The attention of persons who desire to enter into the cultivation of the grape, is invited to the advertisement of Mr. Robert C. Johnson, of White Plains, Ala.

We visited Mr. Johnson's Vineyard, comprising several acres, in May last, and were delighted with the deep, clean and thorough culture he had given it.

RAIN & HAIL.—We had a considerable storm of rain mingled with hail, in this locality, on Thursday evening last.

By the latest election news from Maine the Radical majority of 20,000 last year has been reduced to 5,000. One-half this ratio of reduction in Pennsylvania and Ohio, will insure the election of the democratic candidates for Governor in each of these States by handsome majorities.

Judge D. M. Howd has sold the office of the Rome Commercial to Mr. M. A. Nevin, who has been connected with the paper during the past year, and has considerable experience and ability as an Editor.

A Liberal Proposition.

We now offer to all new subscribers to the Jacksonville Republican, and also all our present subscribers who will renew and pay in advance, between this date and the first day of November, 1869, "The Western Home," a large and neat literary periodical, published at Chicago, Ill., free of extra charge.

We take the following from the Montgomery Advertiser, and would add that the Atlas is doing the leading business in this section. Its interests are looked after by our genial friend, Capt. J. M. Renfro, whose office may be found at No. 7, office row—call and see him when you come to Town, and he will take pleasure in explaining the workings of his Company, and send up your application if you desire Insurance on your life.

ATLAS MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, OF ST. LOUIS.—We have heretofore called the attention of our readers to the Atlas card in our paper showing list of policy holders secured in so short a time, but would particularly call attention to the large number that has been added during the past month, which amounts to the handsome number of (149) one hundred and forty-nine applications.

It allows thirty days on all annual payments. The policies issued by the Atlas combine the advantages of all Companies without any of their objectionable features. One other cause of the great success of the Atlas, is that it is under the able and efficient management of our esteemed friend, Maj. Wilson E. Richardson, who is well known to our people as reliable and thoroughly posted in the insurance business.

The Southern Outlook.

On the march to regeneration and deliverance from Radical and C. B. rule, the South "hastens slowly," but still makes progress. Every day brings her nearer to the goal—no thanks to her enemies who aimed at her perpetual bondage—until at least, she had obtained her own consent to be chained, a willing captive, to the Radical party—but thanks to the ameliorating influence of time, and the recuperative powers of truth and justice.

"The party" which was demanded. Men like Rice, White and McKinstry were willing to pay the price. But to the eternal honor of the united masses of the Southern people, they refused to do so.

How does this matter stand? Take the widow of a soldier—what money do they pay her? The holder gives to the Treasury, presents his coupons, and is paid gold and silver. At the next desk her poor widow's pension is paid in shillings. She goes to market and pays a dollar and a half for a dollar's worth. He buys a dollar and a half's worth for a dollar.

How can specie payments ever be resumed when there is an actual drain of $60,000,000 a year in gold to Europe for the payments of interest to the European bondholders who don't pay a farthing's tax upon their bonds?

Why should the Federal Government pay thirty millions of dollars per year to the National bank for issuing a blue-back currency when it can issue green-backs, a better currency, without paying anything at all?

Why should we keep up an army of fifty thousand men at an expense of $50,000,000 a year, when an army of ten thousand men, well managed, would do more than the fifty thousand show any signs of doing?

It is said that the Japanese clergy pause every fifteen minutes in their discourses, and say to their congregations "let us take a smoke." Their preach sermons pay much as Grant administers affairs.

There is good reason for Grant's using so few words. The object of words, according to Talleyrand, is to hide thought, and Grant has very little thought to hide.

Why should we have a far less amount of currency to do the business of the country than was required and used when the South was not a party to the Union? There is good reason for Grant's using so few words.

What of the man who controlled this $2,500,000,000 debt. When the paper money went into thin air, these men will have their eye upon and control, the property of the country. It is the best certificate ever made to make "the chaff" to the king better than the poor man's coin.

The Parent of the President.

An Interview With Jesse Grant.

His Opinion of Negroes, Carpet-Baggers, Dividing the Nation, and Ulysses' Tenure of Office.

There being a great diversity of opinion in regard to the political and other sentiments of the father of the President, the Cincinnati Inquirer dispatched a reporter to the home of the aged father of the "greatest living hero," with instructions to interview the old gentleman, and report the result.

It is stated that the number made widows and orphans by this calamity amounts to six hundred.

After a brief pause, Mr. Grant said, "I don't blame people much if they are rebels. I am opposed to having niggers vote. I always was and always will be."

President's Father.

Well, it was during the war that a lot of radical abolitionists and fanatics got themselves into the Republican party, and those carpet-baggers, who went down there to steal, have foisted this thing on the people of the States.

Dividing the Country.

If I had my way, and it could be peaceably done, I'd divide the country into two separate nations.

President's Father.

He never said much, more than he does now; but he always watched closely, and know what was going on.

Ulysses Will Hang On to the White House.

Reporter. I suppose General Grant will be sick of the place before his time expires, and will not care to have it another term.

President's Father.

I don't know. He won't want to retire from public life while he is young. It would go pretty hard with him, I think, to give up the White House.

The President Owes His Success to His Parents.

After discussing a variety of topics of no public interest, the conversation turned upon the early life of General Grant, a subject on which the old gentleman, with pardonable fatherly love and pride, delights to dwell.

"General Grant," said he, "had a better chance to succeed in life than President Lincoln, and twice more of his success to his father. Lincoln's father was a very poor man, and never gave his son any education; all he got he picked up himself, and all the property he had he earned by his own labor."

"Cotton Still King."—If any one is still disinclined to confess the truth that cotton is king, and a great king, too, his doubts ought to be removed by the startling statement of the Mauchess Cotton Supply Association.

The machine moved slowly forward, the rope swaying gently from side to side until it had passed out about fifty feet, when another opportunity was seized by the artist; after which he crawled along at a snail's pace to the middle of the abyss, where he raised and waved his hat, and received a faint cheer in response.

After discussing the conversation, and our reporter bid the old gentleman goodbye, well pleased with the gentlemanly manner in which he had been received, and the good natured frankness exhibited by the President's father in answer to his questions.

An Awful Calamity.

A most awful calamity is reported by telegraph to have just occurred at Avondale coal mines, in Pennsylvania, the details of which are perfectly heart-rending.

A most extensive strike amongst the miners of Pennsylvania, which has been prevailing for a month or two past, had just ended and a large number of men and boys had returned to work in the Avondale mines.

On Monday some two hundred men and boys went into the mines to work, and during the day a fire broke out in the shaft at the bottom of the shaft owned by the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Company, and in a short time the whole breaker and out buildings were in flames, and the hoisting apparatus—the only avenue of escape for the miners—destroyed.

All efforts to stay the flames were unavailable, and the whole structure fell, filling up the shaft. Every means possible was used to throw water and fresh air into the mines, but all efforts proved futile, and the whole two hundred men and boys, perished.

POETRY.

NO BLESSINGS IN THE BOWL.

Man of toil wouldst thou be free? Lead thine ear to reason's call; There's folly in the drunkard's glass...

Man of toil, wouldst thou be blest? Give to thy parrot feeling play; Bring all that's noble to thy breast...

The Dying Mother. BY ALICE CARY. We were weeping round her pillow, For we knew that she must die...

There were seven of us children, I the oldest one of all; So I tried to whisper comfort, But the blinding tears would fall...

On my knees my little brother Leaned his aching brow and wept; And my sister's long black tresses O'er my leaving bosom swept...

The shadow of an awful fear Came o'er me as I trod, To lay the burden of my grief Around the throne of God...

Her latest breath was borne away Upon that loving prayer, And the land grew bright and pale, On the baby's golden hair...

Beautiful. The following paragraph is taken from the New York Herald's notice of the death of Gen. Rawlins...
