The French Detective.

In the exercises of his profession, Eugene Laroche had passed through some wonderful adventures, and had been nearer death than most men cared to be. His success in ferreting out and bringing to light crimes of all kinds had won for him the bitter enmity of all offenders, both political and criminal, in the city.

One day he was lounging idly near one of the most noted shops of the Palais Royal, when a woman passed by. She was very beautiful, and was richly and tastefully dressed. As she passed, she looked at him with a fixed gaze, and then smiled. Instantly, Laroche lifted his hat and bowed profoundly. When he raised his eyes again, the lady had disappeared. He was amazed at this, for he was anxious to learn more of the beautiful stranger.

During the day he could not help thinking of the beautiful unknown who had fascinated him. The next morning, about the same hour, he took his place again near the Palais Royal, to watch for her. He was not kept waiting long. She soon appeared, and, as she passed him, she again smiled, and, this time, the smile was accompanied with a bow. Acting upon a sudden impulse, Laroche started forward and passed himself at her side.

He was about to speak to her, when she said hurriedly, and in a low tone: "Not yet, Monsieur Laroche; we are observed. To-night, at the opera."

"One word, Madame," exclaimed Laroche, impulsively. "When have I the honor of addressing you?"

The lady laughed slightly, and then, handing him a card, said impatiently: "Go now, I will see you to-night at the opera."

Laroche bowed low, and drew back, while the lady passed on. Glancing at the card she had given him, he saw written upon it, in a delicate hand, Julie de Noel.

"Who knows," muttered Laroche, twitching his mustaches absently, "what may come of it? She is superb. But how does she find out my name? Well, it is not strange. Every one has heard of me."

In Paris, when one wishes to learn anything respecting an inhabitant of the great city, he can be satisfied by applying to the Chief of Police. To the steps of his chief Laroche now bent his steps upon an errand of this kind respecting the lady he had just parted with. In answer to his inquiries, the chief consulted a ponderous ledger, and after a brief inspection, declared there was no such person in Paris.

"What is it, Laroche?" he asked; "public business or an assassination?"

"Oh, merely a little affair of my own," said Laroche, laughing.

"Take care, my friend," said the Chief, gravely. "You run great risks in these little affairs of yours, and we could not afford to lose you just now."

"Never fear," returned the detective gaily. "I always keep my wits about me."

That night the detective was at the opera at an early hour. He waited in patiently, as the audience came in, and he thought that they had never been so close before. He scanned the boxes and saw clearly, but could see the lady nowhere. As the performance began, his attention was attracted by a friend, and he turned to speak to him. As he looked back to the audience, when his friend left him, his heart gave a great bound of delight. There was the lady, sitting in one of the most retired boxes, radiating forth his thanks for the happiness she had given him.

In reply to a question, the lady told him that she was the widow of a gentleman of good family and great wealth. She said that she had seen Laroche at various places in the city; and with a blush, she confessed that she had become very much interested in him—The rest we have already told.

One of Laroche's weak points was vanity, and here a pretty woman could always strike a successful blow. He had become completely fascinated by Madame de Noel.

When the performance was over, the lady asked him if he would go home with her to supper, and he, overjoyed, consented.

When they reached the residence of Madame de Noel, the carriage passed into the court-yard, and they left it. They entered a dimly lighted hall, and passed into a sumptuously furnished apartment, brilliantly illuminated. A footman received Madame and took charge of the cloak and hood which she laid aside. Laroche afterward remembered that she looked at the man in a peculiar way, as she had bade him have the supper ready as soon as possible; but he thought nothing of it at the time.

Madame seated herself in a luxurious arm chair, and Laroche drew himself up on a cushion at her feet. For a long while neither spoke. A strange silence had fallen over them. All the while, however, the young man's eyes were fixed on the arm of her chair, and one of her hands played carelessly with his hair.

A slight noise in the apartment caused the detective to raise his head. But he could not raise it high enough to see anything. Madame's hand rested on it heavily.

"Bah! It is nothing, my friend," she said quickly.

At the same time, he felt himself borne to the door by an irresistible force and before he could collect his wits, which he did not have about him at this time, he was bound hand and foot, and left helpless on the carpet. Glancing up, he saw the room was full of men.

"What does this mean?" he demanded, stupidly.

"It means, Monsieur Laroche," replied the lady, smiling sweetly, "that you will not sup with me to-night."

Laroche's confusion returned to him, now that it was too late.

"It seems that I have been a very great fool," said he bitterly.

"I agree with you, Monsieur," laughed the lady.

"Stand aside," said one of the men, coming forward. "Let me speak with him. Do you know me, Monsieur?" he asked.

"Yes," replied Laroche. "You are Frederic Roulier—known to the Government as the president of a socialist club, captain of a barricade, and a general protector of disorder. The man, I suppose, was your confederate."

"Precisely so, Monsieur. You have been, for a long time, as anxious to capture us as we have been to secure you. Fortune has favored us this time, and you are now our own prisoner. Perhaps you would like to know what we intend doing with you."

"Your courage is undoubtedly great," said Roulier; "but we must put it to the test. We have decided long ago, Monsieur, that you must die. We would carry out the decision to-night; but all of our club are not present. To-morrow night the absent ones will return, and we shall proceed to inflict our vengeance upon you. Your heart will be cut out of your living body. May heaven preserve your soul," he added, mockingly; "for your earthly part is doomed."

"Do not be too sure of that," exclaimed Laroche, indignantly. "I was never born to die by the hands of such cowardly miscreants."

The socialist leader laughed.

"Ah! Monsieur Laroche," he said, sarcastically. "Why would you not be warned by your friends? Women will be the death of you, I fear."

"Who is this woman?" asked the detective, not heeding the taunt.

"What is her name?" asked Madame de Noel, "Monsieur Laroche," she added, "I am one who has long loved you a debt of vengeance. Two years ago, you arrested a woman named Marguerite Poisson, charged with murdering a French soldier. She was tried by your courts, and condemned to death. That woman was my mother."

"Well," said Laroche, calmly, "she was not executed."

"No; but she was transported."

"But the government subsequently pardoned her, and gave her permission to return to France."

"True; but the pardon was too late. When it reached Algeria, my mother was dead. I swore to be revenged on you. I hate you as he that caused my mother's death, and I shall witness your execution with joy."

"What is your name?"

"Thou art a mistress of the chief of this club. A pretty couple, truly, and a pretty scrape you have gotten me into! Well then, Madame Julie de Noel, alias Madeleine Desmoline, if it is not you, my satisfaction, know that, instead of causing your mother's death, I tried to save her. In the discharge of my duty, I arrested her; and although I believed her guilty of the offense charged against her, I pardoned her, and procured the change of her sentence, and finally her pardon. If you doubt this, you have simply to apply to the chief of my command, and confirm my assertion."

The woman turned pale as death—Calling her attention, she turned to Roulier, and said, hastily: "Spare him until I find out the truth of this."

"Step," said the detective quickly. "I will not allow you to interfere for me. If you would give me my freedom now, I would not accept it from you."

The woman turned away and left the room. M. Roulier directed two of his men to lift the detective, who was bound so securely as to be helpless, and convey him to the dungeon. The order was obeyed. Roulier led the way, carrying a large lamp, and the remainder of the men followed, bearing the detective with them. They passed through the hall, descending a stone staircase to a large cellar, and paused before a heavy, closed door. This Roulier opened, and the party passed into the room.

The detective was set down on the floor, and Roulier, elevating the light, said: "Look around you, Monsieur Laroche. This room is very large and strong. The walls, floor, and ceiling are all of stone, and there is no outlet, save through this heavy doorway by which we have entered. Some years before you became connected with the police of Paris, this building was occupied by one of its principal officers for professional purposes. It is within one quarter of a mile of the Hotel de Ville, and your flight, though powerful, is as good as impossible. To-morrow night, at 9 o'clock, our sentence will be executed upon you. Until then, we leave you to your own reflections. Good night, Monsieur Laroche."

The man passed out of the cell, and the heavy door closed. Laroche heard the bolts slide into the hasp, and then all was silent. The dungeon in which he lay was perfectly dark, and he was so securely bound that he could not move a limb. He had no hope of escape. He was in the hands of his most inveterate enemies, and he knew that he could expect no mercy from them. They had long threatened him with vengeance for the injuries he had inflicted upon them by detecting their plots; and now that they had them in their power, he felt sure that they would carry out their diabolical threat.

Though he was without hope he was not deterred by his courage.

He was a brave man, and he resolved to meet his fate with fortitude. Still he cursed his folly bitterly, and was almost—though not quite—ready to swear that he would not look at a woman again.

He had been in the cell a little over an hour, when he heard a noise as if part of the floor was being moved. He listened intently. The sound continued to be heard. Then some one spoke his name in a whisper.

"Laroche! are you here?" asked the voice.

"Yes," replied the detective; "but who is in the bond's name are you?"

The voice repeated the watchword of the secret police, and then Laroche became conscious of the presence of another person in the cell.

"Regnard, is it you?" asked Laroche, who recognized the voice as that of his fellow detective. "How did you get here?"

Regnard drew back the shade of a dark lantern, and showed Laroche a square opening in the floor.

"Through that hole," he replied. "But stay! Let me commence at the beginning. What you said to the Chief about your little affair, made him anxious for your safety. He sent me to watch you, so that we might assist you if you got into trouble. I followed you to the opera, and rode behind the carriage which brought you here. The name of the lady, which you recollect, you gave to the Chief, did not correspond with that of the woman who resides here. I reported your presence to the Chief. It seems that his eyes used this building for government purposes. This is a secret passage from this prison-chamber to the house, he is well acquainted with it, having used it years ago. The secret was never imparted to any one out of the employ of the State, and no one else could have discovered it. The Chief instructed me how to use this passage, and being still anxious for your safety, he directed me to gain admittance to the house by means of it, and learn what I could concerning you. I had no idea of finding you here. Tell me what is the meaning of your being here in this way?"

"First cut these cords and I will," said Laroche.

He was soon freed from his bonds; after which, he related all that had happened to him.

"A plan suggests itself to me," he added. He quickly explained to his companion the design which had at that instant presented itself to his mind. Regnard shook his head.

"It involves great risk," he said, gravely. "and may be fatal to you."

"Nevertheless," said Laroche, "I shall try it. First show me how to escape from this place, in case I find such a step necessary, and then do as I tell you."

Regnard showed him how to work the opening in the floor, and then arranged the cords so that it would seem as if Laroche were still bound by them; but he fixed them in such a way that he could free himself at a moment's warning. He left his lantern and some matches with Laroche, and then, entering the secret passage, closed the opening after him, and Laroche was alone once more. He placed himself over the stone and fell asleep.

The next day passed away slowly, and the night came at last. Precisely at nine o'clock, Laroche heard the door of his cell unlocked. It swung open, and Roulier appeared, bearing a large lamp. As he entered the light suddenly went out.

"Let us close the door and stop the draft," said Roulier, "and then we'll light the lamp again. I have matches."

In response to this summons, about thirty men entered the room, and the door was closed.

"Monsieur Laroche," exclaimed Roulier, "are you there?"

"To be sure I am," replied the detective. "How could I get away?"

"True, muttered the socialist, "but now for a light."

At this moment the lamp was dashed from his hand by a heavy blow.

"What does this mean?" he exclaimed quickly.

"It means," said Laroche, in a low, clear voice, "that you are all my prisoners."

As he spoke the room was lit up by the glare of a dozen lanterns, from which the sides were drawn suddenly back, and the astonished socialists found themselves in the presence of forty strong, well armed gendarmes. The denouement was so sudden and startling that they could not speak at first. The police were prompt, and scoured their prisoners before they recovered from their surprise.

"Well, Monsieur Roulier," said the detective smiling, "the tables have been turned this time."

The socialist glared at him and muttered between his teeth:

"You must be in league with the devil."

"Perhaps I am," said Laroche, with a laugh. "At all events, Monsieur, I was not ready to have my heart cut out."

The prisoners were conducted to the upper part of the house, so that they did not learn the secret of the subterranean passage by which the police had entered the cell and to the last they regarded their presence there as a piece of diabolism on Laroche's part. The women who captured the detective were also arrested.

As he passed her, Laroche said, sarcastically: "I hope, Madame, you will have a pleasant visit to Algeria."

She lowered her eyes, and replied in a low tone: "I deserve this Monsieur, for betraying my mother's only friend."

The prisoners, being all offenders, were all convicted and transported to the penal colony.

The story soon became known throughout Paris, and the old house in which the detective had been imprisoned, became an object of great curiosity to the citizens. The prisoners themselves, however, never learned the solution of the mystery. If they ever return to France, perhaps they may hear of it.

ALLEGED BRIBERY AND CORRUPTION.
The United States agreed to pay Russia $7,200,000 for Alaska. The treaty was confirmed by the Senate; but the appropriation hung fire in the House for months. It was finally voted. It is now alleged that $2,200,000 was expended in the passage of this appropriation, one member of the House received $250,000. The fact that the Burleighs of London, through whom the payment was made, only paid to Russia $5,000,000, leads color to the bribery and corruption allegation. It is said, moreover that the names of the parties receiving this money, and the amount paid to each, are known.

THE RECONSTRUCTION LAWS.

There are good reasons for believing that Chief Justice Chase, (who is smarting under the abuse heaped on him by some of the Republican presses,) will urge the Supreme Court to promulgate its decision in the McArlic case early in December, and declare the reconstruction legislation unconstitutional. Then Gen. Grant, who has pledged himself to be guided by events, will be obliged to accept this decision of the highest tribunal in the Republic as the will of the people, and a new era will be recommenced. There are already indications that the conservative Republicans in Congress may gracefully accept the situation, and initiate an immediate reform in the legislation concerning the Southern States.

"I do not write this to excite hopes which can not be fulfilled, but because it is even so. The Chief Justice is not to be turned from his announced determination."

Regnard showed him how to work the opening in the floor, and then arranged the cords so that it would seem as if Laroche were still bound by them; but he fixed them in such a way that he could free himself at a moment's warning. He left his lantern and some matches with Laroche, and then, entering the secret passage, closed the opening after him, and Laroche was alone once more. He placed himself over the stone and fell asleep.

The next day passed away slowly, and the night came at last. Precisely at nine o'clock, Laroche heard the door of his cell unlocked. It swung open, and Roulier appeared, bearing a large

Kind hearts are the gardens,

For only in darkness,
Grows hatred and strife.

That was a "time" and a beautiful thought, expressed by a clergyman at the grave of a lovely little child of four, summer, from the garden of whose parents, as they all passed through to the chureh-yard, he had plucked a little "Forget-me-Not." When the little coffin was lowered into the grave, the clergyman, holding up the sweet flower in his hand, said:

"I hold in my hand a beautiful flower, which I plucked from the garden we have just left. By taking it from its present home it has withered; but I here plant it at the head of this grave, and it will soon revive and flourish."

"So is it with the little flower we have just plucked from its native garden, and has withered; but it is now transplanted into the Garden of Immortality, where it will revive and flourish, in immortal glory and beauty!"

Wonderful Picking of Nature—A Girl with Two Heads.

One of the most peculiar freaks of nature ever exhibited anywhere may now be seen at Amos's Museum on St. Charles street. It is a negroess about fourteen years of age with two distinct heads.—Both heads are perfect in form and feature, each resting upon a separate neck side and side facing to the front. The two faces are similar in feature and expression, and what is most wonderful in that there seem to be a separate and distinct brain organism for the girl can hold conversation upon different subjects at one and the same time. She is very bright and intelligent reading and writing with accuracy.

Two gentlemen were conversing with this wonderful girl yesterday at the same time, when the one addressing the right head made some ludicrous remark which threw that head into a paroxysm of laughter, while the face of the left maintained an expression of the utmost seriousness.

While there is a dual formation of the head there is but one trunk the girl eating and drinking with both mouths alike.

A number of our first physicians have visited this girl and expressed wonder at her peculiar organization.

N. O. Picayune.

An officer of the Italian army engineer corps, who has long studied the art of sustaining men in the air, has just completed an apparatus which when fitted on a strong man, enables him to rise from earth and fly like a bird. The apparatus has been tried repeatedly and successfully. It consists of two immense wings made of kangaroo, which are moved rapidly by two ropes secured to the heels. The man on whom this apparatus is fitted runs; before he has gone twenty paces he finds himself lifted from earth, the upward motion instantly becomes greater, and he rises higher and higher. It is necessary he should not for an instant cease the motion of his legs, which is just like that of a man running. Convinced of the value of his invention, this officer bet with brother officers in the garrison with him at Alexandria, he would fly over the Bormida, a shallow but broad river, which was just beyond the outer fortifications. A few mornings since he put on his apparatus, and in the presence of all his friends, everything went well, he rose and flew through the air, but the motion soon ceased, and he fell heavily on the gravel of the river's bed. He broke a leg and an arm. He is in the hospital and doing well. He constantly talks of his apparatus, and is sure he will be able to bring it to perfection.

IF THE DONORS IN MISSISSIPPI—It is remembered that the new Constitution of Mississippi, framed in obedience to the reconstruction measures of Congress and duly submitted to the people, was voted down by a crushing majority.—Nothing daunted, however, a junta calling itself the "Committee of Five," and claiming to act by appointment of the late Radical State Convention, has issued a proclamation announcing the adoption of the new Constitution by the people and proclaiming the Radical candidates voted for at the election in June last the legal Governor, State officers, Legislators and Representatives in Congress of the State! This "Committee" announces that they have thrown out of action from one acre, which he devoted to experiment, and that every one who had seen the acre were unanimous in the opinion that there could not be less than one thousand pounds to gather, whatever the vicissitudes of the season might be. The same authority informs us that Mr. Bancroft has at the same estate gathered one bale to the acre for every acre planted on his farm of some thirty acres.

Attention is especially invited to the advertisement of R. S. NORTON, SON & CO., dealers in Staple and Fancy Dry Goods, Rome, Ga. They have a very extensive and select stock of Goods, and are offering good bargains.

Books & Stationery.—See the advertisement of Mr. HENRY A. SMITH, Rome, Ga. His stock is very full and prices low, as we know from personal examination while in Rome a few days ago; and a more correct, accommodating and gentlemanly dealer, cannot be found in the South.

W. L. WADSWORTH & CO.—These prices of Hardware Merchants have now a very full and complete assortment at their Emporium in the new brick block on Broad street, near the Etowah bridge.

Attention is invited to the advertisement of PITNER & SMITH, Wholesale and Retail Grocers, & Commission Merchants, Pitner's Corner, Broad street, Rome, Ga. This firm have now a very full and complete stock—they belong to that class of business men who wear well—the more you deal them the better you will like them.

Mr. Pitner has been as long engaged in business in different firms, we presume, as any man in Rome. We were never better pleased or satisfied with any man from whom we purchased Goods or Groceries. Call upon this firm while in Rome, or send your orders, and you will get good articles at moderate prices.

Nowlin & Maupin, Druggists and Apothecaries, Rome, Ga.—We invite special attention to the advertisement of these gentlemen in another column, with the assurance to our readers that their assortment is very full and complete, and that they cannot be excelled for correct, liberal and fair dealing.

Furniture Store, Rome, Ga. Persons wishing to purchase Furniture, Chairs, &c. are referred to the advertisement of Mr. C. W. MILLS.

We invite the attention of the travelling public to the card of Mr. J. C. Rawlings, who has resumed the proprietorship of that elegant and commodious Hotel, the "Choice House."

Dr. W. T. Knight, Oculist, who has made diseases of the eyes a specialty in his study and practice for many years, is now in Jacksonville. He has treated cases here and elsewhere, and proven himself eminently skillful and successful.

We tender our thanks to Col. J. D. Hoke for a bunch of his fine Havana Cigars. We have puffed several of them, and like them so well that we think they will bear puffing again.

Fox Ahead—The Circus is coming.—It will be seen by the advertisement, which cannot be easily overlooked, that Stone & Murray's celebrated Combination Circus will be in this place on the 11th inst.

LOCAL ITEMS

AND SPECIAL NOTICES.

To add additional interest to our paper, we design in future, to appropriate the first column of the third page to local items and special notices and police reports. We also intend to select from the American Agriculturist and other agricultural Magazines with which we exchange, occasional articles of most value and usefulness to farmers, adapted to this climate and soil.

COTTON BURNED.—We learn that 20 bales of cotton and several ears were burned at Cross Plains, on Wednesday night last.

Sixteen hundred dollars have already been subscribed by the generous and liberal citizens of Selma, to the "Calhoun College."

FIRE AT STEVENSON, ALA.—We learn from the New Era that a disastrous fire occurred in the thriving Town of Stevenson on Monday night 23rd Nov destroying the house of John Presley, the Store of Gen. Austin, and new building of Clark Cross. Some other buildings were demolished to prevent the spreading of the flames. This is the second terrible visitation of fire in this Town within two years: that of 1866 having swept every building on Main street.

Fresh Garden Seeds
For sale by WOODWARD & SON.

Rags, Rags.
CLEAN Linnen and Cotton Rags will be purchased at fair prices by WOODWARD & SON.

Fun for Everybody!

J. B. TURNLEY & CO., are going to have the largest and most complete assortment of Fire Works for Christmas, ever brought to this market; and everybody is coming to Town Christmas eve night to fire them.
More Rockets, Torbitions, Roman Candles, Lights, Wheels, and Triangles will be fired than have been in Jacksonville since the war. They will be sold at wholesale and retail, so cheap that every one can buy them. Don't forget Christmas eve night.

FRUITS OF MILITIA ORGANIZATIONS.—The Washington, Ark. Telegraph, of late date, gives the following particulars of the sacking and robbing of Centre Point in that State, by some 3 or 400 of the newly organized militia—the taking of the citizens prisoners, and the shooting down in cold blood of three of them while such, and totally unarmed.

The Huntsville advocate in speaking of the revolution in trade, occasioned by the finishing of the Selma Railroad to Rome, says:

North Alabama, Madison, county Huntsville, needs and must have a railroad connection with Selma. This can be done easily and cheaply by the completion of the road to Gadsden from Jacksonville thence to Guntersville, and thence to Huntsville, or some point on the Memphis and Charleston road. Our people are deeply interested in this and it is necessary to the growth and prosperity of this section. The Selma road will we doubt not unite with the old company and complete the road to Guntersville according to the old programme.

In England there are many farmers who more than support themselves on the product of six acres, besides paying heavy rents. Agriculturists in Germany who are proprietors of six acres, support themselves on two, and lay up money on the remainder.

There are but two counties in Tennessee in which the negroes outnumber the whites. The total number of whites in that State is 826,782, of negroes 275,719.

THE STATE UNIVERSITY.—Rev. And Lakin, the carpet-bag President of the University of Alabama, has resigned.

He was unfitted for the place, and his election was a reproach to the institution. It is probable that Dr. Harper will be selected to fill the vacancy.—We are informed, on good authority, that the latter is an able and learned man, and, withal, a quiet, unassuming gentleman. We also hear, that in prospect of Harper's acceptance, Gen. J. H. Forney has accepted the chair tendered to him at the July session of the Regents, and that H. S. Whitfield, Esq., who had declined serving with Lakin, will follow Gen. Forney's example, as Professor of Natural Philosophy. Mobile Register.

MARRIED.—Dec. 1st 1868, at the residence of the bride's father—the Rev. E. T. Read, near Jacksonville, Ala. by Rev. D. P. Smith, Mr. W. J. Scott, to Miss GENA READ, all of Calhoun Co., Ala.

We acknowledge the receipt of the printer's fee, in the form of a rich and beautiful wedding cake.

May the golden chain of peace and love bind those young friends forever.

THE MYSTERY OF NATURE.

The works of God are fair for naught
Unless our eyes, in seeing,
See hidden in the thing the thought
That animates its being.

Costar's Buckthorn Salve.

Perhaps the most extraordinary SALVE ever known. Its power of Soothing and Healing for all Cuts, Burns, Bruises, Scors, Ulcers, Clapped Hands and Skin, for Sore Nipples, One person says of it, "I would not be without a Box in my House, if it cost $500, or I had to travel all the way to N. York for it."

"COSTAR'S" Standard Preparations

ARE
"Costar's" Rat, Roach, &c.; Extermination.
"Costar's" Bed Bug Exterminator.
"Costar's" (only pure) Insect Powder.

SPUNGING ON THE PRINTER.

The Bethlehem Spirit of the Times says:
"Here is an article we think of framing to hang conspicuously over the editor's table: The public have a funny notion about printers. They think it costs nothing to puff, advertise, &c. And thus one and another will sponge an extra paper, a puff, or some benevolent advertisement. They forget that the business makes them known. They forget that it is the printer's ink that makes immense fortunes. They forget that it takes money to pay compositors, to buy ink, type, and paper; and lastly, they forget to ever thank you for working for nothing by gratuitously puffing their business."

TERRIBLE DISCLOSURE!

SECRETS FOR THE MILLION—A most valuable and wonderful publication. A work of 400 pages and 20 colored engravings. DR. Land for Sale.

Tract of Land, lying on Oulitic creek, on the Kay's Ferry road, 10 miles north-west of Jacksonville, containing about 700 Acres, sold altogether, or in three parcels, two of which are improved, and all well watered and well timbered, with good orchards, and one of them a growing crop which will be sold with the land. About 150 acres of the land cleared, mostly creek bottom, and some 200 acres, finely timbered creek bottom unimproved. A portion of the purchase money would be expected in cash, and the balance in notes.

THOMPSON'S Fever and Ague Powders

FOR THE PROMPT CURE OF Chills and Fever, Fever and Ague, Dumb Ague, or any form of Intermitting Fever. THERE ARE NO DISEASES SO DEBILITATING in their effects upon the human system as the above, and none more difficult to cure by the usual modes of practice. The Fever and Ague Powders will cure cases of the longest standing, as well as prove a preventive in the forming stages of the disease, being purely Vegetable, they act with certainty on the disease, totally eradicating it from the system, and preventing a return at any future period. Prepared only by HENRY M. CRAWFORD, No. 141 Market Street, Philadelphia. Sold by Dr. S. C. Williams, Oxford, Ala., and stock keepers generally.

W. C. LAND, Watchmaker.

CONTINUES the Watch Repairing business at McClellan's store, west side of the public square. A good lot of materials on hand, and work done with dispatch and at low rates to suit the times. Jacksonville, Feb. 24, 1868.

HARDIE & ROBINSON, COTTON FACTORS, AND GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

Trusting those who have entrusted us with their patronage heretofore, we now announce to them and the public our continuance of the Cotton Factorage and Commission Business.

A HOUSEHOLD NECESSITY EVERY MAN HIS OWN

DARBY'S PROPYLACTIC FLUID! Almost every body knows it. "No head of a family should ever be without it." ALKX. H. STEPHENS.

CRUISE OF THE SIX HUNDRED.

THE account he gives of the horrible sufferings and privations inflicted upon the Hundred Confederate Officers, who were sent in 1861, from Fort Delaware to General Foster's department in the South, for military purposes, is almost beyond human belief; but there are still many living witnesses to the facts. Everything we have ever read of brutality to prisoners during the war pales before this, which causes us an involuntary shudder. Truly there is a Wizard who has been overlooked.

New Goods, Just Received.

P. ROWAN, Has just received an unusually large and varied stock of Fall and Winter Goods.

S. & T. J. MORRAN, GROCERY

Commission Merchants, OXFORD, Ala. HAVE JUST RECEIVED A very large Stock of Choice Groceries.

From Rev. John Mathers, Pastor M. E. Church, South, at Montgomery, Ala.

My family have used Darby's Propylactic Fluid for a year or two for various purposes, and I have been highly benefited. I know of no article within the whole range of Domestic preparations, so generally and highly recommended by acquaintances as this.

From W. O. Tuggle, Esq., Attorney at Law, La Grange, Ga.

I take pleasure in stating that I have found "Darby's Propylactic" to be an excellent remedy for cutaneous eruptions, chapped skin and bruises. It is a precious jewel as a disinfectant, and my wife states, for the benefit of young mothers, that "Darby's Fluid" is a valuable adjunct to the nursery.

MARRY FOR MONEY.

Don't fret, Jennie, lass; you shall have the car-rings, and something over a filled tucker, or whatever you may fancy. Come take your choice.
Jennie came slowly forward and rested her hand on her father's shoulder,
as she glanced listlessly over the wares
which the peddler spread before her.
"Humph! it's not the car-rings nor
the tucker that she's worrying about,"
observed the mother, glancing up sharply from her inspection of a gay clintz.
"She's taking on about that lad, Frank Duncan, who, neighbor Brunwell told us, is to leave the day after to-morrow
to seek his fortune, as he says."
"And I hope he'll find it," said the farmer. "He's a good enough lad, and I'd have nothing to say against him if he'd give less time to books and more to work, to make money enough for a wife to live on. When young Duncan
came back with five hundred dollars,
Jennie, I'll think better of him; but no
daughter of mine shall marry a penny less man."

As the farmer spoke, he was slowly
and carefully untying a well worn wallet, which he had taken from the upper drawer of an old fashioned bureau with brass handles, which stood in a corner of the large kitchen. From a goodly string bundle of notes he selected one of ten dollars, which he handed to the peddler.
"I've no change," he replied to some remark of his wife. "There's all tens
and twenties—one hundred and twenty five dollars in all," he added, in a tone
of satisfaction. "Jek's done a good job
wi' the cattle this year, and if the crop
turns out well, you shall have something better than that clintz, Hetty, for christmas—and you too, Jennie, lass."
The peddler's small black eyes glanced furtively at the notes as the farmer
smoothed them out on his knee and replaced them.

"Here's a hundred, clear for the bank," he observed as he tied the wallet securely with his red tape string.
"I'll take it to Logansville, Thursday.
Meaning, Hetty, put it away in the little box."
Mrs. Hallet deposited the wallet carefully in a tin box, and replaced the box
in the bureau drawer, which she locked,
hanging the key on a nail which was in the back of the bureau itself.
Jennie having selected her car-rings
and a piece of lace for a "tucker," sat down to sew the latter on the neck of her best blue delaine dress. There was to be a "bee" at neighbor Brunwell's that evening, and a dance after, and though in no dancing mood, she would go to see how that Frank Duncan was to be there, and this would be their last meeting before he departed to "seek his fortune" in the city.

"Poor girl! it was her first sorrow, and we all know how hard are such to the young, with their helplessness, their inexperience, and their ignorance of life."
As she sat on the side of the bed sewing the lace on the blue dress, she looked and felt very sad. Much as she loved her parents, she could not help thinking them cruel and unfeeling in this instance, when they must know how dearly she loved Frank, and that she could never be happy without him. He was so clever, so handsome, so good—and they objected to him because he was poor! Oh! if she,
or Frank either, cared for poverty! Oh!
if he had only that five hundred dollars,
how in this world could Frank make
that enormous sum!

Her mother's voice calling her to supper aroused her. With country hospitality, the good dame added some extra dishes to the usual evening's meal, and she looked a little disappointed at the peddler's non-appreciation of the good things set before him. He seemed distressed and restless; and declining the night's lodging said he must go "right on" to Logansville to-night, in order to meet a friend whom he expected there.
So, after joining in a fervent "amen,"
to the hosts after grace, and thanking
them in a pious strain for their hospitality, he shouldered his pack and resumed his journey. From the window, Jennie, looking listlessly out, saw his
tall form disappear at a bend of the road
about a mile distant, and dreamily heard
her father remark:

"I don't look like a go-u-in-e peddler—not sharp enough at bargaining,
not interested enough at his business
and then I noticed he never looks you straight in the eye—always a bad sign!"
"Well," observed his thrifty wife, "I can't say I liked him the best for easy bargains. He don't make much profit by 'em, though, I guess, judging by that old camel coat of his, with its patched
elbows and old fashioned tails flapping about his heels. I can remember my grandfather had just such another. But Jennie, girl, if you're going to the bee,
its high time to bestir yourself. Why,
its high six o'clock already."

It was a still, moonlight summer
night as Jennie Hallet walked lingeringly along the meadow path, homeward
from Farmer Brunwell's. Lingeringly
—for her hand was clasped in that of Frank Duncan, and he was talking to her earnestly, as they passed under the shadows of the water-willows, or passed for a moment on the rustic bridge that spanned the meadow creek.
"I'll do it, Jennie! Here I swear—"
"Oh, Frank, don't swear!"
"Then I promise—yes, here I promise not to rest day nor night, until I have five hundred dollars to show your father."
"But how will you get it, Frank?"
"I don't know yet; but I'll find out a way—only, Jennie, dear, I fear it will be a long time."
They walked on in silence.
"I wish I was rich!" burst from Duncan, passionately. "I never cared for it before, but I do now, for your sake—and mine, Jennie. If I had only one thousand dollars!"
"A thousand dollars, Frank?"
"To her idea he might as well have wished for the wealth of Monte Christo."
"It's not a large sum Jennie. Yet five hundred dollars would purchase that pretty little place near the old church
that you admire so much, and with another five hundred to stock it and begin with. Oh, Jennie, only think how happy a little money could make us."
"It's no use thinking," said the girl,
sadly. "And, Frank, you are so given to thinking and dreaming, that—she looked up with a tender, half smile—
"I'm afraid you'll never set to work hard enough to make even the five hundred."
"I'll try, Jennie. Never have fear of that."
They reached the bottom of farmer
Hallet's garden, and there they paused
a while exchanging a few last sentences. Then with a sad, lingering adieu, they parted.

and sat down to rip and re-fashion the
old garment.
The thought of Frank—she was always thinking of him now—and wondered whether he would ever make the five hundred dollars; how it rang in her head.
Rip! rip! something stopped the progress of the old scissors in the thick
wadding of the coat.—Tearing it open,
she drew out what appeared to be a soiled greenish rag. It was paper however, and as she unfolded it she saw to her surprise that it was a bank bill—
another and another followed. Through all the old body of the old garment were carefully padded those precious bits of paper, and Jennie Hallet, sitting in a little room alone, counted them all out
upon her lap—fifteen hundred dollars.
She kept her secret—at least from her family. But some days after she rode into Logansville, on horseback,
alone, as she was accustomed to do;
and at the express office deposited a little package, addressed to Francis Duncan, Esq.

And by return mail came an anonymous letter for farmer Hallet, enclosing one hundred dollars, "to replace the money unlawfully taken from him,"
which incident set all the neighbors
discussing upon the power of "conscience." And before Christmas Frank Duncan made his appearance, and boldly asked farmer Hallet for the hand of his daughter Jennie; mentioning, in answer to the farmer's inquiries, that he had "more than fifteen hundred dollars in hand." The thing was that Mr.
Duncan purchased the pretty place near
the old church, and thither in the spring
took his young bride, where they were
as happy as new married people generally are.

Jennie said that she and Frank had only borrowed the money, and that it should be restored as soon as the owner appeared. But we have as yet heard of no claimant.

PAY YOUR SMALL DEBTS.—Pay your small debts. You do not know how much good is frequently accomplished
by adopting this principle. It was honored old Ben Franklin, we believe, who
as a matter of experiment followed up a small account which he ascertained
that the money paid the tradesman had passed from hand to hand until the number of bills of nearly similar amount settled with it reached some fifteen or twenty. It may not be possible to do as Franklin did, and trace up the history
of a small amount of money in the way of debt-paying; but it may be set down as a fact that the prompt payment of small debts is the initiative step towards cash for everything. Generally speaking, these small debts are due to persons who need all the capital they can command. To such, they are of immense importance; and it may be said
of the person who allows these trifling
obligations to remain unpaid while having the means to discharge them, that he is not, in the true sense of the word
an honest man, unless, by express contract, a time for payment has been fixed, and that not arrived. Pay your small debts and big ones too. If you will be happy and comfortable, sleep
sound, eat heartily, and enjoy the peace
of mind which only men with good conscience are supposed to enjoy, pay your small debts, and don't forget the Printer.

HOW ASTOR BECAME RICH.
A writer in Harper's Magazine, speaking of the late John Jacob Astor, thus refers to the mode by which he acquired
his great wealth:
"It was neither furs nor teas that gave him 20,000,000. When he arrived in New York, it contained only 25,000 inhabitants. In 1800 when he began to have money to invest, the city had begun to double in population, and had advanced nearly a mile up the island.—
Astor fore-saw its future growth, and bought all the lands and lots just beyond the verge of the city that he could get. One little anecdote will show the wisdom of this proceeding.
He sold a lot in the vicinity of Wall street in 1810 for $8000, which was supposed to be somewhat under its value.
The purchaser, after the papers were signed, seemed disposed to chuckle over his bargain.
"Why, Mr Astor," said he, "this lot will be worth $15,000."
"Very true," replied Astor, "but now
you shall see what I shall do with this money.— With $8000 I will by eighty lots above Canal street. By the time your lots are worth 18,000, my eighty lots will be worth $80,000," which proved to be a fact.
In the course of time the island was dotted all over with Astor's land to such an extent that the whole income from his estate for fifty years could be invested in new houses, without buying any more land.

"Jennie," said she, "I wish you would take that old scarecrow away from here. I can't abide the sight of it."
"What shall I do with it, mother?"
"Whatever you like. It's yours, I suppose, as you found it, and nobody will ever claim it."
"It's too good to throw away," said
Jennie. "Suppose I take the long skirt and make a petticoat for old Peggy Burns; it is lined with woolen, and will make her a warm garment for winter."
So Jennie took the coat in her room

Pleasant Homes.
Parents, strive to make your homes
pleasant and attractive. If you would have your children grow up pure, healthy
and beautiful, attempt not to destroy
their love for beautiful things, and for healthy recreation. Do not labor with such cold, rigid, self-denying economy
to hoard up money to bestow upon them
at your death. Father, devote a portion of your income to embellishing and beautifying your dwellings, and to furnishing your girls and boys with the means of home enjoyment. Introduce into your family circle innocent amusements, and,
above all, yourself join and assist the young in their recreations and plans of social diversions. Teach them that the most beautiful and soul inspiring accomplishment, music.
Many parents will crush with a frown
every attempt at hilarity on the part of their children; they will banish all amusements and gaiety from the family
circle, and cause a shade of gloom to settle over their homes. What is the course of the children of such parents?
To escape from the oppressive atmosphere of home, becomes the governing motive of their actions. When away from the immediate care of their parents, they will secretly go to places,
which they have been forbidden to visit,
and mingle with children with whom
they have been told not to associate,
then they will immediately become more
hardened, and plunge deeper and deeper
into the sea of forbidden pleasures,
and resort to falsehood to shield them
from detection; and after they have taken this step, their onward course is straight and rapid. They frequent drinking shops, smoke and swear, associate with fast young men, soon become "fast" themselves, and at last
cause the heavy heads of their parents
to bow in sorrow.

Are not such parents, in a measure,
responsible for the sins of their children?
The young will have enjoyment, and if they cannot find it at home, they will seek it elsewhere.

To Cure a Cold.—The following is
from Hall's Journal of Health: "The moment a man is satisfied that he has taken cold let him do three things:—
First, eat nothing; second, go to bed,
cover up in a warm room; third, drink
as much cold water as he can, or as he wants, or as much herb tea as he can,
and in three cases out of four, he will be well in thirty-six hours. To neglect a cold for forty-eight hours after the cough commences is to place yourself beyond cure, until the cough has run its course of about a fortnight.
Warmth and abstinence are safe, certain cures, when applied early. Warmth keeps the pores of the skin open, and relieves it of the surplus which oppressed it, while abstinence cuts off the supply of material for phlegm, which would otherwise be coughed up."

A PISTOL PLANT.—A few evenings
ago the librarian of the Long Island Historical Society was startled by the report of a pistol in the book alcoves.
He made search, but discovered nothing,
and at the time no other person was in the rooms. The next day the assistant librarian heard a similar report, and a close investigation revealed the cause.
An exhibitor had placed in the rooms a case of tropical plants, among which was the pistol plant, which is a sort of
nut. At a certain stage of its growth
the shell of this bursts with violence,
and with a sharp sound exactly resembling the report of a pistol. The shivered shells of these were found in the bottom of the case.—New York Post.

A Strange Noise.
On the morning of the 5th inst., at about 7 o'clock a. m., a remarkable explosion occurred in the heavens, which resembled the report of a 64 lb cannon, fired at a distance of several miles. A sound resembling the mutterings of distant thunder continued some two minutes after the report. We have been told by one or two persons that at the time of the report, a ball resembling
fire was seen to come from an easterly
direction and pass in a southeasterly direction. As yet we have not heard a satisfactory explanation of the occurrence.

FRENCH WINE-GROWERS IN TENNES-SEE.—The Chattanooga Republican learns that M. Bryant a French gentleman, has purchased lands on Missionary Ridge, and that it is intended to locate
on that Ridge a colony of French wine-growers. There is probably no place in the United States more admirably fitted for growing the vine than the Southern side of Missionary Ridge and more lovely scenery than is presented by this Ridge and the valley, at its base, can nowhere be found.

An old bachelor is a traveler on life's railroad who has entirely failed to make the proper connections.

WHAT THE HEART IS.—Somebody
says: The heart is like a plant in the tropics, which all the year round is bearing flowers, and ripening seeds and letting them fly. It is shaking off memories and dropping associations.—
The joys of last year are ripe seeds that will come up in joy again next year.—
Thus the heart is planting seeds in every nook and corner; and as a wind which serves to prostrate a plant is only a sower coming forth to sow his seeds, planting some of them in rocky crevices, some
by river courses, some among mossy stones, some by warm ledges, and some in garden and open field, so it is with our experience of life that away and how we either with joy or sorrow. They plant everything round about us with heart seeds. Thus a house becomes sacred. Every room hath a memory,
and a thousand of them; every door
and window is clustered with associations.

The Philadelphia Age says:— Signs of returning prosperity are to be seen in all parts of the South. Among them we welcome the news of the Alabama State Fair, which commenced at Montgomery, on Wednesday last, it being the first festival of the kind in the State, since the outbreak of the rebellion. The accounts indicate a gratifying success of the enterprise, many visitors from other States being in attendance, and the exhibition of articles
and stock far exceeding the general expectation. This is the proper course for the South to pursue. Let them stand up in a lawful, proper manner for their political rights, and the supremacy
of white men, but at the same time
put corn in the crib and pork in the barrel. A dependent people cannot be a brave one. Each dollar the South adds to the wealth of that section is an additional step to the ladder which they must mount to reach their old place in the Union. Work and time will bring all right in the end.

Do anything innocent rather than give yourself to reverie. I can speak on this point from experience. At one period of my life I was a dreamer and a castle builder. Visions of the distant future took the place of present duty and activity. I spent hours in reverie. I suppose I was seduced in part by physical debility. But the body suffered as well as the mind. I found,
too, that the imagination threatened to influence the passions, and that if I meant to be virtuous I must dismiss my musings. The conflict was a hard one:
I resolved, prayed, resisted, sought refuge in occupation, and at length triumphed. I beg you to avail of my experience.—Channing.

Good Advice to Farmers.
A writer in Moore's Rural New Yorker, thus discourses upon the propriety of every farmer having a deposit of old iron:
When I was a boy my father [kept
what he called the "Old Iron Chest." It was simply a heavy, hard-wood box,
with iron-bound corners, and a till in one end. This served as a depository of the "olds and ends" of iron not in immediate use. There you would find old bolts, nuts, washers, screws, rivets, horse
shoes, clevises, plowpoints, bits of hand
and hoop iron, strips of tin, old files,
staples, etc., etc., etc.

Every man and boy on the farm was enjoined to deposit any old iron they found "laying loose around" in the chest.
When anything was to be required, or built, the "old iron chest" was almost sure to be called upon to furnish some of the materials. Seldom was it appealed to in vain. Such a variety of materials did it contain, that a search would generally reveal within its depths, the desired article needed in repair of the various farm implements.
The economy of having an "old iron
chest," so strongly recommends itself,
that no farmer should let another month
pass without providing a depository for such worn, broken and surplus articles
as are not wanted for immediate use.

THE DAMAGES BY FORTIFICATION.—A recapitulation of all the estimates published show that the cash appropriation of damages sustained, in those portions of the city most affected, does not exceed $271,000, in round numbers; while the most liberal estimate that can reasonably be made for miscellaneous
minor damages, not specially reported, will not make the grand total, for the whole city and county, exceed $350,000. This is the cold arithmetic of the subject, and we ask that the facts and figures may be carefully noted.—S. F. Bulletin.

The Rothschilds who died lately in France
is found to have left an estate of about $400, 000,000. His family are consequently in easy circumstances. In this country he would have passed for a rich man.—All classes of people seem to have mourned his death, and his body was followed to the grave by five thousand people, chiefly the poor of the neighborhood in which he lived.—He is said
to have been very charitable, and was universally beloved, which speaks much more in praise of his character than does the enormous wealth which he had accumulated.—N. Y.

Jacksonville Male Academy.

We invite the attention of Parents, Guardians, and the friends of Education generally, to the School Notice of Mr. W. W. Wilson, who has been elected by the Trustees of the Jacksonville Male Academy, to take charge of that Institution for the next year.

The next Session will commence on the first Monday in January, 1869.

Mr. Wilson comes to our place highly recommended as a gentleman of ability and thorough educational qualifications of considerable experience as a successful teacher, altogether worthy of confidence and patronage.

Mr. Wilson is well known in this community as a successful teacher. He is a fine classical scholar, and I think, in every way qualified to conduct a first class school successfully and satisfactorily to all concerned.

The Trustees are determined, that persons having children or wards to educate, shall be furnished with as good teachers and other facilities here, as at any other point.

Board can be obtained in families at from $12 to $15 per month.

EXTRACTS FROM The Message OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE United States. Deceember 9th, 1868.

Fellow-Citizens of the Senate and House of Representatives.

Upon the re-assembling of Congress, it again becomes my duty to call your attention to the state of the Union, and to its continued disorganized condition under the various laws which have been passed upon the subject of reconstruction.

Mr. Wilson is well known in this community as a successful teacher. He is a fine classical scholar, and I think, in every way qualified to conduct a first class school successfully and satisfactorily to all concerned.

The act of March 2d, 1867, making appropriations for the support of the army for the year ending June 30th, 1868, and for other purposes, contains provisions which interfere with the President's Constitutional functions as Commander-in-Chief of the Army, and deny to States of the Union the right to protect themselves by means of their own militia.

Spain having recently undergone a revolution marked by extraordinary unanimity and preservation of order, the Provisional Government established at Madrid has been recognized, and the friendly intercourse, which has so long happily existed between the two countries remains unchanged.

I renew the recommendation contained in my communication to Congress, dated the 18th of July last, a copy of which accompanies this message, that the judgment of the people should be taken on the propriety of so amending the federal Constitution that it shall provide, first for an election of President and Vice President by a direct vote of the people, instead of through the agency of electors, and making them ineligible for re-election to a second term; second, for a distinct designation of the person who shall discharge the duties of President in the event of a vacancy in that office by the death, resignation, or removal of both the President and Vice President; third, for the election of Senators of the United States, by the people of the several States instead of by the Legislatures; and, fourth, for the limitation to a period of years of the terms of federal Judges.

Profoundly impressed with the propriety of making these important modifications in the Constitution, I respectfully submit them for the early and mature consideration of Congress. We should as far as possible remove all pretext for violations of the organic law by removing such imperfections as time and experience may develop, ever remembering that "the Constitution which at any time exists, until changed by an explicit and authentic act of the whole people, is sacredly obligatory upon all."

Personal attention given to the sale of and shipment of Cotton, and all other goods, on commission, and all other goods, on commission, and all other goods, on commission.

LATEST NEWS.

FROM SPAIN.

Madrid, Dec. 11.—An armistice of two days has been agreed upon at Cadiz to bury the dead and remove the women and children.

LATER.

The Rebels have proposed terms of capitulation which the government is disposed to accept.

LATEST.

The Cadiz insurrection is assuming alarming proportions. The dispatches announcing the surrender of the insurgents is erroneous. The insurgents have some artillery and occupy an important position. Gen. Coballero de Roda with a considerable force marches to assault Cadiz. The National Guards are employed to keep order and protect property in Madrid. There is general excitement in Malaga and other towns, but open revolt only in Cadiz. A rising is momentarily expected in Catalonia, arms and munitions have been landed at Cadiz for the insurgents. The rebels are acting with great determination and will fight until the last. Both parties respect the American flag. Hundreds of citizens are seeking the protection of the American Consul. A United States man of war is in port. The Danish and Italian war vessels have been placed at the American Consul's disposal, owing to the threatening state of affairs. Many wealthy families are leaving Spain. Gen. Prim has gone to Andalusia. The Provisional Government is much embarrassed by the disordered condition of the country and finances.

FROM LONDON.

London, Dec. 11.—Cretan advices via Athens say the Turks had captured a strong position in Spakia, where the Cretans had erected block houses, also seized a quantity of provisions and munitions intended for the Cretans, and have seized two landings on shore nearest Greece.

FROM ENGLAND.

London, Dec. 11.—The London News (radical) says President Johnson's persistent opposition to the will of the nation is the cause of the partial failure of the reconstruction measures, and there is no hope of the restoration of unity and peace until Gen. Grant's accession. The Standard (conservative) strongly deprecates the Senate's refusal to hear the Message. The Herald (conservative) says the Message commends itself to every one interested in American affairs as the warning protest, and testament of a statesman politically dying.

FROM RICHMOND.

Richmond, Dec. 12.—In the United States Circuit Court this morning, Judge Underwood presiding, the case of Sallie Anderson (colored) sentenced to death by the County Court for arson, was brought upon habeas corpus, and her release asked on the ground that one of the Magistrates composing the Court which tried her, had held the office of Constable before the war, and was therefore disqualified by the 14th amendment, and that his disqualification affected the whole Court, which was thereby vitiated. Judge Underwood sustained the prisoner's plea, and ordered her discharge from custody. In his opinion, the Judge said that if even a clerk of a court was disqualified, it vitiated the proceedings. There are 159 convicts in the State prison, sentenced since the adoption of the 14th amendment, who may be released by habeas corpus and turned loose under this decision.

FROM SPAIN.

Paris, Dec. 12.—The Gaulois (news-paper) asserts that the Cadiz insurrection was excited by the adherents of Queen Isabella.

FROM CUBA.

Havana, Dec. 12.—The Diario reports a skirmish at Manzanillo, in which rebels were killed, and horses and correspondence captured. The Government loss is not stated. Four hundred rebels have surrendered and been pardoned since the battle of Cibra. The insurgents contradict these statements and claim that they are daily receiving re-inforcements in men, arms, and ammunition. Fifty young men, belonging to some of the best families on the Island, have left Havana to join the rebels. The Spaniards continue to supply the Government with men and money.

FROM SPAIN.

Madrid, Dec. 12.—A dispatch dated Thursday says a large number of workmen employed by the municipality on public works, armed with carbines and bayonets fastened on sticks, have assumed and maintain a threatening attitude. The National Militia have been ordered to proceed against them. Placards are posted, in the Estramadura threatening with assassination rich citizens who voted in the election for the Cortez.

LATER.

The Cadiz armistice has been prolonged, both parties consenting to await the arrival of the President of the republican committee of Seville, who will endeavor to mediate. Should this fail, the government will resort to vigorous measures.

FROM INDIANA.

Indianapolis, Dec. 12.—The vigilance committee of Seymour, visited the jail at New Albany this morning, and hung the Reno brothers and Chas. Anderson (the Express robbers) and escaped before an alarm was given.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Washington, Dec. 12.—There is a heavy pressure being brought to bear in favor of continuing the Freedmen's Bureau.

The Reconstruction Committee are said to be averse to the removal of the disability of Judge Moses, of South Carolina. The Supervising Inspectors of Floating Crafts have been instructed to thoroughly investigate the recent collision on the Ohio. It is understood that the Secretary of the Treasury will recommend the prohibition of petroleum on vessels carrying passengers. Commissioner Rollin's friends urge him to withdraw his resignation. A special train carries Gen. Grant and his attendants to Chicago to-night. Mr. Colfax, Gen. Stoneman, and others visited Gen. Grant to-day. It is stated in connection with E. D. Washburne's aspirations to the Secretaryship of the Treasury, that Gen. Grant says he is a thoroughly honest man. A movement is on foot to remove Senator Henderson from the Chairmanship of the Committee on Indian Affairs. It is stated that Caleb Cushing is abroad authorized to buy Cuba at any price between $100,000,000 and 200,000,000.

FROM NEW ORLEANS.

New Orleans, Dec. 12.—The steamship Crescent of the New Orleans and Galveston line took fire last night at her wharf, and was entirely destroyed. Loss about $200,000. She had about 2,500 barrels of freight aboard, partly insured by the vessel's owners. The fire had been partially subdued, when an explosion occurred in the hold, injuring ten firemen, one of them mortally, and several severely.

FROM WASHINGTON.

New York, Dec. 15.—The Herald has a Havana special, via Key West, that the recent battles were indecisive, and that the troops suffered fearfully. Balmaseda calls for reinforcements. The insurrectionary lines are within 150 miles of Havana. The English subjects are notified to make immediate registration at the English Consulate. London, Dec. 15.—The correspondent of the Daily News says the termination of the Cadiz insurrection is wholly due to the good offices of the American Consul.

FROM THE ISTHMIAN.

New York, Dec. 14.—The steamer Chamney has arrived from Panama. All is tranquil. All except the leaders in the late revolution have been arrested. Monsieur Felix Belly had arrived from France on the Isthmian Canal steamer. Bogota advices represent the fears of civil war increasing. The Colombian Government wants $1,000,000 from the railroad company. Slight earthquakes at Aruquiza have done no damage.

FROM SPAIN.

London, Dec. 14.—Admiral Topeto is at Cadiz. The rebels demand a share in the government. Topeto told them that having so long submitted to a worse government they must submit to the present for the moment.

FROM GREECE.

London, Dec. 14.—Greece is stubborn, and the Turks are preparing for hostilities. The King of Denmark and the Prince of Wales have joined in a note to the King of Greece urging him to accede to Sultan's demand.

FROM CUBA.

New York, Dec. 14.—Important press dispatches, prepared for the Associated Press at Havana, were suppressed by the authorities. It is inferred that the insurgents had gained advantages which the government desire to keep from the public.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Washington, Dec. 14.—In the Senate Mr. Wilson introduced a bill throwing the Southern public land into the market. The House is engaged on private bills. In the Supreme Court, Butler is arguing the difference between the President's pardon and amnesty, maintaining that pardon only saves the recipient from punishment, while amnesty returns forfeited rights.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Washington, Dec. 14.—Congress will undoubtedly adjourn from the 21st inst. to the 5th proximo. It is stated that Gen. Grant's receipt at Marshall O. Roberts', in New York cost $15,000.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Washington, Dec. 15.—The bill to punish the holding of office contrary to the 14th amendment is up in the Senate, Mr. Ferry is speaking in favor of it. The business in the House is unimportant. In the Supreme Court Charles O'Connor is arguing that certificates of indebtedness held by Banks are taxable.

FROM SPAIN.

Cadiz, Dec. 15.—According to the terms of the proclamation Gen. De-Rossa, the insurgents surrendered their arms to the American Consul, who transferred them to the military. Eight thousand troops and nine vessels of war were ready to attack the insurgents, when they surrendered. All is now quiet. The insurgents' flag was the tri-color.

Over 30,000 inhabitants had left the city, and there is great distress among the poor who remained or fled to the adjacent villages. All the foreign Consuls, with their families, except the Swedish and the American, had left the city. There are 550 barricades in the city. Gen. Roda with the troops entered at 2 o'clock to-day. No arrests have been made or are contemplated. The Government proposes to act magnanimously. 500 persons were killed and wounded on both sides during the fighting last week.

Washington, Dec. 15.—The object of the bill increasing the number of the Judges of the Supreme Court is to keep the circuits in perpetual session, with a view to maintaining better order in the South. The Reconstruction Committee has concluded the examination of the Republican Committee from Mississippi, who produced data and arguments to show frauds and irregularities at the recent constitutional election. They want seven counties thrown out, which they assert would give a majority of three thousand in favor of the Constitution. No action has been taken by the Committee. The army expenditures for the last three years, commencing July, 1865, are $295,000,000, whereof nearly a hundred millions are on account of liabilities incurred during the rebellion, current expenses during the time named, an average of $65,000,000 per annum.

New York, Dec. 15.—The Herald has a Havana special, via Key West, that the recent battles were indecisive, and that the troops suffered fearfully. Balmaseda calls for reinforcements. The insurrectionary lines are within 150 miles of Havana. The English subjects are notified to make immediate registration at the English Consulate.

London, Dec. 15.—The correspondent of the Daily News says the termination of the Cadiz insurrection is wholly due to the good offices of the American Consul.

New York, Dec. 15.—Political affairs are still unsettled here and throughout the country. Trade of every description is paralyzed. Many are leaving fearing further troubles.

FROM MONTGOMERY.

Montgomery, Dec. 16.—A resolution to take a recess until the 20th of January was voted down to-day. It is probable the Legislature will adjourn about Christmas. Bills have passed both Houses opening all judgments granted by any court in this State on debts contracted before the 25th of May, 1865. The bill allowing the statute of limitations to run during the war has also become a law. The effect of this bill is to wipe out all debts not sued on, contracted before the war or six years before the passage of the act.

FROM GEORGIA.

Augusta, Dec. 16.—The town of Elberton was destroyed by fire. Loss $100,000. MARRIED.—On the 15th inst., at the residence of Mrs. Daniel Walker, by Rev. E. T. Read, E. B. Dickerson and Miss Jennie Walker. All of Calhoun county Ala.

OBITUARY.

DIED.—In Breckham, Texas, on the 14th Nov., Willie Reade, daughter of J. F. and Julia G. Cannon. It was a lovely child, and has left a father and mother and many other relatives to mourn its loss, but parents and friends dry up your tears, the Lord gives and the Lord taketh away, blessed be the name of the Lord. Sweet is the friendly voice which speaks The words of life and peace, That bids the penitent rejoice, And sin and sorrow cease. No healing balm on earth like this Can cheer the contrite heart, No flattering words of earthly bliss Such pure delight impart. Thou still art merciful and kind, Thy mercy Lord reveal, The broken heart thy grace can bind, The wounded spirit heal. L. T. G.

Not forever are we chastened
By the might of sorrow's hand,
Not forever pass we sighing,

The True Betrothal.

The Lover's Question
Yes, you vow to love me ever,
As you love me to-day,

Ever! 'tis a word supernal

Borrowed from a foreign tongue,
It belongs to the eternal,

Boundless, endless is its meaning,

Though women hem it in Time's space:
Each, in littleness of evening,

Tell me where you ever reacheth,

To Death's night or Heaven's day?
And by what power answer teacheth,

In this I place my hand,

That thou wilt keep it in thy clasp,
Till Death part Love's mortal band,

In thy heart my heart I drop,

Fo'ying in the secret,
Since our love's sweet, grand device
Is the vast room of prayer,

ARKANSAS.

Civil War in Arkansas—Radical Militia Seize the town of Augusta—They Sack the Stores and Dwelling Houses—They Seize the Coal Oil and Tar and Make Preparations to Burn the Town—Prominent Citizens are Thrown into Prison and Threatened with Death—A Carnival of Terror—The Liberator's Office for their Lives—All Law Subverted—A Carnival of Outrage.

The reign of misrule inaugurated by the imbecile and wicked Clayton, the so-called Governor of the province of Arkansas, has at last culminated in open war. The public were made aware of the first movement of the militia by a dispatch which was sent to the morning papers (but which in some unaccountable manner only reached one of them), announcing the seizure of the town of Augusta by an armed band of Militia, under "General" Upham.

Since this first dispatch nothing further could be learned—all communication having been cut off immediately on the taking of the town, until the arrival of the steamer Liberty No. 2, directly from the scene, which brought about thirty refugees from the ill-fated little place, many of whom brought their goods and movable property away with them. Among the latter was a merchant named Jacob Simons who, we understand, was compelled to leave by Upham.

The facts of the seizure of the town and subsequent events, are about as follows: as near as we can learn them. During the late election it appears that some person or persons in disguise shot at Upham while he was riding in the neighborhood of Augusta. On last Monday morning (a week ago yesterday) Upham assembled about a hundred men at Batesville, and first cutting the telegraph wires, so as to prevent the people of Augusta from knowing anything of the movement, marched on and surprised the town.

The first act of Upham was to issue an order declaring the town under martial law, and under his command, appointing provost marshals, etc. He then caused seven of the most prominent citizens to be seized and confined in the "Hough & Brown" block, and having seized all the coal oil, kerosene and tar in the town, he issued an order declaring if he or his troops were molested he would put his prisoners to death and burn the town. Pickets were thrown out, and every one was prevented from coming in or going out.

Upham, who styles himself "Brigadier General commanding," immediately seized on two fine residences, but very lately finished at a cost of $8,000, and belonging to Toof, Phillips and Co., of our city, for his headquarters. The Hough & Brown block was taken for offices, etc. Upham then went to the prominent dealers in groceries, etc., of all sorts, and helped himself bountifully to everything on earth that he contained, in the way not only of provisions and luxuries but dry goods, etc., taking a hundred and fifty yards of carpeting from one man to carpet his quarters with!

Like master, like man. The "soldier" (does not a brave man who ever carried a musket or a sabre bluish at the proposition of the name?) literally "went through" and gutted every store in the place. Nor were private houses exempt. Everything that caught the eye and excited the emptiness or pleased the fancy of these thieving scoundrels, they took and appropriated to themselves. To use the words of our informant:

"In about two hours after their arrival every ragamuffin of them was clad in the best that Augusta afforded. Here came one in a long-tail broadcloth, new hat and fine boots. Ere he crawled into this suit he was the picture of a perfect beggar in a new suit. Next came a greasy head in a new suit, but ill-fitted, with low-quartered shoes, smoking a fine Havana, swinging a couple of boxes of sardines, and singing "Hail Columbia." Next you see four or five in a group, all clad by piece-meal; for instance, a pair of fine old pants, with probably a pair of fine boots, three sizes too large, all boisterously talking about who was entitled to the biggest part of the candy and oysters in their possession.

"The telegraph operator, Mr. Sam Holman, was arrested soon after their entry, and was relieved on his promise only to send dispatches ordered by Upham, but had to leave on Wednesday, as he was suspected of sending messages that would sully the reputation of the town. An operator has since been sent there, and we learn Mr. Holman is still there or thereabouts.

made their appearance to a squad of fifty who went out of town several miles to make arrests. This was more than Upham looked for. At once he pressed in every conceivable arms, shot guns and carving knives. Turpentine balls were made and coal oil was put up in convenient cans, so as to expedite the burning of the buildings on the different farms with which they meant to devour the city. In case these outside parties made an attack, a detail of the older citizens was sent out to warn them that if they attacked them, Upham would first kill all prisoners, then fire the town and retreat to some other seaport, in which there were none of the bad men—meaning the K. K.'s. This prevented the attacking party from coming in upon them. But we think it questionable whether this was good policy. One wholesome lesson to these vile, thievish rascals would tend far more than ought to prevent their future deprecations upon inoffensive communities.

Last reports were that Capt. Joseph Shelton, with a goodly number of citizens, was at Gray's bridge, eight miles from Augusta, who sent word to Upham that if he did not cease plundering he would practice a little military strategy upon him some dark night.

Negroes in and about Augusta are being mustered into service, and are being efficient soldiers as far as bores can be placed on their mud-trampers. Three negro companies are ready at Helena to march to their relief, but the distance is so great that they may have to cast many wishful glances Augusta-ward ere they can accomplish their mission. Some thought that the White river packet could be pressed in to understand that a positive veto is recorded by both Capt. Elliott, of the Des Arc, and Capt. John Edson, of the Liberty.

Meanwhile the plundering of the citizens continued, and everything again to use the words of our informant, from sardines up to stoves were ruthlessly appropriated.

Of course, every one who could leave the city or send away their families did so. The beleaguered citizens looked long and for the coming of the steamer Des Arc as one means of getting away from the howling pandemonium into which Upham and his murdering thieves had converted the once quiet and beautiful town.

But the Des Arc hearing of the troubles when about a mile from the town, and her captain and officers being obnoxious to the truly "hail" concluded it was best not to go any nearer, and depositing her passengers and freight, turned around and left without taking any away. Many left and went into the neighboring country and towns.

When the steamer Liberty No. 2 arrived at 3 o'clock on Friday morning a squad of soldiers greeted her at the landing and shoved a copy of "General Orders No. 5" into the hand of Capt. Edson, which read as follows: "All White river packets will report at these headquarters as soon as they arrive. By order of Brig. Gen. Upham." The Captain reported immediately, and Upham kindly allowed him to put off his freight.

An Adjutant General of Governor Clayton's, who went upon the Liberty and returned on her, on arriving at Augusta, first ordered Upham to quit the steamer, as it would ruin the Radical party in the State. Secondly, the Governor as a Governor could not approve of an "appropriating" conduct; but as an individual he said, "hailly for Upham serves the rebels and M. K. is right." The aforesaid A. G. said that these people must be subjugated first. This was only a flourish, showing off his authority, though.

On Saturday, when the Liberty was ready to leave, numbers of merchants and others, came down to go on her, bringing all their movable property, but Upham could not bear to see so much plunder getting beyond his grasp, and he ordered the Captain not to take anything except such as he (Upham) should give passes to. Among those who were allowed to leave with their property, are Mr. Jacob Simons, (who had already been most ruthlessly plundered and had but little left), Mr. W. D. Bates, Messrs. Mathes & Bro. (who shipped their goods to Des Arc), Mr. C. F. Dufour, and J. McCurdy, Esq.

Thus matters stand. Upham and his murdering, thieving horde are entrenched and palisaded in the town; they have prisoners ready to kill, and the turpentine, coal oil and kerosene they are attacking. Upham boldly says that if he and his party are not enough to crush out the people and take possession of the country, that Clayton will send enough. The only answers that he vouches safe to the citizens who re-monstrate with him (a committee having once waited on him for that purpose) is "You have no civil rights I have no concessions to make; I am sent here to carry out order, and I am going to do it. I intend to disarm all citizens, and take such prisoners as I please."

God help the people of Arkansas!

From the Cincinnati Chronicle, 6th inst.
Terrible Steamboat Disaster on the Ohio River—Fearful Loss of Life.
About 12 o'clock last night, near Warsaw, Kentucky, about sixty-five miles below this city, happened one of the most frightful steamboat disasters that has ever occurred on the Western waters. Two of the finest steamers on the Ohio river were completely destroyed, and with a loss of life which no definite estimate can as yet be made. The particulars as far as yet ascertained, are as follows:

The steamer United States of the Louisville mail line, which left the city at the usual hour last evening, when near Warsaw, met the steamer America, of the same line, upward bound, when a collision, caused by a mistake in the signals, took place, the huge vessels coming together with a force that crushed the side of the United States like an eggshell. The American it seems, struck the States' bow on the starboard side, near the boilers and furnace, both of which were upset, when the fire from the furnace communicated with a lot of oil in the deck, which blazed fiercely, and in a few minutes wrapped the fore-part of the vessel in flames. From the State the flames were spread to the America, and within a short time both, together with their valuable freight, were burned to the water's edge. Of the loss of life it is impossible from the meagre information in our possession to make any thing like an accurate estimate, but it must have been fearful. Thirty-five ladies and a number of gentlemen on the States are known to have been lost. The loss of life among the passengers on the America was less. The total will probably reach eighty. No duplicate list of passengers is preserved at the office of the company consequently neither the number or names of the passengers is known.

The ladies cabin of the United States had that evening been the scene of unusual gaiety. There were bridal parties on board full of happiness of their new love, young and beautiful girls just blushing into womanhood, gallant cavaliers paying homage at beauty's shrine. Conversation music and dancing, served to make the hours fly; among the brightest and fairest were the Misses Johnson and Jones. A gentleman of this city who had been dancing with them had given to each young lady the address of the other one, which they stuck in their belts. But the hours increased, and weary at last, the dancers had just dispersed with merry good nights and wishes of pleasant dreams, when a shock was felt, and then came the awful sickening cry of the boat is on fire and sinking.

In a minute the scene changed from the gaiety of youth to a carnival of death. Old and young, men, women and children rushed into the cabin, partly dressed, husbands and wives, brothers and sisters, fathers and children, looking at each other in agony, too many, alas! taking their final view of their loved ones.

At this stage a touching appeal was made by Miss Jones to a gentleman on board. As the wood-work was becoming too heated to bear, and the flames were forcing their way gradually into the cabin, she went to him saying, "Oh! Mr. — you have talked to me this evening, you have danced with me, you know who I am and where I come from, save me! oh, save me! oh, save me!" He told her he had a wife to save, and he could not help her. Poor girl, she is beyond earthly help now.

One gentleman on board had the presence of mind to unhinge a door, which he threw in the river; and after his wife and he had jumped in, he placed her in position to reach the shore. "Now stay here, dear," was his request, "until I can fix myself the same way, and we can both be saved." Imagine the husband's agony just as he had procured something that would float, to see a man swim toward the frail support of his wife and knock her away from it. She was drowned.

One gentleman and wife escaped in rather a romantic manner. Fastening life preservers to both of their persons, he tied her right arm to his left, then took a shunter over, which they placed their arms. "Now! one—two—three—jump," he cried, when both jumped, and after a little maneuvering, they arrived safely on shore, minus, however several articles of apparel needed to make them presentable.

A lady on board the State relates that as she and her husband were moving toward the shore, in the water she saw one of the life boats filled with people who had escaped. But all at once the America began to back toward shore, and mercifully the rudder strikes the boat, crushing and upsetting it. None of those passengers were saved. After escaping one danger only to meet death in another form.

From the shore could be seen women with nothing but their robes demit to protect them, rushing about in the flames, screaming for help—mothers with their children in their arms, most of them babies, rushing about frantically.

A gentleman with his sister, a lady and accomplished young lady, were passengers on the United States. At the first shock the gentleman was thrown from his bed clear out on the floor. Hastily putting on his pantaloons, he rushed to the state-room of his sister, burst open the door and seizing her in his arms, carried her down on the main deck, where procuring a door shutter, he threw it overboard and leaped after it, with his sister in his arms. He placed her securely on the shutter, and was swimming behind, pushing it with his precious load towards the shore, when to his horror, a big, burly and abominable man swam up, pushed his sister off the board, and climbed upon it himself. The young girl sank with a scream, and if she came to the surface it was so dark and the confusion was so great that he could not find her. Blinded by the darkness he made after the author, and seizing him by the throat, a struggle to the death ensued. They rose and sank together, still struggling, and when last seen were grappling with each other. Whether either were saved, or both went down together is not known. The sister sunk beneath the waves and was lost, but she was terribly avenged by her brother.

WAR BREWING IN THE RADICAL WISDOM.—Reliable accounts from the up-country would seem to portend a serious rupture in the Radical family of Georgia. The Brown faction, it is said, are utterly opposed to the movement of Bullock, Blodgett and the three Georgia negroes at Washington, and do not hesitate to denounce them openly. With the exception of Governor and presiding Chief Justice, it is obliged to be so. He has consistently maintained that under the Constitution of Georgia, framed by the Radicals, the negro is ineligible to office, and to set aside the Legislature as an illegal body would be to upset himself in his present high position, as he received it at their hands. Brown, though holding a court at Atlanta is doubtless pulling wires that reach to Washington, and using all his influence to bring the plot of Bullock, Blodgett & Co. to grief. We hope he will succeed, for we have had enough of despotism and trouble and foolery in Georgia. There was something at least respectable in being kicked and cuff-ed about by a Major General of the United States army, but the idea of any decent people being kicked to death by a sheep, such as Bullock, is unendurable. It is possible, though, that he may get all the power he asks of Congress, but if we are not greatly mistaken he will not have very merry time in using it.
Savannah Republican.

A lady parting from her husband a few days since on the cars at Albany was overheard to utter the following paragraph in all one breath: "Good bye! I'll write to me every day won't you? I'll expect a letter three times a week, anyway. Take good care my Sunday School class, for I'll want it when I come back, if Smith calls don't give her more than fifty cents, for we have to support our own Church, you know. Don't forget to bring my silk dress and my other shoes. Come as soon as you can. Good bye, don't forget your cane, and let your mustach grow."

TROUBLES APPREHENDED BETWEEN THE RIVAL PARTIES IN SPAIN.—LONDON, Nov. 29, 1868.—The apprehensions of bloodshed in Spain are increasing. It is thought that a collision between the Monarchists and Republicans will be the inevitable result of the excited political contest now in progress. Meantime the patriotic fervor of the nation is unabated. A dispatch from Madrid states that the subscriptions by the people to the national loan now amount to 310,000,000.

A FINE NEW ENGINE.—A beautiful new locomotive for the Selma, Rome & Dalton Railroad passed through Rome last Saturday. They now have three new locomotives, and four splendid passenger coaches which, with the previous supply, constitutes an elegant outfit for the passenger trains. Considering the rapidity with which the road was built, the road bed is in excellent order, and as soon as the track is re-adjusted in some places where it has settled, it will be one of the smoothest running roads in the country.—Rome Courier.

Rip Van Winkle--Wake Up. We have understood recently that considerable interest is excited in the enterprise of building a Railroad from Atlanta, Ga., to Decatur, Ala., there to intersect with the Memphis & Charleston Road.

We would also call the attention of parties in Atlanta, interested in this road, to a few facts connected with its location. If built, it must necessarily come directly to this place, which is nearly on an air line from Atlanta to Gadsden and Guntersville.

It is said that claims have been presented on the Government for damages in the South, to the amount of one thousand million dollars. Those who have sustained losses may gather from this fact their chances of compensation.

Personal Profits.--The Indianapolis Sentinel gives a list of members of Congress who were worth in 1860 $1, 927,000, whose assets now foot up $734,600,000.

Although we have frequently heard during the past two years, of the rapid growth and commercial prosperity of this city, we had formed no just conception of the reality until we passed a few days there last week.

The Augusta, Ga., Constitutionalist remarks that "the best allies of the South, are near at home. They are the plow, the loom and the anvil."

Georgia is truly the Empire State of the South, and Atlanta soon will be, if it is not already, the Empire city, next to New Orleans and Baltimore.

B. F. Wyly, Wholesale Grocer and Produce Merchant. We refer with pleasure to the advertisement of this House, on Whitehall Street, Atlanta, Ga., containing a truly large and well assorted Stock, and always kept full.

Mr. Wyly is already favorably known to many of our citizens, who will bear us out in the assertion, that no more competent, correct, prompt and accommodating business man can be found in any Southern city.

A Good Thing.--Some Yankee has invented an arrangement to prevent heavy trunks from being injured by careless handling. It is simply an india rubber ball on each of the eight corners. Strange it was never thought of before.

Tommy & Stewart, Dealers in English and American Hardware, Atlanta, Ga. Attention is specially invited to the advertisement of this firm, which has a very large and varied stock, embracing almost if not altogether, every article in their line.

It is said that the negroes of St. Louis will sooner or later be hung for killing the other half. Redner & Bros., Tobacco Commission Merchants, Atlanta, Ga. Dealers in Tobacco would do well to make a note of the proposition to fill orders by this large and long established Tobacco House.

The Macon and Western Railway Machine Shops, Georgia, have turned out a new and beautiful locomotive, which the Journal says will compare favorably with any locomotive made in northern workshops.

G. W. Jack & Co., Manufacturers and Dealers in Confectionery, &c. Atlanta, Ga., to whose advertisement in another column, the readers attention is invited, have a very large stock constantly on hand, of the very finest quality.

Corn is selling at twenty-five cents per bushel in Randolph county, Ark. Three hundred German immigrants arrived at New Orleans on Sunday last.

S. S. Kendrick, dealer in Carpets, Oil Cloths and House Furnishing Goods, Atlanta, Ga. We were shown through this extensive establishment a few days ago, by the polite and gentlemanly proprietor, and saw a great variety of beautiful and useful articles.

Chamberlin & Boynton, Dealers in Dry Goods and Carpets, Atlanta, Ga. While in Atlanta the other day, we were shown through this extensive establishment by one of the polite and gentlemanly proprietors, and learned the low prices of a great variety of useful and ornamental articles.

The King of Sweden has announced that hereafter no capital execution shall take place in his Kingdom, and if the death penalty be not abolished by law it shall not be enforced by him.

J. M. & J. C. Alexander, Dealers in Hardware, Carriage Material, Mining Implements, &c., Atlanta, Ga. We invite attention to the advertisement of these gentlemen, with the assurance to our readers that they can obtain the many useful and indispensable articles in which they deal, from any firm who have a better or more well deserved reputation for fair dealing, promptitude and reliability.

It is stated that half the negroes of St. Louis will sooner or later be hung for killing the other half. HENRY BANKS, Dealer in Boots, Shoes, Leather, &c., Atlanta, Ga. This House was established in 1867, and has a well-earned reputation for uniform fair dealing, promptitude, and enterprise.

The Children's Advertiser says that the strongest man in the Democratic party in the State should be his candidate in this approaching gubernatorial contest, and insists that Hon. George H. Pendleton is that man.

T. M. & R. C. CLARK, Importers and Dealers in English and American Hardware, Atlanta, Ga. This extensive House with its magnificent stock, should be visited and patronized by all who deal in the articles named.

Messrs. James and Alfred Butterworth, of Manchester, England, arrived in Montgomery, Ala., a few days ago, and have already invested $30,000 in a Lowndes county plantation.

JAMES R. WYLY, Wholesale Grocer and Commission Merchant, Atlanta, Ga. Purchasers of Grocers in this section, would do well to send their orders to this House, or visit it while in Atlanta.

The yield of wine, in California, this year, will reach 5,000,000 or 6,000,000 gallons to which will be added 300,000 to 400,000 gallons of grape brandy.

A New York paper suggests as a means of paying the national debt, that every office-seeker pay a dollar a week toward its liquidation until he gets an office.

M. O. MARKHAM, Dealer in Boots, Shoes, Leather, &c., Atlanta, Ga. The reader will find in another column the advertisement of this gentleman, who has on hand an immense stock, embracing all varieties and prices.

Richmond, Dec. 15.--The farm of Ex-Gov. Wise, in Princess Anne county, so long held by the Government, was yesterday surrendered to the owner, by order of the Military authorities.

The motion made in Congress to appropriate $50,000 to defray the expenses of President Johnson's defence in the impeachment trial should be passed. He was acquitted, and the necessary legal presumption is that he was innocent.

PHILLIPS & CREW, Dealers in Books, Stationery, Music, &c., Atlanta, Ga. We were shown through this extensive and elegantly arranged establishment while in Atlanta, by one of the affable and gentlemanly proprietors.

Books to the value of a million and a half were imported into the United States from England last year. Buildings valued at $400,000 have this year been erected in Winona, Minnesota.

Memphis, Dec. 17.--A fight between thirty militia men and a body of citizens occurred yesterday at Augusta, Arkansas. Four of the militia were killed.

AMERICAN HOTEL, Atlanta, Ga. The attention of the travelling public is invited to the card of this House in another column. Visitors will find friendly, polite and accommodating proprietors, good fare, attentive servants, and everything requisite for their comfort and convenience.

WAR AND RUMORS OF WAR. Just when Napoleon and Bismarck had made up their minds for the preservation of the peace of Europe, and the rival factions in Spain had concluded not to catch each other's throats yet awhile, little Greece quarrels with Turkey.

THE LEGISLATURE.--Yesterday's proceedings were unmarked by anything of general interest. The House discussed the revenue bill and both Houses, we believe agreed to adjourn on the 31st.

FROM ARKANSAS. Memphis, Dec. 17.--A special to the Avalanche from Little Rock, says the militia had entered the town of Lewisburg, shooting in every direction.

LOCAL ITEMS
AND
SPECIAL NOTICES.

Attention is specially invited to the notice of the commencement of the next session of the Jacksonville Female Academy, under the superintendance of the same Principle and Assistants as formerly.

It would seem useless for us to repeat what we have so often said with regard to competent Teachers, health of location, cheapness of board, &c.

The patrons and friends of this institution are earnestly urged to give it all the aid and encouragement in their power.

Bowdon COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.—Attention is invited to the advertisement of the commencement of next session of this institution. It is situated in a healthy region—board is cheap, and it has been long and justly celebrated for able teachers and educational facilities.

We tender our sincere thanks to the Editors of the Intelligencer, the Constitution, and the New Era, for their kind and complimentary notice of our presence and business in Atlanta last week, and will take pleasure in reciprocating the favor whenever opportunity is afforded.

We acknowledge ourselves under many obligations to our old friends, Messrs. B. F. Wylie, P. & G. T. Dodd and J. Fleishel, for their kind, friendly and very efficient assistance in business, during our stay in Atlanta last week. May they long retain the public confidence and prosperous trade which they now possess, and which we feel assured they richly merit.

Jacksonville, Ala. Dec. 23, 1868.
Editor REPUBLICAN:

Dear Sir:—The Mechanics and Farmers of Calhoun county, are respectfully notified that a meeting of Mechanics and Farmers will be held at the Court House in this place, on Saturday the 15th day of January, 1869, at 11 A. M. to hear such suggestions, and consider of such measures as may be presented to them, calculated to promote the interests of the Farmers and Mechanics of this county.

It is believed to be of the highest importance to the Mechanics and Farmers to attend and enter heartily into any proposed measures that may appear practicable.

Union and concert of action, concentration of talent, skill, knowledge, labor and money, may and will be productive of much good, and secure the greatest success.
