A Lament.

Dedicated to a ruling man whose lady-love had been snatched from his wonted embrace and delivered by death into the bosom of the dark cold grave.

BY HUDLEY WILLIAMS, M. D.

There is a voice I hear no more,
There are tones whose music for me is o'er!
Sweet as the odors of Spring were they—
Precious and rich, but they died away;
They came like peace to my heart and ear—
Never again will they murmur here.
They have gone like the blush of a Summer's morn,
Like the crimson cloud through the sunset bourne.

There were eyes that late were lit up for me,
Whose kindly glance was a welcome to see;
They revealed the thoughts of a trusting heart,
Untouched by sorrow, untaught by art;
Whose affections were sweet as a stream of Spring,
When birds in the vernal branches sing;
They were filled with love that hath passed with them,
And my lyre is breathing their requiem.

I remember a brow whose serene repose
Seemed to lend a beauty to cheeks of rose;
And lips I remember whose loving smile,
As I mused on their heavenly power the while;
Sent a thrill to my bosom and blest my brain,
With raptures that never may dawn again,
Midst accents of music those smiles were shed,
Alas, for the doom of my loved one dead.

Alas for the turf that is resting now
On those slumbering eyes on that withered brow;
Alas for the rose that has ceased to bloom,
For the lips that are mute in the noiseless tomb—
Their melody broken—their fragrance gone—
Their aspect cold as the Parian stone,
Alas, for bright hopes that with thee have died,
Oh! loved one, would I were by thy side.

Yet the sweetness of grief it is mine to bear,
I catch thy voice in the twilight air;
Thy smile of richness untold I see,
When the pictures of evening are borne to me,
Thy kiss on my dreaming lips is warm,
My arm embraceth thy yielding form,
Then I wake to a world that is cold and drear;
To feel in my bosom, thou art not here.

Oh! once the summer to me was bright,
The day like thy face wore a holy light;
There was bliss in existence while thou wert nigh—
There was joy in the twilights rosy sigh,
Then earth was an Eden, and thou its guest,
A Sabbath of blessings dwelt in my breast;
My heart was full of a sense of love,
Likest of all things, to heaven above.

Now thou art laid in that voiceless hall,
Where my budding raptures have perished all
In that tranquil and holy place of rest;
Where the earth lies damp on the sinless breast,
Thy bright looks, all in the vault are hid—
Thy brow is concealed by the coffin-lid;
All that was lovely to me is there—
Mournful is life and a load to bear.

TORNADO IN TENNESSEE.

Damage to Property In and Around Nashville—Telegraph Lines Prostrated—Reported Loss of Life.

NASHVILLE, TENN., April 15.—A tornado passed over and through this city from west to east at half-past twelve o'clock this morning, doing an immense amount of damage. It struck the city at the fair grounds, passing diagonally through the city and out by the university and Mount Olivet Cemetery. Its width seems to have been about a quarter of a mile. After passing the fair grounds it struck the exposition building and the Maxwell House, seriously damaging the former. The front of the Academy of Music, J. H. Frith's grocery store, Darney's wholesale liquor establishment, and several other smaller buildings near the corner of Broad and Cherry streets were crushed. The front windows of Hurley Bros. and Housen & Co's. four-story buildings near the same locality were crushed in. Beadle's livery stable, containing an immense amount of feed, wagons, horses, and cotton, was blown off its foundation into the back-water. Several horses and it is thought one man were drowned. Parisher's livery stable on College street, in the rear of Beadle's was seriously damaged, besides several feed stores and small negro dwellings. It passed from there, crushing in the front of a negro Methodist Church; next the medical college, taking off a portion of its roof; from there to the magnificent residence of Jeff. Parish, moving the whole of the roof out of place. At this hour it is impossible to enumerate the number of buildings damaged or the loss, which will exceed $100,000. Many poor families are rendered homeless. It is feared there has been serious damage to property and loss of life along its track. The telegraph lines are prostrated all along its course, from Union City to Nashville.

The Lynchburg Republican says the venerable ex-Governor Johnson has written to a member of the General Assembly inquiring whether there is now among the members of the Legislature any one who sat with him in that body in 1815. He says he is still hearty, and continues to go regularly to his church and to the county court house, on court days, as he used to in old times.

TOO LATE.

BY ANNA SHIELDS.

If you had mentioned Martin Wilbur, to any of the villagers in the limits of Pond Hill you would have been informed that he was the richest man in the country, and a cruel old bachelor, past fifty. Had your informant been very communicative he would further have told you that Mr. Wilbur lived on his own fine estate on the Hill, with his widowed sister for his only companion.

Opinions were divided with regard to the sister, who rejoiced in the high sounding name of Mrs. Harrison Curtis who was ten years her brother's senior.

The wealthy Pond Hill were unanimous in pronouncing Mrs. Curtis a handsome, amiable old lady, who dispensed the hospitalities of her brother's handsome mansion with aristocratic grace.

The poorer class would have told you that the lady in question was condescending in a grandly patronizing manner highly exasperating to a free American people "as good as she, with all her airs and noways beholden to her." The very poor, working people agreed that "Mrs. Curtis was a hard one and not easy to work for."

Her servants hated her, and served her well from fear of dismissal from a comfortable home. Her brother gave her a support, made her mistress of his house, and saw her face as seldom as possible.

This was the lady, who on a lovely June day, when all nature smiled, lay upon her bed, sick unto death. The best advice had been called in, a celebrated physician having come all the way from Boston to feel the patient's pulse, and confirm the fiat of the villiage doctor Every thing that skill, attention and money could do to drive back the grim destroyer had been done, but Mary Curtis, looking upon the June sunshine, knew that she should never waken to see it again, in this life. Laying propped up by the wide pillows of her handsome bed, with costly lace around her throat and wrists, and bordering her fine muslin cap, the face looked drawn and old, the large blue eyes were proud and cold, as if even death could not conquer the iron spirit of the invalid. A young girl with a pleasant face, was dusting the furniture, and moving softly about the room, when Mrs Curtis spoke.

"Katie, tell Mr. Wilbur I wish to speak to him. You need not come in again yourself until I ring."

The girl left the room, with noiseless step, and in another moment, a tall man with snow white hair, and large clear blue eyes, entered the room. Even the contrast of his vigorous health, with the wasted face of the invalid, could not destroy the strong resemblance between them.

"I hope you are feeling better, Mary," he said, kindly, as he took the thin hand extended to him

I shall never be better, Martin, but I have no more pain. The cessation of suffering is my death warrant. I have sent for you, Martin, because to morrow will be too late to tell you what has lain heavy on my heart for twenty years. I have done you a grievious wrong, Martin, and all I hoped to have gained by it, I have lost."

"Done me a wrong, Mary?"

"Yes, for it was my act that parted you and Caroline Masters!"

Martin Wilbur looked earnestly at his sister.

"I am an old man, Mary," he said gently, "a hard old man, many will tell you, but that name moves me as no other name in the world has the power to do. Yet I cannot tell how you parted us. Caroline Masters was false to me."

"Never! She never wronged you by word or look."

"You do not know the story, Mary. I will tell you why Caroline Masters drove me from home for five long years, why I have not looked upon her face, the face of the only woman I ever loved for twenty years. I met her at your own home in Boston, so you know as well as myself how graceful and winning she was, though she had no positive beauty. I loved her and asked her to be my wife. She seemed to return my love, I was a rich man!" said Martin Wilbur, bitterly 'Caroline Masters was a poor girl, nursery governess to your children. For nearly two months I was supremely happy in the belief that I was beloved where I loved. Then Carrie grew absent, cold, restless, seeming to have some trouble she was anxious to conceal, yet longing to tell me. I was preparing a home for my bride, repairing and modernizing this house, furnishing it to suit a fair young wife, laying out the grounds and beautifying it in my power. This work called me from Boston frequently, and I did not see Carrie very often. One day while I was here, I found a note in a disguised hand, telling me my promised wife was secretly meeting another man during my absence; that the change in her was due to the fact that she had ceased to love me, and the proof of the truth of the writer's statements was offered me. If would return to Boston, unexpectedly on the night of the twelfth of the current month, I would find my rival with Caroline. There was a ball, to which my sister was going on that night, and believing me away, and herself free, Caroline had appointed a meeting with the man who had taken my place in her heart. Half mad with jealousy, (I was twenty years younger then,) I hurried to Boston, reaching the city in the evening of the twelfth, at nine o'clock. I hurried at once to your house, entered with my night key, and stood a moment in the entry. From the parlor came the sound of voices, Caroline's and that of a man.

"We cannot meet after you are married," the man said, in a tender voice, "and your wedding day is very near."

Then, with a sob, I heard Caroline say:

"O, Willie! Willie! I must see you, I cannot give you up."

"I heard no more! I could not bear my own thoughts, for they were those of a murderer. Had I remained a moment longer, I would have taken my rival's life. I left the house, and went to a hotel. From there I wrote to Caroline one line.

"I know your secret. Farewell, Martin."

"By the next steamer I sailed for Europe. Five years latter, hearing you were a widow and poor, I returned to offer a home to you and your little ones. I have never seen Caroline Masters, nor heard her name, since my own ears proved her false."

"Yet she was true to you! Before I tell you all, Martin, promise me forgiveness. I am dying!"

"Whatever you may tell me, is forgiven, Mary," was the solemn reply.

"It was your wealth that tempted me, Martin. When you returned from California a rich man, I determined, if possible, to keep you single, that I might save your wealth for my children. I knew my husband saved nothing of his large salary, and that he was consumptive. I dreaded poverty for myself and five little ones. Wishing to keep you a bachelor, I was anxious and angry when I saw that Caroline Masters, poor, without beauty or talent, had won your affections. I had selected a plain-faced girl for the children, and kept her away from you as far as possible, and yet you loved her. The very love for the children upon which I built my poor hope of their inheriting your fortune, had drawn you to the nursery, where Caroline presided over their lessons. I knew you well enough to feel sure, that if you once believed Caroline to be false, no other woman would ever take her place in your heart. The wedding day was drawing very near, you were happy and busy in preparing a house for your bride, and I saw no opportunity to separate you and your promised wife. But the opportunity came at last. Going to the nursery one morning, I found Caroline in tears over a letter she had just received A few words drew from her a sad story. The letter was from her brother, older than herself, and whom she had been brought to believe, dead. He had been seven years in Sing Sing for a crime committed in New York, when he was a mere lad. Writing to his sister, after his release, finding his mother dead, he implored her to see him, before he left the country, to try to live honestly in a new place. At once I made use of my opportunity. I told Caroline she might see her brother here, and must keep her interviews a secret from every one. She pleaded hard to tell you, but I promised that I would do that at the proper time, after her brother had left the country.—In the interviews that followed, the erring brother revived all the love his sister had felt for him when she was a little girl and she became pale and anxious: troubled at concealing anything from you, and at the approaching separation from her brother. I trembled every time you came, fearing she would break her promise to me and tell you all. I knew it would be like you to rescue the man, give him employment, and to reform him, if indeed he was not already a penitent, sincere man. I did not want a convict in the family, and I did want your money for my children I told Caroline she could see her brother alone on the night of the ball, and I wrote the anonymous note that you received."

There was a long silence in the room as the dying woman ceased to speak.

"Martin!" she said, "see how I have been punished. All the children for whom I coveted your wealth are dead. I am dying, and I have blighted your whole life, and that of an innocent woman who confided in me."

"What became of Caroline Masters?" Mr. Wilbur's voice was hoarse and low as he asked this question.

"She went to Australia with her brother. Martin, two days ago this came to me. I recognized the hand, and opened it."

She put a note into her brother's hand. It was directed to "Martin Wilbur, Esq.," and inside were but few words, these:

"He who has separated us for twenty years is dead. I came from Sidney by the last steamer, only to look upon your face once more before I die. Will you come to me?

CAROLINE MASTERS."

No.—Winthrop St., Boston.

"Dying! and you have held this back two days."

"Oh Martin, forgive me."

"I promise that. But this is hardest of all to forgive."

By the night mail train which passed through Pond Hill, Martin Wilbur traveled to Boston. In the home he left lay a still figure that had wrought its last act of cold cruelty, but whose dying bed the brother had comforted by full forgiveness.

People might talk about this journey taken at such a solemn time. Martin Wilbur heeded nothing but the call from the woman he had wronged. Only to see her once more, only to press her hand, to hear her speak his name, he would gladly have given all his great wealth.

It was early morning when he rang the bell of the large handsome house in Winthrop street.

A little girl was in the hall, and before the servant could answer Mr. Wilbur's question, she came forward.

"Mamma said if any gentleman asked for Aunt Caroline, he was to be shown into the sitting room at once."

"Will you tell your Mamma, Miss?" said the servant.

"Yes. Please come this way sir."

Following his little guide, Martin Wilbur was led to a large sitting room, when a lady in widow's weeds, surrounded by a group of children, rose to receive him.

"You are Mr. Wilbur?" she asked courteously. "Children go to the nursery, till I call you."

The children, who all looked sad and subdued, obeyed at once.

"I know you, sir," said the widow, "from poor Caroline's frequent mention of you. My husband, during his life, tried by every means in his power to atone to his sister for the sorrow he brought upon her life. When he married me, in Sydney, he told me the whole sad story, and Caroline and I were like sisters. She never complained, never murmured."

"Again and again, she was sought in marriage; by some of the best men in the city, but she was true to you to the last. After my husband died, and we decided to come to this country, Caroline manifested a restless impatience to be on our way, entirely new in her character. She was never very strong, but after we left Australia, her health gave way entirely. She grew more and more feeble until we reached this city, where she lay dangerously ill for weeks, before she sent for you. When all hope of life was gone, the desire, to see you once more became uncontrollable. She sent for you, and watched the arrival of every train, hoping, hoping to the last."

"But I am here now."

"Caroline died at sunset yesterday.—You may see her, but she can never see you again."

As she spoke, Mrs. Masters, opened a door leading into the dimly lighted bedroom. Silently Martin Wilbur entered, the door closed and he was alone with his dead.

The pale wasted face, with snow white smoothly banded against the waxen cheeks, was not the face of the bright young girl he had loved twenty years ago, but he bent reverently, with tears falling thick and fast to kiss the pale lips, and murmur words of love.

A broken, sad man, who seemed to have lost all interest in life, returned to Pond Hill in time to attend his sister's funeral. He had tried to make the life of the dead woman happy, had given her every comfort and kindness, and in return, she had to the last hour deceived him, gaining nothing for her sins but her own remorse, and the penitence that came TOO LATE.

Democratic and Republican Counties—Taxes Contributed to the Support of the State Government.

The State Journal, the Radical organ at Montgomery, has for the past few weeks been harping with unction upon the fact that some of the poorer counties, which give Democratic majorities, do not contribute as much revenue to the support of the State Government as some of the richest counties it names, which return Radical majorities.

To make its proposition more striking, the Radical organ takes such small counties as Clay, Jefferson and Crenshaw, for Democratic examples, and opposes these with such large and wealthy counties as Perry, Montgomery and Dallas, for Radical examples, the last named two having the second and third cities in population and wealth in the State.

It might spoil somewhat the figures of the Radical paper, if it were to take two among the wealthiest and most populous of the Democratic counties of the State for example on our side, and add to these the Democratic county, of Mobile, which alone pays one fifth of the revenue of the entire State, but it forms no part of the programme of the Journal to ever state any question fairly. But aside from this offset, which the Democrats could fairly offer under the argument of the Journal, the Democrats have all the advantage; for even in the Republican counties, so vauntingly brought forward by the Radical paper, the Democrats pay almost entirely the large revenue boasted of. In the city of Montgomery, for instance, who pays the largest amount of the revenue that goes to the support of the State Government—the horde of vagabond negroes that go to make up nine-tenths of the Radical party; or the white gentlemen of that city, who alone and entirely go to make up the Democratic party within its corporate limits? Or to take a Democrat and white Radical and individualize, who pays the more taxes, Dr. LeGrand, Democrat, or Probate Judge Ely, that model Radical who, according to the late report of the Grand Jury, has paid no taxes for five years?

No, the Journal can take no comfort from its own figures; for it is the Democrats at last who support the State Government, by contribution of taxes from all the counties of the State, Democratic or Republican. Measured by the amount of taxes contributed to the support of the State Government by the members of each political party, respectively there would be no radical county in the State, nor even enough radicals, white and black, all put together, to form a respectable beat in the poorest county of the commonwealth.

The Talladega Mountain Home says that Mr. Lewis E. Parsons knew nothing of the intention of that paper to publish a portion of the testimony of the junior editor of this paper, taken at the Patona farce; and that "the character of that testimony was not obtained from him directly or indirectly." This the Home asks us to publish. We do so; and now, since we have complied with its request, we would like to have the Home tell us where it got a copy of the testimony it copied from.

The whole of that testimony was turned into the Calhoun Circuit Court, as the law directed, and now reposes in the hands of the Circuit Clerk. Mr. Parsons, in his evidence before the Congressional Ku Klux Committee, (page 79) alludes to "notes" of some of the testimony given at Patona, which he said he had preserved. Did any one else preserve notes? If not, and if the editor of the Home did not get it from the Clerk's office here, how could he have gotten it except from the "notes" of Mr. Parsons? If he got it from those notes, at any time, he must have got from Mr. Parsons "directly or indirectly."

It is a small matter, but we would like to have it explained.

The Selma Republican wants us to understand that we are in the habit of judging Republicans by a "lower standard of morals than they desire or deserve to be judged by;" and all this because we said that Grant, in vetoing the inflation bill, has sold out to Eastern capitalists.

The REPUBLICAN is altogether unreasonable. The next thing we hear from it, it perhaps will be asking us not to call a thief by the harsh name of thief. We are not accountable for the standard scalawags are judged by. They have made that standard by low political association, recreancy to their race and lax ideas of the responsibility of citizenship. The Republican, can claim no quarter at the hands of the Democratic press, for its party when in power gives no quarter to Democrats, but steals the last dollar. There would be more reason in its objection, should it make complaint of those Northern journals who speak so disrespectfully of its sweet-smelling party in the South. The scalawags have fallen down and kissed the feet of the Northern conquerer, and it is really hard to be at last kicked off and spoken of as contemptuously as does the New York Herald in the following extract from an editorial in that paper of the 27th April, to-wit:

"The mongrel negro carpet-bag governments of the South have become so odious and abominable that no political party can stand sponsor for them, and their authors are eager to wash their hands of the disgrace."

The next thing we may have from this editor may be an attempt to convince us that he has not "sold out," body and soul, to the negro race for a paltry office or two—offices at that which can bring no honor, since they were the gifts of a political party who do not reward merit, brains and honesty, but whose highest favors light upon the men who can manage in the shortest time to make the best record as first-class theives, the men who e associations are the most depraved, and who can excel in a sycophantic fawning upon the inferior African race. "He that humbleth himself shall be exalted"—(not scriptural in interpretation) is a text of the negro party in the South.

UNDER WATER.

Submerged by the Raging Rivers.

THE TIDE OF DESTRUCTION SWEEPING OVER A VAST TERRITORY.

Appalling Tales of Destruction, Suffering and Loss of Life.

Mothers Swept Away by the Floods with Babes in their Arms.

NEW ORLEANS, April 23.—The State authorities receive letters daily from persons in the overflowed sections, asking for provisions, etc. The following extracts from them are fair specimens:

A letter dated Simmsport, Avoyelles Parish, addressed to the Governor, says: "Please send me some supplies, as I have a large family, nine children, to keep up and feed. The water is three feet deep in my yard, and all over my place. It is utterly impossible for me to get any thing for my family to eat without calling on you for assistance. Please, for pity's sake, do not fail to send me some supplies by return steamer."

The following are extracts from a letter to the Governor, dated Big Bend, Avoyelles Parish: "The whole of the Bayou des Glaizes and Red River is entirely overflowed. All of us are bankrupt—no money, no credit. The commission merchants have all shut down on us. We have no provisions and many are starving. The water is all over the country and still rising. Cows not drowned are dying for want of food.—Sheep and hogs drowned by hundreds. Take this matter into consideration, and see if something can't be done for us."

The Governor to-day received a letter from Charenton, St. Mary's Parish, which says: "Among the many sufferers by the recent overflow are those who have lived on the east side of Bayou Teche, on Bayou Chenez, Bayou Pigeon, on the shores of Grand Lake and Lake Chicot, all of which districts are now submerged, leaving some three hundred families in a state of utter destitution."

General M. Jeff. Thompson, Chief State Engineer, returned to-day from the upper coast. He states that the storm which commenced on Thursday of last week, and continued until Sunday, caused the crevasses on the west side of the river to increase rapidly in width.—The crevasse near Port Hudson, at Longwood and Virginia Plantation, is now about three-quarters of a mile wide, though only about three feet deep, the levee being a very small one, from three to four feet in height. The crevasse heretofore reported as having occurred in Morganza Bend, below New Texas landing, is in what is known as Van Pelt, Morganza Levee, between the original Morganza Levee and Grand Levee. The break is now about four thousand feet wide in the new levee, which was about thirteen feet high. The flow of water through this is checked by the old levee in front, and a dense growth of cottonwood between the two levees. In the old levee there are four breaks, aggregating about eight hundred feet. The Hickey crevasse, below Baton Rouge, is now fifteen hundred feet wide and seven deep, the water passing through at a velocity of eight miles an hour.

General Thompson reports another crevasse at Lakeside Plantation, Pointe Coupee Parish. He states that about twenty sugar plantations have been covered by water from Hickey's, and that hundreds of poor families living on the bayous have been drowned out. The Bonnet Carre crevasse is now seven hundred feet wide and probably ten feet deep in the center, where the levee is entirely gone, and the water is cutting a channel. The McCullen crevasses, below Baton Rouge, will probably be closed in a few days. Though these breaks are comparatively small, water from them has already covered many large plantations, and driven out the poor people living behind them.

No mail trains by either the Jackson or Mobile roads yesterday. The bridges being carried away by the flood will detain them two days. The North-western mails now due by the Jackson Road are coming by boat from Vicksburg.

A gentleman who reached this city today from the Florida Parishes states that the Tangepahoa, Tickford and Amite rivers were swollen by rains from Thursday to Sunday, completely overflowing their banks, and spreading over the country on either side for miles. The people are fleeing to the highlands. It is estimated that the water is three feet higher than ever before known.—The Amite River rose very rapidly. Several children are reported drowned in the streets of Port Vincent, which was overflowed. The flat country of St. Helena, Livingston, Tangepahoa, Washington, St. Tammany, and East Feliciana Parishes are flooded for miles.

The Times says: "A gentleman from the Upper Coast gives a most appalling description of the condition of the people who happened to live in the district overflowed by the Hickey crevasse. He says that not less than twenty splendid sugar plantations have been submerged from that source already. That however, was nothing compared to the sufferings of the people. On Sunday last the gentleman witnessed a large number of persons wading their way out of torrents of water which passed through that break. Among them were women in the water up to their arm-pits, holding their infants above their heads, and it was reported that some had been floated away on the rushing tide with their little ones in their arms."

Bayou Grasse Tete advices state that there is now three or four feet of water on the east side of the bayou, and it is expected the water will overflow the west side. The water is backing up bayou Plaquemine as far as Dardemeis plantation, and will probably reach the town of Bayou Grula, on the Mississippi River. Mayor Wiltz has been applied to for immediate relief to be sent to the Grasse Tete country. Recent rains continue the floods in the Ouachita and Red River valleys.

'Way Down in Alabama.'

The Sing Sing Republican says:

"At the last New York State Editorial Convention it will be remembered that a committee of three was appointed to arrange for an editorial excursion to Alabama the ensuing May, in response to a unanimous invitation of the editorial association of that State, to attend the next meeting of their association, to be held in the city of Birmingham, May, 19, 1874, tendering also the hospitalities of that city. It is suggested, but not yet definitely arranged, to start from Salamanca, go to Cincinnati, Louisville, and thence to Birmingham; returning, probably, by way of Lynchburg and Washington. Free passes will be furnished editors and their wives both going and returning. In a few weeks we hope to announce the perfected arrangements. The names of the committee are Chairman H. N. Beach, of the Brockport Republic, Edward Parker, of the Geneva Gazette, and G. Ten Eyck Sheldon, of the Republican, Sing Sing."

LEE AND GRANT.

The Hannibal and Scipio of Modern Military History.

Col. Chesney's estimate of Grant as a chief coincides for the most part with our own. The American commander is certainly not a strategist of the first order, and in the great combinations of war he but slowly arrives at sound conclusions. But his tenacity deserves the highest praise; on the field he has often shown true insight; and he has this quality of greatness, that he can perceive his mistakes and correct them with perseverence and energy. He seems, also, to have generally apprehended the true means of overcoming the South somewhat sooner than most of his Northern colleagues; and if he unduly lavished the blood of his men, he always commanded their love and esteem. These characteristics may be plainly seen throughout the course of his arduous campaign. Like Colonel Chesney, we can not excuse him for his operations in the summer of 1864; even if we believe he yielded to Lincoln he should not have moved as he did at first on Richmond, and his murderous and useless waste of his troops would have been fatal to him two years before. In fact his strategy on this occasion was inferior to that of the decried McClelan; and Grant also was all but foiled by the skillful Beauregard at Pittsburg Landing, and was months discovering the weak points of Vicksburg. On the other hand, his attacks on Forts Henry and Donelson show real decision and force of character, his movements against both Vicksburg and Richmond were ultimately what they ought to have been, his conduct at Chattanooga was able, and he is perhaps entitled to the chief credit of the conception of Sherman's march through Georgia. We have ourselves, like Col. Chesney, compared the American commander to Massena; but if he has not surpassed the French marshal in war, he is infinitely above him in all moral qualities.

This determined soldier is not, however—and Colonel Chesney agrees with our judgment—to be compared with his greatest opponent, in the highest attainments of the military art; and, as Hannibal, notwithstanding Zama, towers over the very inferior Scipio, the figure of Lee eclipses Grant, though Lee succumbed to the Northern chief. Colonel Chesney's essay on the brilliant career of the renowned leader of the Virginia army is too short to do them justice, but it is very attractive and full of interest. We have no space to notice the pleasing description he has given us of the private life of Lee, nor yet to comment on the public virtues of the high-minded citizen who drew his sword reluctantly in what he thought the rightful cause, and bore himself like a true patriot when reproach and disaster gathered around him. A few words are all that we can devote to the military powers of this great captain; and they are, indeed, superfluous, for their best monument is the battle-fields of the American war. It may be said, however, that Lee has a place in the foremost rank of modern strategists; he possessed in the very highest degree ability for the great operations of war.—Few Generals have ever, in Col. Hamley's phrase, "interpreted the theatre" with equal insight, and known as well how to turn it to account; and no one certainly since the time of Napoleon, has conquered against such immense odds and has so long and fiercely disputed the prize of victory with failing resources.—His combinations, indeed, bear a striking resemblance in many particulars to those of the Emperor; like him he gained astonishing success by the well planned use of inferior lines and bold movements against divided foes; like him he avoided the timid system of passive defense as a general rule, and seemed the assailant though on the defensive; like him he possessed a fund of resources in his own genius which effected wonders; like him, too, he was swift and terrible in availing himself of the mistakes of an enemy—Thus it has happened that his campaigns have much in common with those of Napoleon, and fascinate the reader for the same reasons. They exhibit the triumph of profound intelligence, of calculation and of well-employed force over numbers, slowness and disunited counsels, like those of 1796 and 1814, and his victory on the Chickahominy in 1862 and outmanœuvring of Grant in 1863 may fitly compare with Arcola and Rivoli and with the immortal struggle on the Marne and Seine. Lee, too, has never been surpassed in the art of winning the passionate love of his troops, and, as with all generals of a high order, his lieutenants looked up to him with perfect confidence, and saw in his commands a presage of victory. As an administrator, however, the great commander, Colonel Chesney tells us, was not successful; he too easily overlooked faults and was somewhat careless of such important matters as the commissariat and similar departments; and, resembling Napoleon in this also, he trusted too much to the effects of strategy, and was not sufficiently alive to the value of discipline and a good military system. He appears also never to have bowed Mr. Davis and his counsellors to his will; and though he was certainly aware that the rulers of the South made capital mistakes in invading the North, in maintaining a useless force in the West, and in continuing the hopeless defense of Richmond, he never contrived to change their purpose. Yet the grave that covers Robert Lee hides the dust of one of the great men of our age, and the time has even now come when the victorious North can think of him as of on of h foremost citizens.

A FATAL JOKE.

The San Francisco papers bring the details of a horrible tragedy that occurred at Salians City, California, April 6, and grew out of a harmless joke; Some of the young folks at the Diamond hotel on April fool day, sent Mrs Dennison to Downey's room with a letter, in which was writen "April fool." Dennison seeing her coming from the room, and taken with a fit of jealously, reproached with bitter words, and she retorted in the same kind, and a separation was agreed upon and proceedings commenced for a divorce. Dennison, it is said, told his mother-in-law, Mrs. Warren, that one of them—himself or Downey—must die before the day was over. Going down to Cropley's saloon, he saw Downey, and called him out. They passed through a narrow hall to the rear of the building, in a little back yard. Dennison there said to Downey, "you are the G-d d—d son of a b—h that has caused all my trouble." Downey then struck him with his fist, and knocked him down Dennison then drew his pistol, when Downey sprang for him and the pistol was discharged, the ball stiking Downey in the left side, and coming in contact with a rib glanced around it and come out near the spine. Downey then wrested the pistol from him, when Dennison turned and ran through the saloon and up the street, Downey close after him When in front of Winn's shop house Dennison stumbled and fell, and at the instant of his falling Downey fired a shot taking effect in the right temple and coming out near the top of the head on the left side. Downey was arrested by Mr. Morris, placed in charge of Sheriff Smith, and taken to the drug store, and thence to his room at the hotel, still continuing to smoke the cigar which he had in his mouth all the while. He said while being taken to the drug store:

If I am mortally wounded, I want you all to know that he shot me first.

Denison was taken into the chop-house by Mr. Douglas, when the surgeon came who, upon examining the wound, said: "You can do nothing for him, only to let him die in peace."

He presented a ghastly sight with the blood and brain trickling from the bullet hole. The body was taken to the coroner's office, and the wife sent for. Her grief was intense, and her cries and tears were pitiable as she stood weeping over the body. He lived but a short time, and did not seem conscious or speak after the fatal shot was fired. He groaned once or twice, and seemed in great pain. His brother, who lives in Santa Cruz, has been sent for, and will be here to-night. An examination will be held as soon as Downey is able to be brought into court, if his injuries do not prove fatal.

The Georgia Gold Fields.

The Sun says the gold fields of Georgia are now developing in a more systematic and energetic manner than heretofore. The principal operations are on the Chestatee river, which rises in the Appalachian mountains, in Lumpkin county, and flows southward to Hall county, where it empties into the Chattahoochee. Both these rivers traverse the gold belt, mostly at right angles to the strata of the gold veins, and rich deposits are found in their beds. The Chestatee from its mouth to its junction with the Tesnatee has not been worked excepting at the shoals, which yield largely. Two companies are now engaged in preparations to work the bed of this river—one from Ohio, which is cutting a canal and tunnelling through a ridge so as to make available three miles of gold deposits; the other controlled by J. R. Bartlett of Boston, who has engrossed nearly ten miles of the river.—Other companies are preparing to operate in the same region, and Dr. M. F. Stephenson, formerly assayer of the United States branch mint, says that when these extensive gold fields are put under the hydraulic process the yield will be enormous.

The conditions in which gold is found in Georgia demolish the theory held by several celebrated geologists, that the metal was brought to the surface only a short period before the appearance of man on earth. One vein, which yields gold of extraordinary fineness, is in hornblendic gneiss, the oldest formation of stratified rocks; while in another mine the gold is diffused granite in paying quantities for miles, and in still another it is found in feldspar over one hundred miles from any overlying rock containing organic remains.

In 1837, John C. Calhoun whose perspicuity was so wonderful that his prophecies have become history, addressed the Senate of the United States;

"Be assured that emancipation itself would not satisfy the fanatics; that gained, the next step would be to raise the negro to a social and political equality with the whites; and that being effected we would soon find the present condition of the two races reversed. I speak with full knowledge and a thorough examination of the subject, and, for one, see my way clearly. One thing alarms me—the eager pursuit of gain which overspreads the land, and which absorbs ever faculty of the mind, and every feeling of the heart. Of all passions, avarice is the most uncompromising—the last to see and the first to yield to danger. I dare not hope that anything I can say will arouse the South to a due sense of the danger; I fear it is beyond the power of mortal voice to awake it in time from the fatal security into which it has fallen—Richmond Enq.

THE GEM MICROSCOPE.

The Gem Microscope is the most wonderful scientific production of the nineteenth century. It furnishes the power of a high-priced instrument for a mere trifle, and exceeds in usefulness any microscope ever invented. It reveals the hidden wonders of minute creation—as Eels in Vinegar, animals in water, Butterflies' Feathers, the Golden Marrow of a Hair, Insects' Eyes, the Pads, Claws, joints and hairs of a Fly's foot, makes Ropes of Fibers of cloth, a crowbar of a needle's point, and so on indefinitely. It furnishes hours of instruction, entertainment and amusement for the young and old, and every family should possess it. It is invaluable to students, professors, teachers, physicians, in fact everybody, and especially in the HOME circle is it a GEM. It is cheap, and at the same time of great value. It is realy of great value to any family if only because it shows the adulterations in food, as sugars, teas, etc., and the qualities of cloths. It also plainly shows TRICHINA SPIRALIS or Pork Worm whenever it exists in pork. Price $1 50 Mailed, postpaid, to any address on receipt of price.

A FAT TAKE FOR AGTS

Men and women, Boys and Girls. Whole time or leisure moments and evenings. It works just as well by lamp-light as by day-light. Parents buy it for their children. Liberal cash commissions paid. Exclusive territory. Congenial employment. It excites curiosity, which produces a desire to have it, and requires no talking by the agent. Complete Outfit mailed, post-paid on receipt of $1 50. Circulars and terms free. Send for it and make money.

Home Manufactures.

It will be seen by reference to the advertisement of Mr. R. H. Coleman, that he is making a speciaity of Carriages, Buggies, &c., as well as heavier work. Mr. Coleman has been now among us, ong ennugh to prove all his promises true, relative to neat, durable and cheap work. We are glad to learn that his patronage is liberal and increasing. We, as a people profess a desire to encourage domestic manufactures. There is branch in which we can prove our sincerty, and at the same time promote our own interest and convenience. When you a want work, don't send your money to a distance, but call upon Coleman.

We direct special attention the advertisement of Winters & Nelson, Chattanooga, Tenn. This house is highly recommended. Mr. Winters, of the firm, is known to most of our citizens and is frequently in our midst. It will be very convenient to order through him.

We have asked some of our county officers to prepare for us, from the official record, a condensed report of the new debts made and the amount of the old debt paid off by the present court of County Commissioners, together with other interesting facts connected with the administration of the affairs of the county. As the work involves a good deal of labor we have not been able to get it up before this. But next week we hope to be able to lay it before our readers, that all may read, and draw therefrom their own impartial conclusion. If it be found in the light of this report, that any man has been censured justly by any citizen of the county, then by all means let the censure rest; but if it be found on the contrary, that any of our people have been too hasty in making up their judgement upon any of our county officials, and that injustice to any one has been the consequence, then in the name of fair play, let such judgment be reversed and full and exact justice meted to each and all as they may deserve

FISH CULTURE.—Last season one of the editors of this paper excavated a hole in the ground on his premises, some 20 feet wide by 30 feet long and from 2½ to 4 feet deep, bricked and cemented it, and turned in the water upon it from the iron pipes, which convey water from the mountains over our town. This was designed for a fish pond, more ornamental than useful. Of course the experiment was viewed in different lights by different people. Some said the water would become impregnated with the cement and kill the fish. Others said that the cement would do no harm, but that the iron in the water, gathered from the iron pipes, would kill the fish. Others yet said that fish put into the pond would live, but would not increase. The experiment yet had to be tried to see who was right. Fish from the streams near town, (mostly trout) were caught with seins and about 300 put in. For a long time they were very shy, but finally grew tamer and fed well, and grew with astonishing rapidity. Some days ago thousands upon thousands of young fish appeared upon top of the water and are now doing "as well as could be expected." Thus is demonstrated the fact that fish can be raised in every flower yard of our town, at comparatively no expense, adding beauty and interest to the same. That ornamental ponds supplied from the water works can be made very useful withal is now beyond question. In a season or two more he can be able to divide with his neighbors.

VILLAGE GOSSIP.

As one of the improvements of our ever growing village, it would not do to omit to mention the city scales recently put up by that public-spirited citizen, Mr. R. P. Weaver. Hereafter we may expect to get a full ton of coal when we buy a ton, for we will no longer be compelled to take it at a guess.

The Episcopal Congregation have added another very decided improvement by placing new palings around their house of worship.

Fayette Whisenant is preparing to add another improvement in the shape of the highest hotel sign ever seen in the civilized portion of the globe or that it has ever entered into the heart of men to conceive of. Painters are now engaged on the pole which is already on the ground. Some jocular remarks have been made concerning this pole, but it does not disturb the equinimity of "mine host." He denies that it is either a mammoth barber pole gotten up for Garrett, or that it is a May pole, around which he will have a war dance on the first, or that it is a liberty pole from whose apex he will fling to the balmy breeze the Mexican flag. It is only his sign.

Carroll is adding still another very decided improvement in the entire renovation of the old Kahn Corner. Space being limited, he has built his stables under ground.

To return to the hotel. The sign pole came very near being a useless piece of of property some nights ago. The hotel came near being burned up. While the young gentlemen of Prof. Robinson's dancing class were tripping the light fantastic toe in the hall, a large lamp at the door of the hall gave premonitory symtoms of getting on a "BUST." Here was a fix. The door was the only place of exit. Every fellow thought the old thing might go off just as he was passing under it, and so all hope of escape being cut off, every fellow suddenly had a call to the other end of the hall. At last Wallace W., a spectator, "went for it" with his hat, clapped the same over the chimney and knocked it to the floor like a wasp. Den. P. instantly shed his coat and "covered" it. A little struggle, a smell of burnt wool, and all was darkness. Upon striking a light, the extent of the calamity was found to be a burnt hat, a greasy coat, and three or four young fellows who had so lost the use of their limbs that they couldn't come the polka any more that night.

That inquest at Johny's was a very serious thing. He received a barrel marked CIDER, but it tasted more like something else. He determined upon an inquest and sent for Justice F. That officer had Dr. A. W. C. L., Jim F., and Den P. summoned. After a careful examination and a LONG sitting, the body at last declared that what was cider in the barrel was now dead, and that it came to its death of old age, and was now in fact—VINEGAR.

Our Merchants have all received very large and select——however, your gossip will let them advertise their goods.

Fashionable Tailering.

We are much gratified to learn that Mr. Wm. Jackson is giving entire satisfaction to his patrons, and that his patronage is constantly increasing. We hope it may soon be sufficient to enable him to keep a number of hands employed, and thus prevent thousands of dollars from going out of our country, to build up and enrich Northern cities.—Don't forget when you need clothing that you can get it at home, made up in a neat and substantial manner, in the most fashionable style, out of material of your own selection.

HER FATAL VICE.

A Lady of Culture is Found Lying in the Mire Drunk, and Dies Ere the Morning.

[From the St. Louis Globe, April 19th.]

On yesterday morning about 8:30 o'clock Officer Kountz had his attention attracted by the suspicious appearance of a seemingly inanimate object, prostrate and lifeless in the yard attached to a house at No. 2,917 Larned street. He watched it for an instant, and though inclined to disregard his suspicions, yet there was something so strangly humanlike about it, that he was persuaded to enter the premises and ascertain its character. As he approached the spot where the object was, he became satisfied of the presence of a human being, and upon reaching the point where it lay, he recognized the features as those of Mrs. Mary E. Hayne, the occupant of the house enclosed in the very yard the officer then was in. She was breathing qu te heavily, though apparantly without pain, and an empty bottle by her side that had contained liquor, told the old old story. He raised her cold, helpless, and almost lifeless form from the mire into which she had fallen, carried it into the house, aroused the servants and obtained admittance, and provided for her comfort as well as he was able, after which he left her in charge of the domestics. She was laid on the bed in her sleeping apartment, within call of those in the house, where she was allowed to remain until yesterday morning undisturbed. The servants paid little attention to her condition, thinking she would be fully recovered by daylight, and made preparations for the labors of the day. About 6 o'clock they had gotten the breakfast ready, and proceeded to announce the fact to their mistress. She not replying to their repeated call, and thinking her fast asleep, one of them entered the room to arouse her. On reaching the cot whereon she had been laid, the girl gently shook her, and, excited by curiosity, she examined the countenance. One glance satisfied her that she was alone with the lifeless remains of Mary Hayne. Trembling with horror she hurried from the room with all the speed she possessed, and calling to some neighbors related the tragedy that had occured in the house. They returned with her, and proceeded to the chamber of death, realized the truth of the servants statement. The apartment is luxuriously furnished, containing the usual pieces to be found in a lady's boundior, and was scrupulously neat. On a carved bedstead, with her head resting carelessly across the right arm, as if in sleep, the once handsome features of the dead woman were to be distinguished. She lay where she had thrown herself when released from the officers support, and presented a spectacle ghastly in the extreme. Her hair dishevelled and matted, her forehead damp with the dews of death; her eyes partly open, but ghastly and expressionless; her lips apart, and bearing traces of the agony she must have suffered during the pangs of dissolution, and the peculiarly horrible appearance of her countenance caused a feeling of terror to invest the group who watched at the bedside of the dead woman.—Her clothing, of fashionable make and costly material, bore evidence of where she had lain, and was gathered about her in uneaven folds. The attendants decently composed her limbs, and while some went to give information to the authorities, some remained behind to prepare her for the tomb. She is said to have been a lady of unbounded virtues, all of which were neutralized by the one calamitous practice, which left her alone in her distress through the dismal night, and which, before the light of dawn appeared in the Eastern sky, had survived her for the grave. She was one whose closing scene should have been amid troops of friends; but alone and unattended, she jumped the life to come. Her husband, who is engaged for a commercial house as traveling agent, is absent from the city, but it is supposed, had been communicated with and informed of the calamity that has overtaken his household. The coroner will hold an inquest during to-day, when some new facts may be developed.

The Wolf of Bankruptcy at the Door of the People.

(From the Bucyrus Ohio Forum.)

The President, at the instance of the money sharks of Wall street, and as it is broadly hinted, with a large pile of their money in his pocket, on Wednesday vetoed the currency Bill giving the people four hundred million dollars more money. This is the wedge that will split the Republican party from center to circumference. It will also spoil several chances for the Presidency. As the almanac makers say: "Look out for thunder and lightning these days."

But the serious features of it will be the general paralyzation of business and the bankruptcy of tens of thousands of our citizens.

How Hill Rescued Georgia from Radical Rule.

A few weeks ago when Gov. Vance lectured in Atlanta, Georgia, a number of citizens gave him a supper party, and among others Mr. Toombs and Mr. E. Y. Clarke. In regard to what occurred at this supper party, the Atlanta Herald says:

Governor Vance alluded to the superior condition of Georgia over her confederate sisters as remarkable, and while much gratified with the fact, he did not understand how this state of things was brought about.

Mr. Hill said: "The explanation involves a long story, Governor, but one chief reason is this: In other States, including your own, a white man was allowed to be a radical in full fellowship with the negroes and carpet-baggers, and still retain his social respectability with decent people. We did not allow this in Georgia."

This remark brought into the discusion Mr. Hill's "bush arbor" speech, in 1868, and Mr. E. Y Clarke proposed a toast to "the author of the greatest and most eloquent speech ever delivered in any age or country."

As the hail began to fall, and the lightning flashed, thousands of wild geese, which were in the ponds of shallow water which exists in that locality during the winters, suddenly rose up in a great flutter, as if many hunters had discharged a volley among them. They went up and up apparently to rise above the fearful cloud. It was nearly dark and those who saw them rise thought no more of it until morning when they began to find dead geese and hear of hundreds being picked up by the neighbors. Some seven hundred had been found. One man picked up on his farm all two horses could haul for their feathers. Their heads were badly torn and their bills split into fragments. Many of them had their backs crisped and burnt and their bodies burst open. The portion of the country thus affected was about a mile and a half wide and reached several miles into Butts county. The terrible lightning in this cloud was witnessed by people on the Honcut in Yuba county and in the central portion of this county. The thunder was heard twenty miles distant.

Violent Storm in the East—Heavy Snow Fall—Drifts to the Depth of Twenty Feet.

Boston, April 25.—A severe snow-storm, accompanied by a heavy gale, has prevailed throughout the New England States to-day. The snow is from six inches to a foot in depth. At Rockland the gale has been the severest experienced for years, and resulted in much damage to shipping—six or seven vessels are ashore. Twenty inches of snow are reported at Danbury, Conn.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., April 26. The storm of yesterday and last night at Boston Corners was terrific and heavier than known before for years. The Harlem mail train was compelled to lay at Millerton for fear of being blown from the rails. At Weissman's Cut the snow was four inches deep.

Rutland, Vt., April 26.—A terrific gale at Bennington, Vt., demolished the steeple, 160 feet high, on the new Congregational Church. Part of the falling steeple struck an adjoining residence, crushing in the roof. The snow drifted ten feet here to-day.

Philadelphia, April 26.—A wind and rain storm passed over the city yesterday and to-day, causing considerable damage. Two houses in the course of construction on Mifflin street were blown down; also a house in Frankford.

Montpelier, Vt., April 26.—It began snowing here last evening, and one foot of snow fell in twelve hours. It was one of the heaviest snow-storms of the season.

"That is all that is needed in hell," was the reply of an emigrant to a Colorado land agent, who told him that Colorado only wanted "a comfortable climate, water and good society to make it a paradise."

A very curious little story, all about a flock of geese, comes to us from Butler county, California. On the 28th of last month a thunder storm passed over this district, accompanied by hail and severe and very vivid forked lightning:

Our Dormant Energies.

Our bodies are not as vigorous nor our minds as clear as they might be. This remark is true of at least two-thirds of civilized society, and of these, two-thirds probably one-half is laboring under bodily infirmities of a character likely to shorten the lives of the sufferers. This is a melancholy exhibit and furnishes abundant food for reflection. Can the evil be mitigated? Lack of vitality is the primary cause of most of the physical and mental suffering to which we are subjected, and therefore a vitalizing medicinal agent is the remedy required. Is there such a medicine? There is. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will rouse and energize the mind and body when the life power of the system is in a comparatively dormant state. The languid, feeble, desponding invalid is not aware of the latent energies that underlies his debility. He thinks there is no element of vigor left in his frame, when the fact is that his physical capabilities are merely asleep and only require waking up. Let him stimulate and tone his animal machinery and endow it with new motive power, through the agency of this incomparable invigorant, and he will soon feel like a new man, or rather like a man who has received a new lease of life, and the requisite health to enjoy it. Many business men suffer from chronic languor and depression caused by too close application to business. Hard students are often oppressed with melancholy from a like cause. Mechanics and working men are affected in the same way as a result of over-labor. To all who are in this condition, from whatever cause, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will prove a signal blessing. It is a perfect panacea for physical debility and mental gloom. It strengthens the body, clears the mind and calms the nervous system; while as a remedy for indigestion, biliousness, constipation, rheumatism, and intermittent and remittent fevers, it takes precedence of all other medicines.

ECLECTIC MAGAZINE.—The Eclectic for May is on our desk and contains an admirable portrait of Chief-Justice Waite. The editorial sketch of his life which accompanies this portrait is much the best that has yet appeared, and as it is derived from an authentic and responsible source, its value to the public is correspondingly enchanced.

The contents of the number are of the customary variety and interest, embracing Universities: Actual and Ideal, by Professor Hurley; Dr. Johnson's Writings; Explorations of a Naturalist; One Flight; The Prince Printers of Italy An Elephant Kraal, John Stuart Mill; On Coal and Coal Plants; Feng Shui; The Mysogynist; Alexander Dumas, Fils; and additional chapter's of the very striking story, Far from the Maddins Crowd. The editorial departments are full of current information on Literature, Science, Art, etc.

Published by E. R. PELTON, 108 Fulton Street, New-York. Terms, $5 a year, two copies, $9. Single number, 45 cents.

PLANTATIONS.

Plantations, factories, work-shops, and all places where large numbers of hands are employed, should never be without the Magic Arnica Liniment. For families it is invaluable. Bruises, sprains, hurts, wounds and injuries are rapidly cured by it, and the pain subdued at once.

READ THE EVIDENCE.

Major R. Abbey, of Commerce, Mississippi, states he used the Magic Arnica Liniment upon several of his working hands for pains and aches, and it acted splendidly. One case was a boy who was very lame, and was entirely relieved by its use.

The Gem Microscope.—The Gem Microscope is truly an optical wonder. It reveals thousands of unseen wonders and curiosities of God's minute creation; the smallest worlds teeming with animal life, the little things of nature with which we are surrounded, but which are invisible to the naked eye, the thousand and one curiosities and minute objects with many of which we are familiar, because we have read or heard of them, but which to the unaided vision have remained a sealed book, are brought within the realizing reach of our sight and understanding by the use of the Gem, and many wonders entirely new to us are also brought to sight by its use. No article for the same price has ever been offered to the public which combines the essential points of valuable instruction and entertaining refined amusement to so great an extent as this instrument; every family has only to appreciate its merits to become its possessor it is so low-priced that everybody can have one, and so simple a child can use it. Parents should provide their children with this valuable instructor. This Microscope possesses the great advantage of being used by lamp-light as well as by day-light, and thus affords entertainment after the occupations of the day are laid aside. It is really of great value to any family if only because it shows the adulterations in food, as sugars, teas, etc. and the qualities of cloths. It also plainly shows Trichina Spiralis or Pork Worm whenever it exists in pork. It is safely mailed, post-paid, on receipt of price ($1.50) to any address by the BEVERLY COMPANY, 978 Wabash Avenue, CHICAGO. See their advertisement elsewhere.

A Good yield of Corn.

A farmer of Virginia gives an interesting account of the method he pursued to secure a yield of corn in Smyth county. He began on a very poor farm in 1859, of which he devoted sixteen and a half acres to corn. The yield was small. In 1866 he again planted in corn, with much better results. The tract was then turned over to grass, and mowed and pastured up to the winter of 1871-'72. At this time manure from the barn was spread on the thinnest parts, and during the winter the field was plowed to the depth of ten or twelve inches, after which slacked lime to the amount of 80 bushels per acre, was applied and the land harrowed five times, thoroughly mixing lime and soil. About May 1st the corn planted in rows, two and a half feet apart. When it came up about one bushel of plaster per acre was spread, and the space between the rows were thoroughly plowed to the depth of twelve or thirteen inches. It was new thinned, leaving two stalks to a hill; replanting was done and cutting "trash" from the hills with the hoe; no other work with this implement was done. From the 20th to the 27th of June plowed with broad shovelplows, and afterwards with the long coulter-plow; thoroughly erased all traces of the shovel except at the hill.—In September, from 10th to 15th, cut up and shocked; and in December cribbed. Yield from the 16½ acres, 1,500 bushels, or an average of 90-11 bushels per acre. Some acres of the field yielded as high as 125 bushels. Corn planted, white gourd seed; soil, a clay loam, very well adapted to blue-grass, when in an improved condition.

A Saloon Keeper is Struck with Death in the Midst of a praying Band.

Mrs. Luther Hills, the leader of a praying band, furnishes the following particulars of the strange death of a saloon keeper named Simpson, of East Douglas, Mass. He was taken suddenly ill during a visit of the praying band at his saloon, and died a few hours after. The following is an extract from Mrs. Hills' letter in the Worcester Gazette:

"We went into Mr. Simpson's saloon. I shook hands with him and introduced the ladies, and spoke of our coming in love and kindness to talk with him about his business. After some conversation he was asked if he would not refrain from selling liquor; he said, he said, 'I cannot promise to; then being asked if he thought it right, he replied, 'just as right as to sell groceries.' I then said, 'let us see what the word of the Lord says;' opening to 1st Cor.6:10, I read, 'Nor thieves, nor convetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners shall inherit the kingdom of God.' He replied, 'I knew it before, but that does not include me.' The reply was we did not expect to bring anything new, only to call to remembrance. You said it was right to sell, but this shuts all who use it out of the kingdom of heaven, and you don't want to be shut out Mr. S. Then turning to Heb. 2-15; Woe to him that giveth his neighbor drink, that puttest thy bottle to him and makest him drunken also. Then to Deut. 59-19: I shall have peace, though I walk in the imagination of mine heart, to add drunkenness to thirst; the Lord will not spare him, but then the anger of the Lord and his jealousy shall smite against that man and all the curses that are written in this book shall lie upon him, and the Lord shall bot out his name from under heaven.

On looking up, his eyes were riveted on mine, and he was very much agitated, trembling exceedingly. No further words were given us to say; we were all spellbound for what seemed a long time. At length one of the ladies said to his partner, 'I think something is the matter with him.' No movement was made until urged the second time. He was then removed from the counter by which he was supporting himself, when his tongue seemed to be loosed and he cried out twice, 'O God, have mercy on my soul.'

He was then taken to a room back; we were about to retire when another cry for mercy arrested our attention, those who were with him begging us to stay and talk with him, both saying it was the Holy Spirit. I said it was the word of the Lord, sharper than any two edged sword.' Comforthing words quieted his agitation. His mind was clear, but he could not talk. He was soon taken home, and died about eleven hours after."

New Orleans, April 15.

The water is over the levee at the head of Orange street, and over a foot deep on the Mobile railroad track from Jefferson street to the lower end of the French market. McCullum's and the Bonet-Carre Crevasses are both regarded beyond control. Nothing is likely to be done with them until the river falls ten or fifteen feet.

Mr. Kellogg to-day addressed a circular to all the police juries in the river parishes, saying the exigencies were beyond all provided means to control the threatening overflow and advising them to go to work, build up and protect the levees in their respective parishes, promising to recommend the next Legislature to reimburse the parishes for the money expended. The State authorities have also advanced to the levee company which by the act of the Legislature creating it, is a monopoly of levee building in Louisiana, thirty thousand dollars in advance of the collections on this year's levee tax to help them to meet the emergency.

MEMPHIS, April 18.—The heavy rains for the past few days have not only been destructive to the planting interest but with the heavy floods in various rivers damaging to the different railroads centering here.

FROM INDIANA.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 24.—At a meeting of workingmen last night resolutions were unanimously adopted thanking Senator Morton and the representives who supported the interests of the Western States in the recent financial debate and action in Congress, and urging them to give no consent to an adjournment of Congress until some satisfactory financial relief be granted.

FROM MASSACAUSETTS.

SPRINGFIELD, April 24.—Flags were displayed church bells rang and a salute fired at Pattisfield yesterday, in honor of the President's inflation veto.

BOSTON, April 24.—George Markland, a printer, committed suicide last night, by taking laudnum His wife recently drowned herself in a well.

FROM NEW YORK.

NEW YORK April 24.—Subscriptions at the Cotton Exchange for the Louisiana flood sufferers now reach four thousand dollars.

FROM ILLINOIS.

The steamer Minneola which arrived here yesterday from Memphis, picked up some families who had taken refuge on rafts and dug outs in order to escape from their flooded homes. Their live stock either drowned or dying of starvation, and say that many families residing too far from the channel to reach it, will either be drowned or starved to death.

NEW ORLEANS, April 23.

A letter from a planter in Carrol parish says that there will be 27 plantations in that parish that will make no cotton at all, eleven that may make a half crop, and 29 that are good for a full crop.

The water from Bonnett Carre and McCallen Crevasses has overflowed Grand Point settlement on St. James parish forcing many to leave their homes and seek protection in other localities. Engineer Vaupelt of the Levee Co., reports the crevasse at Hickey's beyond control. It is fully a quarter of a mile wide and about ten feet deep. Mr. Hickey's residence to story frame, with eight rooms was taken up by the flood and carried to the back part of the plantation where it lodged against some trees. Almost entire of West Baton Rouge, and whole of parish of Iberville lying on right bank Mississippi river appears to be under water.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—The Secretary of War in a communication to the House to-day, says no commissary stores can be spared from military stations on the lower Mississippi. After a verbal conference between the President and the Secretary of War, the Commissary General was directed to prepare 50,000 rations of meal, flour and beans, which will feed 30,000 people for twenty days. The Secretary of War asks $90,000 for these rations from Congress.

Monroe, LA., April 24, 6 p. m. It is impossible to give an idea of the extent of the overflow The water is higher than ever known before. The town is an island 2½ miles long by onehalf mile wide from which there is no exit except by boats or swimming. From the crossing of Railroad and Desards streets back is one wide sea. Boats come and go from Oakley's. People living in the rear have been driven in; all vacant houses have been taken and several families are living in the courthouse. Business is almost completely suspended, but houses are open. Fully 1,000 people have not rations for three days nor money to buy with. Stock of every description gathered in town are starving. On Desard Island almost all plantations are under water.

Washington, April 25.—Secretary Richardson goes to Charleston, Savannah and other coast towns by steamer, in search of health.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel nor any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar-coating preserves them ever fresh, and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable, no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor or Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach, and restore its healthy organic action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

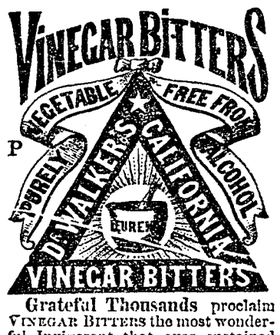
For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Dr. J. C. AYER & CO., Practical Chemists, LOWELL, MASS., U. S. A.

VINEGAR BITTERS



Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ringworms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelminitics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

BY-LAWS
OF
CALHOUN GRANGE, NO. 392.

ARTICLE I.

SECTION 1. This Grange shall be known and distinguished as Calhoun Grange No. 392 of the State of Ala.

Sec. 2. The regular meetings of this Grange shall be held at Jacksonville on the 2nd Saturday in each month.

Sec. 3. Special meetings may be called by the Master of the Grange, or in his absence by the Overseer, when deemed necessary for the good of the Grange.

Sec. 4. Seven members shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

Sec. 5. The Grange shall be opened at the above appointed time; in the Fourth Degree, if a sufficient number of members be present.

ARTICLE II—MEMBERSHIP.

Sec. 1. The members of the Grange are all who have been or may be initiated in or affiliated therewith, who have subscribed to the roll books, and who have not withdrawn, or been excluded for unworthy conduct, or non-payment of dues.

ARTICLE III—OFFICERS.

Sec. 1. The officers of this Grange shall be ranked and titled as follows:—Master, Overseer, Lecturer, Steward, Assistant Steward, Chaplain, Treasurer, Secretary, Gate-Keeper, Ceres, Flora, Pomona, and Lady Assistant Steward. It is their duty to see that the laws of the Order are carried out.

How Chosen—The officers of this Grange shall be chosen annually at the last regular meeting in December, and installed at the first meeting in January. All elections shall be by ballot.

ARTICLE IV—DUTIES OF OFFICERS.

Sec. 1. Master.—It shall be the duty of the Master to preside at all meetings of the Grange; to see that all officers and members of committees perform their respective duties as enjoined by the several charges and these By-Laws; to inspect and announce the result of all ballotings and other votes of the Grange; see that all the laws and usages of the Order are duly understood and obeyed; to sign all orders drawn on the Treasurer, with the consent and approbation of the Grange, and perform such other duties as may be required by the Ritual or Grange, properly devolving upon that office.

Sec. 2. Overseer.—It shall be the duty of the Overseer to assist the Master in preserving Order and decorum in the Grange, preside in the absence of the Master and perform all other duties devolving upon that office.

Sec. 3. Lecturer.—It shall be the duty of the Lecturer to always be prepared with some useful information to read or cause to be read, when no regular business is before the meeting; and see particularly that all addresses, lectures, and other information provided for the good of the Order and members of this Grange are distributed to them.

Sec. 4. Steward.—It shall be the duty of the Steward to preside in the absence of the Master, Overseer, or Past Grand; to have charge of the Inner Gate, to see that the field is properly arranged for labor; the working tools in their places; to conduct the ballot; to provide for the introduction and accommodation of candidates.

Sec. 5. Asst. Steward.—It shall be the duty of the Assistant Steward to have charge of the candidate during initiation, and to see that the regalias are properly distributed and cared for; also give all due assistance to the Steward.

Sec. 6.—Treasurer.—It shall be the duty of the Treasurer to receive all moneys from the Secretary, giving his receipt for the same; to keep an accurate account of the same and pay them out on the order of the Master, with the consent of the Grange; to transmit all moneys due the State Grange to the Treasurer thereof at the request of the Secretary; to render his books, and a statement of his accounts with the Grange to the Finance Committee when called upon to do so; and to deliver to his successor all moneys, books, vouchers, etc., having reference to the finance of the Grange.

Sec. 7. Secretary.—It shall be the duty of the Secretary to record accurately all the proceedings of the Grange; to make out all necessary returns for the State and National Granges; to report to the Treasurer at the end of each quarter the amount due the State Grange; to keep accounts of members with the Grange; to receive and pay over to the Treasurer all moneys, taking his receipt for the same; to draw and countersign all orders voted by the Grange, and to perform such other duties as may devolve upon that office.

Sec. 8. Gate Keeper.—It shall be the duty of the Gate Keeper to see that the Gates are properly guarded, and to perform such other duties as may be required.

ART. V.—APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

Sec. 1. Applications for membership must be made in the form prescribed by the National Grange, and when made shall be announced in open Grange, and referred to a committee of Investigation, consisting of three members, two appointed by the Master and one by the Overseer, which shall take the application in charge, and report at the next regular meeting.

ARTICLE VI—FEES AND DUES.

Sec. 1. The fees for conferring four degrees for mates in this Grange shall be two dollars for the first degree, and one dollar for each subsequent degree, which shall accompany the petition.

The fees for conferring degrees on women shall be fifty cents for each degree, the money to accompany the petition in all cases.

Sec. 2. The regular monthly dues of this Grange shall be ten (10) cents per month for each member to be paid monthly.

ARTICLE VII.—COMMITTEES.

Sec. 1. All special committees, unless otherwise ordered, shall consist of three members each.

Sec. 2. The Master, on the night of his installation, shall appoint a standing committee on Finance to consist of three members.

Sec. 3. It shall be the duty of the committee on Finance to audit all bills and accounts previous to their being passed upon by the Grange, and they shall be authorized to examine the books and accounts of any officer or member of any committee of the Grange, whenever they think proper, and shall report as speedily as possible on all matters they may have on hand.

Sec. 4. At the first regular meeting in each year, there shall be elected by ballot, three Trustees, who shall have charge of all the property of the Grange, as well as all business in which the Grange shall have an interest. The said Trustees shall be required to give bond in double the amount of property entrusted, to be approved by the Grange.

ARTICLE VIII.—CHARGES.

Sec. 1. Whenever complaint is made that a member by his or her general conduct, either morally or otherwise, shall be working against the best interests of the Order, charges may be preferred against the offending member, in accordance with the provisions of the following article, and they may be expelled, or subjected to such penalties as a majority of the Grange may direct.

Sec. 2. In no case shall members of the Grange enter into litigation with each other until they shall have presented a plain statement of their differences to the Trustees of their Grange, and shall have allowed them an opportunity to adjust them if possible; except in cases requiring immediate action at law.

ARTICLE IX.—SUSPENSIONS, WITHDRAWALS, &C.

Sec. 1. No member of this Grange shall be suspended or expelled from membership unless charges be preferred in writing, duly specifying the offence presented by a member in good standing, and the accused being allowed full opportunity to make his or her defense.

Sec. 2. Any member desirous of withdrawing from this Grange must pay all indebtedness thereto, and obtain the consent of the Grange.

ARTICLE X.

Every officer is required to be present at every meeting of the Grange, if practicable.

ARTICLE XI.—AMENDMENTS.

All propositions for amending or repealing these By-Laws, or any part of them, shall be presented in writing at a regular meeting, and shall lie over until the next regular meeting, when it may be acted upon, if agreed to by two-thirds of all the members present.

Rules of Order.

1. When the presiding officer takes the chair, the officers and members shall take their respective stations, and at the sound of the gavel there shall be a general silence. The Grange shall then proceed to open in regular form.

2. No question shall be stated unless moved by two members, or be open for consideration unless stated by the Master. And when a question is before the Grange, no motion shall be received, unless to close; to lay on the table; the previous question; to postpone; to refer; or to amend. They shall have precedence in the order in which they are arranged, the first three of which shall be decided without debate.

3. Any member may call for a division of a question when the sense of it will permit.

4. The yeas and nays may be ordered by the Master, on the call of any member duly seconded.

5. After any question (except one of indefinite postponement) has been decided, any member who voted in the majority may, at the same or next meeting, move for a reconsideration thereof; but no discussion of the main question shall be allowed unless reconsidered.

6. No member shall speak more than once on the same subject, until all the members wishing to speak have had an opportunity to do so, or more than twice without permission from the chair. And no member, while speaking, shall name another by his or her proper name, but shall use the appropriate designation belonging to his or her standing in the Grange.

7. The Master or any member may call a brother or sister to order while speaking, when the debate shall be suspended, and the brother or sister shall not speak until the point of order be determined, unless to appeal from the chair, when he or she may use the words following, and no others: "Master, I respectfully appeal from the decision of the chair to the Grange." Whereupon the Grange shall proceed to vote on the question: "Will the Grange sustain the decision of the chair?"

8. When a brother or sister intends to speak on a question, he or she shall rise in his or her place and respectfully address his or her remarks to the Worthy Master, confining him or herself to the question, and avoid personality.—Should more than one member rise to speak at the same time, the Worthy Master shall determine who is entitled to the floor.

9. When a brother or sister has been called to order by the Worthy Master for the manifestation of temper or improper feelings, he or she shall not be allowed to speak again on the subject under discussion in the Grange, at that meeting, except to apologize.

10. On the call of five members, a majority of the Grange may demand that the previous question shall be put, which shall always be put in this form: "Shall the main question now be put?" And until it is decided shall preclude all amendments to the main question, and all further debate.

11. All motions or resolutions offered in the grange shall be put in writing if required.

12. When standing or special committees are appointed, the individual first named is considered as the chairman, although each has the right to elect its own chairman. Committees are required to meet and attend to the matters assigned them with system and regularity, and not by separate consultation or in a loose and indefinite manner.

13. The Worthy Master, by virtue of his office, may attend all meetings of committees, take part in their deliberations (without voting, however,) and urge them to action. In the appointment of committees, the Worthy Master, who should ever preserve a courteous and conciliatory deportment to all, not overlooking the humblest member, has many opportunities for bringing humble merit into notice, and of testing and making available the capabilities of those around him. He should carefully avoid both petulancy and favoritism, and act with strict impartiality.

AN OLD-FASHIONED MUSTER.

There was unbounded excitement among the boys when it was announced that the—th regiment of State militia was to be mustered in a field near the village. The regiment was composed of four companies of infantry, one company of light infantry, one of artillery, one of rifles, and one of calvary—all but the infantry uniformed. The expected "great training" was the theme of conversation among us for weeks before it occured. I was kept, particularly, in a state of great anxiety lest Caleb Clamps the cordwainer, who went about annually to make on the shoes for the families of reach my father's in season to complete my winter boots against the muster. In such a case I should be obliged to go to the exibition barefoot.

The muster was set down for the first week in October. The weather had already a winterish tinge. White frosts covered the ground each morning. The day before the air was sharp, but otherwise the weather was quite pleasant, Caleb Clamps had not arrived, and I was destined to go to the muster without my boots. Save that it wounded my pride, I cared nothing for that. My feet were tough as horns, and I could crack a chesnut-burr open with my heel. It is quite true, that several of my toes had been badly "stubbed" and one or two of them were wrapped up in rags to keep out the gravel and expedite the healing process.

I went to my bed the evening previous with my brothers, having everything arranged for an early start in the morning. We talked long and with animation about what we expected, and were about falling asleep when the wagon of Nezer Carter, from Bingham's Four Corners, went by, and 'Nezer discharged his heavily loaded gun directly in front of the house. 'Nezer was on his way to the "training."

There were no more attempts at sleep in our chamber. 'Nezer Carter was followed by other "trainers," who discharged their guns and whoped and hooted at every house they passed. Then a big bass drum struck up down in the village, accompanied by a b-flat bugle and a clarionet. Guns were discharged in all directions on the roads leading to it. Wagon succeeded wagon by the house, and the hooting, and whooping, and discharging of guns increased each hour. The notes of "the ear-piering fife" and sounds of "spirit-stiring drum" came with almost unbroken continuance. Midnight was not far passed before my brothers dressed themselves, and, enjoining me to wait till the morning sun had cleared away the frost, crept silently down stairs and out of the doors went off.

The sun was well up when I woke in the morning. Making a hasty toilet (I had little more to do than the dog Shock, who shook his coat and was ready for any company), I ran down, swallowed a scanty breakfast, and started for the show.

Drawn up in front of the village store, and leaning upon their guns, were Captain "Kyar's" company of infantry. It was composed of a motley set of men some twenty-five in number, without uniforms, as variously equipped, although they were "armed and equipped according to law." A slender youth of eighteen, with a heavy "Queen's arm," undergoing the first day's trainings stood beside a six-foot bushy fellow, whose gun was many pounds lighter and many inches shorter. The tall and muscular were promiscuously mixed up with the lean and dumpy. Rusty bayonets, some fastened on with screws and others wooden wedges; knapsacks that had made a tour to Saratoga many years in advance of the fashionable world; canteens of every imaginable shape and material, from "chunk-bottles" and tin flasks to miniature barrels; cartridge-boxes, with rusty coverings, and still rustier belts; priming wire and brush—made up the "cutriments" of the company.

Captain Kyar was a model officer. Slightly verging towards military dandyism, with his uniform strictly clean, and conforming as nearly to strict taste as the captain's limited knowledge and ideas allowed, he was considered one of the smartest subordinate, officers in the whole regiment.

"Tenshun—company!"

Every man stood erect in his place with one hand grasping the piece.

"Sol—jer-r-a'ms;"

Up went their muskets to the shoulders of the men, one following another like sheep over a stone fence,

"Or—der-r-r-a ms!"

Down went the guns, the butts of some striking the ground, and others striking toes, causing grimaces and hopping about. Some slipped from the hands of their owners, causing hasty and irregular to "recover."

"Tenshun! Stand erect!" shouted Captain Kyar, as he saw the disorder. "Si Johnson, if your fingers are so cold you can't hold your gun, you'd better put your mittens on."

"Dern it, captain," exclaimed Josiah coloring up. "my thumb's sure."

The captain took no notice of the apology, but cried out:

"Tenshun! Sol—jar-r-r-a'ms!"

Up went the guns in somewhat better order than before.

The short exercise elicited the warmest encomius from the bystanders.

"Raal soljerly done," remarked a stout man, with russet clothes, and close fitting knit cap, whose eyes kept up a continual snapping.

"I never seed it better done under Steuben," replied a white-haired Revolutionary veteran, who leaned on his staff, and watched the drill with the tip of his tongue protruding from his mouth.

"You were out in the army, then?"

"Yes sir," said he, quietly, "I served five year in the Revolution. I knowed Stark, and Knox, and Green and Gates. I war at Yorktown when Cornwallis s'rendered."

"Didn't use to know Bijah Hopkins did ye?" asked an individual with a whip in his hand, the handle of which he was poking about among a pair of whiskers that would have served for a mouse nest.

"Bijah war killed at Long Island, and that war 'fore I listed. When the news come that the British had entered York and Washington wanted some sojers, my father says to me, 'Diab, you must g'wout along with your brothers.' There war four on 'em in the army already. Says he, 'Our country needs help of all her sons. My sons are her sons. Mother just go to work and rig Diah. I kin stay to hum and take keer of the farm.' And so mother and the gals fixed me out, and I started off, and war with Bennington. 'Twas a sight to see Stark on the morning of that 'ere day: 'See them 'ere red-coats yonder! Boys; we must beat 'em to-day, or Molly Stark to-night sleeps a widder?' And"—the old veteran drew himself up—"we did beat 'em han'somely!"

Attention was here called to the return of Captain Kyar to his company. "Tenshun! Eyes right! Right—fes! Music! For—ward—march!"

Away went the company rub-a-dubbing up the road to the muster-field, enwarm by an army of men and boys. On reaching the summit of the hill, Captain Kyar wheeled off to the right through a gate into a large and level field. An officer on horse, with cocked hat and flowing plumes, golden epaulets and military boots, stood ready to receive him. Suddenly the crowd halted, fell off, and Captain Kyar and his command emerged from the mass as the moon from a cloud. Unconscious of the of the cause, I followed.

"Ha alt!"

A fellow with a gun approached menacingly.

"Git back there, barefoot!" And to accelerate my movements, the guard feelingly insinuated his bayonet into my trousers. A laugh went up as I sprang with a howl into the crowd.

I squeezed my way through, fearful the guard might follow me; and soon the sound of the fife and drum came indistinctly to my ears.

New scenes attracted my attention. A peddler standing on his cart held a tin skimmer in his hand, endeavoring to get a bid.

"Gin me a bid, gentlemen! Only ten cents for this here nice article—made from the very best imported materials, and by the skillfullest workmen! Goin' at ten cents—ten cents—ten cents! Who'll say three? That don't begin to pay! Why, gentlemen, Camilla could skim the plain with this ere. I can even make poetry on it. (Sings.)

"'O, my love is like a new tin skimmer,
And I'm the curd for a cheese,
And she skims me out in a rimmer,
And gives me a precious squeeze.'"

"Did you say four?"

The peddler stopped and looked straight at me. I suspect that I nodded, for he directly proceeded:

"Boy with unclothed toes, but with pocket full of coppers, says four cents. Carries the skimmer right home to his marm, like a good un—and cheap at that! Four cents I'm offered, who'll say the five? Coin' at four cents; say five! Goin', goin,' at four cents; say five! Cheap as dirt. Take the lot, only six, and you shall have 'em. D'ye say five?"

The peddler looked at me again. This time I was as rigid as a statue.

"Sonny goes four cents and nary a cent more, who says five? Four cents, four cents, four cents; say five and it's a bargain, I'm offered only four cents. Why, gentlemen, it's taking the very bread from the mouth of the man who made it. It's a capital article! Just look at it! Why it will skim a flint! Will you say five cents? Four cents is a bid? Goin', goin'—I shan't stand, gentlemen—goin' goin'?

"Once! twice! will you say five cents? Four cents. Gone to ragged boy for four cents!"

The skimmer was passed over to the peddler's assistant, at the other end of the cart.

"Come here, boy, and get your property," said the last named personage, beckoning to me. "Fine young man, if you are barefoot! Guess them toes was cold this mornin.' Whalin' frost, but it'll be all right sonny, when Caleb gets round, wont it? Boots 'll come then."

I wondered how he knew Caleb Clamps was to make my boots. I was ignorant that the night previous he had "sparked" a girl in the family where Caleb was at work.

"Here's your article, my boy. Got four cents, hey!"

I felt piqued at the doubt he expressed, and drew out a whole handful of villanous copper.

"Jehu!" he exclaimed. "Why, you're rich!"

He speedily relieved me of four pieces putting the skimmer into my hand.

"Look here, little fellow, you must buy something else. Here"—he passed down a japanned tin whistle, blowing on it a wheezy blast.

"Guess I wont buy," said I, edging off.

I didn't like the tone of the instrument.

"Why not? You've got lots of money. P'rhaps you don't like the sound of that? Here's a better toned one.' He took down the second one, which produced a blast more hideous than the first.

"Guess I won't buy." And I moved off sideways again.

"Look here boy,"—the fellow gazed directly at me. "D'you ever read how Franklin bought the whistle?

"Yes."

"Dang'd if I don't think so! Well, you can go."

I penetrated every crowd; listened to banters for swapping horses; looked in at the candy stands to see what they had to vend; investigated the centre of a "card" of gingerbread and found—flies, and explored the bottom of a glass of dirty compound called lemonade. Then I looked about for new fields to conquer.

I found myself, presently, in a secluded spot among a knot of men whose movements greatly interested me. A painted cloth, marked with figures, lay on a table. A man seated at one side shook some ivory cubes with black spots in a leathern box, while others placed various pieces of money on the figures on the cloth. The man shaking the cubes threw them on the table and counted the spots. Some of the men took up their money, and another with a small pile of change passed them more; but the greater portion of the money they laid down he raaked over to his own pile.

Curious to investigate this mystery, with a deal of hesitation, I placed a dime on one of the figures. The man gave me a sharp look, and I was pleased when he with the money shoved over another dime to me. Grinning, I put it in my pocket, placing my dime on another figure, getting for the second venture another dime from the man.

I was a very innocent gambler, very "lucky," maugre the ill omen of my birth. My winnings continued till I put several dollars in my pocket. The man kept telling me to "double," but I shook my head as though I understood my business, though what "double" meant I didn't know. At last the man with the cubes offered me a half dollar to "clear out."

It was not a bad operation on his part, for all his customers had drawn off to observe me.

I accepted the offer and went away. The crowd followed and inquired the amount I had won, I was cautious and vouchsafed them no information. I shied away to a distant point in the field and got down behind a stone heap and Enough, that I never saw so much together before; I forgot everything—trainers and all—in its contemplation.

I was startled from my position by the rapid approach of Captain Gline's horse company. Their evolutions interested me exceedingly. Their red coats, dangling scabbards, and drawn swords, fox skin caps and shakos filled me with admiration.

"Ha—alt!" And the company drew up in shape like a Virginia fence not twenty feet from me.

"R-r-right.——about——fa——ace!" There were spurrings, and rearings and pitchings, and jerking of reins, and the company faced about, the captain in the rear.

"Fo.—rard——ma——arch!" And away went the troop rearward like a crab.

"Trot!"

"Gallop!"

Just then the artillery came out and discharged their field-piece. I sprang forward as if it had been an electric battery. It was rather the loudest gun I had ever heard. Then there was an outcry. The horses of the troop were rearing and pitching, and snorting with fright. Peleg Chandler, who belonged to the company, rode his high-spirited handsome "colt," and soon I saw the startled animal dash from the line and fling his rider headlong to the ground. Peleg leaped to his feet, shook the dirt from his uniform, but the "colt" was off. Hundreds of people pursued him, waving hats and arms; heading him off one way to have him dash another; shooting and hallooing, while the "colt," head and tail erect pranced over the ground as though he had awoke to some rapid sport. The circle about him, however, grew "smaller by degrees," and at last he was captured; and Peleg rescated himself in the saddle and rejoined his comrades.

It would have been tedious to describe all I saw that day. I stopped and saw the review, and at a safe distance viewed the sham fight; saw company after company march up and fire volley on volley; saw officers gallop swiftly over the field, urging the men forward with voice and gesture; saw the artillery run up and discharge their gun, and quickly shifting the drag-ropes, jerk it back to secure position; saw Captain Kyar's company, with fixed bayonets march up to to take it, and saw Captain Glines and his troop dash down upon them to prevent it. Captain Kyar faced his men about, they dropped on one knee, and placing the butts of their muskets to the ground, presented a line of bristling bayonets to bar the horses' progress. The artillery ran out again, and fired, the report scattering the troop like so many sheep. Captain Kyar again came down with charged bayonets, but the artilery took refuge in the rear of several companies, who received the gallant captain with volleys of musketry, and drove him back. All this was grand, exciting, sublime. One company, in their excitement, had thrown off their boots, and took it barefooted, acting as skirmishers. There was in one corner of the field a largebrier-patch, and the advantage to be taken of it was not lost sight of by those whom the skirmishers annoyed. Under the command of the lieutanant colonel, a line of infantry was formed, with right and left wings flanking the "sharp shooters," and then with charged bayonets the line bore down on the "double-quick."

The doomed barefoots took to their heels, but the only avenue of escape was through the briers. Into them they went pell mell. Then there arose a hoarse yell, and the valiant skirmishers went down to a man. This ended the fight, and when it was over there was one company at least that came out pretty thoroughly "scratched." Ever after it was known as the "Barefoot Rangers of Brier Hill."

Not till darkness began to settle down on nature did I think to return home; and then I left the field with a sigh that the sport was over.

I recounted to my parents the scenes that I had witnessed, not forgetting the money I had obtained. I was supprised to observe them, when I came to that look, grave, and more to have them tell me that I had been engaged in a very bad act—gambling. Long, but kindly, did my mother speak to me of the heinousness of that vice. She warned me to shun it in the future, as I would every other.

A gay party of the young bloods of Jacksonville became demoralized at a dancing soiree given by Prof. Robinson last week. The lamp in the hall, at the foot of the stairs, began to show signs of getting on a tare, so as to organize a Bald Mountain, when some of the young men became so limber that in vain the taut horse hair wandered to and fro over the intestine cat string! 'Twas no go. The scare was too great. They "couldn't come it" any more, even after the incendiary lamp had been suppressed. Grant is responsible for these facts.

The Commissioners Court and its Work.

Last week we promised our readers a statement from the proper County officers, of the amount of new debts made and the amount of old debts paid off by the present Commissioners Court. Upon application to the Treasurer, he informed us that he had prepared a similar statement to the one desired in response to a request of the Grand Jury of the County, which he courteously gave us. This report we publish this week for the consideration of our readers. It will be seen from it, that there was a debt of nearly thirteen thousand dollars hanging over the County when the present Commissioners' Court came into office on the 1st. of January, 1872. Counting interest the debt was more than that figure. In addition to this, the county had just previously been visited by tremendous freshets, which had swept many costly and important bridges away throughout the county. These were the difficulties the Court had to encounter at the outset. In that year it also happened that the expenses of the Circuit Courts were very heavy amounting to only two thousand dollars [illegible] paid the expenses of the grand [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible] and

All schoolable white children in the Township have a right to attend these schools during this time, and receive instruction to the value of the school Fund. Each pupil will be entitled to about one dollar of the public fund. All who can do so, are requested to avail themselves, of this opportunity.
S. H. LOCKETT,
Principal.

We attended on Thursday night the last of a series of Lectures, for this session, by Prof. S. H. Lockett, on the four elements, fire, air, earth and water. These lectures have been uniformly exceedingly interesting and instructive, attended by large and appreciative audiences.

In this connection we call attention to the fact, made known in this paper by the Principal, that the pupils of Calhoun College and Jacksonville Female Academy will receive the benefit of the Public School Fund for the remainder of the present session.

Tribute of Respect.

The following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted by the Jacksonville Lodge of Good Templars, at their last meeting:

Whereas, It has has pleased the All-wise Ruler of the Universe, to remove from our midst, by death, our sister, Mrs. N. E. Johnston, wife of Rev. M. B. Johnston, who died in this place after a brief illness, on Sunday 3rd. inst., and the deceased, though she had resided but a few months among us, had endeared herself to her brethren and sisters of the Church and order of Good Templars, by her meek and Christian temper, and amiable, kind and affectionate disposition, therefore be it

Resolved, That while we bow with resignation to this dispensation of Providence, we deeply regret and mourn the early death of our worthy sister, and tender to her surviving husband and relatives, our sincere and heartfelt sympathies, in this sad and distressing bereavement, and trust that their grief may be tempered by heavenly hope, and sanctified to their future and eternal good.

Resolved, That these proceedings be entered upon the minutes of our Lodge and its publication requested in the Jacksonville REPUBLICAN.

A YOUNG DEMON.

Special Dispatch to the New York Times.]

BOSTON, April 23.—The story of the child-murder is one of the most extraordinary of the period. The boy, Jesse Pomeroy, suspected from the first as the murderer, to-day confessed and is now awaiting examination. Before his confession a chain of circumstantial evidence had been formed against him.—When the boy was taken at the house of his mother, a respectable dress-maker, in South Boston, a knife was found on his person spotted with blood. A spot of blood marked the breast of the under-shirt, and his boots were covered with mud of that peculiar hue and consistence that belong alone to the soil of marsh lands. Early this morning officers visited the scene of this murder, a spot on the marsh land jutting into Dorchester Bay, midway between Washington Village and Savin Hill, half a mile from McKay's wharf. From the wharf to the spot where the body was found was two sets of footprints in the marsh mud. Of both these parties casts were made, and they displayed peculiarities which afterward proved almost conclusive that the right person had been arrested on the charge. A detail of policemen kept off a curious crowd, so that the tracks was not obliterated. The track showed plainly that Pomeroy jumped on the wharf into the soft clay, and then from his place walked backwards, taking a distance by a swing of his arms. The boots of the murderer being exactly fitted the nailer points and corresponded precisely with the plaster casts taken of the prints. At noon to-day Detective Woods took the boy to the mud-raker's where the body lay, and placed the murderer face to face with his victim. Pomeroy turned away his head. "Do you know that little boy?" "Yes, sir." "Did you kill him?" "I suppose I did." "Well, how did you get the blood on the knife? Did you wash it off?" "No sir, I stuck it into the mud." For the first time since his arrest the boy showed some signs of contrition, and expressed the desire that his mother should not be informed of his act. He is now in Charles Street Jail, to await the action of the Coroner's Jury, which holds a session to-morrow afternoon.

The record of this extraordinary boy is a terrible one. Early in 1872 there was great excitement in Chelsea caused by the horrible torture of a number of little fellows by this boy, who was not discovered until a hundred or more boys had been arrested, and he was, after trial sent to the Reform School, at Westborough, for the remainder of his minority. His victims were many. One was the son of Mr. Paine, of Chelsea, who was about Christmas, 1871, taken by Pomeroy to Powder Horn Hill, stripped naked tied to a beam, beaten with a rope and left helpless. Tracy Hayden, another boy, was, on Feb. 21, 1872, stripped, tied up and beaten with a board and ropes, by which some of his teeth were knocked out, the bridge of his nose broken, and other more serious injuries inflicted. Johny Balch was enticed to Powder Horn Hill soon after July 4, 1872, stripped, gagged, tied to a beam, beaten and then taken to a salt water creek and washed. Robey Gould in in September of the same year, was taken from South Boston to the vicinity of the Hartford and Erie Railroad, stripped, tied to a telegraph pole, whipped and cut with a knife in the head. Harry Austin, in August of the same year, was, at South Boston, stripped, beaten and cut in the back and groin with a knife. George Pratt, about the same time, was carried into the cabin of a yacht at South Boston, stripped and punctured with pins and needles in different parts of his body and left insensible and bleeding. Joseph Kennedy, was, about the same time taken to to a place on the Old Colony Road in South Boston, and maltreated in about the same manner that the Gould boy had been. These boys were all of tender age, from seven to eleven years old. When arraigned Pomeroy confessed that he was guilty, and assigned as the only reason that he could not help it.—Considerable inquiry has been made as to how Pomeroy, after his conviction of so many heinous offenses, was pardoned out of the reform School, after being there only a year and five months. The explanation is as follows. When boys are sent to the Reform School they are sent for their minority, unless previously discharged. If, after a considerable stay, their behavior has been exemplary; and they give promise of reform and future good behavior, and if they have a good home to which their parents are anxious to have them returned, they are often pardoned on probation. This was the case with Pomery. His mother petitioned for his being put on probation and allowed to come home, and as his record while in the school was good, granted on February 6, 1874.

THE WAR IN ARKANSAS.

LITTLE ROCK, May 3.—A Gazette special from Pine Bluff gives the following particulars of the fight near New Gascony. Thursday 200 Brooks men with Murphy and Vandesande as leaders threatened that they intended to Pine Bluff and take the court-house, or burn every house in the city. General King White went down with 80 white and colored mounted and footmen and after arriving within a short distance of the insurgents, who were at a gin-house on the Ashley place he sent forward three staff officers ahead to order the insurgents to disband, when the insurgents saw the staff officers coming they immediately fired a volly upon them, and orders from White were given to charge the insurgents. They made a stand at Corner Stone church and the fight began in earnest, but lasted only a short time. Six of White's command were wounded and five killed, and twelve wounded of the insurgents, and Murphy and Vandesande and sixty-three men captured. All but the two leaders were released on parole. Murphy and Vandesande are still in custody.

ST. LOUIS, May 3.—A special to the Democrat from Little Rock says:

The Gazette this morning commends thus up the affair yesterday at New Gascony where General King White has fought the first battle. He encountered 200 of Brooks men (or, more properly, a mob, near New Gascony, Jefferson county, yesterday, and killed, wounded and captured the whole outfit. Thus the war opens, and it will extend throughout the State unless the President takes speedy action in the matter.

A few more King Whites would soon settle the present troubles. The dispatch then states that Gen. Jas. F. Fagan, a prominent Democrat, who espoused the Liberal cause in 1872, has been one of Brooks staunchest supporters, and he placed in command of the entire militia of the State, with the rank of Major-General. In assuming command he has addressed the people of the State in a calm, dignified manner, counseling peace and law, and a peaceable solution of the difficulties. Simultaneously many Democrats have issued addresses advising submission to the judiciary tribunals of the State, and indorsing the cause and position of Brooks.

The guerrilla warfare, inaugurated by Baxter, has met the severest censure from all classes of citizens. Dispatches received from Pine Bluff say: White has returned and reports seven Brooks men killed, twenty wounded and sixty prisoners. His own loss was three White commanded the attack.

Vandesande, in command of Brooks volunteers, was badly wounded, and Sheriff Vaugh was arrested. The White command leaves for a raid into Arkansas county to-night.

LITTLE ROCK, May 3.—The situation is unchanged. Both parties have received reinforcements and sent an equal number home. The Confederate soldiers hold generally aloof. The agent of the Associated Press claim that so the one attempted to assassinate him.

ST. LOUIS, May 4.—A special to the Democrat from Little Rock, says Judges Scott and Bennett of the Supreme Court, were arrested last night on their arrival by the Memphis train at Argenta, opposite by Capt. Williams, acting under orders of Gov. Baxter. The Judges refused to be arrested without proper authority, whereupon Capt. Williams made a sign and a band of armed men entered the car with cocked revolvers and Searle and Bennett were roughly taken from the train and at the time the dispatch was written had not been heard of in Little Rock. The Supreme Court was to convene in Little Rock to-day. No decision also of the Supreme Court was on file to-day but it is presumed arrangements were made between the two and have been carried. The affair created great excitement in Brooks camp and serious conflict appears inevitable. Gov. Baxter is responsible for the seizure of the Judges.

The Arkansas Eldorado.

FULTON, ARK., April 19, 1874.

To the Editor of the Enquirer:

After spending a few weeks in examining the various mines in the new mineral district near the Cossatot River, I made a brief report to numerous friends through your columns. I left Fulton March 25th, and after traveling fifty days on a very rough horse, over a very rough road, I arrived at the first mining camp on the Cossatot River (a fine mountain stream, full of fine trout and other varieties of most excellent fish), a distance of ninety miles. As this camp had only been established a few days, but little prospecting had been done, though I was shown some very rich silver quartz, and a handful or more of placer gold, which will, from surface indications, be found in great quantities. After a ride of fifteen miles and a swim across numerous streams I arrived at Saltrown, on the Davis silver lode. Here I found many men at work, and the richest and most extensive silver mine I ever visited in several years' experience in the mines of Nevada and Mexico. Here I found a vein of silver ore assaying from $2 20 to $4 50 to ton, eighty feet wide, miles long, and varying from ten inches to three feet in thickness, being beyond the calculation of man to tell its value. From here I visited the antimony leads on the Rolling Fork of Little River, and find them also rich beyond description. Here this useful metal exists in quantities sufficient to supply the world for years to come, and as the process of reduction is much like lead, sixty days' fence will find several furnaces in active operation. Lead is not considered worth looking after, but never in my life have I ever seen such a mass of mineral. Lead Mountain is really a mountain of lead, judging from external indications, contains millions of tons of pure galena, and certainly will some day be worked to advantage. It is estimated that a thousand men are to work in the district, but I certainly do not think half that many are at work though the country is all mountains, and this is a matter very difficult to ascertain. Wages range from two to five dollars per day, owing to man's ability as a miner; and as these mines have only been discovered six weeks but few regular miners are at work. The country is very healthy, and wild game is found along the mountain streams in great abundance, and the streams are all full of the finest fish I ever saw. In regard to chances every man has a chance for every any new discoveries are being make and claims can be taken, or if parties prefer buying to prospecting, good claims can be bought low down for cash. Persons coming to the mines expecting to gather it up by the shovelful will be as much disappointed as many of my Louisville Lottery friends were, though at present I do not know of any thing that offers half as fair as the mines in Sevier County, Arkansas. As I shall be in Fulton every other week. I will be glad to give any of my friends all the information I can relative to those newly discovered mines, and if you consider my efforts newsy enough to publish, I will keep you posted and report all matters of interest as they occur.
Yours very respectfully, J. H. LEWIS, M. D.

From the Rome Courier.

The Negroes of Tennessee.

The negroes of Tennessee have just held a State Convention at Nashville. The object of the Convention was to look after the equal rights of their race and to make a demand upon Congress to pass the supplemental Civil Rights bill introduced by Sumner on the first day of the present session of Congress. The deliberations of the Convention seem to have been orderly, and the proceedings characterized by a degree of ability we did not expect.

The spirit of the Convention, as exhibited in speeches and resolutions, was clamorous, though quietly so, for the recognition of their equality on the line of the Sumner bill; and that no compromise short of complete equality on that line with the whites was to be expected from them. In the most preremptory manner they demand their rights of Congress and the lawmakers of Tennessee. Brownlow was branded with the mark of Judas, and high-toned notions of intermarriage with the whites were expressed, and the Bible was brought forward, and Moses produced in evidence of the justice of that view of the negro question—the great law-giver of Israel having married an Ethiopian according to the tenth chapter of Numbers.

As a race, the negroes have the sympathies of our people. All that can be done to promote their welfare will be readily accorded. They will be fully protected in all of their rights before the law. But the white people of this country will never consent to a amalgamation of the races by intermarriage. How could it be otherwise? They should.

It is a repulsive association of the races that can never be tolerated. It would produce a mongrel race of men inferior in intellect and destructive to the civilization of the age. The races cannot and will not be permitted to commingle by intermarriage. Nor will social equality ever become a "mixed fact." God, in His wisdom, erected barriers to this sort of thing which man cannot and dare not attempt to break down.

The best the negro race can do for its happiness and prosperity is to accept the natural situation in which the God of Nature has placed them. He is wiser than men, and He, in the creation, drew the line of distinction between the Caucasian and African races that neither man nor angels can obliterate. Let the negro realize the works of his Creator and resign himself to His will, and work out his own separate destiny, and he will find all the greater help from the white race by so doing.

Breakers Ahead.

On the faith of private, but reliable, information we warn the Democrats and Conservaties of the white counties of Alabama that the Radical enemy is preparing to execute a sharp manœuvre in the approaching campaign. He proposes to nominate mixed tickets in counties of that sort—giving half the places to Democrats and the other half to Radicals. In view of this fact, it would be well to have it understood at once that no Democrat or Conservative can lend himself to our enchantment. The moment he does so he becomes a Radical—bought and paid for as a sheep or any other soulless animal may be bought. It is quite probable that here and there a professing Democrat may be found who, in the absence of a general expression of public opinion, would be willing to sell out. Others, again, will try to persuade themselves that they can be of some local benefit to the party by becoming a candidate on the Radical ticket. But no local advantage, however great, can set off the vast injury that would result to the State from such conduct on their part. The general government is the heart of the whole political system and if that be diseased the whole system must necessarily suffer. It is the fountain from which all political and many social influences flow out through the State and if the fountain be impure the springs which feed from it cannot escape defilement. It is therefore of the first importance that the State Government be purified—the Augean stables cleansed. To this consideration all others occupy a mere secondary relation. It will not profit the people at all to gain every county in the State if the Radicals retain controls of the State Government. It will do no good to have Col. A. or Gen. B. in the office of Probate Judge if GREEN, SHADRACH, WASHINGTON LEWIS, and others of like kind are to have the manufacturing of the laws of the State. It will be a vain task to try to draw purity from the spigot while Radical State officials pour filth in at the bung hole.

FROM LOUISIANA.

NEW ORLEANS, May 5.—There is no abatement. Edgar Frazier, manage of Belle River plantation, in Assumption parish, says that in this section of the parish there is a population of about one thousand, white and black, destitute of the first necessaries of life, living on rafts and housetops, with no transportation of any kind, and the nearest land twenty miles distant. All their cattle and horses are drowned, and the water is still rising about six inches in twenty-four hours.

Mrs. S. A. Briggs, writing from Hesperus plantation, Mad son parish, says: "Permit me to call your attention to the sufferings of the freedmen on my plantation, one hundred and ten in number. We are submerged. The merchants not extending credit, provisions are exhausted and stock destroyed. The woman and children come to me and I am without means to help them or myself."

Monroe, LA., April 25.—There are no crops to speak of, and not five day's work has been done along the river for four weeks. In the hills the lands are washed badly, and what has been done towards making a crop, has been poorly thrown away. What the people are to do God alone knows.

Our Dormant Energies.

Our bodies are not as vigorous nor our minds as clear as they might be. This remark is true of at least two-thirds of civilized society, and of these two thirds probably one-half is laboring under bodily infirmities of a character likely to shorten the lives of the sufferers. This is a melancholy exhibit and furnishes abundant food for reflection. Can the evil be mitigated? Lack of vitality is the primary cause of most of the physical and mental suffering to which we are subjected, and therefore a vitalizing medicinal agent is the remedy required. Is there such a medicine? There is. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will rouse and energize the mind and body when the life power of the system is in a comparatively dormant state. The languid, feeble, dispirited invalid is not aware of the latent energies that underlies his debility. He thinks there is no element of vigor left in his frame, when the fact is that his physical capabilities are merely asleep and only require waking up. Let him stimulate and tone his animal machinery and endow it with new motive power, through the agency of this incomparable invigorant, and he will soon feel like a new man, or rather like a man who has received a new lease of life, and the requisite health to enjoy it. Many business men suffer from chronic langnor and depression caused by too close application to business. Hard students are often oppressed with melancholy from a like cause. Mechanics and working men are affected in the same way as a result of over-labor. To all who are in this condition, from whatever cause, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will prove a signal blessing. It is a perfect panacea for physical debility and mental gloom. It strengthens the body, clears the mind and calms the nervous system; while as a remedy for indigestion, biliousness, constipation, rheumatism, and intermittent and remittent fevers, it takes precedence of all other medicines.

PLANTATIONS.

Plantations, factories, work-shops, and all places where large numbers of hands are employed, should never be without the Magic Arnica Liniment. For families it is invaluable. Bruises, sprains, hurts, wounds and injuries are rapidly cured by it, and the pain subdued at once.

READ THE EVIDENCE.

Major R. Abbey, of Commerce, Mississippi, states he used the Magic Arnica Liniment upon several of his working hands for pains and aches, and it acted splendidly. One case was a boy who was very lame, and was entirely relieved by its use.

The Gem Microscope—The Gem Microscope is truly an optical wonder. It reveals thousands of unseen wonders and curiosities of God's minute creation; the smallest worlds teeming with animal life, the little things of nature with which we are surrounded, but which are invisible to the naked eye, the thousand and one curiosities and minute objects with many of which we are familiar, because we have read or heard of them, but which to the unaided vision have remained a sealed book, are brought within the realizing reach of our sight and understanding by the use of the Gem, and many wonders entirely new to us are also brought to sight by its use. No article for the same price has ever been offered to the public which combines the essential points of valuable instruction and entertaining refined amusement to so great an extent as this instrument; every family has only to appreciate its merits to become its possessor. It is so low-priced that everybody can have one, and so simple a child can use it. Parents should provide their children with this valuable instructor. This Microscope possesses the great advantage of being used by lamp-light as well as by day-light, and thus affords entertainment after the occupations of the day are laid aside. It is really of great value to any family if only because it shows the adulterations in food, as sugars, teas, etc., and the qualities of cloths. It also plainly shows Trichina Spiralis or Pork Worm whenever it exists in pork. It is safely mailed, post paid, on receipt of price ($5 00) to any address by the BENEDICT COMPANY, 378 Wabash Avenue, CHICAGO. See their advertisement elsewhere.

Lizzie Carlton.

A TRUE STORY OF THIRTY YEARS AGO.
[From the Louisville Courier-Journal.]

About 30 years ago there came to this city a stranger, young girl in her teens, who gave her name as Lizzie Carlton. Nothing more was known of her than that she was accompanied hither by a young man who was, or pretended to be, deaf and dumb, and who left at once after aiding her in obtaining a situation in the establishment of a Mrs. Williams, a milliner and dressmaker on 4th street, nearly opposite the spot where Banker's New York store now stands.

Lizzie was a handsome brunette, with a wealth of raven hair which swept the floor, with bright, expressive eyes, and, altogether, genteel and dignified in her general appearance. From her lady like deportment and close attention to the interests of her employer, she was soon made superintendent of the establishment. The social lines were not so strongly marked and scrupulously guarded then as now and hence the young and beautiful stranger was soon received into the best company—forming a number of friends outside of her business circle, among others a Mrs. E., a prominent member of the Baptist church, at whose house Lizzie was a frequent visitor. She, in time, attached herself to that church and became a most exemplary member.

During her visits to Mrs. E.'s she met Peilip Slaughter, himself one of the pillars of the church, who, after living in single blessedness for years, enjoying his wealth and family station alone, soon conceived a tender sentiment for the young and lovely sister. Old bachelors are considered public property in so far that a lively public interest is always manifested in their matrimonial welfare, and hence it was not long after the match makers put their heads together until the twain were made one. The marriage cermony was performed at the Baptist church, then standing on the southwest corner of Fifth and Green streets, Rev. Mr. Buck officiating. The happy bride and groom, accompanied by a number of their brothers and sisters, repaired tothe residence of Mr. Slughter, about 10 miles from the city, to partake of the usual festivities.

The honey moon witnessed a mutual growth of admiration between the two, and not only the honey moon, but several other moons, waxed and waned, and waned, and dipped with honey "sweeter than the honey comb."

Alas! that man's avarice and brutality should break in to mar and destroy a scene of happiness like this!

About sunet one evening the doorbell rang. Lizzie—now Mrs. Slaughter—left her husband's bedside (he was confined to his-bed by a slight illness at this time) arranged her toilet, and descended to the parlor.

One piercing scream, that startled the echoes and shook the rafters roused Mr. Slaughter, and he rushed down stairs. What was his astonishment and dismay when he found his bride fainting on the floor, and a strange gentleman attended by a policeman, bending over her.

"Sir," said the stranger, "this woman is my slave. Her name is Malinda Cass. I am a Mississippian—here is the bill of sale. I bought her a few months before she escaped from my home. I have been on her track for a long time; and now she must return with me."

The distress of this unfortunate couple drew, at once, a large concourse of their friends, who were as much at a loss what to advise in the midstof these strange revelations as were those most deeply concerned. The husband, after the first paroxysm of his grief had subsided, vowed eternal fidelity to his wife, bond or free and with the assistance of Deacon Elliott, Rev. Mr. Buck, and others, it was arranged that, to quiet matters, the stranger should be indemnified for the loss of his slave, and a little party of friends met at the Galt House, where the Mississippian received $700 for compensation and returned home.

But Mr. S. being a rather feebleminded and easily influenced man, was so beset by his relatives that he abandoned his wife, as they could not tolerate one in such relation as that, who had one drop of African blood in her veins, however concealed beneath a fair exterior. He turned the poor woman into the street, and she, broken hearted; went from place to place in the capacity of a seamstress, soon after giving birth to a son. She managed to support herself and child, and to bear up under all her misfortunes until Mr. S. married another. She at once took to her bed, was kindly attended by the sisters of charity and a few of the Baptist sisters in this city, until she died of a broken heart.

Mr. Elliott went South to learn true statement of her history but the reports there were as conflicting as they had in the meantime come to be here.

Lizzie Carolton persisted to the last that she was a pure Circassian, a free woman. She related that her mother, a Portugese, on reaching this country, being a dark brunette, formed the acquaintance of a wealthy planter in New Orleans who became so infatuated with her that he took her to his home, and to conceal his purposes from his wife, got her consent to pass her as his servant—her appearance enabling her to assume the character of a bright mulatto. Lizzie was the offspring of this illicit strategy, and the planter, dying suddenly, and without disclosing the true character of his mistress—who herself died soon after. Lizzie, while quite a child, desended to the heirs of the estate; and the estate becoming involved, she was sold to a stranger—the same who afterwards visited Louisville in search of his property. She further stated that the gentleman who brought her here was her half brother—the son of her mother's seducer—and that she fled to escape the persecutions of her purchaser, who persisted in soliciting favors which her womanly virtue could not tolerate.

A few pitied and more blamed the unfortunate woman for imposting herself, as they called it, on this community.—But time has mellowed theharshness of the sentiment which was then prevalent and made unanimous the opinion that her story was true in all respects. The oldest inhabitants of Louisville now declare their belief that she was indeed the daughter of a Portugese woman; that she was altogether gifted with splendid virtues, and was the innocent victim of the strategy of her parents, and was, of course, as much entitled to the rights of a free woman as any one who walks Fourth street to day. Her father's and mother's sudden death was the cause of her woes; even her ostensible owner was ignorant of her true history. How terribly, in this instance, were the sins of the parents visited upon the child.

Poor, heart broken woman! A little grave in the western cemetery of this city has set upon her lips the seal of everlasting silence and it is meet, now that time, which sooner or later works its revenges and grants that justice which was withheld, that the true story of her life should be written—that the cloud which enshrouded her son, if he is living to-day, may rest no longer under the false imputation of having been born a slave.

Soon after the death of Philip Slaughter, his relatives sent the boy referred to ab ve to Hawesville in this state, to be raised by a man named Luckett, or Lucky, under an assumed name, and since that time nothing has been known of his fate, unless to the relatives of Mr. Slaughter, several of whom are still living.

TELEGRAMS.

Monroe, La., April 27.—The water rises and people continue coming in from the rear as the water approaces. The sidewalks and streets are the only pastures for stock. The loss of cattle and hogs by the overflow, is very great. The sun shone all day, and there is a prospect of better weather.

Savannah, April 27.—The Chattahoochee is overflowed its entire length there is considerable damage.

Poughkeepsi, N. Y., April 27.—Trains were delayed by storms—snow four feet deep in the ruts.

New Orleans, April 26.—The river is falling, and is now two feet below high water. From five to seven days' mails are due from Northern, Eastern and Western cities.

New Orleans, April 26. Thirty thousand dollars in bank to the credit of the relief fund, but the calamity will require aid from every quarter.

Monroe, La., April 26.—The river rose a quarter of an inch last night, and backwater an inch and a half. Washington street is flooded to within three blocks of the river. The river is at a stand today, and the weather is fair and warm. There is no intelligence from above or below. The railroad company have surrendered the mail contract between here and Vicksburg, and the telegraph is now the only source of correspondence.

Louisville, April 27.—The steamer Exporte left here yesterday afternoon with five tons of Government rations for the Louisana sufferers.

Dr. Brooks, the Universalist author of "New Departure," says: "The doctrine of a fixed and unconditional salvation, certain for all as death, has had a fair trial in our history, and the verdict is Tekel. It has been weighed in the balances and found wanting."

New Orleans, April 25.—The Jackson railroad is flooded, bridges gone &c. near Amite. On the Mobile railroad, the bridge over the Pearl river was washed away, and a portion of the West Pascagoula bridge is gone. There has been no trains to-day by either road. A rain storm prevailed here this morning, the wind was blowing half a gale from the northeast. Six day's northeastern and western mails are now due. The steamer, Great Republic is due here to-morrow with sixty-nine packages of mail matter.

St. Louis, April 27.—The Times asserts that two thousand Springfield rifles, thirteen thousand rounds of ammunition and several cases of postols were shipped in secret of "Brooks," forces. It also says that five car loads of provision have been shipped to the same parties.

VINEGAR BITTERS

PURELY VEGETABLE — FREE FROM ALCOHOL

P — D. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA — PURE

VINEGAR BITTERS

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BITTERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases

The properties of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

HEALTH! BEAUTY!!
STRONG AND PURE RICH BLOOD—INCREASE OF FLESH AND WEIGHT—CLEAR SKIN AND BEAUTIFUL COMPLEXION SECURED TO ALL

DR. RADWAY'S
Sarsaparillian Resolvent
THE GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER.

HAS MADE THE MOST ASTONISHING CURES; SO QUICK, SO RAPID ARE THE CHANGES, THE BODY UNDERGOES UNDER THE INFLUENCE OF THIS TRULY WONDERFUL MEDICINE, THAT

Every Day an Increase in Flesh and Weight is Seen and Felt.

Every drop of the SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT communicates through the Blood, Sweat, Urine, and other Fluids and juices of the system the vigor of life, for it repairs the wastes of the body with new and sound material. Scrofula, Syphilis, Consumption, Glandular disease, Ulcers in the throat, Mouth, Tumors, Nodes in the Glands and other parts of the system, Sore Eyes, Strumorous discharges from the Ears, and the worst forms of skin diseases, Eruptions, Fever Sores, Scald Head, Ring Worm, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Acne, Blotch Spots, Worm in the Flesh, Tumors, Cancers in the Womb, and all weakening and painful discharges, Night sweats, Loss of Sperm and all waste of the life principle, are within the curative range of this wonder of Medical Chemistry, and a few days' use will prove to any person using it for either of these forms of disease its potent power to cure them.

If the patient, daily becoming reduced by the waste and decomposition that is continually progressing, succeeds in arresting these wastes, and repairs the same with new material made from healthy blood—and this the SARSAPARILLIAN will and does secure—a cure is certain; for when once this remedy commences its work of purification, and progress in diminishing the loss of wastes, its repairs will be rapid, and every day the patient will feel himself growing better and stronger, the food digests, better appetite improving, and flesh and weight increasing.

Not only does the SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT excel all known remedies in the cure of Chronic, Scrofulous, Constitutional, and Skin diseases; but it is the only positive cure for

Kidney & Bladder Complaints,

Urinary and Womb diseases, Gravel, Diabetes, Dropsy, Stoppage of Water, Incontinence of Urine, Bright's Disease, Albuminuria, and in all cases where there are brick-dust deposits, or the water is thick, cloudy, mixed with substances like the white of an egg, or threads like white silk, or there is a morbid, dark, bilious appearance, and white bone-dust deposits, and when there is a pricking, burning sensation when passing water, and pain in the Small of the Back and along the Loins.

Tumor of 12 Years' Growth Cured by Radway's Resolvent.

DR. RADWAY'S
Perfect Purgative & Regulating Pills,

perfectly tasteless, elegantly coated with sweet gum, purge, regulate, purify, cleanse and strengthen Radway's Pills, for the cure of all disorders of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys, Bladder, Nervous Diseases, Headache, Constipation, Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Bilious Fever, Inflammation of the Bowels, Piles, and all Derangements of the Internal Viscera. Warranted to effect a positive cure. Purely Vegetable, containing no mercury, minerals or deleterious drugs.

A few doses of "RADWAY'S PILLS" will free the system from all the above named disorders. Price, 25 cents per Box. SOLD BY DRUGGISTS.

READ "FALSE AND TRUE." Send one letter stamp to RADWAY & CO., No. 32 Warren St., New York. Information worth thousands will be sent you.

THE OLD TIME.

There is no song like an old song
That we have not heard for years;
Each simple note appears to throng
With shapes that swim in tears.
It may have been a cheerful strain,
But 'twas so long ago;
That glee, grown old, has turned to pain,
And mirth has turned to woe.

There is no friend like an old friend,
Whose life-path mates our own;
Whose dawn and noon, whose eve & end,
Have known what we have known;
It may be when we read his face
We note a trace of care;
'Tis well that friends in life's last grace
Share sighs and smile they share.

There is no love like an old love,
A lost, may be, or dead,
Whose place, since she has gone above,
No other fills instead.
It is not we'll ne'er love anew,
For life were drear if so,
But that first love had roots that grew
Where others cannot grow.

There are no days like the old days,
When we not t.ey were young;
When all life's rays were golden rays
And wrong had never stung.
Dear heart! if now our steps could pass
Through paths of childhood's morn,
And the dew of youth lie on the grass
Which time's fell scythe has shorn!

Old song, old friend, old love, old days;
Old things, yet never old;
A stream that's dark till sunshine plays
And changes it to gold;
Through all winds memory's river ows,
'Mid banks of sore regret,
But a gleam's on the peaks of long-agone
That soften's sadness yet.

COPPER.

Great Excitement in Randolph Co., Ala

ONE TON TO THE HAND PER DAY AND WORTH $100 PER TON.

On last Monday there passed through this place on their way to the terminus of the Railroad, four two horse wagons, loaded with copper ore, taken from a mine in the upper part of Randolph county, Alabama, which is said to give every evidence of being inexhaustible and also very rich. From the information we can get upon the subject we learn that the mine is in the upper part of Randolph county, where it joins Cleburne, in the vicinity of what is known as Gold Ridge, which place is about twenty miles from this point, and about five or six from the line of this county.

The present works are upon the land of a gentleman by the name of Dick Weeks, who before commencing operations, took specimens of the ore to Baltimore and had it assayed. There it was pronounced very rich—not surpassed by Cornwall, England. Mr. Woods upon his return home, being without means to work the mines properly, managed we learn to get capital advanced to him in Atlanta, upon the prospective promise of the mines. We have not been able to learn the force he has at work, but the parties driving the teams through here on last Monday state, that Mr. W. wants to get about twenty more wagons, and with that number, that he could hardly move the ore from the mines as fast as it was gotten out, and they also stated that a hand could get out a ton per day, so we infer from this, that he has a pretty respectable force at work.

The ore is said to be worth one hundred dollars per ton and to be very accessible, as it lies very near the surface.

The direction of Gold Ridge from this place is due west, and it is quite probable that this mine is connected with the copper mines of this county.

Carrolton Station is the nearest Railroad point to Gold Ridge and it is the intention of Mr. Woods to haul his ore to that place for shipment.—[Carrollton times.

FARMING INCONSISTENCIES

Farmers dig their gardens two feet deep, but only plow their land five inches. They take especial care of their nag horses, in a good warm stable, but expose their farm horses and cattle to all weathers. They deny the utility of drainage in strong tenacious clays, but dare not dig an under ground cellars in such soils because the water would get in. They waste their liquid manure, but buy guano from Peru to repair the loss; and some practical men, who are in ecstacies with the urine of the sheepfold, have been known seriously to doubt the benefit of liquid manure. But it may be asked, "where is the capital to come from for all these improvements?" The reply will be, "where does the capital come from to make railways and docks, to build steam vessels, to erect a whole town of new squares and streets, and to carry out every other useful and profitable undertaking.—Ex, pap.

To the Democratic and Conservative Party of Calhoun County.

Conforming to the call made for a State Convention, and the apportionment of delegates thereto, by the State Executive Committee, I hereby give notice that a Convention of the Democratic and Conservative Party of Calhoun County will be held in the town of Jacksonville on the 13th day of July, 1874, for the purpose of appointing or electing nine (9) delegates to the Democratic State Convention to assemble in the city of Montgomery on the 29th day of July, 1874.

If deemed expedient and proper, the Convention can also take such steps and adopt such measures as may be necessary with regard to the selection of candidates for the Legislature and County offices, in which event beat delegates ought to be instructed by resolution or otherwise as to the will of their respective beats, so that they may act advisedly and with authority.

As a matter for your consideration, I also submit the fact that this year you are to elect your Congressman, Chancellor and Circuit Judge, and, while no conventions have been called to make nominations for these offices, yet should it be determined to hold such conventions, the duty of appointing delegates to represent you in their deliberations, will devolve upon your County Convention Please consider this in your beat meetings and instruct your delegates accordingly.

In order that the Convention may be full and in its results satisfactory to all, I respectfully request and recommend that each beat or voting precinct hold a meeting on the 4th day of July, 1874, and, as advised by the State Executive Committee, "elect one delegate for every twenty-five (25) Democratic and Conservative votes cast in the last general election," also to so distribute the delegates to be elected over the beats or voting precincts, as to make the County Convention representative in character, and in its action reflective of the views of the ENTIRE Democratic party of the county.

THE CEDAR BOX.

A Story of Hidden Gold—What a Texan Baptist Found in a Beautiful Valley—Reminiscences of Mexican Robbers.

[Correspondence of the Sun.

BELTON, TEXAS, April 26.—For several years past there has been a strange story published in many of the local papers of the state in regard to buried treasure, which, if true, places the finder in the possession of one of the most beautiful streams in the world. which for a distance of twenty miles, winds through a rich and fertile valley, about two miles in width, surrounded by a range of mountains on which there are cedar brakes almost impenetrable to man. This valley is known far and near as Noland's Valley, and is celebrated for its springs of pure water, the fertility of the soil, and its many peculiarly shaped mounds.

About fifteen years ago an old Mexican greaser named Antonia came into this section of the country, and hired himself as a laborer to a gentleman of the vicinity. He was about fifty years of age, and one of the most eccentric individuals in the country. Every spare moment he could get he was prowling around through the mountain and valley, apparently in search of something, but when questioned he gave evasive replies. At that early day this country was but thinly inhabited, and the citizens were troubled very much by horse thieves The Mexican's conduct was so peculiar that the citizens began to look on him with suspicion, thinking he was a spy for some band of thieves, locating the whereabouts of the best horses, and finding gaps through the mountains to pilot the thieves in and out. He was frequently absent a day or two at a time, and when questioned would give very unsatisfactory answers. Suspicion with a Texan amounts to guilt, and a few of the neighbors arrested Antonio for the purpose of compelling him to divulge all he knew about the horse thieves. The party proceeded to administer lynch law. He was hanged three times, until life was nearly extinct, but not a word could be forced him in regard to the horse thieves. When he revived sufficiently he told them the following story. He said that about twenty years ago he belonged to a band of Mexican robbers who's retreat was about twenty miles from here, among the mountains on Leon river. One day while the rest of the band were on an expedition, he and comrade conceived the bold design of robbing them and hiding the treasures until the robbers were dispersed, when they would return and get the gold. He said there were four cedar boxes, containing $100,000 each, all in spanish doubloons, which they placed on pack mules and transported to this valley, and buried in four very peculiarly shaped mounds. His partner had been killed in Mexico at a fandango, and he had been confined in a Mexican prison until this time. He said he had been searching the valley over for the mounds where the money was concealed, but so many years had elapsed that he could not find the marks he had left to designate the place. Very few of the party placed any confidence in his narrative, and after a severe castigation he was allowed to go free, with instructions to leave the country forthwith. He has never been seen or heard of in this part of the country since.

Your correspondent was one of the party who arrested the old Mexican, and was inclined to give some credence to the story, but to turn out and seek for the money among so many mounds without and knowledge of the exact locality was like looking for a needle in a hay stack There are very few here now who ever heard the tale, and the oldest settlers have almost let it slip from their memory.

FINDING THE GOLD.

A day or two ago a citizen of this valley was in need of some clay to daub an old-fashioned stick and earth chimney, and as clay is a very scarce article here, he concluded to open one of the mounds and try the earth for that purpose. He opened a hole about three feet deep, where he found a strong cedar box with iron bands. The bands were almost eaten up with rust and were easily removed by hand. With the sharp point of the pick the box was pressed open and found to contain 6,260 Spanish doubloons, almost $100,000. He procured a wagon and removed his treasure to Belton and deposited it in the bank of Sinclair & Co. He made no secret of his discovery, and the greatest excitement now prevails. Adventurers are scattered through the valley with spade and pick digging into every mound and turning over every peculiarly shaped rock. The old Mexican's story is revived with a hundred variations. Some of the land owners have stationed sentinels around their premises while the laborers are searching for the hidden treasure.

The lucky finder is a man by the name of Brandon, who had never heard the old Mexican's story. He has a large family, and was already in good circumstances. He is a strict member of the Baptist church, and has already given $10,000 to the church for the purpose of building a large church and school house in his neighborhood.

DR. LOVICK PIERCE.

At the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, now in session at Louisville, Kentucky, are assembled all the Bishops, and probably the great majority of the able preachers of that Church in the South. Among the attendants is the venerable Dr. Lovick Pierce, now in his ninetieth year and perhaps the most remarkable man in the body. During the proceedings last Tuesday the venerable gentleman addressed the body as follows:

My Beloved Brethren: I stand before you rather as a marvel in the history of Methodist preachers. It would be very unbecoming in me to congratulate you on account of my presence with you but it is right that I should congratulate myself on being permitted to see this very certainly the last General Conference I shall ever attend. I have been greatly honored, more certainly than I have ever deserved. I have never been left out since the time of my eligibility as a delegate. I have never done much. I have always felt inclined to retire rather than make myself bold and prominent. I had no expectation when it was announced to me that I was elected to this General Conference that I could be present with you. It may be considered as the first instance in history, at least in that of our own ministry, that a man in his ninetieth year has traveled six hundred miles and occupied his seat daily in a body like this; but God has conferred upon me this very remarkable blessing.

In regard to myself, I may say that I stand readily by ten thousand attentive listeners, and it was never weakened or cracked for sixty-seven years. During this long period I preached many long and hard sermons, so that in this line of things I acquired great reputation for my preachining powers. But now my voice is gone, and it can not be repaired, so I can not do what I desired to do at the request of my friends. During my life I have offered to the General Conference only four resolutions requiring change in our Discipline, but I have had the pleasure of seeing them all accepted and they now stand on your Discipline.

Although I have not attempted—to use a common expression—to tinker much with the Discipline, I have never seen the day when I was perfectly satisfied to have the phraseology remain perpetually the same. I have prepared some changes for your consideration, but feeling well satisfied that I can not command my voice, I have not brought them with me, though I have written them out with care, and it is impossible for me to bring them before you except by your indulgence, which I am satisfied will always be granted when it is properly asked. I have drawn up three papers from my ministerial experience, running far into the sixty-ninth year, which propose measures intended to vitalize and energize the itinerant ministry. They are but little after all, and perhaps you may not appreciate them as much as I do myself. I have others relating to the administration of discipline in the Church upon which I desire that the Conference allow me, if able to do so, to say a few words from time to time. I trust when the weather is more favorable that I shall be able to say what I desire. I say this much only now so as to have my infirmities in your hearts, and I know they will have your sympathy. At another time, with your indulgence, I shall present the changes which I propose, and you may adopt them if you see fit, or let them perish in their passage.

The Mobile Register declares with its usual force and earnestness:

The treachery of the scalawags has, in either event, brought about what they did not expect. It has compelled the whites to act as a unit in defence of their race. We propose no aggression upon the colored races; we offer every human being equal and exact justice; we stand by every pledge of our party resolutions; but we hoist the banner of "resistance by the white man against oppression of his race." The cry which united the German provinces when nationality was throttled by petty princes and unnatural afflictions; the cry which for seven hundred years has kept united the sons of Erin, is the cry which Senator Norwood has just uttered in behalf of the Southern whites.

Regarding the contest as inevitable, we cannot sympathize with those of our cotemporaries who have received with disapprobation the recent address of the Democratic Central Committee at Montgomery. That address we do not understand as laying down a new plank in our platform. It simply gives expression to a fact—that the whites, as a race, are being attacked at vital points by the policy and principles of the Radical party, and that as a race, they are bound by the most sacred of obligations to make common cause.

Hood called the slaming of a door by a person in a passion "a wooden oath."

A man named Owens shot and killed another named Harison, in Escambia county, last week.

BARNUM'S LATEST PRODIGY.

Monsieur Henri Joignery, the French Hercules, arrived in the Adriatic under an engagement to perform in Barnum's Hippodrome, the opening of which is announced for April 20th. Joignerey's name is known throughout Europe, and his exhibitions of strength have been applauded in the principal cities on the continent. He was born in Paris in 1836. His father, a wholesale fruit dealer, intended that he should be his successor in business, but young Joignery fell in love with a beautiful young countrywoman, and thought no more about his duties in his father's stores. Then there was trouble between father and son. The boy disappeared, and was not for a long time heard of, but his early wonderful feats in the gymnasium, were not surprised when in 1862 he turned up in the Cirque Napoleon, as a performer whose name headed the list. For several years he was a big card in this place. He visited Madrid, St. Petersburg, Moscow, Berlin, and other European cities, and often appeared in the presence of the nobility, from whom he received elegant presents. In the grand circus in Berlin he was honored with an oration. Returning to Paris he was for a season in the Follies Bergere. He eclipsed all other performers in his exhibition of strength, and was dubbed the French Hercules. The great showman, Barnum, soon discovered him and engaged him for the Hippodrome.

A reporter, expecting to see a giant when he went to Mr. S. H. Hurd's office in the Hippodrome to meet Joignerey, saw instead a modest, unassuming, compactly built, man, scarcely over 5 feet 6 inches in height, and weighing about 180 lb. He is of light complexion and has a pleasant address. His hair is thin, and his moustache is kept artistically waxed. He carried a light cane, and acted like a well-to-do Frenchman seeking pleasure. No one at a glance would suppose that he has the strength he is credited with. He was pleased to see the reporter and said that he was delighted with America. The reporter with both hands could not encircle the largest part of his arm; the flesh was as solid as marble, and the gymnast laughed when the reporter vainly tried to pinch his legs. Joignerey will perform in the ring feats never before attempted by any other athlete. He will hang from a trapeze by his feet, and with straps around the bodies of 2 horses, raise the animals from the ground.

"You mean ponies, don't you?" asked the reporter.

"No, no," answered Joignerey, "horses, say 1500 lb. each. Moscow they gave me such heavy horses that the muscles of my arms were lengthened by its exertions. I will raise one horse with to his fine, white, but not very large teeth. He continued, "I will hang from the trapeze, and lift 2 men with my teeth, or I will lift 6 men with my hands."

The reporter saw the dumb bells which Joignerey uses. One weighs 275 lbs, and another 325. Hercules lifts one then the other seemingly with ease. On the 275 pounder he will bear a full grown man. Hanging from the trapeze he can, he says, hold a ball weighing 200 lb, by means of a strap, in his teeth and at the same time have a ball of the same weight in each hand.

—N. Y. Sun April 14.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE ALABAMA PRESS ASSOCIATION.

The annual meeting of the Alabama Press Association will commence on Tuesday, the 19th inst., at Birmingham. Members of the Association will come prepared to pay their dues. A cordial invitation is extended to the press of the State to join the Association.

A full attendance of the Association of New York, Georgia and Tennessee is expected and many ladies with them. Birmingham has extended the hospitalities of the city to the entire assemblage, and we sincerely hope that the attendance of the Association will be very large. The Press of the State will please copy.

SEABORN J. SAFFOLD,
Pres't Ala. Press Association.

LANGUAGE OF THE CLOUDS.

The color of the sky at particular times afford wonderfully good evidence. Not only does a rosy sunset presage fair weather and a ruddy sunshine, but there are other tints which speak with equal clearness and accuracy. A bright yellowish sky indicates wind: a pale yellow, wet; a neutral gray color constitutes a favorable sigh in the evening, and an unfavorable one in the morning. If their forms are soft, undefined and feathery, the weather will be fine. If the edges are hard, sharp and definite, it will be foul. Generally speaking any deep unusual lines betoken wind and rain, while the more quiet and delicate tints bespeak fair.

WHAT ALCOHOL WILL DO.

It may seem strange, but it is nevertheless true, that alcohol, regularly applied to a thrifty farmer's stomach, will remove the boards from the fence, let cattle into his crops, kill his fruit trees mortgage his farm, and sow his field with wild oats and thistles. It will take the paint off his building, break the glass out of the windows and fill them with rags. It will take the gloss from his clothes and the polish from his manners, subdue his reason, abuse his passions, bring sorrow and disgrace upon his family, and topple him into a drunkard's grave. It will do this to the artisan and the capitalist, the matron and the maiden, as well as the farmer; for, in its deadly enmity to the human race, alcohol is no respecter of persons.—The Temperance Worker.

A correspondent of the Petersburg (Va.) News met Mr. Stephens as he passed through that State on his way home, and reports him as saying:

"I am now going home to die. I have been a great sufferer, but this is the first time that any vital organ has been attacked. Until this my general health was better than for thirty years, but this has been terrible and I must soon yield unless I am relieved. I hope I may recover, but I scarcely expect it. I am now sixty three years of age, and my constitution will not stand such a severe test."

ALABAMA.

We are glad to see that the Democrats and Conservative of Alabama are already commencing the important political contest which is next fall to decide the fate of their beautiful, fertile State says the Columbus Enquirer. Its greatest incubus now is bad government and it can never make a steady progres in the work of recuperation until its intelligent tax-paying citizens resume control of its destiny. They have almost succeeded doing this in late elections, but they have never yet obtained such complete control as was needed to give them fair election laws and regulations, sure punishment of crime by judicial officers who look to intelligence and virtue, instead of ignorance and crime, for support, and a system of taxation which while adequate to protect the faith and credit of the State, shall work no oppression to honest labor. A people without such laws and government as this—such laws and government administered by its interested and educated classes are in a bad condition indeed, and have every incentive to arouse them to action.

Discussion has been going on between the press of the State as to the policy of making the question one of race—raising the standard of "a white man's government." In our judgment a recognition of facts as they exist obviates any formal presentation of such issues. The white people of the State are nearly agreed as to the kind of government which will alone suit them. It is a government which practices economy, administers justice, punishes crime, protects all classes equally, and taxes none for the benefit others. We imagine that the race or color of a voter joining in the struggle for such a government will not be objected to. But it is a fact which cannot be ignored that the negroes, as a race, have been enrolled and drilled by political tricksters to support a government of quite a different kind—one that has found its culmination in South Carolina, Mississipni and Louisiana, and would have established a similar rule in Alabama but for the fact that one branch of the government has generally been in the hands of the Conservatives. Our Alabama friends will have no difficulty in drawing the line be ween those who sympathize with the present government of these three States and those who prefer a government such as Georgia now has. It is a line which, like that drawn in the Red Sea, will separate races only when they are aligned with the plunderers on the side or the plundered on the other. There is room enough for all who favor good and honest government to stand on the same platform, and on the other bend a cohesion of interest and design that will make all who want a different kind of government stand and

Down in Texas.

The Democratic legislature of Texas is bringing to light some of the Republican defalcations in the State. The St. Louis Times gives the following:

"The steward of the State lunatic asylum of Texas, under the Davis administration, succeeded in squandering about $85,000, according to the report of the legislative investigating committee, and has been surrendered to the authorities by his bondsmen, to answer for the little discrepancies of his stewardship."

It does seem as if no money can be trusted in the hands of Republican officials. Howard stole the funds of the colored soldiers that had lost their sight and their limbs, and here is the Texas man stealing from the insane.—They spare nothing that is entrusted to their keeping. They appropriate to their own use everything in reach.

THE TURN OF THE TIDE IN NEW YORK.—The New York Tribune has returns from the elections for Supervisers throughout that State which have all been held within the past month. In 1872 the Radicals had a majority of 208 in fifty-eight counties. In 1873 the Democrats and Liberal Republicans reduced the Republican majority to 84. This year the Democrats have a parality of 46 over the Republicans and a majority of 3 over all. The combined opposition, however, has a majority of 89 over the Republicans. This is a gain for the Democrats and Liberals of 133 since 1872.

So it appears that the Democratic party is dying in New York State at the same alarming rate as is witnessed every where else—notably in New Hampshire and Connecticut. If this thing goes on the elections next fall will make an end of it. We will be a lively mourner at that sort of a death bed.—Montgomery Advertiser.

A Little Rock Special dated last eve contains the following: Two negroes were killed by Baxters pickets near the Fair Grounds yesterday morning. In the evening several skirmishers advanced up the street and joined Baxter's pickets when the officer in command ordered all citizens to thier houses and soldiers to their quarters, the regulars kept close at their baricades. A fight was expected at any time during the evening.

There are two companies of regulars at the City Hall, one at U. S. Court building, and artillery with horses harnessed on a side street. The regulars have four barricades in the city and one on the opposite side of the river Orders were issued by all parties yesterday evening for soldiers to go to quarters, and the citizens to keep in their homes in the evening.

Col. White, of the Baxter force rode to outskirts of the city, and the regulars followed shortly after.

Mobile May 11.

A fiend in human shape committed a rape, yesterday, upon a little white child four years old. To-day about 11 o'clock an outraged community marched en masse to the county jail, where the fiend had been carried, and after battering down the jail wall, took him to the nearest tree and hung him. His name was Frank Williams. The outraged child was terribly mutilated. She is now very ill, and is not expected to live.

THE WAR IN ARKANSAS.

We have occupied more room in this week's paper than we at first intended with the news from Arkansas. But we could not do less, after commencing the telegraphic dispatches, and at the same give our readers a connected and intelligent history of scenes transpiring in that State and at Washington. Radicalism has only gone to seed in Arkansas; and the same tragic scenes will be re-enacted in every State and Territory in the Union, unless the people arise in their might, and crush out the radical monster at the ballot box.

We have been enabled to obtain some more definite information concerning the state of affairs in Arkansas, by an interview with Mr. E. Goode, a citizen of this place, who remained for several days in Little Rock, during the heat of the excitement. We have been disposed to regard the contest as a sort of "Kilkenny cat fight," and took no special interest for either side, as both of the contestants are Radicals of the most loyal stamp. In this view of the matter we asked Mr. Goode—

"Which side do the Democrats, the best men of the State, espouse?"

"They are for Baxter. I saw professional men, Lawyers and Physicians, as well as Merchants and Clerks doing guard duty and pacing their rounds as sentinels."

"Who are Brooks' supporters—who are his soldiers?"

Mr. G's eye gave a peculiar snap at this question, and he gave an extra number of quick whiffs to his pipe as he answered:

"His soldiers are the most miserable set of ragamuffins I ever saw composed as they are of roughs and negroes."

"Are there no good men among them?"

"But few; all the better class as a rule side with Baxter."

"Is this feeling general throughout the State? We have been led to believe that Brooks has many friends among the better class of citizens?"

"In Little Rock the people are nearly all for Baxter. I made enquiry as I passed into and out of the State as to the feeling of the country people. They are about equally divided in sentiment. They say that in the campaign for Governor, Baxter made most incendiary speeches to the negroes and declared that he hoped the day was not far distant when they (the negroes) would be privileged to sit side by side with his daughter and other white ladies in the same schools, churches and other public places. The people away from the capital are at a loss to know which side to espouse."

"How is it that the people of Little Rock are for Baxter?"

"Well, when you look upon a fair ——" In other words they will fear with Baxter rather than risk Brooks."

"Did you find any trouble in passing about Little Rock?"

"But little. The scallawags occupy the sidewalk on one side, you can walk on the other, or in the street just as you please. This is the case where Brooks' men hold the streets. In that portion of the city held by Baxter's men, you can pass freely among his soldiers without molestation."

"They are armed then like soldiers?"

"Yes both sides and drilling every day. I saw a number of negroes drilling, under a negro officer, and they went through the regular army company drill. These negroes were Brooks men."

"Are there any "old Confeds" on either side?"

"Yes, on both sides, but most of them on Baxter's side. I heard of a little strategy an "old Confed" played off on one of Brooks' men who was standing guard. Approaching the Brookster, without any arms, just as if he were a disinterested looker on, he asked in the most childlike manner—"Let me see your gun." The Brookster, unsuspicious, and little versed in the art of war handed him over the gun, when "old Confed" turned the muzzle in the astonished Brookster's face and said

"You are my prisoner."

He was placed in charge of two comrades who were a short distance off and sent off to the Baxter camp. "Old Confed" did not worry with one doing but called for the Corporal of the Guard whom he treated in the same way, as also the Sentinel who came to relieve him. When the news reached Brooks' camp that three of their men had been captured the excitement was intense."

Continuing our conversation we asked:

"Which side would win the fight if Grant would take away his bayonets?"

"The matter would be settled in a half hour. Baxter's supporters would annihilate Brooks and his forces."

"How are the troops of each party paid?"

"Baxters forces are paid in money. The tax collectors of several counties have sent in their taxes to his Treasurer. Brooks promised the negroes five dollars a day, and this induced many of them to leave the farms. But like the "forty acres and a mule," Cuffee has not received a cent and has been kept hungry by having to subsist on a ration of two or three crackers and a piece of cheese for a day."

"How do the people think it will all end?"

"By the appointment of a military Governor or provisional Governor, by act of Congress."

PAIRKER HEARD FROM.

Ex. Secretary of State Hon. J. J. Parker or "Pairker" as he was wont to call himself, when imitating Gov. Lindsay's peculiar Scotch brogue, Mr. Goode informed us is living in Sherman, Texas, at which place Mr. P. has been living for several months. Mr. Parker he says has already won the hearts of the people of Sherman and the County in which it is located, by replying in a bold and extinguishing manner to a speech of Davis, the late candidate for the Governor's chair in Texas, during the last campaign.

Calhoun College.

Col. S. H. Lockett, the talented & able President of Calhoun College, has just concluded a series of Lectures which were highly interesting and very instructive to all who had the pleasure to hear them

These being the only Lectures of this kind ever delivered in this place, illustrated by actual experiments, they had the effect of making a lasting impression upon all, and were of incalculable benefit to the students of the College.

The manner in which Col. Lockett handled the subjects composing these various Lectures convinced his hearers that he was a thorough as well as practical Chemist; a profound and rapid thinker, a ripe scholar and eminently qualified to discharge the duties of President of this or any other College over which he might be called to preside.

His first Lecture treated on the general harmony existing between theory and practice, in which was shown how every practical pursuit of life was benefitted by the studies and labors of theoretical men: how the old idea that there was an antagonism between true theory and correct practice has been exploded by the intercourse which the printing press had established between all classes of men. At the present time the mechanic is often found better informed, & lecturer, and witnessing the experiments of men of science; and on the contrary men of science are daily learning lessons of deepest wisdom in the workshops of the mechanic. In this way science and labor—theory and practice are travelling hand in hand in the great march of progress.

After the general lecture just outlined Col. L. began a series of lectures on the Four Elements of the ancient philosophers, Air, Water, Earth and Fire.

In the lecture on "The air we breathe," both the physical and chemical properties of the atmosphere were investigated and illustrated by experiments. Under the physical properties, the pressure and weight of the atmosphere; its elasticity and expansibility were illustrated; and the theory of winds and storms, and causes of meteorological phenomena discussed. The air was then shown to be, not elemental in its nature, but composed of a number of gasses mechanically mixed with one another. The properties of these gasses, Oxygen, Nitrogen, Carbonic Acid, Ammonia and Ozone were then considered, and the parts they play in the economy of nature illustrated by experiments. The theory of Dr. Tyndall concerning the causes of disease, and epidemics, was also noticed.

"Water" was next treated in a similar manner. The general properties of water, its [illegible] and [illegible] by several experiments. Water was then analyzed into its elements, and the beautiful experiments with Oxygen and Hydrogen gasses shown. The chemical and medicinal properties of mineral waters were also considered; and then the various forms of water, and the part it plays as the great [illegible] of the earth.

In the Lecture on "Earth" the manner in which the Universe was formed, according to the theory of LaPlace was explained and illustrated by diagrams, the elemental materials of the Earth were then taken up in order and the character of all of them briefly noticed, and the most striking properties of more than half of them illustrated by beautiful experiments. This lecture occupied over two hours, and was but little more than a continuous succession of brilliant experiments, accompanied by a running off hand explanation of their import by the Lecturer.

The last Lecture of the series on "Fire," first noticed the fact that the ancients regarded this element as a direct gift from the Gods; then showed how highly it was appreciated by the ruder nations of the earth, being the object of the worship of millions of human beings. All this was long before the true nature of fire was known, and its real functions understood. After Dr. Priestly's discovery of Oxygen gas it became possible to understand the real origin and nature of Fire and Flame. Chemical action was shown to be the scientific cause of both, and the accompanying phenomena of Light and Heat. The flame of a candle was then analyzed, and the properties of its different parts explained. The colors of flame were considered, and an outline of spectrum analysis given. The causes of Fires and Spontaneous Combustion were considered and the best methods of extinguishing flame.

Then the utility of fire as the prime motor of machinery was noticed, and lastly the vitalizing energy of the heat of the sun considered, and the manner in which it kept the Air and Water in everlasting circulation, and made the earth a fit habitation for man, instead of a dead lifeless mass, was shown. Many points in this lecture were illustrated by very pleasing and instructive experiments.

In addition to the series of scientific lectures we have noticed, the pupils of Calhoun College and the Jacksonville Female Academy have had the pleasure and advantage of listening to a most interesting lecture by Professor Hudson on the Home life of Shakespeare as exhibited in his writings, and more especially in his sonnets. A lecture was also delivered by Col. Lockett on the Fine Arts, in which the benefits to be derived from their cultivation was clearly shown.

To all of these lectures the public was freely invited, and a large number of the citizens of Jacksonville and vicinity were constant attendants.

In conclusion I would state that although I have heard these subjects discussed by one of the most scientific men of the present day, yet the easy and fluent manner in which Col. Lockett delivered his Lecture made them more interesting and pleasant to me than they ever seemed before. CITIZEN.

As the Talladega papers seem to be out of humor at our Correspondent from that county, we publish an extract from a letter which came too late from him to accomplish its design:

The extract is as follows:

"I am glad you did not publish my communication last week. I beg the liberty to withdraw it. I need not assign reasons for this, except that after the calmer reflection of a week's time, I think that it would be offensive to gentlemen, none of whom have I any disposition to offend. I wrote it under the impressions which I received on decoration day; and from the often repeated challenges from the Mountain Home to the Reporter to discuss political matters, which challenges the latter declined or ignored. Please do me the kindness to suppress it."

Under the circumstances we think it nothing but justice that our correspondent be exhonorated from any censure that parties offended by its publication may be inclined to attach to the author, as it was manifestly his purpose to withdraw its publication, lest his motives, being purely political, might be misconstrued.

Telegraphic.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Hon. Elisha Baxter, Little Rock: I recommend that the members of the General Assembly now in Little Rock, adjourn for a reasonable time, say ten days, to enable Brooks to call to the body his supposed adherents, so that there may be a full Legislature. Any hasty action by part of the Assembly will not be satisfactory to the people. Brooks' friends here agree that if this course is pursued no opposition will be made to the meeting of the Assembly in the State House as usual, and that he will at once dismiss his forces if you will do the same. I urgently request that all armed forces on both sides be disbanded so that the General Assembly may act free from any military pressure or influence. The United States forces will give all necessary protection to the Legislature, and prevent, as far as practicable, all violence and disturbance of the public peace. Answer.

(Signed) U. S. GRANT.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Hon. Joseph Brooks, Little Rock: I have suggested to Mr. Baxter that the members of the General Assembly now in Little Rock adjourn for a reasonable time, say ten days, to give you an opportunity to call in those members who may not respond to his call, so that there may be a full legislature. The United States will give all necessary protection to the Legislature in meeting and transacting its business as usual at the State House and prevent as far as practicable all violence and disturbance of the public peace. I urgently request that the military of both parties be at once disbanded which is the first step towards a peaceable settlement. Answer.—

(Signed.) U. S. GRANT.

NEW YORK, May 11.—A Little Rock special to the [illegible] says: [illegible] yesterday morning. In the evening several Arkansawyers advanced up the street and joined Baxter's pickets, when the officer in command ordered all citizens to their houses and soldiers to their quarters. The scallaws are kept close at their barricades. A fight was expected at any time during the evening. There are two companies of regulars at the City Hall and at the United States Court building, and artillery with horses harnessed on a side street. The scallaws have four barricades in the city and one on the opposite side of the river. Orders were issued by all parties yesterday evening for the soldiers to go to their quarters and citizens to keep in their homes in the evening. Col. White, of Baxter's force, rode out to the outskirts of the city and regulars followed shortly after.

LITTLE ROCK, May 10.—Forty shots were fired; one negro killed. The Federal troops again brought the hook and ladder company apparatus to the front when the hostilities ceased. The Federals are entrenching. All stores are closed; women and children have been moved from the vicinity of the State Houses.

LITTLE ROCK, May 11.—Baxter refuses to accede the propositions submitted by the Attorney General of the United States for a settlement of the pending difficulties giving the following reasons for such refusal: "That he considered substantially the same propositions to Brooks some time ago and they were rejected. Brooks announcing that he would have nothing to do with the Legislature; that it had no jurisdiction; that he would not recognize it, or anything it might do. Baxter alleges that there is a quorum of the Legislature now here assembled, under his call, with the President's assurance of protection, and that they will meet to-morrow and determine the question. He will recommend a Constitutional Convention with a view to re-establishing the whole question to the vote of the people.

LITTLE ROCK, May 11.—The Federal Col. Rose ordered the restoration of the steamer Hattie to her owners, where upon the Brooksites scuttled and sank her to the Iuvicune dock. Both parties have been reinforced. The lines are closely drawn and more cannon planted. A number of senators and representatives have appealed to Grant for protection to their assembling.

VERY LATEST FROM ARKANSAS

[BY MIDNIGHT PRESS]

LITTLE ROCK, May 11.—To C. S. Grant, President: "There is almost a quorum of both Houses of the Legislature present, and they have power under the constitution, to adjourn from day to day until they have a quorum, and they can adjourn no longer than until they have a quorum. I am in favor of their adjourning as long as they please, until every supposed Brooks' adherent is present. With this understanding I will disband my troops in proportion as Brooks disbands his. But for the meeting of the Legislature at the usual place Mr. Brooks must get as far from it west as I am east and deposit the State arms in the State armory, and let the State House and public buildings be turned over at once to J. M. Johnson, Secretary of the State, to whom, under the law they belong.

[Signed.] ELISHA BAXTER.
Governor of Arkansas.

WASHINGTON, 11:30, P. M.—On receipt of the above dispatch the President and Attorney General Williams held another consultation and decided to send the following telegrams, which were sent to-night, viz:

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 11.—Hon. James Brooks, Little Rock: Hon. Elisha Baxter has telegraphed the President that the General Assembly must adjourn from day to day until a quorum is present, and that then he is in favor of its adjourning until every one of your supposed adherents is present with the understanding that he will disband his troops in the proportion that you disband yours, that you will get away as far West as he is East of the State House and allow it to be turned over to the Secretary of State who is its legal custodian, and that you will deposit the State arms in the State armory. The members of the Legislature in Little Rock heartily approve this proposition.

I am directed by the President to say that he considers this fair and reasonable, and your interests require its immediate acceptance. Answer.

Signed, GEO. H. WILLIAMS,
Attorney General.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Hon. Elisha Baxter, Little Rock: I am directed by the President to say that he considers your proposition fair and reasonable, and I have asked Mr. Brooks for its immediate acceptance by him.

Signed, GEO. H. WILLIAMS,
Attorney General.

The following was also read this afternoon:

LITTLE ROCK, May 11.—U. S. Grant President: We the undersigned, members of the General Assembly of Arkansas, present here to meet under the call of Governor Baxter have read his (Baxters) response to your telegram to day, and we most heartily approve and endorse it. Signed, B. F. ASKEW,

President of the Senate, and eight other Senators.

X. J. Pindall, Speaker of the House, and thirty-six other members present.

THE GEM MICROSCOPE.

The Gem Microscope is the most wonderful scientific production of the nineteenth century. It furnishes the power of a high-priced instrument for a mere trifle, and exceeds in usefulness any microscope ever invented. It reveals the hidden wonders of minute creation—as Eels in Vinegar, animals in water, Butterflies' Feathers, the Golden Marrow of a Hair, Insects' Eyes, the Pads, Claws, joints and hairs of a Fly's foot, makes Ropes of Fibers of cloth, a crowbar of a needle's point; and so on indefinitely. It furnishes hours of instruction, entertainment and amusement for the young and old, and every family should possess it. It is invaluable to students, professors, teachers, physicians, in fact everybody, and especially in the HOME circle is it a GEM. It is cheap and at the same time of great value. It is ready of great value to any family if only because it shows the adulterations in food, as sugars, teas, etc., and the qualities of cloths. It also plainly shows TRICHINA SPIRALIS or Pork Worm whenever it exists in pork. Price $1 50 Mailed, postpaid, to any address on receipt of price.

A FAT TAKE FOR AGTS Men and Women, Boys and Girls. Wide time or leisure moments and evenings. It works just as well by lamplight as by daylight. Permits buy it for their children Liberal cash commissions paid. Exclusive territory. Congenial employment. It excites curiosity, which produces a desire to see it, and requires no talking by the agent. Complete Outfit mailed, postpaid on receipt of $1 50. Circulars and terms free. D. P. FORNEY.

While other localities are boasting of their lovely maidens of seventy, we have in our county a spinster of seventy-three years of age, who lives near nine miles from Jacksonville and walks to town carrying with her jeans and other productions of her own hands, for sale. The name of this blithsome lass is Miss Mary Thomas, more commonly known as Aunt Polly Thomas. She says she can do more work and endure more hardships than nine tenths of the young lasses of nineteen. She remembers some of the incidents of the war of 1812 and has a perfect recollection of many subsequent events of national importance.

MISS SALLIE FORNEY, daughter of Maj. Forney, has returned to her home in Jacksonville, after a stay of several months in New York CITY, attending school. She is prettier than ever, and is as charming in manner as she is pretty in person.

Gen. Johnston's Narrative of Military Operations during the late war, has arrived and subscribers are requested to call upon the Agent or at this office and get their copies of the book. The Agent has a few extra copies whic he will dispose of to such persons as apply at an early day.

TELEGRAPHS.

Washington, May. 12.—The following dispatches were received this morning:

Little Rock, May 12—U. S. Grant, President. On the 9th of May, General Rose submitted to me a proposition that he said had your approval; on the 10th, I accepted the same out of deference to your wishes, feeling that in doing so I was humiliating myself and the Court of the State. This I did solely in the interest of peace, supposing that Baxter would be required to assent to your proposed plan of settlement. In accordance with a proclamation of mine convening the Legislature on the 4th Monday of the present month. To my surprise Baxter has declined to submit the question of his election to the Legislature. In convention with the members thereof, he boldly proclaims that he does not and will not permit an investigation of his right to the office, yet you ask me to recognize a call of the Legislature at the instance of one who declares the question at issue, and for which you insist on its being assembled, shall not be settled by the tribunal you desire convened. In the attempted organization made to-day, which failed, although persons were sworn in as members from districts in which no vacancies had been declared, both houses of the Legislature now have a quorum in existence. This quorum should pass upon the election returns and and qualifications of the newly elected members themselves. This action I cannot and will not willingly submit to.

Section 1, articles 4, of the Constitution of the United States, declares that full faith and credit shall be given to the Judicial proceedings of every State' and if in the face of the decision of the Supreme and Circuit Court of the State deciding that I am and recognizing me as the legal Governor, you can recognize Baxter as Governor, it is your duty to respond to his application for Federal help. If you can not, it is your duty to assist me to suppress the present domestic violence. To disband my troops at this time under no other assurance than is contained in your telegram of to-day, would result not only in the assassination of the Judges of the Supreme Court, but of many of my friends, and especially the colored men, who have been guilty of no crime same fidelity to law and order.

I shall hold my troops together for the purpose of protecting the citizens of that State who believe the expression of the people at the ballotbox should be enforced, and for the protection of those who stand by the Constitution, the laws and the adjudication of the court of the country. Federal bayonets can put Baxter's Legislature in the State House, but I am ignorant of the clause of the Constitution under which the President has this power. Nothing else will, and when there I doubt if you can compel them to determine who is Governor.

It is time this agony, doubt and uncertainty was over. The interests of humanity demand that it shall be settled, and if you have the power under the Constitution and laws of the United States to settle the question of who is Governor of Arkansas? Adverse to the decision of the courts of the State settle it at once. I shall not resist what you may order United States troops to do, but shall, with all the power at my command, repel any and all attempts Baxter's forces to take possession of the State House. I am confident that legal quorum of the Legislature will not respond to Baxter's call, and I shall not assent nor be a party to convening the Legislature under any other agreement than that submitted by yourself through the Attorney General on the 9th inst.

[Signed.] JOSEPH BROOKS.
Governor of Arkansas.

LATER.

Little Rock, May 12.—Brooks still occupies the State House and surroundings. Whether he intends to vacate or not under the President's instructions is not known. Both Houses met this morning at Ditter building. There were eleven Senators and forty Representatives present, lacking three of a quorum—one in the Senate and two in the House. It is generally conceded that there will be a quorum in both Houses to-morrow. The Baxter men are jubilant at the idea of Brooks having to vacate the State House.

The extent of the Mississipi flood appears more and more disastrous as the details are received. The White river, the lower Arkansas, the Yazoo as well as the Mississippi, have flooded an immense stretch of country. In its length, depth and magnitude, the present flood surpasses anything of the kind since the terrible overflow of 1847. It is estimated that between 75,000 and 100,000 people are already suffering from its effect. The sugar plantations have been laid waste for the next two years and great injury has been inflicted upon the cotton crop.—Alabama Journal

LOCAL.

All diseases of a purely local character which can be reached from the surface, are speedily cured by Magic Arnic Liniment, the best and most scientige liniment ever offered to the public. Swelled limbs, sprains, hurts of all kinds, face ache, tooth ache, tic doloreux, &c., are relieved like magic.

READ THIS EVIDENCE.

MEMPHIS, TENN., Sep 18 1869.

Messrs Mansfield & Higbee:

Your Magic Arnic Liniment is surely a wonderful remedio. It cured me last winter of swelled feet, which gave me a world of trouble and pain. I had no rest at times. Doctors pronounced my disease gout; some called it rheumatism. I only used about half a bottle of your celebrated medicine, and was cured sound and well. I consider one bottle of this powerful penetrating wart he more to any suffered from pain, than gallons of all other liniments.

P. HEISDTAN.

The Gem Microscope—The Gem Microscope is truly an optical wonder. It reveals thousands of unseen wonders and curiosities of God's minute creation; the smallest worlds teeming with animal life, the little things of nature with which we are surrounded, but which are invisible to the naked eye, the thousand and one curiosities and minute objects with many of which we are familiar, because we have read or heard of them, but which to the unaided vision have remained a sealed book, are brought within the realizing reach of our sight and understanding by the use of the Gem, and many wonders entirely new to us are also brought to sight by its use. No article for the same price has ever been offered to the public which combines the essential points of valuable instruction and entertaining refined amusement to so great an extent as this instrument; every family has only to appreciate its merits to become its possessor. It is so low-priced that everybody can have one, and so simple a child can use it. Parents should provide their children with this valuable instructor. This Microscope possesses the great advantage of being used by lamp-light as well as by day-light, and thus affords entertainment after the occupations of the day are laid aside. It is really of great value to any family, if only because it shows the adulterations in food, as sugars, teas, etc. and the qualities of cloths, it also plainly shows Trichina Spiralis or Pork Worm whenever it exists in pork. It is safely mailed, post-paid, on receipt of price ($1.50) to any address by the BEVERLY COMPANY, 978 Wabash Avenue, CHICAGO. See their advertisement elsewhere.

Our Dormant Energies.

Our bodies are not as vigorous nor our minds as clear as they might be. This remark is true of at least two thirds of civilized society, and of these two thirds probably one-half is laboring under bodily infirmities of a character likely to shorten the lives of the sufferers. This is a melancholy exhibit and furnishes abundant food for reflection. Can the evil be mitigated? Lack of vitality is the primary cause of most of the physical and mental suffering to which we are subjected, and therefore a vitalizing medicinal agent is the remedy required. Is there such a medicine? There is. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will rouse and energize the mind and body when the life power of the system is in a comparatively dormant state. The languid, feeble, despondING invalid is not aware of the latent energies that underlies his debility. He thinks there is no element of vigor left in his frame, when the fact is that his physical capabilities are merely asleep and only require waking up. Let him stimulate and tone his animal machinery and endow it with new native power, through the agency of this incomparable invigorant, and he will soon feel like a new man, or rather like a man who has received a new lease of life, and the requisite health to enjoy it. Many business men suffer from chronic languor and depression caused by too close application to business. Hard students are often oppressed with melancholy from a like cause. Mechanics and working men are affected in the same way as a result of over-labor. To all who are in this condition, from whatever cause, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will prove a signal blessing. It is a perfect purveyor for physical debility and mental gloom. It strengthens the body, clears the mind and calms the nervous system; while as a remedy for indigestion, biliousness, constipation, rheumatism, and intermittent and remittent fevers, it takes precedence of all other medicines.

PLANTATIONS.

Plantations, factories, work-shops, and all places where large numbers of hands are employed, should never be without the Magic Arnica Liniment. For families it is invaluable. Bruises, sprains, burns, wounds and injuries are rapidly cured by it, and the pain subdued at once.

READ THE EVIDENCE.

Major R. Abney, of Commerce, Mississippi states he used the Magic Arnica Liniment upon several of his working hands for pains and aches, and it acted splendidly. One case was a boy who was very lame, and was entirely relieved by its use.

A BOOK FOR THE MILLION!

Marriage Guide.

A Private Counselor to the Married or those about to marry on the physiological relations of the sexes, containing many new and important directions, with the latest discoveries in producing and preventing offspring. Also, how to preserve the complexion, &c.

This is an interesting work of two hundred and fifty pages, with numerous engravings, and contains valuable information for those who are married, or contemplate marriage. Still it is a book that ought to be kept under lock and key, and not laid carelessly about the house.

It contains the experience and advice of a physician who's reputation is world-wide, and should be in the private drawer of every male and female throughout the entire globe. It embraces everything on the subject of the generative system that is worth knowing, and much that is not published in any other work.

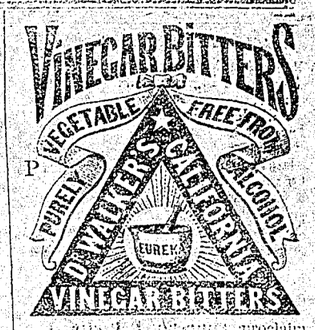
VINEGAR BITTERS



We call these Bitters the most wonderful invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No person can take these Bitters according to directions and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the offending cause, correct the secretions of the liver, and restore to healthy functions the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can attack those who use this timely safeguard.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Tumors, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Painting and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ringworms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors, and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuge, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Clear the Vitiated Blood whenever you meet its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have used it, know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or negligence of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel nor any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar-coating preserves them ever fresh, and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable, no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor, Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach, and restore its healthy action.

For Liver Complaint in its various symptoms, Bilious Disorder, Sick Headache, Jaundice, Foul Stomach, Bilious Colic and Piles, however they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a brisk purgative.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the digestion. Hence a cathartic medicine is often useful in cases of apparent good health. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating action on the digestive apparatus.

TIRED MOTHERS.

A little elbow leans upon your knee,
Your tired knee, that has so much to bear;
A child's dear eyes are looking lovingly
From underneath a thatch of tangled hair.
Perhaps you do not heed the velvet touch
Of warm, moist fingers holding yours so tight;
You do not prize this blessing overmuch,
You are almost too tired to pray to-night.

But it is blessedness! A year ago
I did not see it as I do to day;
We are so dull and thankless; and too slow
To catch the sunshine till it slips away.
And now it seems surpassing strange to me,
That, while I bore the badge of motherhood;
I did not kiss more oft and tenderly,
The little child that brought me only good.

And if, some night when you sit down to rest,
You miss this elbow from your tired knee·
This restless, curling head from off your breast,
This lisping tongue that chatters constantly;
If from your own the dimpled hands had slipped,
And ne'er would nestle in your palm again;
If the white feet into the grave had tripped,
I could not blame you for your heart-ache then!

I wonder so that mothers ever fret,
At little children clinging to their gown;
Or that the foot-prints, when the days are wet,
Are ever black enough to make them frown.
If I could find a little muddy boot,
Or cap, or jacket on my chamber floor;
If I could kiss a rosy, restless foot,
And hear its patter in my home once more.

If I could mend a broken cart to-day,
To-morrow make a kite to reach the sky—
There is no woman in God's world could say
She was more blissfully content than I.
But ah! the dainty pillow next my own
Is never rumpled by a shining head:—
My singing birdling from its nest has flown;
The little boy I used to kiss is dead.

THE ARKANSAS WAR!

FROM ARKANSAS.

Little Rock, May 5.—Special says after arrest of Judge Bennett and Seal by Baxterites they were taken across the river in a skiff, and then to St. John's College on the outskirts of the city. They spent the night there, and yesterday were put on horses, and in charge of a band of cavalry were taken into the country, and will probably be kept in the woods. On the heels of this event at five o'clock yesterday morning State Auditor Wheeler was awakened by knocking at the door of his residence: he jumped out of bed and ran down stairs where he saw a hack standing at the door. The driver said that General McCovany wanted to see him. Wheeler not thinking of capture said, ask him to come in. McCovany answered back for him to come out. He went out and some men who had been stationed with guns on the other three sides of the house rushed up and put him by force in the carriage. He was driven down to Anthony House. They then took him to Baxter's room, woke Baxter up, and McCovany said: "I beg pardon for acting without orders, but I thought it my duty to c pture Wheeler and bring him to you and make him acknowledge you as Governor. I will do the same with State Treasurer Page and Brooks if you say so. Baxter gave orders to release him, much to McCovany's discomfiture. There is some talk of moving his goverament to Arkadelphia and making that his capital.

A special dispatch from Little Rock, says a colored man belonging to the Savage command at New Gascony stated here yesterday that Whitehead declared he would take no more Brooks men prisoners but would slaughter them wherever he found them assabling. General Edgerson, special Agent of the Post office Department, was arrested last night while driving with Blocker, Baxter's military Governor, he was confined in the guard house for a short time. A Baxterman stationed on the bank of the river about nine o'clock this morning, fired at one of Brooks' pickets standing opposite near the State House. The ball lodged just above his head in a tree. Subsequently Baxter men commenced firing on Brooks pickets, which were posted on the river side continuing all day. The former would rush out from an old stable or bank in the side of their line, fire and run back to reload. Brooks pickets are not allowed to return fire as regulars are stationed between the contending forces at the State House. Earthworks ars being thrown up so as to strengthen the baricades. Fortifications are under way across the street from the State House in vacant lots and pickets are now posted on the opposite side. Workmen are being drilled in defence of barricades, loading and firing. All windows in the State-house are bar ricaded and loopholed.

Little Rock, May 8.

Both courts are active. The Supreme Court has issued a mandamus ordering the treasurer to pay Brooks' requistion. This is regarded as a fuller recognition than Brooks expected. It is apprehended that members of the Legislature will be detained by various devices, so as to defeat a quorum.

Little Rock, May 8.

Both sides except heavy re-inforcements to-morrow and a collision may be expected. Brooks expects Col. Wiler, with 100 stand of arms taken from the Industrial University, and 200 men to-night. Its quite probable Baxter will claim a Legislature, tho' some think not one fourth will be present.

Little Rock, May 9.

Railroads are interrupted to stop recruits. Four Brookists negroes were killed yesterday. Baxterites are confident of a quorum in both Houses of the Legislature Monday.

Brooksites captured the steamer Hatter. Frank Timmes was killed. Captain Cam Houston has died from wounds, and John Myers pilot, is mortally wounded.

Arkansas factions are in consultation with the Attorney General. If an agreement is not reached, Attorney General is authorized to issue orders. There are intimations that Williams leans to Baxter. There are $7,000,000 of railroad bonds involved, in which it is said Arkansas officials have a slice. The source of trouble seems to be that Baxter was refractory about issuing them.

Little Rock, ARK., May 10.—Last night a party of twenty-five Baxterites, under command of Lieut. Welch, took passage on the steamer Hollie, which was in charge of Capt. Sam Huston and his brother, Ed Huston, their object being to intercept and capture 160 stand of arms belonging to the Industrial University, which were shipped by flat-boats from Ft. Smith Wednesday morning in charge of six men. The Brooksites having heard of this expedition, started Col. John Brooker with his regiment of 200 colored men on a special train over the Fort Smith railroad to intercept the boat at Palarm, twenty miles above this city. Brook's party arrived before the Hollie got into position, and as the boat came along fired on her.

Lieutenant Welch's men were on the hurricane roof at the time, and got down below as soon as possible. As they did so Frank Timms, a prominent young man of this city, was killed and several others wounded, viz: Captain Sam Houston, through the body; Ed. Huston, sprained ankle; J. M. Years through the breast; Bascomb Leigh, in the left leg. Lieutenant Welch's men returned the fire, killing one and wounding another of Brooks' men, both colored. One of the shots from Brooks' men passed through a steam pipe of the Hollie disabling her, and she floated down the river to the bank from where Brooks' men were, and the squad there left the boat. The Brooks men then took possession of the steamer, put a squad on her to town, and the remainder of them took the train and came back, arriving about 3 o'clock this evening. Soon after their arrival the Hollie came down and was loaded at the State House, where the wounded were taken off.

Capt. Sam Houston died soon after the arrival of the Hollie. John Meyers, a pilot, was mortally wounded. The body of young Frank Timms, who was killed on the Steamer Hollie this morning, is now lying in state at the chapel of the Presbyterian Church. The body of Capt. Sam Houston has been taken to his residence. After the boat was fired upon and disabled, Capt. Welch held up a white flag which was riddled with bullets and several holes were shot through his clothing. Dr. Dale, who was with him, received a slight wound on the leg. Bascomb Leigh who was wounded in the leg: is badly hurt. Meyers, pilot was shot through the breast and twice through the leg. is thought to be mortally wounded.

St. Louis May 10 —The Globe's Little Rock special of last night says: "All day Saturday and Sunday, and a collision between the two parties may be expected. Lieutenant-Colonel Fowler, with 165 stand of arms, taken from the Industrial University at Fayetteville on the 1st instant, and above 200 men, were expected to arrive for Brooks to-night. It is quite probable Baxter will claim the Legislature next Monday, though well informed persons say not a quarter of the members will be there under Baxter's call. It is also not probable that incident to the confusion next week or sooner, telegraphic communication may be interrupted, or the Baxter censorship re-established, unless the President recognizes Brooks under to-day's decision of the Supreme Court. Prominent Baxter men admit that Baxter has no further right to press his claim.

Little Rock, May 11.

The Brooksites hold the bridge at Baring Cross, one mile the other side of the river. There has been much shooting, but no bloodshed. The two parties dread each other, as well as the handful of Federtl troops.

Little Rock, May 11.

Federal Colonel Rose, has ordered the restoration os the Steamer Hattie, to the owners, whereupon the Brookites scuttled her and sank her to the hurricane deck. Both parties are reinforced. Lines are dlysely drawn. More cannon are planted. A number of Senators and Representatives have appealed to Grant for protection on their assembli.

VINEGAR BITTERS

PURELY VEGETABLE — FREE FROM ALCOHOL — VINEGAR BITTERS

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BITTERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.

The properties of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

Let Us All Be Unhappy on Sunday.

We zealots, made up of stiff clay,
The sour-looking children of sorrow,
While not over jolly to-day,
Resolve to be wretched to-morrow.
We can't tell certainty tell
What fourth may unfleat us on Monday,
But, at least, to begin the week well,
Let us all be unhappy on Sunday.

That day, the calm serenity of rest,
Shall come to us freezing and frigid;
A gloom all our thoughts shall invest,
Such as Calvin would call over rigid.
With sermons from morning till night,
We'll strive to be decent and dreary;
To preachers a praise and delight,
Who ne'er think that sermons can weary.

All tradesmen cry up their own wares;
In this they agree well together
The mason by stone and lime swears;
The tanner is always for leather;
The smith still for iron would go;
The schoolmaster stands up for teaching;
And the parson would have you to know
There's nothing on earth like his preaching.

The faces of kind Nature is fair;
But our system obscures its effulgence;
How sweet is a breath of fresh air!
But our rules don't allow the indulgence.
These gardens, their walks and green bowers,
Might be free to the poor man for one day
But no, the glad plants and gay flowers
Mustn't bloom or smell sweet on Sunday.

What though a good precept we strain
Till hateful and hurtful we make it!
What though, in thus pulling the rein,
We may draw it so tight as to break it!
Abroad we forbid folks to roam,
For fear they get sound or frisky;
But of course they can't sit still at home
And get dismally drunk upon whisky.

Then, though we can't certainly tell
How mirth may molest us on Monday,
At least, to begin the week well,
Let us all be unhappy on Sunday.

The Curfew Heroine.

It lacked but half an hour of Curfew toll. The old bell-ringer came from under the wattled roof of his cottage steep, and stood with uncovered head in the clear, sweet scented air. He had grown blind and deaf in the service, but his old arm was as muscular as ever; and he who listened this day marked no faltering in the heavy, metalee throws of the cathedral bell. Old Jasper had lived through many changes. He had tolled out his notes of mourning for good Queen Bess; and with tears scarcely dry he had rung the glad tidings of the coronation of James; Charles the First had been crowned, reigned and expiated his weakness before all England in Jasper's time; and now he, who under his army held all the commonwealth in the hollow of his hand, ruled as more than monarch, and still the old man, with the habit of a long life upon him, rang his matin and sorrow.

Jasper stood alone now, lifting his dimmed eyes up to the softly dappled sky.

The walls of his memory seemed so written over—so crossed and re-crossed by the annals of the years that had gone before, that there seemed little room for anything in the present. Little recked he that Cromwell's spearman were camped on the moor beyond the village—that Cromwell himself rode with his guardsmen a league away; he only knew that the bell that had been rung in the tower when William the Conqueror made curfew a law, had been spared by Puritan and Roundhead, and that his arm for sixty years had never failed him at eventide.

He was moving with slow step toward the gate, when a woman came hurriedly in from the street and stood beside him; a lovely woman, but with face so blanched that it seemed carved in the whitest of marble with all of its roundness and dimples. Her great solemn eyes were raised to the aged face in pitiful appeal, and the lips were forming words that he could not understand.

"Speak up, lass, I am deaf, and cannot hear your clatter."

The voice raised, and the hands clasped and unclasped, and wrung themselves together, palm and palm.

"For Heaven's sake, good Jasper, do not ring curfew to-night."

"What na ring curfew! Ye must be daft, lassie."

"Jasper, for sweet Heaven's sake, for my sake, for one night, in all your long life forget to ring the bell! Fail this once and my lover shall live, whom Cromwell says shall die at curfew toll.—Do you hear?—my lover, Richard Temple. See, Jasper, here is money to make your old age happy. I sold my jewels that the Lady Maud gave me; and the gold shall all be yours for one curfew."

"Would ye bribe me, Lily De Vere? Ye're a changeling. Ye've na the blood of the Plantagenets in ve're veins as your mother had. What! corrupt me, bell-ringer under her majesty, good Queen Bess! Not for all the gold that Lady Maud could bring me! What is your lover to me? Babes have been born and strong men have died before now at the ringing of my bell. Awa' awa'!"

And out on the village green, with the solemn shadows of the lindens lengthening over it, a strong man awaited the curfew to toll for his death. He stood, handsome, and brave, and tall—taller by an inch than the tallest pikeman who guarded him.

What had he done that he should die? Little it mattered in those days when the sword that the great Cromwell weilded was so prone to fall, what he or others had done. He had been scribe to the late lord up at the castle; and Lady Maud, forgetting that man must woo, and woman must wait, had given her heart to him without the asking; while the gentle Lily De Vere, distant kinswoman, and poor companion to her, had, without seeking, found the treasures of his true love, and held them fast. When he had joined the army and made one of the pious soldiers whose evil passions were never stirred but by sign or symbol or tippery. But a scorned woman's hatred had reached him even there. Enemies and deep plots had compassed him about and conquered him. To-night he was to die!

The beautiful world lay as a vivid picture before him. The green wood above the rocky hill and his merry men, the frowning castle with its square towers with the pennon green, straight walks of the birds overhead, even the at his feet he saw. But, ah! more vividly than all, he saw the great red sun with its hazy veil lingering above the trees, as though it pitied him with more than human pity!

He was a God fearing and God serving man. He had long made his peace with heaven. Nothing stood between him and death—nothing rose pleading between him and those who were to destroy him, but the sweet face of Lily De Vere, whom he loved. She had knelt at Cromwell's feet and pleaded for his life. She had wearied heaven with her prayers, but all without avail.

Slowly now the great sun went down. Slowly the last red rim was hidden behind the greenwood. Thirty seconds more and his soul would be with his God. The color did not forsake his cheeks. The dark rings of hair lay upon a warm brow. It was his purpose to die as martyrs and brave men die.—What was life that he should cling to it? He always felt the air pulsate with the first heavy roll of the death-knell. But no sound came. Still facing the soldiers with his clear gray eyes upon them, he waited. The crimson banners in the west were paling to pink. The king had ceased their lowing, and had been gathered into the brick-yards.

All nature had sounded her curfew; but old Jasper was silent!

The bell-ringer with his gray head yet bared had traversed half the distance that lay between his cottage and the ivy covered tower, when a form went flitting past him, with pale, shadowy robes floating around it, and hair that the low western lights touched and tinted as with a halo.

"Ah, Huldah, Huldah!" the old man muttered; "how swift she flies! I will come soon, dear. My work is almost done." Huldah was the good wife, who had gone from him in early womanhood, and for whom he had mourned all his long life. But the fleeting form was not Huldah's; it was Lily De Vere, hurried by a sudden and desperate purpose toward the old cathedral.

"So help me God, curfew shall not ring to-night! Cromwell and his dragoons come this way. Once more I will kneel at his feet and plead."

She entered the ruined arch. She wrenched from its fastenings the carved and worm-eaten door that barred the way to the tower. She ascended with flying and frenzied feet the steps; her heart lifted up to God for Richard's deliverance from peril. The bats flew out and shook the dust of centuries from the black carvings. As she went up she caught glimpses of the interior of the great building, with its groined roof, its chevrons and clustered columns; its pictured saint and carved image of the Virgin, which the pillagers of ages had spared to be dealt with by time, the most relentless Vandal of all.

Up—still up—beyond the rainbow tints thrown by the stained glass across her death-white brow; up—still up—past open arcade and arch, with griffin and gargoyls staring at her from under bracket and cornice, with all the hideousness of mediæval carving; the stairs, flight by flight, growing frailer beneath her young feet; now but a slender network between her and the outer world; but still up.

Her breath was coming short and grasping. She saw, through an open space, old Jasper cross the road at the foot of the tower. Oh, how far! The seconds were treasures which Cromwell, with all his blood-bought commonwealth, could not purchase from her. Up—ah—there, just above her, with its great brazen mouth and wicked tongue, the bell hung!

A worm eaten block for a step; and one small white hand had clasped itself above the clapper—the other prepared, at the tremble, to rise and clasp its mate, and the feet to swing off; and thus she waited. Jasper was old and slow—but he was sure, and it came at last. A faint quiver, and young feet swung from their rest tender hands clasped for t ir precious life, the wreath. There was groaning and crea of the rude pulleys above, and then the strokes came heavy and strong. Jasper's hand had not forgot its cunning, nor his arm its strength. The tender, soft form was swung and dashed to and fro. But she clung to and caressed the cold, cruel thing. Let one stroke come and a thousand might follow—for its fatal work won d be done. She wreathed her white arms about it, so that at every pull of the great ropes it crushed into the flesh. It tore her, and wounded and bruised—but there in the solemn twilight the brave woman swung, and fought with the curfew; and God gave her victory!

The old bell-ringer said to himself:—"Aye, Huldah, my work is done. The pulleys are getting too heavy for my old arms. My ears, too, have failed me at last. I dinna hear one stroke of the curfew. Dear old bell, it is my ears that have gone false, and not thou. Farewell, old friend!"

And just beyond the worn pavement a shadowy form again went flitting past him. There were drops of blood upon the white garments; and the face was like the face of one who walked in her sleep, and the hands hung wounded and powerless at her side.

Cromwell paused with his horsemen under the dismantled may-pole before the village green. He saw the man who was to die at sunset standing up in the dusky air, tall as a king and beautiful as Absalom. He gazed with knitted brow and angry eye; but his lips did not give utterance to the quick command that trembled on them, for a girl came flying toward him. Pikeman and archer stepped aside to let her pass. She threw herself upon the turf at his horse's feet; she lifted her bleeding and tortured hands to his gaze, and once more poured out her prayer for the life of her lover; with trembling lips she told him why Richard still lived—why the curfew had never sounded.

Lady Maud, looking out of her latticed window at the castle, saw the great Protector dismount, lift the fainting form in his arms, and bear her to her lover. She saw the guards release the prisoner, and she heard the shouts of joy at his deliverance; then she welcomed the night that shut the scene out from her envious eye and sepulchured her in its gloom.

The next matin bell old Jasper curfew toll he was laid beside the wife who had died in his youth, but the memory of whom had been with him always.

The following interesting letter from our friend Ross Whisenant having miscarried, and gone to Jacksonville Florida, did not reach us until May 16th, over a month after it was written; but old as it is, it is full of interest and we most gladly publish it. Ross is one of a party travelling through the State of Florida.

[For the Jacksonville Republican.]

Letter From Florida.

CAMP JAMES ISLAND,
FRANKLIN CO., FLA.
April 12, 1874.

DEAR LON:

We are now camped on James Island; arrived here this morning. We drove our wagons as near the beach as possible in order to get a full benefit of the sea breeze, and take salt water bathes. The children are delighted to be permitted to wade out so far when the tide is up gathering shells and dipping up fish.

This Island is 12 miles long and 6 miles wide with very little timber—a few pines and small oak. There are some deer, though hard to kill, and fish and oysters in abundance. We have not had a bear chase yet.

According to promise I will give you all the information I can concerning the climate, soil, products and resources of this State, hoping you will correct, as I rarely ever write a letter and have never written to an editor before. We have travelled through four counities, Leon, Wakulla, Gadsden and Franklin. The soil is light and sandy. The products of these counties embraces all the cereals, roots, vines, vegetables, sugar cane &c., and is a freestone country, mostly well watered. There are a great many ponds and long sloughs of water. I must acknowledge I do not fancy the country. I think it is unhealthy, though the people call an attack of chills mere nothing. The timber is mostly pine, cypress, bay, magnolia and black-jack. They say that the peach, fig and berries yield a great abundance. We camped several days near "Wakulla spring," the most magnificent spring I ever saw, 190 feet deep, water clear as crystal. I dropped a gin cap in and could see it as plain as if the water was only a few feet deep. This spring heads Wakulla River. Tallahassee is an old, dilapidated looking place, few flowers and but little fruit. It is mostly ruled by the freedmen, the majority of the merchants having freedmen for their clerks.

Provision of all descriptions are very high. The taxes are $3.25 on the $100 on real estate. The musquitoes and knats and sand flies are terrible; you have no idea what a pest they are. They have sucked so much blood out of the people that live in this country, that if you were to cut off one of the ears of any of the inhabitants, I do not believe it would bleed. The majority of the people are very poor; the school-houses are very scarce and society is bad. Cattle would do well if the insects were not so bad. Land is worth from 12½ cts. to $5 per acre unimproved. The hammock lands are very good. The farmers say that they can raise from 12 to 20 barrels of syrup to the acre on their best lands, and one bale of cotton and 10 or 12 bushels of corn, but the weavil destroys the corn. It is so bad that our stock will hardly eat it.

I will close, as I do not wish to weary your patience. Pardon all errors. Excuse pencil writing, as I could not procure ink on the island. I wish you could see Jake fight the sandflies.

Respectfully,
ROSS W. WHISENANT.

TOO MUCH NEGRO.

From the Manchester (N H) Union (Democrat:)

The Nashua Telegraph is informed that this paper reconizes the political equality of the negroes. What it objects to is the attempt to give them undue prominence because they are negroes. Why did they send to South Carolina for a negro to pronounce the eulogy of Charles Sumner in Boston? Because he was a negro—we suppose there is no doubt about that. Why was a negro called to the Speaker's chair in the House, an honor which nine-tenths of the white members never shared? Because he was a negro. And so on. It is these attempts to exalt the negro above white people of infinitely greater merit which is offensive and disgusting.

Mr. Commissioner Wells, in one of his annual reports, estimates the "cost of the destruction of slavery," at nine thousand millions of dollars—to say nothing of a million of lives. After such sacrifice, it seems eminently proper that the negroes shall take care of themselves Instead, it has been almost the entire business of the government since to pet and pamper them, to the ruin of both races.

The Telegraph can not be blind to the ruinous policy of the government, as exemplified in South Carolina and everywhere else, where the "bottom trail has been placed on top." This fearful flood in Louisiana buildings wholly to Mr. Grant in installing incompetent, irresponsible and thieving men in power in that State over men legally elected, who could and would have protected its material interests. This Arkansas embroglio belong to the same category of crimes. Brooks was undoubtedly elected Governor in 1871, but to secure the State for himself, Grant connived at the throwing out of several counties, and the inauguration of the usurper, which could not have been done otherwise. He is naturally embarrassed at the present situation.

As if enough had not already been done for the negroes, Congress proposes to pass a law imposing a fine of $500 upon any man who shall deny a negro admission to any school—social equality by 16 of Congress! The effect will be to break up all the school systems of the South. Telegraph would not like to send his children into daily intimate associations with the filthy barbarians of the plantation, and he must allow the Southern people the choice. same sense of propriety and liberty of The law in question would simply break up all the schools in the South—and ought to. The natural effect will be to stop all appropriations for schools and leave everybody to employ such agencies as they can.

The truth is, this negro business has become a bore. The freedom and political equality of the blacks is recognized by everybody—whatever opinions they may have entertained, and so far as we are concerned, we have no hesitation in saying that the enfranchisement of the blacks under the circumstances, was a crime second only to the inauguration of a war for their emancipation. We believe that there is a common feeling that we ought to let the negroes alone, and take care of ourselves—especially as they seem to be getting along the best where they are let alone. We hear of no trouble in the Democratic States of the South. It is only in four or five States which the administration and ist negro allies still control, that disturbances still exist, and we trust the time will soon come when their numbers will be less.

We have discharged our duty to the negro when we accord to him the same rights that we possess. Most people will assent to this. What we don't like and what they don't like is the persistent purpose of certain cheap demagogues to thrust individual blacks into offensive prominence, and to compel by act of Congress, if it were possible, the social association of the races. We have done and suffered enough for the negroes. We say to them, now as Mr. Greeley said eight years ago—"root hog or die."

TERRIBLE DEVASTATION.

A true Statement of the Condition of North Louisiana.

Editors St. Louis Republican:

Having been a resident of North Louisiana more or less since 1844, and having recently arrived from that section I would beg to correct an error in your article of Sunday's edition, in regard to the extent of the overflow in that section.

The principle cotton producing district of Louisana is the alluvial lands comprised within the triangle formed by the Mississippi river east, Arkansas line north and Ouachita river southwest each angle being from one hundred to one hundred and fifty miles in length, within which is comprised on this Mississippi river the parishes of Carroll, Madison, Tensas and Concordia; on Ouachita river, Ouachita, Caldwell and Catahoula; between Morehouse, Richland and Franklin. This section produces probably two-thirds of the cotton of the whole State, the Red river parishes, with Avoyelle, all now overflowed, producing most of the balance. In the above mentioned triangle, the bayour Tensas, Joes, Macon Bœuf, Bonady, Lafourche, Bartholomew and many smaller ones flow from near the Arkansas line south, concentrating there at Trinits on Ouachita and at other points.

The whole line of the Mississippi river in Arkansas below Napoleon is mostly without leveés, and the water flows over the banks from three to fifteen feet deep, and passes from bayou until they overflow, so as to form in many places a sea of water from one to another, and gathering volume from the Louisiana crevasses, move southward, sweeping everthing in its track, until it finds its outlet at the mouth of Red River or down the Atchafalaya. In many places you can pass in boats from the Ouachita twenty, thirty, even forty miles east, across the county to the Mississippi river. The railroad from Vicksburg to Monroe on Ouachita, with the mail contract, has been sometime ago abandoned. The road crosses the triangle near the centre and is on as high ground as can be found. Thirty-five miles of it from Vicksburg to Delhi, on Bayou Macon, is under water, with not one acre of dry land on the route. The balance of the road is nearly all under, in fact with the exception of a narrow strip on Bayou Macon west and a very little high land or ridges in Morehouse, the entire triangle is submerged and fences and houses, in some instances swept away, and thousands of cattle, hogs and horses drowned.—Before the war these parishes produced from 40,000 to 50,000 bales of cotton each—perhaps one-third since.

From the various disasters of almost every kind that have afflicted Louisiana since the war, the planters have really become poorer every year. In nine cases out of ten they have been compelled so rely on their factors for means to plant from year to year. The overflow came before the usual time of making advances, and none have obtained their usual supplies. Not one in ten have made supplies at home to last them sixty days. To raise meat is out of the question, as freedmen appropriate it generally with impunity. In many parishes the black population outnumber the whites ten to one, holding all the officers, furnish the jurors, and penalties for hog theft are seldom, if ever, inflicted. Nearly all the whites within my very extensive acquaintance are striving to get means to abandon the State. Their poverty only prevents a general emigration to Texas, or some other white man's country, as they call it. Now, it is impossible to conceive of the suffering of these people, unless you had, as I have, traversed the country in boats.

The devastation and ruin that meet you everwhere, the consternation of the inhabitants, their present sufferings and apprehensions for the future, are really heart rending, their little property depreciating from 20 to 30 per cent. Every year, taxes 5 per cent., and in some parishes even 7 per cent., on a value fixed by those who usually have no property to tax, and are only interested in making the commissions for assessing and collecting as large as possible. No privations that these people experienced during the war will at all compare with those they suffer now, thousands of poor whites as well as negroes seeking from place to place, some kind of employment to earn bread from day to day; but I have already probably written more than you will admit to your columns, and yet I have only stated a few of the trials and suffering of my people. To the Democratic and Conservative Party of Calhoun County.

Conforming to the call made for a State Convention, and the apportionment of delegates thereto, by the State Executive Committee, I hereby give notice that a Convention of the Democratic and Conservative Party of Calhoun County will be held in the town of Jacksonville on the 12th day of July, 1874, for the purpose of appointing or electing nine (9) delegates to the Democratic State Convention to assemble in the city of Montgomery on the 29th day of July, 1874.

If deemed expedient and proper, the Convention can also take such steps and adopt such measures as may be necessary with regard to the nomination of candidates for the Legislature and County offices, in which event beat delegates ought to be instructed by resolution or otherwise as to the will of their respective beats, so that they may act advisedly and with authority.

As a matter for your consideration, I also submit the fact that this year you are to elect your Congressman, Chancellor and Circuit Judge, and, while no conventions have been called to make nominations for these offices, yet should it be determined to hold such conventions, the duty of appointing delegates to represent you in their deliberations, will devolve upon your County Convention. Please consider this in your beat meetings and instruct your delegates accordingly.

In order that the Convention may be full and in its results satisfactory to all, I respectfully request and recommend that each beat or voting precinct hold a meeting on the 4th day of July, 1874, and, as advised by the State Executive Committee, "elect one delegate for every twenty-five (25) Democratic and Conservative votes cast in the last general election," also to so distribute the delegates to be elected over the beats or voting precincts, as to make the County Convention representative in character, and in its action reflective of the views of the ENTIRE Democratic party of the county.

Speaking of the declaration of the National Grange, that the Patrons of Husbandry is not a political organization, the Oskaloosa Independent says:

This declaration, if carried out, will soon rid the order of all corrupt political shysters and plunderers who have rushed into it under the supposition that they could make of it a political machine to ride them into office. We said to the grangers, last year, make it known to the political parties that you will support no bad man for office, if nominated; and thus compel all parties to put out good men for office. This is the true policy; and the national grange has emphatically declared it to be the true policy of the order. It is thus seen that we have been true to principle, while some others have not.

There are 1,200 Granges, and about 2,000 Farmers' Clubs in Illinois. Who will say the Farmers' Movement is going down?

Blount county farmers are sowing more clover, millet, and grasses for pasture and to enrich their lands, than ever before.

Both Editors of this paper together with Mr. Jos. H. Francis of this place have gone to the editorial convention at Birmingham, and will probably be absent at Montgomery and other points with the excursionists during the week. If they do not get back before Saturday, the readers of the Republican must attribute any deficiencies that they may discover in this issue to their absence.

A deservedly high compliment paid our talented and generous townsman and friend, Geo. I. Turnley, by the Atlanta Commonwealth, on the occasion of a recent professional visit of his to Atlanta, has been for two numbers of the paper unaccountably over-looked by the compositors to whom the copy was furnished by the editors of this paper Our spirited Georgia cotemporary could have paid no higher or more deserved compliment to one more highly deserving off it. It gives us great pleasure to see our young men so highly appreciated abroad as they are.

A Word to The Grangers.

GENTLEMEN:

Your order, to me, is a secret organization, under the name of "Patrons of Husbandry," more commonly and generally known as the "Grange." Judging from what is published you are now, in the Middle, Western and Southern States, a mighty power in the land, being composed, as you are, of both our male and female population, embracing "necessarily" our highest and lowest, best and "perhaps" our worst elments of society, aggregating in numbers, hundreds of thousands. Such an organization, is calculated, in a Republic like ours; to do for its citizens, a vast deal of good; or a vast amount of harm. If your labor's result in the former, generations yet to come, will rise up to heap blessing upon your memories. If the latter then necessarily, those who follow in our footsteps, will share a part of our "improper" though well "intended councils."—Hence the more important is it, that you look well, to your "interests" in all your actions. As we are commanded to judge the tree by its fruit, we can only judge your "intentions" by what you publicly "declare." In National Convention recently held at St. Louis, composed of delegates, representing a majority of Granges then organized, and presumed to be, men of the first talent of your order. They most solemnly "declared" that their objects and aims were of a 'non-political character,' and their great and paramount object and desires, were to build up, elevate and protect the Agricultural Interests of the country, to which, I heartily and enthusiastically "exclaim" Amen. The above being granted as true; we will say, Husbandry or Agriculture (and in those terms we embrace all the varied forms of cultivating the soil,) has been in all ages, and with all people, conducive to civilization, peace and happiness; as well as prosperity, independence and longevity. And to-day, Agriculture is the true basis of our "boasted" civilization and prosperity. And without it, our cities would naturally be depopulated, our various mechanical pursuits cease their busy hum, the majestic steamers that ply our mighty ocean's carrying our productions from one hemisphere to the other, the Iron Horse, with his "racepaths" almost encircling the earth's surface, would be brought to a "wonderful standstill."

Then, indeed, is it not worth a trial, to elevate, educate and promote a healthy growth in so important a part of our society.

The Great Giver of all things, has said to His creatures upon this earth; so long as time shall last, we should have a seed and a harvest time. How encouraging indeed is this promise to the Husbandmen, or tiller of the soil.—And does not it imply, that if we make a proper "use" of "those" specific times we will be blest, with both food and raiment, the two most essential requirements of our nature. I do certainly think, the time, the age, and country in which we live, are all conducive to a successful growth of such an organization, the "present" is always the proper time for action in all things "for to-day, and not to-morrow is our's."—The age is evidently, one of advancement and general prosperity. The country, in richness of native forest; in richness and vastness; of minerals; in variety and healthfulness of climates. And in the "wonderful" variety of productions is unequaled by any part of the inhabitable globe, known to Geographers of the present day. Equally propitious are the inhabitants of our country, representing as they do; all the Nationalities of which we are familiar; all the climates, known to agriculturists, bringing so "beautifully" together, a knowledge; of the varied and profitable productions of the soil, blending in one mass, the temperaments, notions, and inclinations of the human family. Such being the case, it is the more important to have an organized body, through which Council's can be had; questions discussed; experiments reported; information disseminated and general concert of action, adopted.

As you are well aware, such is, and has been the case with almost all other pursuits in life, for years past; resulting in almost a total loss to the farmer of our most "sprightly" and promising young men, by the other pursuits of happiness and prosperity, having been made from their organized concert of action, more attractive, while the "vices" and dazzling temptations of village and city life, have charged the honest, virtuous, and confiding farmers boy; into the gambling, drunken, loafering "character" so often met with in our towns and cities. Hence the more important is it to elevate, stimuldte and encourage that class of people; and by that means bring the Agriculturists to the "front rank" of the various callings of life, a place they so justly and manifestly merit. There are before you in the South, "my own, my native land" much for you to do; as you, too well know, more than half the laborers of the South, were but recently slaves; now they are freemen, and with the change, they have been made the political, and judicial equals of the descendants of the revolutionary heroes of 1776. We are now passing through the "wonderful" and much to be "dreaded" experiment of the "political equality" of all races of humanity, consequently our labor is disorganized, not reliable, equally the prices, and classes of our laborer's, all of which might be so regulated, as to establish, uniform prices, for laborer's No. 1 2 & 3 requiring strict compliance with contracts, giving no employment to those of known bad character, no interference with employed, and no employment without an honorable discharge from former employer. Politics you cannot entirely ignore, in a Republic like ours—you are very nearly the controlling power; I would urge upon you, to Think and Act for yourselves; let not the Demagogue Politician, who hangs upon the body politic like the leach upon your flesh; "always receiving and never returning" dictate to you, your action in political issues, from all such turn away; as you would from a leporous Jew. And in selecting men to fill your public positions, select men, of known and unquestionable moral character.

I would admonish you, to not allow your fidelity, and zeal, for your own cause, cause you to do injustice, to that of any other; think you for a moment; how beautiful do all our various pursuits and callings in life, blend; producing one grand, one incomprehensible whole, tending to promote, general intelligence, liberty, prosperity and happiness. Then I would advise you, not to mak war upon any other professions, or pursuits, but rather act upon the defensive; by hedging around, defending, protecting, and giving new life, new energy, and more industry, throughout all the various forms of Agriculture. And the day will not be far distant, when indeed and truly, you will be a mighty power in the land. A war upon the Tariffs of Transportation, is not so important to you now as a war upon the excess of production, in your leading crop South, that of cotton.

In illustration, if you confine your cotton crop to two million bales, and get 25 cts. per pound for it; you will have as much money, as four million bales at 12½ cts. per pound. Leaving you at least four millions of acres of land, to be cultivated in grapes, and cereals, from which to produce your mutton, beef, pork and , besides a saving to the South several million of dollars annually in the way of transportation, for it is the "extra" amount of cottton shipped out, and the excessive amount of provisions for man and animal, bought South, that gives employment, to the various lines of transportation, for at least six months in the year.

Interfere not with the established, commercial organizations which are now plying between America and the other ports of the world by attempting to organize of your "own" means a line of steamers, you will have, from "necessity" to "entrust" the operations of such a policy "entirely" with a class of men, not identified in interest with you; no further than your "money goes," your vessels of course will have to be commanded and opperated by experienced seamen, your agents in all your ports of entry, will also be more familiar with "seafaring" and Commercial Law, besides you will certainly have to "compete" with the combined capital, at present invested in commerce. A farmer may be a "flower" on the "land" but a "lubber" on the "ocean." You can, and ought to offer, every reasonable inducements to make your ports of entry, attractive, and encourage, all in your power, direct trade and shipping, with foreign countries; and above all organize a system, and offer such "inducements" as will secure to the South an increased flow of "desirable" Foreign emigration millions of dollars, might annually, be kept in the South, by using a little more economy, in the consumption of manufactured goods, for certainly it does seem, the leading idea with Southern people now, is to "manufacture nothing" but buy everything, even our axe and hoe handles, and plow stocks and gearing, our lines and bridals, in short almost everything you can mention, is now manufactured and shipped hundreds of miles to find consumers, taxing of course the consumer, with the cost of production, and transportation, besides commisions, for at least a dozen middle men. Then make war upon our own "luxurious inclinations," should be your motto.—Think, will you for a moment of the the grandure, and inestimable richness of King Solomon's Temple where Art and Mechanism combined to produce upon earth a building suited for the indwelling of the Spirit of the Great I am, surpassing in richness of material any building upon earth, controlled by the wisest man who has lived before or since his day, and yet with all that, they could not have had one feast without the fruits of the farmer and vine dresser, but at the same time, the latter could have feasted, like the Patriarch of old, beneath their own vine and fig tree. All of which, proves to you your independence, of many other pursuits of life at the same time, when all keep pace with each other, how magnificent and imposing the results. Hence, the more important for general "co-operation" at the same time, promoting in your own order a healthy improvement. And it is to be hoped, the results may be, that Agriculture, in all its varied ramifications may keep pace in improvements in all its parts, with the Artistic, Mechanical and Scientific developments of the age.

To the ladies, I will say, that I would not burthen their minds, their time and cares, with the various and complex ideas of governmental machinery, believing as I do their mission, to be far more exalted and exceedingly more beneficial to our race, in other and more retired fields of labor, yet, with your movement, I do think and believe they can be and will be a very great auxilary, knowing as I do, that the little good there is in humanity largely emenates from the modesty, virtue and charity, which so gracefully adorns our women.

And further to know, that women, in their Council's are prudent, cautious, and sagacious, and when necessary, very zealous in behalf of their cause and for the ladies of your order, I would offer this prayer, "that a little leaven, may leaven the whole lump." In closing, I will express to you, my wish, and heartfelt desire, that you may succeed, beyond your most sanguine anticipations, and, that the day may not be far distant, when in thy own, my beloved, my native South Land, that the now seeming deserts made to blossom as the rose safrus, saw bryer, and sage erted into clover, grain and and every Grainger's Home and of ...now empty Smoke ...eries, be filled to overflowing ...ound your winter firesides may supreme, earthly happines, and contentment prevail, so mote it be.

With Much Respect,
J. D. HAMMONDS.

RECEPTION ADDRESS.

Of J. J. Jolly to the Press of Ala.

GENTLEMEN OF THE PRESS ASSOCIATION OF THE STATE OF ALABAMA.

The honor and privilege has been given me to welcome you to the City of Birmingham, and to extend to you the hospitalities of our citizens. The holding of two Conventions successively by your body in our city, is a compliment duly and highly appreciated by us all. an honor rare'y bestowed by so worthy intelligent, and distinguished a body, upon any city or people in the South. We appreciate it the more from the fact that our city is yet in its infancy, and whilst we hope we have not aspired to greater renown and importance than our vas mineral resources, our great advantage of climate and geographical location, and the enterprise and intelligence of our citizens entire us to; yet we are justly proud of this manifestation of the fact that the people of the State of Alabama feel so much interest in our growth and prosperity, and that to-day there assembles in our midst a Convention of the most worthy and distinguished representatives of the people and the press. But a short time ago, railroads and steam engines were unseen and unheard by the people of this section. Now we have two of the most important lines of road intersecting within the corporate limits of our city, and others of equal importance projected, and to be completed in the early future. It seems but a month ago when the traveller could see nothing more than an old and abandoned field, where now stands this young but rapidly growing city, numbering thousands of inhabitants.

It is true, gentlemen, in our youth we cannot offer to you the grand entreatments and banquets, and the munificent comforts which are within the reach of our older and more wealthy cities. But we do desire to present to your view the city and its surrounding country in order that you may observe what, in so short a time, has been accomplished by energy, enterprise, and labor.

But for our present growth and prospects, for the information given to the country of our unsurpassed iron ore and inexhaustable coal fields and for directing attention to the west and yet unexplored wealth of this hitherto almost unknown region, we are indebted, more than to any and all other sources, to the Press and its representatives. In-leed in all the past, as in the present, and in all things the Press has been the, great power of the land. When the Temple of Liberty has been threatened by the storm clouds of faction, the representatives of the press have ever been the most faithful sentinels upon the watch tower, and always the first to sound the note of alarm! When in the recent past, the gates of Justice and Mercy were all shut up, and civil War spurred its "fiendish saturnalia" and raged "in the liberty of bloody land," the representatives of the press have ever been the firmest friends the safest counsellors, and the most faithful and heroic defenders of the people—the first to advise, the foremost to inspire courage and faith and hope and confidence, and the last to yield the contest.

When peace returns, they are the first to welcome it, with its many blessings, the first to point out the way to overcome the evils of the past and the safest and best qualified to chalk out the course which leads to prosperity and to happiness.

Surely in all their manifold labors of life the prosperity and happiness of the people have been their chief aim, their greatest aspiration.

That ...en always the Liborum by wh... been guided and inspired ...ay with them "the pillow of ... night, and the cloud by day." The press addresses the people with wisdom and with eloquence.

"With an eloquence, not like those rills
from a height,
Which sparkle and foam, and in vapor are o'er
But a current that works out its way into light,
Through the filtering resources of thought and love."

And gentleman your efforts have not been in vain, but fruitful of great good. Notwithstanding the strife, the misfortunes, the trials, through which our long suffering people have passed, you have not the consolation of knowing that by your efforts for the most part "there is life in the old land yet" and that this beautiful country, once laid waste, has resumed its march in the line of prosperity and happiness. Your matches efforts have inspired us with the two grandest emotions of the "Castor and Pollux, twin sharers in immortality," which should be our household gods, to be cherished on the heart stones of the present and future generations. "As the beautiful Scandinavain myrth, three weird sisters preserve the Ash tree from perishing" so they must sustain and support us.

The past in ours for example, the present is ours for profit, and the future, let us hope, will be ours for reward!

Gentlemen, permit me again, in behalf of our people, to welcome you to our city, and with open hearts and hands, to extend to you hospitalities.

That your visit to our city, and your deliberations here, may be pleasant and profitable to us all, is our sincere wish.

Straining sweetness—Kissing through a veil.

THE PRESS.

The great framer of public-opinion is here to-day in its might. Every member of the Press Association honors the citizens of Birmingham for their generous hospitality to the Fourth Estate, and we are more than well pleased that the old cities of the State are now visiting with the three year old city in a desire to extend their hospitalities.

This is indeed matter for congratulation, and ere this read by our citizens sixty representatives of the Press of New York, will be in our midst. Let us give them a genial, hearty greeting, such a one as only the South can give. They have been well received at Louisville, Nashville and other cities along the route as may be seen from the following dispatch received from Col. J. R. Powell on yesterday:

Nashville, 18th May.

EDITORS INDEPENDENT:

We have an elegant party of New York editors and their wives, sixty in number, have been elegantly entertained at Louisville and the Mammoth Cave, and are now receiving unbounded hospitalities from Nashville. Will leave here this evening, leave Decatur Tuesday morning, visiting Cullman and dinning at Blount Springs. We will visit the coal mines and arrive at Birmingham at 4 o'clock P. M Tell Messrs Pearson, Hewitt, and Terry to come up with Committee to Decatur this evening; come yourselves and all Birmingham Editors.

Chancery Sale.

UNDER and by virtue of a Decree rendered at the Chancery Court for the 1st District, eastern Chancery Division of Alabama, at the February Term, 1874, in the cause of H. S. Ferguson against J. M. Mehaig, L. C. Mehaig et als. I will, as Register of said Chancery Court, proceed to sell, to the highest bidder for cash, before the court house door of Calhoun county,

On Monday the 8th day of June, 1874,

Within the usual hours of sale, the following described Real Estate, to-wit:

The west half of south-east fourth of section 35; and the south west fourth of said section 35, except that which lies inside of the field of Larkin Caker, supposed to be five or six acres, and also, except the right of way heretofore granted and given for the use of the school house; also the south west fourth of the north west fourth of said section 35, except three acres in the south east corner including the Oak Bowery Baptist Church and grave yard. Also the north east fourth, and the east half of the south east fourth of section 34, and about seventy-five acres in the west half of the north west fourth of said section 34, that lies north west of Tallassehachee Mountain, the top of the mountain being the line. Also the north east fourth of the south west fourth of said section 34, except a part heretofore sold and deeded by Benjamin Griffin to Lewis Mcharg, witnessed by C. W. Willis, Jo. Hamilton and Samuel Read, being about five acres so deeded more or less. Also the south east fourth of section 27 and eleven acres of the south west fourth of the south west fourth of said section 27 that lies south of the Tallassehatchee Creek; and also that part of the east half of the south west fourth of said section 27 that lies south of the Tallassehatchee creek; and also that part of the said east half of the south west fourth that lies East of the Ohatchee creek; also all that portion of the south west fourth of section 26, that lies west of the said Tallassehatchee creek, say two acres more or less—all of said foregoing described lands being and lying in township 14, range 6 east, in the Coosa Land District; also fraction "D" of section 2, township 15 of range 6, east in said Coosa Land District, which said tract or parcels of land were also known as the Tatum place.

Said lands will be sold at the time and place mentioned above, to satisfy said Decree in favor of said Ferguson against said Mehargs, et als.

THE GEM MICROSCOPE.

The Gem Microscope is the most wonderful scientific production of the nineteenth century. It furnishes the power of a high-priced instrument for a mere trifle, and exceeds in usefulness any microscope ever invented. It reveals the hidden wonders of minute creation—as Eels in Vinegar, animals in water, Butterflies' Feathers, the Golden Marrow of a Hair, Insects' Eyes, the Pads, Claws, joints and hairs of a Fly's foot, makes Ropes of Fibers of cloth, a crowbar of a needle's point, and so on indefinitely. It furnishes hours of instruction, entertainment and amusement for the young and old, and every family should possess it. It is invaluable to students, professors, teachers, physicians, in fact everybody, and especially in the HOME circle is it a GEM. It is cheap, and at the same time of great value. It is realy of great value to any family if only because it shows the adulterations in food, as sugars, teas, etc., and the qualities of cloths. It also plainly shows TRICHINA SPIRALIS or Pork Worm whenever it exists in pork. Price $1 50 Mailed, postpaid, to any address on receipt of price.

A FAT TAKE FOR AGTS Men and women, Boys and Girls. Whole time or leisure moments and evenings. It works just as well by lamp-light as by daylight. Parents buy it for their children. Liberal cash commissions paid. Exclusive territory. Congenial employment. It excites curiosity, which produces a desire to have it, and requires no talking by the agent. Complete Outfit mailed, post-paid on receipt of $1 50. Circulars and terms free. Send for it and make money.

COMMUNICATED.

JACKSONVILLE, ALA.
MAY 21st, 1874.

Republican:

As your honorable fraternity will be absent for the ensuing week I will try to keep up the West fourth of our stiring little Town. Business seems to be business here, and I am glad to see so much interest taken in public affairs. I always knew that there was a great outcome or at least room for improvements. Strowling in the street yesterday, I was somewhat supprised to see our fellow townsman Charlie Crawford up to his elbows in "MORTAR" molding Brick by the Million. Charles is a man of great energy, as his chips will show his talient for Brick work, something thus our people has been in need of low these many years, and the way to know these things just undertake to walk up some of our main streets after a shower. Business is very brisk this week our merchants are improving there fronts by erecting huge shades to wile away the hours through the summer. I will dare say this people lives a merrier life and wears more of that herb called hearts ease in their bosoms, than they that are clad in silk and velvet. False world, thou jest thou canst not lend the least delight, thy morning pleasure makes an end to pleasure at night. Poor are the wants that thou suppliest with heaven friend, earth thou boast, false earth, thy lyest!

Faith walks with us, and hold our hand. Her eyes are angels' eyes. She walks with us, across the land, wearing a rose upon her breast. Our people have a new invention for destroying flies. Take one bottle of Bourborn, after the contents having been, destroyed, saturate with Sorghum, one drith of powder in bottom, when a sufficient of Vermin, having collected, touch fire, and I will guarantee that wings and legs will be scarce in that BOTTLE."

Messrs C. & D., have the right for Calhoun County. Webster's Dictionary would be a very interesting book to read if he did not change the subject so often. Yours Truly,

A Most Powerful Document.

We this morning surrender the most of our available space to the minority report of the U. S. Senate Committee of Privileges and Elections on the Sykes-Spencer contest. We hope that every man in Alabama will read this wholly unanswerable document. If other business presses at the time it is received, we hope that it will be laid aside to be read at a more favorable time. This plain, pointed, irresistable statement of the case covers every point and omits nothing. It is the best document which can be put in the hands of the people of Alabama as a Democratic campaign paper, because it shows, more forcibly than anything else can, the horrible character of that conspiracy by which man not the choice of the people was sent to Washington to misrepresent them. For this fraud and for the forcible robbery of popular rights by which it was consummated, the people know whom to hold responsible, and it is due their sense of self respect that they rally to the polls next November, as men never rallied before, to wipe out the foul disgrace in one grand, overwhelming victory over the conspirators and their cohorts.

D. B. BOOTH.

The attorney general of Illinois has reached the conclusion that a woman cannot be a notary public in that State because she isn't a man, or rather because she is so unfortunate as to be a woman and not a legal voter. At this the Chicago Post indignantly remarks that it is not to be wondered at that women despair of becoming famous through short roads; any dolt who has a few friends can get his commission as a notary public, but a woman never. As a champion of the fair sex, the Post denounces such a condition of civilization and of law. It is worse to overcome than [illegible] unity which doth hedge a Lively Time in Columbus.

On Satusday last, Col. French Stranger, (formerly of the Opelika Observer) entered the office of the Columbus Enquirer and approaching Maj. Calhoun, with his hand on a pistol as is stated by the Enquirer, demanded a retraction from Maj. C. of a certain article which appeared nine months ago in the Enquirer, Maj. C. refused to make a retraction on demand, but was willing to leave it to four men, two to be chosen by each. Col. S. still kept his hand on his pistol used some harsh words, and attempted to spit in Maj. C's face. Maj. Calhoun though having only one leg, had previously told Col. S. if he would lay aside his pistol he would give him any satisfaction he desired. The two gentlemen came to blows, but were separated by the employees of the office, and at that juncture two policeman came in and arrested Col. S.

A preliminary examination was held, but was adjourned till to-morrow in order to get futher evidence. We believe the files of both papers will be used in evidence.

Little Rock, May 19.—The city is still under military rule, and pickets at every corner. Several accidents have occured from carelessness.

Brooks still holds the State House, and this visitors to the State House report that filth is everywhere; but strange to relate, the State library is unmolested. The mob could neither eat nor read the books.

Brooks is still defiant, and feels assured that the President backed his tily.

Baxter talks of death to traitors. He advises Brooks to leave the State.

Baxter sent a telegram to Washington to-day, that Col. Terry would testify that Judge Bowen Dorses's opponent for the United States Senate, was paid $36,000 by the latter to withdraw from the contest, and that he Baxter, was told by Dorsey that he deposited $200,000 in the bank for the purpose of bribing the legislature.

The accounts from the country are very alarming—house burning, murder, ect. There were two men murdered the other day by a mob, when they were quietly returning to their homes.

Birmingham, Ala., May 19.

Alabama Press Convention met to-day—140 papers represented. New York Editors will arrive to night. They will visit Montgomery Selma, and Tuscaloosa, and return via Atlanta

Little Rock, May 19.

Brooks has evacuated the State house and Baxter possession. The Federals removed. Baxterites fired a [illegible] of 100 guns.

Washington, May 15—Attorney General Williams has given an opinion in the Arkansas matters referred to him by the president. He says it would be disastrous to allow the proceedings by which Brooks obtaning possession of the office to be drawn into precedent. There is not a state in the Union in which they would not produce a conflict a conflict and probably bloodshed. They cannot be upheld or justified upon any ground, and in his opion Elisha Baxter should be recognized as the lawful executive of the state of Arkansas. The president will today issue his proclamation in accordance with this opinion.

The senate is considering the bills from the committee on claims.

The house is engaged on private bills.

The house committee on railways and canals to-day decided to report Eads jetty bill, as perfected by the senate committee. It will be reported to the house, next Monday by Hurlbut, of Illnois, the committee having leave to report at any time.

San Francisco, May 15.—The bandit Vasquez, with two of his gang have been captured near Los Angelos.

Little Rock, May 15.—The Baxterites have captured Brooks' carriage, daughter and coachman.

Col. King White, attempting to kill a Brooksite killed a Baxterite instantly. Numerous murders, and outrages reported throughout the state.

Lexington, May 15.—The weather is fair and the attendance large. Charley Jackson won the hurdle race, Cape Cod won the mile and a quarter dash. Time 2:12½.

Governor Seymour authorizes the Utica Observer to announce that he is out of the race for Governor, and refuses to be a candidate for any office in the gift of the people.

LOCAL.

All diseases of a purely local character which can be reached from the surface, are speedily cured by Magic Arnic Liniment, the best and most scientige liniment ever offered to the public. Swelled limbs, sprains, hurts of all kinds, face ache, tooth ache, tiedoloreux, &c., are relieved like magic.

READ THIS DVIDENCE.

MEMPHIS, TENN., Setp 18. 1869.

Messrs Mansfield & Higbee:

Your Magic Arnic Liniment is surely a wonderful remtdo. It cured me last winter of swelled feet, which gave me a world of trouble and pain. I had no rest at times. Doctors pronounced my disease gout: some called it rheumatism. I only used about half a bottle of your celebrated medicine, and was cured sound and well. I consider one bottle of this powerful penetrating wartbe more to any suffered from pain, than gallons of all other liniments.

P. HEISDTAN.

Our Dormant Energies.

Our bodies are not as vigorous nor our minds as clear as they might be. This remark is true of at least two-thirds of civilized society, and of these two-thirds probably one-half is laboring under bodily infirmities of a character likely to shorten the lives of the sufferers. This is a melancholy exhibit and furnishes abundant food for reflection. Can the evil be mitigated? Lack of vitality is the primary cause of most of the physical and mental suffering to which we are subjected, and therefore a vitalizing medicinal agent is the remedy required. Is there such a medicine? There is. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will rouse and energize the mind and body when the life power of the system is in a comparatively dormant state. The languid, feeble, despondING invalid is not aware of the latent energies that underlies his debility. He thinks there is no element of vigor left in his frame, when the fact is that his physical capabilities are merely asleep and only require waking up. Let him stimulate and tone his animal machinery and endow it with new motive power, through the agency of this incomparable invigorant, and he will soon feel like a new man, or rather like a man who has received a new lease of life, and the requisite health to enjoy it. Many business men suffer from chronic languor and depression caused by too close application to business. Hard students are often oppressed with melancholy from a like cause. Mechanics and working men are affected in the same way as a result of over-labor. To all who are in this condition from whatever cause, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will prove a signal blessing. It is a perfect panacea for physical debility and mental gloom. It strengthens the body, clears the mind and calms the nervous system; while as a remedy for indigestion, billiousness, constipation, rheumatism, and intermittent and remittent fevers, it takes precedence of all other medicines.

PLANTATIONS.

Plantations, factories, work-shops, and all places where large numbers of hands are employed, should never be without the Magic Arnica Liniment. For families it is invaluable. Bruises, sprains, hurts, wounds and injuries are rapidly cured by it, and the pain subdued at once.

READ THE EVIDENCE.

Major R. Abbey, of Commerce, Mississippi, states he used the Magic Arnica Liniment upon several of his working hands for pains and aches, and it acted splendidly. One case was a boy who was very lame, and was entirely relieved by its use.

PLAIN LANGUAGE FROM X. SHARP

AFTER BRET HARTE.

(SHELBY SPRINGS, 1874.)

Which I wish to remark
And my language is plain,
That for ways in the dark
And for tricks on the train
The B. O. G. S. is peculiar,
Which the same I would rise to explain.

Q Flat was his name;
And I shall not deny,
In regard to that same,
What that name might imply;
But his smile it was pensive and childlike,
Which I often remark to Henri.

'Twas the first day of May
And quite soft were the skies,
Which I feared not to say;
That Q Flat was likewise.
Yet he played it that day upon Hannah,
And me in a way I despise.

As we sat in the car,
The irreverent "cuss,"
Did my feelings much jar;
By stealing a "buss?"
As the train passed over a bridge;
And the same came near raising a fuss.

Then we had a small feed,
And Q Flat took a hand;
'Twas a Pic-nic. The same
He did not understand;
Yet he smiled as he sat by the basket,
With a smile that was childlike and bland.

Which his inside he stocked;
In a way that I grieve
And my feelings were shocked
At the state of Q's sleeve,
Which was stuffed full of goobers and sassiage!
And the same with intent to deceive.

And the grub that was eaten.
By that soft B. O. G.
And the way we were beaten,
Was quite frightful to see.
Till at last he bolted a sassiage!
Which the same Hannah had picked out for me.

Then I looked at Henri;
And he gazed upon me,
And I rose with a sigh
And said "can this be?"
We are ruined by secret societies,
And I went for that soft B. O. G.

In the scene which ensued,
We all took a hand;
And the grass it was strewed;
Like the leaves on the strand,
With the "grub" Q Flat had been hiding
In the feed "he did not understand."

In his sleeves which were long,
He'd a whole loaf of bread
Which was coming it strong!
Yet it's true as I've said:
And I've found in his hat which was "holy,"
A sassiage as big as your head.

But affairs took a change
When we returned to the train;
And it's not very strange
That Q's "phiz," expressed pain,
As he fondly caressed his left side;
Which there's no need to rise to explain.

Which is why I remark!
And my reason is plain
That for tricks IN the dark;
And for ways that are vain!
The B. O. G. S. is peculiar
Which the same I am free to maintain!

Laws Relating to Newspaper Subscriptions and Arrearages.

The following is the law as it stands relating to newspapers and subscribers:

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, are considered wishing to continue their subscription.

2. If the subscribers order the discontinuance of their periodicals, the publishers may continue to send them until all arrearages are paid.

3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their periodicals from the office to which they are sent they are held responsible until they have settled their bills and ordered them discontinued.

4. If subscribers move to other places without informing the publishers, and the papers are sent to the former direction, they are held responsible.

5. The Courts have decided that "refusing to take peridicals from the office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud."

6. Any person who receives a newspaper and makes use of it, whether he orders it or not, is held in law to be a subscriber.

7. If subscribers pay in advance, they are bound to give notice to the publisher, at the end of their time, if they do not wish to contine taking it; otherwise the publisher is autherized to send it on, and the subscribers will be responsible until an express notice, with payment of all arrears, is sent to the publisher.

Fact About Advertising.

From the manifesto of a New York advertising agent we subjoin the following pertinent extract for the edification of our merchants:

Newspaper advertising is now recognized, by, business men having faith in their own wares, as the most effective means for securing for their goods a wide recognition of their merits.

Newspaper advertising impels inquiry, and when the article offered is of good quality, and at a fair price, the natural result is increased sales.

Newspaper advertising is a permanent addition to the reputation of the goods advertised, because it is a perant influence always at work in their interest.

Newspaper advertising is the most energetic and vigilant of salesman, addressing thousands each day, always in the advertiser's interest, and ceaselessly at work seeking customers fron all classes.

Newspaper advertising promotes trade, for even in the dullest times advertisers secure by far the largest share of what is being done.

These facts are as applicable to one locality as another.

A Fifteen Hours' Walk for Life.

On Sunday afternoon, a young man named George Falk, swallowed, as he stated, three ounces of laudnum and five grains of morphia in order to end his life, as we reported yesterday. There was but one way of saving him, and that was to keep him in motion. After relieving him as far as possible, his physician, Dr. M. J. Gately, ordered that he be walked until he was out of danger.—At half past 2 o'clock, Sunday afternoon, he was put upon his tramp for life, and was forced to walk in the open air as rapidly as he could. His father kept by him for a long time, and a friend or a policeman assisted. After some hours, the father give out, and finally, officers and friends grew tired. At last officers had to be taken from their beats and made to do duty in saving the life of the would-be suicide. When the walk commenced, it was with great difficulty that he could be kept going, and so great was his stupor that at times he would almost fall like a stick. Frequently it was necessary to catch him and move him on. He reeled at times like a drunken man, and then again he would revive considerably. The dreary, monotonous walk was kept up without intermission until half past 6 o'clock, yesterday morning, when the physician consented that he should be allwed to take rest The life of the young man was saved, but the struggle for freedom from the effects of the drugs, was a severe one. To have stopped three minutes would have been fatal.

Baltimore Gazett.

Weeping Over the Grave.

On the 2d of May a delegation composed of Representatives Sener of Virginia, Maynard of Tennessee, Ward of Illinois, Storm of Pennsylvania, Captain Marshall of the Engineer Corps, and others, visited Fredericksburg, Va., mainly for the purpose of examining the monument erected to the memory of the mother of Washington. The House of Representatives some time ago passed a resolution directing this examination, with a view possibly of completing it. Among the names of the carpet-baggers and scalawags who met the delegation at Fredericksburg we see the John G. Stokes, late of Montgomery, and once the editor of the Radical journal of that city. We would like to know what business Stokes has weeping over the grave of Washington's mother. It is worse than Mark Twan weeping over the tomb of Adam. As a business enterprise we would sugges a chromo, to be sold among the negroes, representing John Stokes at the grave of Mary Washington.—Mobile Register.

TELEGRAMS.

Little Rock, May 14.—Both Houses met this morning and adopted the following joint resoluting: "Whereas, the Legislature of the State of Arkansas has convened a quorum in each House present; whereas, the Capital of our State is occupied by armed and contending forces; and whereas, the State House is now in possession of armed troops; therefore be it resolved by the General Assembly of the State of Arkansas that the President of the United States be, and is hereby requested to put this Legislature in possession of the Legislative Halls and that the public property in the State House Square be placed under the suprervision and control of this body, the legal custodians thereof, whilst in session, and that he make such order for the disposition of said armed contending forces as will more perfectly protect the State against domestic violence and insure this body protection, and that a duly certified copy of this resolution be at once transmitted to the President of the United States. In the House a large number of notices of the introduction of bills were given, among others, for calling a Constitution. The situation as to the two armed forces remaining unchanged.—The Senate appointed a Committee to act in conjunction with the House Committee, appointed yesterday, to notify Governor Baxter that the General Assembly was ready to receive any message he might desire to deliver. The Governor's message, it is thought, will be read to both Houses this evening.

Little Rock, May 14.—The General Assembly met in joint convention to-day and received a message from Baxter. It simply repeat? the story of recent events, and informs the Legislature that to them is submitted the question "who is Governor of Arkansas?" He suggests the propriety of calling a Constitutional Convention, owing to the great want of harmony in laws, both statutory and constitutional. Twenty seven ex-Union soldiers and Northern men have united in a dispatch to Senator Morten and General John Coburn contradicting the telegram sent those gentlemen to the effect that if Baxter succeeds, Northern men will be driven out of the State.

The New Christian Advocate says; "A friend, who has carefully counted up the results of the woman's temperance movement thus far, gives us the following figures: Thirty-seven cities and towns entirely freed from the liquor taffic; one thousand seven hundred and sixty-one liquor saloons in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois closed; and eight hundred liquor sellers not only reformed, but hopefully converted to Christ!"

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BITTERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases

The properties of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

HEALTH! BEAUTY!!

STRONG AND PURE RICH BLOOD—INCREASE OF FLESH AND WEIGHT—CLEAR SKIN AND BEAUTIFUL COMPLEXION SECURED TO ALL

DR. RADWAY'S

Sarsaparillian Resolvent

THE GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER.

HAS MADE THE MOST ASTONISHING CURES; SO QUICK, SO RAPID ARE THE CHANGES THE BODY UNDERGOES, UNDER THE INFLUENCE OF THIS TRULY WONDERFUL MEDICINE, THAT

Every Day an Increase in Flesh and Weight is Seen and Felt.

Every drop of the SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT communicates through the Blood, Sweat, Urine, and other Fluids and juices of the system the vigor of life, for it repairs the wastes of the body with new and sound material. Scrofula, Syphilis, Consumption, Glandular disease, Ulcers in the throat, Mouth, Tumors, Nodes in the Glands and other parts of the system, Fever Sores, Skin diseases, Erysipelas, Itch, Ringworm, Tetter, Scurfiness of the Skin, and the worst forms of Skin diseases, Keruptions, Fever Sores, Scald Head, Ring Worm, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Acne, Blotches, Worms in the Flesh, Tumors, Cancers in the Womb, and all wasting and painful discharges, Night Sweats, Loss of Sperm and all wastes of the life principle, are within the curative power of the wonderful Modern Chemistry, and a few days' use will prove to any person using it for either of these forms of disease its potent power to cure them.

If the patient daily becoming reduced by the wastes and decomposition that is continually progressing, succeeds in arresting these wastes, and repairs the same with new material made from healthy blood—and this the SARSAPARILLIAN will and does secure—a cure is certain; for when once this remedy commences its work of repairing, and succeeds in diminishing the loss of waste, its repairs will be rapid, and every day the patient will feel himself growing better and stronger, the food digesting better appetite improving, and flesh and weight increasing.

Not only does the SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT excel all its own remedial agents in the cure of Chronic, Scrofulous, Constitutional, and Skin diseases; but it is the only positive cure for

Kidney & Bladder Complaints,
