OBITUARY.

"How sleep the brave who sink to rest,
With all their country's wishes blest.
When spring, with downy fingers cold,
Returns to dress their hallowed mould,
She there should dress a sweeter sod,
Than Fancy's feet have ever trod."

By fairy hands their knell is rung,
By forms unseen their dirge is sung;
There Honor comes a pilgrim gray,
And Freedom's hand will wipe their brow,
To dwell as peacefully as they.

Enrolled Obituary. One of the noblest spirits who ever calmly and bravely met death, was the late Mr. Thomas R. Rowland, son of Hugh and Catharine Francis, was born in Winchester, Tenn., Feb. 1st, 1806, met a soldier's glorious fate on the battle plain of Ga., June 22nd, 1864. His mortal remains were interred in the burial ground of Jacksonville, Ala., June 26th, 1864. From early childhood he seemed different from others so young as he; his youthful fancy never pictured bright prospects of earthly honor and happiness; but every action manifested a strong desire to inherit the glory of the children of God. When at evening a holy hour, he was taught, in language by a Christian mother to his father, which art in Heaven, oft times questions, concerning Heaven, the angels and eternal things, indicated the deep spirituality of his infant soul.

Blessed with such training, his young heart early unfolded to drink in the sweet lessons of Heavenly wisdom, and at the age of twelve years, he became wise unto salvation through Him, "who out of the mouth of babes and sucklings hath perfected praise." At the same time he attached himself to the O. P. Church, and from that period his exemplary piety has been a living epistle known and read by all men. "Uniting a strong intellect, great earnestness, retiring modesty and great affection with all the graces of the Christian, his character presented a harmonious union of all these rare qualities which, at once, adorn and enable manhood to shine in the eyes of men. "None knew him but to love him, none named him but to praise." To a sensitive heart, like his, the ties of home and friendship are peculiarly sacred; but alas! these silken bonds were rudely severed by the cruel hand of war.

Fleeing before the approach of an invader, Col Francis removed his family from Winchester Jan. Feb., 1862, and sought refuge for loved ones in a land of strangers. So long banished from the home of his childhood, Turney very often expressed a desire to revisit the cherished spot around which so many sweet recollections dwell. He often said, when fondly dreaming of tomorrow's sun, dawning upon our land in peace, "Oh, how sweet home, dear old home, dear old home, when will I live to see you again, in the joy of my downy old age, degraded by sinners, imbued with the sublime spirit of Christian patriotism, he gazed with moist and anxious eyes upon his country's flag, home and all his associations intensified the ardor of his youthful soul, and when he marked the desolations wrought by the ruthless invaders, upon the stately homes and fair fields of his own loved Tennessee, his heart swelled, and his arm was uplifted for his mother State—Obeying the call of patriotism, he enlisted in Jan., 1864, in the 23rd Tenn. Battalion, Brown's Brigade. With uplifted arm and courageous heart, he stood with his gallant comrades endeavoring to hurl back the advancing columns of the merciless foe, who had desolated his home, and who were seeking the overthrow of that brave and noble freeman. In the number of battle his glorious name, "He is now," was numbered among the martyrs of freedom. No laurels of triumph wreathed his brow, but the Capt in his situation gave unto the faithful soldier a crown of life. His name was not heard in the joyous strains of victory on the crimson field of conflict, but his voice mingled in the glorious anthems of redeeming love in the courts of Heaven. Father, mother, brothers and sisters weep for the loss of one so pure, so noble, so good, but gleaming like a rainbow, upon the dark brow of bereavement, is the precious assurance mingling with the low farewell breath into his mother's ear, "Mother, grieve not, for if I fall on the battle field, I feel that I will be saved."

How precious is the memory of the death of such a Christian hero; for does it not country, for he was one of the purest martyrs; precious to his family, for he was a dutiful son, affectionate brother, tender and well beloved by the entire household; precious to his God, for it is written, "precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints."

Departed this life, at the residence of her father-in-law near Ladoga, Ala., on the 24th day of May, 1874, Margaret Stewart, wife of J. C. Stewart, in the 48th year of her age. She was born in the State of South Carolina. She was a member of the Presbyterian Church, and a true Christian. She leaves a small family of three children to mourn her loss, besides a large circle of relatives and friends.

At the time of her death, her husband was in the army, and did not have the opportunity of being with her on her death bed. She lived as all other Christians should live in the service of our Heavenly Father. Their loss is her gain. W. I. A. Spring Garden, June 28, 1864.

THOMAS R. ROWLAND.

The doubt and hopes of friends regarding the fate of him whose name is at the head of this notice, are now dispelled. A letter from a kind friend, Mr. Hugh Miller, to his affectionate and only brother, Joan, announces that Thomas died at the house of Mr. Newton Webb, in Synthiana, Ky., at 3 o'clock A. M., on Thursday, Oct. 16th, 1863, from the effects of a wound inflicted in the battles of August, on the Ohio River.

The letter states that he was taken with a chill at 2 o'clock on Monday, the day his friends, among whom was his only brother, left him, and gradually grew worse until his death. He talked frequently of his wife and children, and his last words were thoughts were of them.

The day after his death, in the evening, his remains were decently deposited in the vault burying ground of Synthiana, Ky., followed by many of the citizens, male and female, whose thoughts, in the words of the writer, "wandered away in sympathetic sorrow to his widowed wife and orphans in their desolate home."

vicinity. He was born in Greenville, South Carolina, on Feb. 22d February, 1824. He was raised among us and we all know him as a quiet, good and noble man, a young man, and a promising citizen. He was a volunteer in the 1st Regiment that left this Calhoun County, for the war. Subsequently with his noble brother John, also had himself to that heroic band, commanded by the gallant John H. Morgan, asserting his countrymen, that where dangers were thickest, and where the most certain, was the post, in which he was ready and willing to place himself.

County Bonds for the Soldiers.

Congress has authorized the issue of "bounty bonds," each representing one hundred dollars, says the Columbia State Carolinian, one of which each private soldier shall be entitled to receive on the first of October next, provided he has been at his post in the army from the first of April up to the period. These "bounty bonds" are to bear interest at six per cent., and considering the condition of their grant, they will have a certain honorary character over and above their pecuniary value. A special additional tax of one percent, besides the other Confederate taxes, is also appropriated to guarantee the bonds; and in the case of this Confederacy securing its independence of which there is no reasonable doubt—they will be real value for the amount on their face, and produce six dollars annually in gold. It is to be hoped that the soldiers, whose good conduct shall have earned this certificate, will prize it more than its money rate, as a high attestation of his faithful service to his country during the present great and perhaps final campaign. Speculators, brokers, and money changers will of course endeavor to buy the securities for a trifle; and if the soldiers tempted by a small sum in hand, should be imprudent as to part with them, many extortioners would make a fortune, and thousands of soldiers would lose, not only a portion of money which would be due to them by their did deed after them, but also a substantial fund which is to produce each year, more real money than the principal if paid in Confederate paper at this day. The "bounty bonds" will have been hardy earned; we trust they will be still harder to buy.

JACKSONVILLE, ALA., JULY 30, 1864. WHOLE NO. 1435

VOL. 28. NO. 31.

WARM - A Cincinnati paper has the following concerning the weather in that city:
A steamer was at the wharf discharging coal; a fire would start with a bar on his shoulder, but before he could get to the dry the load would melt and run over the boiler, making it necessary to cut him out with a cold chisel.

A BOLD LETTER FROM THE WEST.
Colonel Marshall Anderson, a brother of Gen. Sherman, has written a letter denouncing the nomination for State Elector on the Ohio Democratic State ticket. The letter is addressed to the Columbus (Ohio) Crisis. Here are two or three significant extracts:
I now fully realize and comprehend the meaning of the term "iron rule" has been. Now that "rampart war" has broken her red dragons to her iron car, I know that all humanity is trampled under her feet. I feel its full force. Our Genera's blood behind the buckler of Mars, while the devil, Bismarck, with blazing torch, lights on our arms to an ignominious victory over woman and children.
Hannibal crossed the Alps and remained for thirty years in the heart of the Roman Empire, defeating their armies, doing up their power. Do you see the example of the heathen leader teach us nothing? He passed through an epidemic of his country, and left behind him the Carthaginians and Romans. In his battles, he waged a war of desolation on woman and children. Kindness, consideration, and mild forbearance marked his course. Our wars violence the cries of his people, and the blood of his children. In every truth this war is a ruin on our such a ruin on our barbarous manner, it is so degrading to the government, so degrading to the soldier, that it is surprising no new vocabulary has been invented to explain the terms of our advanced and improved civilization. It is a stain to lay down an unchangeable law for our future conduct. To me, it is very clear that Democrats should never sacrifice principle for popularity - better suffer defeat, continuing for the right on a prime plea of freedom, than obtain success by fraud and falsehood.
What, sir, is the condition of our country! Over above and pressing down on our national burdens we poor Westerners are ordered to the north by our factor, masters, by Louisiana and shoddy ladies Peasants and heroes of the West, you are but tenant vassals for the naught of the East! East is so, and be happy! I say, arise! Arise, freemen of your right of speech, or your day of resurrection may never dawn.
Editor of the Crisis, "ag tata." If we do not have our glorious old Union, let us have God and Satan's Union! Let us follow the bright sparkling waters of the Ohio down to the Father of Waters - down to the ocean of peace. The greatest and grandest victory in the world claims us for her own; let us know edge her claim. It is, I will divide the honor with a member of the Cabinet. He said to G. S. Brown, "I am tired of fighting Southern slavery; I will have no more to do with slaveholders; I am in for a Northern Confederacy."
My prayer in this is, "I am tired working for Yankee taskmaster; I hate the selfish meaner; and therefore, I am in favor of a Westerner out-fence racy. I have paid tribute long enough to his looms and spindles of the East; I wish no longer to be the political pack mule of New England." They have taunted me that when the burden becomes intolerable, I have right to throw it off. They invented the word secede, and they inculcate the doctrine that an oppressed people are justified in seceding from themselves from their oppressors, "peaceably if they can, forcibly if they must."

RAYMOND. - Speaking of the editor of the New York Times, the Richmond Dispatch says that Lincoln ought to have made him Lieutenant General, instead of Grant. If he can not fight so well, he can run faster; and the Yankees admire a fleet-footed General. Like Sheridan and Wilson. From the following occurrence, we judge his claims are rising with the rank and file of the army, and will be soed upon the President. A gentleman, in conversation the other day with some Yankee prisoners, asked them who was the best General. "Oh!" said an Irishman of the party, "we have no Generals at all, at all." "No Generals! why, what is Grant?" "Oh! he is no General." "No General?" "No General." "Sherman?" "No General." "Well, then, whom do you call a General?" "I call the editor of the New York Times a General. Oh! but dont he lay it off beautiful?"

OBITUARY.

On the 6th day of June, 1864, fell near Guinea, Fanny V. P. PICKENS BLANK. He was killed by the enemy's sharpshooters. He was born on the 1st day of May, 1820, and was for nearly 15 years a resident of White Plains, Ala. The Telegraphic wires gave us the first news of the death of our dear and esteemed friend. We deeply mourn his loss, and the neighborhood in which he lived was struck with sadness, when the tidings of his untimely death became known.
The deceased volunteered in the W. R. Hanna's battery of the Choctaw regiment, and like others went forth with bright hopes and patriotic zeal to fight the battles of his bleeding country. Upon the 21st of August, 1862, he was elected Captain of his company, and he was appointed to the position of a better home. He was our friend - true to his duty under all circumstances. We knew him at home and in the field, and as a comrade, he won the love and esteem of his company. He was a true and devoted soldier, and his death was a loss to our noble soldiers.
Thus do the ranks of our noble soldiers become thinned, and other warriors step in to fill their stead.
But while we weep that any words of condolence on our part might seem but cold to his afflicted father, brothers and sisters, we beg to assure them of our sincere grief and sympathy with their loss, and while we only commend them to him who reigns in heaven, and while they have loved him as a brother, we mourn the loss of one of our best and warmest friends, and we weep with them to the end.

Lewis B. PARKER, son of Benjamin Parker, of Calhoun county, Ala., died on the 21st day of June, 1864, in the 22nd year of his age. He was a member of the Baptist Church, Calhoun county, Ala., and was a devoted and successful farmer. He was a kind and generous man, and his death was a loss to his family and to the community. He was buried in the Baptist cemetery, Calhoun county, Ala., on the 23rd day of June, 1864.
