

MAY

WASHINGTON, May 5.—There is considerable excitement here to-day. The Radical Convention to nominate a mayor is in session. Messrs. Bowen and Richards are in some what an irregular nomination and are in the field for mayor.

Augusta, May 5.—A subscription is being taken up among the citizens for the Richmond sufferers.

Pennsylvania, May 5.—Sixteen persons were removed to the small-pox hospital to-day for relapsing fever.

ATTEMPTED MURDER AND ROBBERY.—We learn from the Wilcox News that at a late hour on the night of the 1st instant, a negro entered the store of Mr. John Roberts, at Snow Hill, in that county, and dealt him several severe blows on the head, which stunned him. The negro then rifled Mr. B.'s pockets of a considerable amount of money, and made his escape for the time, but was captured the next day.

The New York Democrat relates this anecdote of the late Gen. Thomas:

At the close of the war, knowing his rebellious relatives in the South must be in want, he kindly sent to them several boxes of goods and useful articles generally, by private, secret conveyance. This showed his goodness of heart and sympathy with his relatives. But they at once returned them, one and all, and wrote to him that they wanted no charity from one who was a Virginian—who had accepted a position as Major-General in her service, and who, for a consideration, would desert his friends and break his promise in their hour of need. And so he went his way, and our readers can form their opinions to suit the above facts, which are parts and parcels of American history. He was a good General—connected with a high toned, patriotic honorable family.

FREE-LOVE MISCEGENATION AND MURDER.—The West Point (Ala.) Shield gives the particulars of the brutal murder of a white woman near Providence church, in Chambers county, by a negro woman and her husband. It appears that the murdered woman and the negro man had a few months since been prosecuted and convicted for living in adultery, for which they were sentenced to a term in the chain gang. After the expiration of the term of service, the white woman again went to live with the negro, when he and his wife murdered her by chopping her to pieces with an axe. The murders have been arrested. The Shield gives the details of the revolt, and the following remarks:

So sad another dark chapter in the history of Freedom and Reconstruction. Will the Radicals add this to the list of heinous crimes to show the necessity of military rule in Alabama. Governor Smith should at once suspend the writ of habeas corpus, put Chambers county under martial law, and call out the militia.

THE DISABILITY BILL.—The following is a copy of an anonymous bill adopted by the Committee on Removal of Disabilities:

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled, That all persons, except as hereinafter excepted, who are disabled by the provisions of the Constitution of the United States, be and are hereby declared to be disabled, and shall be so considered, that the following classes of persons are excepted from the provisions of this act—that is to say:

First, All persons who were members of the Congress of the United States, and who were members of a State Convention which adopted pretended ordinances of secession.

A terrible murder was committed in Sevier county, East Tennessee, on Thursday night last. A poor woman, named Stratton, while on her way from Knoxville, where she had been to obtain a pension of $85, stopped for the night at the house of a man named Joe Burkhead, and was allowed to sleep with Mrs. B. during the night. Burkhead quietly entered the room, cut the throat of his wife (mistaking her for the lodger), and dragged the body into the yard. Mrs. S., aroused by the noise and the blood of the victim, sprang into her face, made her escape through the low chimney of the cabin, and succeeded in reaching a neighbor's house, where assistance was obtained and the murderer arrested. He appeared perfectly unconcerned.

The landlady of the Stout House at Fremont, Ill., sent a note a few days ago to a debtor, telling him he was holding his note yet, and hoped he would oblige him by paying it off. The debtor sent in reply a very consoling reply.

In another column will be found Dr. SHALLENBERGER'S advertisement. The following letters will show what estimation the medicine is held in other localities. HUNTER, CLARKSON PARISH, LA., Oct. 1869. Dr. SHALLENBERGER, Rochester, Pa.

DEAR SIR.—I have been using your valuable Pills in my family for over a year, and I can truly say that they have done more for my wife and children, and to the freedom on my plantation, and in no instance have they failed to cure. They have almost entirely taken the place of Quinine and other remedies, in this section, for the cure of Chills and Fever—a disease so annoying to us Southern people. In fact such a vast number have been cured, without unpleasant symptoms as where Quinine is used, that most all Physicians here give them, and recommend the use of them.

I write you this, because my friends have been effectively cured by your Pills, and we feel it due to you, to express our kindest regards for having furnished us a medicine we deem so indispensable in this country.

Yours, very truly, A. WILLIS. T. B. OWEN, GATESVILLE, Tex. Feb. 1870. I could have sold two gross since January 1st, had I been able to get them. I have some on the way from Galveston, which will last until I can hear from you.

Our readers will find something to repay them for their trouble in reading the advertisement headed "LIPPMAN'S Great German Bitters," in another column. The Proprietors, Messrs. JACOB LIPPMAN & BROTHERS, Savannah, Ga., have at an immense outlay been enabled to obtain the Recipe of this Great German Remedy, and they are the only parties in the United States who can be authorized to prepare them. They are for sale by all the Druggists and dealers generally.

KAYTON'S OIL OF LIFE should be in every house ready for use when overtaken by pain or aches.

One of the most eminent medical men of this age—well known as the author of the following standard medical works: "New York's 'Practical Medicine,'" "Diseases of Children," "New York's 'Surgery,'" &c., &c., in December number of American Medical Review—page 278, says: "Among the more recent efforts to introduce popularly some of the new remedies, we notice a new preparation compounded by J. We recently examined his Laboratory, and became fully satisfied that all his work is done in the best manner, by the most approved process, and from the best materials, giving as a result a medicine meeting the confidence of the physicians and the people."

Koskoo Cures Scrofula in its Worst Form.

From A. W. MILES, a prominent and well known merchant of Norfolk, Va. No. 11 Main St., Norfolk, Va. Sept. 1869.

DR. LAWRENCE—Dear Sir: Your Koskoo has worked wonders in my family. My daughter has been a sufferer from Scrofula since childhood. She lost thirty-one pieces of bone from her ankle, several from her arm, besides having ulcers in several parts of the body. Whilst in this condition she commenced taking your Koskoo—it acted like a charm on her; under its use the ulcers gradually healed, and her general health greatly improved. It certainly saved her much suffering, and perhaps her life. I regard Koskoo a specific for all scrofulous affections. Your Koskoo also cured my wife's dyspepsia, from which she suffered greatly. She is now in better health than she has been in five years.

With the kindest regards, I am, respectfully yours, &c., A. W. MILES.

Koskoo is endorsed by the best physicians everywhere. Read the following from Dr. FILLER, a successful practitioner of many years standing in the Old North State: Rocky Mount, Edgecombe Co., Va. September 10, 1869.

DR. J. J. LAWRENCE—Dear Sir: I have used your Concentrated Fluid Extract of Koskoo in my practice with the happiest results. I feel it to be a powerful Liver and Kidney, Blood Purifier, and Nervous Tonic. In all diseases of the Liver, Scrofulous Syphilis, and Nervous Affections, it is a remedy of the highest value, in almost every variety of Chronic Diseases it is indicated. Hoping you may meet with the success which you deserve as a manufacturer of reliable medicines, I am, sir, with much respect,

Your obedient servant, R. C. TILLERY, M. D.

Koskoo Cures Chronic Rheumatism.

From a letter from Mr. Womble, a prominent Hardware Merchant of this city: No. 13 Market Square, Norfolk, Va. Oct. 10, 1869.

DR. LAWRENCE—Dear Sir: To the large number of testimonials which you offer of the great efficacy of your Koskoo, I feel pleasure in adding my own. I suffered greatly with Nervous Debility, Headache, Loss of Appetite, &c. Two bottles of Koskoo restored me to health.

Yours truly, J. G. WOMBLE.

From Rev. W. H. Christian, Pastor Dinwiddie Street Methodist Church, Portsmouth, Va. Oct. 25, 1869.

It is to certify that I know Dr. Lawrence well. He is a gentleman of cultivation, and worthy of the fullest confidence. I have used his Koskoo with advantage to myself, and have adopted its use in my family in case of nervous debility and depression.

W. H. CHRISTIAN.

From Dr. Lloyd, a Physician of Large Practice. Great Bridge, Va., Oct. 8, 1869.

J. J. LAWRENCE, &c.—Dear Sir: I cheerfully endorse your Koskoo as being most valuable preparation. Upon examination of the formula, I find each ingredient highly extolled by our best and most progressive clinical investigators. I have tested its effects in my own practice, and have no hesitation in recommending it. In my opinion, it is the best remedy for the Liver, Kidneys, and the various compounds of arsenic, &c., ever invented. It is a decided Nervine Tonic, and invigorates the animal forces, aiding digestion and assimilation, and thereby purifying healthy blood, which should be the basis of treatment in all chronic diseases. Hoping you will reap the reward you deserve from the public as a benefactor.

I am, sir, yours truly, ARTHUR LLOYD.

After reading the above high recommendation, I cannot reasonably hesitate to give the KOSKOO a trial.

TO PHYSICIANS.

New York, August 19th, 1868. Allow me to call your attention to my Preparation of Compound Extract Buchu.

The component parts are DCGLU, LONG LEAF, GUBBIS, JUNIPER BERRIES.

Monks of Preparation.—Buchu, in value, Juniper Berries, by distillation, to form a fine gin. Cubes extracted by displacement with spirits obtained from Juniper Berries; very little sugar is used, and a small proportion of spirits. It is more palatable than any now in use.

Buchu, as prepared by Druggists, is of a dark color. It is a plant that emits its fragrance the action of flame destroys this (its active principle), leaving a dark and glutinous decoction. Mine is the color of ingre-dients. The Buchu in my preparation predominates, the smallest quantity of the other ingredients are added, to prevent fermentation upon inspection, it will be found not to be a Tincture, as made in Pharmacy, but it is a Syrup—and therefore can be used in cases where fever or inflammation exist. In this, you have the knowledge of the ingredients and the mode of preparation.

Hoping that you will favor it with a trial, and that upon inspection it will meet with your approbation.

John Morrissey.

From the New York Sun.]

Some twenty years ago, when muscle was king in New York, Capt. Morrissey was king in New York. Capt. Morrissey, Yankee Sullivan, Tom Lyster, Tom Lyster, Bill Doyle, and others of like stamp, with their followers, controlled the municipal elections. The rule was first to strike on the politicians and then strike out among themselves.

The last dressed and smartest fighting man at one time was Tom Morrissey. He was a gambler, and his favorite resort was the Gem, adjoining the old Broadway Theatre. Tom would walk up to the wall and nip a fly between his thumb and forefinger nine times out of ten. He was the hero of many barroom fights, and the terror of the gamblers.

One night, while Morrissey was at the height of his fame, John Morrissey walked into the Gem. He had thrashed all the fighting men from Troy to Hudson in rough-and-tumble style, and now came to beat the tigers in their den. His clear eyes, red head, broad shoulders and sturdy limbs at once attracted the attention of the sports. John's first words ruffled the boys. "The words were," "Come, let's all take a drink." Morrissey entered into conversation with him. The talk ended in a little game being made up. Morrissey was "half felled with wine" with them. Everything was lovely while his money lasted. He was soon cleaned out, however, and while smarting under the suspicion that he had been cheated, he was informed that McCann had laid him out with a "cold deck." This led to the most exciting fight that ever took place in Broadway saloon. The particulars of this struggle were never before published. The few fighting men who saw it declare it was the hottest nail they ever witnessed.

McCann was down in Florence, and Morrissey was in New York. Morrissey looked at Tom a moment, and then said: "Hello, pretty, how gay you get yourself up on the money you cheat people out of." Morrissey looked at him in a rage and place you over the bar.

"Who says I ever cheated?" inquired Morrissey. "All do," replied Morrissey. "So you lie, you country cut. And now look out for I'm going to lick you into shape in just five minutes," said Tom, placing his glossy tile on the bar.

"All right, my heart," replied Morrissey, proceeding to pull off his coat. Before Morrissey could get his right shoulder out of his coat, McCann was on him with the spring of a leopard, planting lightning blows on Morrissey's face, breast and ribs. John clenched his teeth and struggled to free himself from the binding coil. McCann knocked him against the stove, over went the stove and down went Morrissey on the marble floor. McCann bounced on him like a wildcat on a pig. The blows from his hammer-like fists fell fast and furious on Morrissey's face, the back of his head beating a tattoo on the marble slabs. An ordinary skull would have been crushed at once, but not John's. Morrissey soon changed his tactics. Instead of trying to get off his coat, he worked himself into it again. He then lay quietly for a few seconds. McCann's blows still like hail, he began to think that he had knocked about all the life out of Morrissey, and shouted:

"Holler 'Enough!' or I'll dash your brains out."

"Not just yet, my nose," said Morrissey, coolly, rolling Tom's nose with apparent ease, and jumping to his feet.

Tom was up just as quick. At it they went again. The tide of battle now began to change. Tom gave Morrissey a good thrashing. Morrissey's eyes twinkled over his bloody nose, while McCann's glared above the gasping that were opening on his cheeks. Tom looked as if a dozen boxes of wafers had been spilled on him. At last they went down again—this time Morrissey was on top. McCann soon gasped "enough!"

Morrissey was now lying-in among the sports. He had whipped his best man. They also discovered that he possessed three sterling traits—courage, truth and generosity—rare qualities for a man whom they had looked upon as a proven cut.

Since that day John has been refined in a rough school. He had never gone back on his word. Sporting men and politicians of all desks placed sums of money in his hands, pending the settlement of their bets. It is enough to say that "the money is in John Morrissey's hands," to know that the right man will get it.

THE GREEN SPOT.

The late Noah Winslow was fond of telling the following incident of of mercurial life, and he never closed the narration but with swimming eyes:

During the financial crisis and crash of '57, when the heavy men were sinking all around us, and banks were tottering, our house became a place of refuge for the condition of its own affairs.

The partners—three of us, of whom I was the senior—met in our private office for consultation. Our junior had made a careful inventory of everything—payable, and his report was that twenty thousand dollars of ready money would save us. Without that we must go by the board—the result was inevitable. I went out upon the street, and among my friends, but in vain.

Two whole days I strove, and begged, and then returned to the counting-house in despair. I sat at my desk, expecting every moment to hear our junior sounding the terrible words, "our paper is protested"—when a gentleman entered my department unannounced. I could not locate him nor call him to my mind any way.

"Mr. Winslow," he said, taking a seat at my desk, "I hear you are in need of money."

The very face of the man inspired me with confidence, and I told him how it was situated.

"Make your individual note, for one year, without interest, and I will give you a check, payable in gold for that amount."

While I sat gazing upon him in speechless astonishment, he continued:

"You don't remember me; but I remember you. I remember when you were a member of the Superintendent School Committee of Bradford. I was a boy in the village schools. My father was dead; my mother was poor; and I was a shabby clad child, though clean. When our class came out on examination day, you asked the questions. I fancied you would praise and pet the children of rich and fortunate parents, and pass me by.

"But it was not as I thought. In the end you passed by all the others and came to me. You laid your hand on my head, and told me I could do better still if I would try. You told me the way to honor and renown were open to all alike, no one had a free pass. All I had to do was to be resolved and push on. That was the turning point of my life. From that hour my soul has aspired, I have never reached a great good without blessing you in my heart. I have prospered and am wealthy; and now I offer you a poor return for the soul wealth you gave me in that by-gone time."

"I took the check," said Winslow, "and drew the gold, and our house was saved. And where, at the end of the year," he added, "do you suppose I found my note?"

"In possession," he said, with steaming eyes, "of my orphaned and grand daughter. Oh, hearts like that man's are what bring earth and Heaven near together."

AN INCIDENT.—While a Petit Jury was being empaneled, last week, the name of Levi Simmons was called. A yellow man of more than average intelligence (as the sequel will show) presented himself in answer to the call, and desired to be excused from serving as a Juror. In answer to his Honor's question why he desired to be excused, he said, in effect: "Because I am not competent. I can neither read nor write, and know nothing of jury business."

His Honor replied, substantially, (if not in the exact words): "I will not excuse you; you look like an intelligent man; take your seat in the box."

The next time we saw Levi, he was on a jury before which was being tried an old case involving a question of complicity, and some intricate commercial transactions, and in which sundry drafts, acceptances, and accounts, bore a conspicuous part. Let the curtain drop! (Livingston Sauter County) Journal.

Dr. Avert, of Memphis, who was a surgeon in the Confederate army, estimates that the whole number of Confederates killed during the war was 55,773, and including those who died by disease, the number lost was 160,000. He says the whole available force of the Confederates from first to last was 600,000. Mr. George H. Stuart, in a lecture in Philadelphia, on the 14th inst., stated that the number of men enlisted in the Union army during the war was 2,600,055. The number of commissioned vessels was 731, and the number of colored soldiers 178,975. The total number of men in service when Gen. Lee surrendered to Gen. Grant was over a million. The Government spent for the maintenance of the struggle about three thousand five hundred millions of dollars. The cost of the South cannot be computed. The expense of the slave property and the crops which were lost are computed at five thousand millions of dollars in gold. Mr. Stuart states that the proportion of the South for the national debt had now to be paid, and will make a thousand million of dollars, causing the aggregate loss to the South to amount to fully six thousand million dollars.—Nashville American.

The McFarland Case.
Free Love in its Fruition—Decorative, Dissolution and Madness—The Blasphemous Marriage.

As the facts involved in the case of Daniel McFarland, on trial in the court of General Sessions in New York, for the killing of Albert D. Richardson, who had seduced and taken away his wife, and the standing of the parties to the affair, give it a degree of prominence unusual to cases of this character, the following vivid review, embodied in the opening speech of counsel for the defence, will be read with interest:

I propose, gentlemen of the jury, to speak to you with reference to my client's mode of living for a week preceding the homicide. Much of this week he was without the enjoyment of his reason. Some times he was apparently calm. Much of it is today to him a blank. Memory struggles to recall those incidents, and often in vain. Brooding, brooding, brooding! and the mind cowed, rose blacker and thicker and blacker still. Here and there an incident this defendant can recall. The point of the spine of a cathedral seen above the fog that envelops the city, and so many faces hitherto familiar, he was not conscious that he saw them. He visits Woodside, N. J. where Richardson resided, but for what purpose he knows not. He was filled with a wild longing for his wife and children, and home, and the happiness of the past.

He is told Richardson has been recently married, and his excitement becomes terrible. His recollection here is confused. Whether he was armed then he does not know. He is told that his wife obtained a divorce from him in Indiana, and he is mad. The divorce was conceived in fraud, came from the loins of lust, and was brought forth in inquiry. This was the last fatal crushing, mortal blow. The load was too heavy to bear. The mind is more clouded and grows blacker and thicker and blacker still. He goes to his boarding place, but he is heard no more. He tries to sleep but cannot. He springs from his bed and walks the floor in wild disorder—awaiting the approach of day, but it brings no relief. The day and night to him are the same his disordered imagination points out in the air the image of his wife in the embrace of Richardson. He shrieks out, "I see them!" He is told Richardson is about to remove to the West, and says I shall never see them more. One night he finds himself in the street before daylight, drenched with rain, but how he came there he knows not. He determines on gaining possession of his child. "I will come myself, and when I see him I will take him, and I will fight to the death."

He was told that Richardson is armed and that he is a dead shot, and will fire but he heeds it not. On the 26th of November, 1869, half an hour before the homicide, he is on the street. A friend, startled by his appearance, accuses him but he knows him not. In the air before him he sees the semblance of Richardson, and his wife in her seducer's embrace, and his little boy stolen from him. Inexorable fate directs his steps. He stops at the Tribune office. He is standing at the desk scribbling incoherently on a struggling piece of paper. "I saw suddenly two eyes looking on me like those of a demon. I recollect nothing else but the report, the noise, and finding myself on the street." By and by he is arrested; he is told that Richardson has been shot. "My God! it must have been me. No, it was not. Yes, it must have been."

There was but one thing left to crown this infamy—the Astor House marriage. It was a fitting close to this fearful tragedy. It surpasses in its violation of all laws, human and divine, all that preceded it. A woman, covered by the flimsy and ragged veil of a fraudulent and illegal divorce, is guilty of thus consummating blasphemy and sacrilege, committed in the name of religion. Angels wept, and devils laughed, as the benediction was pronounced upon that union, and that benediction a blasphemy before God, pronounced by one who professes to be a Minister of the Gospel—the Reverend J. B. Frothingham, and who insulted both God and man with his, "We thank Thee, O God, for what these two have been to each other."

DAY OLD NIGER DICKINSON.—Mr. Dickinson, a colored barber in a large New England town, was shaving one of his customers, a respectable citizen, when a conversation occurred between them, respecting Mr. Dickinson's former connection with a colored church in that place.

"I believe you are connected with the church in Elm street, are you not, Mr. Dickinson?" said the customer.

"No, sah not at all."

"What are you not a member of the African church?"

"Not this year, sah."

"But why did you leave their communion, Mr. Dickinson, if I may be permitted to ask?"

"Well, I will tell you, sah," said Mr. Dickinson, strapping a concave razor on the palm of his hand, "it was just like this: I joined ten dollars toward the stated gospel of this year, and the church people call me brudder Dickinson; de second year my business was not so good, and I give only five dollars. Dat year de people call me Mr. Dickinson. Dis razor hurt you, sah?"

"No, sah not at all."

"Well, sah, the third year I feel berry poor and sickness in my family and I didn't give nuffin for preachin'. Well, arter dat dey call me ole nigger Dickinson, and I left 'em."

H. G. talks in connection with the proclamation of the acceptance by the Southern States of the reconstruction acts. Accepted? When and how? Let it go upon record that they never consented. Nothing got the color even of consent but such a direct application of actual, brute, physical force as would today make Horace Greely write an article in favor of the reopening of the African slave trade.

A KU-KLUX OUTRAGE.—The Legislature of Pennsylvania has divorced a couple because the man had negro blood in his veins. Where is Congress? Will it stand this Ku-Klux outrage?—[Augusta Constitutionalist.]

On calmly looking over the whole field, and considering the advantages and disadvantages of each, the Tuskegee News is convinced that Gen. John T. Morgan, of Selma, is the most available man the Democracy could select for Governor.

FACTORY.—Mr. G. F. Odion, a gentleman from New York, was in our town on yesterday, looking for a site for a steam saw mill and saw and blind factory. Maj. Rand of Bridgeport with Mr. Odion were recently establish a large steam saw mill and manufactory of the kind above mentioned, in Gadsden, thereby adding forty or fifty to the population of our town. We say, hurry up the work.

DR. JOHN BULL'S Great Remedies.

DR. JOHN BULL'S, MANUFACTURER AND VENDOR OF THE Celebrated.

Smith's Tonic Syrup!

AGUE AND FEVER,

OR CHILLS AND FEVER.

THE proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the certain, speedy and permanent cure of Ague and fever, Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and South Western country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that no other medicine will so fully cure the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, it is however prudent, and in every case more certain to cure if its use is continued in small doses for a week or two, after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and longstanding cases. Usually, this medicine will not require any salt to keep the bowels open, and in every case, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of Dr. Bull's Vegetable

Pain-Expeller will be sufficient.

JACKSONVILLE ALA. MAY 21, 1870.

Moore, Jenkins & Co.
It is with more than usual pleasure we invite attention to the advertisement of Moore, Jenkins & Co., of New York, as this firm is by far the largest exclusive Southern Grocery House in New York, and is more widely and favorably known throughout the South than any other firm is further the oldest Southern (dry) House in the City, others having imitated their title to seniority by suspension during and immediately after the war. Two members of the firm, Messrs. Moore & Hughes are Southern men, and Mr. Hughes had the honor of serving in the Confederate Army under Gen. Lee. One may say that such consideration as these men do not enter into business. Perhaps they do not; but that is no reason they should not. We are sure that men who sympathized with us during the struggle and who were prompt to extend credit to impoverished Southern Merchants after the war, deserve more of our consideration, than those who sat up and cursed us for "rebels" during that time, and closed their stores against us when we sorely needed credit. In our prosperity let us remember those who remembered us in poverty. First among these stands the firm of Moore, Jenkins & Co.

Geo. S. Ruble.—In another column will be found the advertisement of Geo. Ruble, of Chattanooga. Mr. Ruble probably the largest dealer in his line in the South. His establishment at Chattanooga is simply immense and his facilities for shipment better than at any other point. Some in this section lay of Mr. Ruble, that to such we refer all farmers and others who may need something in his line, and who does need something in his line? It is common sense with the wants of humanity. We do not know of anything outside the Dry Goods and Grocery line at Mr. Ruble cannot furnish from a team engine, inclusive of the best and cheapest fire-proof safes in the world, to a wonderful patent spinning wheel or beehive. Chattanooga is now convenient and will be more so on the completion of the railroad from here to Gadsden, and the S. R. & D. R. R. to Jackson. The Chattanooga merchants are the most liberal advertising men we know of doing more out from home than Rome and Eliza combined, and ergo they are the men to deal with. Lay this down as a maxim. A liberal advertiser is the most useful man with his customers.

It was with pleasure we met day-before yesterday George Byron, of Chattanooga, the clearest Englishman and Merchant alive. With the foresight characteristic of Chattanooga merchants, he is taking out for the trade of this section, which is soon to flow to that town. We mention the firm of Byron & Bohr, to whom we want anything in his line.

We notice from a circular issued by J. D. Draper, Son & Co., that their terms henceforth will be CASH. As they are required to pay cash for their goods, they are compelled to adopt this measure. The move is a good one.

To receive a present is always agreeable, not so much on account of the intrinsic worth of the present, as the evidence carried with it of the good will of the donor. To be remembered by an ever-ready and much esteemed gentleman as Montgomery Bros., is particularly agreeable. Lately we have been indulging in some of their excellent canned goods, Salmon &c., which we assure you as relished the more highly, coming from this neat establishment. The fruits of fish are elegant, as is everything else you have and we want everything you go to get off and buy some of them.

Some time ago we mentioned painted coffee as being in town. We since learn that coffee dealers there is no such thing as painted coffee, but the green stain is onto it by its remaining on the tree along as Cotton turns yellow by remaining on the stalk too long. It is only inferior, not painted coffee.

The Democratic Central Executive Committee have called a meeting of the State Committee the 23rd of this month.

Rev. S. M. Monk, will on the third Sabbath in June, preach at Scott's meeting house 4 miles north of Jacksonville.

It is with the deepest regret we announce the death of Mr. W. A. King, a married resident among us.

Mr. King died of consumption, contracted in the service of the Confederate Army during the war. He was an officer and a soldier in that army, and has just paid the price of his devotion to his fortunate country. Though comparatively a stranger, his death has cast a gloom over our entire community and his loss is the heartfelt sympathy of every one. He was buried yesterday.

HO-HO-HOES.
Farmers are invited to call and examine the large stock of HOES at MONTGOMERY BROS., which they are selling at cheap prices.

CROSS PLAINS, ALA. April 20, 1870.

At a meeting of the teachers and pupils of Cross Plains Institute, on motion of the principal, Maj. Bailey, Rev. P. M. Treadway was called to the chair and Mr. Thos. Tracey requested to act as secretary. The committee pointed to prepare appropriate resolutions in regard to the death of one of the pupils reported the following, which were unanimously adopted: Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God, in his infinite wisdom, to take from our midst our beloved schoolmate, Miss Sophia C. Ledbetter, Therefore, Resolved 1st. That while we deeply deplore her absence among us, we feel that our loss is her eternal gain, and we bow in humble submission to the will of Him who "doeth all things well." Resolved 2nd. That in the death of Miss Sophia, the school has lost one of its ornaments, the pupils an affectionate friend, the church a true & pious member, and her parents a dutiful and affectionate daughter. Resolved 3d. That out of respect for the dead and sympathy with the bereaved, we will suspend the regular sessions of the Institute for this day and attend the funeral, and that we will wear the usual badge of mourning. Resolved 4th. That a copy of the proceedings of this meeting be furnished to the Jacksonville Republican for publication, and that a copy be sent to the afflicted family.

RAILROADS BUILT IN 1869.—During the year 1869 there were built in the United States 6,588 miles of railroad—nearly twice as many as in any previous year. Three hundred now are projected or under contract, which, when completed, will make 15,000 additional miles.

REMEDY FOR POISONS.—If any poison is swallowed, drink instantly a half a glass of cool water, with a heaping teaspoonful each of common salt and ground mustard stirred into it. This vomits as soon as it reaches the stomach. But for fear some of the poison may remain, swallow the white of one or two eggs, or drink a cup of strong coffee—these two being antidotes for a great number of poisons than any other dozen of articles known, with the advantage of their being always on hand; if not, a pint of sweet oil, drippings, melted butter or lard, are good substitutes, especially if they vomit quickly.

WASHINGTON. May 15.—In the Senate, a bill granting the public lands in Alabama to the Decatur and Aberdeen Railroad, passed.

In the House bills were introduced granting lands to the New York and Norfolk Railroad; for the improvement of the Tamboque River; not to exclude women from census Marshals; for constructing a bridge across the Ohio, at Metropolitan, Ill.; and for granting lands for a Railroad from Mississippi to Arkansas River, along 35 parallel.

The House refused to order the Reconstruction Committee to report a bill for general amnesty—vote 51 to 78.

Committees are doing nothing.

Congressman Pierce, from the 5th Missouri District, nominated a negro to West Point.

WISCONSIN. May 15.—A boy dropped a lantern near a leaking barrel of kerosene on the Steamer War Eagle, vessel plying between Milwaukee and St. Paul railway. The oil taking fire destroyed the depot and elevator with contents were consumed. The passengers escaped by jumping in the river. Two lives were lost.

Advantages of Advertising.

Among thorough business men the advantages of judicious advertising are well known and practiced.

If a man has got a good thing—an article of commerce needed by the people, and which he wishes to dispose of let him advertise it by all means. Don't think of waiting for buyers to make the discovery themselves. Thousands of persons who would become your customers don't know that they are in want of the article until they read your advertisement in the news papers.

They read, and instantly they discover that you have precisely what they need, and wonder that they had never thought of the same thing themselves. This portion of the American public not only purchases your goods but whether they express it or not verbally, in their hearts they are very grateful to you for having made a part of your knowledge their property.

The nineteenth century is a busy one—people have little time to think of anything except their own immediate business. They want to read and learn as they run.

A man is suffering perhaps from dyspepsia—in his morning paper he sees a remedy advertised; he doesn't pause to debate and argue the point with the proprietor of that specific remedy; he proceeds to his druggist, and purchases it.

He has obtained a benefit, he is delighted, and recommends the medicine to his neighbors. This advertisement is made known to an hundred or thousand fold velocity. The advertising proprietor is getting rich, because he has been wide-awake, made himself known and felt in the community, and the public is thankful, for it has been benefited. The Journalist is happy—he has been made the channel of communicating useful knowledge, and at the same time you have added a few dollars and dollars to the usually scanty contents of his purse. For editors, like Methodist preachers, are generally poorly paid.

Some business men will say, "I know advertising is a good thing, but I can't afford to advertise." Better say you can't afford not to advertise.

Who are the men that have become millionaires in this country? Look about you, and see who they are? What their business? And how have they succeeded?

The intelligent masses are familiar with their names, without any cataloging them here. They have made their princely fortunes by catering to the wants of the public, and by convincing the public that these wants existed.

If you cannot advertise your goods and wares in all of the papers, want of means, then select certain popular journals within your means, and go into them. Or fix upon some district or State, and go into it. Lay aside a fund every year with which to repeat the operation in another State. This continues until you have compassed the entire ground. This is what I call judicious advertising.

Remember the Scriptures, and don't place your light under a bushel. Let your light shine upon the waters. Let your light shine upon the waters.

The press of America is the great medium through which the people talk to one another. It is the come-what-as-you-will organ of the time—the salt of our country and liberties.

A business man can no more hope to succeed in this age without advertising than he can without eating. The latter is food for your stomach; the former is food for your purse.

There are various channels of advertising—I have tried them all, and think the newspaper the best. It is read and re-read by every member of the family; and by all of the hired help on Saturday night and Sundays. Again, thousands of families bind up their papers into volumes, and years after you have ceased paying for the advertisement it will be giving you a benefit through the wants of the children, grand children and great grand children.

A million dollars a day is the estimated cost of the Indian war which is expected this summer, as a consequence of the inebriate policy so long pursued by the Government. While the corner groceries of a thousand towns and hamlets at the South have been ornamented by swarms of wearers of the blue engaged in the unnamable and not very honorable task of subjugating white men to the dominion of negroes, the homes of the hardy pioneers of the plains have been ravaged by Indians. A timely exhibition of a large portion of the army at the most exposed points of the frontier would doubtless have done something to impress the savages with the policy and necessity of keeping the peace; but the originators of Radicalism have not permitted this, and the consequences of the failure are now in process of development. We notice that the War Department is at length awakening to the late necessity of action. Troops too long kept in idleness in Kentucky have been ordered to the front, and it is to be hoped that some thousands of those hitherto engaged in the reconstruction strategies further South will be speedily removed from that disreputable business, and sent where their services may be of some use in preventing the extermination of white men and women on the frontiers.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A Mammoth Diamond.

The Jacksonville (Illinois) correspondent of the St. Louis Republican says: The noted stone, called the Carson Virginia diamond, is now in this city, and your correspondent has been permitted to see it. Its size is about that of a duck's egg, very heavy in proportion to size, weighing seven ounces. The sides are slightly encrusted with a fine adhering sand, through which the stone glitters. The two ends of the stone have been slightly battered off, and in looking through the ends objects can be seen beyond. If a true diamond, it is certainly the largest in the world.

Alarming Reports About the Crops.

We have heard many reports this season of planters putting everything to the strain in the effort to make large cotton crops, to the total or partial neglect of corn; but we yesterday received reports from the country above, that are really startling, as well as discouraging. An observing and intelligent gentleman and planter, just returned from a visit to the Northern portion of Georgia, informs us that in that region fully thirty per cent. more cotton has been planted this year than last, to the loss of that amount of the corn crop; and that through the country between Atlanta and Columbus, to use his own expressive language, corn enough has not been planted to feed the chickens. We have heard of planters in this vicinity who have large fields of cotton planted and not an acre in corn.

Another gentleman, also a planter and a very intelligent man, informs us that during a trip from this city to Society Hill, Ala., and back, a few days since, he found or heard of only two places where he could have his horse fed on corn, and that at both these places it was shelled corn from a sack. The country is destitute of corn, except what has been lately brought from the West. And yet planters are making cotton the primary object, and corn a crop of small importance.—Ch. Eng.

An eruption of the volcano of Coleraine, in the State of Jalisco, Mexico, commenced on the 20th of February last, and is still belching forth its flames, rocks, minerals, ashes, etc. The noise is like that of thunder claps, and is in quick succession. There are eight craters open. Four of these are conspicuous for their tremendous force. When they belch forth simultaneously, as they often do, the ground for miles around seems to shake as if moved by an earthquake. Volcanoes of flames ascend toward the heavens, and clouds of ashes fill the air, great piles of stone are whirled up by a whirlwind. During the night-time, the scene is awfully grand. Masses of superstitious people gather in the distance, and, looking toward the volcano, plead to St. Peter, Mary, and Joseph for mercy. Artists, savants, and newspaper men from different parts of the Republic are taking sketches & notes of this most unprecedented volcanic eruption.

Flowers.

Flowers, such as the tenderness of God's character. If he had made nothing of this kind, if his works had been for bare utility, and had consisted of coarse and more substantial creations only the tender side of the Divine character would have failed of the revelation it now has in Nature. You can not come across a delicate, trembling flower in the shade of a wood, so small that your foot could crush out its life with one careless step, but you will think how gentle God must be, who has in this flower in its exquisite beauty to live there, and daily cares for it in the regular course of His providence. Following the same idea, the sleep of the flowers touches our sympathies. Many of them at night fold their petals closely together, and, like the darlings of a kind mother, repose trustfully in the care of their Creator. And during the long, dark night, they gather the dew which distill in the quiet air and when day comes, the first beams of the morning fall on millions of glittering drops, and flash back from leaf and bud and petal and glassy blade in such brilliance that the whole waving and nodding field of blooming beauty seems dressed in gems more resplendent than any dreams of oriental magnificence. So it may be with us in the night of this somewhat somber life, we draw to ourselves the dew of heaven, and when eternity fully dawns, the morning light of our Father's love will glance upon these jewels which we have gathered near the cross, and so light them up to cover us with glory.—The Pacific.

In Fayette county, Ala., on or near the line of the Elyton and Aberdeen railroad, there is a bed of stoneblasts, many of which are ten foot square and varying from two to ten inches in thickness. These stones are as smooth as if dressed by a mason, and are ready for use without further dressing.

We are indebted to Hon. Horace Capron, Commissioner of Agriculture, at Washington, for the Monthly Agricultural Report for the months of March and April.

Among a large mass of information the Commissioner has given some rather curious statistics, one of which is a table showing the damage done our wool grow-ers by worthless dogs.

Be kind enough to run your eyes over the handsome half column advertisement of Whisnunt and Driskell in this paper and see if you don't come across a dozen things that you need and "must have." You certainly cannot fail to find something you want, for they have everything that any reasonable person should want. They have a general variety store, where a person can buy everything needed without shopping all around town for them, buying here and there. Their Stock of Groceries is large, select and well assorted. Their Dry Goods establishment embraces all the goods sold in the market, and those of the very best quality at the very lowest prices. Their Stock of Shoes cannot be beaten in Rome, and the prices of some of those ladies Shoes perfectly astonished us. We supposed they cost more in market. And if Messrs. Whisnunt and Driskell have done well in the selection and price of their Stock, they have done better in the selection of Mr. Dave Wakely, as salesman. The ladies particularly speak in the highest terms of the polite treatment received at his hands, and the graceful way in which he displays the Goods. He never tires of waiting on them, and is happy when they come and tax him to show the various articles of beautiful dress goods on the shelves. Mr. John Nesbit, who has been recently employed in the Store, promises in time to make as good a clerk as Mr. Wakely.

We omitted to call the attention of Administrators, Executors and Guardians to the notice of Judge Woods, requiring them to come up promptly and make their partial, annual, or final settlements. We now direct attention to it, and remind parties interested, that a strict compliance with it may save them expense. Remember that delay is dangerous.

We call attention to the enlarged advertisement of G. H. & A. W. Force, Wholesale Dealers in Boots and Shoes, Atlanta Ga.

This House is a very old and respectable one, having done business in Augusta and Atlanta for twenty-five or thirty years.

We have heretofore omitted, through neglect to mention the addition of another mercantile establishment to the business of our town.

Messrs. Kutz & Cypher are the proprietors, and they have a Good Stock, and are remarkably clever gentlemen.

CORRECTION.—In the Sheriff's notice of the Election to be held in this County for the purpose of voting on the subscription to the capital stock of the Enfield, Opelika Oxford and Guntersville Rail Road, the 20th day of June is named. It was a typographical error. The 9th day of June is the time.

CORRECTION.—In the Report of the Sec'y of the Calhoun Agricultural Society, a premium of $30 was offered for the best and a premium of $15 for the second best ear of wheat. It should have been corn instead of wheat.

Some of that awful Ku-Klux Klan and some negroes had a flaky cuff and general rough and tumble time of it a few nights ago. From the scraps of old blue cloth lying around with the loose wool, we judge they must have been disguised in Federal uniform.

Marauders have opened up on the Onuf patches in the Gardens. Some men who have lost vegetables and some who have not, have put Stychnine in some of their onions and other stalehold vegetables and we may expect to see garden beries lying around like old rats in a few days.

The fire company had a meeting on Wednesday night. The whole proceedings evinced a determination on the part of the young men enlisted in the enterprise, to carry it through to success. We have alluded to the benefits flowing from the organization of such a company, in another place.

The Communication on Water Works has been delayed until next week. The communication is well written and deserves the consideration of every citizen of the town. With water from the mountain, the cutting of water from the Spring could be dispensed with, water could be in every chamber in every house in town at comparatively little cost, beautiful fountains and fish ponds could be had in every lower yard without additional cost. Such an arrangement would enhance the property of every man in town. All of which is presented in the communication of "Aqua."

If the Town Council want to be remembered gratefully by a large number of their constituents living in the "flat" they will at once take steps to improve pavements from the foot of the hill far as needed. In rainy weather the alk is impossible for ladies and only the staid men venture out at such places. Sand and gravel is remarkably dry all along the walk, and two hands in a wagon could do the work in a day. Will the council take notice of matter?

Rowan has a beautiful Stock of dogs. The politeness of his Clerks is most pleasing to customers, and his Store Rooms are the admiration of all strangers.

The remains of Pat Claburne, the famous Irish Confederate General, received funeral honors in Memphis, Tenn., on Monday. The fire department, the societies, the Fenians and the ex-soldiers turned out, and the prominent individuals in the session were Jefferson Davis, ex Governor Harris and Gen. Pillow.

They are undoubtedly the best Medicinal Cordial ever offered to the Public!

THEY contain nothing poisonous or injurious to the system, and are composed of entirely vegetable substances. These Bitters make their entry in this country unopposed by any long advertisement, without quills and feathers, since now so frequent throughout the country.

For Lippman's Great German Bitters stand solely on their merits. Their virtues are in the bottle.

In Germany, the home of these Bitters, no household can be found without them. For over a century, since their first introduction in that country, no single article has been found to equal them in their quick and speedy cure of General Debility, Nervous Diseases and Liver Complaints, and in strengthening and appetizing, they are acknowledged by the most eminent German Physicians, to whom these Bitters have been sent, to be the best, purest, and most wholesome preparation, and the most effectual in their cures.

For the married, as well as the unmarried, we advise the timely use of a bottle. It will save you days of suffering, soothe your spirits, and give you health and happiness. LOUISIANA GREOLE

HAIR RESTORATIVE!

The Hair restored naturally to its original color, prevented from falling out, growth increased, and its softness and beauty multiplied.

The Louisiana Greole Hair Restorer keeps the head clean, cool and healthy, moves all diseases of the scalp, keeps it free from dandruff, prevents irritation and itching and is an excellent remedy for nervous and other forms of headache.

The Louisiana Greole Hair Restorer is not a dye, but restores gray hair to its original color by supplying the capillary tubes with natural substances which may not be assimilated from either age or decay. All untimely hair dyes are composed of tartaric acid, destroying the vitality and beauty of the hair and afford of themselves no dressing, but on the contrary make the hair brittle and wiry. The Louisiana Greole Hair Restorer only actually restores the hair and restores the natural color by natural means, but it imparts to it a luxuriant beauty which it can attain by no other method. The Louisiana Greole Hair Restorer is in addition to its many useful qualities, elegantly perfumed and is entirely free from grossness and stickiness, so that the finest linen fabric is not soiled or stained by its use. It contains no poison to kill the hair, but under its continued use, improvement is slowly manifested and it never fails to give the best satisfaction. For sale by Druggists generally. Prepared by J. MANSFIELD & HIGBEE, Memphis, Tenn.
