles. The delegates in the main, seemed to have two great, yet inexplicable objects in view—the preservation of the rights of the slaveholding States, without trenching upon the rights of others—and on that basis, the preservation of the Union.

The committee raised to prepare a platform was composed of two delegates from each Congressional district, each district, through its delegates in the Convention, selecting two. In this way the sentiments of the Democracy of the State were fairly represented. We approached the fountain of power—the people—as nearly as was possible. The names of that committee have been given to the public, and they are generally too well known in this State not only as men of ability and experience but as well tried Democrats, to require any commendation at my hands. Among those known as conservative politicians, I may mention Patton Forney and Hardwick. This committee, through its able chairman, Col. Erwin, unanimously reported the platform which was adopted by the Convention, and if the Democratic party of Alabama be a party of principle and has heretofore acted wisely, under the guidance of principle, then I maintain that the platform adopted at Montgomery in 1860 contains nothing obnoxious to assault and unfriendly criticism.

No new principle is enunciated no new plank is interpolated; no new tests of party fealty are incorporated old principles are not re-asserted in new or uncertain language; no usage has been violated. On the contrary, the land marks of the party have been strictly observed and adhered to.

The same doctrines are asserted on the subject of protection to slave property in the Territories, couched partly in the same language, which the Democracy of this State deemed it proper to assert in its State Convention, held respectively in 1848 and 1856.

That there may be no mistake in this respect, I submit extracts from some of the resolutions adopted in 1848 and 1856

The 11th resolution adopted in 1848 contains this language:

That the opinion advanced and maintained by some: that the people of a territory, acquired by common toil, suffering, blood and treasure of the people of the States, can in other event than in forming a Constitution preparatory to admittance as a State into the Union, lawfully or constitutionally prevent any citizen from any such State from removing to or settling in such Territory be it slave property or other wise, is a restriction as indefensible in principle and as dangerous in practice as if such restrictions were imposed by Congress.

In another resolution, adopted at the same time, this language is held

"That it is the duty of the general government, by all proper legislation to secure an entry into those Territories (refering to the territory acquired from Mexico) to all citizens of the United States, together with their property of every description, and that the same should remain protected by the United States while the territories are under its authority."

The 13th resolution contains a pledge of the members of the convention "under no political necessity whatever to support for the officers of President and Vice President of the United States any persons who shall not be openly and avowedly opposed to either form of excluding from the Territories," mentioned in the resolutions which preceded.

The 14th resolution instructs the delegates to National Convention to be guided in their action by the thirteen preceding resolutions.

Could popular sovereignty have been more plainly and unqualifiedly condemned than it was in the Convention of 1848? If so, tell your readers how.

Coming down to the Convention of 1856, we find the following emphatic language employed in the first resolution?

"The unqualified right of the people of the slaveholding States to the protection of their property in the States in the territories and in the wilderness in which Territorial governments are as yet unorganized. The Democratic platform is based on the recognition, not of one, but of both these principles; and when efforts are made to separate these two questions, the Democratic party resting upon its platform says: we do not compromise either proposition," but we stand united upon both.'

Is there any evasion or ambiguity in the language of that resolution? It embraces and alike condemns popular and squatter sovereignty, and completely disarms those who seek to make such a distinction as to support the former and condemn the latter.

I defy the ingenuity of the most astute politician in Alabama to point out any material departure by the Democratic Convention of 1860 from the landmarks of the party as shadowed forth in 1848 and 1856. The resolutions embodying cardinal principles adopted by the late Convention, reasserting those of 1848 and 1856, were passed by years 444, to nays 12. When in the history of the State was the party in Convention assembled more united or its action more harmonious than that indicates?

But those who oppose its action base their opposition mainly upon the tenth resolution. Let us compare this resolution with the resolution of instructions adopted in 1856.

INSTRUCTIONS IN 1856.

That if said National Convention shall refuse to adopt the proposition embraced in the foregoing resolutions, our delegates to said convention are hereby positively instructed to withdraw there from"

INSTRUCTIONS OF 1860.

That our delegates to the Charleston Convention are hereby expressly instructed to insist that said Convention shall adopt a platform of principles recognizing distinctly the rights of the south as asserted in the foregoing resolutions; and if said Convention shall refuse to adopt in substance the propositions in the preceding resolutions, prior to nominating candidates, our delegates to said Convention are hereby positively instructed to withdraw therefrom.

Now, sir, I ask your readers whether the efforts to prejudice the public mind against the action of the late Convention, even upon the question of instructions, are just and defensible?

The Convention refrained from expressing any preference for any man as a Presidential candidate; resolved neither for nor against any man; pledged the State to no course of action, in any contingency; but laid down a platform of principles to which the party stands committed since 1848, and instructed the delegates to Charleston, if a recognition of our rights could not be obtained to return home with it participating in a nomination; leaving the people of the State to determine what their honor and their interests may demand to be done.

But while the Convention refrained from doing anything not legitimately committed to it, it did not shrink from the performance of its duty. It resolved by an overwhelming majority that the Democracy of Alabama is not to be driven to the "monstrous heresy" (to use the language of the Hon. Mr. Hillard in his agricultural address delivered in Montgomery, in Nov. last,) of popular sovereignty. In doing this, it followed the indications of public sentiment throughout the State. In most of the primary meetings this dogma was condemned. In a few it was ignored, but in none was it approved or endorsed.

The Confederation, whose senior editor was an eye-witness of the proceedings of the Convention has pronounced its action conservative and in accordance with the Democratic sentiment of the State. I refer the reader to the last paragraph of the first column of editorial comment upon this subject, in the daily issue of that paper dated 17th January, only three days after the Convention adjourned. Is such an endorsement worth nothing? Aye, is it not worth much?

The opposers of the Convention protest that they wish to fight the battles of the South in the Union. So do I. But in fighting for our rights would it not be well to have an understanding as to what those rights are? If we are to plant our batteries upon popular sovereignty, whether the political battle of 1860 be won or lost the South would be defeated.—Into such an engagement I prefer not to enter. The first should be made upon more advantageous ground —the ground of equal rights—and then success would be a victory the benefits of which would be felt throughout the Union, and for ages to come.

Concluded next week.

CARROLTON, ALA., April 8th 1860

Editor Pickens Republican, SIR:—In your issue of the 5th inst., you requested me to state my "views as to the validity of Gov. Moore's objection" to the payment of interest on a portion of the three per cent fund, and to answer the question, "whether there ever was any great length of time, when any part of the three per cent fund was on deposit in the State Treasury, and, "has kept, useless to the State?"

The creation, use, controll and application of this fund, as well as the constitutional duty and legal liability of he State, are but little known to the people at large, and it should be a matter of surprise that so few, even of our best informed citizens, are cognisant of the facts in relation to this fund, which have been from year to year disseminated in the messages of our Governors, the reports of the committees of the Legislatures, and of the Comptrollers, and Treasurers of the State.

These things have not been done in a corner." Yet in some quarters, the final disposition of this trust fund, long delayed, and now after forty years of trusteeship by the State, at last applied in strict and just accordance with terms of the trust, is met with terms of obloquy and crimination seldom heard outside of the precincts of a Mayors court, or the possibly, less refined purlieus of a fish market.

It is my purpose at an early day after the termination of our Spring Courts, to prepare and publish in pamphlet form, the facts and the law, connected with the whole subject, and from official documents, and the highest legal authorities, maintain the correctness of each of the following propositions.

1st. That nearly, if not quite all of the three per cent fund, has been used by the State for purposes outside of the grant.

2d. That whether so used or not, the State is legally and equitably bound to pay interest on the fund.

3d. That the question of interest has been heretofore concluded against the State, by the payment of interest upon the other trusts funds credited by the same grant, and by the appropriation of interest from this very fund.

4th. That it has been the uniform policy of the Anti State Aid Party in Alabama, to insist upon the application of this fund to purposes of Internal improvement, instead of endorsing bonds for Rail Road corporations.

5th That the Legislature was bound by the Ordinance of 1819, and by the express terms of the Constitution, to apply this fund in an economical and systematic manner to works of Internal improvement, and that the only alternative, is repudiation of a sacred trust.

Will you excuse me, if at this time I decline to answer your particular question in detail, and confect myself, for the present, with merely indicating the head notes of the argument I propose to submit. I desire to present the law, and the facts, as a whole: that my argument may cover the ground, and that each objection be answered in its place.

I voted cheerfully and spoke if not ably, at least earnestly in favor of the three percent Bill. Reflection and investigation have but served to render me doubly satisfied with my course. I regard the measure as the crowning act of the most efficient Legislature Alabama has ever had; a measure pregnant with countless blessings to the whole States; one which relieves the future legislation of the State from a vexed and troublesome question; which unites as one people the hitherto dissevered sections of north and south Alabama; which pours in rich abundance into the lap our own seaport, the countless treasures of the grain, the mineral the timber and the cotton sections of the State, and all this will be accomplished by using the means and the means only, which the State has so long held in trust for this sole purpose.

For myself, I have done with political life; to my profession, and to my profession alone do I purpose to devote myself. If to that retirement I shall hereafter feel any yearnings to participate again in the legislation of my State, I will find ample compensation in the recollection, that in the Legislature of 1859–60, as a Representative from the county of Pickens, I took an active and an earnest part in advocacy, of ALL of those great measure, whose certain tendency, and inevitable result, is to make Alabama the pride, and boast of her sisters of the South.

Respectfully,
ALEX. B. CLITHERALL.

From Washington

WASHINGTON, April 17.—In the Senate, Mr. Wilson introduced a bill for the more effectual suppression of the slave trade. The committee on the Judiciary was instructed to enquire into the expediency of further legislation relative to the arrest of Brown jr., and Sanborn.

The House tabled a resolution to adjourn to the first of May, by forty-three majority. A bill was introduced and referred to committee, for the suppression of the Coolie trade by American vessels. The House passed a bill appropriating four hundred thousand dollars for the purpose of restoring curtailed postal service.

Inauguration of the Clay Statute.

RICHMOND, April 12.—The Clay statute was inaugurated to-day with a grand military display, the finest ever witnessed in Richmond. The crowd of strangers was immence. Mr. Barbour's oration was a masterly tribute to the great Kentucky statesman. The statue is considered a fine work of art, and is much admired.

The Massacree at Rome.

NEW YORK, April 12.—The London Times, received by the Persia, contains a letter giving full details of the late massacree at Rome by the Papal gen d'armes. One hundred and forty-seven persons were either killed or wounded. A number of ladies were injured, and the American Vice Consul received a stab in the side. Several of the French military, off duty, were also wounded.

☞"Hello, Bill, lend me five dollars!"

"You're mistaken in your man, sir. I'm not a five dollar bill!"

☞A poet says: "Oh she was fair, but sorrow came, and left his traces there."

What became of the balance of the harness he dont state.

ANOTHER "PIZIN" GAME.—Miss Ripson who was crossed in love by that good-looking printer chap, purchased six cents worth of laudanum, and took—another arter Bloomers. "But," she says,—

"A nasty dog came in one day,
And with my trowsers rund away—
Afore I could get 'em or I'

Poor gal! she'll take pizin next—pr'aps. See if she don't!

☞"Much remains unsung," as the tomcat said to the brickbat when it abruptly cut short his serenade.

A Scotchman who had put up at an inn, was asked in the morning how he had slept. "Troth man," redlied Donald. "nae very weel either; but muckle better off than the bugs for devil a one o' them closed an e'e the hale night!"

"I cannot imagine," said Alderman H., "why my whiskers should turn gray so much quicker than the hair on my head."

"Because you have worked so much more with your jaws than your brains," observed a wag.

"AH! Charley," said one little fellow to another, "we are going to have a cupola on our house." "Pooh! that's nothing," rejoined the other; "we're going to have a mortgage on ours"

AYER'S
Ague Cure
FOR THE SPEEDY CURE OF

Intermittent Fever, or Fever and Ague Remittent Fever, Chill Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical Headache, or Bilious Headache, and Bilious Fevers, indeed for the whole class of diseases originating in biliary derangement, caused by the Malaria of miasmatic countries.

No one remedy is hereby called for by the necessities of the American people than a sure and safe cure for Fever and Ague. Such we are now enabled to offer, with a perfect certainty that it will eradicate the disease, and with assurances founded in proof, that no harm can arise from its use in any quantity.

That which protects from or prevents the disorder must be of inestimable service in the communities where it prevails. Prevention is better than cure, for the patient escapes the risk which he must run in violent attacks of this baleful distemper. This "Cure" expels the miasmatic poison of Fever and Ague from the system and prevents the development of the disease, if taken on the first approach of its premonitory symptoms. It not only the best remedy ever yet discovered for this class of complaints, but also the cheapest. The large quantity we supply for a dollar brings it within the reach of everybody; and in bilious districts, where Fever AND Ague prevails, every body should have and use it. It is only both for cure and protection. It is hoped that the price will place it within the reach of all—the poor as well as the rich.

The great superiority of this remedy over any other ever discovered for the speedy and certain cure of Intermittents is, that it contains no Quinine or mineral, consequently it produces no sickness or other injurious effect whatever upon the constitution. Those cured by it are left as healthy as if they had never had the disease.

Fever and Ague is not alone the consequence of the mala naous poison. A great variety of diseases arise from its irritation, among which are Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Headache, Blindness, Toothache, Earache, Catarrh, Asthma, Palpitation, Painful Affection of the Spleen, Hysterics, Pain in the Bowels, Colic, Paralysis, and Derangement of the Stomach, all of which, when originating in this cause, put on the intermittent type, or become periodical. This "Cure" expels the poison from the blood, and consequently cures them all alike. It is an invaluable protection to immigrants and persons travelling or temporarily residing in the malarious districts. If taken occasionally or daily while exposed to the infection, it will be excreted from the system and cannot accumulate in sufficient quantity to ripen into disease. Hence it is even more reliable for protection than cure, and few will ever suffer from Intermittents, if they avail themselves of the protection this remedy affords.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,
FOR ALL THE PURPOSES OF A FAMILY PHYSIC

are so composed that Disease within the range of their action can rarely withstand or evade them. Their penetrating properties search, and cleanse, and invigorate every portion of the human organism, correcting its disordered action, and restoring it to healthy vitality. As a consequence of these properties, the Invalid, who is bowed down with pain or physical debility is astonished to find the health or energy restored by a remedy at once simple and inviting.

Not only do they cure the every-day complaints of every body, but also many formidable and dangerous diseases. The agent below named is pleased to furnish gratis my American Almanac, containing certificates of their cures and direction for their use in the following complaints: Costiveness, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Bilious Colic, Dysentery, Foul Stomach, Nausea, Loss of Appetite, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Pain in the Back and Loins, Inaction of the Bowels, Flatulency, Loss of Appetite, Jaundice, and other kindred complaints, arising from a low state of the body or obstruction of its functions. They are an excellent alterative for the recovery of the blood and the restoration of tone and strength to the system debilitated by disease.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,
FOR THE RAPID CURE OF

Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Hoarseness, Croup, Bronchitis, Incipient Consumption, and for the relief of Consumptive Patients in advanced stages of the disease.

So wide is the field of its usefulness and so numerous are the cases of its cures, that almost every section of country abounds in persons publicly known, who have been restored from alarming and even desperate diseases of the lungs by its use. When once tried, its superiority over every other medicine of its kind is too apparent to escape observation, and where its virtues are known, the public no longer hesitate what antidote to employ for the distressing and dangerous affections of the throat, lungs or organs that are incident to our climate. While many inflictions thrust upon the consumptive have failed and been discarded, the unvarying triumphs in every trial, conferred benefits on the afflicted that can never be forgot, and prescriptions too palpable and too remarkable to be forgotten.

JUDSON'S
Mountain Herb Pills.

ABOVE we present you with a perfect likeness of TECUMSEH, a chief of a tribe of the strange Aztec Nation that once ruled Mexico. You will find a full account of him and his people in our Pamphlets and Almanacs—to be had gratis, from the Agents for these Pills.

The inventor and manufacturer of "Judson's Mountain Herb Pills," has spent the greater part of his life in traveling, having visited nearly every country in the world. He spent over six years among the Indians of the Rocky Mountains and of Mexico, and it was thus that these AMERICAN PILLS were discovered. A very interesting account of his adventures there, you will find in our Almanac and Pamphlet.

It is an established fact, that all diseases arise from

IMPURE BLOOD!

The blood is the life! and when any foreign or unhealthy matter gets mixed with it, it is at once distributed to every organ of the body. Every nerve feels the poison, and all the vital organs quickly complain. The stomach will not digest the food perfectly. The liver ceases to secrete a sufficiency of bile. The action of the heart is weakened, and as the circulation is feeble, the lungs become clogged with the poisonous matter; hence, a cough—and all from a slight impurity at the fountain, head of life—the Blood! As if you had thrown some earth, for instance, in a pure spring, from which ran a tiny rivulet, in a few minutes the whole course of the stream becomes distur

Economy & Progression.

In this, the age of advancement, many things new and invaluable have been introduced—not the phantoms and chimeras of other ages, but new ones, of sound and practical utility. In no department is progression better marked or more visible to be seen than in the medical, when originating with competent men, and confined to scientific limits. Discovery of that character are the following powerful agents, none will prove more efficient, or are so often needed.

DR. LITTLE'S ANODYNE COUGH DROPS.

A new and certain cure for Coughs, Asthma Pains in the Breast; also Croup, Whooping Cough, Colds etc., among children.

This is a pleasant medicine to take of reducing immediate relief, and in nine out of ten cases a prompt cure. It exercises the most controlling influence over Coughs and Irritation of the Lungs of any remedy known, often stopping the most violent in a few hours, at most in a day or two. Many cases thought to be decidedly consumptive have been promptly cured by using a few bottles, and wearing the Little's Strengthening Plasters on the chest. As an anodyne Expectorant, without astringing the bowels, it stands paramount to all cough mixtures.

DR. LITTLE'S FRENCH MIXTURE.

This is prepared from a French Recipe in the forms of No's 1 and 2, the first for the acute, and No. 2 for the chronic stage; that has been much improved upon in this country, & from its unexampled success is fit by to supercede every other remedy for the cure of the diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Gonorrhœa, Bloody and Leucorrhœal or Flour Albus Affections. This extensive compound combines properties specially different in taste and character from any thing to be found in the United States in Pharmacopœa or in private practice; and in point of safety and efficiency is not rivalled in America.

DOLLAR VERMIFUGE

Prepared and put up in bottles and vials only by C.W. Little, in using, nothing else is required to relieve children of worms and besides being one of the best and cheapest ever offered to the public, its frequent use in families will save much trouble and expense, as well as the lives of many children; for eight out of every ten cases generally require it.

DR. LITTLE'S RINGWORM & TETTER OINTMENT.

Hundreds of cases of Chronic Tetters, Scald Heads, and diseases of the skin generally, have been cured by this remedy, and since the introduction of the No 2 preparation (being stronger) scarcely a case has been found that it will not effectually eradicate in a short time. For the cure of Cancerous sores and Ulcers it is applied in the form of Plasters, and is almost infallible.

In addition, the Proprietor prepares, for the great convenience and certainty in prescribing, Strengthening Plasters, of the most superior quality, Improved Cook's Pills (a mild by billious cathartic) Vegetable Pills (a mild tightness cathartic) Antacid (An cathartic to check sourness) and Antacid (An tightness and acidity of the stomach.) Tonic Bitters, etc., which will be sent on consignment, if ordered.

Medicines, like everything else, are better and more economically supplied to the great mass of the people by merchandise than in any other way.

Physicians are referred to the 19th page of Dr. Little's phamplet, to the catalogue of medicines of the Materia Medica, that he uses in compounding his different remedies, and asked to say if they are not the chief influence of the prescription, as he himself has practised medicine extensively for more than ten years, before retiring to the drug business.

In more than two hundred places in Georgia, and in all the Southern States they are to be had; and as there are couples about who are counterfeiting his remedies, by palming off their own or something else, by using the same or similar names (for no patent is wanted or secured) amid the absurd patents of the day.

N. B.—All orders and letters on business are to sent in future to LITTLE & BRO. Macon, Georgia, instead of Philadelphia.

TO THE PUBLIC.

Ever since my "Aromantic Schiedam Schnapps"—the purest and best Gin for medical purposes—became fully appreciated throughout this country, I have been constantly solicited by druggists, apothecaries, and large numbers of the most eminent physicians, in all parts of the Union, to add to my Gin importations pure Brandies and Wines, and to bottle them the same as I am and have been doing with the Schnapps; to seal with my seal and give my certificate guarantying their undoubted purity.

I should long ago have endeavored to comply with the flattering requests, but I found it impossible to do so, especially in regard to the important articles of Brandy, Port and Madeira Wines, owing to the high prices in Europe, occasioned by short grape crops for some years. Happily, for the success of my new enterprise, the rich crops for th last and the previous years were abundant.

Another point in my favor is the duty now on French Brandy, 40 per cent less than it was when my medical friends began to solicit me to furnish pure Brandy and Wines. These favoring circumstances have enabled me to commence a new enterprise.—I have concluded to import Cognac Brandy and Wines, to bottle them for medical as well as for private use. I am well aware, from the bitter experience, the vile attacks, the misrepresentation of motives and enmity of dealers and mixers of bad articles which I met with & conquered in the case of my Schnapps before obtained its present proud pre-eminence over all other Gins, that the new enterprise will be attended with equal opposition more trouble, and involve an immense outly of capital. These difficulties and expenses will be much greater, because I shall have to encounter the malignity and enmity of countless thousands who are engaged in the liquor trade, and making fortunes by the manufacture of infamous imitations of "Brandy" made from poisonous compounds—their use being alike destructive to healthy human life, and of course speedy death to the feeble invalid, or those in whose behalf eminent physicians have urged upon me the importation of a pure, invigorating article of Brandy. I shall do so, in spite of all opposition, even that of the dealers and sellers of the stuff in bottles called "Brandy," of which millions of bottles are annually sold, and which is no better than the worst of poisons.

I am perfectly willing and well satisfied to embark in this new enterprise, and have no fears, no doubts about the most ultimate success for myself and the druggists and apothecaries in the thirty-three States, if they will heartily co-operate with me in my efforts to drive out of use the vilest of compounds, called "Brandy," and replace it with the pure unadulterated article, which I will faithfully and truly supply.

The medical virtues of French Brandy need not to be told. The Brandy imported by me I will bottle, seal with my seal, my label, and add my certificate that it is of the first quality, and pure and unadulterated as when it left the distillery in France.

I will stake my reputation as a man, my standing as a merchant, and my tried commercial integrity, that what I pledge and certify to with my seal, my label, and my certificate is correct, and can be relied upon by purchasers in any section of the Union to which my Brandy may be sent. I have made arrangements with the best Brandy manufacturers in France, with those who have a world wide renown as the first Brandy exporters. I have selected four eminent firms who will ship me their Brandies. I shall not designate the article by any other name than Wolfe's Genuine Cognac Brandy. If I were to do otherwise it would be useless to them unprincipled persons, who are incessantly engaged in the pernicious traffic of imitating all valuable articles, would soon imitate and adopt my mark as a cloak under which to sell their compound of poison as to cover the vile imposition.

I am now prepared to receive and execute orders for "Wolfe's Genuine Cognac Brandy addressed to me, No 22 Beaver Street. Prices will be given to personal application, or in reply to letters.

In this circular I have thus far written solely about pure Cognac Brandy: I have now to call your attention to other liquors and wines.

I am prepared to supply orders for "Jamaica Rum" imported and bottled by me; also Irish and Scotch Whiskey." The purity and genuineness of these last-named articles, imported for "medical use" I will also guaranty with my seal, my label, and my certificate.

I shall also import the purest and best "Madeira," "Port," and "Sherry" Wines for Medical purposes. These I also guaranty with my seal, my label, and my certificate.

In conclusion permit me to add that I shall be happy to hear from those that this circular reaches, and whose personal or pecuniary interests it may effect, in the combination of articles that I engage to supply. Should any such person visit New York—especially a Druggists, Apothecary or Physician—I shall be most happy to receive a personal call.

There is no importer who possesses more actual experience and knowledge of the importing liquor and wine trade than I do. I have been engaged in it over thirty years.

I have narrated some facts connected with my new enterprise for the particular information of those connected with the practice of the sale of medicines. If I am favored with the visits of any such, or by friends to whom they give letters of introduction to me, they can see with their own eyes, and test my truthfulness by their own observation.

I respectfully crave, for this Circular and its contents a careful and attentive perusal. I am, respectfully, your obedient servant,

ADOLPHE WOLFE.
