Application for Decree to Sell Land.

STATE OF ALABAMA,
Calhoun County.

In Probate Court, for said County, Special Term, Sept. 15th 1890.

This day came Mrs. Millie A. Prickett, joint owner owner and tenant in common with F. I. Hannah Emma E. Hannah, and filed in Court her application praying for a decree to sell certain lands in said petition described for partition and division among the joint owners, upon the grounds that the same cannot be equitably divided without a sale.

It is therefore ordered that the 16th day of October 1890 be and is hereby appointed the day on which to hear and determine said application, and notice is hereby given to all persons interested to appear in said court and contest said application if they think proper.

EMMETT F. CROOK,

The cholera in Japan has claimed about 25,000 deaths.

Every Democrat should read the address of the Chairman of the Democratic State Executive Committee and ponder its truths. Fellow-citizens do not forget that you are members of the Democratic party. Stand by its colors. You will never regret it. To desert the standard now, under stress of weather, may be cause for shame and regret to you in the future. The Democratic party stands for the liberty of the citizen against the encroachments of power. It is absolutely the only power that still protects the people of the South.

Stand by the Democratic party.

It argues ill for the patriotism of the people of the South when the recently started cry of "war horses to the rear" can find any favor with them. We hope no Democrat in Calhoun will so far forget himself as to echo it. The man who utters it proclaims his shameless ingratitude to the men who offered their lives for the South and who for four years suffered the pangs of hunger and cold and wounds for their country. Nay, it is a reproach to the gallant confederate dead, who would start from their graves in amazement if they could but hear it from the lips of Southern men. Leave the villification of confederate war horses to the Tom Reeds and other bloody-shirters of the North. You should revere and honor their memory.

Some time ago the REPUBLICAN called attention to the condition of the Saddler family, near White Plains, composed of one brother and five sisters, the youngest of whom is 74 years of age. Some of them are helpless by reason of disease and all incapatiated for work by reason of weight of years. The REPUBLICAN stated that this family had lived at the same spot fifty-four years and during that whole time had borne a spotless character. The case of this deserving but destitute family was commended to the ministers of the county as good ground for practical charity and they were asked to present the case to their congregations and give them an opportunity to contribute. Here was a better field for practical charity than is presented in the case of the heathen in Africa and elsewhere. Yet not one single cent was sent to Dr. Evins for these poor people from any point in all this broad, rich county. In the parable of the good Samaritan and in frequent utterances Christ taught his disciples to care for the poor. Here was an opportunity the churches should have gladly embraced. But they let it pass. Tuesday a subscription was started in the REPUBLICAN office for these poor people and given to Dr. Evins and the last we heard of it, men who make no great profession of piety were giving freely to this cause of the poor. "The world," in this case, has snatched a laurel from the crown of "the church," but has done it in a way that must win the favor of the all-loving Father of us all. Religion does not wholly consist in the exposition of texts or crusades for the evangelization of the world. Contributions for the foreign missionary cause may be a good thing; but in our zeal for the salvation of the heathen we should not forget that Christ has reminded us that the poor we have with us alway.

Catarrh Can't be Cured

with local applications, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you have to take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is no quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials free.

TO THE DEMOCRACY OF ALABAMA.

Address By Chairman Tompkins of the State Committee.

Now Is the Time. When Nothing Should Keep Any Voter Away From the Polls—Duty to Party and Love of Home Rule and White Supremacy Demands That Every Democrat Stand by the Nominees and Vote the Straight Democratic Ticket—No Time to Falter Now.

Rooms of the Democratic State Executive Committee,
Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 22, 1890.

To the Voters of Alabama:

The approaching Congressional election is one of very great importance to you. The issues involved are the most serious that have confronted you; the most serious that have ever been presented to the decision of a free people. You owe nothing to the Republican party. It has never advocated a measure that would benefit you; its leaders even at this late day in their public utterances have nothing but harsh and cruel words to speak of you. The party of monopoly, relying upon the unlawful and corrupt use of money contributed by the classes who have become pampered and rich through the aid of laws passed for their benefit and for the oppression of the thousands who do not belong to those favored classes, sees that it can no longer buy power; that outraged freemen who have endured until endurance has become no longer even a seeming virtue, will hurl it from place, and that in the future if it remains in power, it can only do so by force and fraud.

The leaders in the approaching election know that they will lose heavily in the North; that if the Democrats can hold their own in the South the next House of Representatives will be Democratic by a handsome majority. If at this election, through the apathy of our people or through dissensions in our ranks, we lose districts enough in the South to overcome our gains at the North and the Republicans thereby control the next House, they will not care whether you are united or divided in the future, they will not care for even Northern dissatisfaction; for before another election can be held they will have you bound hand and foot by the means of the infamous Force bill, or some other like measure, and will always thereafter be able to count in enough of their men from the South to overcome any gains we may make in the North. As a part of this same scheme to retain power by force and fraud, it is boldly charged by the non-partisan press of many of the northern cities that the census of Democratic cities and communities have been deliberately falsified, and their populations underestimated in order that their representation in the Federal Congress may be reduced, and that if Republican States and cities increased, and this charge is supported by an array of facts that seem clearly to establish it.

Freemen of Alabama, can you be indifferent in such a contest? Reflect for a moment and consider with what your political foes threaten you. Take the provisions of the Force Bill. Human ingenuity, inspired by a spirit of hate could not possibly have drafted a measure more destructive of free government, more injurious to the liberties of the people and the prosperity of our country. Under its provisions, an appointee of a Federal Judge, owing nothing to you, caring nothing for you, holding his office for life, or at least at the will of that Judge, will have the appointment of the men who are to pass upon your right to vote, to hold your Congressional elections and declare the result. These men, thus appointed, are to say whose votes shall and whose votes shall not be counted; it is their certificates and not that of your Governor, as it has been since the foundation of this Government, that is to determine the right of men claiming to represent you in the Federal Congress to do so. Can you doubt the result? Can you doubt that if it was found necessary to count out fifty Democrats in the South in order to overcome a gain of that many in the North, the men who would be appointed supervisors of elections under the new law would not hesitate to do so. Are their characters such, and has their conduct been such in the past as to give you any reason to believe they would not? Is it not a fact known to all men that when in power, placed there by organizing the ignorant negro in solid phalanx against their best friends, the white people of the South, they almost openly accepted bribes from corporations, and in consideration thereof voted away millions of the people's money, fastening upon the State an indebtedness that could not be paid for generations? Men that would do that would not hesitate to count out Congressmen. This bill places at every voting place in the State three Federal officers. Under a recent decision rendered by the Republican Judges of the United States Supreme Court those officers, while acting as such may commit any offence against you, even to murder, and they cannot be tried as other criminals are to be tried; they are a privileged class. Other men who commit crimes are to be tried in the State Court before a jury of the County where the crime is committed; these men may be tried by a Federal Judge in a distant part of the State, and that Judge shall say whether they are guilty or innocent. If that Judge determines that they are guilty then your State Court may try them; if that Judge says they are innocent, then no State Court or officer can touch them.

Alabamians, are you ready to establish such a privileged class in your midst? If you are, vote the Republican ticket or do that which amounts in effect to the same thing, vote for the so-called Independent, or refrain from voting altogether. Do you desire to maintain the Government your fathers established: to retain the liberties they bequeathed? then vote the Democratic ticket. You have no right to remain away from the polls. Free Government cannot be preserved unless the people appreciate it. That man does not appreciate the freedom he enjoys who fails to discharge a freeman's duty, the casting of a freeman's ballot. The fact that your neighbor or any number of your neighbors cast their ballots is no excuse for you not casting yours. The duty is not one that can be shifted to another's shoulders: it is one that you must perform for yourself.

Let every man go to the polls on the 4th of November and cast his ballot for the party of the people and not of a class; the party of liberty and not of an oligarchy; and from Alabama at least will go up the cheering cry that freedom's cause is the cause that has a people's heart. The Republican party is resorting to these desperate measures, and for what? That it may retain its power. What measures for the benefit of the people are to be expected from its retention of power? Point to one such which it has enacted or proposed since it came into power. Is the iniquitous Force Bill such a measure? We have seen what it is, and no one but a blind partisan can defend it. Is the Silver Bill such a measure? While pretending to provide for an increase of the volume of the currency, it does no such thing; it does not make money of silver, but a commodity to be bought and sold for gold. It is a shame and a fraud. Is the McKinley Tariff Bill such a measure? Go to your merchant and ask him what has been the increase in the price of every article of necessity used by you from the buttons you place on your clothes, to the cloth of which the clothes are made; from the handkerchief you put in your pocket, to the flannel you wear on your body; from the tinware you use in your kitchen, to the plows and axes and other implements you use on your farms; the bagging in which you wrap and the ties with which you bind your cotton, and find that you will now have to pay from 25 to 100 per cent. higher for every article of necessity you buy, because of the passage of that bill. Add up this increase in the prices that you will pay on a year's purchases and then cease to wonder that you are poor. Yet there are men in our midst who tell you that the Democratic demand for reduced taxation is a delusion and that you have no interest in the tariff question. They are doing the work of the monopolist; they are working to distract your attention from those issues which most vitally affect you, and if heeded they will place you still more in the power of trusts and plunge you deeper in the depths of poverty. Democracy is pledged to relieve you of these unjust burdens, it is pledged to restore you the government of your fathers. No man can point to a single pledge that it has failed to keep. Be true to that party; be true to yourselves; give your country the few hours it will take you to go to the polls on the 4th of November. Your country and your family demand it, and the victory will surely be ours, and the Democratic party when restored to full power in 1892, as it surely will be unless the people and the South can be divided, will relieve you and will restore to you a government which shall be a government of the whole people with special privileges for none.

Talks About the County Fair—The Big Money he Made in Jacksonville Real Estate and Other Things.

OXFORD, ALA., Oct. 23, '90.

The county fair at Oxford Lake is over. The Baptist Association is over, and it is hoped Oxford will get a rest.

Cotton comes rolling in these days, and Oxford merchants are happy or ought to be, for they have been selling to farmers on time all the year, and the cry is now "time's up" and they are raking in the cash.

Mr. J. M. LeMaster and Miss Fannie Pesnell were married in Oxford last Sunday afternoon.

Carelton Urquhart and lady from Carrolton, Ga., are visiting friends and relatives here. Having lived in Oxford for several years until about 12 months ago, and being of the kind of folks we like to have about, and regret to see move away. The handshaking has been cordial and extensive.

There's some talk of Anniston and Oxford splitting Oxanna in two and each annexing a piece. Well, Anniston has got be a real first rate neighbor, and there's no objection to joinin gincorporations with her.

I am so rejoiced to note the advance all along the line at Jacksonville. May she grow, and spread, and spread and grow till she gets as big as all out of doors. Now don't think I'm selfish and want to make money by Jacksonville's taking on city proportions. I've done sold all the Tredegar property I owned, and can now sing,

"No foot of land do I possess,
No cottage in the wilderness" of Tredegar. I made 800 per cent. on my purchase, and if the other fellow can stand it I can.

Fishing is pretty good at Oxford Lake, but watch out ye fishermen else you meet my fate. I fell in. That's what made my throat sore the next day or two. Some men who were standing by laughed immoderately, but I failed to see anything funny about the transaction and didn't laugh. I guess the wrong fellow fell in, for I feel quite sure if it had been Tom Draper, I should have laughed as heartily as any of them.

Kind Words of Cheer.

When a proprietor knows he has a grand and good remedy for the many ills that flesh and blood are heir to, it pleases him exceedingly to receive such evidence of appreciation as follows:

W F Miles, Milesville, N. C., writes: "I have used Botanic Blood Balm and find it to be all that it is recommended to be."

D C Blanton, Thomasville, Ga., writes: "I have used Botanic Blood Balm in my family as a tonic and blood purifier with highest satisfactory results."

F O Hoffman, editor Times, Rocky Mount, Va., writes: "I am pleased to say that Botonic Blood Balm is the appetizer and tonic for delicate people I ever saw. It acted like a charm in my case."

F H Hickey, 1208 Main street, Lynchburg, Va., writes: "I was broke out all over with sores, and my hair was falling out. After using a few bottles of Botanic Blood Balm my hair quit falling out and all the sores got well."

Julia E Johnson, Stafford's P. O., S. C., writes: "I had suffered 13 years with eczema and was at times confined to my bed. The itching was terrible. My son-in-law got me one-half dozen bottles of Botanic Blood Balm, which entirely cured me and I ask you to publish this for the benefit of others suffering in like manner."

August A. Klages, 810 St. Charles street, Baltimore, Md., writes: "From my youth I suffered from a poisonous taint in my blood. My face and body was continually affected with eruptions and sores. I am now 42 years of age and had been treated both in Germany and America, but no remedy overcame the trouble until I used Botanic Blood Balm. I have used about twenty bottles, and now my skin is clear, smooth and healthy, and I consider the poison permanently driven from my blood I indorse it as the best blood remedy."

Dyspepsia troubled me for a number years and I was nervous and weak. A friend got me to use Dr. Bull's Sarsaparilla, and everything I now eat agrees with me. My stomach now gives me no pain and I enjoy my food.—H. T. Randolph, Des Moines.

Not Consummated.

During several seasons young Parks had been a constant visitor at the house of Abemleich Morrison. Sunday after Sunday the young fellow would come, and after sitting nearly all day stealing glances at Sookey, old Abemleich's daughter, he would go home. He was so bashful that when the time came for his depature he would glide out the door, jump over the fence, and run like a jack-rabbit. Last Sunday he took his place as usual.

"Sam," said old Abemleich, "what's your daddy doin'?"

"Makin' uv a steer yoke, uh, huh, huh!"

"Whut's Lige doin'?"

"Ain't doin' nothin'. Dan gone to meetin' with a gal, uh huh, huh!"

"What's your mother doin'?"

"Got sorter behind on her quilt, an' is a-cardin' of her bats to-day."

"Made your plant bed yit?"

"We've made one uv them, but we ain't made the big one what we 'lowed to make."

"Sam?"

"Yas, sar."

"Whut's the usen actin' sich a blamie fool? You love Sook?"

"No, I don't; uh, huh, huh!"

"Yes, you do."

"I don't, nuther."

"Yes, you do, an' you wanter marry her."

"I don't, now, no such uv a thing, uh, huh, huh!"

"Yes, you do."

"Would you give her to me ef I wuz ter wanter marry her?"

"Yes, you may have her. Come here, Sook," calling the girl.

"Whut do you want, dad?" she said, entering the room.

"Hold on, Sam. Come back, you blame fool!"

A man came into the editorial room today and broke everybody up with this story: Several years ago a paymaster in the United States army invested $600 in a piece of ground in Spokane Falls. The other day he sold it for $54,000. The excitement that greeted this story had scarcely died away, and the boys in the room were fanning each other's hair to cool their skulls, when another man came in and told this story: In 1882 a Pennsylvanian went to Denver, and when he landed he had enough to buy a tent and a few mining tools. He went prospecting, made a little money and then went back to Denver and bought real estate. To-day he is worth $40,000,000. The only sound that greeted this story was a succession or dull thuds as men dropped to the floor. There was a hiatus of half an hour, when another man came in and said he had just heard of a young man in one of the mushroom towns of Virginia who invested a little money in real estate right after breafast, and when he sat down to dinner had cleaned up $1,000 on his purchase. There are three half-crazy men in this office. Whenever a man comes into the editorial room he is asked before he gets warm: "How much did the fellow make?" Then he tells his little story and goes out, leaving the boys just as poor as ever.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

Are you one of the men who are going to try to distance the old war horse with the stumpsucker?

The Allianceman who casts a vote for Butler because he is an Allianceman will strike the order the cruelest blow he can give it.

Give your vote to the old "War horse" and thus rebuke the shameless men who are crying "war horses to the rear."

Col. Denson was to have addressed the voters of Calhoun at the Court house Wednesday; but was unexpectedly called to Gadsden on business.

Do you belong to the gang who want to see the old war horses sent to the rear? Ask your boy who has read the history of the Confederate struggle what he thinks of a man who entertains such views.

Some of Gen. Forney's friends estimate the General's majority at 6,000. It will be more than that if no Democrat in the district shall disfranchise himself by failing to vote.—Gadsden Times.

Who moved the the nomination of Gen. Forney by acclamation? The president of the St. Clair county alliance. The alliancemen will give a satisfactory vote on election day.—Gadsden Times.

Dr. Melville Jackson, of Grace church, Richmond, Va., was elected assistant Bishop of the Episcopal church by the Diocesan Council recently in session at Selma. He is about forty years of age, a fine preacher and a hard worker.

Show by your vote that you prefer a "war horse," who bears the Democratic banner, to a stumpsucker, who carries the Independent flag and courts negro votes by traducing the white men of this District in his demand for "justice" to the negro.

The Alabama Confederate Veterans' Association which met this week in Birmingham recommended that the next Legislature pass an act to give a monthly pension to indigent and maimed Confederate soldiers and that a special tax be levied for this purpose. The Legislature will no doubt follow the recommendation.

Tom Woolfolk, the murderer of his father's entire family in Georgia some two years ago and whose case has attracted wide attention, was hanged at Perry, Georgia, the 29th inst. He made no talk but had a short paper read by one of the ministers who attended him, in which he declared most solemnly that he was not guilty of the crime and had no knowledge of who did it.

Butler denies in the Gadsden Times that he is for negro equality; but he does not attempt to explain the meaning of his seventh plank. He cannot. It is susceptible of no meaning but that the papers have put upon it. He cannot avoid the conclusion that his language means that or nothing. If he says it means nothing, then he confesses himself a knave who throws out a false bait to catch negro votes. How can white men afford to vote for such a man?

Some papers, unfriendly to the Democratic party, are publishing that Democrats in Congress voted for the infamous McKinley tariff bill that has so raised prices on all the goods the people have to buy. This is a falsehood. The Democrats in Congress voted solidly against it, and even two or three Republicans went over to the Democrats and voted with them against it. It is purely a Republican measure. The Democrats in Congress have been fighting all along for a lower rate of taxation. President Cleveland specially recommended it and the Democrats championed the Mills bill which provided for it. The Democrats in Congress are for more money in circulation and lower taxes on the people.

There are grave fears that Logan, the negro Republican candidate, will carry Talladega county. Talladega is a close county, politically, and if any number of Democrats throw away their votes on Butler, Logan may carry that county. Thus it can be seen how a vote for an Independent Democrat gives aid and comfort to a Republican candidate. In effect a vote for Butler is a half vote for Logan, for it increases Logan's chances just to that extent. Every vote taken off the Democratic nominee strengthens the chances of the Negro candidate. White men cannot escape the conclusion of this logic. If you can't vote for a negro, but want to give him all the aid and comfort you can, then vote for Butler. If you want the Democratic party to win, then vote for Forney, who is its standard bearer.

When the Calhoun County Democratic Convention met no opposition was developed to Gen. Forney, and a majority of the delegates to that convention were true and tried Alliancemen.

In the committee room, Mr. Greer, county lecturer for the Alliance, announced that the Alliance people were willing to have such a delegation sent to the District Convention as Gen. Forney's friends desired. The editor of this paper was on that committee and knows whereof he speaks. He presented a list of delegates to the committee, which he stated frankly the friends of Gen. Forney wanted sent to Gadsden, because they were influential for good in his cause. There was only one change suggested, and that was suggested by Commissioner Mace Coker, an Allianceman, who said that the delegate he proposed to substitute was a Forney man. Other influential Alliancemen were on that committee and all acquiesced readily, and the report of the committee was unanimous, and the convention adopted it without objection. The convention went further. It not only appointed good Forney men to the Gadsden convention, but instructed them to work for his nomination. In the Gadsden convention the President of the St. Clair county Alliance nominated Gen. Forney for Congress. How comes it now that rumors abound that Alliancemen here and there will not support Gen. Forney? When they controlled the Calhoun county convention was the time to fight him, if the Alliance had any had any fight to make on him. Why instruct their delegates to Gadsden to nominate him, if they intended afterwards to vote against him? The position of the alliancemen who vote against Gen. Forney will be inconsistent and ridiculous, and will serve to bring the order into contempt, as not knowing its own mind when it meets in a convention itself controls. We do not believe any considerable number of alliancemen will be so foolish as to oppose a nomination they themselves made, so far as this county is concerned. He was nominated before the District Convention by a prominent allianceman. He was supported by delegates from Calhoun and other counties sent to the District Convention by Democratic alliancemen. He is practically a nominee of both the Democrats and alliancemen. Then why should any allianceman desert the Democratic party ranks in order to record a vote against him? We believe few will be so foolish. We believe that the result of the election will show that the great body of alliancemen in this county mean always to stand by the Democratic party and its nominees. A few foolish men may go off from the party and its old war horse in this county on the back of stumpsucker Butler, the great champion of Sambo, and the party will doubtless get rid of a bad incumbrance when they do go; but the mass of the people of Calhoun will show that they are still true to Democracy and white supremacy and that they are not yet and never will be ready to join in a crusade to defeat and humiliate any old war horse. They will leave that task to bloody-shirt Radicals in the North and political cranks in the South.

The REPUBLICAN has a considerable circulation in the Seventh Congressional District of Georgia. When Dr. Felton came out as an Independent candidate for Congress against Mr. Everett, a farmer and Allianceman, who had fairly secured the Democratic nomination, the REPUBLICAN took the side of Mr. Everett. Some of our subscribers in that district did not like the attitude of the paper; but we could have taken no other position with consistency. We believe in standing by the nominees of the Democratic party as essential to the life of that party and the rule of the white man in the South. For the same reason we have deplored the candidacy of Judge Haskill in South Carolina against Tillman, the Alliancemen who secured the Democratic nomination for Governor. When we urge the Democratic voters of this District to vote for Gen. Forney we do no more for him than we have done for Tillman or for Everett. We sincerely and honestly believe that the best interests of the white people of Alabama require that they stand firmly by the organization of the Democratic party. We are quite sure that safety lies in this course and that no man will in future have reason to regret or be ashamed of such a vote. Beware of Independentism! It is the open door to the Republican party. Be true to your party and your country. Do not be seduced from your allegiance by the appeals of any demagogue who wants office.

Pilley, the Independent candidate in the Second Congressional District, who is claiming the support of both the Farmers' Alliance and the Republican party in his fight against Col. Herbert, the Democratic nominee, is going to be disappointed so far as the alliance is concerned. Mr. T. H. Brown, president of the Pike county alliance, the county in which Pilley lives, says that he will not get the alliance vote of that county. He says the alliancemen of Pike are Democrats and that they are going to support the Democratic nominee.

Pilley is a strange kind of cat anyhow. In addition to the fact that he is a superanuated Methodist preacher he is postmaster at Troy, in Pike county. Recently he became displeased at the course of the Troy Herald, which is opposing him, and deliberately suppressed one entire issue of that paper by refusing to send it out through the mails. He ought to be removed.

The same convention that nominated Mr. Cooper for the Legislature sent delegates to the Gadsden Convention that nominated Gen. Forney for Congress.

In the State election Jacksonville, (Gen. Forney's town) gave Mr. Cooper every Democratic vote polled. In fact Mr. Cooper ran two votes ahead of a popular minister who lived in Jacksonville and who was also nominated for office by the same Convention. So far as Jacksonville is concerned she stood loyally by the nominations of that Convention, although it is known the voters here preferred to see Mr. Brothers nominated for Representative. They didn't get their choice; but they stood to the rack, and they think they have a right to ask that the people of the county who favored the nomination of Mr. Cooper shall now stand by Gen. Forney as Mr. Cooper himself is doing. This is fair. If you require other men to stand by the nominations that please you, you should be man enough to stand by nominations that please them. Otherwise there can be no harmony, and a division of the white people will follow. Division of the white people in Alabama means negro rule. No one of us wants that. Abide the action of your party, whether you like it or not, and correct errors at the next convention. This government is not for a year but for all time, let us hope. There will be ample opportunity in future elections to make your wishes known. An abandonment of your party is a poor way to correct it.

Let us settle our differences inside the party.

The Chairman of the Talladega County Democratic Executive Committee, in an address to the voters of that county, charges that Butler is the secret candidate of the Radical party and that his tickets were printed in Montgomery by the Repulican State Executive Committee and that Bob Moseley distributed his tickets in the District.

Stand by your party, and vote for Gen. Forney.

BEGINNING TO CROW.

What the Negro Paper at Anniston Is Saying.

The Vindicator, the negro paper established at Anniston to advocate the election of Logan to Congress, has this to say of the canvass:

"Our candidate's reception in Cherokee, DeKalb, Marshall, Etowah and St. Clair was all we expected. The organization of the party goes bravely on, you bet. Look for us two years hence at the National Convention."

* * * * *

"Look out for surprises in the second, seventh, and eighth districts in this State. Herbert, Forney, and Wheeler are walking on treacherous grounds. * * * * Yes, and there has been stranger things to happen in this country than the election of Logan to Congress. On the morning after the election when we shall read the returns from the several counties composing this district the greatest surprise will be Jack Logan's vote. Don't you deceive yourself about Logan, he has friends and voters in every county in the district, and it will be one of the happiest moments of our life to deposit a pure, untainted Republican ballot for him on the morning of the election."

There will be no surprise in this District if Democrats do their duty and support Forney, the nominee of their party.

The Rev. Geo. H. Thayer, of Bourbon, Ind., says: "Both myself and wife owe our lives to Shiloh's consumption cure."

LOCAL.

Mrs. Annie Draper visited Jacksonville this week and was the guest of Mrs. H. L. Stevenson.

Obituary notice of Maj. T. W. Francis is in office and will appear next week.

Circuit court has been in session this week, Judge Rox presiding. The attendance is about as usual.

Messrs. Crusoe and McPherson, of Piedmont, were down Thursday on business in the courts.

The machinery for the Tredegar Brick & Tile Company has been received and is now being put in place.

Messrs. Privett & Field will put up a corrugated iron real estate office on the public square. Mr. Hubbell will put up one near the depot on Woodward street.

Ex-Sheriff Jack Williams, of Peeks Hill, has bought a house and lot from Gen. Jno. H. Forney, on Depot Street, and will move here to educate his children.

Excavations are being made for two brick stores on Francis Avenue. Brick laying on same will commence as soon as the Tredegar Brick & Tile Co., burn their first kiln.

Mr. Jno. Patterson, the champion cabbage riser of Calhoun has laid the REPUBLICAN office under obligation for a cabbage white as snow and something smaller than a half bushel measure.

Mrs. Walker Reynolds, of Talladega county, died at her home one day this week. She was the mother of Mrs, James Crook and often visited Jacksonville where she was well known and greatly esteemed.

Dispatches received here Thursday from Mr. Alexander, chief engineer of construction on the steel plant, announce that he and the contractors on the plant will be here the early part of next week.

Maj. G. B. West, General Manager of the Jacksonville Mining & Manufacturing Co., who has been for some weeks in Boston, is expected here the last of this week.

All the rooms on the first and second floors of the Tredegar Inn have been taken for the Winter, dating from the 15th of this month, by gentlemen of the East and North, who expect to spend the winter here.

Divine service may be expected in the Episcopal church Sunday, Nov. 2nd, at 11 a. m. The Holy communion will be administered. The public are cordially invited.

W. T. ALLEN.

Messrs. Frank Burke, Jno. Forney and Alexander Gibson have all been honored at the University this session in the appointment to important positions. The boys of Jacksonville always will be heard from wherever they go.

Mr. Jimmie Dothard, died at the home of his brother, Mr. Hugh Dothard, five miles south of Jacksonville, some days ago of malarial fever. He moved to this county from Ireland January 1st of this year. He leaves a family of a wife and seven children.

The movement in real estate here has continued with unabated activity. Several large sales have been made at an advance on the prices of the week before. Gentlemen from all parts of the country continue to come in and make quiet investments and much money is being invested here by local real estate men for people abroad.

With arrival of the contractors on the steel plant next week there will be greater activity in real estate than has yet been shown, although the tranactions up to date have far exceeded in magnitude anything our people ever hoped to see. We advise conservatism both in buying and selling. Be content with a moderate profit and keep prices within reason.

Subscribers to the REPUBLICAN are paying up more slowly this season than at this time in any previous year that we remember. This ought not to be so. People are selling their cotton and getting money and we expect them to call at this office and settle while they are in funds. In a few days the editor will be absent in Montgomery, engaged in the service of the public. Many heretofore have made his absence an excuse for not paying their subscriptions. This is no excuse at all. There is a gentleman in the office who is authorized to receive and receipt for sums due the office. Pay up for your paper and you can read it with a more comfortable feeling. If you do not know how much you owe, write to the office and find out.

Death of Mrs. Kimbrell.

Mrs. Mattie A. Kimbrell, wife of Thos. H. Kimbrell, died at her home about three miles from Jacksonville, Monday last, after a very brief illness. She was in apparenly good health the day before her death. She leaves a husband and two children to mourn her loss. She was a good christian woman, who had many friends who will sorrow over her untimely death.

We direct attention to the advertisement of Joe A. Magnus & Co., of Anniston. Mr. Magnus has been visiting Jacksonville the past ten years and is well known to our people. He is a fine business man with an excellent record for fair dealing. Whenever Joe Magnus recommends an article he has for sale as pure or good, the buyer may bank on it. The stock of the firm at Anniston is said to be the largest and finest ever brought into this State.

Needing a tonic, or children who want building up, should take
BROWN'S IRON BITTERS.
It is pleasant to take, cures Malaria, Indigestion, Biliousness and Liver Complaints.

Pills Won't Cure Dyspepsia.

Dyspeptics are ever hopeless. They seek relief from their distress of stomach and of liver, and find it not. Indigestion, heartburn, vertigo, extreme lassitude, loss of energy, peevishness, etc., is the bane of their existence and mars the complacent feelings of others around the family fireside. Why won't dyspeptics come and be cured. It can be done. There is one sure way of strengthening the digestive organs and removing every symptom of general debility caused thereby. But this cannot be done by the taking of pills and other cathartic mixtures. Such treatment while seeming to give temporary relief at first, in the end aggravates the disease and increases the suffering, for it is like whipping a tired horse, it irritates and urges, but the strengh to move at last gives out entirely. Thousands of former dyspeptics are now happy in health and strength of stomach brought about by the use of the finest of strengthening and healing tonic alteratives known as Dr. John Bull's Sarsaparilla, the condensed virtue of many excellent herbs. It is the biggest and the best Sarsaparilla sold.

We will sell on reasonable terms a good farm lying five miles from Jacksonville and four hundred yards from a depot, containing 160 acres of land. About 90 acres under fence and in cultivation. About 40 acres almost perfectly level. Has new six room frame house finished complete. Fine spring near the house and mineral springs adjacent. The farm is well watered and very suitable for a stock farm. Has also a good orchard—large new barns conveniently arranged and a good three room tenant house. Besides being good farming land, the place is supposed to have beds of rich mineral ores. Churches and schools in three-quarters of a mile. Very few farms in the county possess more advantages or better located. Apply to

A Good Name.

A Good Name is Certainly Better than Riches in the business world. That is why we never permit customers to leave our store dissatisfied with their purchases.

We aim to get the Good Will of the People, and our largely increaing business shows that we have been successful. Our goods, our prices, and our straight American methods of doing business make it an object for you to

TRADE WITH US.

It's a Unique position we occupy as Leaders. This is forcibly indicated by the scores who interview us daily on styles. As we are asked, our judgment must be valued. If we know—as we do—isn't it most natural we should pattern our stock accordingly? Certainly.

The Dealers who do so much talking about the amount of money they save to the purchasers of clothing are the very ones who who are making it more expensive. For instance you cannot get a whole page advertisement for nothing. Neither can any man or concern afford to sell you goods for LESS than COST and succeed.

Those who advertise goods at one half or one third of their value are still making profits big enough to pay for all the charity they do to their customers.

Ours is a Plain,

Fair dealing house. We sell our Merchandise on a living profit. Our goods are same price to everybody. Each article is marked in Plain Figures.

No Private Cost Mark that you can't Understand. Should you buy of us and not be pleased with your purchase, we refund your money as freely as we receive it. This has been the success of our house, as

We have never refused to give back purchase money, if the article is brought back uninjured. Bear this in mind. In this advertisement we have stated how we do business; in our next we will tell you something else.

MAJOR THOMAS W. FRANCIS.

In Memoriam.

On the night of the 21st of October, 1890, MAJOR T. W. FRANCIS died, in Jacksonville, Ala., at the residence of his brother-in-law, Mayor H. L. Stevenson, in the fifty-fourth year of his age.

Every day and every hour some friend is called upon to chronicle the death and deplore the loss of an acquaintance, friend or loved one; but rarely does it happen that we note the departure of one, so much a man of mark, as was the subject of this memorial.

Maj. Francis was born in Jasper, Tennessee, on the 22nd of July, 1837, but was brought to this place by his parents, whither they moved, while he was yet an infant in the nurses arms.

Before he reached his teens he developed a wonderful fondness for traffic and trade, and, afterwards, a decided talent for commercial pursuits. At the age of fourteen he entered the mercantile establishment of the successful firm of Woodward & Porter, at a small salary, and by his business tact and industry, soon won first rank among the business men of that day. At the age of 18 he became associated with the firm of Ryan, Tate & Rowland of this place, but in 1857, seeking a larger business field, he moved to Selma, Ala., and took place with the large wholesale house of Hardie & Robinson.

In 1858 he intermarried with Miss Fannie Abernathy, of Jacksonville, Ala., and some time in the year 1859, purchased a large tract of land on Cane Creek, to which he moved, and on which he demonstrated that "farming will pay" when the same thoughtful attention and intelligent direction is given to it that is given to other departments of business.

In 1861, at the first call for troops, Maj. Francis joined the confederate forces and served on the staff of Gen, John H. Forney with the title of Major till the close of the war.

In 1865 he returned to his home to find much of a fortune already acquired, swept from him by the disastrous results of the war; but nothing daunted, he began to rebuild and regain what had been lost. His plantation was soon rehabilitated, and a prosperous mercantile business established at his own home. Meanwhile his business talent became so well known and was so highly appreciated that he became successively the representative, in the Southern States, of the commercial houses of Stokesbury & McLean, Cochran, McLean & Co., and lastly of the celebrated house of A. T. Stewart & Co., of New York. Several years since he established a large mercantile business in the city of Montgomery associated with Mr. Jno. F. Cobbs, which was profitably conducted and continued for a number of years. More recently, desiring to withdraw from such active and varied interests and pursuits, he retired to his country home and its surroundings which he had made the center of trade and business in that part of the county.

Maj. Francis was eminently a man of business; thoughtful, farseeing and systematic; prudent and cautious and yet more than ordinarily active and prompt in the execution of his plans. In all matters of business his word was the equal of his bond.

He was not one of those "who talked like an angel—and done nothing." His life was one of activity. He was successful and made money. He loved to make money; not to hoard as does a miser, nor senselessly to scatter with the prodigality of a spendthrift, but as a means to bring to himself, his relations and his friends the comforts and enjoyments of life. He lent assistance and gave ungrudgingly to all worthy objects whose necessities were made known to him. He gave away what to many men would be esteemed a handsome fortune. Many a friend will remember his generous hand in the hour of need.

When a boy, fifteen years old, he professed religion and joined the church of his parents—the Methodist Episcopal Church. It may be that in the intervening years, he lost his membership with the church, but in the last few months of his life, his utterances and his acts show that the shining light of the Cross was not entirely obscured from his vision, nor had his old time faith in the Blood of the Lamb abandoned him.

In May last premonitions of health failure and possible death came to him. He left his home and sought restoration in the mountain atmosphere of North Carolina. He sought in vain. His candid physician told him that the crisis would be upon him in a few short months. He immediately expressed a desire to return to the home of his childhood—to be with those whom he had loved and who loved him. He speedily reunited himself with the church of his beloved parents, and after laboring for more than two months under the fires of a consuming disease, with patience awaited the summons, and unreservedly gave evidence of his hope, his trust, his faith in the forgiveness and redeeming love of the Master.

In the death of Major Francis, the afflicted widow has lost an affectionate husband; the State a patriot and most excellent citizen; his relatives and friends a kind and most generous benefactor. C.

Southern Activity and Progress.

The Manufacturers' Record of October 25 says:

The Sothward movement of men and money is strikingly shown in the long special trains filled with Northern capitalists that are now almost daily seen on all Southern railroads that reach the great mineral belt of this section. From Virginia to Alabama the country is crowded with men of money from the North, looking for investments in manufacturing enterprises, in mineral and timber lands, in the development of new towns and the building of new railroads. The activity in all these lines surpasses anything ever before seen in this country. Fortunately the claims so long made by the Manufacturers' Record as to the resources of the South and to the wonderful industrial future that awaits it are more than sustained by all who investigate for themselves, and all unite in saying that the half had not not been told. Even the foreign iron and steel makers who are now in the South express their amazement at the vastness of the South's mineral wealth which far surpasses anything that they had expected to find. The development of this wealth is creating new towns all through the mineral regions, and hundreds more will be started to become prosperous centers of industrial life and activity. During the last ten days or two weeks many great enterprises have been projected, and many more will soon be made public. Among the recent large enterprises reported is the investment of $1,000,000 by English capitalists in a new town in Alabama, and the purchase of an extensive town property in the same State by a $5,000,000 New York company. Active preparations are being made for the construction of a number of new furnaces in the different towns in Alabama, two to be at Riverton, while the big steel plant at Tredegar, which is to employ over 3,000 hands, will soon be vigorously under way, the contractor's plant having been shipped from New York ten days or more ago. At Bessemer a $100,000 plumbers' supply factory company has been organized. Middlesboreugh, Ky., is to have a $300,000 brewery, a $500,000 pipe works, and other new industries. At Radford, Va., a $300,000 company to build pipe works; at Roanoke, a $150,000 engine building company; at Lynchburg a $500,000 agricultural implement company; at Basic City a furniture factory to employ 400 hands, and at Baltimore $100,000 machine works have been organized. In West Virginia a $1,000,000 iron and coal company has been chartered, and in Florida a $600,000 phosphate company. Over a dozen development and improvement companies organized to build up new towns have been reported during the last week or two. Everywhere there is activity and progress.

Oh, What a Cough.

Will you heed the warning? The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50 cents, to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your Cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves Croup and Whooping Cough at once. Mothers do not be without it. For lame back, side of chest, use Shiloh's Porus Plaster.

OBITUARY.

HENRIETTA, wife of Greene B. Skelton, was born in Calhoun county Alabama, December 20, 1834, and died at her home four miles south of Jacksonville, Ala., October 4, 1890.

In 1851 she was happily married and lived with her husband nearly forty years. She professed religion and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South the first year of her married life and lived, as she died, a devoted christian. She was the mother of fourteen children; half of the number preceded her to heaven and the remaining seven are following on. Her life was one of devotion to God and to her family. Her home was one where kindness reigned and hospitality abounded. Little children loved her and the needy who looked to her for help were never disappointed. "The heart of her husband safely trusted in her; she did him good, and not evil, all the days of her life. In her tongue was the law of kindness, her children rise up and call her blessed, her husband also, and he praiseth her."

In her youth she was a woman of remarkable beauty of person and character and as years passed by she still retained "the look of heaven upon her face which limners give the disciple."

Her death was sudden. She was stricken with paralysis, lost consciousness, and died in a few hours. But the testimony of her godly life and the frequent expression, while in health, of her willingness and readiness to die at any time, leave no room to doubt that she has exchanged a cross for a crown, death for life, and earth for heaven.

Eczema Cured by S. S. S.

Mrs. S. Renauft, Waldo, Fla., writes the following under date of Feb. 11, 1890: "I suffered with Eczema for about two years. About this time I was advised by friends to try your Swift's Specific S S S and I am happy to say that after using six bottles I was entirely cured, and I never lose an opportunity of recommending it to any one I find suffering from any disease of the blood."

He Profits by His Friends Experience.

"I have been troubled with pimples and blotches on my face for years, during which time I tried numbers of standard remedies, but without receiving any benefit. Profiting by the advice and experience of a friend I commenced taking Swift's Specific S S S and the effect it had on me overshadowed all expectations. After taking two bottles the pimples blotches entirely disappeared, and my skin is clear and without a blemish."

The Found of Flesh.

The New York Star slashes with vigor and accuracy when it gets its razor out. It says of the McKinley mistake:

"The frantic appeal of the scared Republicans to the manufacturers to keep their prices down, so that the party may be sayed from the popular uprising on account of the burden of the McKinley tariff tax-raising business, will be unheeded. It is asking too much of the manufacturers that they shall abandon the prize that they have secured by Republican legislation. It was for that that they subscribed the big campaign corruption fund for the election of Harrison and a Republican Congress. They demand their pound of flesh, and they mean to get it, blood and all. This is a Business Administration, and the manufacturers will not forego their share of it simply to please the politicians who find, too late, that the bargain is proving disastrous to them."

I never was strong and I married a delicate little lady. We traveled much in search of health but we remained invalids until we began a use of Dr. Bull's Sarsaparilla. We both are now in better health and feel stronger.—R. A. Mathews, Harrisburg, Pa.

The man or town that permits a shade tree to die from drouth is either stupid or wicked.

Some farmers never can make any thing from fruit growing even under the most favorable circumstances. They say that the market is poor, and yet the market is seldom overrun with the best grades of fruit.

Will potatoes run out? asks a correspondent. They will, sure, if no better care is taken in the selection of seed than is taken in many cases. We never could see why a potato should run out if it was rightly taken care of.

THE MACGILLS.

A War Time Incident—How They Nursed Captain Oden Back To Life.

Correspondence Age Herald.

CHILDERSBURG, Oct. 11.—In your issue of the 7th instant, under the heading, "Some Persons of Prominence," you kindly give considerable space to eulogizing Dr. Macgill and family, formerly of Hagerstown, Md., but latterly of Richmond, Va., but more especially of Mrs. Eilen E. Swan, from the announcement of her death, which occurred on the 22d of September last at the home of her brother-in-law, Dr. S. O. Drewry, in Richmond. Among other things you give prominence to their many intellectual, physical and social graces, together with their political prominence. Though their home was inside the Federal line, they were what were called "rebel sympathizers." Some of the sons cast their lot with the Confederate army, and the father himself was a prisoner for opinion's sake.

"These are names that are familiar to and honored by thousands of ex-Confederates throughout the South."

Now, it may be that you "reckoned better than you knew," and that you did not know there were some ex-Confederates who are constant readers of your valuable paper and in your immediate vicinity who have especial cause to honor and remember this kind, generous, illustrious and patriotic family. I allude particularly to Capt. John ("Piney") Oden, company K Tenth Alabama regiment, Confederate volunteers, who was severely, and at the time thought by his comrades, to be mortally wounded on September 17, 1862, at Sharpsburg, receiving a wound 14 inches long, reaching the whole length of the thigh, from which he is a permanent cripple and great sufferer ever since. Besides, he received at the same time a painful wound in the left side from a piece of bomb shell (but all this without regret, he says, for they were in the discharge of duty.) He lay upon the battlefield in that helpless and suffering condition for twenty-six hours; and when all other efforts for removal failed, he made some masonic characters upon a piece of paper and requested that they be carried to the general in command of the federal army there, he being then within their lines. Very soon six men came for him with an improvised litter—an old army blanket. They made a slip gap in the fence, near which he lay and ran across the hill with him upon the litter, which was more than once punctured with balls from his friends' guns, they not understanding what was going on. This was on Thursday. He was then placed in an old barn filled with hay with the wounded of the yankee army, their being only one other confederate. Here he was treated by Dr. Davis, who was surgeon, kindly and fraternally. General Caldwell being general in command, he fell into the hands of the Fifth New Hampshire regiment. He was then on Sunday removed from this barn with other wounded officers across Antietam to another barn, which was some relief, for, in the first, some of the riff-raff soldiers would smoke their pipes upon the hay, being a source of constant dread. Then, on Monday he was removed to Hagerstown to the court house, which was an improvised hospital, in charge of Dr. Greenleaf. Here, on Tuesday, is where he first met and learned to love and honor the name of Macgill and the members of his family, for the daughters that were then at home came to the hospital and inquired especially if there were any confederate soldiers among the wounded there. Captain Oden being pointed out, they began immediately to beseech, in view of his condition, that he be paroled and they be allowed to carry him to their private dwelling, which request, at their earnest and importunate solicitation, was granted. He was accordingly removed and, as it were, translated from a threatened cremation to a palatial domicile, and here, though he lay bleeding, there was "no dearth of woman's tears nor lack of woman's nursing." For six long months they continued their vigilant ministrations, his family mourning him as most likely dead. Dr. Charles Macgill, jr., who was then at home, with the aid of consultation with his father, who was a political prisoner at Fort Warren, both being practicing physicians, gave him every medical attention, which was especially necessary at the time, the fameral artery having sloughed in two, when life was despaired of, but every physical and even spiritual aid was tendered him. Finally he rallied and still lives to rise up and call them blessed. There were then at home Misses Alice, Mollie, Lizzie, and sons James and Frank, with their mother, two other boys, Pat and Barlow, being in the confederate army; and Mrs. Swan was with or near them and her husband, Maj. Robert Swan, a gallant soldier of two wars, having been in the Mexican. Captain Oden says he is especially indebted to Miss Mollie, now Mrs. Roxenberg of Galveston, Texas, but at present sojourning in Switzerland. The captain has a daughter named Mollie Macgill Oden. The intimacy and friendship between them and their families has been kept up ever since by correspondence and interchange of visits. Soon after the war Dr. Drewry and Major Swan removed to the Black Belt of Alabama to engage in cotton raising.

During their stay South Major Swan and wife visited Captain Oden and spent three months with him and family. In passing from Richmond to Galveston Miss Mollie met her sister, Mrs. Swan, and they both spent some time with the captain. During this visit Major Swan died, near Selma, from a congestive chill, and the visitors were hurried away to accompany the corpse to Richmond for interment.

In 1881 Captain Oden visited Dr. Macgill and family in Richmond, and his sons made them several visits from the University of Virginia, where he was attending school, and they also visited Miss Mollie in Galveston. Dr. Charles Macgill, jr., is now family physician in Baltimore, Md., to a daughter of Gen. W. H. Forney, another Tenth Alabama man.

All this particularity and detail is to show that all that could be said in praise of the Macgill family is not misplaced, and that indeed, thousands of ex-confederates have cause to remember them kindly, generally, and some especially. Peace be to Mrs. Ellen E. Swan and the other members of this noble family, who have crossed over the river and are "resting under the shade of the trees," but may the venerable and venerated mother, the kind daughters and stalwart sons yet live long, the one to receive and the others to grant her love and every attention. And the old captain, may he live long to have pleasant reunions with them and other good friends of the war times. Then at last may they all meet where there shall be eternal peace and happiness.

Weak Men and Weak Women.

Men and women both suffer from weakness and loss of strength. Women, however, suffer more than men. Men don't have those bearing down pains, the bane of a weak woman's existence. Both, however, have their dizzy spells, both bemoan their loss of appetite, their lack of energy, that feeling of weariness and constant fatigue. Both become languid insipid, and life to either hardly seems worth living. Their kidneys are weak and seem wasting away. Their livers are inactive, their stomachs disordered, their bowels irregular. Oh! foolish, foolish men and women! why will you not seek the way to health and strength. Others as miserable as yourselves are now in the full enjoyment of happy, joyous life, simply because they put prejudices aside and began a use of that excellent alterative known as Dr. John Bull's Sarsaparilla. Ask your neighbors who have used it what they think about it. Ask your druggist for a bottle, and don't take any other.

In Memoriam.

Hassie Lizzie Phillips, daughter of Geo. W. and Jennie Phillips, was born February 3, 1873, professed religion and joined the church in 1885, and died October 17, 1890.

Hassie was a good girl, dutiful and obedient at home, studious at school, and attentive at church.

Having just passed the point the point the poet described as

"Standing with reluctant feet,
Where the brook and river meet."

she was to have been married about Christmas; but having for several weeks felt that her life was drawing to a close, she anticipated the fact by taking her affianced into the cemetery, selecting the place at which she desired to be buried.

J. T. DOSTER & CO,

MAJOR THOMAS W. FRANCIS.

In Memoriam.

On the night of the 21st of October, 1890, MAJOR T. W. FRANCIS died, in Jacksonville, Ala., at the residence of his brother-in-law, Mayor H. L. Stevenson, in the fifty-fourth year of his age.

Every day and every hour some friend is called upon to chronicle the death and deplore the loss of an acquaintance, friend or loved one; but rarely does it happen that we note the departure of one, so much a man of mark, as was the subject of this memorial.

Maj. Francis was born in Jasper, Tennessee, on the 22nd of July, 1837, but was brought to this place by his parents, whither they moved, while he was yet an infant in the nurses arms.

Before he reached his teens he developed a wonderful fondness for traffic and trade, and, afterwards, a decided talent for commercial pursuits. At the age of fourteen he entered the mercantile establishment of the successful firm of Woodward & Porter, at a small salary, and by his business tact and industry, soon won first rank among the business men of that day. At the age of 18 he became associated with the firm of Ryan, Tate & Rowland of this place, but in 1857, seeking a larger business field, he moved to Selma, Ala., and took place with the large wholesale house of Hardie & Robinson.

In 1858 he intermarried with Miss Fannie Abernathy, of Jacksonville, Ala., and some time in the year 1859, purchased a large tract of land on Cane Creek, to which he moved, and on which he demonstrated that "farming will pay" when the same thoughtful attention and intelligent direction is given to it that is given to other departments of business.

In 1861, at the first call for troops, Maj. Francis joined the confederate forces and served on the staff of Gen, John H. Forney with the title of Major till the close of the war.

In 1865 he returned to his home to find much of a fortune already acquired, swept from him by the disastrous results of the war; but nothing daunted, he began to rebuild and regain what had been lost. His plantation was soon rehabilitated, and a prosperous mercantile business established at his own home. Meanwhile his business talent became so well known and was so highly appreciated that he became successively the representative, in the Southern States, of the commercial houses of Stokesbury & McLean, Cochran, McLean & Co., and lastly of the celebrated house of A. T. Stewart & Co., of New York. Several years since he established a large mercantile business in the city of Montgomery associated with Mr. Jno. F. Cobbs, which was profitably conducted and continued for a number of years. More recently, desiring to withdraw from such active and varied interests and pursuits, he retired to his country home and its surroundings which he had made the center of trade and business in that part of the county.

Maj. Francis was eminently a man of business; thoughtful, farseeing and systematic; prudent and cautious and yet more than ordinarily active and prompt in the execution of his plans. In all matters of business his word was the equal of his bond.

He was not one of those "who talked like an angel—and done nothing." His life was one of activity. He was successful and made money. He loved to make money; not to hoard as does a miser, nor senselessly to scatter with the prodigality of a spendthrift, but as a means to bring to himself, his relations and his friends the comforts and enjoyments of life. He lent assistance and gave ungrudgingly to all worthy objects whose necessities were made known to him. He gave away what to many men would be esteemed a handsome fortune. Many a friend will remember his generous hand in the hour of need.

When a boy, fifteen years old, he professed religion and joined the church of his parents—the Methodist Episcopal Church. It may be that in the intervening years, he lost his membership with the church, but in the last few months of his life, his utterances and his acts show that the shining light of the Cross was not entirely obscured from his vision, nor had his old time faith in the Blood of the Lamb abandoned him.

In May last premonitions of health failure and possible death came to him. He left his home and sought restoration in the mountain atmosphere of North Carolina. He sought in vain. His candid physician told him that the crisis would be upon him in a few short months. He immediately expressed a desire to return to the home of his childhood—to be with those whom he had loved and who loved him. He speedily reunited himself with the church of his beloved parents, and after laboring for more than two months under the fires of a consuming disease, with patience awaited the summons, and unreservedly gave evidence of his hope, his trust, his faith in the forgiveness and redeeming love of the Master.

In the death of Major Francis, the afflicted widow has lost an affectionate husband; the State a patriot and most excellent citizen; his relatives and friends a kind and most generous benefactor. C.

Southern Activity and Progress.

The Manufacturers' Record of October 25 says:

The Sothward movement of men and money is strikingly shown in the long special trains filled with Northern capitalists that are now almost daily seen on all Southern railroads that reach the great mineral belt of this section. From Virginia to Alabama the country is crowded with men of money from the North, looking for investments in manufacturing enterprises, in mineral and timber lands, in the development of new towns and the building of new railroads. The activity in all these lines surpasses anything ever before seen in this country. Fortunately the claims so long made by the Manufacturers' Record as to the resources of the South and to the wonderful industrial future that awaits it are more than sustained by all who investigate for themselves, and all unite in saying that the half had not not been told. Even the foreign iron and steel makers who are now in the South express their amazement at the vastness of the South's mineral wealth which far surpasses anything that they had expected to find. The development of this wealth is creating new towns all through the mineral regions, and hundreds more will be started, become prosperous centers of industrial life and activity. During the last ten days or two weeks many great enterprises have been projected, and many more will soon be made public. Among the recent large enterprises reported is the investment of $1,000,000 by English capitalists in a new town in Alabama, and the purchase of an extensive town property in the same State by a $5,000,000 New York company. Active preparations are being made for the construction of a number of new furnaces in the different towns in Alabama, two to be at Riverton, while the big steel plant at Tredegar, which is to employ over 3,000 hands, will soon be vigorously under way, the contractor's plant having been shipped from New York ten days or more ago. At Bessemer a $100,000 plumbers' supply factory company has been organized. Middlesboreugh, Ky., is to have a $300,000 brewery, a $500,000 pipe works, and other new industries. At Radford, Va., a $300,000 company to build pipe works; at Roanoke, a $150,000 engine building company; at Lynchburg a $500,000 agricultural implement company; at Basic City a furniture factory to employ 400 hands, and at Baltimore $100,000 machine works have been organized. In West Virginia a $1,000,000 iron and coal company has been chartered, and in Florida a $600,000 phosphate company. Over a dozen development and improvement companies organized to build up new towns have been reported during the last week or two. Everywhere there is activity and progress.

Oh, What a Cough.

Will you heed the warning? The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50 cents, to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your Cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves Croup and Whooping Cough at once. Mothers do not be without it. For lame back, side of chest, use Shiloh's Porus Plaster.

OBITUARY.

HENRIETTA, wife of Greene B. Skelton, was born in Calhoun county Alabama, December 20, 1834, and died at her home four miles south of Jacksonville, Ala., October 4, 1890.

In 1851 she was happily married and lived with her husband nearly forty years. She professed religion and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South the first year of her married life and lived, as she died, a devoted christian. She was the mother of fourteen children; half of the number preceded her to heaven and the remaining seven are following on. Her life was one of devotion to God and to her family. Her home was one where kindness reigned and hospitality abounded. Little children loved her and the needy who looked to her for help were never disappointed. "The heart of her husband safely trusted in her; she did him good, and not evil, all the days of her life. In her tongue was the law of kindness, her children rise up and call her blessed, her husband also, and he praiseth her."

In her youth she was a woman of remarkable beauty of person and character and as years passed by she still retained "the look of heaven upon her face which limners give the disciple."

Her death was sudden. She was stricken with paralysis, lost consciousness, and died in a few hours. But the testimony of her godly life and the frequent expression, while in health, of her willingness and readiness to die at any time, leave no room to doubt that she has exchanged a cross for a crown, death for life, and earth for heaven.

Eczema Cured by S. S. S.

Mrs. S. Renauft, Waldo, Fla., writes the following under date of Feb. 11, 1890: "I suffered with Eczema for about two years. About this time I was advised by friends to try your Swift's Specific S S S and I am happy to say that after using six bottles I was entirely cured, and I never lose an opportunity of recommending it to any one I find suffering from any disease of the blood."

He Profits by His Friends Experience.

"I have been troubled with pimples and blotches on my face for years, during which time I tried numbers of standard remedies, but without receiving any benefit. Profiting by the advice and experience of a friend I commenced taking Swift's Specific S S S and the effect it had on me overshadowed all expectations. After taking two bottles the pimples blotches entirely disappeared, and my skin is clear and without a blemish."

The Pound of Flesh.

The New York Star slashes with vigor and accuracy when it gets its razor out. It says of the McKinley mistake:

"The frantic appeal of the scared Republicans to the manufacturers to keep their prices down, so that the party may be saved from the popular uprising on account of the burden of the McKinley tariff tax-raising business, will be unheeded. It is asking too much of the manufacturers that they shall abandon the prize that they have secured by Republican legislation. It was for that that they subscribed the big campaign corruption fund for the election of Harrison and a Republican Congress. They demand their pound of flesh, and they mean to get it, blood and all. This is a Business Administration, and the manufacturers will not forego their share of it simply to please the politicians who find, too late, that the bargain is proving disastrous to them."

I never was strong and I married a delicate little lady. We traveled much in search of health but we remained invalids until we began a use of Dr. Bull's Sarsaparilla. We both are now in better health and feel stronger.—R. A. Mathews, Harrisburg, Pa.

Some farmers never can make any thing from fruit growing even under the most favorable circumstances. They say that the market is poor, and yet the market is seldom overrun with the best grades of fruit.

Will potatoes run out? asks a correspondent. They will, sure, if no better care is taken in the selection of seed than is taken in many cases. We never could see why a potato should run out if it was rightly taken care of.

THE MACGILLS.

A War Time Incident—How They Nursed Captain Oden Back To Life.

Correspondence Age Herald.

CHILDERSBURG, Oct. 11.—In your issue of the 7th instant, under the heading, "Some Persons of Prominence," you kindly give considerable space to eulogizing Dr. Macgill and family, formerly of Hagerstown, Md., but latterly of Richmond, Va., but more especially of Mrs. Ellen E. Swan, from the announcement of her death, which occurred on the 22d of September last at the home of her brother-in-law, Dr. S. O. Drewry, in Richmond. Among other things you give prominence to their many intellectual, physical and social graces, together with their political prominence. Though their home was inside the Federal line, they were what were called "rebel sympathizers." Some of the sons cast their lot with the Confederate army, and the father himself was a prisoner for opinion's sake.

"These are names that are familiar to and honored by thousands of ex-Confederates throughout the South."

Now, it may be that you "reckoned better than you knew," and that you did not know there were some ex-Confederates who are constant readers of your valuable paper and in your immediate vicinity who have especial cause to honor and remember this kind, generous, illustrious and patriotic family. I allude particularly to Capt. John ("Piney") Oden, company K Tenth Alabama regiment, Confederate volunteers, who was severely, and at the time thought by his comrades, to be mortally wounded on September 17, 1862, at Sharpsburg, receiving a wound 14 inches long, reaching the whole length of the thigh, from which he is a permanent cripple and great sufferer ever since. Besides, he received at the same time a painful wound in the left side from a piece of bomb shell (but all this without regret, he says, for they were in the discharge of duty.) He lay upon the battlefield in that helpless and suffering condition for twenty-six hours; and when all other efforts for removal failed, he made some masonic characters upon a piece of paper and requested that they be carried to the general in command of the federal army there, he being then within their lines. Very soon six men came for him with an improvised litter—an old army blanket. They made a slip gap in the fence, near which he lay and ran across the hill with him upon the litter, which was more than once punctured with balls from his friends' guns, they not understanding what was going on. This was on Thursday. He was then placed in an old barn filled with hay with the wounded of the yankee army, their being only one other confederate. Here he was treated by Dr. Davis, who was surgeon, kindly and fraternally. General Caldwell being general in command, he fell into the hands of the Fifth New Hampshire regiment. He was then on Sunday removed from this barn with other wounded officers across Antietam to another barn, which was some relief, for, in the first, some of the riff-raff soldiers would smoke their pipes upon the hay, being a source of constant dread. Then, on Monday he was removed to Hagerstown to the court house, which was an improvised hospital, in charge of Dr. Greenleaf. Here, on Tuesday, is where he first met and learned to love and honor the name of Macgill and the members of his family, for the daughters that were then at home came to the hospital and inquired especially if there were any confederate soldiers among the wounded there. Captain Oden being pointed out, they began immediately to beseech, in view of his condition, that he be paroled and they be allowed to carry him to their private dwelling, which request, at their earnest and importunate solicitation, was granted. He was accordingly removed and, as it were, translated from a threatened cremation to a palatial domicile, and here, though he lay bleeding, there was "no dearth of woman's tears nor lack of woman's nursing." For six long months they continued their vigilant ministrations, his family mourning him as most likely dead. Dr. Charles Macgill, jr., who was then at home, with the aid of consultation with his father, who was a political prisoner at Fort Warren, both being practicing physicians, gave him every medical attention, which was especially necessary at the time, the famoral artery having sloughed in two, when life was despaired of, but every physical and even spiritual aid was tendered him. Finally he rallied and still lives to rise up and call them blessed. There were then at home Misses Alice, Mollie, Lizzie, and sons James and Frank, with their mother, two other boys, Pat and Barlow, being in the confederate army; and Mrs. Swan was with or near them and her husband, Maj. Robert Swan, a gallant soldier of two wars, having been in the Mexican. Captain Oden says he is especially indebted to Miss Mollie, now Mrs. Roxenberg of Galveston, Texas, but at present sojourning in Switzerland. The captain has a daughter named Mollie Macgill Oden. The intimacy and friendship between them and their families has been kept up ever since by correspondence and interchange of visits. Soon after the war Dr. Drewry and Major Swan removed to the Black Belt of Alabama to engage in cotton raising.

During their stay South Major Swan and wife visited Captain Oden and spent three months with him and family. In passing from Richmond to Galveston Miss Mollie met her sister, Mrs. Swan, and they both spent some time with the captain. During this visit Major Swan died, near Selma, from a congestive chill, and the visitors were hurried away to accompany the corpse to Richmond for interment.

In 1881 Captain Oden visited Dr. Macgill and family in Richmond, and his sons made them several visits from the University of Virginia, where he was attending school, and they also visited Miss Mollie in Galveston. Dr. Charles Macgill, jr., is now family physician in Baltimore, Md., to a daughter of Gen. W. H. Forney, another Tenth Alabama man.

All this particularity and detail is to show that all that could be said in praise of the Macgill family is not misplaced, and that indeed, thousands of ex-confederates have cause to remember them kindly, generally, and some especially. Peace be to Mrs. Ellen E. Swan and the other members of this noble family, who have crossed over the river and are "resting under the shade of the trees," but may the venerable and venerated mother, the kind daughters and stalwart sons yet live long, the one to receive and the others to grant her love and every attention. And the old captain, may he live long to have pleasant reunions with them and other good friends of the war times. Then at last may they all meet where there shall be eternal peace and happiness.

Weak Men and Weak Women.

Men and women both suffer from weakness and loss of strength. Women, however, suffer more than men. Men don't have those bearing down pains, the bane of a weak woman's existence. Both, however, have their dizzy spells, both bemoan their loss of appetite, their lack of energy, that feeling of weariness and constant fatigue. Both become languid insipid, and life to either hardly seems worth living. Their kidneys are weak and seem wasting away. Their livers are inactive, their stomachs disordered, their bowels irregular. Oh! foolish, foolish men and women! why will you not seek the way to health and strength. Others as miserable as yourselves are now in the full enjoyment of happy, joyous life, simply because they put prejudices aside and began the use of that excellent alterative known as Dr. John Bull's Sarsaparilla. Ask your neighbors who have used it what they think about it. Ask your druggist for a bottle, and don't take any other.

In Memoriam.

Hassie Lizzie Phillips, daughter of Geo. W. and Jennie Phillips, was born February 3, 1873, professed religion and joined the church in 1885, and died October 17, 1890.

Hassie was a good girl, dutiful and obedient at home, studious at school, and attentive at church.

Having just passed the point the point the poet described as

"Standing with reluctant feet,
Where the brook and river meet."

she was to have been married about Christmas; but having for several weeks felt that her life was drawing to a close, she anticipated the fact by taking her affianced into the cemetery, selecting the place at which she desired to be buried.

The Republican.

L. W. GRANT, Publisher.

NOVEMBER 8, 1890.

The Legislature meets next Tuesday.

Gen. Forney's majority will be between four and five thousand.

Butler ran best where he was least known.

Alabama sends a solid Democratic delegation to Congress.

Illinois elects twelve Democrats to Congress out of twenty members.

Indiana elects eleven Democrats to Congress out of thirteen members.

West Virginia gives a safe Democratic majorities. So does Delaware.

It is a very dangerous thing to fool around the heels of an old war horse.

In Shelby county Butler and Forney tied. There was not more than half a vote.

The Democratic party is still the biggest thing in this country by long odds.

Democrats don't sell their principles for a glittering bribe of governmental favor.

Everett has beaten Felton in the Seventh Georgia District by over 2,000 majority.

Ben Tillman has beaten Haskell, the Independent, for Governor of South Carolina.

Heretofore strong Republican counties in Florida have returned immense Democratic majority.

Voters of Calhoun, mark and remember the men who wanted to retire the old war horses to the rear.

The result of the election in this district shows that the masses of the people do not take kindly to sneaking politics.

When the Fifty-Second Congress meets the Republican minority will find Tom Reed's rules very inconvenient.

The Democrats made great gains of Congressmen in Ohio, The delegation now stands 14 Democrats to 7 Republicans.

Mr. Wm. Cook says that the people have saddled the old "war horse" again and that he does not need any spurs.

The Georgia Legislature is in session, and a dispatch from Atlanta, Ga., says that Gen. Gordon will be elected U. S. Senator.

If you want to see some fellows in this county turn pale around the gills, just ask them to please lead that old "war horse to the rear."

The litter-bearers have been busy ever since the election carrying off the little fellows who essayed to lead the war horse to the rear.

Lodge, the author of the Force bill, was elected two years ago by 5,000 majority. Tuesday he was re-elected by only 500 majority.

President Harrison's State, Indiana, went Democratic almost unanimously. There is only the merest thread of a Republican party left there.

Three hundred and thirty-five men in Calhoun preferred Butler for Congressman to Gen. Forney. Two thousand, two hundred and fifty preferred quite the contrary.

Nearly every virulent hater of the South in the House has been elected to stay at home. The country wants peace and low taxes, and the Democratic party is going to give it both.

The Farmers' Alliance in Calhoun has shown that it is not at the beck and call of every little bob-tailed demagogue who comes along offering them bread and butter for their votes.

The Republican leaders are now quarreling over what caused the great disaster. Senator Farwell and others say the tariff bill did it, but that the people will be educated up to like it.

Butler got almost the entire solid Republican vote in outside counties and this accounts for his apparent strength in some of them. The true blue Democrats of the District, as a rule, let him severely alone.

The loss of three U. S. Senators in Republican strongholds in the late election reduces the Republican majority in the Senate next Congress to eight. In two or three years more this will be overcome, and then the country will enjoy relief from burdensome taxation and reckless extravagance.

East Tennessee came near falling into Democratic line under the spur of the force bill and tariff bill. Evans and Taylor who voted for both were defeated, and Houck, whose majority has heretofore been 16,000, only came in by about 4,000. A loss of 12,000 in one district serves to show the tremendous political change in East Tennessee.

THE STEEL PLANT.

Col. Alexander, chief engineer of construction of the steel plant and Mr. Twiname, contractor for the same, reached Jacksonville Thursday night, and will remain and put the work under construction as fast as possible. Mr. Twiname is one of the largest contractors in New York city, having recently finished up large contracts on the Croton Acqueduct and the New York Central Railroad. The contractor is under heavy bond to complete the work in the 19 months prescribed in the contract.

The Democratic Executive Committee of Montgomery county will expel a member of the committee who supported Pilley, Independent, against Herbert, Democratic nominee. This is right. A man who won't stand by the organization of his party has no right to hold official position in it. The rule ought to be extended to the rank and file of the party also, and Democrats who vote against nominees of their party ought not to be permitted to participate in subsequent beat and county conventions. A man who will not support the nominees of his party ought not to be permitted to help make nominations. The Democratic Executive Committee of Calhoun will doubtless take proper action in this regard.

H. Clay Evans, of Chattanooga, one of the Southern Republican Congressmen who voted for the force bill, the McKinley tariff bill and the compound lard bill, has been beaten in a District, which is naturally Republican, by Mr. Snodgrass, Democratic nominee. The Chattanooga Times says that if he had not truckled to the Republican bosses in Congress, but had stood loyally by the people of the South as they were effected by these measures, no power on earth could have defeated him. May all traitors to the South meet the fate of H. Clay Evans.

Butler sent out his "platform" signed: W. O. BUTLER,
Member of Oxford Alliance.
What would you think of a candidate who should sign himself thus:
JOHN DOE,
Member of the church;
or thus:
RICHARD ROE,
Member of the Masonic fraternity.
When Butler next runs for Congress he ought to sign his "platform"
W. O. BUTLER,
Late second-best to Logan.

The great mass of the Farmers' Alliancemen of Calhoun county have proven themselves true to Democratic principles, as this paper predicted they would. The loud talk about the sub-treasury nonsense and Tom-tit Butler's strength came from a few slack wads in the order who never have amounted to much either in the Alliance or the Democratic party. The hard common sense of the people can always be relied upon.

Democrats of Calhoun, mark and remember the men who deserted your ranks in this your last and fiercest fight against the advocates of a centralized despotism, the champions of trusts and monopolies and the supporters of the infamous force bill. Men who deserted you at such a critical juncture can never be depended upon again.

All honor to the organized Democrats of Calhoun who always go to the polls and are ever found battling for home rule, the freedom of the press, the individual liberty of the citizen, and "equal and exact justice to all; special privileges to none." In the bosom of such men Freedom has her home.

The New York World puts the Democratic majority in the Fifty-Second Congress at 150. The Sun estimates the majority at 160. The Associated Press figures it out as follows: Democrats 223, Republicans 91, Farmers' Alliance from Kansas 5. Democratic majority over Republicans, 132. This is enough in all conscience.

When the men in this county who joined in the cry of "war horses to the rear" shall have crumbled into dust, and when even their memories shall have rotted, the humblest Confederate soldier, who ever enlisted from Calhoun, will be walking down the avenues of history arm in arm with immortal Honor.

The bribery in Tom Reed's district was open, notorious and shameless. If the Democrats in the Fifty-Second Congress do not unseat him they will disappoint the country. He who has arbitrarily turned out so many Democrats should be made to take his own medicine.

Since the election is over, it is to be hoped that the cross roads politicians who thoroughly understand finance and have the science of government at their fingers' ends and to whom political economy is as an open book, will give us a rest for the next two years.

It is astonishing how much noise a few little cackling fellows can make. To have heard them blow before the election a stranger would have supposed that Butler was going to carry the whole of the United States and the greater part of Europe.

There were some mighty sick looking chickens in Jacksonville the day after the election. They had come into town to learn just exactly how tremendous Brother Butler's majority was.

HOW THINGS HAVE GONE.

McKinley is beaten.

Indiana has gone Democratic.

Wisconsin has gone Democratic.

Michigan has gone Democratic.

Minnesota has gone Democratic.

Montana has gone Democratic.

New Hampshire has gone Democratic.

Massachusetts has gone Democratic.

Rhode Island has gone Democratic.

Connecticut has gone Democratic.

Pennsylvania has gone Democratic.

The Solid South has gone Democratic.

McKinley, the author of the last tariff bill, has been defeated.

New Mexico has gone Democratic for the first time in thirty years.

Wisconsin, New Hampshire and New York all elect Democratic Legislatures.

Cannon, of Illinois, a bitter enemy of the South and the man who made the obscene speech in the late session of Congress, has been defeated.

Senator Ingalls, of Kansas, one of the bitterest enemies of the South, will be defeated for re-election. The People's party aided by the Democrats in Kansas have literally wiped the earth up with the Republicans.

The free people of the United States rise up as one man to rebuke any party which seeks to manacle the voter. They still regard the Democratic party as the paladium of their liberties. Amid this great groundswell of the free and unfetterable Democracy, the men who left its ranks to follow off such little fellows as Butler, on "forty acres and a mule" issues, must feel small enough to fit loosely in a mustard seed. While the old guards were battling for liberty, they were out of line foraging for rations.

All honor to the noble farmers of Calhoun who refused to be seduced from their allegiance to the Democratic party by glittering promises of government bounty, and who fought side by side with all classes and occupations for the preservation of their freedom and the freedom of their children. Such men will do to tie to.

The negroes of Calhoun county did not appreciate Brother Butler's Seventh plank, wherein he expressed so much solicitude for their welfare. They put Jack Logan on the track and beat him with a negro. It is about time that Butler should crawl into an auger hole and then get some kind friend to plug it up.

In the election before the last the Republicans carried the State of Michigan by 20,000 majority. In the election Tuesday the Democrats carried the State by 10,000 majority and control both branches of the Legislature and make a gain of several Congressmen.

The Congressional election result in this county stands:
Forney, Democrat, first by an overwhelming majority.
Logan, colored, second.
Butler, anything to get votes, third.

Bob Mosely, Dr. Ewing and other Boss Republicans fought nobly to elect Butler over the Democratic nominee, but the negroes drew the line at Butler and the thing didn't work.

The Democrats over came an 80,000 majority in Pennsylvania and elected Pattison, Democrat by 10,000 majority. A change of 90,000 is pretty tough on the Republicans, but they will have to stand it.

Real estate transactions this week in Jacksonville have continued with unabated activity. Several large buyers have been here this week, and these with the local dealers, have kept things exceedingly lively.

The men who have been telling it around that Logan was put out by Democrats can now take a rest. The lie is no longer available for political purposes; the people didn't believe it.

The men who were out shouting last week "old war horses to the rear," have gone home to their wives to help with the washing and take care of the babies.

The fellows who "backed" Butler in this county can now retire to a fence-corner and figure out the amount of their political influence.

The country has spoken in thunder tones against the McKinley tariff bill and the force bill.

Calhoun gave Forney 2,250, Logan 345, Butler 334.

Cleburne gave Forney a majority of between 200 and 300.

The Banner Beat.

Morrisville, Ala., Nov. 5.—The election at Polkville passed off very quietly yesterday. There was not a full vote of the beat, but every ticket read "W. H. Forney for Congress." There has not been a straight out radical vote cast in beat 5 for ten years or more. If there is another beat in Calhoun county that can show a cleaner record I would like to hear from it. BROAD AX.

Election Returns of Calhoun County.

The following is the unofficial vote of the county, as brought in by the returning officers. The official count will be made Saturday:

	Forney	Logan	Butler
Jacksonville	190	50	15
Alexandria	131	3	11
June Bug	46	6	84

A Republican majority of eighty-two thousand in Kansas has been overcome by the Democrats and the Farmers' Alliance and Kansas sends but one Republican to Congress.

REWARDED FOR HIS CONSTANCY.

West Virginia—Four democrats.
Wisconsin—Seven democrats, two republicans.
Wyoming—One republican.
Total, 223 democrats; 91 republicans.
Democratic majority, 132, exclusive of five alliance members.

The Result.

The elections on Tuesday were closely akin to the great Democratic tital wave which swept over this country in 1874, and the result is traceable to nearly the same causes. The reckless radicalism of the Republicans with protection run wild, the tyrannous course of Reed, the strong centralizing tendencies of the leaders of the party, their ominous course on the force bill, the pension extravagance and the flagrant squandering of public funds aroused the people, and again was witnessed the greatest spectacle beheld in the history of nations, a free, liberty-loving people, arising in their majesty and by their ballots hurling an ambitious, all-powerful party from power and emphasizing the boon of that God-given right of free suffrage which is the fundamental principle of our Government.

It was a glorious triumph for freedom, morality and reform, and points a moral which must exercise a lasting influence in the history of our nation.—Chattanooga Times.

DEATH OF MRS. WM. M. NISBET.

This estimable lady died at her home in this place Sunday night after an illness of over a year's duration. She leaves a husband and four children to mourn her loss. She was a member of the Presbyterian church and a most devoted Christian woman. She was the possessor of most gentle and winning manners and was universally loved by old and young alike. The husband and daughters and son have the tenderest sympathy of this community in their great bereavement.

The Great Victory.

Not since the glorious days of 1874 has such a Democratic tidal wave swept over this country as that which on yesterday carried death and destruction to the hopes of the Republican conspirators against the honor, dignity and peace of the United States. The American conscience is in revolt against the men who resort to brutal extremes to carry political ends, and who violate all laws that stand in the way of accomplishment of their fiendish purposes.

When the Fifty-First Congress assembled it contained an undisputed majority of three. By means most foul Democrats were unseated to a sufficient extent to enable the Republican leaders to over-ride those of their own household who were disposed to protest against unlawful and unfair methods, and an era of legislation was inaugurated, the like of which has never before disgraced any body claiming to be in any sense deliberative or representative. The minority was utterly ignored. Its members were not even recognized to make motions. The brutal Speaker refused even to consider their appeals from his own rulings and for the first time in American history the House of Representatives became the creature and plaything of one man, and he governed by the basest and lowest impulses. Thank God, there was still left an appeal to the people, which the Force Bill sought to prevent, but which could not be enacted in time to do its hellish work. That appeal has been answered with a force that will drive the traitors to their dens and there stripped of all power to do further mischief they will be left to the solitude and obscurity that should be the portion of those who would, in order to maintain themselves in power, tear down the fairest fabric of constitutional government ever erected by man.

There is a limit beyond which partisanship will not go, and the magnificent gains made yesterday in hitherto Republican strongholds like Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Massachusetts demonstrate the almighty force and power of truth. The campaign everywhere was conducted upon the line of denunciation of the Force bill, the McKinley tariff robbery, Reed's infamous rulings, the swindling pension bills and the looting of the treasury. The result was even beyond the most sanguine expectations and is fair notice to the man at the White House that he must vacate in '93 for the one who had the courage to blaze the way for his party to follow even if it did involve temporary defeat.—Montgomery Advertiser.

Honest Doctors.

All honest, conscientious physicians who give B. B. B., Botanic Blood Balm a trial, frankly admit its superiority over all other blood medicines.

Dr. W. J. Adair, Rockmart, Ga., writes: "I regard B. B. B. as one of the best blood medicines."

Dr. A. H. Roscoe, Nashville, Tenn., writes: "All reports of B. B. B. are favorable, and its speedy action is wonderful."

Dr. J. W. Rhodes, Crawfordville, Ga., writes: "I confess B B B is the best and quickest medicine for rheumatism I have ever tried."

Dr. S J Farmer, Crawfordville, Ga., writes: I cheerfully recommend B B B as a fine tonic alterative. Its use cured an excrescence of the neck after other remedies effected no perceptible good."

Dr. C H Montgomery, Jacksonville, Ala., writes: "My mother insisted on my getting B B B for her rheumatism, as her case stubbornly resisted the usual remedies. She experienced immediate relief and her improvement has been truly wonderful."

Dr G W Barle, Pickens, S. C., writes: "I recommended B B B to a man who had suffered for years with a malignant ulcer on his leg, that seemed to resist all other treatment. After using four or five bottles the ulcer began to heal and his leg is now sound well."

Horticultural Hints.

If you do set out trees in the autumn be sure to mulch the ground when it freezes.

Early grapes pay best, says an exchange. Yes, early anything pays best, because it has less competition than the late products do.

We prefer the spring for setting all kinds of trees, though there are cases when, because of peculiar conditions fall planting might be preferable.

It would be entertaining to hear the man who thinks an orchard can keep in bearing year after year without fertilizing, explain the theory of his theory.

There is a man in Kalamazoo who is called the "celery king." He buys all the celery. Same old story: The man who gets to be king, who makes the most of the money, is the middleman.

The apple crop in England is a failure Misery loves company, and yet as we have no apples to sell, we can not see why we should feel happy over the thought that England has none to eat.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.

A Good Name.

A Good Name is Certainly Better than Riches in the business world. That is why we never permit customers to leave our store dissatisfied with their purchases.

We aim to get the Good Will of the People, and our largely increaing business shows that we have been successful. Our goods, our prices, and our straight American methods of doing business make it an object for you to

TRADE WITH US.

It's a Unique position we occupy as Leaders. This is forcibly indicated by the scores who interview us daily on styles. As we are asked, our judgment must be valued. If we know—as we do—isn't it most natural we should pattern our stock accordingly? Certainly.

The Dealers who do so much talking about the amount of money they save to the purchasers of clothing are the very ones who who are making it more expensive. For instance you cannot get a whole page advertisement for nothing. Neither can any man or concern afford to sell you goods for LESS than COST and succeed.

Those who advertise goods at one half or one third of their value are still making profits big enough to pay for all the charity they do to their customers.

Ours is a Plain,

Fair dealing house. We sell our Merchandise at a living profit. Our goods are same price to everybody. Each article is marked in Plain Figures.

No Private Cost Mark that you can't Understand. Should you buy of us and not be pleased with your purchase, we refund your money as freely as we receive it. This has been the success of our house, as

We have never refused to give back purchase money, if the article is brought back uninjured. Bear this in mind. In this advertisement we have stated how we do business; in our next we will tell you something else.

Farm For Sale

We will sell on reasonable terms a good farm lying five miles from Jacksonville and four hundred yards from a depot, containing 160 acres of land. About 90 acres under fence and in cultivation. About 40 acres almost perfectly level. Has new six room frame house finished complete. Fine spring near the house and mineral springs adjacent. The farm is well watered and very suitable for a stock farm. Has also a good orchard—large new barns conveniently arranged and a good three room tenant house. Besides being good farming land, the place is supposed to have beds of rich mineral ores. Churches and schools in three-quarters of a mile. Very few farms in the county possess more advantages or better located. Apply to

A Good Name.

A Good Name is Certainly Better than Riches in the business world. That is why we never permit customers to leave our store dissatisfied with their purchases.

We aim to get the Good Will of the People, and our largely increaing business shows that we have been successful. Our goods, our prices, and our straight American methods of doing business make it an object for you to

TRADE WITH US.

It's a Unique position we occupy as Leaders. This is forcibly indicated by the scores who interview us daily on styles. As we are asked, our judgment must be valued. If we know—as we do—isn't it most natural we should pattern our stock accordingly? Certainly.

The Dealers who do so much talking about the amount of money they save to the purchasers of clothing are the very ones who who are making it more expensive. For instance you cannot get a whole page advertisement for nothing. Neither can any man or concern afford to sell you goods for LESS than COST and succeed.

Those who advertise goods at one half or one third of their value are still making profits big enough to pay for all the charity they do to their customers.

Ours is a Plain,

Fair dealing house. We sell our Merchandise at a living profit. Our goods are same price to everybody. Each article is marked in Plain Figures.

No Private Cost Mark that you can't Understand. Should you buy of us and not be pleased with your purchase, we refund your money as freely as we receive it. This has been the success of our house, as

We have never refused to give back purchase money, if the article is brought back uninjured. Bear this in mind. In this advertisement we have stated how we do business; in our next we will tell you something else.

SAM SLIM.

OXFORD, ALA., Nov. 13th, 1890.

I've been walking around under a bran new derby for several days. Now don't begin to conclude I won it on the election, for I didn't, but the election had something to do with it, nevertheless. You see, when I heard the Democratic rooster crowing so lustily, and saw the Republican rooster aflingin' up the McKinley tariff bill, and looking like he was sick unto death, and read of the grand and glorious democratic victory from Maine to Mexico, I failed to throw my old hat up, and when I looked at it, after I got through reading of the Democratic cyclone here, and the Republican snow under there, and the hurricane that swept the independents out of existence everywhere and that the negro beat Butler, member of Oxford Alliance, in Calhoun county, the whole crower was well nigh bursted. Now this ain't a made up story. I've got the old hat at home, where any who doubt my word may see it, and I think I'll keep it, at least till Nov. '92 to warn me to throw up my hat in time, so as to prevent a like explosion and a like necessity of buying a new one.

One Republican said to another, after we had reliable news of a Democratic majority of a hundred or more, "my views?" Well, he replied, "We have a good working majority." "I knew it would be so when we got it straight, replied the other. Well, I guess the Republicans in the next Congress will wiggle rather than work. And if Tom Reed is not unseated, as he should be, I ask the speaker, whoever he may be, to never, no never, recognize the aforesaid Tom Reed, during the whole session.

Some who claim to be Democrats in this beat, did'nt vote for Butler, because they were in the county convention and couldn't consistently vote against the nominee. They didn't vote for Forney because the man they wanted wasn't nominated. Why they didn't vote for Jack Logan, deponent saith not. Such Democracy needs lots of boiling down, and lots of scimming to get the impurities out of it.

The Alliance cotton buyer who wasto be in Oxford last week, and on whose promise to be here and pay Liverpool prices, less freights and insurance, the farmers filled the warehouse to overflowing and camped on every available spot in and around the town from one to three days, failed to put in an appearance. Poor fellow, I don't much blame him, for according to the program he must pay his own railroad fare, hotel bills, and loose his time, and make not a cent by it. He just couldn't afford it. And yet many of the Alliance farmers believed it and brought their cotton and waited for their man, just like they didn't know he would have starved to death before the time if he commenced such foolishness at the first of the season. And just like they didn't know that men who buy cotton have to be paid for it. One might not think that they could be fooled again, but they can, and next season several cotton buyers that lack as much of belonging to the Alliance as a hog does of belonging to the church, will combine on some strategem to get them to bring in lots of cotton at some one time, and they'll buy it at Liverpool prices, less freight, insurance and profits just like they did this time.

THE TIDAL WAVE.

The Democrats Have Over One Hundred Majority—A Gain of Five Senators.

As returns continue to come in, it grows hard to realize what a stupendous victory that was last Tuesday.

There has been no such political revolution in the whole history of the country.

The net result is that the next congress will be composed of only 33 republicans and 235 democrats and democrats and western alliancemen.

The democrats gained governors in New Hampshire, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Wisconsin, Nebraska, South Dakota and Kansas.

They now have all, or a majority of congressmen in Alabama, Arkansas, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia and Wisconsin, or in thirty-one of the forty-two States of the Union.

They have not only carried the south more solidly than usual, but have a majority of congressmen from sixteen northern states, against a republican majority in only eleven.

The democrats have gained senators in New Hampshire, New York, Wisconsin, and Illinois, and an indepent republican in Kansas to succeed Ingalls. This reduces the republican majority in the senate to four. The democrats have only three more to gain to secure control. The republican senators displaced by Tuesday's cyclone are Evarts, Blair, Farwell, Spooner and Ingalls.

The next congress will stand approximately as follows:

Catarrh Can be Cured.

Catarrh can never be cured by ointments and other local applications, but there is one remedy that can permanently remove the cause. It has cured cases where the discharge was so copious and offensive that it felt as if the whole head was a mass of corruption. Other cases indicated by an irresistible desire to hawk and spit the phlegm collecting in a tough mass behind the soft palate. In other cases where the matter dried up in such large lumps as to fairly close up the nostrils and prevent nasal respiration. In other cases where the breath was so offensively revolting and fetid that the person became a disgusting object in society. Other cases wherein complaint was made of a distressful feeling above and between the eyes, and where the sense of smell was entirely lost. Other cases where the droppings fell into the throst and the voice became husky, and caused a troublesome cough. Oh! you want to know the name of the medicine? It is called Dr. John Bull's Sarsaparilla. It can be bought of any druggist.

The bird hunters report that game is abundant. If so it is owing to our game law which prevents the shooting of birds from March to November.—Anniston Hot Blast.

The mendicant pensioner fears that he will have to undergo an experience worse than death. He may have to go to work.

What the Papers Say.

Kansas City Times, (Dem.)

What can the republicans do to win back this enormous disaffection? Can they repudiate Reed, Harrison and McKinley? If so, they must repudiate the whole band of state leaders who followed those men. They must take back so much that it will look like swallowing themselves.

Blaine alone remains a hope. He told what the McKinley bill was, and he put his name to a free trade reciprocity doctrine, which means no practical relief to the country, but may sound well enough to answer his purpose.

It looks like Cleveland and Blaine again. Just now there is no other prominent republican who can gather the demoralized and shattered bands into anything like fighting condition.

Chicago Tribune, (Rep.)

Will they take in the full meaning of the 4th of November? If they do they will when congress reassembles knock out those features of the McKinley bill which have knocked them out and which the people have rejected. If they refuse to do that, but allow the present new and excessive duties on the necessities of life to stay, the congress which follows may represent a people so embittered by an overdose of McKinleyism that it will sweep away protection altogether. It is better to yield a little to save much, and the timely withdrawal of the party from the position so expressly condemned in 1890 may save it and the cause of reasonable protection in 1892.

New York Mail and Express, (Rep.)

A congress that shrank from the fulfillment of no pledge or obligation and that did much in the way of positive legislation necessarily provoked an immense amount of criticism and opposition and furnished the democrats with plenty of matertal for more or less malignant and unjust attacks. It will be found, however, we believe, that wherever the fight has been squarely made by republicans, under inspiring leadership, and on straight republican principles, there the party has gained largely. The campaigns of Speaker Reed and Leader McKinley for re-election have been glorious illustrations of this.

Philadelphia Inquirer, (Rep.)

The results of these elections draw the lines of battle for 1892. The widespread democratic victory forces the democracy into positive advocacy of advanced "tariff reform." If Pennsylvania and the other republican States had maintained their position in the party ranks, the most prominent candidate before the democratic party today would be Governor Hill. But the democracy can have little use for Hill now. Cleveland is thrust to the front by force of circumstances to lead the free trade hosts, and the issue of '92 must of necessity be the same old struggle between free trade and protection. The McKinley bill is absolutely safe during the administration of President Harrison only. Its safety after that will depend entirely upon the result of the battle two years hence.

With Cleveland leading the democratic forces, who will lead the republican side? Does the situation point to Blaine?

Boston Herald. (Ind.)

Henry Cabot Lodge is elected to congress again, but his victory is one that has more of the elements of defeat than of triumph in its attendant conditions. Indeed, the shadow of impending defeat is already upon him in those objects of his ambition for which he has sacrificed what should have been much to a man of his education and early associations. Though he wins the seat in congress again, there is no man in the State who is more pointedly condemned by the sentiment of Massachusetts than is he. No man had so much to do with fixing the issues of the canvass; no man appeared so actively at the front in carrying them out. He took pains to so identify himself with the canvass as to invite public opinion upon himself and his course. He has received it in emphatic terms and in full measure. The moral of it is that it pays in the long, after all, to adhere to principle, and that the temporary triumphs of the politician pale before the satisfaction of knowing that one has at least sincere and statesmanlike aspirations.

New York Tribune, (Rep.)

The solid south was the joker of the democracy, and the Ohio gerrymander and the saloons its knavish right and left bowers; and the republicans were consequently euchred.

Baltimore Sun, (Dem.)

Hon. William E. Russell, the brilliant young democrat who has just been elected governor of Massachusetts by a handsome plurality over his republican opponent, made his campaign almost exclusively on the tariff reform issue. Being interviewed on the result, Mr. Russell said: "The one supreme question was the tariff question, and the result means that Massachusetts stands absolutely opposed to the high tariff policy of the republican party as embodied in the McKinley bill, and demands its revision so as to give free raw material for her industries. The wonderful gains made in the congressional elections mean that Massachusetts repudiates the action of her republican representatives in congress. I think it not only her protest against the republican tariff policy, but against the Lodge force bill and the conduct of the republicans in the house of representatives and her criticism upon the national administration of President Harrison." By the way, it would be well to keep an eye on Russell, for he is a rising man. When but twenty-five years of age he was elected mayor of Cambridge, and acquitted himself with so much credit that two years ago he was made the democratic nominee for governor against Governor Ames. The latter, with a powerful machine at his back, beat his then comparative unknown young rival by 28,000 plurality. The result of the canvass, however, so impressed itself upon the public mind that last year Mr. Russell again made the race, and pulled up within 6,775 votes of Governor Brackett. Tuesday the young democratic leader forged to the front, the people choosing him for Governor Brackett's place. There may be further honors in store for the young democratic governor-elect of Massachusetts.

Philadelphia Times, (Ind.)

There never has been, in our political history, a popular condemnation of a political party so prompt, complete and overwhelming as that which the country has just declared against the party now in power. Every one recalls the tidal-wave of 1874, in the middle of Grant's second term, that foreshadowed the election of Tilden, but that was mild in its force compared with this.

The republican organization has made a direct issue upon the monopoly tariff, imposing burdensome and needless taxes, reckless extravagance and the policy of force. The answer of the country is unmistakable and overwhelming. From New England to the extreme West there is but one report—democratic victory.

Whatever personal issues may have entered into the campaign in Pennsylvania, they could have little to do with the revolution that has converted insolent majority controlled by Speaker Reed into an impotent and pitiful minority. The republicans have a little more than one-half the membership of the present house; in the new house they will have not more than one third, the democratic majority being considerably over a hundred.

Nor is this charge made only in one section, or by gains in what have been generally democratic States. When Massachusetts elects a democratic governor and half a dozen democratic representatives, and New Hampshire and Rhode Island send democrats to congress, and at the same time the democrats carry Minnesota and Nebraska and turn things upside down in Iowa, Michigan and Kansas, there is no use trying to explain the result by "local issues," or by off-year indifference." It has been a hot fight all over the country and the verdict is everywhere the same, the party and its policy is repudiated. The McKinley bill is condemned.

The force bill, with all it represents, is condemned. The administration, with its mixture of feeble incompetence and blundering partisanship, is covered with humiliation. Never was there a rebuke so plain and so decisive.

The lesson is made the more impressive by the defeat of the two leaders who, next to the speaker, have been the most conspicuous champions of the party policy, while the man who has given his name to the most infamous measure of the last session has barely escaped a like fate. The old congress has yet four months to serve, but the old policy cannot now be pursued, as was intended, to the bitter end. Even Reed must recoil from a blow so overwhelming as this and whatever little influence the administration may have had is ended now. The people have turned on the light.

Philadelphia Press, (Rep.)

The loss of several congressmen by the republicans in this State was not expected, but when the people begin to move they are likely to settle all the scores they can. Something certainly must be wrong when we lose four or five districts that were strongly republican.

WAR HORSES TO THE REAR.

A Just Rebuke of the Men Who are Tired of the Old Soldiers in Public Life.

Montgomery Advertiser.

It is hard to realize that the time would ever come to the South, when any man who knows of the struggles and hardships endured by those who served the Confederacy, would talk about relegating war veterans to the rear. It was done here in Alabama up in Gen. Forney's district by disorganizers and men who sought to defeat the Democratic party. A man named Macune, who does not live in Georgia, is directing, from all accounts, the opposition to Gen. Gordon's election to the United States Senate. In that State, it seems, Gordon is to be struck down, if possible, by the cry of down with the veterans. In a recent speech at Millen, referring to this cry, he pathetically said:

"If the people are really tired of soldiers and want a candidate of some other sort you need not be long in finding him, but to all who feel that way let not your hearts be troubled by the presence of old soldiers or generals; they will not be in your way or any other man's way much longer. There is a silent reaper more powerful than political plotters whose scythe is gradually mowing down those brave old veterans and removing them to that everlasting camping ground beyond the 'silent river.' Wait a little while longer and the last hero of the great armies of Lee and Johnston, of Jackson, and of Hood, will be out of your way. They will soon be gone—transferred to another field and before another tribunal, where truth and honor and fidelity to principle will be recognized, and where there will be no barriers against courage and self-sacrificing devotion to the Confederate cause or against the brave old warriors who served and suffered, and who cheerfully offered their blood and lives at the call of conscience and of country."

The Senate.

Birmingham Age-Herald.

The terms of thirteen Republican Senators expire with the 3d of March next: Stanford of California, Platt of Connecticut, Teller of Colorado, Farwell of Illinois, Allison of Iowa, Ingalls of Kansas, Jones of Nevada, Blair of New Hampshire, Evarts of New York, Mitchell of Oregon, Cameron of Pennsylvania, Morrill of Vermont and Spooner of Wisconsin.

Of these Farwell, Evarts and Spooner will likely be succeeded by Democrats. The same is probably true of Blair, and Ingalls' place may be taken by a Senator of the Farmers' Alliance persuasion, which is a term they have for newly converted Democrats out West.

If all five of these Republican Senators are beaten, which now seems probable, their defeat will occasion a change of ten in the complexion of the Senate. Had no new States been admitted this would have given the Democrats a majority of the Upper House. Under existing conditions it would reduce the Republican majority to seven, and by the admission of New Mexico and Wyoming that majority might be brought down to only three.

Other States will elect Senators two years hence, among them Michigan and Minnesota, both of which are very likely to elect Democrats.

It is very probable, therefore, that when a Democratic President takes his seat the 4th of March, 1893, there will be a Congress Democratic in both branches to co-operate with him.

This didn't seem hardly possible two weeks ago, but there has been a political revolution in this land.

Both Ankles Crushed.

In a railroad smash up in 1876, I had both ankles badly crushed. Soon after Blood Poison set in, and both legs, from my knees down, were covered with ulcerated sores, that refused all efforts to heal. I was virtually helpless for ten years, being bedridden most of the time. During all the time I was attended by the best physicians in this section of the State, and must have taken a cart load of medicine, without receiving any relief or being benefitted in any way. In 1887 I was induced to try Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) I commenced to improve from the first dose, and continued to get better, unto-day I am as sound and well as any man in the universe. This was two years, since which I have had no return of sores or any pain in the legs. From my experience I conscientiously believe that Swift's Specific S S S has no equal as a blood purifier, and I cheerfully recommend it to any one suffering from any disease of the blood.

Senator Morgan Tells Why the Democrats Swept the Country.

Montgomery Advertiser.

Senator John T. Morgan, of Selma, reached the city yesterday on a visit to the great Southern Exposition, accompanied by Misses Laura and Zylpha Force, as his guests. They are at the Exchange Hotel where an Advertiser reporter saw him, and had a talk with the Senator about the recent Democratic tidal wave. He is looking splendidly, and talks even more eloquently than usual about the great Democrat uprising. About the causes of it he said:

"The chief thing, of course, was the tariff. The McKinley bill's outrages made the effect of protection clear to the masses of people, whom the Republicans had heretofore hoodwinked. During October they saw most of the necessaries and comforts of life suddenly jump up, and there was no mistaking the cause of the changes, for every merchant told the same story as his excuse for his advances.

"The second cause of the victory is the tremendous anti-pension feeling that has developed during the past two years. The policy of the Harrison Administration in exhausting the treasury to divide out among the old soldiers, sutlers and hangers-on of the army has caused a great reaction in the North. In every community there are numbers of men who perjured themselves to get pensions, and they are object lessons to all their neighbors, who feel that they are being taxed to pay those rascals, and this has aroused a feeling of disgust at the pension outrages and at the Administration which has made them so scandalous. This helped the anti-Republican sentiment greatly.

"The third factor in the result was the force bill. Opinion in the North was long ago pretty well crystalized against that abomination. Thousands of Republicans lost patience with their leaders on account of the tyranical tendencies they developed in every direction, and they joined in the uprising against their party."

"Then you think the force bill will not be disinterred?"

I have no idea that it will. It had many avowed Republican enemies in the Senate before, and it will have more now. Nor will those that urged it before be so energetic now. The wise leaders will take counsel of the election, and let the force bill stay where it is."

"Senator, don't you think this victory is a complete vindication of Mr. Cleveland's anti-tariff message?"

"Undoubtedly. The party is now at last a unit in the great fight against the iniquity of taxing the masses for the benefit of the few, and this result is due to Mr. Cleveland's courage and sagacity. He is the commander-in-chief who planned the campaign. The first onset met with a repulse, but the second is a signal victory. The Democracy is now in line as one man, determined to fight the outrages of protection till the tariff is honestly and justly revised, and the tax revenues cut down to the needs of an economically administered government. Mr. Cleveland did right, and he is stronger as a leader before the country to-day than ever before."

The Senator said that the result of this election was by far the most significant and far-reaching in all his years of observation of politics. He says it shows that the people have yet got the government machine in their grip, and that they intend to run it, despite all the forces that war against their liberties. He counts confidently on the democracy's finishing the redemption of the Senate and securing the Presidency two years from now, as well as on its renewing its majority in the House. Then he says the party can and will redeem its pledges to the people, and entrench itself in as long a lease of public confidence as it had in anti-bellum days.

Card of Thanks.

GRAYTON, Ala., Nov. 8.—At a meeting of the session of Chalybeate Springs Cumberland Presbyterian church of Calhoun County, Ala., on the 1st day of November, 1890, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, 1st. That the sincere and heartfelt thanks of this session of the church are hereby tendered to Messrs. T. F. Howel, of Rome, Ga., for the pulpit bible; to H. A. Smith, of Rome, Ga., for the hymn books, and to M. F. Howel, of Anniston, Ala., for the lamps, so generously donated by them to our church.

Resolved, 2nd. That we also tender our thanks to Mr. and Mrs. William Bell, for their interest in our church, and for their zeal in promoting its welfare.

LETTER FROM MONTGOMERY.

MONTGOMERY, Nov. 12, 1890.

DEAR REPUBLICAN:

The Legislature met yesterday and both houses had temporary organization. In the Senate caucus there was no contests of consequence over the offices of the Senate. In the House the contest for the Speakership was very spirited. This morning the Senate was permanently organized by the election of Hon. A. C. Hargrove, of Tuscaloosa, president; W. L. Clay, secretary; Thos. H. Clark, assistant secretary; Jas. Armstrong, doorkeeper; Miss Jean Weakly, of Florence, enrolling and engrossing clerk. Most of these held the same positions in the Senate at the last session.

In the House Hon. N. N. Clements, of Tuscaloosa, was elected Speaker. In the caucus Clements received 48 votes, Hon. Frank Pettus received 35 votes and Hon. H. H. Brown received 9 votes. Mr. Elmore, the old clerk of the House, was re-elected. Robt. Hasson, the one-legged Confederate, was re-elected doorkeeper. Most of the minor positions were filled by men who had served before.

This morning both houses went regularly to work and it is now in progress as I write. The absorbing topic of conversation is the U. S. Senatorship. It is impossible at this time to forecast the result. The election will not come off before next Tuesday week and the caucus will not be held until near that time.

Senator Milner has introduced a bill for redistricting and reapportioning representation in the State and the matter will be referred to a special committee.

I went out to the Fair yesterday with Mr. Willett, of Anniston, and Representative Cooper and heard a speech from Mr. Livingston, the recently elected Congressman from Georgia. It was a good speech. At night there was a big democratic rally and an abundance of fire works and much enthusiasm. Among the speakers was Mr. Russell, another member elect from Georgia to Congress. Both these gentlemen are very prominent alliancemen and both impress on their audiences the great necessity for democratic harmony and unity. Both acknowledge that relief to the people of this country must come through the democratic party. Both contend that alliance principles, when well understood, are democratic principles. The city is full of people and it is hard to get even a place to sleep in. Some men sit up in the hotel lobbies at night. Several gentlemen from Calhoun are here, both from Anniston and the country.

Tomorrow is Confederate Veterans day at the Fair and there will be a great gathering of these old heroes there on that day.

Will write each week, if I can find time and keep your readers posted on pending legislation.

A 54,000 SPINDLE COTTON MILL IN TREDEGAR.

The Water Supply Is Inexhaustible.

Mr. H. W. Fairbanks, of Boston, Mass., who, it is probable, will be the manager of the great Tredegar Cotton Mill, was in the city this week examining into the question of a water supply for the plant. As a 54,000 spindle mill will use something like 1,500,000 gallons of water per day, this is important matter to the proposing investors. Mr. Fairbanks left on Thursday for home entirely satisfied that there is no limit to the supply of water available for manufacturing purposes at Tredegar.

Chattanooga Times.

The McKinley tariff bill was built on the plan the old farmer adopted to find out how high a fence his breachy horse could and would jump. To ascertain the steed's leaping capacity his master put a medium fence round the pasture and increased its height every morning by putting on a single rail. McKinley's tariff science (?) consists in an attempt to shut out foreign competition, wholly regardless of the fairness of such competition. This policy is mere favoritism to special interests at the expense of the great mass of the people. We favor the protection that will give American producers an equal chance at the home market with all other producers, no sops or subsidies, no favors, a clear field. We also favor a fiscal system that will give our manufacturers opportunity to compete for the markets of South America, Mexico, Canada—all the Western world. We will never consent to raising a duty solely to shut out the foreign made article. Such duties are simple plunder of our own people. Raising the rate from time to time as we find that the old rate can be scaled by foreign producers, is merely voting a subsidy from the pockets of our own people into the coffers of favored manufactures, robbing of the many for the enrichment of the few.

Two Irish Patriots.

Montgomery Advertiser.

Some of the English newspapers are disposed to vindicate the flight from that country of Dillon and O'Brien, the Irish patriots. English humor is a very solemn thing to Americans. There is a laugh in it somewhere; but we have never been able to discover it.

The reception tendered to the famous advocates of home rule is a rebuke to these English editors. They have received ovations wherever they have been showered upon them: they have gained grace for themselves and help for the great cause they represent.

Dillon and O'Brien are the representatives of a cause which has always received the sympathy of Americans. They are not here as refugees from justice, as the English editors would have us believe. They are here for their country's sake.

Their ringing appeals to Irishmen in America, and to Americans generally, will not pass unanswered. Great good will be accomplished by their visit; and when it is accomplished they will return with renewed strength to fight the battles of freedom and reform.

They are great men, enlisted in a great cause.

Alabama's Advancement.

The Senate and House of Representatives organized permanently Wednesday. The Governor's annual message was transmitted to the General Assembly. It is an able and comprehensive State paper. It refers with pride to the present prosperous condition of the State, reviewing the condition of public affairs in a clear and statesmanlike manner. The finances are represented to be in an excellent condition, with a balance in the treasury of over $200,000. The property value has increased from $173,808,097 in 1886, to $258,970,575 in 1890, and the tax rate has been reduced in that time from 6 to 4 mills. Increased and additional appropriations are recommended for the support of deaf mutes, indigent and insane, public schools, maimed and disabled survivors of the late war, and the State troops. The public institutions of the State are reported to be under excellent management and in a flourishing condition. An increase of official salaries is strongly recommended, and the creation of a commission on penal servitude to examine and report at the next session is suggested. The message makes an excellent showing for Alabama's advancement and progress.

The Board of Managers of the Adams Express Company Wednesday held their first meeting since the passage of the United States Anti-Lottery act. Marshals at the Polls.

Montgomery Advertiser, 5th.

There were scenes in this city yesterday which should arouse the indignation and disgust of every true white man in Alabama. The United States marshal himself at the polls threatening to remove and replace managers appointed and selected as the State law provides, in forsooth, he thought there was unnecessary delay in allowing the colored troops to cast their ballots. That was the spectacle presented to freemen at the polls in this city yesterday, the United States marshal himself endeavoring to override the law. Just such conduct as this unites and holds together the white people of Alabama, and so long as they continue there can be no division. The marshal so far forgot himself as to imagine that he could imitate Mr. Reed, and make a little law to suit the case, but he found that there were other people who knew their rights, and who had the courage and the manhood to maintain them.

GIVE THANKS.

Governor Seay Issues a Proclamation for Thanksgiving Day.

STATE OF ALABAMA, }
BY THE GOVERNOR. }

For the blessings of health, peace and prosperity accorded to the people of Alabama the past year, and for the progress made in all that contributes to our moral and material welfare, it is fitting that we should reverently return our thanks to Almighty God.

Now, therefore, in conformity to custom, and in accordance with the wishes of a devout people, I, Thomas Seay, do hereby appoint Thursday, the 27th day of the present month of November, to be observed as a day of public thanksgiving and praise; and recommend that on that day the people of this State abstain from all pursuit of their usual vocations, and, meeting in their accustomed places of worship, return thanks for the innumerable blessings bestowed on them by the Supreme Ruler, and that they remember by kindly deeds the poor and afflicted amongst them.

Done at the capitol in the city of Montgomery, this, the 10th day of November, in the year of our Lord, eighteen hundred and ninety, and of the independence of the United States, the 115th.

THE WOMAN IN JAIL.

Mrs. McKee Denies Complicity in the Crime Alleged Against Her.

ROME, GA., November 10.—Mrs. Ora McKee spent her first night behind the bars last night, and this morning looked as if refreshing sleep had come to her.

She did not talk very much, but in response to questions concerning the recent tragedy, she spoke without hesitation.

"I am innocent of the charge they have made against me. I did not do it. The reason I left home was because everybody was excited. I did not hide myself while in Florida. I could easily have escaped if I had wanted to. I wanted to come back to Rome, and I wrote to my brother, asking him to accompany me. I did not want to travel alone, for they might have arrested me on the way and treated me roughly. I came back willingly. This is all I have to say for the present."

This is about the sum and substance of the interview. She was bright and cheerful, and was neatly attired in a very pretty pink dress.

There is a bill of indictment against her, and the case stands for trial at the adjourned term of the superior court on the fourth Monday of this month. What the developments or result will be is not known. There is some difference of opinion.

EX-GOVERNOR O'NEAL

Passed Away Yesterday Morning—Universal Regret at Florence.

FLORENCE, ALA., NOV. 7.—Ex-Governor A. E. O'Neal died at 7:20 this morning at his home in this place, surrounded by all the members of his family. Some months ago he was attacked with severe illness while on a visit to his daughter, Mrs. Williams, in St. Louis. He recovered sufficiently to return to his home, but was never strong afterwards. Some weeks ago he was stricken with paralysis, and since then he alternated between life and death. There is universal sorrow here over his death, for he was greatly beloved by all who knew him.

Some day between the 15th and 25th of this month the Brazilian squadron, consisting of the armored cruiser Aquidaban and the cruiser Guanabara, under command of Rear Admiral Balthazar Da Silviera, is expected to arrive at New York. The squadron comes to this country for the special purpose of delivering to the president the medal and letter of thanks from the Brazilian government for the prompt recognition by him of the new republic.

A Washington dispatch to the New York Sun says: "The most interesting piece of gossip, which is being discussed, points to Dan Lockwood, the newly chosen member from Buffalo, N. Y., as the next Speaker. It is urged in behalf of this new candidate—if such he may be called when the idea has perhaps not yet occurred even to himself—that it will not be advisable for the Democrats in the next House to choose an ex-Confederate for their Speaker. Besides, the South, in the person of Mr. Carlisle, has had the office for the three last Congresses, and it is time that some other section should have the honor. That section, it is urged, should be the North, and of all the Democratic States in the North New York is the one which it is the most desirable to save in 1892. To make a New York man Speaker of the House would contribute largely to this end."

A LIFE SENTENCE.

Ranse and Julius Suitts Convicted of Rape and Sentenced to a Life Time in the Penitentiary.

At the November term of the circuit court of this county Ranse and Julius Suitts, two white boys, aged 16 and 18 years, respectively, living near Monahan's coaling were tried and convicted of the crime of rape and their punishment was fixed at imprisonment in the penitentiary for their lives.

There was unusual interest manifested in the trial and the court house was thronged with anxious faces during the whole of the long and tiresome trial awaiting the uncertain destiny of the ill-fated defendants who were the principal actors in the awful crime.

THE CRIME.

It appears that the defendants, who are two quite prepossessing boys, were living with their parents near Monahan's coaling, about 8 miles from Jacksonville, and working in the coaling. The boys have the reputation of being rather wild, but nothing was ever charged against them of a very serious character.

Situated on the E. T. V. & G. railroad, and in about 3 miles of the Suitts house was the home of a very humble and indigent widow, Mrs. Mollie Dambman, and her three or four little children. The mother is very simple of mind and it seems, of doubtful character. The oldest child, Emma, is a very bright little girl 12 years of age. The Suitts boys were in the habit of passing by this house on their route to the coaling commissary where they procured their food, clothing, &c.

On the 1st of November, 1889, the two brothers passed down the railroad track and, as the little girl Emma alleges, came off the track and entered her home where she, together with her little brother and sister, were seated by the fire; and at which time the mother was absent. The brothers having entered the house ostensibly for the purpose of getting a drink of water, but when they saw the little girl there unprotected seized the opportunity and accomplished their fiendish purpose.

Having committed so heineous a crime they quickly made their way to the commissary and then went home.

A few days after that the boys, in company with their father, were met by a Mr. Smith who told the father that his sons were charged with outraging little Emma Dambman. In two or three days from this the boys and their father were missing. They walked from their home to Rome, Ga., there taking the train for some other part of the State where they spent some time working for an uncle. Having worked some time for their uncle they became uneasy and removed to a coaling near the town of Cave Spring where they were, through the unflagging efforts of the very efficient Deputy Sheriff of Calhoun county, Mr. Jno. T. Rowland, finally captured and landed in the county jail at this place to await their trial which ended on Thursday last.

On their trial they had procured the services of Col. Jno. H. Caldwell, who ably defended the poor unfortunates.

The State was represented by Solicitor J. T. Martin, J. H. Savage and County Solicitor H. L. Stevenson.

In order to keep up with the procession the REPUBLICAN will soon order a new outfit and a complete new job office, having all the appliances for first class work in every department of job printing. New job presses will be bought and the latest and best of every other kind of material will be placed in the office.

GRAND JURY REPORT.

To the Hon. L. F. Box, Judge of the 7th Judicial Circuit.

We, the Grand Jury, sworn and empannelled at the fall term, 1890, of the circuit court for Calhoun county would respectfully submit the following report:

We have dilligently inquired into and true presentment made of all offences, which have come to our knowledge by which we believe the public good would be subserved by a prosecution.

We would further state to your Honor, that this grand jury have cause, by the rapid increase of crime in the violation of the prohibition law of our county, and the low estimate placed upon their oaths, of quite a number of witnesses that have been before this body be disallowed, and we would earnestly ask those who have authority to take steps to stop the whisky trafic, that we have reason to believe, is now, and has been going on in every beat in our county under cover of wagons, blind tigers of various descriptions and "slid jugs," We would further state that those witnesses for whom attachments were issued have not been before us, and the cause why has not been explained to this body.

Justices of the peace have been generally prompt in exhibiting a transcript of their dockets to us.

We have carefully examined the offices and books of the probate judge, circuit clerk, sheriff and treasurer, and find the books accurately, legibly and neatly kept, with the offices well furnished with the necessary furniture, etc., for the protection of the books and papers.

We have also examined the books and papers of the county superintendent of education, and state that we find said books ably and neatly kept, and proper vouchers for all moneys paid out. School fund remains in the State treasury, and is only drawn on quarterly contracts.

We find that there are a few teachers who have not called for their prorate, which amounts are subject to their order.

We can safely say that we have every cause to believe that with the co-operation of our citizens, that ere long we will have a system of public schools that we will have cause to be proud of.

We have examined all the bonds of the county officers and find them all good as the law directs, except that of (John P. Weaver,) which has but one living surety.

We have visited and examined the county poor house and find the same neatly and well kept, showing the keeper to be fully alive to his duties, and in sympathy with the unfortunate ones placed in his care. Food, clothing and bedding was all we could ask.

We have examined the county jail and report that in our judgement, one of the cells is very insecure and badly ventilated. We also find that there is a want of clothing and bedding for some of the prisoners.

With thanks to your honor for courtesies, to our able solicitor for kindly attention and help, and last to our bailiff for close attention to our wants, and after having done what seems to us, to be our duty, we respectfully ask to be discharged.

J. C. Watson, foreman; Wm. C. Scarbrough, Jno. A. Cobb, J. T. Vincent, F. W. Foster, T. S. Gray, B. D. Plexico, R. C. Johnston, E. T. Clark, J. L. Whisenant, W. T. Wells, J. Nick Suggs, O. M. Davenport, Henry E. Canady, T. J. Palmer, N. J. Stevens, L. A. Hanks, Wm. Alexander, Sr.

The Alliance Vote.

The good, honest farmers of Calhoun are Democratic to the core, notwithstanding the wily Butler expected to catch them by signing at the bottom of his platform "W. O. Butler," member of the Oxford alliance. He has learned to his sorrow that they are true blues and are not to be led off by every designing man who would like to get into office.

Mr. M. N. Coker, one of our county commissioners and a prominent member of the farmers' alliance, was in the city yesterday and stated that beats five and eighteen have the largest alliance membership of any beats in the county and yet they did not cast a single vote for Butler. Mr. Jake DeArman also informs us that only nine alliance votes were cast for him at DeArmanville. It would seem from this that the alliance as a body are not responsible for the exceedingly small vote he polled in the county. The members that voted, voted almost solidly for Forney.—Anniston Hot Blast.

A REPUBLICAN OUTRAGE.

Make the Cause of These Democratic Workingmen Your Own. Remember the Russels.

Massillon, O., November 8.---The city of Massillon is ablaze with indignation on the part of the workingmen of both parties against the tyrannical action of a leading manufacturing firm, Russell & Co., in reducing the wages of every Democrat who voted for Warwick to the extent of 33 per cent.

It is denounced by every one as a most despicable effort at revenge for McKinley's defeat.

The firm of Russell & Co., are the largest manufacturers of agricultural machinery, steam engines and similar articles in this section, their immense business being conducted mostly in the south and west. They employ about 700 hands in the busy season, more than 400 being employed the year round.

During the campaign the Russells, who are staunch Republicans, interested themselves deeply in the election of Mr. McKinley, although no coercive measures were used upon the men save one, and that only by highly significant intimation. On Monday the price lists of the piece workmen were taken up, the Democrats in the shops saying that discrimination was made between themselves and the Republicans, whose cards were not bothered. These price lists are slips on which are scheduled the prices to be paid for piece work. Yesterday a large number of Democrats received their cards with the prices revised, a cut of 33 per cent. being made on every article. Other workmen, who were paid by the hour, were also notified of this enormous reduction. One of these, Edward Sheehan, a machinist, at once tendered his resignation, and it was promptly accepted. He was notified of the cut by Foreman Garrigues, who at the time told him that it was not on account of his conduct or his workmanship, assuring him that his work had been fully up to the standard. He gave the order because he had been instructed to do so by Mr. C. H. Russell. Mr. Sheehan demanded to know if it was done because he was a democrat, but received no answer whatever. Three or four others who received the revised cards also left the shops for the day. This intelligence was quickly disseminated throughout the city. Upon hearing it Lieutenant Governor Warwick, the newly-elected democratic successor to Congressman McKinley, could scarcely bring himself to believe it. Investigating the story he found it to be only too true. He immediately said: "What an outrage, what a shame! It is terrible, terrible! I am shocked and surprised, indeed, by this infamous act. Driven from work because they voted for me."

At once he began to make preparations to relieve the men who had been so outrageously treated. A telegram was sent to Hon. Michael D. Harter, of the fifteenth district, who has large shops at Mansfield, asking him if he could not make room for those who had practically been evicted, Mr. Isaac Harter personally interesting himself in the matter. Shortly after 1 o'clock Mr. C. H. Russell was accosted by Otto E. Young, the Democratic candidate for probate judge, and a leading lawyer of Massillon.

Mr. Young asked the manufacturer if it was true that the reduction had been made, and received the hearty response: "Hereafter in our shops free traders will receive free traders' wages."

Later when asked about the reduction by a reporter, Mr. Russell replied:

"I will have to refer you to those workmen, sir."

"But the statement is quite serious. Is the allegation true?"

"I have nothing to say. See the men," was the reply, as the manufacturer strode hastily across the street.

Later in the evening Mr. Warwick received enough information to justify him, beyond all doubt, that the reduction had been made solely on the ground above stated. As the reduction of 33 per cent. cannot be withstood by the workmen, they will probably have to leave the shops and seek work elsewhere.

The oldest citizens of Massillon feel more indignantly toward Russell & Co., because of the fact that when their plant was founded here many years ago, it was sustained through several financial difficulties by leading men, irrespective of party.

It is likely that an indignation meeting will be held unless the reduction is done away with.

The Lame Walk.

Pitiful indeed is the condition of those who are confined to their beds or chairs unable to walk. How grateful all such must feel when they recover from their helplessness. B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm) has made more than one lame person happy.

Mrs. Emma Griffiths Unitia, Tenn., writes: "My little boy had scrofula so bad his knees were drawn up and his knees stiff, and he could not walk. He derived no benefit from medicines until I tried B. B. B. After using it a short time only, he can walk and has no pain. I shall continue its use."

Mirtle M. Tanner, Boonville, Ind., writes: "I had blood poison from birth. Knots on my limbs were as large as hen's eggs. Doctors said I would be a cripple, but B. B. B. has cured me sound and well. I shall ever praise the day the men who invented Blood Balm were born."

JOHN G. WARWICK.

The Man Who Wears McKinley's Scalp at His Belt.

John G. Warwick, of Massillon, O., Major McKinley's Congressional opponent, is neither a "judge" nor a "farmer," as the newspapers have erroneously called him during the campaign just closed. Mr. Warwick is a plain business man. His political experience has been short. He was nominated for Lieutenant Governor on the Democratic ticket with Gov. Hoadley in 1883 and was elected. Two years later he was nominated together with Gov. Hoadley, and the entire Democratic State ticket was defeated. This comprises his entire political life until the recent campaign.

Mr. Warwick was born in Ireland about 55 years ago, and came to America while quite young. His parents settled near Massillon, and there he has since resided. He is essentially a self-made man. After acquiring a fair education he entered business for himself and for many years past has owned and operated one of the largest milling establishments in northern Ohio. He is also interested in several coal mines near Massillon and does quite an extensive business. While in fair financial circumstances he is not by any means a rich man, and his property over and above outstanding liabilities would probably fall within $100,000.

Mr. Warwick has always been very popular at home. Massillon is a little town of 8,000 people, and he has long been one of the most solid business men of the place. He is a fair conversationalist and an agreeable, affable gentleman; but he never made a political speech in his life and has never taken the stump in his own interest. In his business he has the reputation of being shrewd but strictly honest and straightforward.

He has always applied business principles to politics, and his campaigns have been well conducted. In the present instance he had the advantage of perhaps 1,500 votes, but to counterbalance this he was pitted against the strongest man in the Republican party and one who had unlimited financial backing. The Republicans brought into the District Blaine, Reed, Burrows, Foraker, and others of the best orators in the party, while the single speech of Gov. Hill represents the outside help of the Democrats. But an aggressive, red hot campaign was waged unceasingly and the best talent was on the stump at every crossroads hamlet from the day the campaign opened until the evening before the election.

Mr. Warwick has always been prominently identified with charitable enterprises. One act in this direction is worthy of mention. About ten years ago the miners of the upper Tuscara region struck against a reduction of wages. The wages in the Warwick mines were not reduced and there was no strike there. The neighboring miners who went out were in poor shape to endure a lockout, and their families were soon in need of the necessaries of life. When they were almost starved into submission and about determined to go back, they were surprised to receive two car-loads of flour from some unknown friend and sympathizer. The result can easily be imagined. The mine owners were indignant and when they traced the flour to the door of John G. Warwick, himself a mine owner, their wrath knew no bounds. They lost no time in visiting him to administer a scathing lecture for what they termed his unwarranted interference in behalf of the strikers and against his brother mine operators. But this aroused Mr. Warwick's Celtic ire and he very emphatically told his visitors that he proposed to stand by the striking miners and their starving families until the just demands of the men were complied with. And he meant it, too, for another shipment of flour was sent down the line and the operators struck their colors and restored the former wages.

TRADE WITH US.

It's a Unique position we occupy as Leaders. This is forcibly indicated by the scores who interview us daily on styles. As we are asked, our judgment must be valued. If we know—as we do—isn't it most natural we should pattern our stock accordingly? Certainly.

The Dealers who do so much talking about the amount of money they save to the purchasers of clothing are the very ones who who are making it more expensive. For instance you cannot get a whole page advertisement for nothing. Neither can any man or concern afford to sell you goods for LESS than COST and succeed.

Those who advertise goods at one half or one third of their value are still making profits big enough to pay for all the charity they do to their customers.

Ours is a Plain,

Fair dealing house. We sell our Merchandise at a living profit. Our goods are same price to everybody. Each article marked in Plain Figures.

No Private Cost Mark that you can't Understand. Should you buy of us and not be pleased with your purchase, we refund your money as freely as we receive it. This has been the success of our house, as

We have never refused to give back purchase money, if the article is brought back uninjured. Bear this in mind. In this advertisement we have stated how we do business; in our next we will tell you something else.

ALABAMA STILL IN THE LEAD.

A Baltimore Estimate of Southern Progress.

Manufacturers' Record.

The Manufacturers' Record is able to give herewith what may be properly be termed a representative Baltimore view of the development in the Southern Appalachian region. This was the subject of an interview had with a gentleman prominent in business and financial circles of Baltimore, just returned from a round trip of the South, taken for the purpose of making a personal examination of the growth and advancement reported from week to week in the Manufacturers' Record. The estimate placed upon the Southern movement by a man trained to strict, careful and conservative methods after a tour which included the principal points between Shenandoah Junction and Birmingham will be received with unusual interest and, in this case, gratification. The verdict is: "It is a sound movement, resting on a solid basis. It is not going too fast, so far as industrial development is concerned; on the contrary, it seems to me to be hardly yet begun. My conclusion is that high-water mark will be reached only when the resources are fully utilized, and that time is not far off. What has already been done seems but preliminary to the great development which is coming. I was surprised at the evidences of a many-sided prosperity which I witnessed on my journey down on one side of the mountains and back on the other. Industries and agriculture flourish side by side. Everywhere I found good times and busy people.

My trip began with the Roanoke excursion, which left Baltimore October 16. Accompanied by a friend, I proceeded thence to Knoxville, which we found a beautiful and busy place. It is substantially built, has a fine territory and a good trade, and is enjoying a healthful growth. It came within my knowledge that the stock of one real estate company there was worth four for one.

We then went to Middlesborough, our trip giving us a chance to look at some of the most beautiful scenery I ever saw. I was especially struck with the picturesque appearance of some of the natives who stood around the railway stations, their wide-brimmed white hats, top boots and unkempt locks suggesting mountain civilization of Italy or Spain. Sharply in contrast with the sleepy world of these curious mountaineers is the busy and modern town of Middlesborough. Returning to Knoxville we proceeded by way of Chattanooga to Birmingham, which we found to be a very busy city, boasting of 28 furnaces. We spent a day or two at a charming hotel in the beautiful little city of Anniston, and saw the outside of most of the industries, though we did not go through them.

IMPRESSIONS OF TREDEGAR.

From Anniston we went to Tredegar, which is still known in postoffice guides and on railroad time-tables as Jacksonville, Ala., with which we were more pleased than any other point visited during our trip. I have never seen a place, outside of Baltimore, I would prefer to Tredegar as a place of residence. The climate is so delightful that we hated to go to bed and sleep away any of the time allotted to our stay there. I learned that the weather was not at any time very cold, and that the temperature was never above 90 in midsummer. Nature has made a site for a city at Tredegar. The lay of the place is perfect, requiring little or no grading for streets, and affording perfect drainage. A half dozen big springs give a water supply adequate to the needs of a city. It is a town of about 3,000 inhabitants now, but the industries building will, of course, increase the population, and new people are coming in anticipation of this growth. The old part of the town is ideally Southern in its fine, comfortable homes and broad streets."

"What is the base of Tredegar's growth?"

"I am not a mineral expert, but I saw every evidence of wonderful resources in and around Tredegar. We were shown openings at the base, in the center and on top of a mountain which seems almost solid manganese. On top of the mountain there is a head of manganese ten or twelve feet square. We also saw immense deposits of bauxite, a very valuable material for lining furnaces, which has heretofore been obtainable only in foreign countries. It looked to me as if there was a sufficient quantity of bauxite in the Tredegar deposit to line all the furnaces in America for an indefinite period."

Is there an abundant supply of iron ore at Tredegar?"

"We had time to examine only the brown hematite openings, though there are beds of red hematites, reported to be inexhaustible, near to Tredegar and owned by the company. We visited one fine show of brown ore near to the city and the next day drove out to the Butler-Green deposit, six miles distant. A gravity railroad is practicable for getting this ore to the furnace at Tredegar. We walked over ore for three hours. There seemed no end to it. In this property there is a vein of ore from 120 to 160 feet wide, running for several miles. Experts report that in this property alone there is enough high grade ore to run many furnaces for generations to come, though this is only one of the iron properties owned by Tredegar people. An evidence of the future prospects of Tredegar is the great need for houses, which are not being built fast enough to accommodate the inflow of population. The basis upon which the Tredegar people are building seems ample for a large place. They have everything necessary for making a city—climate, topography, abundance of minerals of fine quality and endless variety near at hand, cheap lumber, marble, stone of various kinds, clay, &c. Among our many pleasant experiences there was the comfortable fare at the Tredegar Inn. Our meals were the best we had during our whole trip.

THE RETURN TRIP.

After two days at Tredegar we went to Atlanta, which reminds me very much of a Northern city; thence to Savannah.

Our Southern trip ended at Richmond, which shows sympathy with the general Southern movement by steady growth and increasing activity. We returned to Baltimore firm in our faith that the South is entering upon an era of well-rounded development which will eclipse anything ever seen in this country, because no other section combines so many advantages. The South has climate, soil, minerals, timber and a homogenous Anglo-Saxon population. It is now getting a fair share of outside capital which, of course, adds momentum to the general upbuilding. Rapid as is the growth, it is healthy and has solid basis, and is really as yet only in its beginning, from the Potomac to Tredegar."

Victory Without New York.

If the election in 1891, in the close States, maintain anything like the relations of parties indicated by the elections of the November 1890, New York will not be necessary to a sweeping Democratic victory in 1892. All indications point to these relations being made rather more than less favorable to Democracy. We believe it will be shown next November that, with Cleveland as the leader, we would carry Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Wisconsin, Iowa, Connecticut, Kansas, Montana, South Dakota, Indiana, Illinois, and have a fighting chance in Ohio. With this prospect ahead the little New York clique, who want Hill because he can carry that State, and give no other reason for his nomination, will find their last prop knocked out. We shall see what we shall see; but the present outlook is that the rotten ring of Tammany Hall will not be in position to do much dictating at the next convention.—Chatt. Times.

Graves in the Crimea.

Some interesting results were obtained from the archæological explorations carried on in the Crimea during lass summer. Professor Vefselovski found painted human bones in two graves—six skeletons in one grave and one in another. The well known archæologist, Professor Grempler, of Breslau, who was present last year at the congress of archæologists at Moscow, is of opinion that these graves belonged to the original inhabitants of the Crimea, the Cimmerians of Herodotus. It was a usage with them to lay their dead on elevated spots so that the birds might consume the fleth. When quite bleached they painted the skeletons with some mineral pigment. Graves containing such painted skeletons have been found in Central Asia, but only in a few instances. Only three such graves had been previously found in the Crimea. Professor Grempler proposes to take the skeletons with him to Paris, and exhibit them at the congress of anthropologists to be held there during the autumn.

THE REAL TROUBLE AT ANNISTON.

Manufacturers' Record.

The Woodstock Iron Co.'s coke furnaces have suspended operations. They were banked for a year, and no one knows how much longer. The present state of the iron market will not justify the company in running them, and as the matter now stands coke iron will have to command a large price before they will again be put into operation. During the close down the new engine will be put in and the furnace given the needed repairs.

Commenting on the above item, which was first published in the Anniston Hot Blast, the Roanoke (Va.) Times says that for 18 months past some papers "have given the public glowing accounts of what those two furnaces were going to do. When completed, vast stores of high grade iron ores close at hand, first-class coke, and hardly a chance for anybody else when they got going." And then the Times adds that it has information that "there is a very serious question as to the supply of ores" with these furnaces.

In justice to the splendid iron resources of Calhoun county, in which Anniston is located, as well as to all Alabama, the facts in this case ought to be made public. That one of the Woodstock coke furnaces has suspended operations is true. We believe that the other never went into operation. The truth of the whole matter is this: The two charcoal furnaces at Anniston—one built about 1873 and the other in 1879—have made enormous profits. In 1886 the Woodstock Company decided to build two coke furnaces of 150 tons daily capacity each. The late Samuel Noble, the general manager, had proved a consumate genius in the development of Anniston and in the management of the two charcoal furnaces, but at the critical time in the history of his company he made a serious blunder that has proved very disastrous. For the sake of local pride he decided that these two great furnaces should be built exclusively at home, and he gave contracts for five 900 horse-power engines, boilers and other machinery to a local machine shop that was entirely without adequate facilities to handle such gigantic work. Other contracts equally as unwise were made. The result was that these two furnaces which ought to have been completed within twelve or fifteen months were under construction for over three years, and we believe cost fully $100,000 or $150,000 more than the original estimate. The greatest cost, however, was in these three years of delay, and then when finished to find that they needed to be rebuilt. One was put in blast and ran a few months very unsatisfactorily, and the other, we believe, was never even blown in. It was found, however, that it was worse than folly to run them as they stood even if they could have had the ore dumped from the mine directly into the stack, and so it became necessary to take out the engine equipment and put in new engines, the contract having been awarded, we understand, to a Milwaukee company.

It is not a question of ore. Calhoun county is one of the richest mineral districts of the entire South. The writer could guarantee to show enough high-grade ore, running from 50 to 55 and 58 per cent. metalic iron, within a radius of 10 to 20 miles of Anniston, to run every furnace in Alabama for years to come. Ten miles from Anniston, surrounding the town of Tredegar, is one of the richest iron ore districts in America, and ore can be mined at a minimum cost within half a mile of the town. Anniston controls immense ore resources as well as an abundance of fine coking coal, but even these superior advantages will not enable furnaces built as the two coke furnaces at Anniston were to run profitably. The Manufacturers' Record feels sure that when reconstructed and again put into blast these furnaces will make money even when iron is much lower than it now is, should it ever reach such a point.

On to the Open Polar.

A new expedition to the North Pole for which the Norwegian National Assembly voted two hundred thousand kroner, will sail from Norway in February, 1892, under the direction of M. Nansen. A specially constructed boat is being built for the undertaking, and fuel and provisions to last five years will be necessary for the voyage. The discovery of certain relics of the Jeanette, and the identification of certain weapons found on the coast of Greenland with those found by the Eskimo in the vicinity of Behring Straits at Port Clarence, Norton Sound and the mouth of th Yukon River, lead to the supposition that there is a route, comparatively short and direct, across the Arctic Ocean by way of the North Pole. This route M. Nansen and the ten or twelve men who will accompany him on the perilous journey propose to discover.

WAR OF THE DISHES.

Lively Scrimmage at the Read House Between Cooks and Waiters.

Chattanooga Times.

Dishes to right of them, dishes to left of them volleyed and thundered Sunday at noon in the kitchen of the Read House, and the atmosphere was dark with the delicacies of the season.

The waiters and the cooks were at war, and the only flag unfurled above the battle ground was the white of the china queensware. Deep were the mutterings of the warriors engaged, and three policemen were necessary to quiet the riot rampant.

The riot was precipitated by one of the waiters assisting himself in filling an order. It appears that the rule is that the waiters apply to the cooks for the several dishes. When the waiter Sunday took exception to this rule, one of the cooks excepted to his action, and it took but a few moments of discussion between the two to break the Sabbath and all else with which they came in contact, heads not excepted. Soon the fight became general, and into the fight rushed waiters and cooks, dressed in their best Sunday clothes. For a while it was very interesting. Beef a la mode, vanilla ice, ham, chicken with sage dressing, corn bread and buttermilk, cocoanut custard, soups and smaller side dishes were flying through the air, while above the din could now and then be heard the deep bay of the pie as it came in contact with the immaculate shirt front of a waiter.

It was lively for a while, this cloud of eatables and dishes, and while there were no serious results, the scene in the kitchen, when the battle cloud was lifted, was ludicrous. Fully 100 dishes were smashed and some half dozen heads were the worse for wear and tear.

Three policemen succeeded in declaring peace and when the debris had been cleared matters resumed the even tenor of their way in the dining-room, where the guests were awaiting for the waiters who, almost to a man, were temporarily otherwise engaged.

Why Prices Go Up and Down.

Our Republican friends seem to have no more idea of how prices are made and trade carried on than an Indian has of logarithms. The Norwich Bulletin says: "If the price of tin has a right to go up 'by anticipation' of a change in the tariff which won't take place till next June, why mustn't the price of sugar go down 'by anticipation' of the abolition of the duty on sugar, which goes into effect next April?" The sugar men and tin men will fix their prices according to their own interests and the state of the market without the slightest regard to the wishes of the Norwich Bulletin, the political exigencies of the Republicans, or any imaginary rule of consistency. The prospective increase in the tax on tin plates has greatly increased the desire to buy tin now—that is, there is an increased demand, and this increased demand has, of course, been followed by an increase of price.

The prospective reduction in the tax on sugar, however, has had no effect on the demand for sugar. If people would stop using sugar in the belief that next spring they can get it cheaper the reduced demand would probably be followed by a reduced price. But as people go right on eating sugar just as they have been doing the demand keeps up, and there is no reduction of the price.

But it is not certain that the price of sugar to the people who eat it is going to be much reduced; it may be, and then again it may not be. The tax on raw sugar will be reduced; that is, the refiners will have to pay less for their raw material. But as there is no domestic competition in sugar refining the sugar trust can fix its selling price without any regard to the duty on raw material. The only competition the sugar trust has to meet is foreign competition, and against that the trust has a protection of one-half cent a pound. For fear, however, that Americans would get sugar too cheap the trust got the sugar schedule amended just before the tarift law passed so that sugar imported from a country that pays an export bounty shall pay sixtenths of a cent tax. The reduction to be made in the price of sugar depends a good deal on the amiability of the sugar trust.

Time to Begin.

HAPPILY HYPNOTIZED.

Young Man Made to Give Up Whisky.

Carroll Cook, a young San Francisco lawyer, who was fond of good company and mixed drinks, suddenly surprised his friends a year ago by reforming. He drank nothing, but no one could get from him the secret of his change of habits. It has just leaked out that he was hypnotized by Kennedy, the mesmerist, and that he can't swallow liquor, as his palate immediately rejects it. The secret came out at an evening reception this week. Carroll Cook was a guest and at supper, among other articles on the table was a mince pie. Cook is very fond of mince pie and took a piece. As soon as he put it to his mouth he began choking. As soon as he recovered every one wanted to know the reason of his curious attack.

"Isn't there some alcoholic liquor in this pie?" asked Cook.

"Of course," said the hostess, "there's brandy in it."

"That settles it," said Cook, "you see my palate is hypnotized."

Asked for an explanation he said: "When Kennedy was here I became intimate with the mesmerist. I was then drinking heavily and rapidly losing my practice. Kennedy said, one day, 'Cook, whisky will be your ruin. I command you never to drink alcoholic liquors again.' He fixed his bright eyes on me, but I laughed and ordered a drink. When I lifted it I could not control the muscles of my mouth to swallow. I poured the liquor between my lips and it fell out. I tried to swallow that liquor as though my life depended upon it, but it was no use, and from that day to this it has been impossible for me to drink liquor of any kind. One day I was given a glass of lemonade in a glass that had a trace of whisky in it, and the drink spluttered all over my clothes."

The Story of An Old Bible.

Washington Star.

In the summer of 1864, while the Union army was lying in front of Petersburg, Va, D. C. Reinohl, now a patent attorney in this city, was stationed at City Point. He found, in a disabled ambulance, an old family Bible, in which was a genealogical tree of the Hatcher family. For years Mr. Reinohl has been trying to locate the owners of the volume and on September 13th last he wrote to a friend in Virginia to assist him in his search. That letter was published in a Virginia paper and this morning Mr. Reinohl received a reply from Thomas C. Hatcher, of Chester Post Office, Chesterfield county, Virginia. Mr. Hatcher gives an accurate description of the Bible in question and says it was lost in May, 1864, when Gen. Butler attempted to march from the Bermuda Hundred to Richmond. It was taken from the Halfway House between Richmond and Petersburg.

This morning the old Bible, with the history of the Hatcher family for several generations, was started homeward by express, after having been in possession of Mr. Reinohl for twenty-six years. Mr. Reinohl has also written a letter to Mr. Hatcher expressing his delight at being able to return him his long lost copy of the Scriptures.

Northrn Capital.

Speaking of Northern and Southern capital in the South, the Atlanta Constitution says: "What is of greater interest than the movement of Northern capital is the growth of Southern capital. A Northern man told a New York Press reporter the other day that some of his Southern friends in Georgia desired to build a short railway line to develop their mineral property. They required about $1,000,000, and had only $250,000 which they put up for stock in a company, and then issued $750,000 worth of bonds to raise the balance. These bonds were sent to New York for negotiation, but for some cause they were not taken for three or four weeks. At the end of that time the broker in charge of the bonds received a telegram instructing him to hold $450,000 worth of the bonds for the Southerners themselves. A letter received later stated that they had just made this amount of money by fortunate transactions, and they were unwilling to let strangers have bonds that they could buy themselves. In a day or two another letter from the same parties ordered another $100,000 in bonds. Of course, there was no trouble in placing what remained in short order."

This was only an incident, but reports from every State show that what the South is doing for herself amounts to incomparably more than the Northern volume of capital and enterprise. The fact is, the South is growing rich—is already rich.

A Hero of a Practical Joke.

Philadelphia Enquirer.

A young man of about 25 is just now the hero of a select circle of friends in the southern section of the city, and in view of his peculiar history he quite deserves to be lionized. Five years ago he was a clerk in a bank on a meager salary, and one time some of the same devoted friends of these days thought it would be a good joke to pretend the bank had been robbed, and warn him that he was suspected. This a number did, only they called him up about midnight, so as to give the joke a more natural appearance. After telling him that two hours before burglars had stolen $50,000 in bank notes, they added that the police were now on their way to arrest him as a suspect.

It so happened that he had but two hours before been in the vicinity of the bank, and fearful of not being able to prove an alibi, he gathered his available belongings together, and caught an early morning train for the north. Of course there was a big row in the vicinity of the young fellows home and his funny friends had to leave town. Fortunately the young fellow was a bachelor, and he was not hunted up. Recently he wrote to an old acquaintance here from Canada, and the latter in replying to the long lost youth told him the truth about the bank joke. Then the young fellow came back, but not as he went away. He rode in a parlar car and swelled around in a hack. He had gone to Montreal and after the first shock had settled down to work and gradually by lucky speculation had grown rich.

The Progressive South.

"No one," asserts the Manufacturers' Record, "can study the combination of advantages possessed by the South without being amazed at the possibilities of the future. Cotton, of which it practically holds the monopoly of the world, is a wonderful wealth producer, that has no equal in the agricultural products of this or any other country. This crop, raised on 19,000,000 acres, will this year be worth, including the seed, nearly $500,000,000, which about equals in value the total corn crop of the United States, raised on 75,000,000 acres, and is about $100,000,000 greater than the value of the wheat crop of the whole country, raised on 38,000,000 acres. This is a basis of wealth for Southern agricultural interests that promises greater prosperity than the farmers of any other section of the country can ever hope to enjoy. Added to the cotton crop, are the rice, sugar and tobacco crops, all sources of great wealth which the farmers of the North and West do not have. Then there are the early vegetable business, which is assuming such large proportions and which already reaches not less than $50,000,000 a year; the fruit-growing industry, including the raising of oranges, grapes, early peaches, etc., in addition to the usual farm crops of wheat, corn and oats, the three staples upon which Western farmers must almost wholly depend."

Censorship of the Press.

Lexington (Ky.) Press.

Under the lottery law framed by Congress and the instructions given by the Postmaster-General to his subordinates throughout the country, there is serious danger of encroachments on the liberty of the press that should be rebuked and opposed by the newspapers of the country without regard to party lines.

These postmasters are instructed to act as censors and inspect all second-class matter, and whenever the postmaster finds, what he considers unlawful matter, or even suspects that articles are of that character, he is authorized to suppress the publication and refuse its passage through the mails.

This dangerous innovation is claimed under the specious pretext of suppressing lottery advertisements, and so far the public seems to acquiesce without a protest against this new assumption of power. If this step meets with popular favor then the next move will be to examine first-class matter, breaking the seals of letters in search of contraband publications or writings. If that be accomplished then we will rapidly forget the Louisiana State Lottery in the multitude of grounds upon which the postmasters can act as censors of the press and people.

New Game in Arkansas.

In the United States district court Monday Judge Williams granted the application for a subpœna for the county clerk of Conway county, who is commanded to bring with him the poll books and ballots used at Morrillton election day. This is the first order of the kind ever issued in the United States, and the judge in granting it held that there was no secret ballot in Arkansas, when the voter presented his ballot to the election judge and that ballot is numbered to correspond with the number opposite the elector's name on the poll-books. It is claimed that frauds have been committed.

The Republican.

L. W. GRANT, Publisher.

NOVEMBER 22, 1890.

LETTER FROM MONTGOMERY.

MONTGOMERY, Nov. 19, 1890.

DEAR REPUBLICAN:

Since I wrote you the Legislature has gotten down fairly to work and is doing a good deal of it, notwithstanding the attention the senatorial contest has excited.

In the legislation already proposed Calhoun county has had her fair share and will have more as the session progresses. Most of this, so far, has come from Anniston, but in a few days Piedmont, Jacksonville and other parts of the county will present bills for consideration. Anniston being the largest place in the county will necessarily ask for more local legislation than any other, and there is a disposition both with the Representative and Senator to give that progressive place all reasonable legislation asked for, as well as other points in the county, which are forging forward in the march of progress.

Mr. Cooper has already introduced several bills in the House, one of which will become a law tomorrow. Most of these are local to Anniston, but there is one affecting the whole county. It is an amendment of the present local option stock law. As the law now stands any beat in the county can hold an election whether the beat shall have a stock law or not. If the people vote for stock law, it means the keeping up of cows, horses, hogs, goats, &c. The amendment offered by Mr. Cooper to this law so fixes it that the people may vote for a partial stock law, if they choose, as well as a general stock law. For instance, they may have a stock law which only applies to hogs, sheep and goats, if they wish, which will save much in building fences. This is about as far in the direction of a stock law as our Representative cares to go, and it is hoped this compromise of the matter will meet the views of everybody interested.

There is another bill introduced by Mr. Cooper which, although local to Anniston, has a general county interest. He has stopped the bill in the committee for the present until the people may be informed as to some of its provisions through this letter. It will probably pass the House some time during next week, and any one objecting will have until then to make their objections known to Mr. Cooper. The bill is in the nature of certain amendments to the Anniston City Court bill. The bill makes the jurisdiction of the court extend throughout the county, instead of four beats as at present, and, this being the case, fixes the cost of the court on the county, instead of those four beats. This would be but right, provided the jurisdiction of the court is extended, and the county gets the benefit of it. The bill also provides for increasing the salary of the judge of the court from $2,000 to $2,500, and the salary of the solicitor from $1,500 to $2,000 per annum, the solicitor's salary, to this extent, being contingent upon whether the fines and forfeitures reached this amount. There are some other minor amendments, one being as to stated time, spring and fall, for jury cases, &c.

I introduced in the Senate this morning two bills local to Anniston, one of which will be of general interest to the county. The bill of general interest to the county is one to provide for a better assessment and collection of the State and County taxes in the city of Anniston. It will pass both houses and will secure both to the State and County thousands of dollars which are now lost by reason of incomplete assessment of property there. As Jacksonville and Piedmont grow, similar bills for those towns would be a good thing for the people, and such bills for these places will be in order about next session, if they continue to grow as they are now doing. As it is important to get the above named bill through before recess, Mr. Cooper will doubtless introduce it in the House also tomorrow, so that we may take two chances on its speedy passage.

In order that we may be together as much as possible to consult over and agree upon local measures, Mr. Cooper and I have taken a room together at the corner of McDonough and Columbus streets, where our constituents may find one or either of us any time when the Legislature is not in session. We are very comfortably situated and find it better than to be at either of the leading hotels, where we spent the first week of the session. So far there has been no disagreement between us as to any matter touching county measures.

We have not yet fully discussed amendments to the county road law; but it is not likely that there will be any serious disagreement as to that. Both are anxious to give the county a good road law. I am inclined to issue 50 year 5 per cent. bonds to the extent of $100,000 to give the county commissioners a fund to do something substantial with at once. Such a bond can be easily sold at par or above par, and the interest may be met without increase of taxation out of the money now raised under the present law for road purposes. I do not know yet how Mr. Cooper stands upon this proposition. It may be that the general road law now being prepared will meet all difficulties. In that event we may agree to repeal our present local road law and take pot luck with the balance of the counties in the State. If, however, we are to retain our present road law it is clear to my mind that we will have to have more money to make a fair and substantial start with. So far the road law has not had a fair trial for the lack of funds.

A bill is in for a Constitutional Convention to provide for local taxation for public schools, a solution of the suffrage problem and other things which the present constitution stands in the way of. It seems to meet with pretty general favor so far as expression goes, but I am free to say there has been no general expression on the subject.

The senatorial contest has, so far, monopolized all attention, and there has been less discussion among members on general measures than is usual. As soon as that is out of the way the discussion will turn upon other subjects. Before this letter is printed it will doubtless be settled by the caucus. The first meeting of the caucus occurred last night. Eight ballots were taken as follows: 1st ballot—Seay, 32; Kolb, 42; Pugh, 42; Watts, 11. 2d ballot—Seay, 32; Kolb, 41; Pugh, 42; Watts, 12. 3d ballot—Seay, 29; Kolb, 42; Pugh, 45; Watts, 12. 4th ballot—Seay, 28; Kolb, 43; Pugh, 43; Watts, 12 5th ballot—Seay, 30; Kolb, 38; Pugh, 48; Watts, 11. Sixth ballot—Seay, 26; Kolb, 40; Pugh, 50; Watts, 11. 7th ballot—Seay, 30, Kolb, 40; Pugh, 48; Watts, 9. 8th ballot—Seay, 34; Kolb, 41; Pugh, 42; Watts, 10. At 11 o'clock the caucus adjourned until tonight, when the matter will be probably decided. The claim put forward by the friends of Mr. Kolb prior to the meeting of the Legislature that he would be nominated by the Alliance members, who are largely in the majority in the Legislature, does not seem to be panning out. Out of about seventy Alliancemen in both houses only 43 have been rallied to his support, notwithstanding the most earnest whipping in by the men who are trying to play the role of leaders. They, as other members, are showing a manly independence of dictation outside the party that nominated them, and are disposed to act upon their own individual judgment as to what man among the aspirants will best subserve the interests of the State at Washington. On the contrary, where members have been instructed for particular men by the Democratic conventions which nominated them, they are loyally obeying instructions even when their individual preferences lie in other directions. This is honorable and right. No man should accept a nomination at the hands of a party if he is unwilling to obey the instructions which go along with that nomination. Neither Mr. Cooper nor I received any instructions on this head from the Democratic conventions which nominated us, and consequently both have been left free to cast our votes for U. S. Senator in that way in which we may think the State's best interests will be subserved. Both of us got a resolution of the County Alliance demanding a support of Mr. Kolb or some other man who would carry out the financial views of the Alliance, presumably those promulgated at St. Louis. Courtesy requires that each of us should respond to this in due time, so that this important body of our constituents may know whether we have carried into effect their orders on this head, and I shall take early opportunity to do so as soon as the senatorial contest has been settled. Meantime I will say, that, while the wishes of any considerable part of my constituents has always had and shall always have great weight with me, I do not recognize the right of any body of men organized for social, religious, business or political purposes, outside the Democratic party (whose nominee I am,) to give me instructions as to my vote in political matters, such as the election of U. S. Senator. This is eminently a political office, and the Democratic party alone in Alabama has the right to speak authoritatively to its nominees as to whom they shall or shall not vote for to fill it. By this expression I do not mean to be the least disrespectful to the gentlemen of the Alliance who have presented their instructions on this head, but I mean to employ plain terms so that there may be no misunderstanding as to the matter. In matters of local legislation, where the interests of the agricultural classes were at stake, I should naturally look to the Alliance membership for expression and should be inclined to follow any suggestion of the order in preference to suggestions from any other source as to the matter; but in matters political, as I have said, I own no master except the Democratic party. While I am in it and of it I owe it fidelity of service and loyal allegiance, and it alone, among all the associations of men. In speaking of my own attitude altogether in this regard, after speaking of Mr. Cooper in connection with the resolution of the Alliance, I do not want to be understood as meaning that he entertains the same or different views from mine on the subject. I do not feel at liberty to speak for him, and that is all. He will do that for himself at the proper time.

The senatorial contest may be decided to-night. It is the earnest wish of the General Assembly to get rid of it and I doubt the ability of aspirants to hold in their adherents to any prolonged contest. Among the members of the Legislature there does not appear to be any enthusiastic partizanship one way or the other, but a sober and earnest effort to do the best thing for the great State of Alabama as each sees for himself what that best thing is.

Gen. Forney was here yesterday, but went away this morning. He was here on private business and not to take a hand in the contest. The "old war horse" seemed to have confidence in the ability of the General Assembly to do the right thing by the State in the matter.

The Fair was an unparalleled success and demonstrates beyond doubt that Montgomery is the place for future State fairs. On Confederate soldier's day there were fully ten thousand people on the grounds. I went out expressly to shake hands with Gen. Jubal A. Early who was there, and to meet my old Brigadier General Wilbox; but the latter did not come. On editor's day or rather day after I went to the Commercial club rooms in this city and met Col. McClure, the editor of the Philadelphia Times, one of the best friends the South has north of the line. I found him a most genial and companionable gentleman, very enthusiastic on the glorious future that awaits the South.

Montgomery, like, Atlanta, is enthusiastic over the nomination of Gen. Gordon to the United States Senate. The fact that the Alliancemen of Georgia were too shrewd to allow themselves sold out to the great railroad corporations by McCune and other leaders affords particular gratification. It serves to show the farmers how much of a friend McCune is to them. After selling them out on the compound lard bill he comes to Georgia and actually commits the Alliance caucus to the attorney and a director of the West Point Terminal system of railroads, of which Jay Gould is a large owner, for United States Senator. But the rank and file of the order were no fools and could not stand this. They bolted to Gordon and elected him in a whirlwind of enthusiasm. So may they ever act and so may the plans of their treacherous leaders ever come to naught. The masses are honest. They are intelligent. They know what is right and in time they will know who and who are not their friends.

ALABAMA NEWS.

Application has been made to the Controller of the Currency to organize the First National Bank of Piedmont, which will succeed the Bank of Piedmont. The capital stock of the First National Bank will be $100,000.

Edwardsville News: An application will be made to the Governor of Alabama for a pardon of F. M. Burgess, who was convicted at the fall term of the circuit court, 1890, for manslaughter and sentenced to the penitentiary for one year.

Edwardsville News: Mr. E. W. Haines, of this county who has been working at Rising Fawn Iron Mines had a very narrow escape from death by the premature explosion of a dynamite. He had his right hand very badly mangled and was considerably shaken up by the explosion.

At Florence: Two white men and two negroes were arraigned Monday before J. A. Cypert, a justice of the peace in Oakland beat, and tried on the charge of taking 1,700 pounds of seed cotton from the gin house of L. L. P. Cantrell on the night of the 4th inst. The parties were bound over in the sum of $300 each to await the action of the grand jury.

North Alabamian: A telegram from our young friend and townsman, Tracy Abernathy who has been in New York under the surgical treatment of Dr. Wyeth, for the past six weeks, states the splints were removed from his arm Tuesday, but that the bones were just as when the splints were put on—no improvement.

Greenville Advocate: The Richmond Cedar Works are preparing to add a large cedar oil distillery to their factory at this place, and will employ an additional number of hands. The oil of the cedar is used to a great extent in the manufacture of soap and is quite valuable, and the large quantity of saw dust from the factory will be utilized in that manner.

Guntersville Dispatch: Joe Isdell had ginned 125 bales of cotton up to the 8th inst., at the McKee gin at Albertville. One bale ginned for J. M. Price weighed 568 pounds, having been made from 1322 pounds seed cotton. With four men Joe made a record of one bale per hour for four hours, a record by the way of which he is proud.

The construction of the Florence Cotton Mills goes on handsomely, with a large force of hands at work. The building is three stories, 365 feet long and 100 feet wide, is now up to the second story, and the engine and boiler rooms are finished excepting the roof. The immense establishment will require a 900 horse power engine to run the machinery.

The Geneva Record tells of a smaller man than the Baldwin county dwarf who exhibited himself at the State fair. It says: Major Alonzo Weeks, assistant telegraph operator at this place, stands in his shoes just three feet and four inches high and weighs ninety-nine pounds. The major is manly, bright and a general favorite. He has just turned 21 years of age, is unmarried, but has an eye for the beautiful in muslin and red ribbons.

I suffered from nervous aches and pains, and was sleepless at night. My disease was undermining my constitution. Dr. Bull's Sarsaparilla restored me to health and I now enjoy sound and dreamless sleep, and my aches and pains and lassitude trouble me no more.—William Burton, Wheeling, W. Va.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17, 1890.

There may be a turn in the Cleveland tide before 1892. Already the wave of enthusiasm, according to the hard rocks of common sense, and the political wiseacres are talking about alliances in which Mr. Cleveland does not figure. There are many many prominent Democrats in Washington who discount very largely the demonstration at Columbus. It is not that they love Cleveland less as that they love success more, and the latter seems to be out of the question when the lukewarmness shown by Mr. Cleveland toward Tammany's ticket in the last election is remembered. It is the hard, practical, unsentimental politician who is leaving Cleveland out in the cold. They do not believe he can carry New York, a State which is most essential factor in the election of 1892. The politicians who are sure that Cleveland cannot win are equally certain that Hill can. It would not be strange if the approaching Speakership contest proved a skirmishing ground for the Cleveland-Hill fight. Already there is talk of an alliance whereby the Democratic strength of New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, part of Pennsylvania, Maryland, part of Virginia and West Virginia will be thrown for a Western candidate for Speaker in exchange for Western votes for an Eastern candidate for the Presidency. To this alliance, which looks to the nomination of Hill, with Whitney or Smith M. Weed as second choice, Gov. Abbott, of New Jersey; ex-Lieut. Gov. Black, of Pennsylvania: Senator Barbour, of Virginia, with Senator Gorman of Maryland, are said to be favorable. It is an open secret that ex-Gov. Black, of Pennsylvania, is at enmity with Gov. Pattison, and the formers defeat and Pattison's election will widen the breach. Cleveland's efforts, securing, as they did, the nomination of Pattison and breaking up the combination made by ex-Senator Wallace and Gov. Black, offended the latter, but it cemented an alliance between Cleveland and Pattison. It is said that these Eastern candidates will throw their strength to forming an alliance with Southern Democrats, whereby the latter will secure votes for the Speakership candidate from their section if they will promise votes for Cleveland or Pattison in the next Democratic convention. It is, therefore, as viewed in Washington, a fight between Cleveland and Pattison as against Hill, Abbott and Black, as to which can form the most powerful alliance. The test will come, of course, in the vote of the Democratic caucus for Speaker, and upon this result is said to depend the name of the standard-bearer of the Democrats in the next Presidential election. Certainly no Speakership campaign of recent years ever opened with such important possibilities clustered around it.

The probability of the convening of the Fifty-second Congress in extra session next spring is regarded in some quarters almost as a certainty. Representative Springer said Saturday that he thought an extra session was quite possible. It was certain, he said, if the Republicans attempted to pass the election bill, as that effort would be steadfastly resisted. The amount of work to be accomplished in the short session soon to commence is very large, consisting of many important bills side-tracked last session by the tariff and other measures. The apportionment bill is to be considered, and a fight will be precipitated if it is not made acceptable to the Democrats. The civil service investigation report has not yet been acted upon and will open the flood-gates of discussion. There will be a wrangle over the census, and an investigation of the alleged partisan manipulation of the census returns will be asked by the Democrats. A score of other matters could be suggested as tending to prolong the session, without mentioning the apportionment bills which must be passed. A great deal of friction is expected during the session. The Democrats will return here jubilant and less disposed than ever to submit to Mr. Reed's restraints, while the Speaker's humor will naturally be of that nature which will induce him to make it unpleasant for those who are impertinent or annoying on the floor. This condition of affairs is thought likely to create scenes more entertaining than edifying.

The prosperity of Washington is strikingly evidenced at the present time by the number and character of the buildings being erected in all quarters of it. Whatever street may be traveled and in whatever direction a course may be taken, proofs of building enterprise soon begin to appear. Costly and elegant residences and substantial dwellings are the order of the day. Our new lines of street railway give access to new territory, and, accordingly, the suburbs of the city are extending and rapidly filling up with handsome villas. That this spirit of enterprise is not lacking near its business center is also shown by the colossal structures now in course of erection.

The Interstate Immigratien Convention will meet at Asheville, N. C., Dec. 17. The movement is commended by the Governor of the State. Several Southern Governors will participate, The place of meeting is one of the most attractive on the continent. The convention should be attended by every influential Southern man desirous of building up this section.

SENATOR GORDON.

The Old Soldier Got There With a Whoop.

AND DID IT ON THE FIRST BALLOT.

THE WILDEST ENTHUSIASM.

ATLANTA, GA., Nov. 18.—Never in the history of Atlanta have there been enacted scenes like those of to-day. Gordon is Georgia's senator for the next six years, and that fact has turned Atlanta wild with delight. The most notable fight in modern Georgia history resulted in the election of Gordon by a clear majority of both houses of the legislature on the first ballot. The senate has been acknowledged for Gordon and but little excitement was manifested there. Norwood and Calhoun were his principal opponents.

In the house was the great struggle by the anti-Gordon men, who tried every way possible to prevent Gordon's election to-day, hoping another day might change the complexion of affairs. The vote in the house was taken amidst great excitement. The galleries and lobbies were packed with Gordon men and women, all Atlanta being for Gordon. Every Gordon vote was cheered and other names were hissed. When the roll call was completed it stood Gordon 83, opposed 85. Then there were several changes and Gordon was safely elected. The scenes were the wildest imaginable. Members who had changed to Gordon were mounted on the shoulders of others and carried about the house amid the wildest confusion and enthusiastic cheering. Speaker Howell, who had voted for Hammond, changed to Gordon, announcing that he did so for harmony's sake and hoped the election would be made unanimous.

To-night Atlanta turned inside out to a great Gordon demonstration at the artesian well with Gordon, Governor Northern and other speakers. There are bonfires, fire works, artillery salutes, crowds marching the streets with brass bands and tin horn brigades and all yelling for Gordon. The total vote of the two houses was Gordon, 120; Norwood, 45; Calhoun, 25; Hines, 13; Hammond, 9; Hawkins, 1. Hammond and Hawkins were not candidates.

John B. Gordon will succeed Joseph E. Brown in the senate.

To-night Atlanta is wild with excitement, fire-works are being burned, brass bands are playing and speeches delivered. A special from Atlanta, Ga., says the vote in the house for United States senator showed that Gordon lacked one of a majority. Speaker Howell then cast his vote for General Gordon. A dramatic scene followed, men went wild, the crowds in the lobbies broke through doorways, and the greatest enthusiasm prevailed.

Are You in Need?

Are you in need of good advice? Do you suffer from palpitation of the heart; have you spells of dizziness; do you feel listless, and do you frequently get tired without cause or exertion? Do you suffer from rheumatism, neuralgia, and other mysterious and unaccountable backaches and pains in limbs and joints and bones? Do you feel nervous; are you sleepless at night, and do your dreams disturb you? Are you excitable and does your heart beat unevenly, sometimes hardly beating at all and at other times thumping like an engine? Do you worry over little things? Are your kidneys disordered and your liver inactive? Are you troubled with indigestion and constipation? Are you annoyed by any urinary difficulty? Do you want to be cured of all such weakening ailments? Then use Dr. John Bull's Sarsaparilla. It will make you strong and perfect in every part.

A "flying dutchman" Sunday flew through the streets of our town mounted on a high-mettled steed, and had not horse and rider encountered a freight train on the railroad, doubtless the dutchman would still be flying in the direction "Ward's ducks" went several years ago. Monday the intreped and fearless equestrian appeared before the Mayor, who fined him $1 and costs, with the admonition that Sunday in the month of November is not a good day for horse racing.

Marriage of Mr. W. W. Driskill.

The Chattanooga Times of the 18th contains the announcement of the nuptials between Mr. W. W. Driskill, formerly of this place but now of Chattanooga, and Mrs. Turney. In accord with the Times the REPUBLICAN extends hearty congratulations to the newly wedded couple. It is but fair to premise that this new firm will make Jacksonville their future home. So mote it be. The Times says:

The marriage of Mr. W. W. Driskill to Mrs. Turney, the proprietress of the fashionable boarding house at Georgia Avenue and McCallie street, was a pretty ceremony, performed by S. W. B. Moore yesterday morning, at the residence of the bride. The interior of the house was profusely decorated with flowers, and a large, beautiful marriage bell, under which the words which made them man and wife were spoken, hung suspended in the large sitting room. The bride wore a beautiful costume of gray French bridal cloth, with dark velvet and steel passementerie trimmings, while the groom was attired in the conventional black. The handsome couple received many congratulations, and numerous and costly presents were showered on the happy pair. After the ceremony they departed by the East Tennessee Virginia & Georgia Road to visit Mr. Driskill's relations and friends in Alabama for a week, after which they will be at home to their many friends at No. 720 Georgia Avenue.

Council Chambers,
Nov. 10, 1890.

S. D G. Brothers, Esq.,

Dear Sir:—You are hereby appointed a delegate to represent Jacksonville in the Southern Interstates Immigration Convention to be holden at Asheville, N. C., December 17, 1890.

Respectfully,
H. L. Stevenson,
Mayor.

The marshal has called attention to riding and driving on the sidewalks. This is what Judge Mitchell, of New York, says:

"Sidewalks are for the people, and not for the accommodation of business houses and truckman," says Chief Justice Mitchell, of New York The city having brought suit against a grocer to recover the penalty for having backed trucks upon the sidewalk, the defence was an ordinance of the Common Council making it lawful for any vehicle to be backed on the sidewalk. Justice Mitchell declared the ordinance void. He said: "The Legislature can give a right in a highway for a public use, but any legislative enactment giving a private person an apparent right to a public highway is unconstitutional. The use of a street or sidewalk belongs to the people and cannot be diverted from them." Continuing, he declared that the misuse of the sidewalks of the city was an evil which was increasing. It is an abuse, he said, which should be stopped, and the police department should be instructed to arrest all persons caught driving a vehicle on the sidewalk or obstructing the passage-way so that passers by were compelled to walk out into the street.

Catarrh.

Catarrh is a most disgusting ailment and yet many unnecessarily suffer with the disease. They will try local application, which do no good whatever, but fail to try such constitutional treatment as is afforded by a use of B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm,) which removes the mucous poison in the blood and thus eradicates the cause of the disease.

N. C. Edwards, Lampassas Springs, Texas, writes: "I was greatly annoyed with catarrh, which impaired my general health. The discharge from my nose was very offensive, and I used various advertised remedies without benefit until finally the use of B. B. B. entirely cured me. I am proud to recommend a blood remedy with such powerful curative virtue."

B. C. Kinard & Son, Towaliga, Ga., writes: "We induced a neighbor to try B. B. B. for catarrh, which he thought incurable as it had resisted all treatment. It delighted him and continuing its use he was cured sound and well."

Recommends S. S. S. as a Spring Tonic.

I take pleasure in recommending Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) as a Blood Purifier, and general tonic. It has no equal for toning up the system, purifying the blood, and bracing up the flagging energies in the spring. Three bottles of this wonderful medicine made a new man of me.

JOHN L. HUFF, Girard, Ill.

Scrofula Cured.

Mr. S. I. Brooks, of Monticello, Ga., writes: "When the best physicians failed to cure a case of Scrolula of two years' standing, a few bottles of Swift's Sepecific (S. S. S.) did the work. Therefore I do not hesitate to pronounce S. S. S. the best blood purifier in the land. I cheerfully recommend it to all who are suffering from impure blood.

Well Said.

The Manufacturers' Record, of Baltimore, pays a well-merited compliment to the Tredegar Inn. "Among our many pleasant experiences there was the comfortable fare at the Tredegar Inn. Our meals were the best we had during the whole trip." Under the management of Mr. I. W. Gasser, this hotel has not only became a popular resort, but has gained an enviable reputation with the outside world. It is the best conducted first-class hotel in or out of Alabama.

Mr. Nelson, the agent of Pratt Mines, was here Thursday. He was here to escort the delegates, appointed by Judge Box, to the convention which will meet about 7 o'clock Friday morning at the mine. Following is a list of the distinguished but ill-fated delegates:

Roxie Johnson, colored, murder in second degree; 22 years in the penitentiary.

Anderson McComb, colored, assault with attempt to rape; 20 years in the penitentiary.

Simeon Sutherland, colored, grand larceny; 1 year in mines.

Sid Lester, colored, selling liquor without license, 2 cases, fined $50 in each. Failed to respond, sent to coal mines.

Rufus Hall, colored, obtaining goods under false pretense, hard labor in mines for 18 months.

Chas. Cummings, white, 2 cases, grand larceny and carrying concealed weapons; 1 year in mines and fined $50.

LETTER FROM MONTGOMERY.

MONTGOMERY, Nov. 19, 1890.

DEAR REPUBLICAN:

Since I wrote you the Legislature has gotten down fairly to work and is doing a good deal of it, notwithstanding the attention the senatorial contest has excited.

In the legislation already proposed Calhoun county has had her fair share and will have more as the session progresses. Most of this, so far, has come from Anniston, but in a few days Piedmont, Jacksonville and other parts of the county will present bills for consideration. Anniston being the largest place in the county will necessarily ask for more local legislation than any other, and there is a disposition both with the Representative and Senator to give that progressive place all reasonable legislation asked for, as well as other points in the county, which are forging forward in the march of progress.

Mr. Cooper has already introduced several bills in the House, one of which will become a law tomorrow. Most of these are local to Anniston, but there is one affecting the whole county. It is an amendment of the present local option stock law. As the law now stands any beat in the county can hold an election whether the beat shall have a stock law or not. If the people vote for stock law, it means the keeping up of cows, horses, hogs, goats, &c. The amendment offered by Mr. Cooper to this law so fixes it that the people may vote for a partial stock law, if they choose, as well as a general stock law. For instance, they may have a stock law which only applies to hogs, sheep and goats, if they wish, which will save much in building fences. This is about as far in the direction of a stock law as our Representative cares to go, and it is hoped this compromise of the matter will meet the views of everybody interested.

There is another bill introduced by Mr. Cooper which, although local to Anniston, has a general county interest. He has stopped the bill in the committee for the present until the people may be informed as to some of its provisions through this letter. It will probably pass the House some time during next week, and any one objecting will have until then to make their objections known to Mr. Cooper. The bill is in the nature of certain amendments to the Anniston City Court bill. The bill makes the jurisdiction of the court extend throughout the county, instead of four beats as at present, and, this being the case, fixes the cost of the court on the county, instead of those four beats. This would be but right, provided the jurisdiction of the court is extended, and the county gets the benefit of it. The bill also provides for increasing the salary of the judge of the court from $2,000 to $2,500, and the salary of the solicitor from $1,500 to $2,000 per annum, the solicitor's salary, to this extent, being contingent upon whether the fines and forfeitures reached this amount. There are some other minor amendments, one being as to stated time, spring and fall, for jury cases, &c.

I introduced in the Senate this morning two bills local to Anniston, one of which will be of general interest to the county. The bill of general interest to the county is one to provide for a better assessment and collection of the State and County taxes in the city of Anniston. It will pass both houses and will secure both to the State and County thousands of dollars which are now lost by reason of incomplete assessment of property there. As Jacksonville and Piedmont grow, similar bills for those towns would be a good thing for the people, and such bills for these places will be in order about next session, if they continue to grow as they are now doing. As it is important to get the above named bill through before recess, Mr. Cooper will doubtless introduce it in the House also tomorrow, so that we may take two chances on its speedy passage.

In order that we may be together as much as possible to consult over and agree upon local measures, Mr. Cooper and I have taken a room together at the corner of McDonough and Columbus streets, where our constituents may find one or either of us any time when the Legislature is not in session. We are very comfortably situated and find it better than to be at either of the leading hotels, where we spent the first week of the session. So far there has been no disagreement between us as to any matter touching county measures.

We have not yet fully discussed amendments to the county road law; but it is not likely that there will be any serious disagreement as to that. Both are anxious to give the county a good road law. I am inclined to issue 30 year 5 per cent. bonds to the extent of $100,000 to give the county commissioners a fund to do something substantial with at once. Such a bond can be easily sold at par or above par, and the interest may be met without increase of taxation out of the money now raised under the present law for road purposes. I do not know yet how Mr. Cooper stands upon this proposition. It may be that the general road law now being prepared will meet all difficulties. In that event we may agree to repeal our present local road law and take pot luck with the balance of the counties in the State. If, however, we are to retain our present road law it is clear to my mind that we will have to have more money to make a fair and substantial start with. So far the road law has not had a fair trial for the lack of funds.

A bill is in for a Constitutional Convention to provide for local taxation for public schools, a solution of the suffrage problem and other things which the present constitution stands in the way of. It seems to meet with pretty general favor so far as expression goes, but I am free to say there has been no general expression on the subject.

The senatorial contest has, so far, monopolized all attention, and there has been less discussion among members on general measures than is usual. As soon as that is out of the way the discussion will turn upon other subjects. Before this letter is printed it will doubtless be settled by the caucus. The first meeting of the caucus occurred last night. Eight ballots were taken as follows: 1st ballot—Seay, 32; Kolb, 42; Pugh, 42; Watts, 11. 2d ballot—Seay, 32; Kolb, 41; Pugh, 42; Watts, 12. 3d ballot—Seay, 29; Kolb, 42; Pugh, 45; Watts, 12. 4th ballot—Seay, 28; Kolb, 43; Pugh, 43; Watts, 12 5th ballot—Seay, 30; Kolb, 38; Pugh, 48; Watts, 11. Sixth ballot—Seay, 26; Kolb, 40; Pugh, 50; Watts, 11. 7th ballot—Seay, 30, Kolb, 40; Pugh, 48; Watts, 9. 8th ballot—Seay, 34; Kolb, 41; Pugh, 42; Watts, 10. At 11 o'clock the caucus adjourned until tonight, when the matter will be probably decided. The claim put forward by the friends of Mr. Kolb prior to the meeting of the Legislature that he would be nominated by the Alliance members, who are largely in the majority in the Legislature, does not seem to be panning out. Out of about seventy Alliancemen in both houses only 43 have been rallied to his support, notwithstanding the most earnest whipping in by the men who are trying to play the role of leaders. They, as other members, are showing a manly independence of dictation outside the party that nominated them, and are disposed to act upon their own individual judgment as to what man among the aspirants will best subserve the interests of the State at Washington. On the contrary, where members have been instructed for particular men by the Democratic conventions which nominated them, they are loyally obeying instructions even when their individual preferences lie in other directions. This is honorable and right. No man should accept a nomination at the hands of a party if he is unwilling to obey the instructions which go along with that nomination. Neither Mr. Cooper nor I received any instructions on this head from the Democratic conventions which nominated us, and consequently both have been left free to cast our votes for U. S. Senator in that way in which we may think the State's best interests will be subserved. Both of us got a resolution of the County Alliance demanding a support of Mr. Kolb or some other man who would carry out the financial views of the Alliance, presumably those promulgated at St. Louis. Courtesy requires that each of us should respond to this in due time, so that this important body of our constituents may know whether we have carried into effect their orders on this head, and I shall take early opportunity to do so as soon as the senatorial contest has been settled. Meantime I will say, that, while the wishes of any considerable part of my constituents has always had and shall always have great weight with me, I do not recognize the right of any body of men organized for social, religious, business or political purposes, outside the Democratic party (whose nominee I am,) to give me instructions as to my vote in political matters, such as the election of U. S. Senator. This is eminently a political office, and the Democratic party alone in Alabama has the right to speak authoritatively to its nominees as to whom they shall or shall not vote for to fill it. By this expression I do not mean to be the least disrespectful to the gentlemen of the Alliance who have presented their instructions on this head, but I mean to employ plain terms so that there may be no misunderstanding as to the matter. In matters of local legislation, where the interests of the agricultural classes were at stake, I shousd naturally look to the Alliance membership for expression and should be inclined to follow any suggestion of e order in preference to suggestions from any other source as to the matter; but in matters political, as I have said, I own no master except the Democratic party. While I am in it and of it I owe it fidelity of service and loyal allegiance, and it alone, among all the associations of men. In speaking of my own attitude altogether in this regard, after speaking of Mr Cooper in connection with the resolution of the Alliance, I do not want to be understood as meaning that he entertains the same or different views from mine on the subject. I do not feel at liberty to speak for him, and that is all. He will do that for himself at the proper time.

The senatorial contest may be decided to-night. It is the earnest wish of the General Assembly to get rid of it and I doubt the ability of aspirants to hold in their adherents to any prolonged contest. Among the members of the Legislature there does not appear to be any enthusiastic partizanship one way or the other, but a sober and earnest effort to do the best thing for the great State of Alabama as each sees for himself what that best thing is.

Gen. Forney was here yesterday, but went away this morning. He was here on private business and not to take a hand in the contest. The "old war horse" seemed to have confidence in the ability of the General Assembly to do the right thing by the State in the matter.

The Fair was an unparalleled success and demonstrates beyond doubt that Montgomery is the place for future State fairs. On Confederate soldier's day there were fully ten thousand people on the grounds. I went out expressly to shake hands with Gen. Jubal A. Early who was there, and to meet my old Brigadier General Wilbox; but the latter did not come. On editor's day or rather day after I went to the Commercial club rooms in this city and met Col. McClure, the editor of the Philadelphia Times, one of the best friends the South has north of the line. I found him a most genial and companionable gentleman, very enthusiastic on the glorious future that awaits the South.

Montgomery, like, Atlanta, is enthusiastic over the nomination of Gen. Gordon to the United States Senate. The fact that the Alliancemen of Georgia were too shrewd to allow themselves sold out to the great railroad corporations by McCune and other leaders affords particular gratification. It serves to show the farmers how much of a friend McCune is to them. After selling them out on the compound lard bill he comes to Georgia and actually commits the Alliance caucus to the attorney and a director of the West Point Terminal system of railroads, of which Jay Gould is a large owner, for United States Senator. But the rank and file of the order were no fools and could not stand this. They bolted to Gordon and elected him in a whirlwind of enthusiasm. So may they ever act and so may the plans of their treacherous leaders ever come to naught. The masses are honest. They are intelligent. They know what is right and in time they will know who and who are not their friends.

ALABAMA NEWS.

Application has been made to the Controller of the Currency to organize the First National Bank of Piedmont, which will succeed the Bank of Piedmont. The capital stock of the First National Bank will be $100,000.

Edwardsville News: An application will be made to the Governor of Alabama for a pardon of F. M. Burgess, who was convicted at the fall term of the circuit court, 1890, for manslaughter and sentenced to the penitentiary for one year.

Edwardsville News: Mr. E. W. Haines, of this county who has been working at Rising Fawn Iron Mines had a very narrow escape from death by the premature explosion of a dynamite. He had his right hand very badly mangled and was considerably shaken up by the explosion.

At Florence: Two white men and two negroes were arraigned Monday before J. A. Cypert, a justice of the peace in Oakland beat, and tried on the charge of taking 1,700 pounds of seed cotton from the gin house of L. L. P. Cantrell on the night of the 4th inst. The parties were bound over in the sum of $300 each to await the action of the grand jury.

North Alabamian: A telegram from our young friend and townsman, Tracy Abernathy who has been in New York under the surgical treatment of Dr. Wyeth, for the past six weeks, states the splints were removed from his arm Tuesday, but that the bones were just as when the splints were put on—no improvement.

Greenville Advocate: The Richmond Cedar Works are preparing to add a large cedar oil distillery to their factory at this place, and will employ an additional number of hands. The oil of the cedar is used to a great extent in the manufacture of soap and is quite valuable, and the large quantity of saw dust from the factory will be utilized in that manner.

Guntersville Dispatch: Joe Isdell had ginned 125 bales of cotton up to the 8th inst., at the McKee gin at Albertville. One bale ginned for J. M. Price weighed 568 pounds, having been made from 1322 pounds seed cotton. With four men Joe made a record of one bale per hour for four hours, a record by the way of which he is proud.

The construction of the Florence Cotton Mills goes on handsomely, with a large force of hands at work. The building is three stories, 365 feet long and 100 feet wide, is now up to the second story, and the engine and boiler rooms are finished excepting the roof. The immense establishment will require a 900 horse power engine to run the machinery.

The Geneva Record tells of a smaller man than the Baldwin county dwarf who exhibted himself at the State fair. It says: Major Alonzo Weeks, assistant telegraph operator at this place, stands in his shoes just three feet and four inches high and weighs ninety-nine pounds. The major is manly, bright and a general favorite. He has just turned 21 years of age, is unmarried, but has an eye for the beautiful in muslin and red ribbons.

I suffered from nervous aches and pains, and was sleepless at night. My disease was undermining my constitution. Dr. Bull's Sarsaparilla restored me to health and I now enjoy sound and dreamless sleep, and my aches and pains and lassitude trouble me no more.—William Burton, Wheeling, W. Va.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17, 1890.

There may be a turn in the Cleveland tide before 1892. Already the wave of enthusiasm, according to the hard rocks of common sense, and the political wiseacres are talking about alliances in which Mr. Cleveland does not figure. There are many many prominent Democrats in Washington who discount very largely the demonstration at Columbus. It is not that they love Cleveland less as that they love success more, and the latter seems to be out of the question when the lukewarmness shown by Mr. Cleveland toward Tammany's ticket in the last election is remembered. It is the hard, practical, unsentimental politician who is leaving Cleveland out in the cold. They do not believe he can carry New York, a State which is most essential factor in the election of 1892. The politicians who are sure that Cleveland cannot win are equally certain that Hill can. It would not be strange if the approaching Speakership contest proved a skirmishing ground for the Cleveland-Hill fight. Already there is talk of an alliance whereby the Democratic strength of New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, part of Pennsylvania, Maryland, part of Virginia and West Virginia will be thrown for a Western candidate for Speaker in exchange for Western votes for an Eastern candidate for the Presidency. To this alliance, which looks to the nomination of Hill, with Whitney or Smith M. Weed as second choice, Gov. Abbott, of New Jersey; ex-Lieut. Gov. Black, of Pennsylvania: Senator Barbour, of Virginia, with Senator Gorman of Maryland, are said to be favorable. It is an open secret that ex-Gov. Black, of Pennsylvania, is at enmity with Gov. Pattison, and the formers defeat and Pattison's election will widen the breach. Cleveland's efforts, securing, as they did, the nomination of Pattison and breaking up the combination made by ex-Senator Wallace and Gov. Black, offended the latter, but it cemented an alliance between Cleveland and Pattison. It is said that these Eastern candidates will throw their strength to forming an alliance with Southern Democrats, whereby the latter will secure votes for the Speakership candidate from their section if they will promise votes for Cleveland or Pattison in the next Democratic convention. It is, therefore, as viewed in Washington, a fight between Cleveland and Pattison as against Hill, Abbott and Black, as to which can form the most powerful alliance. The test will come, of course, in the vote of the Democratic caucus for Speaker, and upon this result is said to depend the name of the standard-bearer of the Democrats in the next Presidential election. Certainly no Speakership campaign of recent years ever opened with such important possibilities clustered around it.

The probability of the convening of the Fifty-second Congress in extra session next spring is regarded in some quarters almost as a certainty. Representative Springer said Saturday that he thought an extra session was quite possible. It was certain, he said, if the Republicans attempted to pass the election bill, as that effort would be steadfastly resisted. The amount of work to be accomplished in the short session soon to commence is very large, consisting of many important bills side-tracked last session by the tariff and other measures. The apportionment bill is to be considered, and a fight will be precipitated if it is not made acceptable to the Democrats. The civil service investigation report has not yet been acted upon and will open the flood-gates of discussion. There will be a wrangle over the census, and an investigation of the alleged partisan manipulation of the census returns will be asked by the Democrats. A score of other matters could be suggested as tending to prolong the session, without mentioning the apportionment bills which must be passed. A great deal of friction is expected during the session. The Democrats will return here jubilant and less disposed than ever to submit to Mr. Reed's restraints, while the Speaker's humor will naturally be of that nature which will induce him to make it unpleasant for those who are impertinent or annoying on the floor. This condition of affairs is thought likely to create scenes more entertaining than edifying.

The prosperity of Washington is strikingly evidenced at the present time by the number and character of the buildings being erected in all quarters of it. Whatever street may be traveled and in whatever direction a course may be taken, proofs of building enterprise soon begin to appear. Costly and elegant residences and substantial dwellings are the order of the day. Our new lines of street railway give access to new territory, and, accordingly, the suburbs of the city are extending and rapidly filling up with handsome villas. That this spirit of enterprise is not lacking near its business center is also shown by the colossal structures now in course of erection.

The Interstate Immigration Convention will meet at Asheville, N. C., Dec. 17. The movement is commended by the Governor of the State. Several Southern Governors will participate. The place of meeting is one of the most attractive on the continent. The convention should be attended by every influential Southern man desirous of building up this section.

Greenville has a new fire company.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria

SENATOR GORDON.

The Old Soldier Got There With a Whoop.

AND DID IT ON THE FIRST BALLOT.

THE WILDEST ENTHUSIASM.

ATLANTA, GA., Nov. 18.—Never in the history of Atlanta have there been enacted scenes like those of today. Gordon is Georgia's senator for the next six years, and that fact has turned Atlanta wild with delight. The most notable fight in modern Georgia history resulted in the election of Gordon by a clear majority of both houses of the legislature on the first ballot. The senate has been acknowledged for Gordon and but little excitement was manifested there. Norwood and Calhoun were his principal opponents.

In the house was the great struggle by the anti-Gordon men, who tried every way possible to prevent Gordon's election to-day, hoping another day might change the complexion of affairs. The vote in the house was taken amidst great excitement. The galleries and lobbies were packed with Gordon men and women, all Atlanta being for Gordon. Every Gordon vote was cheered and other names were hissed. When the roll call was completed it stood Gordon 83, opposed 85. Then there were several changes and Gordon was safely elected. The scenes were the wildest imaginable. Members who had changed to Gordon were mounted on the shoulders of others and carried about the house amid the wildest confusion and enthusiastic cheering. Speaker Howell, who had voted for Hammond, changed to Gordon, announcing that he did so for harmony's sake and hoped the election would be made unanimous.

To-night Atlanta turned inside out to a great Gordon demonstration at the artesian well with Gordon, Governor Northern and other speakers. There are bonfires, fire works, artillery salutes, crowds marching the streets with brass bands and tin horn brigades and all yelling for Gordon. The total vote of the two houses was Gordon, 120; Norwood, 45; Calhoun, 25; Hines, 13; Hammond, 9; Hawkins, 1. Hammond and Hawkins were not candidates.

To-night Atlanta is wild with excitement, fire-works are being burned, brass bands are playing and speeches delivered. A special from Atlanta, Ga., says the vote in the house for United States senator showed that Gordon lacked one of a majority. Speaker Howell then cast his vote for General Gordon. A dramatic scene followed, men went wild, the crowds in the lobbies broke through doorways, and the greatest enthusiasm prevailed.

Are You in Need?

Are you in need of good advice? Do you suffer from palpitation of the heart; have you spells of dizziness; do you feel listless, and do you frequently get tired without cause or exertion? Do you suffer from rheumatism, neuralgia, and other mysterious and unaccountable backaches and pains in limbs and joints and bones? Do you feel nervous; are you sleepless at night, and do your dreams disturb you? Are you excitable and does your heart beat unevenly, sometimes hardly beating at all and at other times thumping like an engine? Do you worry over little things? Are your kidneys disordered and your liver inactive? Are you troubled with indigestion and constipation? Are you annoyed by any urinary difficulty? Do you want to be cured of all such weakening ailments? Then use Dr. John Bull's Sarsaparilla. It will make you strong and perfect in every part.

Mr. E. H. Heard, of Rome, was registered at the Inn this week.

Mr. Clark Morgan, of White Plains, was in town this week.

Mr. J. C. Edmundson, of Birmingham, is stopping at the Tredegar Inn for a few days.

Mr. W. J. Van Dyke, of Atlanta, was here this week looking over the town.

There will be preaching at the Baptist church Sunday morning and night.

Mr. Moses Homesley, and old and highly respected citizen, living three miles southwest of town, died Tuesday morning after a short illness.

Misses Fannie Hammond and Annie Bates visited friends and relatives near Morrisville this week.

Miss Katie Bates, of near Morrisville, is spending a few weeks in Jacksonville, the guest of Miss Fannie Hammond.

Mechanics, with their families, are arriving in our town daily, but no houses to live in. A few isolated "shacks" now and then afford these people shelter. More dwelling houses is the cry.

Thousands of mothers bless the name of Dr. John Bull for inventing his celebrated Dr. Bull's Worm Destroyers. Children tease for them and they never fail to do good.

The cases of Gus Williams and Raleigh Duncan, the former charged with carrying concealed weapons and the latter with assault and battery, came up in Circuit Court last Friday and each were fined $50.

Mr. B. E. Frank left last Tuesday night for Atlanta, Ga., where he goes to accept a position as postal clerk in the railway mail service. Ben has many friends in Jacksonville who wish him abundant success.

Maj. A. W. Cummings, of the Piedmont Inquirer, was in town Tuesday night looking for a "typo." The Major looks remarkably well, and is a living walking evidence that he is accustomed to three square meals a day.

Francis Avenue begins to assume a business and church like appearance. A removal back of one house and the erection of several brick business houses, together with one or more residences and the Catholic church building, will add additional prestige to the city.

Dr. E. A. Cook, of Cherokee, has been visiting in Jacksonville this week, and wanting to keep well up with the rapid progress our town is making toward a large city, didn't forget how to do this and wisely added his name to the subscription list of the REPUBLICAN.

The entertainment to be given by Mrs. Ladie Bowling will come off some time soon, we could not learn the date fixed, but, as Mrs. Bowling never does anything by halves, we can assure all who are so fortunate as to attend to get the full worth of their money.

That little fellow, Curtis Walker, business manager of the Jacksonville hotel, caters to the wants of guests in a happy and pleasant way. Under the guidance of Mrs. J. E. Walker, this hotel is meeting with favor and custom, local and transient. Cheap rates and good fare are indispensable to patronage, and these two combines are to be had at this house.

Mr. Jacobs, of the Anniston Auction House, having acquiesed a fortune in the short space of one week, pulled up stakes Wednesday evening and fell back in good order to his old quarters 12 miles south of Jacksonville. Mr. Jacobs is a clever, straight man, and it is quite probable that he will yet make Jacksonville his future abiding place.

A "flying dutchman" Sunday flew through the streets of our town mounted on a high-mettled steed, and had not horse and rider encountered a freight train on the railroad, doubtless the dutchman would still be flying in the direction "Ward's ducks" went several years ago. Monday the intreped and fearless equestrian appeared before the Mayor, who fined him $1 and costs, with the admonition that Sunday in the month of November is not a good day for horse racing.

Marriage of Mr. W. W. Driskill.

The Chattanooga Times of the 19th contains the announcement of the nuptials between Mr. W. W. Driskill, formerly of this place but now of Chattanooga, and Mrs. Turney. In accord with the Times the REPUBLICAN extends hearty congratulations to the newly wedded couple. It is but fair to premise that this new firm will make Jacksonville their future home. So mote it be. The Times says:

The marriage of Mr. W. W. Driskill to Mrs. Turney, the proprietress of the fashionable boarding house at Georgia Avenue and McCallie street, was a pretty ceremony, performed by S. W. B. Moore yesterday morning, at the residence of the bride. The interior of the house was profusely decorated with flowers, and a large, beautiful marriage bell, under which the words which made them man and wife were spoken, hung suspended in the large sitting room. The bride wore a beautiful costume of gray French bridal cloth, with dark velvet and steel passementerie trimmings, while the groom was attired in the conventional black. The handsome couple received many congratulations, and numerous and costly presents were showered on the happy pair. After the ceremony they departed by the East Tennessee Virginia & Georgia Road to visit Mr. Driskill's relations and friends in Alabama for a week, after which they will be at home to their many friends at No. 720 Georgia Avenue.

Council Chambers,
Nov. 10, 1890.

S. D G. Brothers, Esq.,

Dear Sir:—You are hereby appointed a delegate to represent Jacksonville in the Southern Interstates Immigration Convention to be holden at Asheville, N. C., December 17, 1890.

Respectfully,
H. L. Stevenson,
Mayor.

The marshal has called attention to riding and driving on the sidewalks. This is what Judge Mitchell, of New York, says:

"Sidewalks are for the people, and not for the accommodation of business houses and truckman," says Chief Justice Mitchell, of New York The city having brought suit against a grocer to recover the penalty for having backed trucks upon the sidewalk, the defence was an ordinance of the Common Council making it lawful for any vehicle to be backed on the sidewalk. Justice Mitchell declared the ordinance void. He said: "The Legislature can give a right in a highway for a public use, but any legislative enactment giving a private person an apparent right to a public highway is unconstitutional. The use of a street or sidewalk belongs to the people and cannot be diverted from them." Continuing, he declared that the misuse of the sidewalks of the city was an evil which was increasing. It is an abuse, he said, which should be stopped, and the police department should be instructed to arrest all persons caught driving a vehicle on the sidewalk or obstructing the passage-way so that passers by were compelled to walk out into the street.

Catarrh.

Catarrh is a most disgusting ailment and yet many unnecessarily suffer with the disease. They will try local application, which do no good whatever, but fail to try such constitutional treatment as is afforded by a use of B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm,) which removes the mucous poison in the blood and thus eradicates the cause of the disease.

N. C. Edwards, Lampassas Springs, Texas, writes: "I was greatly annoyed with catarrh, which impaired my general health. The discharge from my nose was very offensive, and I used various advertised remedies without benefit until finally the use of B. B. B. entirely cured me. I am proud to recommend a blood remedy with such powerful curative virtue."

B. C. Kinard & Son, Towaliga, Ga., writes: "We induced a neighbor to try B. B. B. for catarrh, which he thought incurable as it had resisted all treatment. It delighted him and continuing its use he was cured sound and well."

Recommends S. S. S. as a Spring Tonic.

I take pleasure in recommending Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) as a Blood Purifier, and general tonic. It has no equal for toning up the system, purifying the blood, and bracing up the flagging energies in the spring. Three bottles of this wonderful medicine made a new man of me.

JOHN L. HUFF, Girard, Ill.

Scrofula Cured.

Mr. S. I. Brooks, of Monticello, Ga., writes: "When the best physicians failed to cure a case of Scrofula of two years' standing, a few bottles of Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) did the work. Therefore I do not hesitate to pronounce S. S. S. the best blood purifier in the land. I cheerfully recommend it to all who are suffering from impure blood.

Well Said.

The Manufacturers' Record, of Baltimore, pays a well-merited compliment to the Tredegar Inn. "Among our many pleasant experiences there was the comfortable fare at the Tredegar Inn. Our meals were the best we had during the whole trip." Under the management of Mr. I. W. Gasser, this hotel has not only became a popular resort, but has gained an enviable reputation with the outside world. It is the best conducted first-class hotel in or out of Alabama.

Mr. Neison, the agent of Pratt Mines, was here Thursday. He was here to escort the delegates, appointed by Judge Box, to the convention which will meet about 7 o'clock Friday morning at the mine. Following is a list of the distinguished but ill-fated delegates:

Anderson McComb, colored, assault with attempt to rape; 20 years in the penitentiary.

Simeon Sutherland, colored, grand larceny; 1 year in mines.

Sid Lester, colored, selling liquor without license, 2 cases, fined $50 in each. Failed to respond, sent to coal mines.

Rufus Hall, colored, obtaining goods under false pretense, hard labor in mines for 18 months.

Chas. Cummings, white, 2 cases, grand larceny and carrying concealed weapons; 1 year in mines and fined $50.

ALABAMA NEWS.

Talladega wants a telephone exchange and, included in the system, a connection with Birmingham and Tredegar.

Ashville Aegis: The largest sweet potato yet was brought to this office by Mr. J. B. Reynolds. It weighed [illegible] pounds and was raised in the flat-woods.

Pell City Echo: The stock is all subscribed for a National Bank at this place, and will be opened as soon as the Howard & Maxwell block is completed, which will be about the middle of December.

A special from Sylacauga says: Whisky or no whisky is the important question with us just at present. We already have it four miles from town, as fiery as the panting soul could wish; but the question is, shall we bring it to town.

Moulton Advertiser: Bro. Greenshaw has made several trips to town this fall with his apple wagon, and readily disposed of them at $1 per bushel. He could sell 1000 bushels at the same price, and here is a pointer for the progressive farmer.

Troy Messenger: Mr. Steve Rushing has been trying to get ahead of his neighbor, Charley Spradley, on the cane question. He sent us a stalk having twenty-three natural joints, and seven feet eight inches long.

A special from Lafayette says: The petition for prohibition within five miles of our college, has been signed by one hundred and twenty-two citizens of this place. It has already been forwarded to our Representatives at Montgomery. Every member of the Board of Trustees signed it as did every teacher in the faculty.

Madison County takes the blue ribbon at the Montgomery Southern Exposition, the first premium of $500 having been awarded her agricultural exhibits, and first premium to Mr. George T. Motz, of this county, on his individual exhibit. This makes near $2,500 in first premiums took by this county at the Birmingham State Fair and at the Southern Exposition.

At Talladega the city council has been agitated over the constitutional question of taxation. They want the city to get the benefit now in the assessment of the $650,000 the property of the town increased in value the past year over the preceding year, but are met with Justice Clopton's opinion of the supreme court on the Birmingham case, which paralyzes them, as it were.

A special from Fairview says: J. Calvin McCain, who was shot by Robert Scales on last Sunday evening, has since died. Robert E. Scales, who shot J. Calvin McCain, the ex-deputy sheriff of St. Clair county, was captured in Guntersville, Ala., where he called on a doctor to dress some slight wound he received in the fight in which McCain was killed. Mr. McCain was a bright young man and a good citizen. The county mourns his loss.

La Grippe Again.

La Grippe, says the doctors has reappeared in Western Europe and in the United States, but in less virulent form than last year's epidemic assumed. On Tuesday last the schools were closed in Wurtemburg, Germany, on account of the influenza prevailing in the city. The New York Herald of last Thursday says that in connection with the return of la grippe, "the Health Department of New York last week recorded a decided increase of mortality from pneumonia. The average number of deaths for the first week of November in past years has not exceeded seventy-four, but this year it is ninety. This fact is a warning to all classes of people to take precautions against undue exposure to the elements against overwork and against whatever tends to debilitate the system."

Farm for Sale.

We will sell on reasonable terms a good farm lying five miles from Jacksonville and four hundred yards from a depot, containing 160 acres of land. About 90 acres under fence and in cultivation. About 40 acres almost perfectly level. Has new six room frame house finished complete. Fine spring near the house and mineral springs adjacent. The farm is well watered and very suitable for a stock farm. Has also a good orchard—large new barns conveniently arranged and a good three room tenant house. Besides being good farming land, the place is supposed to have beds of rich mineral ores. Churches and schools in three-quarters of a mile. Very few farms in the county possess more advantages or better located. Apply to

A Good Name.

A Good Name is Certainly Better than Riches in the business world. That is why we never permit customers to leave our store dissatisfied with their purchases.

We aim to get the Good Will of the People, and our largely increasing business shows that we have been successful. Our goods, our prices, and our straight American methods of doing business make it an object for you to

TRADE WITH US.

It's a Unique position we occupy as Leaders. This is forcibly indicated by the scores who interview us daily on styles. As we are asked, our judgment must be valued. If we know—as we do—isn't it most natural we should pattern our stock accordingly? Certainly.

The Dealers who do so much talking about the amount of money they save to the purchasers of clothing are the very ones who are making it more expensive. For instance you cannot get a whole page advertisement for nothing. Neither can any man or concern afford to sell you goods for LESS than COST and succeed.

Those who advertise goods at one half or one third of their value are still making profits big enough to pay for all the charity they do to their customers.

Ours is a Plain,

Fair dealing house. We sell our Merchandise at a living profit. Our goods are same price to everybody. Each article marked in Plain Figures.

No Private Cost Mark that you can't Understand. Should you buy of us and not be pleased with your purchase, we refund your money as freely as we receive it. This has been the success of our house, as

We have never refused to give back purchase money, if the article is brought back uninjured. Bear this in mind. In this advertisement we have stated how we do business; in our next we will tell you something else.

BALTIMORE AND THE SOUTH.

Solid Foundations Upon Which the South's Prosperity Rests.

Manufacturers' Record, Nov. 22.

A luncheon was given at the Hotel Rennert recently, to bring together an assemblage of representative Baltimore men, for the purpose of discussing Southern interests from a Baltimore standpoint, and to promote business intercourse and friendly relations. It was attended by about 150 prominent business and professional men of this city. Addresses were made by ex-Secretary of State Walker, of West Virginia, and R. H. Edmonds, editor of the Manufacturers' Record. We have been requested by many of those present to reproduce this admirable paper in a later issue. Mr. Edmonds' address is given herewith:

"'A nation born in a day was scarcely more admirable than the creation of what is destined to be the greatest industrial empire of the world, which is now in progress before us. The immense territory which stretches from Mason and Dixon's line on the north to the Rio Grande on the south will inevitably be the richest part of America. It possesses a combination of advantages that cannot be found elsewhere in the world. In fact here are combined the chief advantages and resources of nearly all other countries, without their most serious disadvantages. The late Hon. William D. Kelley, of Pennsylvania, familiarly known as 'Pig-iron' Kelley, devoted many years to a careful study of the South, and shortly before his death wrote: "The New South is the coming El Dorado of American adventure. The States south of the Ohio and east of the Mississippi, with their half million square miles of area, contain a wealth great enough for a continent—a wealth so vast, so varied in its elements and character, so advantageously placed for development, that these States alone can sustain a population far greater than the population of the United States today. Their products would be so different from those of other portions of the country as to afford the most profitable exchange, advantageous to all. And it is in these States that we must find the new and greater market for Northern surplus, whether that surplus be in the shape of accumulated labor of the past—that is to say, capital—or the future productions of labor, or of labor itself, because in these Southern States, more than elsewhere, the natural conditions of success exist. As to the rapidity with which it can be done, the past growth of the West furnishes the best answer. It was the building of an empire in the West that relieved and enriched the East as well as the West. The enormous energies, the "plant" used in that task, unparallelled in the magnitude of the work and the greatness of the reward to all, is now seeking a new field of investment, and there is no spot on earth sufficient for it and within its reach but the South. I do not consider that there ever existed in the West, great as its wealth is, nor in any other portion of the country, anything like the natural wealth of the South.

Its cotton crop this year, including the value of the seed, will aggregate nearly $500,000,000, while an equal amount will be represented by its other agricultural products, or a total of $1,000,000,000, an increase of $400,000,000 over the value of its agricultural products in 1880. Cotton is the most remarkable agricultural staple of the world, and its production saved the South from hopeless bankruptcy after the war.

Since 1865 the South has received over $8,000,000,000 for its cotton.

Up to five years ago the several hundred million dollars annually drawn from the North and Europe to the South to pay for cotton was immediately sent back to the North and West to pay for food stuffs, and for every manufactured article needed in the South, from a pin to a locomotive.

This is now rapidly changing.

The South is largely manufacturing its own goods and raising its own food-stuffs, and thus partly retaining at home the hundreds of millions that formerly went North.

It is, moreover, annually shipping North a great many million dollars' worth of pig iron, cotton goods, lumber, early fruits and vegetables. These advantages alone would place the South on an equality with the best of the agricultural regions of the West.

But these advantages, great as they are for the creation of wealth and the development of a personal prosperity, are only a part of the foundation on which the wonderful activity that now thrills the South is based.

* * * * *

The great mineral belt which extends from West Virginia to Northern Alabama, covering upwards of 100,000 square miles of country in the central portion of the Southern States, east of the Mississippi river, is, so far as the variety and abundance of its natural wealth is concerned, by far the most remarkable portion of North America, if not of the world.

Roughly speaking, it is 700 miles long by 150 miles wide.

It can be truthfully said that this region contains fifteen times as much coal, accessible to economical mining as can be found in any contiguous field of like area in the world, and that it contains forty times as much coal as the coal fields of England had in them before a pick had been struck in the ground.

This coal field area is heavily timbered with virgin forests of the largest growth and most valuable kinds of our North American woods.

This region is now acknowledged by all experts to be the richest iron ore district in the world.

In addition to its vast wealth of coal and iron, it possesses the supreme advantages of having these materials in closer proximity and more easily mined than elsewhere.

Instead of having to transport its ore 1,000 miles, as many northern furnaces do, and its coke 600 to 900 miles, as many furnaces are compelled to do, it has its ore, coal and limestone within a few miles of its furnaces.

It can manufacture iron and ship it to Pennsylvania markets and still sell it at a profit for less than the actual cost of production to many furnaces in that State.

But so rapidly is the demand for iron increasing that the productive capacity of Pennsylvania's furnaces, as well as of all the new furnaces which the South can build, will be taxed to keep pace with it.

Based on these facts the South can continue its present marvelous activity without any danger of overdoing the business.

Wherever activity prevails there will be some speculative excitement, and in the building up of an industrial empire some may lose through unwise investments in unsound enterprises, but this should not prejudice the public against the healthy progress of the South.

Town-building has become a science. We no longer look for the struggling cross-roads village to gradually grow into a town and the town into a city.

Men of keen business instincts select a site for a new town just as a financier may select a place for the establishment of a new bank.

The town-site may be a wheat-field or a forest today, while a year hence it may be a thriving place with several thousand inhabitants, with all the advantages of schools, churches, electric lights, water works, etc.

* * * * *

From Shenandoah Junction in West Virginia, where the Baltimore & Ohio crosses the Shenandoah Valley Railroad, to Birmingham, Ala., there will be five or ten years hence a dozen industrial towns for every one that now exists. The wonderful record made by the West in the building up of Denver, Omaha, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, Kansas City and other places is to be far more than duplicated in this great mineral district of the South, the richest in the world. The increase in th population of the United States during the next ten years will be about 18,000,000 or 20,000,000, or as much as the population of the entire South from Maryland to Texas at present. Instead of going to the far West as heretofore, the drift of population is now Southward.

* * * * *

Birmingham first demonstrated that Alabama could produce pig iron and ship it to Pennsylvania and sell it at a profit at a lower price than the actual cost of production to many Pennsylvania furnaces. Birmingham blazed the pathway of industrial progress, and opened up to the South the possibility of greater prosperity than had ever been dreamed of in the past. Though this work commenced ten years ago, it is during the last five years that the greatest activity has been seen. But the record of the last decade shows with what tireless energy the South has been working.

Since 1880 the South has doubled its railroad mileage, and now has 40,000 miles in operation against 20,000 ten years ago, and it is now building more new mileage than all other sections of the country combined.

In these ten years it has spent upwards of $800,000,000 in building new railroads and improving old ones. It has increased the value of its taxable property over $1,500,000,000.

In 1880 the South mined 5,000,000 tons of coal. In 1890 it will put out about 22,000,000 tons.

The 300,000,000 tons of pig iron produced in 1880 has grown to 2,000,000,000 this year.

Its cotton mills have increased from 160 with 600,000 spindles to 355 with over 2,000,000 spindles; its cotton-seed oil mills from 40 with a capital of 3,500,000 to 215 with a capital of $20,000,000.

In all other lines of manufacturing the same wonderful growth has marked the record of the last ten years.

During the last four years the South has organized over 15,000 new manufacturing enterprises, covering every line of industry from a tack factory to steel ship-building yards.

While thus developing its industrial interests the south has not neglected its agriculture.

Its total grain production for 1889 was 650,000,000 bushels, against 480,000,000 bushels in 1880, a gain of 220,000,000 bushels, or a larger percentage of increase than was made by the rest of the country. In 1880 the South's live stock was worth $390,000,000; in 1890 it is worth nearly $600,000,000.

The total value of the South's agricultural productions this year is $1,000,000,000, against $600,000,000 in 1880, a gain of $400,000,000.

The cotton crop of 5,700,000 bales of 1880 has risen to nearly 8,000,000 bales this year, worth, including the seed, about $500,000,000.

The number of national banks has increased from 220 with a capital of $45,000,000 to over 500 with a capital of $80,000,000, a more rapid percentage of gain than has been shown by the banking interests of the rest of the country.

As wonderful as has been the progress which these figures indicate, we have only seen the beginning of the South's advancement. New England has grown enormously rich through its investments in the West. It was New England capital that made possible the building up of Chicago, Kansas City and hundreds of other places. New England furnished the money for the construction of railroads to develop all parts of the West, to open mines, to build iron and steel works and to establish banks.

The profits of such developments, always averaging a higher percentage than can be secured in any other line of work, have returned to enrich all New England and to make the national banking capital of Boston greater by several million dollars than that of New Rork. Baltimore now has a better opportunity to enrich herself than was ever presented to Boston.

Instead of stretching out its financial influence to control the development of a distant region and to build railroads to open up a new country to be peopled as Boston did, it has at its very doors a country destined to be the cotton, the iron and the steel manufacturing center of America, if not of the world. It is a country of vast possibilities, where wealth will be created more rapidly than when California first turned its golden stream into the channels of the world's trade; a country where ten years hence hundreds of big towns and cities will stand where wheat or corn or cotton is growing now; a country in which every railroad is overtaxed with business, and where thousands of miles of new railway must be built; a country incomparably rich in material resources that need but the touch of capital and energy to produce an abundant harvest of wealth. Every dollar that Baltimore wisely invests in the industrial development of that section, whether it be in the building of railroads, the starting of new towns or th establishment of iron works, will not only return a large profit to enrich this city, but it will help to make Baltimore the great financial and commercial center of the whole South."

THE BILL SNORT LETTERS.

Col. Snort Gives An Inside View of How the News Was Received At the White House.

National Democrat.

WHITE HOUSE, WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 14, 1890.

To Major Dan McGary, Houston, Texas:

MY DEAR MAJOR:—We have not got over it yet. I am afraid we never shall. We White House inmates are sick. We are an entire hospital, with a morgue and cemetery in the back yard, and an undertaker's establishment on the front floor. Harrison did not take it as easy as he took that cottage by the sea. He took it, the election news, hard. When he and "Wanny" meet it reminds me of the meeting between a decrepid colored couple down in Texas:

Aunt Sukey—"How is you comin' on, Uncle Mose? You don't look as peart as yer did a while ago."

Uncle Mose—I ain't as peart as I was, Aunt Sukey, but I still sorter holds together in spots. How is yerself? You looks sorter feeble."

Aunt Sukey—"Oh, I'se a kickin', Uncle Mose, but I ain't kickin' very high."

That's about the fix of all the Republican leaders, who, only a short time ago, used to walk in the middle of the street with their hats hanging on their left ears like the man who owned a coal yard. When I think of the cheek and gall of the Republican party leaders it fills me with awe, the idea of their calling themselves reformers, and having to stop every fifteen minutes to explain some crookedness in their own records—the presumption of the blind men, mentioned in the New Testament, who attempted to lead the blind, is modesty itself compared with that of the blind who insist on leading those who can see. The Republican leaders have not only sold themselves for a mess of pottage to the monopolists, but they have had the luck to have some one kick over the pottage. No wonder the Republicans cut loose from their party. When the biggest rascals in the party are pulling the strings, it is high time to cut the strings. I never saw a worse managed campaign. The Republican campaign liar and the Republican campaign fool seem to have blended into one neat and homogeneous whole; and he worked steadily until the polls closed under the delusion that, like a waiter at a restaurant, he was carrying everything before him, from the rising of the sun even unto the going down of the same, only to realize that there is no telling how a ballot box is located until the contents are counted. "Wanny" is very much troubled about the future of this country He says that if the American people paid as much attention to religion as they did to politics nine-tenths of them would be saved. This, considering the source, is very good, indeed. I told him if his friends followed his advice on election day and "voted as they prayed," they could not do much praying, judging by the returns from Pennsylvania. Quay has gone to the dogs, which is certainly rough on the dogs.

I conversed with a prominent defeated candidate who ran for a high position in Philadelphia and was scooped. He says that he put himself in the hands of his friends, but he soon found that the hands of his friends were in him, and pretty deep, too. He also advances the proposition that eternal assessment is not only the price of victory, but also of defeat. Next time he puts himself in the hands of his friends, he proposes to have his pockets sewed up first. He says that the only Republican who can look up and try to be hopeful is the one who lies on his back and tries to drink out of a demijohn.

Harrison realizes, now, when it is too late, that if he had followed my advice the Democrats would not have been able to slip up on him while he was in swimming and steal his second term aspirations. Hereafter I don't think there will be any more trouble in my retaining my position as the power behind the throne. Hereafter, no matter where I sit, that will be the head of the table to Harrison; so the election has not been altogether devoid of good results. But I have had a time of it cheering Harrison up, and making him take his tonics and quinine regularly; his depression being caused, so he says, by the miasmatic vapors of the Potomac flats.

I had a good deal of trouble getting him to write out his Thanksgiving proclamation, and even after it was written he had a great mind—that is, as great a mind as Harrison can have—to tear it up. He said he didn't have anything to be thankful for, and that those who did the eating could say grace, but I gave him a spoonful of quinine and iron, which helped him some.

"What, Mr. President," says I, "nothing to be thankful for, when the Presidential aspirations of Reed and McKinley have failed so badly that the creditors will be unable to realize 10 cents on the dollar? Haven't you got 'Russ' and 'Lige' and the cottage by the sea, and two years and more with all the soft snaps, pick-ups and other Presidential perquisites? I know that the salary is not such a tremendous amount, but those perquisites, they are not to be sneezed at. As a rural member of the Texas Legislature once remarked: 'The per diriums, gentlemen, don't more than pay for my whisky, but the periquees, the periquees, gentlemen, are h—ll.' Just so, Mr. President, 'the periquees' are still on top for the next two years, and we should be thankful for them. See gospel according to St. John Wanamaker, XIX chapter, 23rd verse, or read the epistles of St. James, the Evangelist, otherwise known as the Mulligan letters. We have got lots to be thankful for."

"I wish," said President Harrison, sadly, "that, like yourself, Colonel Snort, I could look at the bright side of things, but I see nothing to give thanks for. The unhealthiness of the White House will be the death of us all." I thought to myself that if he managed to hold out to the end of his term he would feel somewhat relieved. However I replied:

"Once more, Mr. President, let me remind you that Reed, so far from being a rival lion in the Presidential jungle, has just got about vitality enough left to draw his salary, that's all. There is at least two dollars' worth of thanksgiving in that, and seventy five cents' worth more in the fact that McKinley has been retired permanently from circulation.

"Yes, there is some little comfort in that," said Harrison, after he had taken some more tonic at my request to intimidate the miasmatic vapors of the Potomac flats.

"Besides, Mr. President," I continued, "one should be thankful on general principles. When a certain boy was grinning at the breakfast table his father, who had put up money on Quay, asked angrily "what are you grinning at, you baldfaced monkey?" to which the youth responded—"because, dear father, I am tickled." The father scowlingly asked—"tickled, are you? what tickles you so infernally?" to which the boy responded—"please, sir; I'm tickled because I am alive." Just so, Mr. President, I think we inmates of the White House should be tickled because we are alive, and can keep right on drawing our salaries.

Once more Harrison shook his head in a dismal manner, and said something about the White House needing repairs, as the health of the Presidential family had become impaired The inmates of the White House just now do not remind one so much of a fac simile as they do of a sick family.

"Mr. President, we should imitate that wise and philosophical boy, to whom I have just alluded. Let us accept the advent of Thanksgivings for what it is worth, and never look a gift Thanksgiving in the mouth. Stuff the turkey, chop the salad and kill the fatted goose; spice the oysters, stir the batter and thump the loud bassoon. Awaken the echoes with the hugag and the melody of timbrels. Thanksgiving will soon be among us, and we all should be individually among Thanksgiving. Let each of us, including Quay and Ingalls, and all the other members of the sick family be grateful for not being a trifle worse off than we are. Let the defeated candidates who prefer growling to Thanksgiving and refulgence, reflect that this day was not set apart for their especial benefit, anyhow, and that the other fellow, who was elected, is wearing a grin that makes the top of his head look like an island. And last, but not least of all, we should not sneeze at the dinner table, nor pour gravy down the back of the bald-headed man's neck. Just incorporate these ideas in your Thanksgiving proclamation, Mr. President, and it will make a hit."

Mr. Harrison made an heroic effort to throw off the gloom. It was not a smile precisely, but it came nearer being a smile than anything I have seen on his face since he got back from Indianapolis.

"Another point, Mr. President, which you should make in your Thanksgiving Proclamation, and which has been omitted by all your predecessors."

"What point is that, Col. Snort?"

"All previous Thanksgiving Proclamation's have been lacking in one thing, and that is how to prepare the turkey."

At this Harrison groaned. When I said "turkey" it made him think of the Democratic gobblers that had gobbled up everything in sight.

My dear Major, I am afraid our Thanksgiving dinner in the White House will be a very dismal affair. In the language of the poet:

Poor little Benny moans and cries,
For he "got left," poor thing,
The Democrats got breast, legs and thighs,
And Benny got a wing.

This is the saddest affair since the death and burial of Sir John Moore, when, not a drum was heard, etc—To have so much turkey in sight, and then have to eat crow, is tough.

Of one thing you may be sure, and that is that Harrison and all of his relatives will keep right on drawing nourishment from the public teat, just the same as if nothing had occurred. I reckon you have lived on a Texas ranch, and had occasion to try and make a big calf, that had got into the pen with the old cow, quit sucking by twisting the calf's tail. You can twist, and twist, and twist, until your arms ache, and that blessed calf will keep on sucking, just the same as if its tail was made of gutta percha. Well the tribe of Benjamin have got their heads and necks into into the public crib, and they lack very much of being as sensitive to adverse criticism as is the Texas calf when it is busy taking nourishment from the maternal fount.

Yours, for reform,

BILL SNORT.

ALABAMA NEWS.

Monroe and Bud Rogers, of Cullman county, made nine bales of cotton and 200 bushels of corn this year with one ox.

The reports to the Presbyterian Synod of Alabama, which recently met in Troy, shows that the church is in a more prosperous condition than at any time since the war.

The Sheffield hotel is now roofed in and will soon be ready for occupancy. The cost will exceed $120,000, besides the foundation and lots. Those are valued at $35,000.

A Bolivar county, Miss., planter sold on last week in Greenville, 150 bales of long staple cotton at 16½ cents per pound. The cotton was purchased for print works in Alsace.

Greensboro Watchman: Tom Walker, colored, in jail at this place convicted of murder in the first degree, will not be hung on December 12th, the day set for his execution by Judge Moore. The case has been appealed to the Supreme Court.

At Florence Capt. Field, recruiting officer United States army, has opened a recruiting station in this city. He has already received several recruits with a good prospect of obtaining more. The recruits will be taken to Fort McPherson, Atlanta, Ga.

A meeting will be held at the University of Alabama December 12th, for the purpose of organizing the civil and mining engineers, mine and furnace owners, and managers, chemists, metallurgists, geologists, and all others interested in the material progress of the State, into a society for the promotion of the scientific examination and discussion of practical, every day affairs.

Huntsville special: The directors of the Dallas Cotton Manufacturing Company have elected Godfrey M. Fogg of Nashville, president; William Rison, vice-president; T. B. Dallas, treasurer and general manager. A bleachery will also be established to finish goods for the southern and western markets. The first mill is to cost $500,000, and will have 25,000 spindles and 850 looms.

A special from Mobile says: It is reported that the grand jury here is considering the charge brought by Carter & Co., of Mobile against A. H. Daves & Co., of Eleanor, Ala., of raising weights on eighty-eight bales of cotton shipped by Daves & Co., to Carter & Co. The increase is about twenty pounds per bale. The cotton is said to have purchased of J. and T. Dumas of Arlington, Wilcox county, and it is claimed that the weights were afterwards raised. The parties are under arrest at Selma.

Greenville Advocate: Messrs. Houston & Co., of Garland, sent to our office this week a pure white cat squirrel that was killed by Abe Bulloch, colored, near Garland, Saturday. There was not a blemish on it, and the hair was soft and white as cotton. We have heard of this species of the cat squirrel being killed in this country, but it is seldom that they are ever seen, and it is doubtful if there are a dozen men in the county that ever beheld one.

Evergreen Star: Jeff Henderson, colored, accidentally shot and killed himself Friday afternoon. He went squirrel hunting in the morning and found dead in the woods about a mile west of Evergreen the next day. His empty gun was lying at his feet, and a dead squirrel in some brush near the breech of it. He had evidently discharged the gun while trying to extricate the squirrel with the butt.

"Don't hang to my skirts and cry so," said mamma, to her peevish and pale looking little girl. Ah! mother, if you would give it Dr. Bull's Worm Destroyers it would soon feel well, and contentedly play with its blocks and toys.

And Alabama's Choice Returns to His Old Seat in the Senate.

Special to Republican.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., Nov. 28.

The last ballot taken resulted as follows: Pugh, 90; Seay, 38.

Over $200 was left at Anniston Thursday night by Jacksonville "trash" and Jacksonville "suckers." Will they repeat the dose?

We hold today's issue back until this morning, hoping to give our readers the last ballot and final result of the Senatorial contest.

Will the Hot Blast rise and explain why it is that their carrier at this place leaves the REPUBLICAN out in the cold these frosty mornings?

Wm. McReynolds, the rapist wanted in Gadsden, Ala., made a desperate attempt to escape Monday night from the city jail in Chattanooga where he was placed for safe keeping. The fellow evidently realizes the serious charges brought against him, and in his desperation resorts to the most daring measures to prevent his being taken back to the scene of his crime.

A fatal disease is now prevailing among horses in some parts of Tennessee. Reports from Wilson county show that the disease is prevailing there to such an extent that the farmers are becoming much alarmed, and seventy-five horses have died in one neighborhood. The people at first thought the disease was due to rotten corn, but one instance is reported in which a colt that had never eaten any corn died of the complaint. One farmer took pains to see that his horses ate no corn except that which was perfectly free from rotten grains, but the precaution was of no avail, as one of his horses died.

They have taken up their winter quarters. Mr. C. D. Nelson, traveling agent for the Tennessee Coal and Iron Railroad company, left Jacksonville yesterday on the down train, having in charge Fred. Scott, who goes up for 76½ days; Huse Ross, 85 days; Tobe Crook, 202 days, and A. B. Francis, 202 days. The first two used too much profane language in the presence of ladies, while the other two dealt in whisky without license. They are all colored, and none of them look like hardened or desperate criminals. Mr. Nelson is a splendid type of the native Alabamian, and generally reaches Pratt Mines with his jail birds, especially when wearing steel bracelets.

The busy hum of push and industry is seen upon every hand in our community. Mr. S. R. Wilkinson rises with the lark, and at the dawn of each working day in the week his caravan of mules, horses, wagons and men, shovelers, diggers, sprouters and drivers, are in motion. The vast amount of grading he has already completed and the streets and avenues yet to be graded, is positive evidence that energy, muscle, brain and money is the "power behind the throne." And it means an industrial city five years hence of not less than 15,000 industrial people. It means enterprises of a gigantic scale with unlimited capital and prowess to keep the wheels continually rolling in the right direction. It means that no headless men stand at the Tredegar helm, but men of nerve and men who know how to build a city; and they will accomplish the job in good style.

The new business brought yesterday and last night, however, was a regular trash mover. Seventeen new cases had been docketed by eight o'clock and, as there was quite a number of "the boys" from Jacksonville, Talladega and others of Anniston's suburbs, the police expected to add to the already great harvest of suckers.—Anniston Hot Blast, 28th.

It is a sad mistake for the reporter of the Hot Blast to say that the ladies and gentlemen who went down to Anniston Thursday night were in any sense of the term entitled to the appellation of "suckers" or "trash." Some of the best men of Jacksonville, with their families, composed the crowd, and in future will try to steer clear of the billingsgate slang dealer of the Hot Blast. This "ink-slinger" of the Hot Blast should "slow up" a little, as this community contributes largely in a moneyed sense to the business men of that city. The "cobbling" business might suit this reporter's temperament much better than that of amusing (?) the readers of the H. B. with a tirade of obloquy, heaped upon the heads of innocent and unoffending citizens contrary to the dictates of common sense and sound journalism.

LETTER FROM MONTGOMERY.

MONTGOMERY, Nov. 26, 1890.

DEAR REPUBLICAN:

I received a letter from an old friend in the county this morning stating that he had read my letter in the REPUBLICAN last week, in which he employs these rather sarcastic words: "While you are legislating for 'Anniston and other points in the county which are forging ahead,' would it not be well for you and Mr. Cooper to legislate some for the farmers? The farmers can't 'forge forward' worth a cent, while they are never thought of by the law making powers, though they furnish bread and meat for all."

This last assertion is not true in fact. The farmers of the State in general legislation are taken care of equally with all other classes and whenever it is demonstrated that any proposed measure will work a hardship on the farmers, that is sufficient to kill the bill. In the present House and Senate there are 79 or 80 farmers and Alliancemen and it is reasonable to suppose that they will see to it that the interests of the farmers are taken care of. This will make my sixth session of service in the Legislature and I challenge any man in the county to point to a single vote of mine inimical to the farming interests of the State; or show that I have even failed to support any measure proposed for their good. The bills alluded to as coming from the towns are local measures amending their charters and such things and in no manner affects the interests of the people outside these towns. I think it right to give them such reasonable legislation as they may ask for; and I stand equally ready to support measures that will redound to the benefit of the farmers whenever any such are proposed. If my friend will, out of his abundance of knowledge, send down any bill or bills for the benefit of the farmers of Calhoun, I will cheerfully give them my support. But he proposes none. Speaking of the Senatorial election, at the close of his letter, he says: "I don't know how he (Mr. Cooper) is voting; but judging from your letter you are not voting for Mr. Kolb, though your county Democratic Alliance instructed you to do so. Maybe you will hear something drop when the next ballots go into the box. I am not quarreling with you about your vote. Vote as you please, and then Mr. Grant will be pleased with himself." It is certainly very kind of my friend to accord me the privilege of voting as I please for U. S. Senator, especially since by the Constitution and laws of the United States the responsibility and duty are imposed upon me in this matter and in no respect upon him. If I should vote as he pleased and not as I pleased and should make a mistake, it would be a mistake of which I should have to bear the responsibility and not he. Where responsibility for action attaches there ought to be freedom of action. Under our form of government a United States Senator is elected by the Legislature and not by the people. Members of the Legislature are here under oath to discharge the responsible duties of their office. To them and them alone belongs the responsibility of their votes in this matter. This being the case, they and they alone ought to be judges of the honesty, qualifications and general fitness of aspirants for the senatorship. They have no right to abdicate this function either at the bidding of personal feeling or popular clamor. They ought to do what their judgment tells them is for the State's best interest and let consequences take care of themselves. I have hitherto said that if a man accepts a nomination under pledge to vote for a certain man or measure he ought to redeem his pledge. But I am not so situated. I am here free to do what I conceive to be my duty and free from any sort of pledges whatever. A body of perhaps fifty men, representing as they say 2200 people out of 33,000, "demand" that I shall vote, not my convictions but their convictions. If in doing so a mistake is made, I will have to bear the consequences and suffer for the result and not them. The responsibility being mine and not theirs" I have voted in the senatorial election for the man I thought to be in best position to serve the State well at this juncture. That is all there is of it. Having followed the vent of my own inclinations in the matter, I am prepared to take the responsibility, and the threat that I will hear something drop at any time in the future does not disturb me in the least. I have a clear conscience in the matter and the satisfaction of knowing that I have discharged my duty to the State, and that is reward enough for me.

This much I have said in answer to my friend, because in answering him I will have answered others who are taking the same view of the matter as he.

The senatorial contest has greatly retarded the public business and will do so now more than ever since we are to meet in joint session every day until it is disposed of. I want to see an election, and the Legislature free to move on with its work. In matters of local legislation, affecting the people of the county, such as the road law, the city court bill and like measures no undue haste will be made. The people will be given an opportunity to be heard on these matters, and for one I shall be glad to follow their wishes, as I doubt not Mr. Cooper will be also. Here their wishes ought to be supreme; but in the matter of the election of a U. S. Senator, the Constitution of the United States imposes the duty upon the Legislatures of the States and there the people ought to let it rest, holding their members of the Legislature to accountability for wrong action in this as in other things, as a matter of course.

No steps have been taken as yet towards framing a general road law, though a committee has that in charge.

Opinion is divided as to a Constitutional Convention.

A bill is in the Senate to reapportion representation. By it Calhoun gets two Representatives. Mr. Cooper is on the House Committee on Reapportionment and will doubtless see that Calhoun does not suffer.

The Legislature adjourned over tomorrow for Thanksgiving. Tonight we caucus again for U. S. Senator, but it is hardly expected the deadlock will be broken. Messrs. Ellis, Brothers and Caldwell, of Jacksonville, are here.

L. W. G.

Balloting for Senator.

HOUSE.

The hour of 12 having arrived, the Speaker announced that business would be suspended and the House would proceed to voting for Senator:

Mr. White nominated Hon. Jas. L. Pugh.

Those voting for Mr. Seay were: Messrs. Amason, of Sumter, Avery, Blackwell, Clanton, Cooper, Finch, Forman, Foster, Gass, Johnson, Jones, Judge, Lane, Pettus, Smaw, Smith, of Dallas, Sparkman, Sullivan, Tucker, of Lauderdale.—18.

Those voting for Mr. Watts were: Messrs. Gilchrist, Hill, Parker, Powell, Purifoy, Rather, Sayre, Screws, Webb.—9.

Those not voting were: Messrs. Bass, Guthrie, Ramsey, Moore of Madison, Wade.

SENATE.

The President declared balloting for Senator the next order:

Mr. Smith, of Autauga, nominated Mr. Thomas H. Watts of Montgomery.

Mr. Milner nominated Hon. James L. Pugh of Barbour.

Mr. Harris, of Hale, nominated Hon. Thomas Seay of Hale.

Mr. Smith, of Mobile, by request, nominated Hon. R. F. Kolb, of Barbour.

The vote resulted as follows:

For Pugh—Messrs. President, Berry, Bloch, Compton, Davie, Downey, Grant, Godfrey, Haralson, Milner, Skeggs, Steagall, Waddell—13.

For Seay—Messrs. Bradley, Cowan, Handley, Harris of Hale, Hayes, Hundley, Lackey, Minge, Stansel—9

For Watts—Parker, Parks, Smith, of Autauga, Stallworth, Wiley.—5.

For Kolb—Harris of Lee, Inzer, NeSmith, Reynolds, Smith of Mobile—5.

The President announced that no no one having received a majority, there was no election in the Senate.

Upon casting his vote, Hon. John W. Inzer of St. Clair, said:

Mr. President: In casting my vote on this ballot for a United States Senator, I desire to say that it will not be given to the candidate of my personal prefence; but to one who it now it now seems to me, from the best information I have been able to obtain, is the choice of the majority the Democracy of the district I have the honor to represent on this floor.

A sense of duty, as a representative, alone induces me to vote as I do, I shall therefore, on this ballot, vote for Hon. R. F. Kolb.

The vote Wednesday stood: Pugh, 36; Kolb, 41; Seay 26; Watts, 15.

Mr. Pettus offered a resolution that the joint convention adjourns until Friday, 12 m., tomorrow, Thursday, being Thanksgiving Day. Adopted.

Death of Wm. J. Hughes.

This aged and highly respected citizen died at his home two miles west of Weavers Station, last Tuesday morning about 1 o'clock. Mr. Hughes was one among the oldest settlers of this county. He was born in Fairfield county, S. C., May 12th 1804, and was therefore in the 87th year of his age at the time of his death. He was a man of strong constitution. Was a good neighbor and citizen, and and enjoyed the esteem of all who knew him. For many years he was confined at home on account of bodily afflictions. He was a member of the Presbyterian church, and was buried at Jacksonville Wednesday, there to await the resurrection morn. Peace to his ashes.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24, 1890.

The last session of the Fifty-first Congress will begin at noon one week from to-day. From the first of December until the fourth of March there are only ninety-five days. Deducting Sundays, Christmas and New Year's day there remain only seventy-nine working days, even if the usual holiday recess be abandoned. The session, although short, promises to be of unusual interest and importance. On the calendar are numerous minor bills which are of particular interest to one or more Senators, and all of them are likely to be productive of discussion should they reach that stage. But whether they are passed or not there are a dozen appropriation bills which must be enacted, or else an extra session is necessary. The latter alternative is not looked upon with favor by the more conservative Democrats, nor by the Republicans who are anxious to avoid an extra session because the President, with an abiding faith in the tariff bill, wishes it to have a year's fair trial in order that the predicted era of prosperity may set in before the Democrats get a chance to touch the bill. A less important, though cogent reason, is a disposition not to let the Democrats secure the numerous offices in the Capitol until the last possible moment. How far this desire to avoid an extra session will influence the future of the election bill is not known. It is not unreasonable to suppose that the weight of the administration will be thrown in favor of the bill, especially if it is true that Harrison is openly a candidate for renomination. It cannot now be authoritatively stated that the Republicans will endeavor to pass any more pension bills this session. There are a large number of bills of this character still unacted upon, two of them, the general arrearage, and per diem service, being especially far-reaching and costly. Although it would seem as if enough had been here outlined to keep both House and Senate busy without considering tariff changes, there are two other matters which are to consume more or less time. The first of these is the Dunnell apportionment bill, a measure framed by a Republican caucus and regarded by the Democrats with suspicion and open enmity, and the second is the free coinage bill, which the silver men are determined to force if possible. All these things—election bills, pensions, appropriations, silver and apportionment,—will give enough occupation to Congress, even if each day is spent in serious application to work. If Speaker Reed, however, endeavors to make it interesting for the Democrats, the latter propose to make it interesting for him, and this will present a side which will furnish many entertaining newspaper paragraphs, besides delaying the progress of legislation. Altogether the outlook is for a lively busy session, with an atmosphere filled not only with matters of present interest, but with numerous straws blowing in the direction of 1892.

The published utterances of a number of Democratic members of Congress who have returned to town during the week indicate that the right spirit prevails among them as to the policy which should be pursued in the Fifty-second Congress. As Mr. Bynum well said, the Republican minority should be treated with fairness and liberality, and the bitterness which has been engendered in the present Congress should not be carried over into the next; and if Mr. Bynum feels this way others who have suffered from Speaker Reed's tyranny can assuredly afford to be equally forgiving. The overwhelming victory was without doubt due in some degree to the revolutionary proceedings of the republican majority during the late session of Congress, and the Democrats would make a fatal mistake if in any spirit of revenge they should follow the bad example of the Republicans when they return to power. The Republicans have had a severe penance imposed upon them for their desperate recklessness and folly, and all that will be required of the Democrats will be to see that the penitents expiate their sins in due form and are abundantly supplied with sackcloth and ashes.

When Representative Breckinridge, of Arkansas was unseated during the last session, a vacancy was created in the Ways and Means Committee which has not yet been filled. Great pressure was brought to bear upon Speaker Reed by numerous aspirants for the position, but he steadily refused to make the appointment. The Speaker probably foresaw Mr. Breckinridge's speedy return to Congress, and may restore him to the place which he occupied for so many years.

While there may be some lack in the supply of turkeys for Thanksgiving, it is very certain that a great abundance of Democratic roosters will be available, and the indomitable and "shrill-throated" fowl was never in better condition than he is this year.

Fall and Winter Season,

1890 AND 1891!

TO THE LADIES!

We take pleasure in directing your attention to our present very large and finely assorted stock of Fall and Winter Goods, Dress Silks, Woolen Dress Goods, Dress Flannels with Trimming, Velvets, Silks and Satin to match.

We added a special department of Black Woolen Dress Goods, which we can sell at from 10c to $2 a yard, representing every known make. Priestlys' Black Goods and Second Mourning a specialty.

Fine, French Millinery, Ladies', Misses' and Children's Hats, from the cheapest to the very finest quality, selected by our milliner, Miss Gerson.

Our stock of Ladies' and Children's Hose is perfect; also Handkerkerchiefs, Corsets, Jerseys, Kid and Lisle Thread Gloves, Embroidery, White Goods and Rouching.

TO GENTLEMEN.

We have the largest and finest stock of Mens', Youths' and Boys' Suits ever brought to Anniston. We have them in every style—Double-breasted, Prince Albert Frock and Sack Suits, Single-breasted Frock and Sack Suits, for extra size, stout, slims and regular sizes, and $4.50 to $35.00 a suit. We have over 500 Boys' Suits from four to sixteen years, from $2.50 to $15.00 a suit. Knee-pant from 40c to $2.50. Shirt-waists from 25c to $1.00 apiece. Mens' Dress Pants from $2.50 to $10.00 a pair.

SHOES AND BOOTS.

We have an elegant line of Ladies' and Children's Dress and School Shoes, in sewed and pegged, at all prices. Mens' and Boys' Shoes of the very best make, from $1.00 to $5.00 a pair; fine Calf and full-stock Kid Boots from $2.00 to $6.50 a pair.

An endless variety of White and Woolen Shirts, Silk, Stiff and Fur Hats, Wool Underwear, Scarfs, Ties, Collars and Cuffs.

CARPETS AND RUGS!

We have added a special Carpet Department, and have now 150 pieces of Carpet in the house which we can sell from 20 cents to $1.75 a yard. Rugs, Crumb Cloth, Window Shades and Lace Curtains.

Trunks and Valises.

We have now 250 Trunks of every description in Wood, Zinc, Iron and Leather, which we sell from 50 cents to $25.00 apiece.

We have paid special attention to getting the very best for the least money in every department and we can convince you that we are able to sell goods for less than any house in this country. Our this year's stock will greatly excel any former one, and unsurpassed facilities in buying for our four houses, from manufacturers direct for cash, enables us to undersell any other house.

We have a special

and any orders sent us will have our personal attention.

We have now twenty saleslades and salesmen who will take pleasure in showing you the kindest attention. All goods are marked in plain figures at lowest prices.

Our Millinery, Dress Goods and Wraps departments will be stocked with the very best quality and latest styles.

Thanking you for your patronage in the past and hoping to see you here at an early day, we are yours respectfully,

Miss Addie Hammond is visiting friends this week in the Magic City.

Build! build! Tenants will be on hand, and don't you doubt it.

Rev. J. H. Patton will preach at Salem next Sabbath at 11 o'clock.

Quite a large number of strangers from the Eastern and Western States were in Jacksonville this week.

Another cottage is to be built on Iola Street. Mayor Stevenson has let the contract therefor to Rutherford & Journey.

Fine Millinery, Ladies' and Misses Hats, Birds, and Wings, real cheap from now on until Christmas at Ullman Brothers, Anniston.

Fine Dress Silks, Woolen Dress Goods, Velvets, Plushes, Trimmings and Passementries at greatly reduced prices at Ullman Brothers Anniston.

Be sure and go out to the College on the night of December 8th, and see Jonah; also hear a lesson from the old blue back spelling book of fifty years ago.

The real estate market is firm but quiet. Some sales are made daily. There is no great rush, but there is no such thing as a "flattening in market."

And still they come. Who? Those who, like the "Queen of Sheba" cry, "the half hath not been told," of the wonderful resources of Jacksonville.

Men, Boys, and Children Suits, Over Coats, Dress Pants, Dress and Woolen Shirts, Fine Shoes, Hats and Gloves at reduced prices from now on until Chrismas at Ullman Brothers, Anniston.

The contract is let for extending Francis Avenue to Main Street. It pursues its course from its devouchment into Spring street, on down to College, thence up and on east to Main at the Frank corner.

Tapestry, Brussels and Ingrain Carpets, Matting, Crumb Cloth, Floor Oil Cloth, Lace Curtains, Portiers and Window Shades at prices which defy competition, at Ullman Brothers, Anniston.

Buterly is the man. A large and capacious steam bakery is the next additional enterprise to be added to Tredegar. There is a world of gingerbread meaning in the above fixed fact. The thousands coming must be fed.

The dirt for the cellar and foundation of the company's commissary building on Francis Avenue is being rapidly thrown out, and it is safe to premise that a comely and unique business brick will soon be erected thereon.

The three neat and commodious cottages being erected for Drs. J. D. and J. R. Arnold, in the "Arnold Addition," are fast nearing completion, and are already rented by some of the numerous home-seekers thronging our streets.

Capt. C. W. Brewton died at his residence in Jacksonville last Sunday morning at 3 o'clock, and was buried Monday by the Masons. Capt. Brewton was a citizen of this place for a number of years. He leaves a wife and one child and a host of friends to mourn his loss.

One gentleman, a house owner, states that he has been applied to for his house by at least twenty different parties. This shows that there is money in building neat and comfortable houses. One hundred tenements would be taken within two weeks' time.

Ullman Brothers of Anniston offer special inducements from now on until Christmas, in addition they will pay any express charges if you send them an order, and will also return you your fare both ways if you trade $10 with them. So don't miss the chance in getting goods at reduced prices.

Teams! teams!. We are informed that Messrs. Martin & Wilkerson have ordered from Tennessee a large number of draught mules for their street and other hauling. All farmers or other team owners who come in for work are promptly employed. A hundred teams could find work at good wages and prompt pay.

It is a fact that a very considerable number of tenement cottages can be rented at fair rates now and hereafter, is beyond cavil. "Why this influx of renters?" The great demand of the various industries here being inaugurated for hands brings hands by the scores. They, to economize time, must live near their work---thus the needs. No better paying property can be found than cheap and comfortable houses for the hundreds now crowding in.

52, and all told, middle-aged and young folks, male and female, representing all the trades, professions and religious sects, took in the Opera House at Anniston Thursday night, to hear Pattie Rosa, the inimitable and charming songstress of the western world.

Thursday our merchants and business men generally closed their doors from ten in the morning until three in the afternoon. Services were held at the Presbyterian church, and a goodly number of saints and sinners were the recipients of wholesome truths enunciated by the Rev. J. H. Patton, the pastor.

Many Persons are broken down from overwork or household cares. Brown's Iron Bitters Rebuilds the system, aids digestion, removes excess of bile, and cures malaria. Get the genuine.

Mr. Joe Ellis, the contractor of the Catholic Church, now being erected on Francis Avenue, is fast nearing completion. The architecture is excellent, and when finished will be quite an edifice and addition that thoroughfare. Mr. E. is a skilled mechanic, and his work bears close inspection.

Great Reduction in Ladies' Wraps.

As we have the finest and largest stock of Ladies, Misses and Children Wraps in this city, and wanting to sell every one, will for the next two weeks, sell every Wrap at a reduction of 10 per cent. This is the time to save money, as we are determined to sell every one. No finer goods to be had in any city. Don't miss this opportunity of getting a nice Long or Short Wrap, or Childrens' Knit Sacque, and real cheap at Ullman Brothers, Anniston.

For Malaria, Liver Trouble, or Indigestion, use BROWN'S IRON BITTERS

The associate editor of the Western Recorder of Louisville Ky., the representative paper of Southern Baptists, says of a sermon preached by our townsman Dr. Lane, during the recent session of the Alabama Baptist State Convention in Mobile:

"Your writer heard Dr. M. H. Lane in the morning at St. Francis street Methodist church. This brother is called the 'Hawthorne of Alabama.' As pulpit orator and platform speaker, he has but few equals in the bounds of the Southern Baptist Convention."

"Return thanks for the innumerable blessings bestowed on them by the Supreme Ruler, and that they remember by kindly deeds the poor and afflicted." This is the language employed in Gov. Seay's proclamation to the people of Alabama to observe the 27th of November as a day of thanksgiving and prayer. The REPUBLICAN abstained from manual labor, but the "head and front" of the concern was absent; hence, there were no collaterals on hand. But, be it said to his credit, one warm-hearted christian soul reached out the giving and loving hand, and generously donated one dozen large and luscious oranges, grown in Florida groves His name is B. H. Denman. That's right, Bro, D. The Lord will bless those who "cast their bread upon the waters."

The brick plant is a decided success and grinds out daily 25,000 brick. One kiln will be fired in a day or so, and then another and another. The brick will be of the best quality. This enterprise and its hustling and gritty owners deserve special mention, and have already elicited the commendation of the public. It is proposed to double the capacity of this plant, turning out 50,000 brick per day. Even this additional 25,000 brick will not lessen the demand. It is every day demonstrated that our moneyed men have started out with the fixed determination to build a city of no mean pretensions, and they will do it. It is not speculation, but to build business blocks and tenement houses, the latter just now in unprecedented demand. The tide has set in and a second Noah's flood cannot impede its onward march.

It was too good to be lost. But the best of good things ever and anon take wings and are often "caught on the fly" by greedy and prowling cormorants. A great big old-time Alabama waiter, 4 by three feet, was filled and piled to its utmost capacity about 11 o'clock sharp Thursday morning, with turkey, sliced gobbler, chicken pie, stewed chicken, roasted duck, cake in endless variety and flavor, and whole heaps of other goodies, all destined for this office and intended, of course, as a slight appreciation of the inmates hereof. But, alas! That waiter and its contents never reached its proposed haven of rest. The narrow-gauge tramway strikers met the incandescent and sable descendant of Ethiopa's shores, bearer of the edibles, and despoiled him of his luggage. This is the first highway robbery occurring on Francis Avenue, and it is the prayer of the consignees that the strikers may never strike at our hash again or bother our bread-basket any more.

The firm of Elwell & Watson is this day dissolved by mutual consent, Mr. Watson retiring. The business known as the Tredegar Paint & Decorative Company will be carried on by

It Removes Pimples and Blotches.

I take pleasure in recommending Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) as a Blood Purifier. A few bottles cured me of a blood trouble after all other remedies had failed. It also removed pimples and blotches from my face, leaving the skin clear and smooth. While taking S. S. S. my appetite increased and my general health improved. Its effects as a tonic are unequaled.

I cheerfully bear testimony to the curative properties of your wonderful Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) I was troubled with sores on my hands which I could not cure, my blood was so out of order. I was advised by a friend to try S. S. S., and was surprised to find that after using one bottle I was entirely cured, and have not been troubled since.

Two Members Fired.

Montgomery Advertiser.

The County Democratic Executive Committee had a special session yesterday afternoon for the purpose of trying Mr. E. P. Johnson, of Beat 18 against whom charges of disloyalty to the party had been brought.

On the strength of uncontradicted proof that Mr. Johnson had both voted and worked for S. A. Pilley, the Independent candidate for Congress in this district, he was by a unanimous vote expelled from the committee.

It being understood that charges of disloyalty would be preferred against Mr. John Fraser, also a member of the committee from Beat 14, Mr. Fraser had prepared an answer to the same which he submitted to the committee through Mr. E. P. Johnson. On the admission of Mr. Fraser in his answer to charges which had not been preferred, that he both voted and worked for S. A. Pilley, the Independent candidate for Congress, he was forthwith expelled from the committee by a unanimous vote.

The committee then went into an election to fill the vacancies caused by expelling Messrs. Johnson and Fraser, and elected Mr. L. J. Smiley from Beat 13, and Mr. J. J. Weldon, from 14.

Wall Street and the Louisiana Lottery.

Montgomery News.

The News, in order to suppress gambling and prevent the utter brutilization of negroes, especially, and the thorough corruption of all classes of whites, and the giving of something for nothing by the poor who turned over their little hard-earned gains, for no consideration, to the enormously rich of New Orleans—the News proposed to invest the Postmaster General with dangerous privileges and powers.

We ferred his unworthiness, but confessed it even better to tolerate Mr. Wanamaker's vanity and eagerness to make money and rob postal clerks and pry into people's secrets and business than suffer the New Orleans lottery to continue its depredations upon the people and especially upon the poor and illiterate.

But listen to another story of the same sort and see how different the conduct of the government when dealing with the gamblers of New Orleans and with those of Wall street. One Cabinet officer, the eminently godly Wanamaker, stops the mails and captures the money and prevents remittances and virtually throttles the bank of the New Orleans banditti, while another unctious Uriah Heap asserts his goodness and godliness in saving the victims of Gould and Vanderbilt and Wall street itself from utter annihilation.

The New Orleans gambling hell is sought to be destroyed and all the forces of government are devoted to this purpose. At the very same moment, Windom, an ex-gambler from Wall street, reverses the policy of Wanamaker and absolutely taxes the people many millions in order to prevent the bankruptcy of these rapacious and lawless Wall street gamblers and plunderers of the country.

Windom seems to think that it is the duty of the toiling multitudes of the United States to exempt these crazed gamblers from necessary results of their own folly or madness. Windom buys United States bonds at enormous prices that gold may flow, as another Pactolus, down Wall street. The gamblers grasp and are maddened and Gould taking advantage of terror caused by Baring's Bros.' distress, is alleged to have bought the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, the Richmond and Danville and Canadian Pacific Railway systems. He becomes, at once, the master of forty thousand miles of railway lines, and as the News was saying, some days ago, is more powerful than the President of the United States or Czar of Russia.

Windom, with all the forces at his command and all the wealth of the government, sustains and upholds the monstrous gambling hells of New York; while Wanamaker uses every agency of force or violence at his command to destroy the comparatively innocent and harmless gamblers of New Orleans.

People sent from $1 to $50 a month each to the New Orleans lottery; while the same classes of moralists and speculators send thousands into the slums of Wall street. It never comes back. When Windom pays $25 to $27 premiums for $100 bonds, the people are the losers and bondholders are enormously enriched. Windom transports Federal gold from San Francisco, and from all the mints and custom houses and heaps it up in Wall street, that money, however scarce elsewhere, may abound in the great American "den of thieves."

Wanamaker, in the exercise of his functions as a guardian of people's purses, reverses the policy of Windom and will suffer not a dollar to flow South into New Orleans. Windom wants it all for the chance dealers and gamblers, and confidence men of Wall street.

In what is Wall street better or worse than the New Orleans Lottery? Why should the people be taxed to sustain and enrich the one and put under restraint to prevent their contributions to the other?

Fifty millions within a brief period have been emptied out of the treasury and out of the pockets of the people who paid it to Custom Houses into Wall Street, and popular losses on bonds and interest account have been enormous. Windom is eager to empty the treasury into Wall Street, and yet when farmers and Alliances have asked only that the volume of the currency be increased and that this currency be loaned to them in mortgaged farm, Windom and the great lords of Wall Street and of the Republican party have despised the thought.

We can't help saying that agricultural and laboring populations would be asinine, beyond all conception, if they supported a party which, having created two widely separated classes, the very rich and the very poor, now illustrates its tendencies and predictions and governing forces by turning over the people's money in the Federal treasury to the distressed gamblers of Wall street, while no benefactions are done overtaxed farmers and toilers of the country. The Government in fact, as administered by Republican leaders, is only a resistless machine for the robbery of the masses and the aggrandizement of the classes.

General Debility.

One by one the great general generals of the day have passed away, but there is one general who is ever with us—General Debility is name. He is no respecter of persons or of age or of sex. He imposes on the young, and in an unfair fight with old age, comes off victor. He is constantly battling against good health, and his delight is to make mankind miserable. His weapons are a lame back, and an aching side, weak kidneys, inactive liver, poor digestion, non-assimilation of food, extreme nervousness, universal lassitude, short breath, unnatural fatigue, etc. However, he is not to be feared. He is easily disarmed by a use of Dr. John Bull's Sarsaparilla. When this remedy is used to counteract the attacks of General Debility, he is made to retreat every time. In fact, General Debility and Dr. Bull's Sarsaparilla cannot be in the same system at the same time. Try it, and you will soon get strong.

Gould and Wanamaker.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The story that Jay Gould was attempting to ruin Wanamaker, because of his advocacy of the postal telegraph scheme, is revived with an addenda. It is currently believed that that the "Little Wizard" had much to do with the recent financial troubles in New York, but is not solely responsible. It is claimed that the Louisiana Lottery Company sought to punish Wanamaker, who had recently been a heavy borrower in the money market, owing to the depreciation in his Reading stock, because of his effort to supress the Lottery Company, and withdrew its enormous reserve of 87,000,000 from the banks, and so caused the great flurry in the money market. It is believed that Jay Gould and the Lottery Company pooled their issues and worked the scheme together. Wanamaker has as yet shown no signs of distress, although it is well known that he has lost money.

The Deaf Hear.

That sounds miraculous, and yet one may become temporarily deaf on account of blood poison settling in the ear, and then find quick relief by using B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm.)

John W. Weeks, Decatur, Ga., writes: "Six months ago I had a pain in my ear and in a few days it discharged matter. Then I grew deaf and could not hear at all. I began the use of B. B. B. and the running of my ear soon ceased and I now hear, while my health is much improved and I feel full of gratitude to God and to the proprietors of so good a remedy."

S. M. Ellis, Atlanta, Ga., writes: "B. B. B. cured me of most stubborn eczema. I had doctored it without success for twelve years."

W. H. Davis, San Marcos, Texas, writes: "I am rapidly recovering from blood poison by use of B. B. B.

FINAL SETTLEMENT.

STATE OF ALABAMA}
CALHOUN COUNTY.}

In Probate Court, Special term October 21th 1890.

This day came A. McCollister, agent for the heirs at law of the estate of Jacob F. Dailey deceased, and filed in Court his account and vochers for a final settlement of the administration of J. F. Dailey, who at the time of his death was administrator of estate of Chas. Dambman, decensed.

It is therefore ordered by the Court that the 17th day of November 1890 be and is hereby appointed the day upon which to audit and pass upon said account and make said settlement; and that notice thereof be given for three successive weeks in the Jacksonville Republican, a newspaper printed and published in said county, as a notice to all persons concerned, to be and appear before me, at my office in the Court House of said county, on said 17th day of November 1890 and contest said settlement if they think proper.

Farm for Sale.

We will sell on reasonable terms a good farm lying five miles from Jacksonville and four hundred yards from a depot, containing 160 acres of land. About 90 acres under fence and in cultivation. About 40 acres almost perfectly level. Has new six room frame house finished complete. Fine spring near the house and mineral springs adjacent. The farm is well watered and very suitable for a stock farm. Has also a good orchard—large new barns conveniently arranged and a good three room tenant house. Besides being good farming land, the place is supposed to have beds of rich mineral ores. Churches and schools in three-quarters of a mile. Very few farms in the county possess more advantages or better located. Apply to

A Good Name.

A Good Name is Certainly Better than Riches in the business world. That is why we never permit customers to leave our store dissatisfied with their purchases.

We aim to get the Good Will of the People, and our largely increaing business shows that we have been successful. Our goods, our prices, and our straight American methods of doing business make it an object for you to

TRADE WITH US.

It's a Unique position we occupy as Leaders. This is forcibly indicated by the scores who interview us daily on styles. As we are asked, our judgment must be valued. If we know—as we do—isn't it most natural we should pattern our stock accordingly? Certainly.

The Dealers who do so much talking about the amount of money they save to the purchasers of clothing are the very ones who who are making it more expensive. For instance you cannot get a whole page advertisement for nothing. Neither can any man or concern afford to sell you goods for LESS than COST and succeed.

Those who advertise goods at one half or one third of their value are still making profits big enough to pay for all the charity they do to their customers.

Ours is a Plain,

Fair dealing house. We sell our Merchandise at a living profit. Our goods are same price to everybody. Each article marked in Plain Figures.

No Private Cost Mark that you can't Understand. Should you buy of us and not be pleased with your purchase, we refund your money as freely as we receive it. This has been the success of our house, as

We have never refused to give back purchase money, if the article is brought back uninjured. Bear this in mind. In our advertisement we have stated how we do business; in our next we will tell you something else.
