BANDITTI.

ALDERMAN J. T. WILSON MORTALLY WOUNDED AT ATTALLA.

A Gang Unearthed Supposed to be Responsible for the Recent Terrible Railway Wreck.

ATTALLA, Ala., April 25.—One of the blackest chapters in the criminal annals of our nature-favored town is herein chronicled. About four weeks ago, according to the open confession of one of the banditti, a band of robbers, thieves and burglars was organized here in Attalla for the purpose of operating in this place and hereabouts, consisting of John Bentley, William Florence Bentley, W. W. Kagle, Thomas Thomason, James Cross, Andy Johnson and John Kircous. Andy Johnson, however, was a detective, and was kept in the police force informed of all the plans of banditti. One of them has already confessed to having some knowledge of the train wreckers, who wrecked the train at Springville, Ala., last Monday night, and it is believed that this banditti are the perpetrators of that heinous crime. On Wednesday night last they went to Keener, fourteen miles north of here on the Alabama Great Southern Railroad, and robbed the express office and depot. The arrangements were made for the banditti to go to J. H. McCleskey's store on Sand Mountain, eight miles west of this place last night (Friday) and rob it. The plans were communicated to the Chief of Police yesterday by Andy Johnson, who was playing the part of a detective.

Chief of Police A. G. Franklin summoned a posse, consisting of Deputy Marshal Charles Burke, Alderman J. Thomas Wilson, et al., to go and station themselves at Big Wills creek bridge, about one mile west of Attalla, for the purpose of capturing the robbers as they returned to Attalla from McCleskey's store. They had several hundred dollars worth of clothing, shoes, etc., which they had gotten in the burglary, and were well armed. The leader of the posse commanded the highwaymen to halt, as they walked off the end of the bridge huddled closely together. Thinking of means of escape, the banditti, instead of obeying the command, opened fire on the posse, being equal to the occasion in gallantry and preparation, promptly returned the firing and a regular fusillade of firing ensued for some time. All of the crowd was captured except John Bentley and one other member of the banditti. William Florence Bentley received several shots and the doctors say his survival is doubtful. Alderman J. Thomas Wilson received several wounds, either one of which the doctors say could have been fatal. He is alive at this writing, but the end is doubtless near. Our citizens have been scouring the woods in pursuit of the two who are still at large, and great excitement has prevailed here all day. There has been no time today that you could not see crowds assembled on all corners discussing the situation and expressing an alacrity to see Judge Lynch preside over the adjudication of such criminal matters as they are today confronted by. All the captured parties are now safe in jail. The shooting occurred about 4 o'clock this morning.

"Life has been a burden to me for the past 50 years on account of great suffering from very severe and frequent headache. Bradycorine has done wonder for me. I am now a new man and shall proclaim the merit of your medicine to all I can reach." George P. Fowler, Attorney at Law, Palatka, Fla.

"Who was the youngest soldier in the Confederate army?" is an unsettled question which is attracting no little attention and is reviving many interesting war reminiscences. We must never forget or fail to honor "the boys who wore the gray," least of all those who were but children when they went to the front.

STILL IN THE RACE.

Mills of Texas, is a Candidate for the Speakership in Fact.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Careful inquiry among the few people here who know of Texas political affairs fails to uncover anything new about the situation out there. That Mills will be a candidate for speaker of the next house there can be and never has been any doubt.

The state of Texas at this time is controlled by a faction of young fellows who have acquired the rather facetious title of "Kidds." Hogg, the governor, in spite of his swinish cognomen, is the leader of this young contingent, and Horace Hinton, the newly appointed senator, is one of his most courageous lieutenants.

The old politicians, the "ins," like Mills, Culberson and Coke, are not members of the new faction, and do not expect anything of them. The presumption is that Hogg appointed Hinton for the unexpired term of Mr. Reagan to win that gentleman's support for himself when the legislature meets in January, 1893. Hogg is ambitious, and wants to be a senator. Mills was not an applicant for the Reagan vacancy, but he will go on the hustings, a la Palmer, in 1893, and then let the people elect a legislature friendly or unfriendly to his interests. With such a programme ahead of him he is of course solicitous to succeed to the speakership, as that would vastly strengthen him in his race for a seat in the upper chamber. He has had, altogether, eighteen years in the house, has long been a leading exponent of the Democratic doctrine of tariff reform, and naturally he is ambitious to handle the gavel during the last term he is to serve.

THE WEST FOR CLEVELAND.

That is What Hon. J. N. Castle Says of the Situation.

STILLWATER, Minn., April 28.—Hon. J. N. Castle will represent the St. Paul district in the Fifty-second congress.

Mr. Castle is a prominent lawyer and a rock-ribbed Democrat.

In a recent interview he was asked: "Who do you think will be the Democratic nominee for president?"

"Cleveland, undoubtedly," was Mr. Castle's answer.

That the general impression in the west?

"It certainly is, as far as I am able to judge. I am familiar with the feeling in a number of western states, and I do not hesitate to say that Cleveland is the choice of an overwhelming majority of the Democrats of that section."

"How about your own state, Minnesota?"

"Well, we never talk anything but Cleveland out there. He is practically the unanimous choice of the Minnesota Democrats. Their leader in the next national campaign will be as strong in our western states as he is in Minnesota."

"Yes, in a number of them. In Wisconsin nobody else is thought of. In Michigan and Nebraska it is about the same way. There may be some opposition to Cleveland's nomination in Ohio, but I believe that the majority of the party in that state is certainly for him. In fact, the Democrats of the entire west consider Mr. Cleveland their safest and best nominee for 1892."

TO MEET AT CHATTANOOGA.

The Conference of the Unitarian Church on April 30.

CHATTANOOGA, April 28.—The representatives of the Unitarian societies, which will meet in Chattanooga on Wednesday and Thursday, will be a notable occasion. Ministers and delegates from Charleston, New Orleans, Louisville, Atlanta, Cincinnati, Chicago, Boston and other cities, will be there, and sermons and addresses will be given by men of marked address and wide reputation.

The new church building for the Unitarian society of Chattanooga will be dedicated on Wednesday evening. The dedication sermon to be preached by Rev. G. Reynolds, of Boston. Rev. J. L. Jones, of Chicago, will deliver an address on Theodore Parker.

Dr. Mayo will speak of the educational wisdom which he has conducted for eight or ten years under auspices of the broad and liberal church to which he belongs. Other interesting speakers will take part in the meetings of the conference.

THE PRESIDENT'S SISTER DYING.

Harried from a Buggy Within Sight of the Harrison Homestead.

NORTH BEND, Ind., April 28.—Mrs. Betty Eason, the eldest sister of President Harrison, is dying. Upon returning from church a few days since, she met with a fatal mishap. The family horse she was driving becomes frightened on account of the holding-back strap having given way while going down hill, and as the buggy rolls against the trunk and animal he dashes the end of the grade, yet only to wheel suddenly around and upset the vehicle in which the estimable lady was riding, which deplored accident is fastly bringing an end to her existence.

WIRES THE SECRETARY OF WAR.

The Prosecuting Attorney Will Bring the Lynchers to Justice.

WALLA WALLA, Wash., April 28.—Great excitement still prevails over the lynching of Hunt here by the soldiers of Superior. Judge Upton has called on Col. Compton, commanding Fort Walla Walla, for aid in ferreting out the guilty parties and bringing them to justice. The grand jury has been summoned to inquire into the tragedy. The prosecuting attorney has telegraphed to the secretary of war the details of this lynching.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Development in the Week Ending April 25.

The activity in industrial matters in the south for this week has been up to the standard of the past three months, and the diversity of the industries established continues to be a most noticeable and gratifying feature. Cotton is no longer king in this section, as notwithstanding the fact that the advantages to be derived from having the mills near the source of supply is being appreciated and many cotton and knitting mills are being erected throughout the south, still the other vast range of new industries are being so rapidly developed and the opportunities for the successful establishment of other industries are so flattering that the development has become general, and new and especially those industries are springing up in all parts of the southern states.

The Tradesmen, Chattanooga, Tenn., in its weekly review of the manufacturing progress of the south, reports 53 new industries, 9 new buildings, 8 new railroads, 1 belt line, 2 electric lines and 1 street railway. Among the most important new industries reported to the tradesmen are the following: Barren, Tenn., a brick works at Chattanooga, Tenn.; carriage factory at Florence, Ala.; chemical works at Augusta, Ga.; and machine shops at Ark. and Opelousas, La.; the first named having $100,000 capital. ## COUNTERFEITERS.

Among Whom Italians are the Most Frequent. Get in Trouble.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—There is a recent circulation of fresh counterfeit paper money, which even the government's engravers at the bureau confess own work.

Photographic and photochromic processes of late invention have rendered it easy for forgers to reproduce any note or certificate with absolute perfection so far as the designs are concerned. As for the paper to print them upon, the government has been very successful in its manufacture at a cheap rate to any one who wants to buy. A skilled operator took a large number of real $1 bills, washed them in a chemical bath so as to remove every trace of the printing, and then used the plates he had prepared to print on the same paper a series of bills, the profit on each being $400. The counterfeit was effective in sufficient quantity to be used in one day. One bank, not being aware of the trick, took them in without question. There were one or two almost imperceptible defects, which caused them to be detected, but that was because the forger had not been able to copy the fine lines of the original. In photography there is no error, and that is the reason why the forger today is in a position, for the first time, to make a treasury note a certificate on a paper which can be traced to a real one. It is for this reason that the chief of the secret service urges, as a last resort, that each deputy shall have a distinctive paper of its own, the imitation of which shall be forbidden by legal enactment.

Even thus the safeguard is not very sure, and the forger is recognized that the fight against the forgers must be fought from this time on upon more perilous ground than ever hitherto.

It is an interesting thing in view of the present Italian complication, to consider the fact that the Italians in this country, according to the records of the secret service are so peculiarly addicted to the crime of counterfeiting that in a single year more than 100,000 counterfeit bills have been traced to the hands of Italian counterfeiters.

One feature characteristic of Italian counterfeiting methods is a widespread organization, seldom betrayed by traitors, which renders it possible to issue the same forged money, simultaneously from points a great ways apart—a scheme calculated to occasion the government detectives much trouble in their effort to discover the source of supply and track the producer.

GENERAL HAMPTON.

People Gather at Augusta from All Over the South to Do Him Honor.

Augusta, Ga., April 28.—Gen. Wade Hampton, his nephew, Frank Hampton, Miss Daisy Hampton and two nieces, Misses Lucy and M. S. Hampton are at the Arlington.

The general is well and looking splendidly. His appearance is somewhat changed, his face being only shaded by a silvery mustache, he having removed his whiskers.

Other Confederate generals have also arrived. But Hampton is the hero of the occasion and has been able to feel that the last day of his life is being lived in the hearts of the old soldiers, whose souls thrill with joy at seeing another opportunity to grasp the hands of their brave commander.

For he is called to answer the roll call of another world.

His occasion will be a memorable one, and among the grandest events that have ever occurred in the entire country.

NEW YORK ALLIANCEMEN.

Politicians Somewhat Stirred up in Regard to the Situation.

HOMERVILLE, N. Y., April 25.—The state convention of the Farmers' Alliance in New York has created a great stir here among the politicians.

While the body was in process of organization, a friendly delegation from the Knights of Labor was received. President Polk, of the National Farmers' Alliance, was present and addressed the convention, advising the farmers to give the politicians among them a back seat. It is said that D. G. Allen, the state organizer, can have the state presidency if he wants it.

The political significance of the Farmers' Alliance movement is beginning to be appreciated.

A striking feature of the gathering is the earnestness of the men taking part in it. They talk of nothing else and think of nothing else, but in a cold, conservative way, devoid of claptrap or enthusiasm, and they are real farmers, too, and not professionals.

Mayor Day, of this city, was asked what he thought of the movement. "It is going to run things in this end of the state," he said. "It is composed of the very best men of the farming community, the solid old farmers who work their own soil, pay their debts and don't make any more until they have calculated all the chances."

The New York Leader.

President Arnold is generally conceded to be the best man in the convention for the position to which he was elected. He is about 65 years old, tall and slender, with a full gray beard and rather sandy gray hair. He was born in Wyoming county, where his father came in 1812 from New England, bringing his family and his belongings in an ox cart.

Mr. Arnold now lives on the homestead, near Arcade, which his father pre-empted, and is regarded as one of the most solid, substantial farmers in the neighborhood. He was one of the first men to join the Alliance in his county, the first sub-Alliance being organized there January 27.

Before he was elected he was closely questioned as to his opinions on the Ocala platform. He was found to be all right, but when asked how he stood on the silver question he answered: "I favor the free and unlimited coinage of silver, as I understand it."

Free Silver.

He was asked how he understood it later. He said: "I believe in the free coinage of silver dollars with a dollar's worth of silver in them." He is rather free-silver.

He was also asked his opinion of the third party movement. "It is too early to tell of that," he said. "Our energies for a while will be devoted to the work of organization and education."

National Lecturer Willets says that New Jersey is organizing rapidly, and he expects to organize the State Alliance in a week or two. It is said that there is a scheme on foot to send out all the country boys similar to those used in the Henry George campaign of 1886, binding the signers to support a third party candidate on the Ocala platform.

If a million signatures are obtained, a convention will be called and nominations for president and vice president will be made.

THE WEEKLY REVIEW.

Dunn & Co.'s Summary for the Past Week.

NEW YORK, April 25.—R. G. Dunn & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: But for speculation, this would have been a comparatively dull week, but sales of 112,000,000 bushels of wheat in this market, and 80,000 bales of cotton and 2,242,000 shares of stock have supplied a certain activity, though not of the most wholesome kind. In the interior, business has been somewhat improved with more favorable weather, but many causes combine to prevent great activity. Prominent among them is a reaction from the excessive real estate speculation and building which have prevailed for years in some quarters; thus, at Philadelphia the depression is explained by the fact that 6,000 new houses have been added in eight years.

Cotton is quiet and lower at New Orleans, and sugar active and lower. The general trade has been but a slight improvement, but is rather dull at Jacksonville, but extensive investments in phosphates with heavy shipments cause activity in parts of the state where there are deposits.

Money markets are generally undisturbed and comparatively easy with a fair to brisk demand at many points, and a little stringency at one or two.

Foreign trade shows an increase of 10.6 per cent. over last year, in exports from New York for April, thus far, while in imports there is a decrease of about 6 per cent., but there are renewed signs of foreign selling of securities on the recent rise, and it is not to be expected that large gold exports in the summer can be prevented, unless breadstuffs so decline as to permit a free movement prior to June.

The change in the average prices of all commodities has been but a slight advance for the week, in spite of the rise in wheat. For manufactured products the tendency is lower on the whole. Prices have changed scarcely at all in the great industries, but the tone of the iron trade is better.

White Caps Near Riverhead.

FEW YORK, April 25.—E. Z. P. Dayton, a well to do farmer of Upper Mills, near Riverhead, has applied to District Attorney Benjamin H. Reeves, of Suffolk county, for protection. Dayton says that his life is threatened by white caps and that he is hourly in fear of death at their hands. He has received warning notes decorated with collars and skulls and cross bones, and he is locked up in the country or forced to his home by his father.

DALTON'S NEW BOOM.

The Western and Atlantic Repair Shops to Be Removed There.

DALTON, Ga., April 25.—There is a rumor here to the effect that the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis road will remove its car repair shops from Atlanta to Dalton.

While railroad men are reticent, the engineers have several times surveyed the fifteen acres of land belonging to the company, and staked off plots for excavations. A large, modern turn table is being put in, and sidetracks graded to the grounds, and some forty men are at work.

The visit and examination of the grounds by President Thomas and other officials gives some encouragement to the rumor. Several car loads of stone, brick and timbers are on the ground. The need of the Atlanta grounds for terminal facilities has induced the change.

Circuit Court.

Circuit Court opened Monday. Judge Box presiding. The charge of his honor to the grand jury was lucid and able. The grand jury is a very intelligent body of gentlemen and the interests of the State are safe in their hands. The same may be said of the petit jury. The attendance has been small each day of the court, owing to the fact that the planters are very busy in their crops. The business of the court is being rapidly dispatched and may be finished in two weeks, three at the utmost.

Piedmont Dramatic Club.

Monday night, at College hall, the Piedmont dramatic club rendered "The old clothes merchant of Venice," a burlesque sketch, before a fair house of our best people. That the club largely exceeded the expectations of the audience is to bestow upon them less than deserved praise. Each and every member of the club evinced dramatic talent and knowledge of the arts of the stage far above that ordinarily possessed by amateurs. Mrs. Haines, the Misses Dorsey, Master Sherwood Haines and Arthur H. Smith accompanied the party. The company was composed of Mr. McPherson, stage manager, Mr. Gould, Mr. Haines, Mr. Williams, Mr. Cooke and Mr. Dorsey. The local gangs were good, especially that on the spelling, frequently eliciting applause and laughter. On the whole our people were well entertained and cordially extended the club an invitation to come again.

Subscribers are constantly writing to this office to know the state of their accounts. To avoid the trouble of correspondence on this head the date to which each subscriber has paid up will henceforth be printed on his paper with his name. This will serve also to let subscribers know that they have received proper credit for amounts sent in and will answer for a receipt. It is possible that errors have been made in making up the list, this week, as we have not been able to compare the whole of it with the ledger. Whenever a subscriber finds from his receipt that there is an error in his account, we will be greatly obliged if he will at once notify us by letter or postal card, so that proper correction may be made. He certainly to give your post-office, when you write.

DELEGATES TO WORLD'S FAIR CONVENTION.

Appointed by Judge Crook at Request of Central Committee.

JACKSONVILLE, ALA., April 27.—Editor Hot Blast, Anniston, Ala. Dear Sir:—I have received a circular from the Committee to arrange for holding a convention in Montgomery to consider ways and measures to have the State properly represented at the World's Fair to be held in 1893, requesting me to appoint one delegate for every three thousand inhabitants, to represent Calhoun county at said convention, and I have appointed as such delegates:

Hon. John M. McKleroy, Hon. L. W. Grant, Hon. W. P. Cooper, Hon. G. C. Williams, Dr. T. C. Hill, Mr. Geo. D. Harris, Mr. Louis J. Morris, Mr. Milton A. Smith, Mr. William G. Ledbetter, Col. Robert McKee, Genl. J. W. Burke.

I would earnestly impress upon the delegates the great importance of Alabama's being represented at the "World's Fair" in a manner becoming our grand old State, and beg a full attendance of the above gentlemen in order that Calhoun county may receive due consideration, and be fully represented.

Yours truly,
JAMES F. CROOK.

JACKSONVILLE DECORATION DAY OBSERVATIONS.

(Special to the Age-Herald)

JACKSONVILLE, ALA., April 28th.—Yesterday afternoon the pupils of United States history, assisted by the "Character Builders," under the supervision of Miss Haley, teacher of history at the State Normal school, visited the cemetery and did honor to our dead soldiers in a charming and appropriate manner.

Promptly at 2:30 the pupils marched from the school, waving their banners. The exercises were opened with prayer by Rev. Mr. Walker. The roll of pupils was called and each person responded by giving a patriotic quotation.

The programme was as follows:

Music, "Old Hundred," class. Essay, Pelham's Life, Maggie Clark. Recitation, "John Pelham," Jessie Warlick. Reading, "Letter From Pelham," Jack Ward. Recitation, "Southern Soldier Boy," Martin Crook. Song, "The Vacant Chair," girls. Recitation, "Lines on a Confederate Bill," Alberta Stevenson. Recitation, "The Conquered Banner," Annie Daveport. Reading, "Prayer of the South," Emily Goodlett. Recitation, "Ashes of Glory," Magie Wilkerson. Recitation, "Blue and the Gray," Marie Burke. Recitation, "Cover Them Over With Beautiful Flowers," Madgie Wilkerson. Carrie Turner, Katie Ross, Goldie Ayers, Lattie Weems, in concert. Song, "Sweet By-and-By," all.

DECEMBER

The flags borne by the children were United States, Stars and Bars, Confederate battle flag and Confederate camp flag. After the exercises were over a man was heard to remark: "I had not intended going over this afternoon, but when I saw the flag under which I fought so long I could not stay away." The children deserve much credit for the manner in which they acquitted themselves.

New Orleans, April 25.—A special from Attalla, Ala. says: "Last night a gang of five white robbers broke open several stores and terrorized the community by shooting at random after committing the robbery. They fled, pursued by a posse of officers and citizens, and a half mile from town the robbers stopped and defied arrest. They were armed with shot guns and revolvers. The posse surrounded them and a pitched battle followed. J. T. Wilson, Alderman of Attalla, was fatally injured, and William Bentley, one of the robbers, is dying. All the gang are arrested except two, Robert Ben ley and Kagle Lethrow. It is believed they are the parties who wrecked the Alabama Great Southern train near Springville.

SOUTHERN SCHOOL HISTORY.

The Charleston News and Courier is calling for a southern school history of the war. It is a want felt in Alabama as well as in South Carolina, but while every other section of the literary field is crowded with workers and adventurers, this particular one seems to be avoided. Why is this?

Why do not our authors write this book for which the southern people are clamoring and thousands of copies of which they are ready to buy as soon as issued from the press? What is the matter with our historians?

KELPS ACCOUNTS.

The State Examiner makes his report. MONTGOMERY, April 29.—The long expected and much talked of report of Examiner Reeves of the accounts of the commissioner of agriculture was filed with the governor.

The law makes such reports public documents, but the governor withheld the document from the public to allow the commissioner to first examine and explain or comment, if he so desired.

This report is made at the commissioner's own request, owing to certain charges preferred against him during last year's heated campaign. The commissioner is absent, and soon after his return, in a few days the report will be made public.

Mortgage Debts.

The statistics of Alabama mortgages compiled by the census bureau ought to greatly encourage every citizen of the State. Especially have the farmers good ground for self-congratulations. Taking the State as a whole, the per capita debt is only $20, while here in Jefferson county the per capita is only $167.

Again, out of a total mortgage debt of over $39,000,000, the town people owe more than $10,000,000 of it on their lots.

More than that, the counties where industrial enterprises are being built and operated, carry the great bulk of the balance. Dallas county, for instance, owes only $632,755 on mortgages, while Jefferson owes $15,000,000.

The total mortgages on all the farms of Alabama is not $10,000,000, less than that of this single county. Yet the value of the products of the farms is more than five times that of all our coal and iron and manufacturing. The farmers are in splendid shape if only they knew it.

Besides that, we have the comfortable assurance in this state of facts, that debts, even mortgage debts, are not necessarily bad things. If the money has been judiciously expended in such investments and improvements as will bring in greater returns than the interest account, debt is a good thing. Birmingham, Jefferson county, all North Alabama, in fact, has been developed and built up and made great and rich and prosperous by that very process. In borrowing $15,000,000, and making improvements with it, this county has pursued the only course open to her. As long as these improvements can be made to pay more than the interest on the money, it will pay her to keep on borrowing and investing.

And the same principle applies on the farm. If you mortgage your farm for $1000 and spend the money it is a bad thing, for it saddles on you an interest account of say $100 per annum. But if you use the $1000 in making such improvements as will increase your income by $200, you are making $100 per annum by the operation.

It's always best to have one's own money to improve with, but if one hasn't got it, we don't see but that it's a good thing to borrow it. We do not consider that Alabama is in a bad fix because she owes $39,000,000 of mortgage debts. If all this borrowed money has been as judiciously invested as the $15,000,000 here in Jefferson, it is a very great advantage.—Birmingham Age Herald.

Deafness Can't be Cured

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that we can not cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Deafness Can't be Cured

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be lost forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that we can not cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

A newspaper can say nice and pleasant things about a man and his whole family for two long years and then incur their lifetime enmity in one short week by a seeming slight. Yes, it's the fact; and you can hurrah for a candidate, back his friends, cuss his enemies and make a big fool of yourself all the way through, without a thank in the end, to find when you are a candidate that he is "out of politics." But there is one man that don't forget you, and that's the man you opposed.—Ex change.

The recently elected United States Senator of Georgia, General John B. Gordon, says:

Mr. A. K. Hawkes—Dear Sir: The pantoscopic glasses you furnished me some time since give excellent satisfaction. I have tested them by use, and must say they are unequalled in clearness and brilliancy by any that I have ever worn.

Report of State Examiner on Kolb's Accounts.

Birmingham News.

Now it appears from the report, and the proof seems to sustain it, beyond doubt that Commissioner Kolb made at least twenty-nine trips on which he used free passes, but for each of which he made an itemized charge for money expended by him for a ticket, which charge was sustained by his affidavit, and so he procured the cash from the State Treasury.

The amount of these various items is very trifling, aggregating something over $40.00. The fact that Commissioner Kolb for each trip taken charges the regular fare of the railroad company travelled over—he must frequently have been ignorant of the exact amount and learned it upon inquiry—that he rode upon his fare, yet solemnly swore he had paid the regular fare and had the amount, big or little, paid him out of the State Treasury, is not a trifling matter.

If Commissioner Kolb took twenty-nine trips over railroads on free passes and swore that he had expended sums of money for tickets it makes little difference, as far as good morals and character and obedience to the law are concerned, whether the amount involved is ten dollars or ten thousand dollars.

Alabama has had enough loose handling of the people's money in the State Capital; it should be branded as the highest crime to embezzle one dime of the public monies. If Commissioner Kolb is guilty, as charged in the report, let him be convicted.

If he is not guilty, Commissioner Kolb owes it to himself, his family and friends to demand a judgement of his innocence.

The Gist of the Matter.

Birmingham Age-Herald.
The investigation was, in fact, made at his own solicitation. He desired, it was supposed, to be vindicated of certain charges brought him while he was before the Democratic caucus as a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination. The question is, has he been vindicated? The chief of these charges was that the Commissioner travelled over the State on passes given him because of his official station and charged the State with the amount of railroad fare he would have had to pay had he not been supplied with the passes. This charge he stoutly denies. The point to consider then, is, has he been contradicted by the report of Examiner? So far as the railroad records and the testimony of railroad officials could be come at, the conclusion is inevitable that he has.

Read What Capt. James H. Savage Has to Say of Baker's Blood and Liver Cure

TESTIMONIAL.
Piedmont, Ala., May 18, 1887.

My brother, D. F. Savage, of Leadiga, Ala., has been afflicted with a bad case of blood and liver trouble for the past five years ago; the disease then broke out in great skin sores all over his body, inside his mouth and on his tongue, so that he couldn't go out of his room, nor talk. He was treated by the doctors of this section of country for two years, and also by Dr. Westmoreland, of Alabama, which only held the disease in check, without any prospects. In this condition he lay in his room for three more years. So offensive was the stench from his mouth, that he was finally carried to the room, especially in warm weather, and it was decided by doctors and all that saw him that it was only a matter of time when the disease would end him up.

In August, 1887, I heard that Dr. Baker's Blood and Liver Cure had cured one of my neighbors, Mr. J. D. Braswell, of a bad case of blood and liver trouble, and I immediately gave it to my brother. About the first of November, 1887, all sores disappeared, and although I used every means to make it break out again, it failed. My brother, by degrees, got able to work some, and he continued to improve in health and strength, until today he is stronger and in better health than ever before in his life. No sign of the disease has reappeared for over six months. I am perfectly satisfied that he is permanently cured. And I would recommend all persons afflicted with blood or liver disease to give Dr. Baker's Blood and Liver Cure a trial, feeling sure it will cure them.

(STATE OF ALABAMA, Calhoun County.)
In chancery, at Jacksonville, Ala., 9th District, Northeastern Chancery Division. W. P. Stephens vs Jennie Evans, Bertha Evans, Eddie Evans, et. als.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit of S. D. G. Attention is directed to the advertisement of the Columbus-Enquirer-Sun in this issue. Col. There must be many Georgians in Calhoun who take Georgia papers. There is no cleaner or better paper than the Enquirer-Sun.

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a muffled sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; unless cases of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that we can not cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

CLEBURNE.

A PLEASANT WEEK'S OUTING.

Pursuit of the Coy Trout in the Tallapoosa—A Look at the Gold Fields Etc.

When Col. Ellis invited me to go fishing with him in the clear waters of the Tallapoosa I was surprised into immediate acceptance. Nearly everybody else of my acquaintance had, at one time or another, formed designs upon the flimsy tribe; but he had never even been suspected of that amiable weakness.

So we two went, meeting Mr. Wince-Smith, of Anniston, at Oxanna, who made the third member of the party which was to be further augmented at Edwardsville. Col. Ellis had arranged all the details and the fish of the beautiful Tallapoosa were in imminent danger. But the Edwardsville contingent could not go on the day after our arrival and a trip to the Arbacochee gold fields was arranged for the three of us. It was agreed that our Edwardsville friends in force should meet us at Bell's Mills the day thereafter. The evening was most pleasantly spent in Edwardsville, the country town. This place has very greatly improved of late years. Much building has been done and a considerable part of it is in solid brick blocks which would be a credit to any city. The same may be said of Heflin also, another important town of Cleburne, which is destined to be a place of great commercial importance. The spirit of progress is awake both in Heflin and Edwardsville and when Cleburne's fine resources shall have been developed, as they will be soon, both towns will take on a magical growth calculated to astonish the "oldest inhabitant."

Spending an evening and a night in Edwardsville a team was secured early next morning and our little party started for the famous gold fields of Cleburne, reaching Arbacochee about noon. Getting dinner at the hotel of Mrs. Wheeler Mr. Wince-Smith and the writer set out at once for the scene of operations of the Arbacochee Hydraulic works a few hundred yards from the hamlet of Arbacochee. This company is composed of Ex-Gov. Smith, W. A. Searbrooke, W. G. Milligan, D. W. Neal, J. A. W. Smith and D. W. Vaughn. The company have on the ground a 60 horse power boiler and pump which forces the water to any desired part of the land through a seven inch wrought iron pipe. The water is forced from this through a one and one half inch nozzle with force enough almost to kill a man, if it should strike him, and under it the hills melt away like snow banks before a scorching fire. Three men with this appliance can remove more earth in a day than a hundred men could by other methods. I was struck with the fact that this hydraulic process could be well employed in iron ore mining at Jacksonville. It leaves the boulders clean and entirely separated from the earth. Here we have an abundance of water at the mines and under this system the foot hills of our mountains could be soon leveled with the plains and their immense hidden treasure thus revealed. It is inexpensive too as compared with the system now employed in taking out iron ore.

The Arbacochee company referred to above are at present washing over old dirt once before worked by a cruder method in order to prepare the way for the passage of water and drift from their workings in virgin soil higher up the hill; but even this dirt pays and when that part of the land never before washed (because of the difficulty of getting water to it) is reached I think it will pay handsomely. While at this mine Mr. Wince-Smith went into one of the sluices and took out a pan of the sand and gravel and we went to the branch near by and washed it, and right there I came near catching the gold fever. It was very pleasant to watch the dirt disappear in the shape of muddy water leaving the shining particles of gold at the bottom of the pan. One little nugget of gold weighing half a pennyweight was found, which he very gallantly gave to the little daughter of our hostess for the heading of a scarf pin. Miss Bessie Wheeler is her name and she is a veritable flower in the wildwood. Here among these bustling men, in this sort of age, where the pure gold glistens in the sands before the greedy eyes of men as they walk, this little girl is engaged only in a brave struggle to improve her mind, under most depressing physical difficulties, for her eyesight is greatly impaired, heedless of the struggle around her, dreaming of pure and lofty things and writing her verses. Very tender and pure they are too. I read some of them and found that, while the scholar might pick some flaws in the versification, he would have to do homage to the gentle spirit that inspired them. Arbacochee furnishes another unique character in old man Headrick who "goes it alone" in the mines. He has thrown a dam across a little mill race, bigger than a man's wrist and thus secures a few barrels of water in which he washes the earth he digs up with most primitive implements. A dilapidated pick and a broken shovel constitute his outfit, but he has out some times ten cents and sometimes one dollar a day. In either event he is happy. He don't want the earth. He is one of the old timers and tells some famous tales of these gold diggings. He promised to come to the hotel and talk to me, but for some reason he was kept away and I missed seeing him. Returning to the town Mr. Smith and I took another pan full of earth from one of the streets and washed it at a mill and got quite a show of the shining gold. I may say in passing that the gold of this country is much finer than that of California or elsewhere, there being a difference of from three to four dollars per ounce in favor of the Arbacochee gold.

The town of Arbacochee is located on the richest portion of the Arbacochee district and it would pay handsomely to remove and rebuild the houses for the washings of the town site. Gold was first discovered in this district a few miles east of the town of Arbacochee in 1841. From 1845 to 1849 there were from four to five thousand people at Arbacochee engaged in washing the branch and creek bottoms and the soil on the hills as high as they could get water. This large population remained here making money until withdrawn by the great California gold excitement. Fortunes were made in these diggings, the records at the U. S. mint at Washington showing that over two million dollars of gold were coined from the gold dust sent from Arbacochee. The old placer washings, covering two miles in length and one half mile in width show the great amount of work done here. This work was done by shovels and picks and rockers and "long Tom's," a very expensive process; but even by this crude process miners did not think they were prospering unless they were making five dollars a day and upwards. Numerous rich pockets were found where several thousand dollars would be taken out in a few hours. The most famous of these was the Marable pit in the "big bottom" from which he took in one day eleven pounds of gold. He was a Jacksonville man and like most Jacksonville men "knew when he had enough." He quit the business and never thereafter during life struck a rock of gold. Jerry Murphy, of Wedowee, an old miner of those days used to say that in this rich bottom he took out $100 a day to the hand. About two years ago on the same property but on the upland a man named Reeves found a pocket and took out within thirty days, with two hands, about eight thousand pennyweights of gold worth one dollar to the pennyweight. These rich pockets were found upon the West half of section 6, township 17, range 11 now owned by J. W. Houston, Chas. M. Harper, Wm. Noble, E. G. Roberts and others. They have as yet made no provision to work it. The east half of this same section is in litigation. On section 5 of the same township and range numerous rich deposits have been found and the largest nugget ever found at Arbacochee was found on this land. It brought $350. This is the section now operated upon by the Arbacochee Hydraulic Co., referred to above and is that part of the gold field I visited on the day of arrival at Arbacochee. In this Arbacochee district the veins have never been worked, and have been prospected but little. A year or two ago, however, on section five, Mr. Houston cut a shaft 22 feet deep and took out a few tons of ore from a vein 12 inches thick which yielded from $50 to $100 a ton. Another large vein has been discovered on this property, yielding $20 per ton but it has never been mined. The great need here is capital. When that is forthcoming, I think this country will boom to a surprising extent.

The Anna-Hove property consists of four hundred and fifty acres of land two miles east of Arbacochee, and was purchased by the company of that name about two and a half years ago from Mr. J. W. Houston and the heirs of the late Mark Pinson. It has long been considered one of the richest prospects in the district. There are several auriferous leads running longitudinally through the property—and two of them were worked out down to water-level thirty-five years ago, the quartz taken out being crushed in rude stamp-mills, run by horse power, or reduced by still cruder processes in hand mortars and old-fashioned "arrastres." The ore above water-level was "free-milling" and was rich enough to pay even with the clumsy devices for extracting the gold of those days. The dip of these measures is about 45 degrees (from horizontal plane) to the southeast and the "strike" or trend is from southwest to northeast, with slight local deflections and variations. The character of the "gauged" or material carrying the gold—is a fine-textured quartzite and the auriferous leads, or veins, are found separating small masses of green talcose slate, which forms what is miners' parlance is known as the "country rock." The gold-bearing veins are from eight inches to two feet in thickness, and by actual mill-test carry from $12 to $20 per ton of ore in free gold, besides containing, below the water-line perhaps as much more of the precious metal in so-called chemical combination with iron pyrites—(sulphide of iron.) This pyritic condition of these leads below the water level is not singular to this property, nor to this district, but is common to nearly all gold bearing measures, as gold is generally found associated with iron pyrites, which being protected below the water line from the oxidizing influences of the atmosphere, do not set the minute grains of gold free by disintegration, as is the case above the line of water. The "base" or sulphuretted ores are now treated very successfully by chlorination and other cheap processes, whereas until within recent years they were deemed of little value. Besides the gold contained in the sulphurets, there is much free gold diffused throughout the ore and Mr. Lewis, the gentleman who now has charge of the Anna-Hove property, on a recent mill test, found that the amount of free gold in the ore ran considerably above $10 to the ton.

About four miles east of Arbacochee Mr. J. W. Houston has a small mill in operation on a large vein which carries three dollars a ton. The expense of mining this vein is one dollar a ton.

At Pinetucky, in Randolph county on the boundary line of Cleburne, is a ten-stamp mill with all the latest gold saving machinery, which will be in operation in a few days. Here is a gold-bearing quartz from eight inches to three feet thick. A car load of it, taken from the length of the vein, and recently shipped to Chicago, yielded $28 per ton, besides iron pyrites saved in concentrated form, which yielded $66 of gold per ton of concentrated pyrites. They have out now about 100 tons of ore ready for the mill. The Pinetucky Gold Mining Co., operate this mine. Mr. M. A. Avery, the President is an Illinois man. Mr. Driesbach, an experienced miner from the West, is mining superintendent. Mr. Jas. B. Merrill and others of Edwardsville are largely interested in this property. A town site has been laid out here. In the vicinity of Pinetucky is the largest deposits of kaolin, mica and feldspar in the United States. Eastern capitalists associated with Birmingham parties have recently made large purchases in this vicinity. They have already paid out $30,000 in cash and have options on a large amount of land. This property is on a direct line from Anniston or Jacksonville or Heflin to Roonoke, and a railroad will be built at no distant day from one of these points to Roonoke. The very finest china-ware has been made from this kaolin.

Still another gold mine is the Mossback, which is situated one mile north of the famous Wood or Stone Hill copper mine. There is a large stamp mill on this property, but this mine is not being worked now. In the vicinity of this mine there are numerous veins of quartzose containing from $3 to $15 in gold to the ton, besides carrying a small quantity of silver. The difficulty in mining this ore has been in separating the gold from the copper pyrites contained in the same ore. This Cleburne County Mining Company, in which Jacksonville people are interested, have property within a mile of this place and gold has been found on it. The Wood, the Hightower and the Johnson copper mines are all in a mile and a half of the Mossback. The copper is found in the form of pyrites, (the oxides and carbonates having been exhausted) and is difficult to reduce to metallic copper, so much so that work has been suspended. However, with railroad facilities, each of these mines would be very valuable for the purpose of making sulphuric acid for the manufacture of commercial fertilizers, large quantities of the ore containing 30 per cent. of sulphur. The copper, nickel and silver in the ore could then be saved as a by product.

Several miles northeast of this section is the property of the Jacksonville Mining Company. This land was entered 40 years ago by Jacksonville parties for copper. Numerous leads of fine iron ore run throughout this entire section, including some magnetic and mangiferous ores, containing as high as 7 per cent. of manganese. The iron development of this district is destined to be large.

Six miles east of Mossback is Gold Ridge, in which considerable places and vein work has been done. This is owned by Messrs. Harper & Campbell, of Rome.

Near Bell's Mills, on the Tallapoosa river, fine gold indications abound on the land of Mr. Peter Thompson. He showed me some of it he had washed out. From the looks of things and all accounts he could wash out four or five dollars a day on his land, but Peter says he is generally too busy in his crops to pay any attention to it. Here some man of means might make a development that would pay. He will sell or lease.

What I have thus said of the mineral resources of Cleburne is incomplete, and does not do the country full justice. It is only such as came under my observation on a hurried trip and it is given to boom no interest, but with the hope of attracting attention to this naturally rich country.

Our attempt to catch fish at Bell's Mills was abortive. Col. Ellis could not be induced to go near the water after he had gone so far for fish. The waters were low and clear, and he was wise not to try.

Near this place old members of the Tenth Alabama will be interested in knowing, still lives John D. Walker, of company G. He is a successful farmer and much respected, and of great influence in his vicinity as well as throughout the county. He extended a very kind invitation to our party to spend the night with him; but our bad luck at fishing through the day determined us to return to Edwardsville in the evening. Next morning we went down by back to Heflin, from which point at a late hour our party returned home minus even a good bite. But we had lots of fun and all agreed it was a good trip. We had been out nearly a week.

At Heflin I visited the nursery of Hon. W. U. Almon. It was much more extensive than I had expected to see. It covers several acres and he finds it very profitable, even when he so far undersells other dealers. He thoroughly understands his business and has very choice stocks. He says a recent advertisement in the REPUBLICAN brought him several good orders from Calhoun. Mr. Almon is secretary of the Cleburne County Alliance and is carrying the doctrine of his order into practical operation on his farm. As a result he is doing well.

People in Cleburne who may want fruit trees and grape vines should give this good and thrifty man preference over dealers in other states. His trees are already acclimated and will do better than those from a distance.

As I said in the first part of this letter, Heflin is flourishing like a green bay tree. Her business men are wide awake and the population are enterprising. They deserve success.

The Third Party.

The third party, has been born and its name is "Peoples Party." The Cincinnati convention opened with a song to the tune of "Old John Brown's body lies moulding in the ground" and closed with a song bidding farewell to the old parties to the air of "Good bye my lover, good bye." The negro was on hand and took up a collection. When it comes to a question of finance the colored brother is "thar or tharabouts." Fifteen hundred delegates were present and the resolution to go into a third party movement was adopted, only three delegates dissenting. The convention stole the platform of the Farmers Alliance bodily, and adopted it unanimously. Government control of the railroads and government loans on farm products and land at 2 per cent. are the prominent planks. A resolution was adopted favoring female suffrage. A prohibition plank in the platform was voted down. The old soldier was on hand also along with Sambo and secured the passage of a resolution favoring more liberal pension laws, and the usual fool Confederate soldier was there to get up and say he endorsed it, and then the beggar and fool embraced amid frantic applause. It was a very moving picture.

Mrs. Kate Weaver, wife of Mr. Richard Weaver, of Weaver's Station, died at her home Monday evening last of pneumonia. She was the daughter of Harrison Fleming, one of the early settlers of Calhoun county, who lived in Jacksonville over forty years, but who of late years resided at Weaver's Station. Mrs. Kate Weaver was born and reared in Jacksonville and here she had many dear friends who greatly mourn her death. She was of very gentle and lovable disposition. The husband and children and aged father and other relatives have the deep sympathy of this entire community.

Hon. W. J. Alexander recently bought out a livery man in Piedmont and Monday and Tuesday he was here to recruit his stock both in horses and vehicles. He bought three horses from Messrs. Wilkerson and Martin and one fine new carriage and four new buggies from the large stock of Porter, Martin & Co.

Mr. Bridges, living near the foot of the mountain on the White Plains road, had the misfortune to have his house and all its contents burned a few days ago. The people of Jacksonville contributed liberally to make up his losses.

The iron pipe from the mountain spring to the reservoir in Jacksonville has been relaid and the whole water works overhauled. The result is the town has a more plentiful supply of water now than ever before.

Mrs. Northcutt, an estimable lady living four miles north of Jacksonville died at the home of her grandfather Robt. McCain, Wednesday last.

Mr. Dave Smith, living 3 miles Southwest of Jacksonville, lost a son by death Saturday last. The young man died from relapse after a spell of measles.

Mr. Willis Bennett, a good and much respected old man living near Chocteco, died the night of the 19th, after a protracted illness.

Hon. W. R. Barker, of Edwardsville, has invented and is manufacturing a wire fish basket which catches all in a stream. It is the best thing of the kind. Cost $3.50.

The old Republican is going to stand with the time-honored Democratic party on the platform endorsed by that party, to the "last day in the morning." No new party, with its paternalism, woman suffrage and pension steel for us.

The account of the sixteenth annual Diocesan Council of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the Diocese of Alabama, at Anniston, reached us too late for publication. This week. It will appear in next issue.

Resolutions and address of Alexandria Altshuler which the Republican is requested to copy, by vote of the Alliance, reached this office too late for publication this week. They will be published next issue.

Messrs. Silas Clinger and Flournoy Crook have incubators by which they are hatching great numbers of chickens.

RUFUS SANDERS FOOLED WITH FIGURES

AND "COMES OUT WAY DOWN AT THE LITTLE END OF THE HORN."

When the Whole Country Run to Cotton and the Old Man Gave the Poor House a Mighty Close Shave—Sallie Spoin's Sorrow—A Funny Story With Lots of Truth in It.

These days I am wanderin' most too fur along into the vale of years to make a full hand in the field, so I reads the papers tolerable constant. Every now and occasionally I see where some horny-handed son of a statesman talks out in meetin' and tells the farmers to plant less cotton, and more corn and oats and hay and hogs and sich like.

That sounds like good advice on first blush, and it is. But good advice aint goin' to run the farm, or pay off the store account, or squash the mortgage. Its too blame plentiful like and cheap. Good advice is about the only thing in this vain and fleetin' world that a poor man can git with-out payin' for it. Anybody that wants to can just lay down and wallow in good advice free gratis for nothin'.

The comin' statesman can give you the figgers, plain as the nose on your face, and put you down in the middle of the big road that leads right on to the land of peace and plenty. But my notion is that when a farmer goes to foolin' with figgers he is plantin' his mudhooks on powerful slippery ground. The trouble is the figgers don't always come out like they went in. They may stack up in good shape at the start, and then go to pieces on the home stretch.

Seems to me like the fellows that's always advisin' the farmers how to hold down the government and run their farms are wastin' lots of breath and blowin' in a heap of precious time, anyhow. The ways of the farmer is hard to find out. I have been runnin' with em for three score years and a goin, and I don't know it all yet. But I am learnin' all the time. I learns somethin' mighty nigh every day. I have done been and learned one thing about the farmers, and that is that we most generally do pritty much as we blame please.

We may hold Bent meetin' in the spring and build new platforms, and blaze the way for reforms and revolutions, and resolute and whereas till the evenin' stars sing together. But then when the meetin' adjourns and we go home to pitch the crops every feller plays his own hand, and plays it to win.

FOOLIN' WITH FIGGERS.

I aint been foolin' off much time with figgers since way back late along in the seventies. I tried my hand one year and comes out way down at the little end of the horn. I figgered myself chine-deep in debt and give the Poor House a mighty close shave. Since that time I fights shy of figgers, believin' as I do that my luck runs in some other turn.

We was farmin' then down in the River country and the general outlook was tolerable rosy. Money was easy, prices was runnin' way down and the country was briffin' up considerable all along the line.

There had been a heap of talk among the farmers along in the early spring months about cuttin' down the cotton crop so as to thin out the supply, make the demand lively and squeeze the price way up in the fall. That was the schedule accordin' to the general understandin', and after feelin' around among the neighbors I settles down to thinkin' that the farmers was all goin' to come to taw, to the mark like men and stand shoulder to shoulder till the last darned fole retired.

One day I was plowin' down in the lower field, breakin' up the land the first time, and tryin' to set my pegs and lay off my plans for the year. Along towards twelv I slowed up in a shady place, unhooked the traces and hunkered down to cool off and give the horses a breathin' spell. Next thing I knowed I was thinkin' and figgerin' and schemin' and plannin' on the crop. I figgered and figgered, and the plow stood still in the furrow till Mother blowed the horn and I takes out for dinner. But my pegs was set and my plans for the year was all cut and dried. I figgers it out and makes up my mind to play the game this way:

"Everything is runnin' to corn and oats and wheat and lay this year. Cotton is barred out as the short horse, with no takers. Now, it strikes me that the short horse is goin' to win the race in straight heats. The country is goin' to be loaded down with dead oodles of grain when the mild and mellow autumn comes. Cotton will be bringin' 15 or 20 cents a pound, and folks will be burnin' their corn for fire wood. Looks like everybody is down on cotton, but the world has got to have it as long as people wear clothes.

"Blamed if I aint for the under dog in the fight anyhow. Rufus Sanders you aint be a little fresh in spots, but you aint nobody's fool. I do run in the Sanders family. You are runnin' this farm for Mother and the baby. Play on the short horse. Plant cotton. You've got a dead open and shut game. Play it now for all there is in it. Plant cotton. Place your money where it will make a safe landin'. Play for keeps. Plant cotton."

THE FAMILY CONSULTATION.

At dinner time I lets Mother into the game and told her all about it. My head was done set accordin' to the figgers and I was goin' to back my judgment agin' the world, but I lowed I would feel some better if I knowed she was with me in the sig-

it, as well as the deah. She put her dimpled chin down in her pritty hands and listened, quiet and gentle like a mouse, while I put up the figgers and laid down the plans. She didn't toss her head, nor kick any, nor pull on the bit, but seems to me like she was jest a leetle, skittish. She said it looked as if it might be a good thing, but she didn't fall in as quick and unanimous as I was countin' on.

"You are the farmer and the general boss of this concern," says she, "and you ought to know a heap better than me. But for all you know other folks may be thinkin' the same way, and if everybody plants nothin' but cotton, there'll be a general smashup in the fall. It may be a dead open and shut game, like you say, and then it may be regat freeze out."

"But, mother," says I, "there's the figgers to show for themselves. They are plain enough for a fool, though blind drunk and a runnin' to read. We'll win the game. Its in the cards, mother, its in the cards. Figgers can't lie."

"I'm bound to own up that it looks smooth and all right like you fix it up, but there's many a slipshoe between the spring down under the hill and the watershelf at the door. May-be figgers can't lie, but I lay they can make the truth look powerful sickly and pale around the gills, Rufus. Spoin things don't turn out the way you calculate. Wouldn't we be in a nice mess next fall?"

"There you go, Mother," says I. "Always a spoin."

SALLIE SPOIN'S SORROW.

Her right name was Sallie Wiggins, but we boys called her Sallie Spoin for short. She was a bustin' big gal, with a leg on her like a two hundred dollar cow, and as ugly as a chop axe. But the neighbors all said if she want pritty she was mighty good and sweet, and a great source of comfort to her old mother. Well to be certainly Sallie didn't take to marryin' in much, and bye and bye she got to be an old maid, and a great hand at spoin.

One day Deacon Joiner had been to town and was comin' along home when he runs up on Sallie down at the neighborhood bridge close to the edge with her feet swingin' and dancin' over the water and rockin' to and fro and blubberin' and cryin' like her heart was broke.

"My dere sister," says the Deacon, "what in all the world aileth you?"

"I aint a pesterin' you now," says Sallie. "I aint a pesterin' nobody. I'm tendin' to my own business—and spoin—boo hoo hoo."

"But you are cryin' so, my sister, and I aint would comfort and console with you," says the Deacon.

"I don't want none of your comfort and consolins'," says Sallie. "I don't want nothin'. I was only spoin."

"Blessed is them that mourn," says the Deacon, "providin' they've got somethin' to mourn for. But it were perfect vanity, my dere, dyin' sister, to weep and wail for nothin'. What in the name of grace and common sense have you been a spoin?"

"Well, Deacon, if you must know, I reckon I'll have to tell you," says Sallie between her sobs and sighs. "I was jest spoin if I had of got married when I was a young gal—and spoin I had of had some childer and they was growin' up now—and spoin they had of come down here to play on this bridge—and spoin they had of fell off in the creek and got drowned—boo-hoo-hoo."

The deacon he gives the ease up as about three times too many for him. But the story soon leaked out to the neighborhood, and after that Sallie Wiggins was Sallie Spoin.

STRIKING A BRACER.

Nevertheless, notwithstanding, henceforth thereof, I was feelin' sorter jibous and givy after the family consultation. Mother hadn't tumbled in to suit me. But as I was goin' back to the field that evenin' I runs up on Handy Wiggins (that was Sallie Spoin's uncle) and I struck a bracer right there. After passin' compliments about the weather and the prospects, Handy up and tells me that he had been doin' some figgerin' for himself, and he was goin' to play a different game of his own.

"I've been foolin' with cotton long enough," says he, "and I am goin' to give it the clean go by this year. I figgered the thing out this mornin', and made up my mind to let other folks run to cotton if they wants to. But as for me, I am plantin' nothin' but corn and oats and wheat and hay and potatoes and sich from this time hencewards. We has been makin' more cotton than the country needs, and prices are goin' to drop off of sight next fall. I'm layin' off to plant all the land I can in corn, and sow everything else in in small grain. Then I'll take things easy durin' the summer, go huntin' and fishin' a right smart and keep the store account down all I can. That's my hand and I'm goin' to play her wide open."

Handy was doin' the talkin' and I gives him all the rope he wanted, but I keeps up a considerable thinkin' all to myself. He was playin' right straight to my hand, but it want none of my business to say any thing about the "dead snitch" or the "cold deck."

So we parted in peace and went on with our farmin' operations. He plays the game accordin' to his figgers, and I plays it by mine. He runs to corn and oats and sich like. I runs to cotton. My farm was on one side of the road and his was on the other side. He put in his crop early, and when I was plantin' cotton he was playin' by corn. He didn't work much, but he gives his crop a lick and a promise and turns her loose for the summer. Way along in the heat of the summer I was plowin' in my cotton and Handy he was off huntin' and fishin'—I was holdin' a big hand and it kept me busy as forty thousand bees in a tarbucket.

"Now that was the biggest crop in the history of the State. It was a year of plenty, and some-to-appe. Everything was on the make; from corn and cotton and pinkies to may-pops and blackberries. My cotton farm was bloomin' and blossomin' like a nest of roses durin' the summer and along early in the fall blame my cats if it didn't look like the whole field, leaves, stalks and all, was gettin' white and turnin' to cotton. And Handy's corn and other grain crops turned out bully, too. Seems like we was both playin' to big luck, but thinks I to myself Handy is playin' for a naked livin, and I am out for the stuff in cold cash.

SWARTIN LIES.

Along in August Handy comes up and calls in to save his fodder. One day I was out walkin' around watchin' the big cotton bolls belly out and bust open when I runs up with Handy lookin' like the banks was all busted. But we passed a few words and then climbed up on the cross fence to swap lies a few rounds.

"Handy," says I, "corn is goin' to be so cheap in this country next winter that a nigger wouldn't steal it." "There's where you're spillin' your molasses," says Handy. "Corn's goin' to be skeerce as hen's teeth, and the price is goin' to shoot up like a kite."

"Now, Handy," says I, "lets play the game dead square. Your bluffin' aint goin' to jar my hand narry bit." "Everybody in this country is raisin' cotton but me," says Handy.

Everybody in Alabama is raisin' corn but me," says I. Corn's goin' to be some cheaper than firewood, though, and if you are after disposin' of a few tons of your crop for the gathern I'll take some often your hands on them terms."

"No you won't neither," says Handy. "I take wouldn't swap corn for cotton even Steven, pound for pound. Hay and fodder is a heap better than cotton for beddin' stock, and I wouldn't have no other use for it. You can't sell cotton next fall, and it would be worth the pickin'."

AT THE FINISH.

So along in the closin' days of August I gits things to moving up lively and snatches out three bales of cotton, drawin' on Mother's savings to pay for the pickin'. One night I loaded the wag-on with the three bales, and at the crack of day I shoves out for the city to feel of the market. I didn't travel many miles before somethin' a blasted sight worse than the market was feelin' of me. It started in like a slow fever and wound up like a double-jointed buck ager. I reckon it must of been a cross between the high lifts and the eternal jinxjams. Durned if Handy Wiggins want plum right and I was dead wrong. The whole country was runnin' to cotton. There was cotton fields on the right and cotton fields on the left, cotton fore and cotton aft. Seems like everybody had been plan- tin' by my figgers. When I got to town they told me that the first bale had been comin' in a tolerable reglar and numerous farms were full of cotton and the streets was fillin' up with it. Jeminy Christmas! At the cotton!!! At the cotton!!!

They told me the market was dull and still a dullin, so I sells out cheap and pulled for home. As the season comes on the price of cotton took a header and went down to rock bottom and the price of corn went up like a cat's back. I picked out what I could up to Christmas, sold it dirt cheap, and let the rest rot in the field.

Handy Wiggins made cords of money that year and bought up another eighty acres. He loaned me enough corn to pull through the next crop, and by livin' on blackberry pies and branch water mostly for several summers, me and Mother and the baby finally come around in shape agin and saved the farm by a scratch. I found out that bettin' on the short horse agin the field was monstrous risky, particular if the backin was uncertain.

There was one old farmer down in our settlement in that golden Indian summer who had the appearance of one that was saunt for and couldn't go. He moped around lookin' like the ragged edges of ruination. He felt like he had been chewed up by some old cow and dropped over a fifty-foot bluff. He was strapp'd, and crushed, and cast down and kermfummuxed. What was the matter with him you reckon? The man and ceflin had met. He had been foolin' with figgers, and his name was ness speaks of the task which he has set himself in defining for the guidance of the church its position toward the existing social questions. He refers to the fact that the church is not free from the difficulty in dealing with it arising from its complex character, owing to the numerous concurrent factors requiring consideration; yet, he says, a solution can be obtained by applying the eternal principles on which the teaching of the church is based. Now, as ever, men's relations toward each other as individuals or parts of a society must have the sanction of the church. The church is the basis of the economy, v. 21. [The Tenth Commandment as given in Deuteronomy.]

THE POPE'S ENCYCLICAL

Has Appeared in Full Text, a Review of

The divine law therefore rejects the Socialistic doctrine of the abolition of what would abolish private property, substituting a collective and communal ownership.

Proceeding to consider the relation of the state to the individual, the King says:

To think that the authority of the state is ought arbitrarily to invade family intimacy, that what is permitted to the individual should be doubtfully it can intervene when the com-

It ought to watch over its morals and internal order of the safe keeping of religion just as moderation, and the equitable division of the public charges, all of which confer honor on the citizen, and the elevation of the proletariat. The latter, enjoying prosperity the less will be able to ameliorate their conditions. Proletarians have the same rights as citizens as far as their obligations are concerned, and must exert some interest on the part of the state.

Governments should, therefore, observe their obligations towards the proletariat, to secure equality, however, between the proletariat and the bourgeoisie, and that all citizens should be equal before the law.

Political principles.

It is necessary to see that all citizens related to work are conscientiously served, and should oppose anything that would tend to excite the proletariat to unhealthily excitations would promote trouble and violence. Small wages are not to be paid to the proletariat, but the workmen and their masters, but the general interests of commerce and industry. The government should be guided by the moral principle that it should be based on at these crises.

The moral dignity, which is equal in the poor and rich, exacts reparation from the rich, and the government should be for the workmen, and not let them be

A man's work should not go to an extent that he is forced to succumb under an excess of corporate fatality. A body's physical forces are limited, and nature forbids that they should be exhausted. Consequently, expediency is shown in a certain limitation of working hours which should be interrupted by a period of repose, varying according to conditions of time, place, public health, and the nature of the work.

The question of wages is particularly delicate. Justice exacts that an adequate salary should be paid. At the same

Following this idea, the Pope particularly mentions associations of mutual succor and institutions of insurance in case of accidents, sickness and death, and the protection of orphans and girls. The pope attaches particular importance to working people's associations and says that corporations so useful in the past must be adapted to present needs. Associations, he adds, would better serve the ends for which they were formed if they were communized.

The Republican.

SATURDAY, MAY 30, 1891.

We publish the address of Mr. Bailey G. McClellan, before the Alexandria Alliance, both because the Alliance requests it and because we know the author to be a good and patriotic man. He was our comrade in the war and sealed his devotion to the South with his blood. We are satisfied he would not advise his people to take a wrong or hurtful step knowingly; but he might be mistaken and give hurtful advice without intending it. Let us see. He advises the Alliancemen to insist on the Ocala and St. Louis demands, and this without regard to any platform of principles that may be adopted by the Democratic party to which they nearly all belong. Suppose there is a conflict between the platforms. What then becomes the patriotic duty of Southern Alliancemen? Are they prepared to abandon the Democratic party, which has done so much for them and which alone is powerful enough to help them?

Our advice is to make haste slowly and make no rash promises in regard to future political action, which may possibly conflict with Democratic purposes.

Let us see the drift of things. The Peoples' Party has already been formed. Its mission is to break down the Democratic party in the South. It adopts the identical principles Mr. McClellan advises Alliancemen to stand by. It has spread a net for Southern Alliancemen in sight of the bird. Will they walk into it? If so, let us see to what they will be called on to further subscribe to. The Peoples' Party demands woman suffrage and increased pensions. Are the conservative farmers of the South prepared for this advance? Let us see further. Mr. Powderly, the head of the Knights of Labor, who are to make up much of this third party, says that when the Southern farmers learn to regard the negro as a man and his regard are willing to help them and not before. Having conceded woman suffrage and consented to a further pension steal, they will be next called on to take the negro to their bosom. This is the great point of division between the people of the North and the South both in church and politics. Here it is again. The Republican Alliancemen of Kansas, who the State that gave us John Brown, will be with Mr. Powderly in this demand. Can Southern farmers stand this? Can they afford to help break down the Democratic party which has saved them from this social death to accept it through the hands of the pitiful consideration of money? Is not our civilization, the social status of our children, the preservation of the purity of our race above price?

We have nothing but the good of the farmers of the South at heart when we advise them to pause and think before they commit themselves irrevocably to a platform of principles that may lead them outside the Democratic party.

The printers of the REPUBLICAN office take advantage of the absence of Mr. Grant to publish the following complimentary notice of him and the REPUBLICAN in the Heflin (Cibola) Co. New Era, of date of the 21st inst.

"Hon. L. W. Grant the present Senator from this district, who is also Editor of the 'old reliable,' the Jacksonville Republican, has for the past 55 years been laboring faithfully, in season and out of season and for the upholding and dissemination of the true principles of democracy on the Jeffersonian line, paid our town a pleasant visit on last Monday, and while in town called in to see the New Era."

He takes a very cheerful view of the present political outlook and believes that the much needed reforms can and will be wrought out through the efforts of the great national democratic party, that tariffs will be reduced to the limits of the government's need, when economically administered, and that free coinage of silver will be maintained by the people for the common benefit. Hence we demand the abolition of national banks as a substitute for National bank notes be issued in sufficient volume to transact the business of the country on a cash basis without damage or special advantage to any class or calling, such notes to be legal tender in payment of all debts, public and private, and such notes, when demanded by the people, shall be loaned to them at not more than 2 percent per annum upon non-perishable products as indicated in the Sub-Treasury plan and also upon real estate, with proper limitations upon the quantity of land and amount of money.

B—We demand the free and unlimited coinage of silver.

C—We demand the passage of laws prohibiting alien ownership of land and that Congress take prompt action to devise some plan to obtain all the lands now owned by alien and foreign syndicates and that all land held by railroads and other corporations in excess of such as is actually used and needed by them be reclaimed by the Government and held for actual settlers only.

D—Believing in the doctrine of equal rights to all and special privileges to none, we demand that taxation, National, State or municipal, shall not be used to build up one interest or class at the expense of another.

PEOPLES' PARTY.

VERY YOUNG, BUT VERY NOBLY AT ITS BIRTH.

Formal Approval of Principles—Organization That May Prove a Great Power in Politics.

VERY PLAIN PLATFORM ADOPTED

Free From Glittering Generalities—Free Coinage and the Sub-Treasury Scheme Indorsed—Vigilant Enforcement in the Chancery Court.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, May 20.—When the convention got together this morning a chorus from the Farmers' Alliance song book preceded the prayer by Rev. Gilbert Delamater, the Greenback ex-Congressman. Delamater was roundly applauded when he arose to pray. Frequent and earnest amen from the audience punctuated the invocations, and then the Kansas Glee Club regaled them with humorous ditty.

Reports from the Committees of Arrangements and Credentials now helped to kill time pending the exciting developments that many looked for when the Platform Committee was ready to report.

A collection was taken to reimburse Chairman Power, of the Arrangements Committee, $365 which he had expended, and on account of which he had received only $36.

The report of the Credentials Committee showed 1,471 delegates present. The larger delegations were Kansas 407, Ohio 317, Indiana 154.

Senator Peffer was then presented to the convention as permanent chairman. An appeal was made from the platform for funds to pay home the fare of the colored Alliance delegate from South Carolina. The delegate, Savage by name, came forward personally and in a clever speech said the colored people were too poor. It was, perhaps, as well for the convention, he added, eyeing the hats that were being passed around for his benefit, that so few of the colored delegates came. He was handed a hatful of small change, and retired amid great cheering for the Colored Alliance.

A proposition to adopt the unit rule was overwhelmingly defeated, on the ground that every man that came to the convention should have a vote and have it counted. The five minute rule for speeches was adopted. A recess was taken until 2 p. m.

AFTER RECESS.

When the convention reassembled, a letter from L. L. Polk which was read, advising this conference to issue an address and defer action on the third party until 1892, caused a breeze, when a motion to refer it to the Committee on Resolutions was declared carried, there was a loud demand—notably from the Minnesota delegation—that the negative be put more forcibly by the Chair.

The demand was renewed and continued from time to time during the reading of a number of miscellaneous telegrams. Ignatius Donnelly, the Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions, climbed up on the rostrum at this juncture and amid a whirlwind of excitement announced that he was there to represent that the Committee on Platform was a unit for the organization of a third party.

He gave way to Robert Schilling, of Wisconsin, Secretary of the committee, who read

THE PLATFORM.

First—That in view of the great social, industrial and economical revolution now dawning on the civilized world and the new and living issues confronting the American people, we believe that the time has arrived for a crystallization of the political reform forces of our country and the promotion of what should be known as the Peoples' Party of the United States of America.

Second—That we most heartily indorse the demands of the platform as adopted at St. Louis, Mo., in 1890; Ocala, Fla., in 1890, and Omaha, Neb., in 1891, by the industrial organizations there represented, summarized as follows:

A—The right to make and issue money and the sovereign power to be maintained by the people for the common benefit. Hence we demand the abolition of national banks as a substitute for National bank notes be issued in sufficient volume to transact the business of the country on a cash basis without damage or special advantage to any class or calling, such notes to be legal tender in payment of all debts, public and private, and such notes, when demanded by the people, shall be loaned to them at not more than 2 percent per annum upon non-perishable products as indicated in the Sub-Treasury plan and also upon real estate, with proper limitations upon the quantity of land and amount of money.

B—We demand the free and unlimited coinage of silver.

C—We demand the passage of laws prohibiting alien ownership of land and that Congress take prompt action to devise some plan to obtain all the lands now owned by alien and foreign syndicates and that all land held by railroads and other corporations in excess of such as is actually used and needed by them be reclaimed by the Government and held for actual settlers only.

D—Believing in the doctrine of equal rights to all and special privileges to none, we demand that taxation, National, State or municipal, shall not be used to build up one interest or class at the expense of another.

tion, National, State or municipal, shall not be used to build up one interest or class at the expense of another.

E—We demand that all revenues, National, State or county, shall be limited to the necessary expenses of the Government, economically and honestly administered.

F—We demand a just and equitable system of graduated tax on income.

G—We demand the most rigid, honest and just national control and supervision of means of public communication and transportation, and if this control and supervision does not remove the abuses now existing we demand the Government ownership of such means of communication and transportation.

H—We demand the election of the President and Vice-President and United States Senators by a direct vote of the people.

I—Third—That we urge action of all progressive organizations in attending the conference called for Feb. 22, 1892, by six of the leading reform organizations.

Fourth—That a National Control Committee be appointed by this conference to be composed of a chairman to be elected by this body and of three members from each State represented, to be named by each State delegation.

Fifth—That this Central Committee shall represent this body and attend the National Conference on February 22, 1892, and if possible unite with that and all other reform organizations there assembled. If no satisfactory arrangement can be effected, this committee shall call a National Convention not later than June 1, 1892, for the purpose of nominating candidates for President and Vice President.

Sixth—That the members of the Central Committee for each State where there is no Independent political organization conduct an active system of political agitation in their respective States.

ADDITIONAL RESOLUTIONS.

Not a part of the platform were presented. They recommended the favorable consideration of universal suffrage, demanded that the treasury notes paid the soldiers be made equivalent to coin, favored an eight hour day and condemned the actions of the World's Fair Commission with reference to wages.

VIGILANT ENTHUSIASM.

The name of the new party, "The Peoples' Party of the United States," elicited a magnificent burst of applause, and as each plank was read the cheering was renewed so frequently that the great hall seemed to reverberate continuously. When the resolutions recommending universal suffrage to favorable consideration, and demanding the payment of bounties on a gold basis were read, the former met with rather a chilly reception but the latter was roundly cheered.

Mr. Schilling announced that the pension plank was left to the soldier members of the committee with the inquiry whether it was satisfactory and on his acquiescence it was adopted unanimously.

Mr. Davis, of Texas, a lank six-footer in a light suit, who had electrified the convention during Mr. Donnelly's speech by a long weird whoop of exultation, was conducted to the platform and to the intense delight of the convention repeated the uncouthly Indian-like yell. Then he announced himself as an ex-Confederate and declared himself for the platform—every plank and every resolution. An extraordinary spectacle followed. Mr. Wadsworth, of Indiana, an ex-Union soldier, rushed up to ex-Confederate Davis in full view of the convention and the two once mortal foes grasped hands.

R. W. Humphrey, of Texas, organizer of colored Alliancemen, seized with the inspiration of the moment and suddenly joined the ex-soldiers, and amid a perfect cyclone of enthusiasm the delegate moved the adoption of the platform as read.

THE CONVENTION WENT WILD.

The delegates mounting tables and chairs shouting and yelling like Comanches. A portion of the convention in thunderous chorus sang to the tune of "Goodbye, My Lover, Goodbye," the words "Goodbye, Old Parties, Goodbye" and then the doxology.

In the forest of the flags and State banners that had gathered with their bearers around the trio, the Kansas man, on the shoulders of two colleagues standing on chairs, raised the Kansas banner and held it aloft above all others. The tumult, surpassing in its remarkable suddenness and vigor anything that had previously taken place in the convention, lasted fully a quarter of an hour, till it ceased from the sheer exhaustion of the delegates.

Several delegates seconded the adoption of the report.

On the suggestion that it be by a rising vote, "Question? Question!" came from all parts of the hall. But the pent-up enthusiasm had to have vent, and one after another of the orators relieved themselves, the delegates from time to time calling on prominent men in the convention, Messrs. Weaver, Willels and others.

"Previous question!" shouted the delegates, but it had no effect on an irrepressible Texan, who was bound to speak his piece.

When he had finished the Chairman's gavel fell like a trip-hammer and order was finally restored.

PLATFORM ADOPTED.

The platform proper, exclusive of the other resolutions, was then adopted by a rising vote.

Delegats Miller, of California, threw in a bone of contention by offering this resolution:

Resolved, That we favor the abolition of the liquor traffic.

The confusion became worse confounded. Fifty men were clamoring for recognition, but the first to succeed was Mr. Schilling, of Wisconsin. He opposed the discussion of the question of prohibition at this time, and declared that the resolution proposed by Mr. Miller had been fully considered and voted down by the Committee on Platform. To spring it now was plainly throwing a firebrand into this convention, and, in his opinion, it was a deliberate attempt to cause a split in the party.

ONE-MINUTE SPEECHES.

The pressure at this time for recognition was extraordinary. In desperation the Chair proposed to give ten of the most vociferous delegates, who were crowded about his desk clamoring for recognition, one minute each, and hundreds of watches were pulled out to make sure that none of the speakers exceeded the sixty-second limit. The prohibition amendment was overwhelmingly defeated. The resolution was then adopted with only three dissenting votes.

At this juncture J. B. Weaver relieved Chairman Peffer, who was worn out with his fruitless efforts to preserve order, and had besides to catch a train for Washington.

The resolution against trusts was choked off by a point of order raised by Mr. Schilling, of Wisconsin, that all resolutions should be referred to the Committee on Resolutions without being read. Then the convention got down to business again and the matter of choosing a National Committee was taken up. Chairman Weaver declared a welcome recess to enable the over-heated and exhausted delegates to select members of the National Committee from their respective States.

NATIONAL COMMITTEE CHOSEN.

After recess the roll of names was called for members of the National Committee, the convention adopting the innovation of appointing three members from each State instead of one as the old parties had done.

Alliance Congressman J. G. Otis, of Kansas, nominated H. E. Taubeneck, of Illinois, as Chairman of the National Executive Committee. There was a great outburst of cheers when Taubeneck's name was mentioned.

W. L. Damb, of Texas, seconded the nomination, saying he had watched Taubeneck's record and was satisfied.

Mr. Taubeneck was chosen by acclamation.

Loud calls for Mr. Taubeneck finally brought that gentleman to the rostrum, where he made a brief but very manly and modest speech, thanking the delegates. In conclusion he said they were standing on the brink of a conflict between capital and labor and the longer the conflict was postponed the worse it would be. "Our politicians," said he, "might as well try to stop a cyclone or the movements of the stars as to evade this issue."

A few moments of confused preparation for adjournment since due ensued, when the Chairman's gavel fell and the first convention of the Peoples' Party of the United States had passed into history.

Difference Without Distinction.

The Peoples' party means about the same thing as the Democratic party, so far as the literal significance of the names goes. The former is of Latin and the latter of Greek derivation. That is about only substantial difference.

In Greece the people were called demos and in Rome populus.

A Democratic party, therefore, is one that believes in the rule of the people, and if that is not what the Peoples party proposes its name is entirely without significance.

To get a name entirely simple and one free from any suggestion of the high-toned classical touch, it would be better to use the word that comes to us from our Saxon ancestors, folks.

"The Folks party," would not be so alliterative as "Peoples party," but it would be getting down to bed rock in simplicity.

And it would be entirely intelligible to that class of Southern farmers who compose the bulk of the Alliance in this section, a class who speak the purest Anglo-Saxon now extant.

But we started out to show that there is no difference between "the Peoples party" and the Democratic party in name, and we might add that there is no substantial difference in principle.

All that is practicable, that is any ways feasible in the platform recently adopted by the so-called Peoples' party at Cincinnati is but a repetition of the time honored doctrine of Democracy, but a new demand for those things for which the Democratic party has been all the time struggling, and which it would put in practice if it could get control of the Government.

The extravagant demands of the Ocala platform are not Democratic. They are not anything practicable. They are simply wild vagaries impossible of execution, and which a sensible people like those of the United States will never attempt to execute.

The Peoples party wants tariff reform and free silver coinage. So does the Democratic party, and if the two unite on those fundamental principles they can easily have what they desire.

The Peoples party is something entirely superfluous, it already existed in the Democratic party.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

ADDRESS

Before The Alexandria Alliance, No. 1001, on May 9th, 1891.

Mr. President and Brethren:—By request of our alliance at its last meeting I now enter upon the duty assigned me. The subject of vital importance with every alliance man, and I will dare say not only every alliance man, but every tiller of the soil and every laboring man. The question is, "Shall we accept or reject the St. Louis platform as amended last December, at Ocala, Fla., by our representatives?" That platform embraces a great deal, and more than I am now able to solve. Suffice it to say, however, that there were resolutions passed and committees appointed as legislative committees to lay these resolutions before members of congress, asking and demanding that congress take immediate action thereupon, and one very important resolution was, asking for the sub-treasury plan, for a bill to be referred to a committee in congress and be acted upon when the merits and demerits could be fully discussed.

What did congress do in the premises? We find that they hardly treated it with a passing notice; they condemned it, and pronounced it unconstitutional without assigning valid reasons therefor. Congress has been called upon by the alliance to pass a substitute if the sub-treasury plan would not do, and still they will not. Why is this? We alliance men have become satisfied that there is something wrong in Denmark—something rotten there. They ignore other measures than the sub-treasury plan; the free and unlimited coinage of silver for instance, and in fact nearly every measure demanded of them by the Farmers' Alliance.

There is a financial crisis upon us which operates severely on the farmers and laborers of our country, brought about by the present system of money laws made by congress, and I will say a plutocratic congress—a congress composed largely of millionaires, and who are under the influence of a millionaires; and we find that, in a practical point of view, the financial question has reduced itself in the alarming shape, labor demanding its share of capital, and capital making war upon labor for asking this immunity. There is only one way of redress to us farmers and laborers, and our pioneers are now blazing out the way and making our road passable, and by a united pull we will make it possible; hence we see and feel the necessity of unity in our ranks. Jacob's children have now been serving Egyptian government about a quarter of a century, and our departure to cross the Red Sea is close at hand. We have a Moses and an Aaron for our leaders. God in his wisdom never has let his children remain in slavery only enough for them to become willing subjects. While Moses may not be permitted only to look over in the promise land, yet his followers will cross over the Jordan dry-shod. This is figuratively speaking and a true symbol of our present and future conditions. The first important step for us is, we must harmonize on every appearance of difference among us, as our interests are all identified. We must rally to our standard banners and let our shibboleth be "onward" and "upward" in this grand farmers' movement.

While we have many opponents outside of our order we have some few among us whose motives are so strong that they will be on the alert to obtain some advantage to the detriment of our order, endeavoring to get us divided in sentiment on measures of vital importance. It should behoove every true alliance man to be on his guard and post himself well in alliance doctrines, which are founded upon pure Jeffersonian principles, whereupon he will be able to defend his position. The farmers and laborers of these United States have been trusting too much to the politicians now for twenty-five years and we now realize the result. Our voices should have ere this been raised in loud protestations against the unfair national laws passed by congress and had them repealed. We now find many democrats and republicans, politicians alike in opposing the sub-treasury plan, and no difference between them on the currency question. They cry out alike "inflation and bankruptcy," without giving or suggesting a better plan. It does seem they are in the interest of the money power and not for the farmers and laborers of our country. They want the dollar to have too much purchasing power for a two fold reason: one is to obtain a large usurious rate of interest, and the other is to obtain the products of our labor at a low nominal price. The object of the sub-treasury plan is to give more currency for the business of the country at less rates of interest. A medium which will bring producer and consumer nearer together, and thereby cut off speculation, and break down trust combinations, whereby we can get a value for our productions and purchase the articles we need at relative rates. By the sub-treasury plan the government issues the money direct to the people in the shape of treasury notes, redeemable in taxes or something else. Any way the notes to be good for taxes, export duties, etc. We need not make such a borrow of the money as some would have you believe. We simply exchange our produce for money at a stipulated price agreed upon. While the government does not pay us full value at the time of the sale, she retains one-fifth of the value twelve months or less time, and gets interest at a low rate for the time the money she advances, thereby no one is hurt in the transaction. To illustrate: Suppose there are seven bales of cotton, averaging 500 pounds each, all delivered to the government by November 15th, the government can hold the cotton twelve months or longer if necessary, and by the increase of currency the prices will be advanced to 12½ cents per pound. By this the farmers will get 10 cents per pound advanced, and this would increase the volume of currency three hundred and fifty million dollars in immediate circulation, and thereby the volume of circulating medium would be increased to $50 per capita in our season, and by this means the large money holders would have to seek fields for investment, and at less rates of interest. While prices of the product of labor would enhance relatively, the agricultural interest would be thereby encouraged; a cash basis would be also established; the mortgage system would cease, especially crop lien mortgage; our country would move on prosperously and harmoniously. But under the present monetary system what can the farmers and laborers promise themselves ultimately? Only a bare existence. They cannot accumulate enough above making an honest living to educate their children and have enough left after a decent burial to mark their last resting place, so as to be identified in twenty years after they are laid away. This is no child's talk. Our own observation teaches us this. Now, brethren, let us go to work and remedy the evils that are now besetting us; there should be no idlers among us; there is work for every true alliance man. Let us buckle on our armor and go forth as mighty men, declaring that we are for "equal rights to all and special favors to none," and that we have asked for equal rights and still we are refused. We must hoist our banners and unfurl them to the world, with our motto inscribed thereon in ineffaceable letters. "This government is of the people and rightfully belongs to the people, and that the people shall rule." The farmers' alliance and other organizations have united and will co-operate in the grandest move since the days of George Washington. This organization will work out the salvation of our country, and place us on a higher plane, though we will have to endure the brunt of unjust criticism and many falsehoods. But, brethren, let us be firm and steadfast, and true to the trust reposed in us, and the victory shall be ours.

Has to Say of Baker's Blood

TESTIMONIAL.

Piedmont, Ala., May 15, 1891.

My brother, Dr. P. Savage, of Leedga, Ala., has been afflicted with scrofula, of the worst form, all his life, but able to work till about five years ago; the disease then broke out in great rotten sores all over his body, inside his mouth and on his tongue, so that he could not go out of his room, nor talk. He was treated by all the doctors of this section of country for two years, and also by Dr. W. F. Westmoreland, of Atlanta, which only helped the disease in check, without any prospect of cure, and so pronounced by the doctors. In this condition he lay in his room for three months. About the first of November, 1886, all sores disappeared; and, although I used every means to make it break out again, I failed. My brother, by degrees, got able to work some, and he continued to improve in health and strength until to-day he is stouter and in better health than ever before in his life. No sign of the disease has reappeared for over six months. I am perfectly satisfied that he is permanently cured. So offensive was the disease that all persons afflicted with scrofula or like diseases to give Dr. Baker's Blood and Liver Cure trial, feeling sure it will cure any case. It is no humbug. It is a purely vegetable preparation.

I have said this much, and could say more, for this medicine, and without any solicitation, but alone for suffering humanity, that may be similarly afflicted. My brother is as sound as a bell, and his testimony is a testimony of the worth of Dr. Baker's Blood and Liver Cure.
