act of the General State of Alabama, October, 1868. It is in it "It shall be the duty of each county to cause a newspaper in which all notices or public advertisements of any character required by law in this County, shall be inserted, so designated and approved by the judge and for said county." The requirements of said act are probably for Calhoun County heretofore demanded as the official newspaper of Calhoun, as the only newspaper of that character, to be made in and for said county and be published, and until recalled or changed.

JACKSONVILLE, ALA.

Saturday, November 5, 1870.

FOR REPRESENTATIVE,
CAPT. JAMES CROOK.
FOR CONGRESS,
HON. P. M. DOX,
OF MADISON.

Democratic Conservative Nominations.

For Governor,
R. B. LINDSAY, of Colbert.
Lieutenant Governor,
E. H. MOREN, of Bibb.

Attorney General,
J. W. A. SANFORD, of Montgomery.

Treasurer,
J. P. GRANT, of Calhoun.

Secretary of State,
J. J. PARKER, of Monroe.

Superintendent of Education,
JOSEPH HODGSON, of Montgomery.

For Congress,
1st Dist.—J. C. CUMMINS, of Wilcox.
2d — M. B. LINDSAY, of Calhoun.
3d — W. A. HANLEY, of Randolph.
4th — J. G. HARRIS, of Sumter.
5th — P. M. DOX, of Madison.
6th — J. H. SLOSS, of Colbert.

For member of Board of Education,
R. I. HARRISON, of Calhoun.

By Proclamation of Gov. Smith, two boxes must be had and two poll lists kept at the voting places in the NEW COUNTIES.

The ticket for Congress, Member of Board of Education, and for Representative in the General Assembly must be placed in one box and returned to the Judge of Probate of the old county from which that part of the new county in which the election is held was taken.

The ticket for Governor, Lt. Governor, Secretary of State, Treasurer, Attorney General and Superintendent of Public Instruction must be placed in another box and the votes and tickets returned to the Probate Judge of the new county.

Two poll lists must be kept. The one embracing the names of those voting the first named ticket above, must be returned to the Probate Judge of the old county. The other, embracing the names of those voting the second named ticket above, must be returned to the Probate Judge of the new county.

We have sent tickets out to the beat in Etowah which formerly belonged to this county. Our friends in those beats will find it necessary to separate the tickets sent, so as to make two as above directed. Should two boxes not be supplied these beats, the managers should provide that number, and also appoint an additional Returning Officer at each, if one has not already been appointed pursuant to the Governor's Proclamation.

Certain men in Calhoun county (thank Heaven, we have few such) refuse on various frivolous pretenses to register and vote in the present election. They pretend an indifference to politics; but none are looking with keener interest to the contest than they. Now they are astraddle the fence, prepared to fall on the winning side. If the Radicals win, they will be heard whining, "I didn't vote against you—I had nothing to do with the concern." If the Democrats win, they will go grinning around, (none more delighted than they) with this remark, "ready for every honest man who meant this time, didn't we?" Such men as these are the friends of neither party and deserve the contempt of both. They work only for their own selfish ends. Radicals they are prepared to kick you if you fall in the race. Democrats they are prepared to kick you if you are defeated in the contest. Let both parties kick them aside as unwelcome intruders both now and hereafter.

White Men to the Rescue.

We have received the following dispatch from Gen. Canham. Read it and blush ye pretended Democrats who refuse to register and vote the deliverance of your race in South and Middle Alabama.

MONTGOMERY, ALA.
JACKSONVILLE REPUBLICAN:
Negro police are arresting and locking up white girls in this city. Six negroes, with double-barreled guns, arrested last night a young white man, thirty miles from here, and led him, this morning, through the city to jail by a rope, with his hands held behind him.

We appealed to our white brothers of the mountains to give us peaceful deliverance, at the ballot box, on the 8th of November.

J. H. CLANTON.

Patience good friends of the South. The brave men of the mountains are coming. They turn to avenge your wrongs. The 8th will witness your deliverance.

Governor Smith in a recent Circular denies having written a letter to Gov. Yates of Illinois, advising the destruction of Southern property. We think the following correspondence will show that he did.

MONTGOMERY, Oct. 31, 1870.
To Judge John T. Hefflin, Selma:
Did you ever read Gov. Smith's letter to Yates, advising destruction of Southern property? Answer.

J. H. CLANTON.
SELMA, Oct. 31st, 1870.

To Gen. J. H. Clanton:
I read the letter of Gov. Smith to Gov. Yates of Illinois, advising the destruction of Southern property. The paper containing the letter is lost.

A Southern prisoner in a Northern prison, during the war, knowing Judge Hefflin was acquainted with Gov. Smith, sent him a Northern newspaper containing the letter referred to.

Let every Democrat try to make one vote, on the day of election. Every vote made counts two—one off the Radical side and one for the Democrats.

Should Alabama go Democratic as she will, she will not again be reconstructed.

The next Congress will be nearly equally composed of Democrats and Republicans. The Conservative Republicans will vote against further such legislation as we had in the last Congress. The two united can vote down all such inquiries as the past has witnessed in the way of Reconstruction. Many Conservative men have been elected in the recent election in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana &c. in place of such violent and revolutionary Radicals as disgraced our last Congress, and many more will be elected in other Northern States in November. Every Radical elected from the Southern States will vote with the violent and proscriptive wing of the Radical party, for on the continued Reconstruction and harassment of those States depends their existence as a party in the South. Then every Democrat sent from the South is one more to swell the ranks of the Constitutional Democratic and Conservative Republican wing of the next Congress, and one off the proscriptive Radical wing of that Congress. How important then is it that we should not forget our Congressional friends in the recent canvass. Remember that Judge Dox, if elected will vote against further intermeddling with Alabama, if the Democracy carry the State. Remember that Standifer will vote for another Reconstruction of Alabama if the Democrats succeed. This Congressional election is not the least important. Elect Judge Dox.

What has become of Standifer? Has the old wind-blown dandybrain or has the melancholy 10 flow the track; or has he stumbled over that Cherokee conspiracy record and broke his neck? We can hear nothing of him.

P. S. Since the above was written the gentleman has put in an appearance at Jacksonville. "Speak of the devil" &c. We don't know whether he will attempt to enlighten us, in a speech, or not.

The white Radicals of this county still say they are not going to vote for the negroes of the State ticket. What are the negroes going to do about voting for the white Radicals on that ticket? Ask them the question, friends.

About Registration.

In 1870, there was a registration of voters under the Provisional Government of Alabama, preparatory to the election on the adoption of the State Constitution. That registration applied to that election, only; and does not hold good now. Subsequently, (in 1868), there was a registration of voters under an Act of the State Legislature; and that registration is still in effect. Persons who registered then (in 1868) are entitled to vote at the coming election, without registering again. But none are entitled to vote who shall not at the time of offering to vote, have registered since 1867. This of course includes all who have become of age previous to the day of election.

THE RETURNING OFFICER A REGISTRAR.

An Act of Legislature approved March 3d 1870, is further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the returning officer of each election precinct, to attend, on the day of election, at some place designated by the law, and there to receive, and enter on a list, the names of all persons who shall appear to him to be qualified to vote, and in the manner as now provided by law for registration before the probate judge, register the names of all persons who shall appear for registration, and who for any cause shall be refused registration, to return to the probate judge, and such returning officer shall return with the poll list and ballot boxes, the names of all persons so registered by him to the probate judge, who shall add the same to the list of registered voters in his office.

Alec. White's Record.

Alec. White, the present champion of the Radicals, has endeavored to operate upon the prejudices of the old Whig party. Not content with seeing himself, endeavored to ensure and degrade the party that in better times entrusted him with their banner and fought under his leadership. After selling himself to the Radicals, but before proclaiming his conversion to them, he was indicted for treason, he set about his endeavor to bring those who had trusted him into political predicament; and to this work he brought all his cunning and unscrupulousness.

His first step was to write a SECRET CIRCULAR to the old leaders of that party, to meet him in Selma and organize a Union Party. We give it herewith verbatim.

SELMA, ALA., Feb. 25, 1869.

Mr. — Dear Sir: Enclosed I send you a programme which is being sent to prominent men throughout the State, for their consideration, to be followed by a convention of delegates in the near future with a view to organizing again. The old Union Party of Alabama.

With the material of which this is composed you are familiar, and sound progress and safety guidance. Its judgment has been confirmed by a fearful experience; and the wisdom and patriotism which would have guided us safely in the event of its adoption, is now being avoided of our difficulties and troubles.

The late war was a life and death struggle of two great national "ideas" which found definition or centered in the words, "secession" and union.

The concentration of the national mind and action in the issue, and the terrible conflict of arms which grew out of it, would the result correspondingly decisive. Union was the victor and lives in strength; secession was vanquished and withered by restorable, and secession died in the word of the Union, and the only hope of the nation is in the Union.

The very elements of secession are incompatible with the ordained and predestined career of this people, and the effort to retain its principles, even for the sake of modifying and tempering the unyielding and growing spirit of nationhood, is vain, and will only result in injury upon those who attempt it.

The late election illustrates this well. The power of union sustained and carried on to victory one of the most venerable parties that have ever existed in this country, and the mere suspicion of sympathy with secession overwhelmed one of the strongest with defeat. If we could not succeed in 1868, can we ever hope again to succeed, mixed in with the same material and the same issue?

Let us, therefore, have a new start, and let us have a new start of four years longer war with the hope of success in 1872 and the still more absurd hope of then reviewing the course of things for twelve years. In the mean time our people are kept in the same state of ignorance and confusion, and the government, with the spirit of the age, with the march of progress. We are to cultivate bitter feelings, we are to resent, to hate, and to despise, and to destroy, and to close our territory against capital and labor from abroad. The wounds of the war are to become chronic, and hostility between people and people, and among the people themselves, and the long train of social evils, to be our lot. Every step taken in the direction of sustaining or of protecting or shielding secession since the war has only made our condition worse; nor will we be able to rise until we take an opposite direction.

Let us in and harmonize with the great dominant progressive spirit of the age, and in accord with it work out our selves as a people a great future.

The first and principal duty of government is to secure the peace and harmony with the General Government and with our people, and who so fit to adopt union as a principle of political action and as their guide, as the old Union parties of 1860; those who from choice and principle, advocated it in that contest.

That we can accomplish this if we will. I have not a doubt. The Press will make a noise and flutter for a time for the life of the Democratic party, and the good sense of the people will improve and the movement, and then we shall have begun in the right direction to make the best of material we have to work upon and to put our State on the high road to improvement and progress.

THESE ARE THE REASONS THAT I am so desirous of your aid at an early day. Very respectfully your friend and obedient servant,

ALEX. WHITE.

(The italics are ours.)

This document appeared not a response was made. Not one of his late comrades could be found to join him in his treachery. The old Whigs, true to their glorious record for honesty and patriotism, indignantly spurned the insidious sophistry and rounded periods of their would be betrayer. They knew too well that his secret circular meant only that White wanted to put himself into the stronger party. They had seen the puke of death ever follow his clammy touch. They saw him in 1861, a rampant union man; in 1864-5, when the Confederacy was tottering to its fall, they saw him take up arms and denounce as traitors all stay at home. They saw him in the Convention in September 1865 protesting against the ordinance freeing the negro forever. They saw him with his hands open to heaven, and heard his appeals to "touch not, taste not, handle not the undean thing," when the Radical Constitution was submitted to a vote of the people. They heard him in 1868 thunder and light, "this is a man's country and not to be ruled by white men," and they heard him denounce with withering scorn carpet-baggers and scoundrels, and see him now hugging to his bosom the late despised enemies of searwags, and hear him now counselling the freedmen to demand exorbitant wages, and telling them that the white man must consent to their terms. They see him now presenting a bill to the Radical Government, for a bill claiming $2000 for a part in taking a railroad from the management of a man of acknowledged integrity and ability, and putting in the hands of a Radical who is believed, by those who know him, to be utterly corrupt, and is known to be not qualified for the position.

He has proven false to his record; false to his party, to his race, to his country. He has been a constant agent, faithful to a party of traitors, and a traitor to his country and his race. He has been a constant agent, faithful to a party of traitors, and a traitor to his country and his race.

Mr. J. J. Parker did not speak in Jacksonville on Tuesday, according to appointment. He was assured that his time could be more profitably employed elsewhere, as Calhoun was all right any day.

The Mammoth Store of P. Rowan, a few weeks ago was so jammed and crammed with an immense new stock, that we really did not believe he could possibly dispose of them during this season of all things. But we didn't know anything about such things as this. Great quantities have been sold off, and fresh lots received since then; and still they are the secret lies in this. In being for the sale of his goods, nobody else could sell them, but because Mr. Rowan, tried to sell them, he was successful. He made large outlays for the accommodation of consumers, when money was scarce; and now looks for a correspondingly generous behavior on the part of those accommodated since times have grown easier. He like all merchants, has bills to meet, and among merchants no delay is tolerated. Accounts are presented to the day and as promptly met. Why cannot consumers be as prompt? They must, or else be against the merchant that has no account toward. No man has a right to withhold from the market any saleable product, when bills overdue are on the merchant's books against him. The merchant must meet his bills if he has to sacrifice thousands to do it. The consumer should act as strictly honorable, especially when a quick sale of cotton or other product of labor would, in all probability work no loss to him. This much we say in behalf of all our merchants, who have ever been ready to accommodate. We take the case of Mr. Rowan, because he has heretofore advertised for customers to come in and settle; and because yesterday he requested us to pay a line to them telling them of his willingness to pay promptly, and they will be more cheerfully extend your accommodation again when you need it.

Next Wednesday at exactly ten o'clock head will appear upon the streets bearing that remarkable line last presented by E. L. Woodward's Sons. It is of the "Our Fritz" kind. With that hat we are not afraid to face a rainy world. The old white hat (not grey) will be laid aside and the new cap, boots shoes and dress goods. A GOOD VARIETY OF LADIES AND MISSES' SHIRTS.

Sugar, Coffee, Candles, Canned Oysters, Canned Sardines, SALT, GUNS, PISTOLS, IRON, HARDWARE, CUTLERY, CARPENTERS' TOOLS, SHOVELS, FORKS, BAGGING AND TIES, WASHING MACHINES, WHEELER & WILSON'S SEWING MACHINES, on easy terms, good lot of Henslock Leather, Bridles, Saddles, and a great many articles not named.

We have a larger and more complete stock than ever before; and are better prepared to supply the wants of the people, than ever before. Come and see what great bargains can be had for CASH.

MY WIFE LUCY.

To begin with—she was pretty. I don't know where to show you another just like her. She was well-rounded in figure, with a fair face, golden hair, and soft, white hands. She had brown eyes, regular features, and a noble, red lips. On a rainy day, certain fine tresses of her shining hair would escape from the remainder, and curl about her temples in little gold tendrils. Her voice was quiet and melodious, and she wore violet dresses. This as well as I can describe her.

And I am afraid this is about all I know of her when we were married. We first met in Devonshire. I was alone in a strange place. She was an orphan, and a teacher in a boarding school. She was gentle and sad. I made her acquaintance, and I loved her. I promised to make her happy, and we were married.

My south-western tour being ended, we came and settled at Kensington. We had been married just a year when my story commenced.

I was young, just starting in life, and very much engaged in my mercantile business. Neither was I a particularly demonstrative man, and as Lucy was very quiet and composed in mind, I hardly appeared like newly-married people.

I had all confidence in my wife. It was her neatness, frugality, and good judgment that won me, as well as her beauty. All home affairs—the hiring of servants, the domestic arrangements, household bills—I left entirely to her management. It was a great rest to leave my counting-house, and turn homeward, I was sure of finding everything right. If Lucy had any anxiety, I never thought of her business-troubles.

As I said, we had been married a year, when one evening, I came home as usual. It had been a fine day, but as I left the train, a great drop of rain signified before me, and commenced the task rather briskly.

The rain came down smartly as I reached my garden-gate. As I entered the sitting-room, I found Lucy hurriedly putting away some papers from the west. You had better shut the parlor windows, Lucy," I said.

"Yes, Will," she replied, absently, running in a drawer. The storm struck sharply against the panes. She went and shut the parlor windows, and then came back to the drawer.

When she had looked the drawer through, she overlooked the table, and finally went to the east window. "What are you hunting for, Lucy?" said I.

"Never mind," she said, carelessly; "dinner is ready, Will." We went to the dining room. She chatted of her garden, and the incidents of the day. She had planted nasturtiums under the windows, that its fragrance might come to her as she was working, she said. The Misses Granger had called, and the man had been to see the piper trees. Pleasant, ordinary talk, that suggested nothing of the mystery to me.

The rain continued all night, but the morning was clear. I felt myself a very happy man as I stepped from my door into the sunny air. The birds were in blossom, and the crocuses filled the whole garden with their fragrance. I walked bravely down the path, untroubled the gate and went out.

A few steps distant, under the garden wall, lay a sheet of paper. It looked like some one's that should not have been there, and I went and picked it up. It was a single square sheet of unruled paper, and the handwriting upon it was my wife's. As I looked at it, a word here and there caught my eye. With arrested attention, I commenced a careful examination of the sheet. With some difficulty I read as follows:

"My dearest Lucy— Your entreaties, and my own heart, will no longer allow me to remain silent. My beloved, I am so indebted to the claudes letters of yours which I receive are my only comfort in the world. I feel on them—like on them. They are the only brighteners which illumine my dark day. My life is almost unportable. You know that I do not love my husband—that I never loved him. You, only, know the whole array of circumstances under which I married him. Well, he is my husband now, and I try to be a good wife; but this expectation is some dreadful nightmare dream, Percy. It does not seem as if it could become who lives, and breathes, and answers to my name. I am so desolate and depressed—so despairing! I have the feeling sometimes that I am under a spell, and my faculties are paralyzed, and that I shall lose my mind in this dull, evil living. (only when your letters come, I am alive. I feel that you love me, and I live and feel, and am exquisitely happy and miserable—both together.)

"My husband loves me as I perform my daily duties, he is contented. He knows nothing of my feelings. He considers me a machine for his comfort. Sometimes I loathe him. Usually, I am indifferent to him.

"But, tonight, it seems almost as if I dared escape to you. Freedom, love, happiness—oh, may it still be mine! The long, long, I will grant you an interview. I will promise you nothing more than that now. Percy, my dear, my heaven-blessed and keep me until we meet.

"One word more. I may be cautious, but my husband should discover this correspondence. I cannot answer for the consequences. Though he has never ill-treated me, I know him to be a heartless man. But let him know your own, Lucy."

The name was illegible, for the sheet was much discolored and blotted by the rain. But it was Lucy's fine, delicate handwriting, and I felt as if a delicate bolt had been hurled around me.

After a moment's blank bewilderment, and strange, bewildering pain, I put the sheet in my pocket, and quietly continued my way. Such a flood of emotion was stirred within me, that I summoned a supernatural calmness from an instant of self-preservation.

I was conscious of one predominant feeling as I went to the City—hated against my wife for her duplicity. I must have looked wretchedly when I reached the office, but my partner was too much excited to notice it.

"Know," he exclaimed, "there was a terrible fire in Birmingham last night, and our branch house is burned to the ground. Here is a dispatch from White. He wants you to run down immediately."

In two hours I was on my way to Birmingham. There was much to do to restore our interests, and I lent myself to the work with all my energies. It was the last thing that could have happened to me. It gave me no time to think of Lucy.

I wrote her once, telling her, very briefly, that I should not be home in a month. It was six weeks before I again arrived in London.

"How is Mrs. Knowles?" I said to the servant.

"Very comfortable. I think she is sleeping now."

Somewhat bewildered by the reply, I went into the sitting room. No sign of Lucy or of her work, I murmured to the chamber, and quietly opened the door.

The room was darkened. Lucy was sitting up in the white bed, nursing an infant. Sweetly and calmly she extended her hand to me. I went to her—I put my arm about her—I kissed her. I could not help it, for I felt that the child upon her bosom was my own. The nurse came in, took the infant from her, and laid her down to rest.

She was very weak. I cannot express my contending feelings as I watched her fragile face upon the pillow.

Slowly she gained strength. It was midsummer before she was about the house again. The little one had been prematurely born, but it thrived, and the mother's health was finally restored. I was rejoiced at this. I should have been perfectly happy but for that letter. The memory of it was like an ugly devil who mocked me.

One day, as Lucy sat tending her child, in a low chair, by the window, I laid the sheet before her. I had fixed my eyes upon her face, and saw a slow surprise dawn upon it.

"Where did you find this, Will? I lost it months ago."

"Under the garden wall. What does it mean, Lucy?"

"Well, with a slight blush, 'you have found me out. It's a lead from a story I was writing.'"

And Percy—I said bewildered. "Was the hero. The sheet must have blown out of the window, that rainy night, last spring. You, dear, I didn't like to find you writing a literary life; but I have been accustomed to writing little stories sometimes; and when I knew you were coming, I thought I would earn the money myself for the cable-ties dress."

I knew you needed every shilling in your business. I had to rewrite this letter for my romance," she continued; "and I didn't get it quite the same," explaining the sheet.

I looked at her sweet face for a moment, and then fell down on my knees beside her. I confessed all. Show amazement dawned in her countenance. At length her soft eyes filled with tears. She drew my face down to the bosom where the little babe was slumbering.

"Another lover?" she murmured. "Why, Will, nobody but you ever loved me to all my life!"

Then, again, I knew that she was once more my Lucy!

A Game of Poker on the Cars. A traveling correspondent of the Courier-Journal tells the following story of a game of railroad poker he saw played recently:

We were soon overtaken by the appearance of a Cincinnati sport on route for the springs, and a Louisville clothier going to New Orleans, who began to play a lively game, twenty-five cents into, and no limit at all. Our sympathies were soon arrayed on the side of Louisville, who played a square game, and against Cincinnati, who rung in all the foul tricks he knew. Louisville was a little dark-haired, bright-eyed man, a German and a Jew, but as honest as a Cincinnati was a big, red-faced, mustachio, pretty sharp, and thoroughly unscrupulous.

When Cincinnati had won about three hundred dollars, one of us took Louisville aside and told him what was going on, while another stuck an ace up one sleeve and a king up the other.

"Now," said they, "she has been cheating you from the first, and if you want to get even, you must do as we tell you."

Louisville said he would. They told him to wait until he got two aces or two kings; then to feel down one of the old cards from his sleeve, and "go in."

The very next hand he got four kings. They began to bet. Cincinnati saw his loss and went five. Louisville went fifty better. Cincinnati raised him a hundred. Louisville came to time and added a fifty to it. Cincinnati responded and put on a hundred more. Louisville said, "I'm in," and called him. There were nearly seven hundred dollars on the table, and Cincinnati laid four aces. Louisville raked the money in his lap and laid down five kings.

"Why," says Cincinnati, "that's barefaced swindling."

"Swindling? No damn," says Louisville. "It's not swindling at all, damn it. I'm in, Israel," says a voice.

"Well," says Cincinnati, rising. "I think I'll just fight on that."

"Oh my Abnegator says another voice.

But little Louisville rose up, and poking out his neck and hands as far as they could reach, he says: "Fight, is it? Fight? By God, I fight you mit de bowie knife, mit de pistol, mit de derring-dog, mit de Colt's navy, mit de gun, mit de sword, mit de cannon, or mit de damn'd old musket mit de bayonet. I fight you mit anything, an' I fight you right now. Vich you choose?"

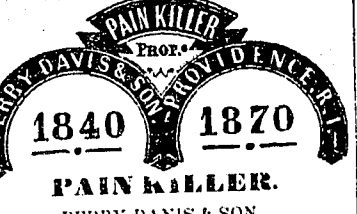

Cincinnati concluded he wouldn't fight. He said the crowd was against him, declared he couldn't get fair play, and got off at the next station.

Perkins will get tight occasionally, much to the astonishment of himself and friends.

"For years," says he, "it was unaccountable to me, for I never did drink but a mouthful or two; and the cause never did strike me until I measured my mouth and found that it held a pint."

The next earthquake will come off in Alabama on the 8th of November. The shock will last all day, and will alarm the Radicals, astonish the negroes, and shake all of the sealwags and carpet-baggers out of their offices.

The 8th of November will soon roll around, and then the Radicals will have to "roll out," if there is any virtue in the majority of Democratic votes that will be cast in the election on that day.

MAGIC ARNICA

LINIMENT

WILL CURE PAINS AND ACHES IN FIVE MINUTES.

Prepared from pure Essential Oils, Extract of Camphor, Extract of Arnica, Chloroform and Alcohol, chemically combined.

The Magic Arnica Liniment is one of the most powerfully penetrating oils known. It is so rapid in its action, that it is immediately absorbed, and a clear, transparent, ruby colored fluid, which when applied, promptly penetrates through skin and muscles to the very bone itself, striking at the root of the disease and instantly relieving all pain. In cases of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Bites, Cramps, swellings, and in fact, all classes of diseases that can be reached by external treatment, this liniment will be found efficacious. In Rheumatism it acts promptly, killing the pain in one or two applications, and when used in connection with Manfield & Higgins' Great Internal Remedy, the RHEUMATIC COMPOUND, it will effect a CURE.

Horse and Cattle Liniment. It is unsurpassed, curing where other liniments fail. A striking evidence of this is its unparalleled success when used in the treatment of Chloroform or Erysipelas in Horses or Mules—a disease which at one time threatened to destroy all the stock in the Mississippi Valley. The Magic Arnica Liniment was the only remedy that was found to cure in all cases.

With every bottle will be found a circular containing specific directions for using. For sale by Druggists and Dealers everywhere.

armed force present on them. This produced the desired effect, and in ten or fifteen minutes there were but few negroes left.

Fortunately for all the affair terminated without further bloodshed. We have no reliable understanding as to the cause of the difficulty between Baxter and the negro that lead to the homicide, but it is stated that the negro had been seeking the whole day to have a difficulty with Baxter. Unfortunately for him Baxter, and the community, it occurred

We have never, since our residence in Selma, witnessed such scenes as took place on ye-today, and we pray God we may be spared a repetition of them.

We have not heard, at the time we write, whether any arrests have been made, but presume there has.

The negro Granger was killed instantly and Bexter is yet alive, but this in the most critical condition, and his recovery is scarcely to be hoped for.

The ringleaders and inciters of the of the officers of the law must be arrested and be brought to justice, and it behooves the city authorities to take more effective measures to preserve the peace, or we may have, at no distant day, to record a bloody massacre. It is due to the forbearance of the white people that these scoundrels be punished. There can be found if proper efforts are made.

We are informed that the police force did all they could to deter the mob; but character was powerless. There should be able man to devise means to preserve the peace, for nothing could be more disastrous to us now than riot and bloodshed. We beseech and counsel our people to act advisedly and not hastily. Let the law be respected, and in the midst of unparalleled trials, let it not be said unjustly, that we were the least in the wrong. We have borne much, let us bear a little more.

Just before seven this morning, Henry Butcher, a negro servant at the residence of Mr. Adolph Fiske, shot and killed a German servant girl named Lena Schwarzbach. From the evidence before the coroner it appears that his first intention was to shoot Miss Lily Fiske, who suspected his intention, and with much presence of mind made some movement which disconcerted him; at the water, he at once turned and shot back through the beam. The ball entered over the right eye. She died in an hour. It now appears that Henry, who is an old servant to Mr. Flake and formerly belonged to Dr. Dutcher, is a Voodoo devotee of the religion of Africa. Every morning on rising he makes his orisons to the sun and has been noticed drumming in an unusual and singular manner. When Lem was shot, Miss Flake fled to the beach and to the street.

Another dark colored servant entered the room a few minutes after, and found Henry bathing the face of the murdered girl. In response to the old woman's screams, he told him to be quiet, that "it had to be done."

"The verdict was that the decessed came to her death by means of a pistol shot, by the hands of Henry Butcher."

We are informed by the police that the Voodoo, or Fetish faith, if it may be dignified by such a name, prevails among persons of color, and that many white

In New Orleans the police have done much to break up their meetings, but Budini, the city marshal, says that very many of the prisoners, both white and black, whom his officers search, are found possessed of "Voodoo charms."—The examination of Henry will take place at 10 o'clock on Friday, before Justus Johnson. The charitable opinion is that the man is religiously insane, but the fact is that when brought to the office the police he told a story that was true. He said that the shooting was accidental; that the pistol lay between

"The Republican party could not be spared; the nation needs it yet." Not for what? To legislate against the negro for the benefit of the few? To throw away the balance of the public domain to send military into the Southern States to coerce citizen into voting for railroad monopolists? To violate our constitution? To centralize power at Washington? To demoralize and corrupt the nation? These are national deeds. The Republican cannot be spared. — Nashville (Tenn.)

From the San Francisco Bulletin Oct 11
An Eventful Bridal Tour—
Captured by Pirates and Rescued only to be Shipwrecked.

Among the passengers who arrived in the city on board the steamer Colorado, on Sunday, were A. Mejia and his wife. Senor Mejia is the son of the Mexican minister of war under the Juarez government, and during the war with the French held the position of paymaster of the military division of the west, and was located at Guaymas. He was married a few months ago, at Guaymas, to Miss Connor, daughter of the late American consul at that place. It was the design of the newly-married couple to pay a visit to the City of Mexico, but a few days after the marriage took place the pirates of the steamer Forward made their appearance, and for a short time carried everything with a high hand. Among others, they carried off the bride and groom, and the bridegroom's father, who they carried off to the mountains of Simol. Vega, who was the head of the piratical movement, demanded a ransom of $70,000 for the release of his prisoner, and threatened to kill him if the money was not paid. Information of this demand reached the father of the prisoner. He instead of paying down the coin secretly organized a small force of picked men, and penetrated the mountain region, where his son was detained. They then attacked a guard of seven men, killed five of them and wounded the other two, and rescued young Mejia from imprisonment. They lost one of their own men in the attack. After the husband joined his wife at Guaymas they found it difficult to get to Acapulco. In order to accomplish this object they embarked on the steamer Continental for this port, intending to take the next Panama steamer. They were both saved from the wreck, and reached this city in safety, having lost all their baggage and personal property. Since arriving here they have made up their minds to go overland to New York, and sail from that port to Vera Cruz. They will keep a sharp lookout for ruffians and accidents, earthquakes, and first-class disasters on the route.

The Reason For It.

A Texas paper reports that the Indians are again on the war-path, and that several times within a fortnight have they killed stage coaches, and been murdering the drivers, have cut the throats of the few soldiers who ride beside the coaches as a guard. And the paper asks, Why will not the Government send soldiers enough to protect us against these red devils? The New York Democrat says: The reason is plain to people hereabouts. There is work for our soldiers to do here. This true there are no Indians here to murder families, run off stock, and rob stage coaches, but there is the blood-thirsty democracy that seems bound to cast its vote at the election whether the Government wishes it or not. And to prevent this hostile body of men from committing this during the election, the "horse, foot and artillery" of the best government is concentrated at New York, or elsewhere from fields where they might render service to persecuted sections, to guard people that pay taxes to furnish them with the very hardware they eat. That is the reason the people of Texas are not protected from the Indians.

One of the reasons named for the election in Providence, R. I. put down on his list were the names of two children, and against the first he designated Providence as his birthplace. The officials in Washington sent the list back to have deficiency accounted for. What they wanted to know was where the other twin was born.

West Virginia.

The news from West Virginia is startling. The Democracy there have achieved a victory that was beyond the expectations of the most sanguine. The Republicans walk out and the Democrats walk in. The Republican two-thirds majority is to be a Democratic two-thirds majority, the Republican Governor is to be a Democratic Governor, the Republican Congressmen are to be Democratic Congressmen and the Republican Senator is to be a Democratic Senator. It has been a clean sweep and a glorious one. The blow fell with terrible force. The Republicans had not expected it, and, coming on the top of Indiana, it tells of a ground swell that shall wake the nation.

Courier Journal.

The Lee (Massachusetts) Gleaser gives currency to a rumor that a man in Otis, whose wife had long suffered with a running sore upon her leg, became tired of listening to her griefs and caring for her diseased member, and so he bound the woman upon a bench and with a butcher-knife and band saw cut her leg off. Of course he knew nothing of taking up bleeding arteries, and death soon came to the relief of the sufferer. He then took the body in a wagon to Lee for burial, arriving at the cemetery late at night he laid it upon the ground, covered it up, and left it till the next day for burial.

SHOOTING AT COURTLAND, ALA.

Two White Men Shot by a Drunken Negro Accidentally.

From a letter received by the Appeal, dated Courtland, Alabama, October 29, we learn that two gentlemen were accidentally shot by a drunken negro who attempted to dismount from his horse with his gun in hand, but being in a beastly state of intoxication, he made some kind of movement that cocked his gun, and fired into a crowd of gentlemen sitting in front of E. J. Pippin & Co's drug store. Fortunately, only two of them were shot, one James Nellums, seriously in the foot, nearly the whole foot going there, the other Mr. Ed. Shackelford, very slightly in the foot. The negro was not arrested. It is truly wonderful that some of the gentlemen were not killed.

ENFORCED VOLUNTARY CONTRIBUTIONS.—The Southwestern says: As our readers know, it is the practice of the Radical leaders to levy contributions upon the employers and clerks of the different Departments to assist in carrying on the campaign. They are not, in so many words, threatened with the loss of situation if they refuse, but it is perfectly understood that such will be the result.

The Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun aptly illustrates the attitude of Secretary Cox with respect to these collections by the following incident, related in Gil Blas:

"I looked about to see what was the matter, and perceived upon the ground an old hat, turned up; at the same time I heard a lamentable voice pronounce the words: 'Mr. Traveler, for God's sake have pity on a poor man's soldier; drop, if you please, a few bits into the hat, and you shall be rewarded in heaven.' I turned my eyes immediately on the side from whence the voice issued, and saw, at the root of a bush, about twenty or thirty paces from me, a kind of soldier, who, upon two cross sticks, supported the barrel of a carbine, in my apprehension, longer, than a pike, with which he seemed to take aim at me. At this apparition, which made me quake, I stopped short, and pocketing my ducats in a great hurry, took out some coins, approached the hat that was exposed for the reception of expropriated charity, and dropped them into it, one after another, that the beggar might see how nobly I had acted. He was satisfied with my bounty, and gave me a benediction for every kick that I bestowed on the sides of my mule in order to get out of his reach."

To those Who Use Salt.

General James Wells showed, in one of his reports that on a cargo of salt costing in Liverpool $24,337—the duty in gold was $11,419, and premium on the gold 4,334—making $20,000 for the salt, or increasing its cost to the importer when landed in an American port more than three fold. You, tax-eaters sons of bitches, in Alabama, black and white, see one of the ways in which this good Radical fisherly Yankee steals out of your pockets. You blind asses. Why, the way to ruin these Radical candidates for Attorney General in the State, and to put into the law books of the negroes, is to make to the way in which the Radical party is rubbing the Salt Tax into the raw back of every poor man of the South, white and black. And yet, on the 8th of next month a few corrupt, dishonest white men in the State of Alabama are going to propose a fair deal of white men and a great many debased black men to vote for Smith and Morse & Company, the racist and lobbyist, and tail-end of the meanest, dirtiest, most corrupt and shameless party that ever disgraced a civilized, civilized country.—Huntsville Independent.

The Election in South Carolina.

The Columbia (S. C.) correspondent of the New York World, in describing the late so-called election in South Carolina, says:

"The result is the actual subversion and destruction of the franchise in South Carolina. On the seaboard and islands the negroes, in savage crowds, held the ballot-boxes, and remanded them with the Radical tickets, and sent them to the polls. The negroes were even more violent than the white men, and with arms in hand, these brutal mobs attacked, beat and drove off every man, white or black, who showed or tried to vote the Reform ticket. In the white counties the negro militia did not even receive, and although negro laws from fifteen to twenty years of age were sent to vote, no white man ventured to challenge them. Not only minors, but felons, well-known convicts for burglary, grand larceny, &c., voted, and repeated often enough to count from five to ten votes each. The Conservative negroes only exhibited their sentiments passively, by staying away from the polls. In the upper counties, where the white population is in the confidence, the people were governed by Grant troops, in addition to Scott's negro militia. The law of violence and intimidation controlled everywhere; savage negro mobs of the seaboard, negro militia in the middle country, and negro militia and United States troops in the upper country. It is ridiculous to call this an election."

No MONEY.—The Union League League box it appears, has been standing on the club room table for many days, but the money for the election does not come in. Leading Republican merchants and bankers, and although negro laws from fifteen to twenty years of age were sent to vote, no white man ventured to challenge them. Not only minors, but felons, well-known convicts for burglary, grand larceny, &c., voted, and repeated often enough to count from five to ten votes each. The Conservative negroes only exhibited their sentiments passively, by staying away from the polls. In the upper counties, where the white population is in the confidence, the people were governed by Grant troops, in addition to Scott's negro militia. The law of violence and intimidation controlled everywhere; savage negro mobs of the seaboard, negro militia in the middle country, and negro militia and United States troops in the upper country. It is ridiculous to call this an election."
