

A FATAL MISTAKE

nine and Results in Two Deaths.
NEW ORLEANS, April 28.—A peculiar case of poisoning has just occurred in St. Louis. Eugene, son of Mrs. Ernest, was taken ill with a slight attack of fever and was given a dose of his grandmother's balmed vinegar. Shortly after taking the drug he died in violent spasms. Next day wife preparations were made for the funeral. Ernest, a brother of the deceased, had a similar attack and was given a dose of the same medicine. He, too, died in a few minutes. Another brother was also unwell, and the drug was being administered to him, when a visitor caught the vial and called attention to the fact that it was labeled strychnine.

It then transpired that the drug had been purchased months before by the grandfather for the purpose of poisoning size birds and had been kept in the closet. When the first boy became ill and died, mother was looking around for some medicine and discovered the vial. She asked her husband if it was genuine and he replied that it was. Ernest was none of the family, though a prominent and well-to-do people, could reach.

LIFE OVER THE BORDER.
Seven Slain at a Wedding—A Tragic Tragedy.
St. Louis, April 28.—A special train from the City of Mexico arrived here yesterday to celebrate the marriage of Benito Hernandez and Juanita Alvarez near El Paso, in Yucatan, became involved in a general fight. Seven of them, including the groom, were killed.

The wife of Moreno, a ranchman in Tamaulipas, recently eloped with a neighbor while her husband was away. She got three days the start, and traveled toward the interior. Moreno followed and caught up with her at a hotel. He located their room and had her taken out of the hotel. Going to the door he rapped quietly. The door opened, it was shot dead at the first fire. Mrs. Moreno sprang from the bed and ran to the window. Before she could jump her husband emptied his revolver, four bullets striking her. Moreno then examined her, and, satisfied himself that she was already gone, drew a sheath knife and stabbed himself to the heart, falling across the back of the unconscious woman, who died five hours.

Terrible Railroad Disaster.
SPOKANE FALLS, W. T., April 28.—It has just been learned that on Thursday afternoon a passenger train of the Great Northern railroad division of the Northern Pacific railway, four miles beyond Chellum, as a west-bound train, pushing a fast car loaded with laborers was going around the curve leading to a trestle. The engine was running at a speed, it was estimated an engine which was running at the same time. The fast car passed half way through the trestle of the light engine and the other crashed and crushed up against the pilot of the west-bound train, on which were two men. The engine was knocked eighty feet. Five men were killed outright, and one has since died of the injured number eighteen. The accident was the fault of one of the trains' cars neglecting to flag up per orders.

Shipping and Industrial League.
CHARLESTON, S. C., April 28.—The annual meeting of the National Shipping and Industrial league assembled in convention at the city council chamber. After a long and brief session, the house was adjourned by President Conant. The meeting was followed by the appointment of a committee on resolutions. Resolutions were read regarding a National convention to meet in New York, among the prominent persons present in that convention are: Buchanan Rogers, Governor Purry, of Ohio; Gen. James Wheeler, of Alabama; President of the National league; Hon. S. T. Hudley.

A Domestic Tragedy.
JACKSON, Miss., April 28.—Last night at Jackson, W. R. Briggs, local road master on the Vicksburg & Meridian railway, at the city council chamber, after a long and brief session, the house was adjourned at 1 a. m. Page, station agent at the same town, armed with a double-barreled shotgun, and said: "Look out, I have warned you to let my wife go, and you will not do it." He then fired and killed Briggs. Page then escaped, but was immediately captured. Briggs was a married man. He says to-day that he was estranged in which he said. Page was a bachelor, forty years old. The woman made her escape at night.

Death of a Well Known Business Man.
NEW YORK, April 28.—William B. Morgan, for several years connected with the Standard Oil Company, died yesterday at his home in this city of pneumonia. Mr. Morgan was born in Snybrook, Conn., 1828, and was educated at Yale. In 1850 he entered into business with his father, John B. Morgan, in the shipping business. In 1855 he left the firm, and the latter's death was followed by the death of his father. Mr. Morgan was a well known vessel made an oil and a sailing vessel business. Mr. Morgan was president of the province exchange and oil commission. He was connected with several banks and other financial institutions.

The Cost of Killing Junco.
NEW YORK, April 28.—A. R. Childs, a well known bird collector, said today that the terms of agreement with the United States and Trunk Railway of Canada for the withdrawal of his suit for $100,000 against the bird of the elephant "Junco" were private, and another source it was learned, however, that the bird was a male, and that it was $5,000 in case it was killed. The bird was eight years of the road free for one year. This is really a settlement for $100,000 as Harman's expenses on the new railway last year were $4,500.

Two Thousand Miles on a Tricycle.
LOCKPORT, April 28.—G. B. Mason and his wife arrived here yesterday, having ridden a tricycle from their plantation near New Orleans to this city, a distance of two thousand miles. They rode from the Gulf of Mississippi to town, and from there to Lockport, passing through to Chattanooga.

death. They will take the cure here. Dixon had suffered with severe influenza, pneumonia, and typhoid, which was complicated by her physician. She seems fairly well.

Corner Stone Laying.
George H. Bates, Iowa, April 28.—About a thousand people, including delegations from Iowa and Pacific Juneau, were present yesterday to witness the laying of the corner stone of the new cathedral, which is to cost $50,000. Bishop Grove, of Davenport, performed the ceremony, and the Right Rev. Father Neugebauer, of St. Mary's, gave the invocation. The choir, and organ, and orchestra, of Kansas City, in the choir.

A Story as Old as the Hills.
CHIATANO, Tenn., April 27.—A disappearing act occurred at its second trial, the second time that the body of the slain woman has been found. The body was discovered in a ditch, and the body was to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made by the Judge or in his absence the Clerk of Circuit Court, at Jacksonville, Ala., on the 14th day of September, 1887, by Robert A. Have we been behind all the while even in the cultivation of king cotton? A western colony in the middle part of Alabama are reported as planting their cotton in the hill and doubling thereby (theoretical production. There is too much cotton planed now, but if the South will persist in making it the only object of her agricultural ambition, suppose we all plant it in the hill.—Russell Register.

While the hospital hack was returning from church with a load of ladies in Tuscaloosa on Sunday last, the horses took fright and ran away, overturning the vehicle. Miss Burnett had her right arm broken in two places. Miss Parr had her shoulder dislocated, and the other five ladies were considerably bruised. Tom Jackson, the driver, was so seriously hurt it is thought he will die.

The LaFayette Democrat says: Charlie Cooper and Florence Smith, colored, were married last Friday evening. Cooper made an attempt the evening previous to catch his idol, but the dame resisted despite of the license which he read in her hearing only to yield, however, the following evening. Cooper says he "had de law on 'er an' was gwine 'er fight it an' she scused herself an' gin in."

A meeting of the lumbermen of Alabama and adjoining states was called for May 25th, to be held at Montgomery, Exchange hotel. Its object is to consider steps necessary to be taken for the protection of the lumbermen in connection with the inter-state commerce law. It is very probable that the meeting will appoint a committee to meet the inter-state commissioners in Mobile on the 29th inst. A large attendance of lumber men is expected as business of much importance to that industry will be transacted.

The Faunsdale correspondent of the Advertiser says:—We saw a few days since a copy of the grant of land made to the French under James Monroe's administration. This donation was made for the successful cultivation of the olive and the vine and comprised four townships in Marengo county. Demopolis was then called Eagleville. There are many interesting facts connecting with this gift. The document bears the signature of James Monroe, Mr. Crawford and that of a notary public in Philadelphia; also has the seal of the government.

Mr. Abe Littlejohn and wife, an aged couple, were burned with their dwelling, two and a half miles east of Lomax, recently. The two bodies were found on opposite sides of the hearthstone, but had been too nearly consumed to afford any evidence as to whether murder had preceded the burning. The coroner's jury decided that this was probably the case, as all the circumstances were suspicious. The sheriff and a posse are out making observations, but have not yet made any arrests. The citizens are greatly excited and lynching has been threatened in case the guilty party can be found. The old couple were poor, but it is thought that they were murdered for the purpose of robbery and then burned to conceal the crime.

Professor J. Randall Brown, the mud reader, has been astonishing the good people of Montgomery, as well as those at Birmingham, with his wonderful performances. The committee that sat on the stage to test the genuineness of the exhibition consisted of the following well known citizens of Montgomery: Messrs. James A. Farley, W. W. Allen, A. B. Garland, Jr., W. F. Joseph, G. W. Craik and Dr. B. J. Baldwin, and the mind reader completely mystified them, as well as his audience. Professor Brown ought to be at once established a detective agency. The country would then no longer have use for a Pinkerton. Professor B. can not only find out things, but he can soon tell when a man is contemplating evil.

The trustees of the Normal school in Troy met last Wednesday for the purpose of electing teachers for that institution. Prof. E. M. Shackelford of that place, was appointed to the chair of English; Mrs. Julia M. Peterson the principal of Troy female seminary, was elected teacher of methods, and Prof. J. W. Morgan, at present a tutor and pupil in the Polytechnic institute at Auburn, was elected professor of mathematics. A com- plete examination of the ap- plicants cants for positions in the graded schools will take place in a few weeks and the four most worthy will be appointed over the different grades. A large number of teachers, both male and female, have filed applications with the board of directors or the superintendent. The salaries of the teachers in the normal department will be $900. Teachers of the grades will receive $500 or $600 each.

Mr. Bowser and the Hired Girl.

Detroit Free Press.

When we began housekeeping and got our first hired girl, Mr. Bowser called me into the library, shut the door, and dropped his voice down to the confidential pitch and said:

"Mrs. Bowser, let's start out right. Let's respect the feelings of that poor girl in the kitchen."

"Certainly."

"She's just as good as we are, and we musn't put on any airs over her. She shall eat at the table with us, and if she has any time from her work you might learn her how to sing and play the piano."

"I can't quite agree with you, Mr. Bowser."

"Oh, you can't! Woman's mortal enemy is woman. Well, I'm going out and have a little talk with Eliza and tell her what I am willing to do."

I listened at the kitchen door. Mr. Bowser is no man to beat about the bush. He went right at the business in hand by saying:

"Eliza, nobility does not consist in riches."

She slid away from him toward the sink.

"You are not to blame for being in your present position. How would you like to take singing lessons?"

She looked at him with open mouth.

"And learn to play the piano?"

She opened her mouth still wider.

"And, perhaps, learn how to sketch and paint?"

She seized a pan of water in the sink and whirled on him with:

"You infernal cross-eyed old reprobate to talk to an innocent girl in that way! Get out of my kitchen or I'll drown you in a minute!"

When we sat down for supper I wondered why Eliza hadn't put on a plate for herself, and I asked Mr. Bowser when I should begin her piano lessons.

"Mrs. Bowser, have you lost the little sense you possessed two or three months ago?" he hotly exclaimed.

The Remembrance of Eight Years.

TRENTON, Todd Co., Ky., February 25, 1887.

Gentlemen—I had a sore on my upper lip for eight years. Seven different doctors attempted in vain to heal it. One gave me a small bottle for $3, which was a "certain cure." It is needless to say that it did me no good. About two years ago I became quite uneasy, as people thought I had a cancer, and I took a course of eighteen bottles of S. S. S. The result was a complete cure. The ulcer or cancer healed up beautifully, leaving scarcely a perceptible scar. From that day I have been in excellent health. The specific having thoroughly cleansed my blood, increased my appetite and perfected my digestion. In a word, I feel like a new woman, and, best of all, the eight year cancer is gone entirely.

Yours sincerely,
Mrs. W. P. CANNON.

"Hello!" called a female voice through the telephone at police headquarters.

"Yes, who is it?"

"Same woman who has telephoned you before."

"Well."

"That same husband of mine has taken that same jewelry and gone to the same saloon to pawn it for whisky."

"Well."

"Well, this same woman is going over and raise the same row about it."

"And what do you want of us?"

"Nothing, except that you notify the officer on the beat to keep his hands off. He may not be the same man."—Detroit Free Press.

Boston Herald: The New York Tribune sneered at President Cleveland the other day because he intimated, in his letter declining to go to Charleston, that Calhoun was an honest man, and his works worth studying. It is sad to contemplate the work that a party organ feels called upon to

THE PLEASED DUTCHMAN.

An Anecdote Which Will be Read With Interest by Baptists.

It is related of a Methodist preacher who had deeply studied Dr. Sumner's work on Baptism written to settle forever the baptismal controversy, was preaching in a certain town upon the vexed subject. In the course of his remarks, he said:

"Some believe it necessary to go down into the water and to come up out of it to be baptised; and Jesus went down into the water; and that the eunuch and Philip both went down into the water, and came up out of the river or pond. But, my hearers, what will you think when I tell you that the Greek prepositions en and eis do not necessarily mean in and into, but with and at; near to; on and upon, as Dr. Sumners, the learned man of our church, shows in his book on baptism. The Savior, then only went down to, or near to the water, and when he was baptised he came from the water, as you went to the church and was baptised, and then went home from it; and so Philip and the eunuch got out of the chariot, and both went to the water, the little spring or pool, and he baptised him, and then they came from it. There was nothing in the Bible, as Dr. Sumners shows, to favor immersion for Christian baptism, as every passage in which en and eis were found could be satisfied by the translation of 'on,' 'upon,' 'at,' or 'near to.'"

Having carried this idea out fully, in due season he closed his sermon and gave an invitation to any one so disposed to arise and express his thoughts. Quite a number of the members arose and said they were glad they had been present on this occasion, that they were well pleased with the sound sermon they had just heard, and felt their souls greatly blessed.

Finally, a corpulent gentleman of Teutonic extraction, a stranger to all, arose and broke a silence that was almost painful, as follows:—

"Mister Breacher, I ish so glad I wash here to-night, for I has had explained to my mint some things dat I never could believe before. O, I ish so glad dat into does not mean into at all, put shust close py or near to, for now I can believe manish things vot I could not believe before. We reat, Mister Breacher, dat Taniel vas cast into the ten of lions, and came out alive! Now I neber could believe dat, for de wilt beasts would shust eat him up right off, put now it ish fery clear to my mint. He was shust close py or near to, and did not get into the ten at all. O, I ish so glad I vas here to night!"

"Again, we reat dat de Hebrew children vas cast into the firsh furnace, and dat air alwish look't like a peeg story, to, for they would have been purnt up; put it ish all plain to my mint now, for they were shust cast near py or close to the firsh furnace. O! I vas so glad I vas here to night!"

"And den, Mister Breacher, it is said dat Jonah vas cast into the sea, and taken into de whales belly. Now, I never could believe dat. It alwish seemed to me to be a peeg feesh story, but it ish all plain to my mint now. He vas not taken into the whales belly at all, but shust shumpt onto his pack and rode ashore. O! I wash so glad I vas here to night!"

"And now, Mister Breacher, if you vill shust explain two more bashes of Scripture I shall pe O, so happy dat I vas here to night! One of dem ish where it saith de vicked shall pe cast into a lake dat burns with fire and primstone always. O, Mister Breacher, shall I pe cast into dat lake if I am vicked? or shust close enough to pe comfortable? I hopes you tells me I shall pe cast shust a good way off and I vill pe so glad I vas here to night! The oder bassage ish dat vich saith, plessed are they who do these commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and enter in through the gates into the city. O, tell me I shall get into de city, and not shust close py or near to, shust near enough to see vat I have lost, and I shall pe so glad I vas here to night!"

A long and painful pause ensued. Men and women looked anxiously into each other's faces, and finally all eyes were turned toward the preacher, whose face expressed his utter bewilderment to relieve which he arose and said:

"Let us be dismissed." As the crowd passed out the steward fell aside of the elder, and pulling his sleeve, he whispered, "That Dutchman was a leetle too much for Bro. Sumners; don't you think so?" "I never thought of it in that light before; I shall certainly write to Bro. Sumners," said the elder.

FASHION POINTS.

Point d'esprit is the lace of the coming season.

Tailor-made gowns will be more worn than ever.

Sprigged and striped challies appear among new goods.

The new Point d'esprit has very small dots thickly set on a very fine diaphanous net.

The black lace dress of high fashion for the incoming season is of Chantilly or its imitation.

The increased size of the new bonnet is all put in the crown which towers above a mere hint of a brim.

Gray and buff are the favorite colors for light spring clothes, whether checked or plain, intended for tailor suits.

Printed and embroidered muslins are made up over skirts of plain silk or sateen matching the colors of the ground or those of the figures.

Open cut work embroidery on silk is used for trimming dressy hats in combination with lace, flowers and ribbons, but rarely with feathers.

Little girls wear very short waisted frocks in America, but on the other side their waists are made as long as their mammas, but not quite so tight.

Gauze ribbons are used in combination with jet and other beads by the best Paris couturiers for floats and bows on dressy frocks of silk and lace.

The favorite colors for dressy lace and crepe lisse and silk muslin, tulle and point d'esprit collars and plastrons are pale rose, blue, heliotrope, scarlet, yellow and black, but no white.

Dresses of white point d'esprit, over foundations or slips of tinted and cream surah are trimmed with flots—long looped bows and ends—of ribbon that match the color of the under dress.

New veiling and albatross cloths are striped and figured as well as plain, the first being intended for combination with the last for afternoon and evening frocks at summer resorts.

Old-fashioned berege is revived among fashionable fabrics, and it is as pretty as ever or prettier, for it comes in finer grades, resembling fine muslin de laine in texture more than woolen gauze.

There is at the moment a revival of Sarah Bernhardt style of dressing—loose skirts falling in soft arrangement not too voluminous, rather than puffed out petticoats overloaded with draperies.

Ostrich-feather fans, in the form of a lyre, are composed of three or four long plumes, some fluffy marabouts and an aigrette. The stick handles of ivory, shell, carved wood, coral or malachite, imitation or real.

A new opening for women is the position of "walking lady." Her duties are to suffer herself to be made an automation to rush the season. This month, for instance, she appears in full sprig costume at places where women most do congregate, and, of course, attention is attracted to the peculiar style of garment she wears, to the manifest advantage of merchants who have those peculiar styles for sale. She must have a fine figure, a pretty face and youth to fill the bill.

There are books on "English as She Is Spoke," "English as She Is Taught," and "English as She Is Translated," and now a Texas cowboy is to write one on "English as She Is Cussed." He says he obtained his material from mule-drivers and Congressmen.

Chicago Times: Senator Cullom's latest political schemes look like a desperate attempt to break the damaging effect upon himself of his interstate commerce bill. His connection with that measure shows that he is not enough of a politician to look after even his own politics, and John Sherman, whose boom he has taken up, has every reason to regret his support.

New York Tribune: It is a beautiful romance that comes from the City of Mexico by way of St. Louis. Two old silver mines of the Spaniards and Montezuma have been rediscovered, so the story runs, "in the midst of thousands of ruined buildings amid large churches and forts."

The incidents of the finding of ancient maps of the mines in an old chapel is also striking. The authors of the story ought to have copy-righted it. They would have made more money out of it than they will out of the mines.

seems to be a remarkable amount of enterprise manifested in the south, especially in Alabama and eastern Tennessee, developing the natural resources of the country. While real estate speculation may have been overdone in some points, still many localities have yet to feel the effect of enterprise and improvements in the region. There is no question that the newly developed manufacturing interests of the south upon a permanent basis and I think that Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee will add 50 per cent. to their material wealth in the next decade.

SAWNEY'S SUMMING

UP OF THE PAST AND PRESENT

AGRICULTURE AND CONDITION

Of Calhoun County, Evidence of Increasing Thrift.

Special Cor., Montgomery Dispatch.

JACKSONVILLE, Ala., May 4.—There are many "old settlers" here and hereabouts—those who came from North Carolina and Georgia in the thirties. Those who came since are "new comers." Half a century is a long time in the life of man; but there are many here living now in sight of the home into which they entered fifty years ago. One of these said yesterday that beautiful as this country is now it was far more beautiful when it was ceded to the white and vacated by the Indians. The regular burning of the woods by the aborigines destroyed all the undergrowth and weaker trees, and far and near there were lovely valleys and gentle elevations, prettily knolls and knobs, swelling into mountains covered with majestic forests and luxuriant grass-shoulder high through which slender rivulets, babbling brooks, and rapid noisy creeks wound their devious way. Civilization and the arts and methods of an agricultural people have only marred what nature made and the Indian preserved. The valleys and knobs and hills and mountains are here yet, and all the streams by which they are drained, and the peerless climate that from the beginning has blessed this land and those who occupy it, and the soil generally is still fertile despite the ravages of careless and improvident cultivation, but there are too many red barren hills gashed by gullies, adorned only by persimmon bushes, and bordered by brambles, and fields that once yielded a hundred fold are covered by young pines, and here and there the eye is met by evidence of exhaustion and devastation which reproach the intelligence or the methods of those who have thus laid waste so fair an inheritance. The exhausted and half abandoned places are exceptional. There are fewer of them in this county than in any one of the counties in the "black belt." There is perhaps less excuse for them here than there. The farmer here is not so dependent on the negro, the lands are more easily tilled, and the climate and conditions are better suited to white labor. Largely the occasional running down of farms in our midst is due to lack of means. Here, as elsewhere, farmers were compelled after the close of the war to go to the merchant for advances and to submit to his terms, one of which was pretty generally the delivery of a specified number of bales of cotton. The cultivation of cotton on lands better adapted to cereals and grasses was thus encouraged and sometimes forced; and cotton cannot be profitably made with hired labor and borrowed money. Many of those driven to this course found themselves falling behind from year to year, and interest and growing indebtedness at once improved or maintained their lands and discouraged and disheartened them in their efforts to do so. Some of these have been made homeless by the foreclosure of mortgages, others are to be sold out, and a few have successfully struggled through their difficulties to independence. The great body of our agricultural grip, however, did not lose their grip on affairs with the return of peace and the emancipation of their slaves, but kept stout hearts and a tight hold on their business, supplying by diligence and industry a lack of available resources, and, though some of them have had a hard time of it, they have generally fought the good fight and succeeded. The lands of these, if not improved as they ought to have been in these twenty years, have not deteriorated greatly or at all; and they have attractive homes and abundance of all things necessary to their comfort and happiness. There are worn and wasted places enough and more than enough, abandoned fields, tumble-down fences, and houses falling to ruin, in this county; but perhaps in no other county is there so great a proportion of prosperous farmers or so many evidences of agricultural thrift and well doing, with signs of improvement all along the line.

JACKSONVILLE.

The Splendid Mineral Resources Around The City.

Special Cor. Montgomery Advertiser.

JACKSONVILLE, May 5.—Calhoun county lies on a foundation of Knox Dolomite, pre-eminently an iron bearing foundation. Prof. Smith says, "Limonite, or brown hematite, is the characteristic mineral of the Knox Dolomite." Referring to this section, he further says, "The ores occurring with the Dolomite makes this the most important formation of the state from an economical point of view." "Beds of this ore [Brown Hematite] he further adds, 'are sometimes found in some of the formations of the State, but they sink into insignificance when compared with the ore banks of this limestone formation.' "Jacksonville is situated upon this formation near where the Potsdam Sandstone has been brought up by faulting to its level," he continues, and near Jacksonville the formation is rich in ore deposits. This was written by the State Geologist more than ten years ago, when he had not himself made sufficient examination, and before there had been any considerable enquiry and search by others, and subsequent developments show that his statements concerning the mineral resources of this immediate section might have been made even stronger. The geological conditions are pretty nearly the same in the counties of Talladega and Calhoun, and ultimately these will prove to be the richest iron counties in the state, not excepting Jefferson. Of these, Calhoun is probably the richer. Here, iron is literally everywhere. It is seen on the mountain tops, on the deepest declivities, and in the valleys. The springs burst from it on the hill sides, and cut their way through it in their lowest courses. It abounds in the little caves among the foot-hills of the Sandstone ridges. It crops out on the streets and in the high ways. It cruises the woodman's axe in the forests. It dulls the plow in the field. And the deposits are really inexhaustible. The more any one is worked the greater the quantity that appears. Walker's bank in the town limits of Jacksonville, is an illustration. From this, tens of thousands of tons have been mined and shipped for mixing with interior Alabama and Tennessee ores, and its development has hardly begun. There is hardly a section of land in this part of the county that has not an equal deposit. Brown Hematite is the most universally diffused of all the ores of iron and furnishes a large proportion of the iron of the world. It is admirably adapted for foundry iron and for commercial bar and rails, but much of it contains too much phosphorus for use in making Bessemer steel. Analyses indicate a minimum of phosphorus in the Calhoun ores, that from Walker's bank showing less than one half of one per cent. Of 2,186,000 tons of iron ore mined in Pennsylvania in 1886, 1,131,000 tons were Brown Hematite, 558,000 tons magnetite, and only 300,000 tons of Red and Fossiliferous. The Calhoun ores were used before and during the war at the old Oxford Furnace and at a furnace on Cane Creek, and have been used since at Tecumseh and Anniston, and their superiority has been fully tested and demonstrated. Iron is the most valuable mineral in the county, but not the only one. Coal has been found, but the quantity appears inconsiderable. Here are vast beds of the finest limestone. Marble, white and colored, is abundant. It is blasted out of wells in Jacksonville and vicinity, and crops out in many places. There are several important deposits of Manganese. Kaolin of excellent quality is found. The St. Clair coal field, with which Jacksonville is connected by rail, is near enough to supply coke for furnaces here; and great forests will furnish charcoal for many years.

CLINTON.

Savannah News: When a Birmingham land company with a capital of $100,000 can declare an annual dividend of $1,320,000, people wonder all the more what use such a city has for wild-cat real estate schemes. The solid progress indicated by the Elyton Land Company is worth more to Birmingham and the South than all the so called booms that were over-nursed into existence.

The annexation of upper Burmah by England gives that country control over petroleum fields, according to engineering, as extensive as those of the United States or of Russia.

Extraordinary Talent.

Montgomery Dispatch.

Capt. T. S. Herbert, sheriff of Montgomery county, has in his possession an image, or rather a carved bust made by a little girl, living near Hayneville, who was at the time of the execution of the work, about 9 years old. It is a splendid work of art and shows the girl to be endowed with a wonderful talent, a talent that should, if cultivated, make her famous. It is the bust of a negro, who is represented in the attitude of preaching. His head is thrown back, and his mouth is partially open displaying a fine set of teeth. Every muscle is plainly shown in the bust, thus displaying a knowledge of the human anatomy that has absolutely astonished those who know the girl and want of education. "Seeing this wonderful work," said Capt. Herbert, "Mr. Gerrard Cook, of Hayneville, requested the little girl to make him a representation of a negro chopping wood with an axe, and this was executed in a wonderfully lifelike manner. Mr. Cook has the figure now, and he values it very highly. "The little girl," continued Capt. Herbert, makes these images out of clay, and with a little paddle she cut and made with her own hand. "She never had any educational advantages, her parents being very poor, and she has never been away from home, hence she has never seen anybody or anything but negroes and cows and sheep and hogs. Her parents though poor, are respectable. Her name is Lillian Light, daughter of John Light, of Lowndes county. She is now about 13 years old. If some person with ample means would take Lillian and educate her and give her a chance to cultivate those talents with which she has been endowed by Nature, she would certainly achieve renown as a sculptor. Is there not such a philanthropic person who desires to aid in the development of a talent, crying out from a hungry soul, that is already so marked as to compel the admiration of those who can appreciate a natural gift and a genius sublime? After Twenty-five Years. CORINTH, Miss., Jan 15, 1887. Ever since I came out of the war, up to two years ago, I had catarrh. At times the disease was very offensive. I had tried all the doctors that I could see, and nearly every catarrh medicine that I saw advertised; but I got no permanent relief until two years ago, when I began taking S. S. S. I felt immediate benefit from the medicine, and after taking six bottles I felt like a new man. When I began using the medicine I was in a very bad condition; my digestion was poor, I had rheumatic pains in my knees, and my feet were always cold. These unpleasant conditions were remedied at once by Swift's Specific. I ceased using the medicine after the six bottles, because I felt so well that I thought I was entirely cured. This past fall, however, I had a relapse—evidently I had stopped taking S. S. S. too soon. So I at once began with the medicine, and am happy to tell you that I am very much improved, my general health being excellent, and the catarrh rapidly disappearing. I have great faith in S. S. S. for catarrh and blood impurities, and I recommend it to all my neighbors who are sick. Yours truly, C. C. KRY. Treatise on Blood and Skin Diseases mailed free. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.

The baptismal register of the Episcopal church at Muthill, in Scotland, has been kept continuously since the year 1688, and has just been published. One of the records was made in 1745, and the editor says that the baptism was "performed under the cover of trees, as it was impossible to take the child into the neighboring houses for the purpose, without incurring the punishment then meted out to Episcopians who still sought the administrations of their own clergy."

A paper by G. F. Wright on the "Muir Glacier," at Glacier bay, Alaska, states that the frozen stream of this glacier is 5,000 feet wide and 700 feet deep. In August this glacier moves into the bay at the remarkable speed of forty feet per diem, thus bringing each twenty-four hours 140,000,000 cubic feet of ice into the bay.

ALABAMA NEWS ITEMS.

FROM ALL PARTS OF ALABAMA.

The Greenville Advocate says that there are no delinquent tax payers in Butler county. B Dunham has purchased the Montgomery street railway. Riley's Hand Book of Alabama is now in the hands of the printer, and will be on the market shortly. The Greensboro Watchman says that ten drops of Laudanum in a spoonful of water, to each chicken, is a sure cure for cholera. Try it. Tennent Lomax, Esq., has been re-elected chairman of the Democratic Central Committee of Montgomery county. The business men of Clayton are rejoicing over the opening of a $50,000 bank in their city, we wish the enterprise success. The farmers of Hale county report a bad stand of corn through that section. Recent statistics show 83,000 Methodists, 76,000 Baptists, 8,000 Presbyterians and 4,000 Episcopalians in Alabama. Lucien J. Walker, Consul at Dumfries, Scotland, is on a visit to his old home in Alabama. He has a host of friends among the State press. A company is being organized in Eufaula to open a bank, with a capital stock of $200,000. E. S. Shorter delivered the annual oration on memorial day, at Eufaula. It was said that the largest steamboats will pass through Muscogee Shoals by the first of July. Six gentlemen at Faunsdale killed 207 rats within two hours the other day. "M. Quad" arrived in Birmingham Tuesday to write up the town for the Detroit Free Press. The new Presbyterian church at Faunsdale was dedicated last Sunday by Rev. Mr. Hooper, of Selma. Choctaw Herald:—There is little hope for the early oat crop, especially on up lands. It has been too dry during the past two months. When the L. and N. pushes the terminus of their road into Tuscaloosa next spring, there will be a boom in that city, the like of which was never dreamed of. Wilcox Progress: Most of the farmers are up with their work, and are waiting and wishing for rain. However, in the mean time, they find something to keep them busy. Troy Enquirer:—It is somewhat of an undertaking for Troy to successfully entertain the State Agricultural Society, have a farmer's camp-meeting and a county fair the same week, but it is on the bills and the programme must be carried out. Livingston Journal: Crop reports from the different parts of the county come in very encouragingly. Troy Enquirer:—Ex-County Superintendent J. T. Stephenson, was expected to return and stand his trial at the present term of the circuit court, at least a subdued whisper has circulated that statement, coupled with the assertion that he would or did come last Wednesday or Thursday night for that purpose. Hayneville Examiner:—"Bad Birmingham" is one of the names applied to the booming mineral city, and according to the statement of one of her citizens the name is not inappropriate. We are told that the present grand jury, in session only three weeks, have found 700 true bills, and that their work has just commenced. Eutaw Whig:—A correspondent writing from Linden to the Mobile Register, says with Judge Clarke as circuit judge, and Hon. T. W. Coleman as chancellor, the judiciary of that district is second to none in the state. All the lawyers are well pleased with Chancellor Coleman, as he is courteous and attentive to all; besides, his decisions are ready and prompt. Decatur News:—The sale of lots at Rowland last Tuesday exceeded the expectations of the most sanguine. A large crowd was present, and more than $2,000 worth of lots were sold. This, for a place in the midst of a black jack forest, is wonderful. But Rowland is favorably situated high and healthful, well laid off and just the very place for a pleasant suburban residence, and Maj. Tanner, the projector of the village is the man to push it to a grand success.

The Mobile and Dauphin Island Railroad and Harbor company is placing $1,400,000 six per cent. gold bonds on the New York market with success.

Works are to be erected in Birmingham to manufacture saw irons. The capacity will be ten tons daily. The East Birmingham Land company are interested.

Considerable excitement is said to exist in the country a few miles southwest of Opelika. It is said that a mad dog is known to have bitten about forty sheep, goats, cows hogs and dogs.

Greenville Advocate: Mr. Joe Rogers tells us that he killed a moccasin on Pigeon creek which measured five feet three and one half inches long, and upon being opened was found to contain 286 eggs.

Tuesday was a sad day at the University of Alabama. Cadet Robert Sinn Mathews of Birmingham was drowned in the Warrior river, and Cadet Stephen Henry Heard of Butler county died from an attack of measles.

A Western syndicate purchased recently, through a local real estate broker, 34,000 acres of timber in Escambia county. It is the intention of the syndicate to commence at once the erection of a large saw and planing mill.

Birmingham News: There are now in the city two hundred negroes on a strike. It does not, however, disturb the equilibrium of things. They had best go to work.

West Alabamian:—Mrs. Robert Gunter has a doll which she has turned over to her daughter, which has been in her mother's family for 102 years. It is a very hard wood. It is the property of Mrs. Gunter's maternal great grandmother.

Jasper Eagle:—The transfer road from the Cordova depot across to the Kansas City railroad is being rapidly completed. We learn that the track will be laid immediately on the Kansas City road from Jasper to where the transfer road intersects. This done, we can ride by rail all the way to Birmingham.

The outlook for Florence continues promising. Work on the Nashville & Florence railroad is being pushed forward at a rapid rate, and the forces at work on the two furnaces are as large as can be conveniently handled. Real estate continues to be in good demand, and transactions are made every day.

Henry Pope, alias Glenn Pope, colored, was arrested six miles from Gadsden Wednesday evening by G. W. Allen, a railroad contractor on the Rome & Decatur road. Pope is charged with committing a rape on a Miss Kendrick in Chattooga county, Ga., sometime in February last. He fills the published description exactly, and he is now in jail. A reward of $500 is offered for his arrest.

Mobile Register:—It is understood that the Mayor has decided, with the approval of the port attorney, that base ball does not come under the ban of the Sunday ordinance, as it is not an amusement. This is a hard blow on the favorite entertainment of the Mobileans. Base ball here has always been considered an amusement, although sometimes not very amusing.

Gen. Robert C. Sechenek, the veteran politician, is still hale and hearty, at the age of seventy-eight. He is only slightly gray, and looks not much more than fifty.

Macon Telegraph: One of the funniest things of the nineteenth century is the sight of foreign beneficiaries of free trade fleeing to this country by the thousands to get themselves protected. Who now will dare say that Political economy unfolds no delightful surprise to the student?

The follow figures are given by the New York Evening Post as to the comparative percentage of school attendance in several of the Northern and Southern States. It appears that percentage of children in Texas who attend school is 79, against 72 in Vermont, the average daily attendance per cent is 73 in Florida and 99 in South Carolina, against an average of 63 in all the New England States. This is truly a startling showing, and should it continue to be maintained it will tell powerfully upon the South's position in the Union.

MAY 21, 1887.

We give elsewhere some of the expressions of correspondents who accompanied the Jacksonville excursion party here last week. As then stated the party was largely made up of men who had invested in the stock of the Jacksonville Land Company and who came to see their property. The correspondents but reflect the general sentiment of the party. In the after-dinner speeches at Gen. Burke's many of the gentlemen were free to say that they found the investment much more satisfactory than they expected, and that they would do the gentlemen who worked up the Land Company the justice to say that in every representation they had made of Jacksonville, they had rather underdrawn than overdrawn the picture and that they found everything better than it had been represented to them—in short that they had been most fairly dealt with and were more than satisfied. With the party were some gentlemen who were not stockholders. These shared the general good opinion of the party as to Jacksonville and her resources and attested the fact by investing in the stock of the company at par. All this must of necessity be very gratifying to our people.

While the excursion, as has been said, was primarily designed to display the claim, and resources of Jacksonville, all towns along the line got the benefit of it and the result will be greatly beneficial to this whole section of the State. These gentlemen, themselves men of large means, will not only invest here in future with greater confidence, but in talking of what they have seen will necessarily advertise this whole section to other men of means. The world needs only to know of our magnificent resources and possibilities in order to have them utilized. Already the good effect of the visit of these excursionists has been apparent so far as Jacksonville is concerned. Four men, whose combined fortunes will aggregate easily eight millions of dollars, have declared their intention to come to Jacksonville in person and give the town a patient investigation of several days, not to speak of numerous other people of lesser fortune who have declared a like purpose.

Several of our visitors expressed great readiness to take stock in a National Bank, a hotel, if it should be deemed best to build that by a stock company, a furniture and other enterprises, and several others of them are at work bringing our advantages as a manufacturing point to the attention of men of their acquaintance in the North.

As a result of the visit Jacksonville will be written up in the Baltimore Manufacturer's Record, the New York Times, the Chicago Tribune, the New Orleans Times-Democrat and our own leading State papers. So, it will be seen the visit of these capitalists was a good thing for Jacksonville, and our people consulted their own pecuniary interests as well as their hospitable instincts when they accorded them such royal and hearty and polite welcome. Let them continue so to treat all strangers within their gates. The effect will be wholesome for the town.

LAYING THE CORNER-STONE.

The corner stone of the new Methodist church in Jacksonville was laid Monday with impressive ceremonies. Rev. Mr. Morris, of Anniston, delivered the address.

Under the stone was placed a bible and hymn book, a roll of the members, the names of the building committee, the name of Miss Weir who bequeathed the money to build the church, a copy of the church discipline and a silver dollar and copper cent, both of date of 1887.

The church will be a very handsome structure and entirely modern. Great attention will be given to interior decoration. The floor will have a pitch that will bring all the congregation in full view of the preacher. Open chairs will be used for seats. At least four memorial windows will be put in, which will add greatly to the inside beauty of the structure. Other contributions will be added to the bequest until the building is all that the most severe taste would require in point of beauty and finish.

JACKSONVILLE LAND CO. TREASURY STOCK.

Last week the REPUBLICAN noted the fact that the Jacksonville Land Company stock was selling at par here in Jacksonville. This was the stock which was issued to property holders in half payment for property put into the company. A large body of land, at low valuation, was got together in and about Jacksonville. This property embraced nine hundred acres of choice land within the corporate limits, several thousand acres within easy reach and lying just outside the corporate limits, and several thousand more of choice mineral lands at and within a few miles of the town—making in all a body of about eight thousand acres of land. This land was priced at one hundred thousand dollars and an undivided half of it sold for cash to outside parties. For this one hundred thousand dollars of stock was issued, half going to the property owners and half to those outside parties who had bought and paid for a half interest. An additional one hundred thousand dollars of stock was issued, called treasury stock. The proceeds of the sale of this stock is to go into the treasury for the improvement of the property. It was first put upon the market in Montgomery, in blocks, after the return of the excursionists to this point on a tour of inspection, and it readily brought dollar for dollar spot cash. As much was disposed of at this figure as the Directors wished to sell. The remainder will be held for the benefit of the inevitable advance.

This is a remarkable showing and we venture no Land Company in the South can make a better before even a survey of the town has been made, before the purposes of the Directors are made known, before anything has been done, the stock starts off at par. As contemplated improvements progress, and manufacturing enterprises begin to go up, the stock will advance as a matter of course. It is confidently expected that it will go to 150 by fall and even higher by the following spring.

A Case in Court.

Anniston Watchman.

All day yesterday an important case was tried before Justice Irewer, which was concluded too late for us to give an account of it.

Mrs. Dora Maffett, now of Birmingham, early in January sold a house and lot on 12th street, "this city," to Dr. J. C. LeGrand, through her agent Mr. O. H. Parker, for which he paid $2,100, receiving a deed to the property with her signature, but which the husband refused to sign. A short time afterwards the property was again sold to Feagin and Wilkerson, of Birmingham, for $2,250. But in the meantime Dr. LeGrand had got possession of the property by reason of his purchase.

Now Mrs. Maffett brings suit in order to eject Dr. LeGrand and place Feagin & Wilkerson in possession. No question as to the title of property was raised.

The plaintiff was represented by Feagin & Wilkerson, the purchasers; the defendant by John M. Caldwell, of our city, and G. C. Ellis, of Jacksonville. Abundant and convincing evidence was introduced to prove Dr. J. C. LeGrand's right of possession, but the decision of the court was adverse much to the surprise of every one hearing the trial.

Captain Thomas Hayden.

Talladega Mountain Home.

In the death of our fellow citizen, Capt. Thomas Hayden, Talladega appreciates the loss of one who has, for many years, been a feature and factor in her history, military and civil.

He was born at Jacksonville, Ala., on the 21st day of March, 1832; was married to Miss Fannie A. Gibson, at Asheville, in St. Clair county, Ala., by Rev. A. A. Porter, on the 7th day of September, 1856, and died at his home in this city at 9 o'clock on Sunday morning, the 15th inst.

Of his immediate family, he leaves, surviving him, his wife, two sons, James and Thomas, and one daughter, Nannie, the wife of our townsman, Geo. B. Wood.

All through the many years of his sojourn with us, his life has been marked by kind, generous words and deeds and happy social qualities. Except in the exercise of a wit, merciless and impartial as it was keen and natural, he never willfully wounded the feelings of any, but his sympathies and kind words and generous deeds, never dishonored a draft made upon them by the suffering and sorrow of others.

Captain Hayden made public confession of his Christian faith and united himself on the 9th day of August, 1854, with the Presbyterian church of this city, in the faith and fellowship of which he died.

L. J. D. Renfro, being in the city, in attendance upon the funeral service of Mrs. Cecil Brown, was present at, and took a prominent part in the obsequies of Captain Hayden.

Services were had at the family residence and were begun with a most impressively rendered voluntary by members of the Presbyterian choir. This was followed by appropriate selections of scripture read by Rev. L. L. Overman of the Presbyterian church, who in this connection gave touching expression of his sympathy with the bereaved family, and made apt prelude to remarks from Dr. Renfro.

Dr. Renfro began by speaking of his joys with this people, in the presence of sorrow, but emphasized his experience and observation, as attesting that "it is better to go to a house of mourning than to the house of mirth."

In tender phrase and manner, he commended the mission of sorrow to chasten, correct and refine, and as a calamity only, when spiritual fruits followed its visitation,—"when no Christ was present with it and alluded to the Master's habits of attendance upon and sympathy with occasions of sorrow—of His Captivity in the War from which there is no discharge in this life.

Dr. Renfro then spoke of Captain Hayden as he knew him in and since 1857; of his buoyancy and life-intensity, social appreciation of the ludicrous—never ready with scathing satire and with it, his ready sympathy and aid to every form of suffering—and of these the speaker gave some illustrations which came under his own observation. He enlarged upon his intimacy with and knowledge of Captain Hayden during the war—(Dr. Renfro being Chaplain of the 10th Alabama regiment, in which Captain Hayden was a member)—gave high commendation of his faithfulness and efficiency as quartermaster of his regiment, and mentioned incidents illustrative of the character and bearing of the deceased, in that great struggle of character the army.

Dr. Renfro, in conclusion, bore testimony to the Christian profession of Capt. Hayden since 1854 and with an eloquence which came from a heart of genuine sympathy and deep feeling, evoked comfort and consolation and blessing to those to the wife and children, and friends, now so stricken and bowed.

"Nearer my God to Thee," was then sung by choir and audience, after which Rev. L. L. Overman read a short biographical sketch of Capt. Hayden's life. This was followed with a prayer of peculiar pathos and power by Dr. G. A. Lofton.

The choir then sang "We're going home to-morrow," and a song was taken charge of by the Masonic fraternity—conveyed to the cemetery and buried with the honors of that order.

This has passed from our community one whose place is a "felt vacancy," for in his own peculiar, original, genial way he has impressed himself on the memory and hearts of very many friends here and in the wife and children of his love, he left monuments to his memory, as husband and father.

"And the tender is here, and His arms around, And he has them with tenderest care; He shows them a star in the bright upper world— 'Tis their star shining brilliantly there! They have heard a voice—'Tis the voice of their God— 'I love thee, I love thee, pass under the rod.'"

A WARNING TO O'BRIEN.

TO INSULT LORD LANSOWNE IS TO INSULT THE QUEEN.

Probably to Follow the Irish Editor Into Canada—The Irish Population Preparing to Welcome Him and the Orange-men Excited Over the Event.

MONTREAL, May 14.—The Gazette publishes an editorial warning William O'Brien that if he insults the governor general he does it at his own risk. It says: "The governor general stands to us in the place of the queen. To insult him in the way proposed is for us just such a crime of less majesty as it would be in England to wage a war of vituperation against her majesty. We are bound in honor to protect him against such insult—bound by the strongest of reasons—self-respect and national pride. To insult him is to insult not only the queen's representative, but Canada, and the people of Canada, whose victory he is. Mr. O'Brien is assuming a very serious responsibility. As a landowner, he has nothing to do with Lord Lansdowne. We don't want to know anything about his tenants, or how his business is conducted. The people of Canada are not Irish, and they have rights that should be respected. We greatly fear that if Mr. O'Brien persists he will provoke feelings of a totally different order from those which, in his rash design, he contemplated. Certainly he will not benefit Ireland. As sure as Mr. O'Brien makes the victory of Canada an object of attack on Canadian soil he will arouse a counter agitation which may end in God knows what deplorable complications."

The Irish population are making great preparations to welcome Mr. O'Brien. The visitors will be received by the Irish societies at the station and escorted to St. Lawrence hall, where an address of welcome will be read. Mr. O'Brien and Kilbride will deliver addresses in Albert hall. Much excitement prevails over the fear of a counter demonstration by the Orangemen and a repetition of the riots of 1872-3.

A Reception for O'Brien in Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 14.—Mr. O'Brien will arrive here Friday night, and the Irish people are preparing to give him a rousing welcome. Among Orangemen there is no little ill-feeling and they declare that no movement in the shape of a demonstration will be allowed. The anti-Irish feeling has been engendered all the public houses for several days night, hoping to spoil the plans of the reception committee, but the latter have managed to secure the theatre of the Ottawa university for Mr. O'Brien's lecture. On the 16th of the governor general from Toronto a reception will be tendered him by the anti-O'Brien faction.

Objecting to O'Brien.

TORONTO, Ont., May 14.—The citizens are impatient over Mr. O'Brien's visit. The mayor will call a mass meeting to consider whether it is for the interest of the city to allow Mr. O'Brien to speak here. He says he strongly condemns introducing strife-provoking questions into Canada.

Idle Lancers Waited On.

CISCO, Tex., May 14.—The people of Rising Sun make everybody work in that section of the country. Recently a family of idlers prepared their land for planting in a sloped manner. They were visited by a crowd of twenty neighbors, who compelled them to do the work over and do it right. The idlers were then warned that if they failed to plant or work their land well in the future they would be driven from the community, and assured that if they worked each people did, they would be in no danger.

A Long Ocean Race.

NEW YORK, May 14.—The clipper ship Scamper, of San Francisco, California, was towed out from the foot of Fletcher street yesterday, and started down the river at 10 o'clock to begin her 8,000 mile race with the clipper Clarendon, of the New York and California line, which lay at the foot of Wall street. They are to sail on the Clarendon, which is a tug boat of the Clarendon line, and the race is to be run from Cape Horn to San Francisco and will take from 120 to 140 days.

International Y. M. C. A. Convention.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.—Delegates from nearly every state in the Union and about twenty from Canada, have arrived to attend the twenty-seventh international convention of Young Men's Christian associations. The delegates are met at the train or committee of the local associations and conducted to the board of directors, where accommodations have been provided. The convention opens this afternoon and closes on Sunday.

Almost Like Chicago in 1872.

HAVERHILL, Mass., May 14.—About midnight last night a fire occurred at Norton's, in the livery stable of G. H. Norton. Owing to the delay in getting the fire engines from Haverhill the fire extended to the livery hotel, Crafts' meat market, H. E. Hartley's carriage factory, all of which were totally destroyed as well as about twenty other buildings. The loss will reach $25,000. The fire was caused by a horse kicking over a lighted lantern.

Episcopal Diocese of Kentucky.

HENDERSON, Ky., May 14.—Five hundred delegates occupied the period of the Episcopal convention this morning when the Post-graduate convention for the diocese of Kentucky was called to order. Divine service, followed by the office of the week, and the sermon preached at 10 o'clock, and the election of the officers of the convention, of Louisville. The convention then organized for business.

Labor Party in the National Campaign.

NEW YORK, May 14.—Henry George was asked today if he expected his party to make a presidential nomination in the next campaign. He replied that he did not know whether they would or not. The United Labor party, he said, did not care to hold the executive office, but it was necessary to fight for them in order to bring the party's principles into the field.

Pardons Asked.

NOGALES, Ariz., May 14.—A petition was forwarded from this place to President Diaz, asking him to pardon the prisoners who recently created a disturbance on the American side, and who were sentenced to be shot yesterday. Another petition asking President Cleveland to recommend their pardon, and one requesting him to take no such step, has been sent to Washington.

Soldiers Drawn.

TALLADEGA, I. T., May 14.—Yesterday evening at Fort Gibson two soldiers, Joe Adams and J. E. Gladden, were drowned in the Grand river. They were out fishing for fish, and got caught in a swift current and were swept under.

Steamer Fannie Fern Sold.

Jacksonville has no croakers. Not a solitary one. Every man in the town is confident of the future, buoyant and perfectly willing to contribute to the extent of his means to any laudable public enterprise. This could never have been said of Jacksonville at any time before this. We think it can be said of no other town in the State now. Think of it. A town without a croaker!

Several people of Montgomery have written to the Jacksonville Real Estate, Loan & Insurance Agency to secure their desirable lots here on which they may build summer residences. We hope they may be suited. What a delicious society it would make, thus blending of the wealth and culture and refinement of Montgomery, the capital city of the finest State of the South, with that of Jacksonville, the capital city of the finest county in the State.

An offer of one dollar and ten cents was made to Capt. P. D. Ross some days ago for his stock in the Jacksonville Land Company and he refused. The people of Jacksonville are strong believers in this stock and would be difficult now to get very much of it at any price. Their faith is well founded. The stock will be one fifty for one by fall and two for one by next spring. As Mr. Calhoun said about Georgia Central stock: "It's good. It will do to leave to one's children."

The admirable letter of Mr. Cory, the accomplished editor of the Montgomery Advertiser is published on this page. It is a voluntary and spontaneous tribute of an appreciative man to a place for which nature has done much, and to a people no man can once come socially in contact with and not love. Mr. Cory "divined" Jacksonville intuitively, and Jacksonville found in the modest young editor of the Advertiser a kindred spirit whom she at once appreciated, and hence the unaffected warmth of her welcome which charmed him.

Gentlemen of the Alabama press who favor protection are having the argument pretty much to themselves now and, being undisputed, they are beginning to think they have about got the thing fixed to their satisfaction. They have even begun to write down Alabama as a protective tariff State, and it is now a matter of discussion with them whether they will permit Carlisle and Cleveland to succeed themselves. After awhile the Democratic party of the State will take up the refrain and the protective sentiment in Alabama will then appear what it really is—a very small force.

The poetical and the material happily blend in this rushing, becoming, growing, mineral district of the State. Gadsden is a lumber and iron producing place and her people love to dwell on the material resources of the town, but they call her "Queen City of the Coosa." Anniston makes cars and pig iron and the finer products of pig iron; and the basis of her prosperity and growth is iron; but her scribes ever speak of her as "Beautiful Anniston." Talladega is laying off a large share of work in the material development of the town and State, and her fabulous mineral wealth is a subject with which her people fondly write, but they grow tender and poetical anon and then they call her "The Bride of the Mountains." And now comes the newspaper correspondent who tells of the marvellous mineral richness of the country in and about Jacksonville, her future important railroad connections, the grand schemes that are hatching for colossal enterprises within her borders. Does he call her a second Pittsburgh, or Manchester? By no means. He too turns from the region of the material to the realm of poetry and Jacksonville is fondly dubbed in the headlines, "The Darling of the Hills." Fitting name! Let it cleave to her.

She is Turning Her Attention to Wealth in a Valley

NEW RAILROAD ENTERPRISES.

To Be as Great as She is Beautiful.

From the Montgomery Advertiser.

Jacksonville is an old, old town. There is age in the solid building that serves her for a depot; in the now abandoned courthouse that sits in the center of her public square; in two-thirds of the houses that dot the wide valley; in the very plan of the town, as if the pioneers of a new country had come and settled down for roomy comfort without thought of town building with an object; in the traditions of the place and in the things wherein the people take a pride. The Arcadian simplicity of its life and careless beauty of its artificial surroundings, tell a story of things that have been and in them are whispers from the past.

Since 1865 Col Robert McKee had been in harness, a wheel horse at his labor. As journalist and as public official he had "lived laborious days and nights devoid of ease." Even his iron constitution was yielding beneath the strain and his nervous system admonished him to rest. It was pleasant during the last years of his service as private secretary to the Governor to hear him dilate on a little scheme he had formed. He took a boyish pleasure in building what to him seemed aircastles. He would buy him a little place somewhere among the hills where his eyes might feast themselves on the verdure of the mountains and the rolling plains of the valleys, and there in the midst of a contented, honest and God fearing people, he would forget for awhile the jar and discord and selfishness of busier and more aspiring populations. I thought once that he had fixed on Coosa county. But one day he came back from a brief absence, smiling, and announced that he had fixed on the place that his fancy sought and had bought a 40 acre farm in the corporate limits of Jacksonville. He is living there now, grown young again through the quiet of his life and the pure air of this mountain region, and at fifty is ready for another tug with work, as vigorous in mind and body as in the days when he gave up fortune in Louisville to follow the fortune of the Southern cross.

In columns I could not give to the public a more truthful impression of Jacksonville than is derived from this little incident in the life of Alabama's foremost journalistic writer. That he should have chosen it for such a purpose gave me what idea I had of the town, and now that I have seen it I do not wonder at his choice. The old South has held its own in Jacksonville and the best of country and of village life unite here to make a town, the like of which I have never seen.

But my friend McKee's Arcadian life was of short duration. In sight of the mountain that plants its feet on Anniston's heart, with mountains of richest ore, amid all the noise of many and far resounding booms, the old

Jacksonville held its way stoutly and long. But the tide was too strong, and with many a backward glance, at first I fancy, the old town cut loose its moorings, and is now out on the wide sea of modern development, as joyful, as hopeful and as young as any among all the rest. Let us hope that all along this new industrial childhood it will carry the goodness, the kindness, and the honesty with which it grew to the manhood of the old regime.

In an old town growing young again; a whole population laying aside the quiet and sweet content of years; aged habit shaking off its garment of inaction for the trim rigging of the prize ring; in such revolution there is a charm over which the pen would linger lovingly. Such a revolution has come to Jacksonville. To trespass yet once again on the quiet retreat of my friend, the resting journalist and ex-official, he is as full of corner lots and iron ores and railroads as the politician with the thirst for office, and can discourse to you as glibly as the next man on the beauties and advantages and undeveloped wealth of this favored town among the mountains.

All of which means that Jacksonville has a land company. The charge of extravagance is frequently brought against letters descriptive of these aspiring towns of North Alabama. Yet I doubt if one single pen that has ever scratched on the subject has anything more than scratched the surface of the truth. There is a wealth of resource, a hoard of undeveloped riches, a future of industry and population which neither you nor I nor any of us have ever fully taken in or allowed ourselves to believe. When we think of what has been done in a few short years by a people broken by war and wedded through generations to the sole pursuits of farming and merchandise; when we count what the industrial spirit has already done ere yet it has left its cradle, no prophecy is wild and no dream is idle.

JACKSONVILLE NOW.

Jacksonville is the county town of Calhoun county. It is twelve miles above Anniston and the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia railroad passes through the limits. Its corporate lines run for two miles and a half up and down this valley and stretch from mountain to mountain on either side. There is beauty from every point of view, the beauty of forest clothed mountains near and far, of broken foot hills and rolling meadow lands. Of all the town sites in this region of town sites none is more attractive to the eye, more pleasing to the sense than Jacksonville. It is high above the sea, too, 700 feet and more, high enough to justify its place among the summer resorts. In this valley are gathered some twelve hundred people. What first caused the pioneer to stop here and build a town, the corner stone as it were, is a spring that bursts from a little hillside a block from the principal square. This great spring, for it is great with its two million gallons and more a day, is the purest free stone water. It soon gathers itself into a stream that will turn a cotton mill and will drain the town through many a year of vigorous growth. The people do not use it though, having built themselves a waterworks in a mountain over yonder where the reservoir is nature's standpipe.

These people live in comfortable homes for the most part, and some of them in mansions where every luxury that art can add to nature makes home a paradise. There are some fine old places and finer young places. They have churches of all denominations and ample school facilities. One of the State's Normal colleges is located here, in a fine old brick structure formerly used as a private college. The court house is new and handsome in appearance, being admirably arranged and well fitted up. The old one, which yet stands in the centre of the square will be torn down and a fountain with flowers and shade trees made to take its place.

What manner of people the investor and prospector will find to meet him, can be best illustrated by some brief account of the courtesies shown the excursion party which visited the town on the 13th inst., with Maj. Jno. M. Wyly himself. His home is one of the fine old mansions for which Alabama is so celebrated and the breakfast was in keeping with the house. Could more be said?

After being driven over the town and vicinity, the visitors were taken to Gen. Burke's for dinner. In a speech after dinner, in responding to a toast, the General told how he came here. Seventeen years ago he was riding through this country in a buggy with a friend prospecting, and one evening they came to the top of an eminence in the northern border of Jacksonville. At his feet lay the town. On either hand were the towering hills. Far away to the south stretched a succession of valleys and hills, to where the vision lost itself in the sunlit top of old Blue Mountain. He had never seen the sight before, but enraptured, he exclaimed: "If ever I settle down it will be on this spot." His words were not idle for he did come, he built him a home and planted trees and flowers, and changed the worn out red clay of the hill top into as lovely a spot for human habitation as graces all the face of Alabama.

But the dinner, ah! the dinner! It was in picnic style, on a long table in the yard. With the abundance that graces the hospitality of the country, and the elegance and taste that are more peculiar to the city, the feast was spread. The beauty of the town was there, too, in white aprons and with smiling faces, to act the part of waitresses. After the dinner was over, came the champagne and its accompaniments, toasts and speech making. Maj. Wyly, and Gen. Burke, and Jacksonville, and the Jacksonville Land Company, and the ladies, and the Irish cause, and the hostess, the hostess' fair daughter Miss Maggie, and the Old South, and the New South, were all toasted, and responses made by Mr. Tennent Lomax, and Gen. Forney, and Col. Caldwell, and Gen. Burke, and Mr. Helper, of the Manufacturers' Record, and Mr. Gordon, and Judge Walker and others.

After this delightful entertainment, the company adjourned to the beautiful lawn of Capt. Jas. Crook's home and spent a few minutes in the quiet enjoyment of a smoke. A drive to Germania closed the day, with a view of a very lovely little lake in the midst of a pretty little village.

At night Major P. Rowan threw open his doors to the party and his home was the scene of a charming reception. Refreshments were served, of course, and the musical talent of the town had been drafted into the service of hospitality that all things might conspire to make the last hours of the stay happy in spite of the sadness at parting. The ladies to the charm of whose voices the visitors owe so much, are Mrs. Glasser, Mrs. S. D. G. Brothers, Miss Ida Wyly, Miss Maggie Burke, Mrs. Joe Frank and Mrs. H. L. Stevenson, while the debt is no less to Miss Duplisses, the accompanist. Mrs. B. Strassburger, of the party of excursionists, contributed some instrumental music, and Mr. Helper, who joined the party at Talladega, recited a Spanish legend with exquisite grace and tenderness.

No town in Alabama can boast so many cultivated and melodious singers, for the very scenery of the place inclines to poetry, music and flowers. Perhaps this is why the town slept so contentedly so long. But to the business aspect of the situation.

THE LAND COMPANY.

What has gone before may give some glimpse of the town as the tide of development found it. It must not be thought that because Jacksonville has not pushed into a place of growing dimensions, there has been no aspiration and no effort in the past. Before the war the town gave a brick depot and a large cash bonus to secure the Selma, Rome & Dalton rail road. Some of her citizens were among the leading spirits in the great enterprise, and first and last one of them, Judge Thos. A. Walker, sunk $150,000 in it. The spirit of enterprise was not dead. It was only sleeping and waiting for an opportunity.

In the organization of the land company Maj. Jno. Wyly took the leading part. His business relations as general agent of the E. T. V. & G. railroad brought him into association with men of means, who had confidence in his judgment. He got them interested in Jacksonville. The people were anxious to take hold and develop their town. The new spirit was in the breasts of all, and their hands were willing. Everybody was ready, and everybody took hold and did his share. Land owners didn't hold back and wait to profit by somebody else's enterprise, but they put their property into the common pool at rock bottom prices. On a dollar for dollar basis the Jacksonville Land and Improvement company was formed, and Jacksonville was, henceforth, in the lists.

Of course Montgomery is deep into the project. Wherever development is going on in Alabama, there are found Montgomery capital and enterprise. And they have made no mistakes yet. Nor will their investment in Jacksonville prove an exception to the rule.

The capital stock of the land company is $200,000, without water. Of this $100,000 was paid in lands and money, and the other $100,000 is held in the treasury as improvement fund, to be sold on ly at par for funds with which to improve the property. I know of no other company in Alabama, where the improvement fund is half the capital stock, and the other half on a dollar for dollar basis. If there is anything in a sound and liberal organization, the Jacksonville Land company has it.

Among the stock-holders are nearly all the people in town, which means what is absolutely necessary to success—home support. The others are chiefly from Montgomery.

The directors are as follows: J. W. Burke, W. H. Dean and L. W. Grant, of Jacksonville; J. M. Wyly, Thos. W. McDonald, J. B. Gaston, B. Wolf and A. T. London, of Montgomery.

The officers are Alex. T. London, president; Jno. C. O'Connell, vice-president; D. F. Lowe, secretary and treasurer; Bernard Gaston, resident agent and manager.

Mr. London, in whose hands as president the destinies of the company so largely rests, is one of Montgomery's most successful lawyers, successful not only in law but in business. He has a wide acquaintance, large experience and indomitable perseverance. Add to these a persuasive and captivating manner, and the good fortune of the company in enlisting him seems complete.

THE PROPERTY.

The property of the company consists of 900 acres in the corporate limits of the town, a small portion of which only is improved. On the organization of the company, values, long depressed, rose to something like their normal or rightful condition. A considerable number of private sales have been made on the basis of these sales the 900 hundred acres are valued as follows: Two hundred acres at $500 are worth $100,000; 300 acres at $200 are worth $60,000; 400 acres at $100 are worth $40,000, making the total present value of the 900 acres $200,000.

The company also owns in the immediate vicinity of Jacksonville 3,000 acres of mineral lands worth $15 an acre, or $45,000; and also 4,500 acres of the same character at some distance from the town, valued at $4 an acre or $18,000.

All of which added together makes the total value of the company's holdings, at present prices, $268,000.

MINERAL WEALTH.

As at Gadsden and at Anniston, vast stores of iron are found in the very corporate limits of the town, a simple shute would land the ores without further handling in the top of a furnace in the town. These ores have long been mined and at different times have been sold to six different furnaces in Alabama and Georgia. They are the best quality of brown hematite and many analyses made in this country and in Europe have never found a lower percentage of metallic iron than 56, and some specimens have gone over 59.

It is claimed furthermore that these ores are suitable for steel making and the analysis bears out the claim. Ores from the Walker mine, which is the one nearest to the town and scarcely a mile from the court house, show .045 of one percent of phosphorus and others show still less. As the highest amount of phosphorus which can exist in steel ores is .07 of one percent, the problem of making steel by the Bessemer process in Alabama would seem an easy solution here in Jacksonville.

As to the quantity of the iron ore, it simply fills the mountains, so abundant, in fact, the only marvel is men should pay their money for it.

As to coal, that is off to the west beyond the Coosa river some twenty miles away. On this point Jacksonville is on a par with these other East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia towns. The East & West Railroad, now in four miles of the town, is to run through it and give direct connection with the coal fields and so will the Georgia Central.

In addition to the brown hematite, the red fossiliferous ore, so common about Birmingham, is found here in abundance. Indeed, no where else do the two lie so closely and conveniently together, as if nature would save man the trouble of mixing them.

Manganese ores are found in great abundance on the company's land. Two specimens analyzed in Europe show respectively 51.087 and 53.247 parts of pure manganese, with .00137 and .00177 percent of phosphorus. Mr. Grant tells me that arrangements are already under way by which these ores will be shipped to Pittsburgh for use in steel making, at a net profit of over five dollars a ton.

Kaolin and marble are both found in large quantities near here, and the earth is filled with limestone and sandstone of the best building quality.

As to the wood necessary in the making of charcoal iron, the forests clothe the mountains and the mountains cover the earth.

A few fertile valleys give the farmer a chance, but the great bulk of the land seems to have been put here for manufacturing, not for agricultural purposes. The fertile valleys are just about large enough in extent to guarantee to the manufacturing population that will soon fill up this region, an abundance of food, and cheap food.

PAVING MATERIAL.

Just outside the town, in the side of a mountain, is found a deposit of some calcareous substance that may turn out to be worth more than all the iron in these hills. When first dug out it is moist and crumbles easily. Spread down on a street or sidewalk it melts gradually into a compact and even mass and then hardens. A driveway in front of Gen. Burke's house is laid with it and it has proved as durable as it is pretty. The town folks have used it for many years for walks and street crossings, and it seems never to wear out. Mr. London proposes to bring some of it to Montgomery and try it as a substitute for the Schillenger pavement. If successful the land company needs to go no farther for its dividends.

RAILROADS.

Jacksonville is on the E. T. V. & G. main line which runs north and south. The East and West road, from Cartersville to the Broken Arrow coal mines and on to Birmingham, runs within four miles of the town and they tell me here that arrangements are virtually completed by which the line will be deflected a little farther south and brought in to Jacksonville.

The Georgia Central is already at work on a line from Carrollton, Ga., northwest via Jacksonville, Gadsden and Decatur to Milan, Tennessee, where the objective point is a junction with the Illinois Central. The object of the extension by the Central is direct connection between Chicago and Savannah, and this puts Jacksonville on another great through line, giving her railroads in six directions. What more does she need to give her every facility for making iron and getting it to market; or for distributing any product that her industry may create?

WAKED UP.

Jacksonville is thoroughly wide awake. The people have all the enthusiasm so characteristic of men when they have done a patriotic thing that their consciences approve, and when they are at work to help others as well as themselves. They are busy with investigations and with projects, and enterprises may be expected to ripen fast. Already arrangements are made for the removal of a foundry for the manufacture of the Turbine water wheel, the maker of the wheel having the exclusive State right.

Some fresh population is coming in, too, three of Montgomery's young men being among the number. Mr. Bernard Gaston is agent of the land company, and Messrs. R. B. Lowe and L. P. Hurter have established the Jacksonville Real Estate, Loan and Insurance Agency. Others have come from other quarters and the town is beginning to don the appearance of an aspirant for industrial honors.

But all is young yet. The land company has not had time to mature its plans, to advertise its resources or to spread the news of the inducements it has to offer. Real estate is still held at such figures that the most skeptical will agree are not beyond reason, and all things invite the projector to come and begin at the beginning. Jacksonville, with her wide, rolling valley; her pure air and mountain scenery, her wide forests; her cold and chrysal water; her six railroads and her commanding situation; and above all, the honest, patriotic, wide-awake men who are pushing her to the front, stands more than an even chance in the race of progress, and a thriving city will soon stand where the careless and contented town has so long quietly slumbered amid an empire of beauty and wealth.

Chronic Rheumatism.

Swift's Specific cured me of chronic rheumatism which had troubled me for fifteen years. I had taken every kind of medicine nearly that is advertised for rheumatism, but none did me near so much good as S. S. S. Last spring I took about half dozen large bottles, and from that day I have not been troubled with rheumatism. My appetite was improved by your medicine and my digestion strengthened. S. S. S. is one of the best blood medicines in the world.

A Marvelous Cure of Cancer.

My wife has been down two years with an abscess in her side. Last December she commenced using S. S. S. When she began its use she was nothing but a skeleton, had no appetite and was feeling weak and very miserable. To-day she is a new woman. Her appetite is good, her spirits revived. She is as stout as she was before she was taken sick two years ago. She can eat anything, and she today thinks S. S. S. the greatest medicine on earth. It has simply lifted her from a two years' sick bed, put flesh on her bones and life in her heart.

Yours gratefully,

THE INJUNCTION SUIT.

It will be remembered that when the Anniston & Cincinnati R. Rd. Company attempted to take possession of the old road bed and right of way of the Jacksonville, Gadsden & Attalla R. R. Co., between Jacksonville and Gadsden, Judge Box granted a temporary injunction restraining the Anniston & Cincinnati R. R. Co. from entering upon such road bed and right of way, or interfering with or molesting the Jacksonville, Gadsden & Attalla R. R. Co. in the possession thereof, and restraining the Probate Judge of Etowah from further condemnation proceedings by which it was sought to condemn the property of the Jacksonville, Gadsden & Attalla R. R. Co. by service upon the original land owners.

This injunction the Anniston & Cincinnati R. R. Co. sought to dissolve through Chancellor McSpaden. The case was argued at Gadsden the 9th day of May.

The Chancellor took the matter under advisement until he reached Huntsville where he could have access to a good library.

Wednesday the decree of the Chancellor was received, sustaining the injunction and perpetually restraining the Anniston & Cincinnati Railroad Company from entering upon any of the old road bed or right of way of the Jacksonville, Gadsden & Attalla Railroad Company.

People here who have resisted the attempt of the Anniston & Cincinnati Railroad Company to appropriate their property to its own use, and who have been denounced therefor as "obstructionists" who sought to block the wheels of progress, have been sustained by a court of equity and good conscience, and this fact of itself is sufficient comment upon the ill considered epithets which have been used toward them for simply maintaining their rights under the law.

Governor Seay was present at the State Press Convention at Birmingham and the report says, "sat modestly back on the platform until called out for a speech, in which he fully acknowledged the power of the press." Governor Seay has a correct appreciation of the power of the press. It is greater than Governor or President. It makes these. Individually the President or Governor is a bigger man than any editor, but collectively the editors overtop either and it is well that when a Governor of Alabama sits in the Exponent of Popular Sentiment in Alabama, that he should do so as modestly and becomingly as Governor Seay did at Birmingham.

The Georgia Central survey is progressing most satisfactorily. Mr. Cowan, a member of the surveying corps of the Georgia Pacific R. R., who has looked at White's Gap in the mountain range immediately east of this town, gives it as his opinion that it can be passed without difficulty. Meantime the Georgia Central surveyors are approaching the town from the east. When they reach here, their survey, which is very careful, will determine definitely the question of crossing immediately east of here.

Owing to business engagements the editor of THE REPUBLICAN was unable to attend the Press Convention which met at Birmingham the 25th inst. Birmingham gave the editors a royal reception. The Louisville and Nashville railroad tendered them a free ride to the Mammoth Cave of Kentucky, and altogether they are having, as we write, a good time. Our best wishes go with them on their tour.

Jacksonville, Ala., is now on a solid boom. We say solid for there is no wild speculation, but this beautiful old town is growing rapidly and steadily. There is no way to hold a place back when its own people are determined to build it up and improve it. Money, nerve and enterprise will build up any town, and as the people of Jacksonville seem to possess these all important qualities, we predict for it a brilliant career.—Shelby Chronicle.

Premier Tisza has notified France that Austria-Hungary will not take part in the Paris exhibition officially, but will render every assistance from the empire. It is understood that Russia has some to the same decision in reference to the exhibition.

A BIG SUIT.

The Woodstock Iron Company Sued for $1,000,000.

Montgomery Advertiser.

The big suit of McEwin vs. the Woodstock Iron Company is now being argued in the Supreme Court. Judge Campbell of Pensacola, is here, with Horace Stringfellow, Esq., representing the plaintiff, Messrs. J. H. Caldwell and John B. Knox represent the defendant.

The suit involves a large part of the land on which Anniston is situated, including Glen Addie and the ground covered by some of the most important industrial plants. The whole amount involved is estimated at over $1,000,000.

THE EAST AND WEST.

The Sale of the Road Perfected—The New Management.

CEDARTOWN, GA., May 21.—The sale of the E. and W. railroad, an account of which was published some time in March in the Constitution, was consummated on yesterday and the stockholders of the new company held their meeting at Cross Plains, Ala., and on the 18th elected a board of directors. We understand that in accordance with the preliminary arrangements that Mr. Richard Pell, of New York, is president and Captain Postell, of Georgia, vice-president and general manager. A. J. West and Judge Inzer, of Alabama, are retained of the old company and are members of the new directorate. It is generally understood that the gauge will very soon be broadened to a standard, and the break from Broken Arrow, Ala., to the Georgia Pacific be completed at once, when this railroad will be of great importance. Much is hoped for under the new deal by the people along this line.

A TROPHY OF WAR.

The Sword of Capt. George C. Wattle of the Tenth Alabama Infantry.

The following letter was received by Mr. John T. Kilduff, of this city yesterday. It explains itself:

NEW YORK, May 17, 1887.—DEAR SIR:—Some friends of mine have in their possession a sword that was captured on the field of Antietam, and which bears the name of Captain George C. Wattle, of the Tenth Alabama Infantry. This weapon is a fine sample of the armorer's handicraft, and on that account alone worthy of careful preservation. Moreover, the sentiment and interest with which it must be invested in the eyes of its former owner, if he be still alive, is doubtless such as to render its return at this time an unexpected pleasure. It would be equally gratifying to the present guardians of the trophy to see it in his hands. I would therefore esteem it a favor if you should inquire as to Captain Wattle's whereabouts, and let me know how the sword can best be restored to him.

Yours truly,
CHARLES MCK. LESSER.

A Chloroforming Rapist Meets His Doom in the Court House.

St. Louis, May 25.—A special from Rockville, Mo., says: "Last Tuesday a man called at the Anderson residence and asked for a glass of water. Jennie Anderson, a popular and accomplished daughter of one of the leading citizens of Bates Co., waited upon him. When she came near him he suddenly seized and chloroformed her, and while under its influence she was outraged. A search resulted in the arrest of John Van derburg and lynching was prevented only by the doubt of his guilt. After the excitement had cooled down, Jennie Anderson confronted the prisoner and claimed to recognize him. At the preliminary hearing yesterday the Anderson family were all present besides many other citizens. Jennie told the horrible details of the crime and the prisoner made a poor attempt to prove an alibi. The Judge had just announced that the prisoner would be held in $10,000 bail, when a shot rang out followed in rapid succession by two more. There was a scatter for the street and when quiet was restored the prisoner was dead. No one knows who fired the shots, but as two of the Anderson boys were in the court room, they were put under arrest.

The making of wild whisky has about ceased in Winston county, and the manufacture of counterfeit dollars has taken its place.

Near Blountsville, Vernon Warren's little girl fell with an open knife, sticking the blade into one of her eyeballs, putting it out at once.

While Major W. W. Screws, of Montgomery, was riding out in Mobile, the horses ran away and he made a narrow escape from serious injury.

The Huntsville Mercury gives this item to the world: Senator Morgan and Congressman Martin and Oates were Alabama's only representatives who stood by the people and voted against the interstate commerce folly.

Seven persons lost their lives and six were seriously wounded while preparing a blast on the Georgia Pacific railroad near Leads last Thursday. The blast went off prematurely while the men were at work and caused the fearful accident.

The trace chains drawing a Mr. Wood's wagon across the bridge at Sneed's Mill, Blount county, a few days ago, broke, and the horse backed the wagon containing his wife and four children into the river. All were rescued except a four-year-old son, who was drowned.

The Alabama board of assessors of railroad property, in session at Montgomery, has nearly completed its work. The increase over last year's assessments on all the roads will aggregate between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000, yielding a very handsome increase of revenue to the state.

The members of the Episcopal church in Greensboro a few days ago presented the rector, Rev. Dr. R. H. Cobbs, a fine horse, and Mrs. Cobbs two sets of solid silver spoons, and a set of berry spoons in handsome plush cases, the occasion being the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of his rectorship.

A party of young people visited the cave Tuesday afternoon, and their lights went out when they were nearly at the far end. They groped around in the dark several hours before they found the way out, but luckily none of them sustained any injury, which was very fortunate, as the place is full of abrupt banks and ravines.—Fort Payne Journal.

A Berlin telegram to the New Free Press, of Vienna, says that Crown Prince Frederick William to-day underwent a serious operation for a cancer in the throat. No intelligence has been received in London confirming this report.

Gives relief at once and Cures
COLD IN HEAD CATARRH HAYFEVER
Net's Liquid Snuff or Powder. Effective in Influenza, Croup, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Etc.
A particle of the Balm is applied into each nostril as directed. It is quickly absorbed, effecting speedy relief from all nasal catarrhs and other local affections.
It relieves pain and inflammation, protects the mucous membranes of the head from additional colds, completely heals the sores and restores the reaction of the system. Beneficial results are realized by a few applications.
A thorough treatment will cure.
Price 30 cents at druggists; by mail, registered and enclosed.
ELY BROTHERS, Druggists, Oswego, N. Y.

Catarrh is Not a Blood Disease.
No matter what parts it may finally affect, Catarrh always starts in the head, and belongs to the head. There is no mystery about the origin of Catarrh. It begins in a neglected cold, or one of the kind that is "sure to be better in a few days." Thousands of victims know how it comes, and have experienced Ely's Green Balm cure it in its head and Catarrh in all its stages.

Application to Sell Land.
STATE OF ALABAMA.)
Calhoun County.)
I, Probate Court, Special Term,
this 18th day of May 1887,
Administrator of the Estate of L. A. Stevenson, deceased, and files in Court application in writing and under oath, praying for a decree to sell certain real estate belonging to said decedent, in said petition described, for purpose of paying the debts of said estate and for distribution, and ground that the personal property is insufficient to pay off the indebtedness of said estate.
It is therefore ordered by the Court that the 28th day of May 1887, be and is hereby appointed the day upon which to hear and determine said application, and that notice thereof be given by publication for three consecutive weeks in the Jacksonville Republican newspaper published in said county, as a notice to all persons interested to appear in said Court on said 28th day of May next and contest said application if they think proper.
