It is stated that the followers of Mr. Kolb in this beat are threatening one of their number, who has abandoned Kolb, with a boycott of his gin, if he does not return to his allegiance to Reuben. And these are the men who talk about fair election methods.

The campaign up to date in Calhoun has been very tame indeed. No public speakers from the outside have been advertised to speak in the county; no barbecues by the democrats have been announced; few democratic clubs have been formed and General Apathy is in command. The chairman of the democratic county executive committee should get a hustle on himself. The party can be easily enthused, if those whose duty it is to enthrone it will only proceed to business.

William McClain is a poor man employed as a watchman to guard two trestles on the Kansas City, Memphis & Birmingham Railroad, near Adamsville, in Jefferson county. He lives in a tent midway between the trestles, with two little orphan daughters Monday night he discovered one of the trestles on fire. Waking his little daughters all three started to the trestle with buckets to extinguish the flames. When they got on the trestles, parties fired on them from ambush, wounding all three of them. He cried out "for God's sake don't kill my children," but the concealed murderers continued to fire. Mr. McClain gathered up his two wounded children and fled. A posse soon formed to arrest the murderers, but they had fled. It appeared they came and went on horseback. They fled in the direction of Pratt Mines, the point they are supposed to have come from.

The railroad strike in the west is assuming very serious proportions. Commerce is completely tied up and travel stopped at many points; several cities are threatened with famine by reason of inability to get in food supplies by rail, and riots have occurred at more than one place. United States deputy marshals being attacked. United States troops have been ordered to Chicago and other places to preserve the peace and enforce the mandates of the Federal courts. Debs, the President of the American Railway Union, which has inaugurated the strike, says that, if U. S. troops fire on the strikers, civil war will follow. The United States Attorney-General says the country is on the ragged edge of anarchy, and that if the government is not strong enough to cope with the situation the fact should be known as well now as hereafter. Manager Egan, speaking for the railroads, says the roads will never yield; and Debs, speaking for the strikers says they shall, and so it goes. The situation is very grave.

time when people looked more after comfort than style. You can read on his countenance that he is a typical East Tennessee farmer. Having an eye to the comfort of his guests he recently erected this elegant new hotel, containing fifty rooms besides dining room and parlors with 500 feet of verandas. Then there is the old hotel with its large ball room and cosy sleeping rooms for guests besides the cottages, in all making 166 rooms. The Captains' motto is "make yourselves comfortable and do as you please." The pavilion at the Spring is handsome and the whole is surrounded by forty acres of shady lawn. The table is abundantly supplied with every eatable the heart could wish or stomach crave. Most of his provisions for the tables are supplied from his own farms. Besides the farm here, he has another of 700 acres, 12 miles distant, where he raises each year from 1500 to 2000 bushels of wheat, 5000 bushels of corn, 100 tons of hay, 50 bushels of clover seed, and from 150 to 200 hogs, besides sheep and cattle. His son F. B. Tomlinson is manager of the hotel and another son, "Clem," manager of the livery stable—all clever gentlemen.

I need hardly allude to the value of the water, as its virtue is known all over the United States. It is shipped to all parts of the country and visitors flock here annually from all sections. It has very greatly benefited me. I was confined to my bed a long while before coming here, suffering greatly with indigestion and resultant illis. My faithful friend and good physician, Dr. Linder, could only give me relief by dieting me. Since I have been drinking this water I have eaten heartily and not suffered a day from indigestion, and I can now sleep from eight to ten hours out of 24, whereas before I came I could not sleep more than three or four. Have not had a sign of neuralgia since I came, and am gaining strength rapidly, and after two weeks further stay, hope to be back again in dear old Jacksonville fully restored to health and ready for work. My advice to any one afflicted with dyspepsia, dysentery, torpid liver or stomach trouble of any kind, is to come here and quit taking medicine and get well.

Yours, truly,

the example of the democratic party in Alabama following the war. That party then was composed of men fresh from the Confederate army, whose courage had challenged admiration of the world and who were afraid of nothing on earth. That party then saw its old leaders disfranchised, while the ex-slave was made a voter, and legislator. It saw these ex-slaves led politically by bad white Republicans with whom your leader, Mr. Kolb, is now in political partnership. It saw the corruption of legislatures chosen by these ignorant black men and their vicious white leaders. It saw the State and counties plundered of millions under laws passed by such legislatures. It saw car loads of negroes transported from county to county and voted on the day of election repeatedly, without power to challenge, for your present political allies (the Republicans) had made it a felony to challenge voters in Alabama. It saw the judges and circuit clerks put in jail because they refused to select negro jurymen to arbitrate disputes between white men and hold in keeping the liberty of white men. It saw even a state government of its own choosing overthrown; and yet it did not threaten or resort to violence. The democrats of Alabama then could have combined and killed or driven out of the state every Republican leader without the shedding of a drop of blood; but they did not. They pursued legal methods and made constant appeal to the conscience of the country. Finally, under the lead of Houston they won the state and redeemed it from misrule and have held it ever since. There was no appeal to force. Where only three or four Republicans held office in a county and controlled it politically they were free from threat or attack. The party won its great victory by its respect for law and its unflinching courage at the ballot box. So must your party act, Mr. Harvey, if it desires the support of the conservative element which rules in every state. This is a country of law. Men who aspire to rule through violent methods will never be intrusted with power in Alabama.

If the southern people have the good sense to avoid violence and strikes this year, there will be a tremendous influx of western capital and population here next year. People out there are getting very tired of the reign of violence.

Talladega town has formed an Oates Club and the executive committee of that county has taken steps to form a club in every beat in the county. Jacksonville should move out on the same line and at least look after the formation of a club in this and surrounding beats.

Mr. J. D. Murphee, of Pike county, was solicited to run for Congress. In an open letter he declines. In the letter he states many truths. Speaking of the new party he says: "When this new party sprang upon us, it was an enemy in ambush, or as a secret foe in our own ranks, professing friendship and loyalty to our party, but in fact only waiting for a favorable opportunity to secretly strike those with whom they formerly acted."

Speaking of political straddlers and deceivers he says: "The true soldiery carry a banner that publishes to all who care to know the principles for which they are battling. Likewise should every democrat be known."

The man who, for any reason turns his back upon his friend and courts the favor of his enemy, in order to secure money place or power, can never afterward be trusted."

Letter From Tate Springs.

July 3rd 1894.

EDITOR REPUBLICAN:—I arrived here Saturday last, feeling worn out after a long illness and was quite lonely until I discovered familiar faces from old Calhoun, among them Capt. G. T. Bush and wife, Col. Jno. M. McKleroy, his wife and charming daughter and Mr. Geo. Cater. Capt. Bush and family leave today; Capt. McKleroy and family will remain a few days longer and friend Cater will remain indefinitely, if he remains until he recovers both from his dyspepsia and the case of love he has contracted since his arrival.

I handed your letter of introduction to Capt. Tomlinson, proprietor of Tate Springs, and found at once that he was the right man in the right place. He was reared in a for one of the democratic candidates by leaders of your party in those beats. In your own beat of Alexandria you not only would not allow any supporter of Gov. Jones to come to the county convention, but you broke faith with them and captured the beat by a palpable trick, in violation of the most solemn promise made to the democrats that the long established custom of selecting delegates should not be departed from. How about members of your party pushing themselves into the late democratic primary in this beat for the purpose of confusing democratic counsels, and afterwards declaring openly they would not support Oates to whose nomination they were parties by that act? How honorable and how honest do you consider such conduct? You say you wanted a different arrangement from that made by the county officers to remove all ground of suspicion. Suppose you had gotten it. In view of the facts recited above would there not have been then reasonable grounds of suspicion and apprehension on the part of the other fellows? Why should your feelings be consulted any more in this matter than the feelings of the democrats?

And what right have you to assume that the good men appointed as election managers, whose names are published in the election notice now standing in this paper, are going to "plunder" the ballot box while the Kolb manager is out fixing the ballot of a voter? They are as honest and honorable as any like number of men in your party. This is a specimen of the recklessness with which your crowd are making charges against your opponents, and may well discredit your statements as to other matters in the minds of all.

How is it that, for a joint act of three men, you single one out for praise and two for censure and threats? We have seen an anonymous letter to Clerk Weaver, from Anniston, of the same tenor. That letter states that but for Judge Crook the Populites would have not had any managers. It abounds in unbecoming threats against the Clerk. In view of your letter and the one mentioned the editor of this paper put himself to the trouble to ascertain what transpired at the meeting of the three officers charged with the selection of managers. They met in the office of the Circuit Clerk. Judge Crook opened the proceedings with the remark that he believed they would all agree that the organized democrats should have two managers and the opposition one manager at each box. Sheriff Caldwell replied that the law required that the opposition have representation, and thereupon Judge Crook furnished a list of one name in each beat representing the opposition to the democrats, which he said he had prepared without suggestion, remarking that some parties had offered suggestions as to the personnel of the managers, but he declined to receive them. Then in pursuance of the general agreement two democrats were selected from each box and the list of managers completed. It was a proper act on the part of all three. How comes it, Mr. Harvey, that in the face of this fact, you can say you commend the Probate Judge and indulge in unseemly threats against the Sheriff and Clerk, who acquiesced in his suggestion and obeyed the law with him in the selection of managers? This is a specimen of the illogical prejudice that governs some of your people as well as an additional specimen of the recklessness with which you make unfounded charges of unfairness and intended fraud against democrats.

By what right do you assume to threaten election managers with violence if they do not give you a man to mark ballots? What evidence have you that they will not do so? Personally we are in favor of election managers giving you what you want in this regard, but we think you are pursuing the wrong course to get it. Threats do not intimidate

The detachment turned out twenty men on the Fourth and bright and early Wednesday morning started for Anniston in a four horse bus. This is the slowest time of the year with collections in the newspaper business; but the cash outlay to run the business goes on just the same. The REPUBLICAN will greatly appreciate a settlement of subscription on the part of any of its readers at this time. Remember that a dollar or two may be a small thing to you; but if many subscribers pay their dollar or two the aggregate amount will quite suffice to meet the current cash expenses of the office. Head just right—Liver, Stomach, and Bowels, by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They do it in just the right way, too—by using Nature's own methods. That's why they're better than the dreadful old-fashioned pills, with their griping and violence.

But they're better in every way. In size, for instance, and dose. They're the smallest and the easiest to take; only one little Pellet is needed for a gentle laxative effect. They cleanse and regulate the system thoroughly—but it's done easily and naturally. Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the Liver, Stomach and Bowels are prevented, relieved, and cured.

They're the cheapest pill you can buy, for they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned. You pay only for value received.

Something else, that pays the dealer better, may be offered as "just as good." Perhaps it is, for him, but it can't be, for you.

REPUBLICAN,
JACKSONVILLE, ALABAMA.

In the Senate of the United States Monday last Populist Peffer made an incendiary speech on the prevailing strike, in which he boldly declared for a change in the form of our government, involving the abolition of the congress of the United States. Davis, (Republican) and Gordon (Democrat) roasted Peffer for his unpatriotic attitude. Peffer's inflammatory language at so critical a time provoked great indignation among men of all parties. In opening his speech Gen. Gordon said:

"Mr. President, the senator from Kansas clothed his somewhat extraordinary speech with an assault on the two leading political parties occupying this chamber and appeals for a third party. At a time like this, when the peace of great communities is not only threatened, but broken, when law is defied, when a great central city, one of the first of this or any other land, has its prosperity threatened by a reign of blood and fire and terror; when great communities are looking hither and thither for some method of escape from the terrors which surround them; when our very civilization, not to say the form of government under which we live, is heaving under a mad ground swell of a great agitation, it seems to me that any representative on this floor has descended very far from the lofty plane of statesmanship and patriotism who stands at such an hour to appeal for party."

At the close of his speech Gen. Gordon said:

"One more thought. The distinguished senator from Minnesota (Mr. Davis) said truly and wisely that the great backbone of the country was the common class. I belong to that class; I am a farmer and only a farmer, and as their representative. I stand here today to say that south of the Potomac you will not see a farmer, be he white or black, who will not rally to the support of the government in the support of the power which the people have elected. I wish the matter could have been settled; I regret the bloodshed, but I want to say as an honest man that the blood which has been shed or will be shed, be it an ocean, is nothing to the price of this republic and its value, and the sons of the men who made it will save it whatever may be the cost."

This speech evoked prolonged and enthusiastic applause, which made it necessary for the Vice-President to admonish the galleries. A resolution was then introduced in the Senate approving the course of the President in using the army to maintain order, and declaring it to be treason to resist his troops.

The new evening daily in Montgomery, devoted to the interests of Reuben F. Kolb, is on our table. It proposes to run only for the campaign, we presume, as it quotes rates only for that time. The price is 50 cents. We advise democrats who may be called on to speak in the campaign to take it, in order to inform themselves of the arguments used by the Populites in the canvass.

We see only one noticable expression in the issue before us, and that is the declaration to have a new election law not so full of pains and penalties. We take it from this that the True Democrat does not like the Sayre law because it has too many penalties for fraud. It wants a law with few penalties, where swindling will cost little either in money or loss of time in prison. This is the natural inference; but of course the True Democrat will deny it. By the way the name, True Democrat, is a misnomer.

The good news from all over the state continues to be received at the headquarters of the democratic state executive committee. At one point in Bibb, where Governor Jones once received 126 votes, there is an Oates club 200 strong. At points in Pike there are Oates clubs organized with a larger membership than the vote received by Jones in August, 1892. Montgomery Advertiser.

The Gadsden Times-News is after the Commissioners Court of Etowah county with a sharp stick. The court is of the "reform" variety and has been putting the county in very heavily to its favorite contractors and its favorite county physician. The "reformers" will find it hard to answer some of the questions of the Times-News. When the "reformers" go gunning for other people it is well to bring them up in this way occasionally.

Letter from Mineral Hill Springs.

July 10, 1894.

DEAR REPUBLICAN:—Today finds me in new quarters. After remaining at Tate as long as I deemed it necessary, feeling satisfied that it had knocked the dyspepsia dead, I began to explore on a small scale. Accompanied by two companions Capt. Knight, of Mobile, and Mr. W. D. Henderson, of Dallas Texas, we strolled down here. To our surprise and delight we found seven different waters in a stone's throw of each other and five within a radius of twenty feet. The seven waters are red, white and black sulphur, chalybeate, epsom, alum and black water. The latter is what I am drinking. It contains sulphur, arsenic and alum. This I am using for my neuralgia. It is a dead shot on any rheumatic or pains of any kind, and the finest blood purifier to be found.

These great healing fountains are located at the foot of Clinch mountain surrounded by other ridges, and it looks as if nature has smiled upon this whole section; never saw so many springs in any country. Now do not think I exaggerate while I attempt to describe the climate. There is a continual breeze all day. Late in the evening you begin to think about an overcoat or wrap. I have found my overcoat right handy several times and thank my better half for insisting on my bringing it very much against my will.

Last night I put my windows all down and slept under sheet, two comforts and a counterpane.

This place is quite small compared with Tate, although a few years back it was patronized more. I enjoy the quietude. It is quite a rest to one after spending a few weeks in a large crowd, to get off from the music and dancing and especially give your eyes a rest from gazing on tan shoes, pink shirts etc.

As some of our readers know, this is right in the heart of the region where the Tories and bushwhackers raged during the late civil war; and to day finds, I guess, three fourths of the men drawing a pension and voting the Republican ticket. So you see the good lord mixed some evils along with the good.

Chickens sell at 8 cents per pound undressed (which makes friers bring 4 to 5 cents apiece) eggs five cents a dozen. Everything you eat is cheap but the writer would not exchange old Alabama for any country, especially old Calhoun county, and to get down to business, dear old Jacksonville is where I expect to live and die and want to be buried.

My health is improving so rapidly that I am surprised when I look in the glass and see how my cheeks are filling out, and my color is getting so much better; but I don't get a bit prettier. If there is a spring to be found in this section that will make any improvement on looks I will hunt it up.

I am anxious to get home and I guess by to-day week I will be enjoying the company of my loved ones and friends.

Asking your readers to pardon me for boring them with this episode I am Yours Truly,

JOE H. PRIVETT.

Jessie Stokes of Washington county, 87 years old, was found dead in the road one day last week. He was out looking for a loose horse and it is supposed that heart failure was the cause of his death.

ELECTION FRAUDS.

Senator Morgan Expresses an Opinion.

A reporter of the Non-Conformist recently had an interview with Senator Morgan, in Washington, and thus reports him on the subject of fraud at the ballot box.

"It is the most heinous of all crimes," he said, "unless we except murder or rape, and a man who would aid in doing it would steal the bread from the altar or the sacred vessels from the communion table. A man who would reject a legal ballot, throw it out, not count it, or make a false return, is not fit for human society. He would rob his mother. He would steal the savings of a beggar. I would not trust him with anything. He not only robs the man whose vote is suppressed, but he robs the whole nation."

"I thought that conferring the suffrage upon the negro was a mistake. He did not have the intelligence to use it for his own benefit. I thought that it was wrong to do it. But, the negro has the right of the ballot by constitutional amendment, and that right should be maintained. It may not harm the negro to suppress his ballot, but it harms the man who does it."

"Every man, white or black, must have free access to the ballot box. His vote must be received, it must be counted, correct returns must be made, and the man who has the majority, if it is only one vote, must be inducted into office and exercise its functions, or this government cannot endure."

Proclamation by the President.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—At a late hour last night President Cleveland issued the following proclamation:

"Whereas, by reason of unlawful obstruction, combinations and assemblages of persons, it has become impracticable in the judgment of the president, to enforce, by the ordinary course of judicial proceedings, the laws of the United States within the state of Illinois, and especially within the city of Chicago, within said state; and,

"Whereas, for the purpose of enforcing the faithful execution of the laws of the United States and protecting its property and removing obstructions to the United States mail in the state and city aforesaid, the president has employed a part of the military of the United States."

"Now, therefore, I, Grover Cleveland, president of the United States, do hereby admonish all good citizens and all persons who may be within the city and state aforesaid against aiding, countenancing, encouraging or taking any part in such unlawful obstructions; combinations and assemblages; and I hereby warn all such persons engaged or in any way connected with such unlawful obstructions, combinations and assemblages to disperse and retire peaceably to their respective abodes on or before 12 o'clock noon on the 9th of July instant. Those who disregard this warning and persist in taking part with a riotous mob in forcibly resisting and obstructing the execution of the laws of the United States, or interfering with the functions of the government, or destroying or attempting to destroy the property belonging to the United States or under its protection, cannot be regarded otherwise than as public enemies. Troops employed against such a riotous mob will act with all the moderation and forbearance consistent with the accomplishment of the desired ends, but the stern necessities that confront them will not with certainty permit the discrimination between guilty participants and those who are mingled with them from curiosity and with criminal intent. The only safe course, therefore, for those not actually participating is to abide at their homes, or least not to be found in the neighborhood of riotous assemblies."

"While there will be no hesitation or vacillation in the decisive treatment of the guilty, this warning is especially intended to protect the innocent."

"In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be hereto affixed, in the city of Washington, this 8th day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand, eight hundred and ninety-four, and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and eighteenth."

"GROVER CLEVELAND.
By the president:
"W. Q. GRESHAM," Secretary of State."

The proclamation was communicated to General Miles by Secretary Lamont, who telegraphed as follows:

"In view of the provisions of the statute and for the purpose of giving ample warning to all innocent and well disposed persons, the president has deemed it best to issue the accompanying proclamation tonight. This does not change the scope of your authority and duties, nor your relations to the local authorities. You will please make this known to Mayor Hopkins."

REVENGE.

Revenge is a naked sword—
It has neither hilt nor guard
Wouldst thou wield this brand of the Lord?
Is thy grasp then firm and hard?
But the closer thy clutch of the blade,
The deeper blow thou wouldst deal;
Deeper wound in thy hand is made—
It is thy blood reddens the steel.
And when thou hast dealt the blow—
When the blade from thy hand has flown—
Instead of the heart of the foe
Thou hast met, and it sheathed in thine own.

MURDER WILL OUT.

Prominent Young Man Charged With Killing Miss Kaiser, in Florida.

Jacksonville, Fla., July 10.—Two months ago near Jensen, in this state, Miss Kaiser, a pretty girl, was murdered. Her head was severed from her body. The girl had been attacked while in the woods near her home and an attempt had been made to ravish her. No clue was found at the time to the murderer, though several persons were under suspicion.

The case dropped out of public notice until this afternoon, when Marcellus Hardee, a young man belonging to a wealthy and prominent family of Jensen, was arrested for the crime. Detective Rhodes of Baltimore, worked up the case, and he claims to have plenty of evidence against Hardee. He says that Hardee met the girl and made an improper proposal to her. This she resented and then Hardee attempted to ravish her. The girl fought him and Hardee used a knife, severing her head from her body. Hardee has been under suspicion from the first.

We firmly believe that Col. Oates will be the next Governor of Alabama, and he will be elected by a "free vote and an honest count," nevertheless good old Democracy still has the candle burning in the window and the door is ever ajar that those who have strayed out of the folds may return to its protecting wing.—Talladega Mountain Home.

FOR COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT OF

of Jacksonville.

Senator Morgan entered the canvass for Col. Oates at Fort Payne July 12th, and will speak every day (Sundays excepted) until July 28th.

In his speech here parson Adams advised against joint debate. He wants his party to hear only the misrepresentations of himself and others without contradiction.

Col. Oates, Col. Jno. W. A. Sanford and others, addressed about eight hundred people at Piedmont Thursday, and reports say the speeches accomplished much good.

The county joint canvass begins at Oxford Saturday. Several will go over from here to White Plains to hear the candidates discuss state and county issues on Wednesday.

The reports from all parts of the state are very encouraging to the Democrats. The indications are that Col. Oates will be elected by a majority of twenty thousand, at the least calculation.

Prof. Jno. W. Abernethy, of Anniston, is rendering the democratic party good service in this county. He is very capable and will in due time receive deserved political preferment.

We have received a copy of the Christian Educator, published at Birmingham. It is the successor of the Birmingham Methodist and is edited by Rev. Z. A. Parker, D. D., one of the most brilliant and active of Southern Methodist preachers.

The ready response of the state troops and the co-operation of the law-abiding element in Jefferson county will preserve the peace in Birmingham and protect the property interests of its citizens. It will be of inestimable benefit to Alabama if peace and respect for property and the rights of men should prevail throughout these troublous times.

A recent communication in the New York Herald puts plutocrat Pullman in a bad light. It charges him with cutting the wages of his men one half because they voted for Cleveland, against his advice. Pullman's refusal to arbitrate differences with his men makes him responsible for much of the trouble growing out of the strike.

Adams, in his speech here, insinuated strongly that the democratic state government had been stealing or misappropriating the public funds; but when brought to book by a democrat who was present, he was forced to say that he would not make such a charge specifically. Adams is a slick fellow, who wants no joint debate, because he wants to misrepresent by insinuations without contradiction.

A special dispatch from Vincent in Shelby County, July 11th, says that a committee of Kolbists waited upon a Republican of that beat, whom they supposed would be appointed an election manager, and notified him that they would hang him if he did not go their way. The correspondent says the name of the threatened man can be given if necessary. The dispatch concludes with the natural remark: "This is the class of men who are raising the cry of a 'free ballot and a fair count'."

When Populists speakers decline joint debate and proceed to lie upon the democratic party, they should in all cases be challenged by some democrat to prove their charges. It is the privilege of any voter in this free country to fire questions at a public speaker or challenge the truth of his statements. It is no breach of courtesy to do so. If a palpably false statement gets uncontradicted, simple minded voters may be induced to believe it on that account alone.

Rev. S. M. Adams, candidate on the Kolb State ticket made a speech here this week to an audience composed of Democrats and Third party men in about equal proportion. He said nothing notable, and evoked little applause. His evident purpose to charge misappropriation of funds on the part of the State Government was abandoned when he discovered that his statement on this head would not be allowed to go unchallenged.

Adams professed at Oxana to have a letter besmirching the private character of Col. Oates. He was informed that Col. Oates was in Anniston and was asked if he would read the letter then to his audience and he declined on the ground that it was too dirty. He was then informed that Col. Oates could be brought there in twenty minutes and was asked if he would show him the letter and he declined. Adams is good at lying by insinuation. He said he adhered to his former declaration that he would burn his arm off before he would vote for Senator Morgan.

The latest dispatches from the West indicate that the greatest strike this country has ever had has practically come to an end. This is largely owing to the firmness and promptitude of President Cleveland in dealing with a most delicate and dangerous situation. In some instances overt acts of treason were committed both against the State and Federal governments by the mob in firing upon State and Federal troops, but on the whole there has been less loss of life than was expected. The loss in money is very great. The authorities seem to have been governed by the rule that men are free to quit work when they please, but not free to prevent others from working when they desire to do so.

There is no shadow of doubt about the election of Col. Oates. People who are naturally for a democratic government of law and order are to numerous in this state to be overcome. Get on the winning side, which in this case is the right side, while you have the opportunity. Come back to your old party and your old friends before it is too late, and be prepared to rejoice with those who love their state better than they love of any man. While men believed Kolb was a democrat who had not been treated fairly, there was excuse for supporting him; but since he has revealed himself as an ally of the National Republican party, pledged to turn Alabama over to her foes, no democrat can afford to give him any kind of support.

Senator Morgan declares himself strongly against fraud in elections; the democratic press of the state have declared for fair elections. Col. Oates, in a recent open letter to Capt. Kolb and in many of his speeches, has done the same, and yet Kolb and his speakers continue to howl intended fraud on the part of the democrats. No declaration on the part of the democrats seem to satisfy them. They think they can make capital out of it and will continue it to the date of Kolbs coming defeat. Fair men will notice that, so far, the only evidence of intended force and fraud has been furnished by the Kolb county officers in Pickens, who refuse to reveal the names of the election managers of that county, and by the Kolb committee in Shelby, who threaten a supposed election manager with death, if he fails to count their man.

THE CHICAGO STRIKERS

Business Being Rapidly Resumed in the Windy City.

ROVERBORN'S ORDER OF NO NOTE

The Workmen Were Seen Going to Work as Usual—He Sends a Telegram Telling Cleveland Men Not to Strike—California Strikers Showed No Fight When the Soldiers Arrived in Sacramento.

CHICAGO, July 12.—The general strike which was to have been inaugurated during the night, to force the arbitration of the Pullman strike, has failed to materialize. Throughout the city during the morning there was little evidence of the business paralysis which has been so confidently predicted by labor leaders. Every street car line in the city is running; the elevated roads carried the usual number of trains, and the early morning crowds of workmen on the way to their shops and business seemed undisturbed.

Of all the trades which had threatened a strike, the scamen, cigarmakers and carpenters were the only unions which signified their intention of stopping work. Reports from these trades were anxiously awaited, but their action one way or the other was regarded as only a drop in the bucket.

According to labor leaders, more than 100,000 men in this city will be out on a strike by Saturday. That was settled at meetings held by a dozen or more local unions last night, and the Chicago building and trades council, which alone controls the destinies in this strike of 25,000 men. The council at a late hour, and after a full discussion of the situation, passed the following resolution:

Resolved, That it is the sense of this council to select and that organizations already out on strike, and that organizations not out on strike, to remain out on strike by Saturday morning.

The men on the west division street car lines have a strike, but during the morning and decided not to strike.

The Building and Trades council is composed of the members of 26 affiliated organizations, and it is the most powerful union labor body in Chicago. Among the unions that affiliated with it are the carpenters, numbering 5,500, and the plumbers, 7,000. According to the resolution, all will lay down their tools before Saturday.

There was no strike, however, in this city by members of the order, and it is supposed that the message from the grand master workman caused it to be called off for the time being at least.

A member of the Knights of Labor, in speaking of the telegram, said he thought it was sent on account of Debs' indictment, and in case the grand jury takes steps looking to the indictment of Sovereign, this message would be on file with the telegraph company, showing that he had called off the strike previous to ordered.

PITTSBURG, July 12.—Representatives in this district of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, the Switchmen's Mutual association and the Order of Railway Telegraphers, have held a meeting and decided not to participate in the strike now being waged by the American Railway Union. This will prevent the local Knights of Labor officials from discussing the meaning of the communication.

CHICAGO, July 9.—The great strike, the result of a boycott by the American Railway union against the Pullman Car company, has drawn into the vortex of disruption and disorder, perhaps, the greatest number of laboring men ever arrayed against capital in this country. With varying fortunes, the men have waged a relentless war for nearly two months, and for the past two weeks, Chicago has been in a state bordering on civil war. Millions of dollars have gone up in flames, and under the battering ram, in the hands of mobs of men.

The American Railway union struck in Chicago in sympathy with the Pullman men, and all over the west, members of that union left their work in sympathy with their Chicago brethren.

Chicago, July 12.—The regulars, during the morning, took possession of the depot. No violence was offered.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 12.—Switchmen on the Southern road failed to show up, and a general tie up of the road is now threatened.

It has been nearly a week since a freight train passed this point on the Louisville and Nashville road.

Enger for the News.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Senators and members of the house evince the greatest possible interest in the news of the strike. The bulletin giving in a concise form the latest events, where the scene of action, have been eagerly read by all. While the senate was not in session the bulletins were read in the different committee rooms where there were meetings. The most important argument or discussion would be broken off while some senator would read each dispatch as it arrived. In the house the interest has been even greater, and each bulletin would be discussed by groups of members about the hall in preference to listening to what was being done in the regular proceedings.

Local & Personal

Rev. J. H. Leslie has been attending protracted meeting at Alexander City this week.

Mr. Bernard Gaston, of Montgomery, has joined his family, who are spending the summer here.

All saloons in the city of Birmingham have been closed for some days by order of the Governor, who had the power under the law.

Mr. Jake Whisenand and son of Brooksville, Florida, are visiting friends and relatives in Jacksonville.

Ella, the seventeen year old daughter of George Hoke, (colored) died Thursday morning of consumption.

A letter from Maddox, beat No. (4) to the editor of this paper, of date of the 10th inst, says the Democrats will carry that beat this time.

Capt. P. D. Ross has opened a school at the new school house near Sim Weavers farm in this beat. The enrollment was forty to begin with.

Quite a number of people went up to Piedmont to the barbecue and speaking. They talk enthusiastically of the hospitality of the Piedmont people.

The Jacksonville detachment of the Woodstock Guards left a few days ago for Birmingham in response to orders from the Governor. There were twenty-six in the squad.

A. J. Logan and Charlie Weir (colored) left for the State negro Republican convention at Birmingham Wednesday. This convention will be composed of the Stevens wing of the party.

Mr. W. J. Martin of Birmingham will address the people at Alexandria July 25th at 8 p. m. and at Dukes July 26th at 8 p. m. on the political issues of the day. A full attendance of voters is requested.

The tariff bill is now in committee of conference between the two houses. It is to be hoped that the House will insist on taking every feature from the bill that gives any advantage to the sugar trust.

Mr. H. F. Montgomery and family went to Schenck's Sulphur Springs Thursday to take charge of the company hotel. He and his excellent wife and daughters will make a great success of the hotel and it will be crowded all the summer.

Sheriff Caldwell and Marshal Privett went to a point on the Alabama-Missouri R. R. between Anniston and Leatherwood's one day this week, to investigate obstructions on the track, designed to derail the trains. They took bloodhounds, but failed to locate the miscreant or miscreants.

Mrs. Columbus Whiteside of Choctawhatchee valley, mother to Mrs. Jno. P. Weaver of this place, was taken sick Sunday night last and died Tuesday morning of heart failure. She was not thought to be dangerously sick. Mrs. Whiteside was a most estimable christian lady and information of her death will be received with sorrow by a large circle of friends and relatives throughout the county. Her husband, children and relatives have the profound sympathy of this community.

On next Thursday evening July 19th the local amateurs of Jacksonville will render Gilbert and Sullivan's beautiful operetta H. M. S. Pinafore, with full chorus and all costumes.

The Operetta is a two act extravaganza and is quite interesting and instructing.

A great deal of credit is due to the management in arranging and presenting this entertainment, and we have no doubt but what the appreciative public will give a liberal patronage.

It is expected that large delegations from Anniston and Piedmont will attend.

In Pickens county the county officers are Jeffersonians. They have declined to let the Democrats know the names of the managers of the election. That is the crowd now engaged in yelling themselves hoarse with allegations of prospective Democrat frauds.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

When the Third party county officers conceal from the voters the names of the appointed election managers and refuse to reveal them on demand, it looks very much like some fraud was intended in the interest of Mr. Kolb. When the democratic county officers of Calhoun allow a manager of the opposition at each box and publish the names of all the managers, some of Mr. Kolb's friends complain.

If the county officers of Calhoun had done as the Third Party county officers of Pickens have done, then there would have been ground of complaint. But they did not.

In his speech at Fort Payne on the 12th Senator Morgan gave high praise to President Cleveland. He declared that the Democratic party would go on to victory as in the past. He attacked Kolb as a ballot-box stuffer. He declared that the coming of Hoar into our local fight would only serve to steady the Democratic column. He predicted that Adlai Stevenson would be our next President, and that the silver question would be settled this winter by international agreement. Concluding he said: "It is not much longer that I can march with you, but just as long as I do I will fight under the democratic flag."

Adams says Kolb can't deliver his followers to the Republican party, but commends Kolb for accepting Republican money for campaign purposes. Adams knows it is morally wrong to get money under false pretenses. If Kolb does not intend to deliver the goods, he ought not to accept Republican money. Adams has some very loose notions of morality, by his own admission in this case; and yet he claims to be a preacher of the gospel of Christ.

Skaggs went to New York state and canvassed for Grover Cleveland. While in New York city he called on Cleveland, and because Cleveland treated him politely, he built hopes. When Cleveland was elected, Skaggs gave such a "blow-out" as Talladega had never seen. After Cleveland was inaugurated, Skaggs wanted to be appointed to the position of Comptroller of the currency. Cleveland failed to appoint Skaggs, and hence Skaggs is "agin" Cleveland and a howling Populite. And of such is the kingdom of the sorehead.

There are gentlemen in this county who threaten the owners of public gins with their renegeance if they should fail to vote for Captain Kolb. These boycotters are loudest in their abuse of ballot-box stuffing and unfair election methods. Are they not a sweet scented lot to talk about the eternal equities?—Eufaula Times.

A Democratic wave is passing over Barbour. The Democracy is winning votes daily. It is the only law and order and good government party now before the people. Barbour county will go for Oates by 2,000 majority.—Eufaula Times.

In a speech in Bibb county, Ga., recently Kolb said that 5,000 of his friends voted in the recent primaries between Oates and Johnston in Alabama. How did he know? Was it by his sanction and advice? Isn't he a pretty fellow to be talking about the fair thing in elections?

The Commissioners court has been in session here this week attending to the routine business of the county and examining the assessment books. They fixed the county tax rate at the same figures as last year.

Mr. Wm. Montgomery and Miss Ella Pruitt were married at the home of the bride's mother, three miles from Jacksonville, the 12th inst, by Esquire James Nunnally of this place.

Rufus Sanders says: "While you are howling for honest elections you might as well put in a short prayer for honest candidates."

Fixed just right
—Liver, Stomach, and Bowels, by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They do it in just the right way, too, by using Nature's own methods. That's why they're better than the dreadful, old-fashioned pills, with their griping and violence.
But they're better in every way. In size, for instance, and dose. They're the smallest and the easiest to take; only one little Pellet is needed for a gentle laxative—three for a cathartic. They cleanse and regulate the system thoroughly.
—but it's done easily and naturally. Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the Liver, Stomach and Bowels are prevented, relieved, and cured.
They're the cheapest pill you can buy, for they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned. You pay only for value received.

Regulars Shoot to Kill
Spring Valley, Ill., July 10.—A company of regulars commanded by Capt. Conrad, came into collision with a mob of strikers, principally miners, this afternoon at the Rock Island Railroad station, and after patiently enduring volley after volley of stones, fired into the mob killing two men and wounding several others. The mob was largely composed of Huns, Poles and other foreigners. Their threatening demonstration yesterday and this morning had caused the presence of the troops and the attack began before the soldiers had landed from the train. After his soldiers had been well pelted with stones and the mob threatened to run over his men, Capt. Conrad gave the order to fire. The mob broke for the timber when the firing began and has not assembled since. The troops went back to Chicago tonight.

From the county of Clay good reports continue to come for the Democratic party. The people over there, as in other parts of the state, are beginning to realize that it would be a dangerous piece of business to turn Alabama over to Kolb and his crowd and are leaving the People's party like rats flee from a sinking ship.—Talladega Mountain Home.

J. T. Roaseau, a farmer of De Kalb County, struck it rich when he dug up over $300 in gold and silver in his corn patch one day last week. A heavy rain had washed the loose soil off a place, and by a little digging the money was secured. From the dates on the pieces, it must have been buried about the beginning of the war.

Mr. S. L. Fuller, the candidate for the legislature in Cullman county, was married in 1876, at which time he could not read a newspaper. He studied hard and in less than three years was admitted to practice law, and in 1885 he attended the high school in Cullman in company with four of his own children. That is the kind of self-made man who is bound to win.

Mr. G. W. Cline, a young farmer living in Etowah County, came very near losing his life from drinking cold water while overheated. Prompt medical assistance saved his life.

Thursday morning of last week the Episcopal church in Sheffield was struck by lightning and burned to the ground. It was a neat little church and its destruction will fall heavily on the congregation.

Mr. James Savage, one of the oldest citizens of Jasper, was found dead on the streets a few days ago. He had been down town and was in his usual good health only an hour before his death was announced.

A little son of Mr. W. A. Stephens of Edwardsville, was severely burned by powder one day last week. He was trying to make a blast, but the powder was too quick for him.

J. T. Glasgow of Cleburne county, lost his crop of wheat by fire. While the threshers were at dinner fire caught in the straw and the entire lot was burned.

Guy Burch, who lived near Victoria, Covington county, went to Elba and got on a spree. As he was returning home he fell from his horse and broke his neck.

Dudley Beville, of Woodstock, had his arm so badly shattered by the accidental discharge of a gun that it had to be amputated at the shoulder. It was the old story of pulling a gun towards you.

What is
CASTORIA
Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrup, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhoea and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.
"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children, which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quick nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
Dr. J. F. KIRCHLOE, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.
"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. ARDER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.
"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

The REPUBLICAN has set on foot
an investigation of matters of interest to the people of Calhoun, which may or may not be published as the truth or falsity of prevalent rumors may appear. It will take some time to go to the bottom of matters of this kind.

When a public officer in Calhoun uses his position to punish me, for opposition to his kinspeople, for office, it is about time he was being brought to book by the voters who elected him. Public office is a public trust and the officer is the servant of the people; and not a petty despot, with power to make and unmake the fortunes of men.

The Hot Blast has an account of the brutal whipping of a negro Jack Brownlee, near Oxford a few nights ago, by a mob. It seems from the account of the Hot Blast that Brownlee's offense was the protection of his daughter from violence and making speeches for Oates. The law ought to get hold of the men who committed the crime of whipping the negro.

About fifty of the miners engaged in the murder of negroes at Pratt Mines have been arrested to date and more arrests are to follow.
The slaughter of these defenseless negroes at the mouth of a mine in which they had been at work for years to feed their wives and children, was the most brutal and cowardly act in the annals of crime in Alabama. Every man concerned in it ought to be hung.

The cowardly attack of the strikers upon the working miners at Slope 3, Pratt Mines, resulted in the death of five men and two more are expected to die, besides very many wounded. The law-abiding people of Jefferson have at last aroused under this outrage and have determined to put down lawlessness. Two full companies of old Confederate soldiers have been organized and armed; and they have tendered their services to the Governor. This means business. If these old Confederates get after those Huns, Poles and other outlandish fellows who are causing this disturbance, something will be heard to drop.

The outbreak of lawlessness at Pratt Mines and elsewhere in the mining districts of Alabama, upon withdrawal of the State troops, is to be regretted by every citizen of the State interested in her welfare.
During all this panic and these troubled times the South has been comparatively well off and peaceful. While her people are not rich, they have lived on the fruits of their own industry and thrift and have furnished no recruits to the armies of beggars who have made pilgrimages from the East and the West and the North to Washington. While the depression has closed some of her industries, no violence, incendiarism or murder

has followed, save at one spot in Alabama.

But for this violence in Jefferson and Walker counties, Alabama
could have well said to men of capital: "Here you will find abundant fields for enterprise; here you will find a law-abiding and law-respecting people; here is safety and profit for your investments." And the answer would have been a tremendous inflow of money following a revival of business.

Perhaps it may be so yet, if the authorities put down lawlessness and violence. This they can do only when sustained by a healthy public opinion.

Up to date the candidates for the Legislature are having a high old time over silver and the subterfuge of silver; but all sides, both Populites and Democrats, are very skittish about talking about county issues—the very things the people
most want to hear from them on.
The people of the county can go to higher sources—Morgan and others—for enlightenment on national issues.

Gentlemen: You who want to go to the Legislature, what do you propose to do about turning county issues?

Let us hear from you. The Populites are charging that the Democrats want to hurt the people of the county and are creating disaffection;
yet they do not pronounce. It is best for all interests that there be a show of hands. Let us know at once whether the Democratic party proposes to commission its county nominees to make war on any existing interests or whether it stands for the old Democratic doctrine of "equal rights for all, special privileges for none."

The chairman of the Kolb county convention in Lamar county, after hearing Oates' speech on last Friday, came squarely back into the Democratic party. The Coosa Advocate contains letters from four more Democrats who have been following Kolb, but who have returned home. You can hardly pick up a county paper but what contains news of this kind. Kolb orders that his friends shall not hear the Democratic speeches, has insulted hundreds of them who are not afraid to hear the issues of the day discussed.

Debs, the promoter of the strike
of the American Railway Union, is in jail, together with three of the chief officers of the Union.
They were fined for contempt of court and went to jail rather than give bail, though ample bail was tendered. Debs evidently thinks his incarceration will stir the American heart, but his imprisonment will cause no greater sensation than that of Coxey and his fellow tramps. The United States are eminently practical and thoroughly understand Debs and other professional jawsmiths, who live in clover off fees extracted from the working men they assume to boss.
This is a free country. Every man has the right to quit work
when he wants to. On the contrary, every man has the right to labor for himself and family when he can find employment, and it is the duty of the State to protect both,
under the Constitution.—Ex.

Now in view of the immense audiences that are turning out to hear the Democratic speakers, it is clearly demonstrated that either the whole population is Democratic,
else many Jeffersonians in search of the truth have determined to hear both sides of the question discussed. If the latter, the sign indicating as it does the decline of passion and prejudice in Alabama politics is a hopeful one, and augurs well for an early settlement of the unfortunate differences that have for the past two or three years divided and kept asunder a once harmonious and united people.—Tuscaloosa Times.

LETTER FROM GOV. O'FERRALL

Ring, Words of Warning, For All to Read.

Commonwealth of Virginia,
Governor's Office,
Richmond, Va., July 14, 1894.

Hon. H. C. Thompson, Chairman
State Executive Committee Democratic Party, Montgomery, Ala.
My Dear Sir:—It is with deep regret that I find that my health will not permit me to take part in your State canvass.

For several weeks I have not been well and my physician thinks it would be hazardous for me to engage in a political canvass at this time.

So great is my friendship for Col.
Oates and so intense is my interest in the success of the Democratic Party in your State, that I yield to the advice of my physician most reluctantly. I was exceedingly anxious to add, in some measure, to the unholy coalition which seeks to destroy Democratic supremacy
in Alabama and turn her people over to Kolbism, and to contribute my mite in elevating my friend to the position he has earned so well by his long and distinguished services in Congress, his steady devotion to his State and the cardinal principles of our government.

Virginia some years since, was made to drink the bitter cup of Mahoneyism; her material interests were paralyzed; her progress checked,
her fountains of justice polluted
and her sacred altars of memory desecrated. Her skies were darkened, her industries were stopped and capital fled from her borders
as from a clime of infections and plagues.

Alabama is threatened with the same dire calamity; Kolbism in Alabama is what Mahoneyism was in Virginia. Mahoney declared on the floor of the United States Senate
that he was "a better Democrat than Ben Hill," yet with the same ease with which Eve went into Adam's bosom, Mahoney glided into the Republican camp and became the relentless enemy of the traditions of his people and the best interests of his State. Kolb proclaimed himself "a Jeffersonian Democrat," yet in league with every enemy to the principles which Jefferson advocated and which made his name immortal, and like Mahoney, will be found in the Republican camp, booted and spurred, before the frosts of another winter, if by chance he should succeed in the coming election, and then the people of Alabama will be made to suffer the same woes and to tread the same wine press of sorrow of the Virginia people under the regime of Mahoney.

Virginia with her sad experience
warns her sister State against embracing the vagaries and fallacies of Populism under the cloak of Jeffersonian Democracy; she raises her voice in warning against false prophecies, "wolves in sheep's clothing," itinerant time-servers and predatory political cossacks. She has suffered and speaks with wisdom gained in the fiery furnace of affliction. She has seen the terrible consequences of departure from the Democratic faith, a coalition of some misguided good men with Republicanism, under the leadership of demagogues, and the wrestling
of the reins of government from Democratic hands. She has felt the hot iron of such a combination
in her very soul, and she speaks with the earnestness of genuine love for her sister State, to whom she is linked by glorious memories and united by the steady hands of mutual interest.

I am sure that I can promise that never again will the Old Dominion State be found casting her lot with the enemies of Democracy. Her loyal sons were caught napping
once, but forever hereafter there will be no sleeping sentinels. Her misguided sons of 1851 have nearly all returned to the fold. A few have strayed off into the camp of the Populites, but their desertion has only stimulated the true and loyal to greater exertion and vigilance. Last fall Democracy triumphed over Populism and Republicanism combined by the unprecedented majority of nearly 50,000.
We are divided upon some minor matters—such as the money question, but we are united upon the great fundamental principles which constitute the foundation of the party founded by Jefferson, maintained by Madison, sustained by Monroe and the bright galaxy that have shed a halo around it in the past, and now upheld by a Cleveland—a statesman without guile,

and a patriot without selfishness.

We know that the Democratic party has been our shield in the past; that it has stood as a night-breakwater between the South and the angry waves of malice of the North; that the rights we possess and the blessings we enjoy came to us through its steadfastness and devotion to our welfare; that it has ever been the party of the people; the friend of labor and the implacable enemy of monopolistic expression; that the Constitution is its platform and the faith of the father's creed, and that it has the strength and will to rescue our land from the consequences of long years of Republican legislation and relieve it from the depression and blight of Republican misrule, and so knowing, feeling and believing
the people of this Commonwealth will worship no false gods, embrace no wild theories nor phantom doctrines, nor cast their fortunes with any so-called new party which like the gourd of the prophet may spring up in a night, under the magic hand of some self-constituted Moses.

May the people of Alabama, so true and loyal to the right in the past, so firm in Democratic faith,
so constant in war and in peace,
so grand in traditions, so glorious in memories, still cling to the party of the Constitution and save their fair land, so rich in material wealth,
so strong in natural resources, fertile in soil and so beautiful in landscape, from the hands of the despoiler. God forbid that they should, like the Jews, when besieged by the Romans, under Titus,
turn upon and devour each other,
and thereby render themselves an easy prey to the rapacity of Republicanism, and see the fires of their furnaces quenched, the mouths of their mines sealed, their fields blighted and grass growing in the streets of their cities. Yes,
may their eyes be opened to behold
the long train of evils that will surely follow the downfall of Democracy and the supremacy of the combination of Kolbism, Populism and Republicanism.

Looking with bright hopes of a grand and glorious triumph for your State ticket, and again expressing my deepest regret that I cannot be with you, I remain,

Very truly yours,
CHAS. T. O'FERRALL.

Is This A Free Country?

This is supposed to be a free country, but what an empty claim
just now.

It is a free country when thousands of men at Chicago and other Western cities are not allowed to work, though satisfied with their wages?

Is it a free country, when hundreds of rioters drive away every free man who wants to work?

Is it a free country when the owners of millions of dollars worth of property are not allowed to use it?

Is it a free country when thousands of people in the North and West are not allowed to buy the food products they need whenever they choose?

Is it a free country when thousands of farmers in the South, and other sections for that matter, are not allowed to send their products
to the best markets they can find?

Is it a free country when newspapers are boycotted for expressing their opinions about such things,
when newspaper men are mobbed
for trying to keep up with what is going on?

Truly not. The present situation is more than alarming. It forces upon every thoughtful citizen questions as to the future of our country. Is our boasted liberty only license after all? Are a great number of our citizens incapable of self-government? Must the tenants of Democracy be wiped out by mobs?
Must our Government be more and more centralized? Is the man on horseback to be the future ruler?

May high heaven deliver us.
May our legislators be wise and courageous enough to meet the emergency. To that end may dentation and time-servers be banished from all law-making halls. A people capable of self-government can not suffer themselves to be imposed upon by incompetent any more than brow-beaten by anarchists. Bad laws can be removed, good ones substituted, but only by wise, patriotic, brave men. The trimmer and time-server must be made to take back seats.

The country can be made truly free only when free men put into office representatives free from selfishness, free from cowardice, free
from unworthy motives.—Montgomery Advertiser.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know

that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Fitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Fitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fitcher is on every wrapper.

S. M. SLIM.

Oxford, Ala., July 17 1894.
AS I have many friends who read the REPUBLICAN, I want them to hear from me occasionally, and by your permission Mr. Editor, I will let them know that I am still alive and kicking. My health is good, and my democracy unquestionable, and I am jolly over the prospect of democratic success on the first Monday in August.

Oxford and vicinity have had several good rains recently and crop prospects are fine, and the health of the people good.

There is however considerable unrest on account of the striking mob in and about Birmingham. The Oxford Rifles were ordered here on the 8th and remained till the 15th. They arrived at home late in the evening and in a very short time received orders to return on the first train, which they did. They got aboard the 8 o'clock G. P. train as jolly a set as you ever saw. Our citizens were considerably excited, and many were the inquiries as to the cause, but no one could tell. This morning's Oxford Herald brought the news that so soon as the troops had been discharged, the miners attacked the negroes who had been given the work that they themselves refused to do, and had killed several and wounded others.

The Kolbits claim that they carry Jefferson county this time by a big majority, because they affirm that the miners are solid for Kolb. Well if that is so, and I have never heard it disputed, but on the contrary I have heard that their principles are long and loud. I say if that is so, then it is Kolb's friends that burn bridges, who killed a man who was guarding a bridge, and who cruelly shot his two little girls. It is his friends who shoot negroes who are honestly working to make a living for themselves and families. It is his friends and supporters who are causing the expense the state is 'unto' to prevent the destruction of life and property, and yet his henchmen from Bowman to Len Greer, howl and bellow and praise Kolb's grievances, and abuse democrats and persuade law-abiding citizens to vote for the champion of a lawless mob. Ye men of Alabama who love law and order, who go to church on Sunday, and say your prayers regularly during the week, how can you support a man who claims that the lawless mobs about Birmingham are all for him. What sort of a government do you expect if Kolb and his following should gain control of the reins in Alabama? Think before you cast your vote. Does not all indications go to show that the leaders of the Kolb party are well 'ishers to the burning of bridges—killing the guards, killing little innocent girls and destroying private property? And you colored Republican voters, what do you think of a party that not only kicks the chairman out of the convention, but shoots down your fellows to prevent them from working for an honest living? Suppose you should go to the mines to work? It is your right and privilege to do so. Why, you would be shot unless Gov. Jones who is a democrat, kept troops there to protect you. Who will you vote for? The party that protects you while you work, or the party that shoots you for working to feed your wives and children? And yet Len Greer and Neut Stephens ask the negroes to vote for them. Well, I call that cheek for certain.

Mississippi's New Currency.
It is possible that Mississippi will get into a squabble with the federal government over the state's issue of treasury warrants in denominations of $5.
These warrants are drawn to issue of $200,000. They are payable to bearer and are intended to circulate as currency. The first installment of $50,000 has been printed and is now in circulation.
Governor Stone has been notified by Chief Hazen, of the United States secret service, that all the unsigned warrants must be turned over to him, and the plates of the notes have also been demanded. The Governor declines to comply with this demand. He will continue to issue the warrants, and he maintains that if the people of his state are willing to accept them as currency they have the right to do it, and the interference of the federal government will amount to nothing.

If Mississippi wins the fight, it is probable that when the next panic comes along we shall see many of the states issuing millions of dollars in treasury warrants for $1 upward. Such paper would make a very good currency.—Atlanta Constitution.

The trouble with the Mississippi currency seems to be its resemblance to the U. S. greenback. Alabama issued money called the "horseshoe" money, after the war, and the Federal Government made no objection.

Every one suffers from Catarrh in the Head. Those who don't have it suffer from those who do. It's a disease you can't keep to yourself.
Here are some of the symptoms: Headache, obstruction of nose, discharges falling into throat, sometimes profuse, watery, and acrid, at others, thick, tenacious, mucous, purulent, bloody, putrid, and offensive; eyes weak, ringing in ears, deafness; offensive breath; smell and taste impaired, and general debility. But only a few of these likely to be present at once.
The cure for it—Catarrh itself, and all the troubles that come from it—a perfect and permanent cure, is Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. The worst cases yield to its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties. A record of 25 years has proved that to its proprietors—and they're willing to prove it to you.
They do it in this way: If they can't cure your Catarrh, no matter how bad your case, or of how long standing, they'll pay you $500 in cash. Can you have better proof of the healing power of a medicine?

SAILED THE SEAS 38 YEARS.
One of His Experiences.

For thirty-eight years Capt. Loud followed the sea, most of this time as master of a vessel, and upon retiring from the water was appointed by the Secretary of the United States Treasury to superintend the fiscal fisheries in Alaska, which position he held five years. He relates one experience as follows:
"For several years I had been troubled with severe rheumatism and pain in the region of my heart. My greatest affliction was sleeplessness; it was almost impossible any time to obtain rest and sleep. Having seen Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and Heart Cure, I at once purchased a bottle, and began taking it. After taking a small quantity the benefit received was so great that I was positively alarmed, thinking the remedy contained opiates which would finally be injurious to me; but on being assured by Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and Heart Cure did not contain opiates, I continued to take it. I am now perfectly healthy. I continued it together with the Heart Cure. Today I can conscientiously say that Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and Heart Cure did more for me than any other medicine I have ever taken. I have been treated by eminent physicians in New York and San Francisco without benefit. I am now present good health to the judicious use of these most valuable remedies, and heartily recommend them to all afflicted as I was. Capt. A. P. Lord, Hamden, Me.
Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and Heart Cure are sold by all druggists or by mail order, or by Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5 express prepaid. They are free from all opiates and dangerous drugs."

over his shoulder, and once given to his face, and when he held up a little mirror before his eyes, Laport saw himself transformed into a comfortable well-to-do governor with a florid face that indicated good living.

"Excuse me, sah," said Pan, as he admitted his work. "You'll have to say up, Jess, how out your brass and put yer shoulders back. Yer got a bad sag in yer backbone. Der duds ain't made for it. Jess one more pint—good maff, if yer can hold him dar."

Pan ran his eye over the details and looked at a little watch that he carried in his vest pocket. Laport saw that it was exactly like the one Kent had given him and that the woman had exulted while he was on the mill and indeed, it reminded the servant to place in Laport's vest pocket the time-piece that Kent had given him. He did this with the remark: "Dat's de general's time. T'other one's for to make a gallus show."

A moment later he had gathered up all the evidences of his work and summoned the lady who appeared to be his mistress. She came in flushed, as if she had been riding, looked at Laport critically and said:

"You are Dr. Samuel Franklin, of Cincinnati, and I am your daughter. You are to assume, to the best of your ability, the manner of a rather pompous but kind-hearted parent. You can hold me for my extravagance a little, if you like. You are to carry this roll of bills and when called upon pay our expenses. You are also to take this little checkbook and draw your check as I direct. Further directions I can give you as we journey. The horses are at the door."

Five minutes later Laport was on the back of a handsome horse, riding by the side of a jaunty and spirited companion. Immediately behind them rode three others, who made up the group. The way for some distance was across fields, but presently they came into one of those grass-grown lanes that divide farms, and a little later struck a common country highway running southward. Not a word was spoken by Laport's companion for a mile or two except an occasional direction as to speed. But after an hour's ride they came to a group of houses, when she said: "It is necessary that we show ourselves here. You are to preserve the air of the father of the family—that is all."

At the largest of the houses the party drew up and asked for a drink of water of a man at the door. While it was being served Laport remained in the road—the rest drew up chattering at the door and managed adroitly to tell the man how they had been disappointed in their ride and were hurrying back to Shirleyville. Some questions were also asked about better roads, and then with flippant jests, some coin was handed to the man and they started off again. It was now half-past three o'clock and a ride of half an hour brought them to an interesting and evidently not much traveled road. "We turn south," said Laport's companion. "The rest go on to Shirleyville. Do you understand? There is no telegraph on our route."

The moment they were in the new road she said: "I shall have to ask you to make the best time you can for the next five miles, until we come to an other highway. Your horse has a good gait—let him have his head."

She then struck her animal and Laport followed her. The pace was a painful one, for he no longer had the suppleness of youth, but determination supplied him with endurance, and they rode at a rapid pace through an uninhabited tract, and he was much relieved when they turned once more into a well-traveled road that ran in a westerly direction, and his companion said: "You can take it easy now. We'll walk our horses here and let them dry. We are safe. If you are pursued the scent will lead to Shirleyville."

She drew up by his side as she spoke. "I can now tell you," she said, "what your route will be. We shall stop for the night at a hotel in Charlotte. It is ten miles farther on. You will pay our bill in the morning with a check which the landlord will cash because I have already cashed the two which Mr. Kent got you to sign, and the landlord knows they are good. There is a branch railroad running from Charlotte to Penkanky—thirty miles west. We shall succeed in the morning in getting off with our horses on a trip to the Penkanky glen. The horses will go on to Brankensford, where they will be taken care of, they having been obtained there. At the Penkanky house, we give out that we are going to stop with a friend in town and leave the hotel in the evening. You will then have to walk three miles to reach a trunk line railroad. If we catch an express train we shall most likely be in Wheeling just six hours ahead of a dispatch."

"But if we do not?" asked Laport with considerably more curiosity than apprehension.

"In that case we shall have to depend on the discrepancy between the description and the appearance. The probability is that the pursuit will be thrown off at Shirleyville. There is no means of knowing that we left the party until the pursuers reach the party. They will have to retrace their steps. The landlord at Charlotte will tell them that he has been receiving your checks before the date of the escape, and saw you sign one with his own eyes. It will take some time after we reach to ascertain that we are not in Penkanky yet. If, however, the telegraph is used without waiting to ascertain that the pursuers have boarded the train when we pull into Wheeling."

"Are you prepared for that?"

"Yes. You change your disguise before taking that train."

"Ah," said Laport, with relief.

"And you go on alone," added the woman.

"Yes," said Laport, inquiringly.

"You reach Cincinnati and go to the Columbia hotel, an obscure place. You will look on the register for Bernard Biddle. He's your old friend. He will get you over into Kentucky that night. On Friday morning at ten o'clock you will be at the rendezvous appointed by Mr. Kent. I will myself join you three days later. Once at that point you are absolutely safe from pursuit."

Laport looked at her. "I do not quite see how that can be," he said.

"You will see clearly enough when you arrive there," replied his companion.

ETERNAL VIGILANCE IS THE PRICE OF LIBERTY

ESTABLISHED 1837

JACKSONVILLE, CALHOUN COUNTY, ALA., SATURDAY, JULY 28, 1894.

VOLUME 58.

THE GREAT LARAN REBELLION.

On Friday morning a tired and dusty traveler in a "miserable" Tennessee wagon was driven up to the rugged activity in Henderson county now wild, barren region and all the could see sticking out of the half a mile up the rocky was the painted roof of a small frame house. The traveler got out, stamped his feet as if he was cramped by long riding, gave the negro a two-dollar bill and began climbing the rocky bank.

"It was Lapor," he said.

He sat down on the doorstep of the house somewhat, winded by the climb and looked about him. The prospect to the east and north was open revealing what appeared to be a desolate wilderness of rocks and forests, with here and there the blue peaks of the distant mountains showing between. While he sat there, the door opened; a man whom he did not recognize appeared and spoke to him familiarly.

"Come inside, professor; you can rest yourself much better indoors."

He looked at the speaker. It was Kent, but save for something in the tone of his voice, Lapor did not know him. He appeared broader and heavier and older.

"He considerably assisted Lapor to rise, saying, 'I've been waiting breakfast for you. You may dismiss your anxiety. Your troubles are ended. You must be hungry after your long ride.'"

Once inside the house, a well-settled table presented itself and the men sat down.

"Let us," said Kent, "avoid the usual formalities. Explanations will prepare the way to rest. You are naturally amazed at what has taken place and anxious to know the motives of my action. I will proceed at once to relieve your mind and replenish your system. Let me advise you to drink coffee—it is a necessary prophylactic in this place."

He called to a servant who came in from the one other apartment and brought the meal. Lapor looked on with expectancy and was silent, while Kent both ate and talked.

"You have been most cruelly wronged," he said. "You are not guilty of murder, for that was not your intention. Society took from the world a genius and locked him up. You are at present, and so long as you stay going to manufacture them on a large scale."

He paused a moment and took a few mouthfuls of food. Lapor was regarding him curiously.

"This sounds a little abstract, but it is a necessary postulate. I'm not a crank. Like yourself, society has wronged me. I propose to rectify some of the evils of society. If that sounds chimerical, let me remind you that the details of your rescue ought to convince you that I am a man of method, accustomed to deal with facts and adjust myself to circumstances. You are under some obligations to me. I propose to avail myself of those obligations in only one way—it is by making a confidant of you and depending upon your sense of loyalty, no matter what arrangement we effect. The pledge is implied. Have to put myself in your hands to a certain extent. You are a free man. You are not directly or indirectly to betray my confidence, even if you do not stay with me. That, I merely say, is understood."

Lapor bowed his head in acquiescence.

Kent smiled. "It is hardly necessary for me to say to you that I would not have this confidence in your sense of loyalty if I had not acquainted myself with your character and, I hardly would have taken the extraordinary means to secure your services if I had not believed I could depend upon you. Verbal pledges are unnecessary, my dear sir."

"In carrying out the vast projects which I have in my mind for the rectification of some of the evils of society, I shall necessarily come in collision with society and it was necessary first of all to find a secure place safe from interruption, impenetrable and unknown to the world, where I could carry on the extensive organization scheme. That place is under your feet."

"I do not understand you," said Lapor, looking curiously about him.

"Under this floor," continued Kent, "is the entrance to the largest cave that has probably ever been explored by man. I discovered it by accident about a year ago. I bought this piece of land and erected this house over the entrance. I purpose to buy the whole two thousand acres of wild land that covers a great portion of it, and erect here a large building ostensibly a sanitarium. It is for the fitting up of this underground domain that I have taken in an electric plant, a water supply, a steam engine, and heating apparatus, besides means of defense and other modern appliances. I have estimated the cost of my internal—or, perhaps, I should say, intestinal—improvement at something like a million dollars. It is for you to say, when is another, hidden entrance at this extreme limit, but it needs a little excavating to be of practical use. I intend to purchase that land also and erect a house over it. That entrance, or to speak more correctly, that exit, is within four miles of the great Washington on the Mississippi. The country is such that a hand road can be easily made. The bayou is one of the deepest and wildest on the river. A stern-wheel boat can land her supplies there entirely hidden from the river. It is a little difficulty. The nearest habitation is eight miles distant. The transportation overhead is a matter of a problem; but the eighteen miles underground needs an engineer's skill. That is where I want an electric railway. You will see the necessity of that when you examine the place, for it is the northeastern end of the cave that can best be fitted up for habitation and workshops."

"The difficulties to be overcome, as you will readily understand, are physical difficulties and involve lighting, ventilation, transit and defense. My idea is that the subterranean domain offers a magnificent field for the study of an army of mechanics and soldiers."

Lapor was amazed. "Would it be impertinent," he asked, "if I inquired what you are going to do with the soldiers?"

"Not at all," replied Kent. "But it would be better, perhaps if you were kept in ignorance of my ultimate plans until you had grown to understand their possibility. In case you did not approve of them, it would be better not to be implicated in them. Let me ask you one question—did you not offer to the government a gun constructed on a novel plan?"

"Yes, I did," replied Lapor.

"And the government rejected it?"

"The government laughed at it, and I spent months and all my money trying to lobby through an appropriation to get it tested."

"When was that?"

"It is eight years ago."

"Very good," said Kent. "I should like to have a talk with you about that gun later on. The first thing to do is to give you a sense of security and to do that I shall have to show you my hidden retreat. Before we go down, let me say that this house is accessible only by one road, and we can see anyone approaching by that road for two miles. Besides, I keep a sentry in the woods who can communicate by signal with the house. If by any accident an officer or detective should get into the other apartment, you have ample time to disappear. Let me show you."

Here Kent got up and going to the corner of the room, leaned with his hands upon the wall and pushed vigorously with his feet upon the floor which instantly moved as if it were on rollers, and as it withdrew from the corner in which Kent stood, a smooth rock showed itself about a foot beneath. He jumped down upon the rock and with his foot gave the flooring a push and it receded about three feet, exposing a descent that had been fitted a rude wooden rail and steps.

Lapor stepped to the edge of the floor and looked over. He saw part of a rough shaft which was apparently ten or twelve feet in diameter, that sank away obliquely in a westerly direction and was very dark and repellent.

"Come," said Kent. "I will show you my possessions. You had better let me take your hand. I am familiar with the steps."

Thus assisting and guiding Lapor, they descended carefully the rude but solid stairway which for some distance was very steep. At the end of twenty feet they came to a rough landing, and a new opening leading downward more gradually at right angles to the main shaft. Lapor saw that the entire passage was a natural rift or chasm. He turned at the landing and looked back at the stairway dimly seen in the darkness stretching up above them.

"I know what you are thinking of," said Kent. "It is that by the destruction of the steps one is caught like a rat in a trap. But you forget that there are other exits and, besides, I have bored into the stratum above with an artesian drill and know where it is thinnest. Let us go down."

A light shone in the distance, and its reflection enabled Lapor to descend without further difficulty. In places the natural slant of the rock needed no steps. At others Kent warned him of a sudden rise or fall in the path. As near as Lapor could judge the second passage was fifty feet long and only a few feet wide enough to pass two men abreast. On reaching the bottom of the descent, he found himself in an enormous stone room or arena, that was lit in part by two or three powerful lamps and reflectors. As accurately as he could determine with his eye, the roof rock was eighty or a hundred feet high where it was lit by the reflected lights, beyond which was a pitchy gloom. The walls of this rotunda were uneven and slanted away at different angles, that portion through whose fissure they had come being the nearest to a perpendicular. "The dimension of this room," said Kent, in an explanatory way, "is about half an acre. It is lit by a sort of corridor, fifty feet wide and two hundred feet long, to a much larger opening. This at present is my workshop."

As his eyes became familiar with the light, Lapor saw figures moving about, and he thought he heard the sound of hammers. "There are six men here," said Kent. "They have been fitting up the place for offices and headquarters. Let me show you your rooms."

They crossed the area, their figures making shifting and fantastic shadows against the side of the rock. Externally it presented the appearance of a mere slant, but when Kent opened the door, he found it comfortably carpeted and furnished and lit by a large lamp. A table stood in the center upon which were heaped papers and writing material. A bookcase filled with books, a handsome desk with water-cooler and a little buffet with decanters and glasses gave the place an air of luxury. The wooden walls had been tastefully papered and several pictures hung upon them.

"Kent waited to see the effect upon his visitor and then said: 'A fairly comfortable retreat, professor, and I think you will not regret with me that it is a safe one. Here is a speaking tube and a bell communicating with the world above. I have a door leading out, and as he threw open a side door and disclosed a narrow passage, he said: 'The entrance to the necessary chamber apartments. You can work out your designs here without fear of interruption and be entirely safe from the variations of the season, as this thermometer will show you. But of course I do not expect you to spend all your time out of the sunlight. I should advise you not to give more than half your day to this part of the establishment, unless there is danger of discovery. You are free to go and come at your inclination.'"

Lapor sat down in a comfortable chair. "I should like to ask you a few questions," he said, "but the like one of the stories of the Arabian Nights that anything practical seems out of place."

"Well, pray dismiss all notions of magic and illusion," replied Kent with a smile. "The cave is the only thing that approaches the miraculous—all the rest is plain sailing hard work with the assistance of science. It remains for you to say, after you have made a thorough examination of the place, if it can be made tenable for a year."

"I should say at once," said Lapor, "that if you have the means at command—that I can. I know nothing about the ventilation or salubrity of it, but I should say it would require a stock company with unlimited capital to effect the purpose."

"I have roughly figured the improvements at a million dollars," said Kent, "and that of course is an economical estimate. The money I have. It is a question of practicality. I want you to familiarize yourself with the place—make yourself comfortable, look over my plans which you will find in that portfolio there, estimate carefully just what tools and materials you need and be ready to talk to me tomorrow about the end of a fortnight. Your salary will consist of food and drink, and you can draw on me for money when you please. The sooner you get an accurate estimate of the material, the sooner I can begin to get it in. The first thing is to make a survey for an electric plant and a tramway. We must have light and means of conveyance. It is impossible to deliver the heavy material at this entrance. I am going away to-morrow and will be back in about a week. In that time I expect you to have formed a clear judgment of what you can do. You are too tired to-day to go over the ground, but I will introduce you to my right-hand man here when we get to work in your direction. In your explanations, I shall be gone one or two weeks. You will find many of the conveniences of life here. The mail is brought once a day and includes the principal papers of the country and some of its best periodical literature. There are stationary and appliances in the room. I would not say I have gone, but venture far from the house above ground alone, and remember that my name here is Hendricks and yours is Franklin. Is there anything you would like to say to me before I go?"

Lapor hesitated a moment, and then replied: "There is one person whom I should like to know of your freedom. It is the only person on earth for whom I have a deep affection, and who on hearing of my escape will be tormented with anxiety."

"And who might that person be?"

"It is my daughter."

"Is she?"

"Yes, indeed."

"You want to communicate with her?"

"I should like to set her mind at rest in some way, even if I cannot see her."

"I need not tell you," said Hendricks, "that communication with her is exactly what the detectives who are already put to watch upon her know all her actions and follow every one who calls upon her. Her mails are even intercepted. No, no! Not at present. By and by when the sent is cold, we can get word to her, and when we have proper accommodations, you can have her with you if you like, but not now."

The next morning, they arrived at the house very early a dark-visaged, heavily whiskered, and somewhat rough-looking personage whom Kent drily called "the captain." They ate their breakfast together and then set out on horseback in a southerly direction. They were armed with revolvers and carried on their saddles a luncheon which the servant had prepared for them.

The moment they were alone Hendricks said:

"Well, you are on time. Have you succeeded?"

"Yes, sir," said the captain, who spoke in a deep, husky voice and stopped at intervals to expectorate, rub his head across his mouth and pull down his jet-black whiskers, which had an inclination to turn up and lie in front.

"Yes, sir; the boat is in the bayou, or will be by the time we get there. She is loaded with green lumber. I left New Orleans on the 16th, and the party is made up. It is understood that we are going tarpon fishing off the coast of Florida."

"What men have you got?"

"There's your own list. I followed these three men, and with the men we picked up at the coast there'll be fifty in all. It isn't enough."

"Perhaps not," said Hendricks, "but it isn't my business if it isn't enough. It's all right as long as it's enough for you."

"Well, let me tell you about the guns. It took thirty men and a lighter two days to lift 'em aloft. The men understood that I was acting for the Venezuelan government. I took the trouble to get them at Panama."

"But you had a tug."

"Of course I had a tug, but I sent her back before I got through. She'd like to have seen what I was up to. The tug was with the guns, and I landed on a cove on the little coral island off St. John. The other stuff is on the coast."

"I understood the vessel to be a sea-going schooner. She will have the trade wind and she has got to be in the exact spot on the 25th, by dead reckoning," said Hendricks.

"Barrin' accidents and elements," replied the captain, "she'll be there."

On the morning of the 25th, the handsome steamer San Pedro which had been lying at the levee in New Orleans, took aboard a party of gentlemen and went down the river and out to sea for a week's tarpon fishing. The moment she was in the Gulf, she headed south by west and on the afternoon of the 26th encountered a schooner from which she received the guns that had been picked up on the Bahama bank.

On the 28th, she was off a point on the Georgia coast known as the Piney Stretch and sent a boat ashore in the night. An hour later she pulled into a bay in the most deserted spot of that coast and was loaded with a moderate amount of munitions of war. On the morning of the 30th she touched at St. Augustine guardedly and there Hendricks received a message from New York in cipher. It read thus:

"The Corinthian sails at six a. m. on the 31st three millions in gold; men all taken passage."

What occurred after this can be best told with the subsequent narrations and confessions in view.

The English steamer Corinthian, when three days out, sighted at nine o'clock of a clear, calm morning a small steamer laying to with steam up, two miles off her port bow. Capt. Jamison, an Englishman and an experienced sailor, who was on the bridge at the time, thought the vessel was a large yacht and imagined from her position that she was disabled and wished to speak him. A moment later a puff of smoke came from her side and a shot whistled across his bow.

"What in hell is the devil doing trying to do?" exclaimed the captain in amazement. "Does he know that we carry her Britannic majesty's mails?"

"I'm afraid, sir," said the second officer, who put his glass down and looked a little paler than usual, "that she knows what our cargo is."

"A pirate!" exclaimed the captain. "I'll cut her in two," and he impulsively pulled one of the engineer's bells. In another moment the Corinthian had changed her course a point or two and was heading for the San Pedro.

Both the men were instantly regarding her through their glasses and the passengers were crowding upon the deck.

To their surprise they saw that the San Pedro was moving in the same direction as themselves and throwing a heavy cloud of smoke.

"Run, you bloody little scoundrel!" said the captain.

Scarcely had he got the words out of his mouth before there was another puff of smoke this time from her stern, and almost immediately there came a crash and a hundred voices cried out in alarm and indignation.

The shot had struck the Corinthian just abaft the bridge; torn away about ten feet of her upper works and gone through the stern itself. Three men were knocked down by the splinters.

Capt. Jamison was livid with honest rage and he stamped his foot and swore terribly. "By the God of nations," he said, "are we living in the days of Capt. Kidd, or in the nineteenth century?"

"I'd come to it, if I were you," said his mate. "That fellow will haul us presently. We never can catch him."

"Come to it!" exclaimed the sturdy British captain. "I'll break his back. Do you think an English steamer goes down on her marrow bones to every tramp she meets?"

The vessel was now racing through the water at an increased speed and the action of the engines made an audible throb.

There was intense excitement among the passengers, many of whom were calling up to the captain to stop the vessel.

He looked over the brass rail of the bridge at them with indignant contempt. As he did so, one man pulled a pistol and shouted: "Look here, we don't want to be sent to the bottom on the coast of your damned gold. Stop here where she is. We can defend ourselves at close quarters, but we don't want to be sunk."

To the captain's utter amazement twenty other passengers shouted: "Aye, aye, shut off your steam!"

Then there came a horrible suspicion of the truth must have flashed upon the wretched officer's mind as he looked down upon this group. "He caught the rail a moment with both hands, then wheeled round and, folding his arms, said to his companion on the bridge: "Stop her!"

As if in anticipation of this, the San Pedro had slackened speed and was now blowing a white cloud of steam. For ten minutes everybody on the Corinthian watched the vessels approach each other and, when they were less than a thousand feet apart, every one could see the line of heads along the smaller vessel's taffrail.

The sea was unusually calm and glassy, and presently a boat manned by six men put off from the San Pedro.

When the young man who represented the pirate had reached the deck of the Corinthian he found himself in a crowd of men and women in every condition of alarm and anxiety. He was dressed in a blue shirt and common duck trousers and glazed cap; in his belt he carried a regulation navy revolver. He saluted the captain politely and said, in a pleasant voice:

"I am instructed, sir, to ask you to order your people below and to come alongside and remove your specie. No harm will be done and no indignity offered to your crew or passengers."

"Damn your impudence, sir!" retorted Capt. Jamison. "I've a right to chuck you into the sea myself. Go back and tell your buccanier that a British captain sinks with his ship and cargo. He doesn't hand them over to the first cowardly rascal he meets."

"As you please, sir," the young man replied. "It would be a cruel necessity to send this vessel and its people to the bottom."

He turned to go to his boat after making another salute and one of the passengers again interfered.

"We object to the arrangement," he said. "And are not going to be murdered on the high seas to save your gold."

Whereupon twenty other passengers armed with revolvers stepped out and repeated: "Aye, aye. Take the gold, but we want to reach our destination."

The upshot was that the captain and his officers were looked in the cabin, the passengers ordered below and the San Pedro lashed alongside. It took seventy-five men two hours and a half to transfer the gold from one vessel to another, and a sharp shout was kept for approaching steamships. When the task was accomplished, the engineers were ordered on deck and three of the Pedro's crew went below and effectually disabled the machinery of the Corinthian. This took another hour.

The last thing the pirates saw was the white hair of Capt. Jamison blowing in the wind that had sprung up from the northeast, as he shook his fist at them. And the last words they heard were: "I'll hang every dog of you before I die."

"Come," said Kent. "I will show you my possessions. You had better let me take your hand. I am familiar with the steps."

Thus assisting and guiding Lapor, they descended carefully the rude but solid stairway which for some distance was very steep. At the end of twenty feet they came to a rough landing, and a new opening leading downward more gradually at right angles to the main shaft. Lapor saw that the entire passage was a natural rift or chasm. He turned at the landing and looked back at the stairway dimly seen in the darkness stretching up above them.

"I know what you are thinking of," said Kent. "It is that by the destruction of the steps one is caught like a rat in a trap. But you forget that there are other exits and, besides, I have bored into the stratum above with an artesian drill and know where it is thinnest. Let us go down."

A light shone in the distance, and its reflection enabled Lapor to descend without further difficulty. In places the natural slant of the rock needed no steps. At others Kent warned him of a sudden rise or fall in the path. As near as Lapor could judge the second passage was fifty feet long and only a few feet wide enough to pass two men abreast. On reaching the bottom of the descent, he found himself in an enormous stone room or arena, that was lit in part by two or three powerful lamps and reflectors. As accurately as he could determine with his eye, the roof rock was eighty or a hundred feet high where it was lit by the reflected lights, beyond which was a pitchy gloom. The walls of this rotunda were uneven and slanted away at different angles, that portion through whose fissure they had come being the nearest to a perpendicular. "The dimension of this room," said Kent, in an explanatory way, "is about half an acre. It is lit by a sort of corridor, fifty feet wide and two hundred feet long, to a much larger opening. This at present is my workshop."

As his eyes became familiar with the light, Lapor saw figures moving about, and he thought he heard the sound of hammers. "There are six men here," said Kent. "They have been fitting up the place for offices and headquarters. Let me show you your rooms."

They crossed the area, their figures making shifting and fantastic shadows against the side of the rock. Externally it presented the appearance of a mere slant, but when Kent opened the door, he found it comfortably carpeted and furnished and lit by a large lamp. A table stood in the

here, beyond the reach of society. I do not intend to interfere with your liberty. I shall make you a business proposition. If it does not meet with your approbation you can depart. I will not betray you. If it does you can work for me a year, save a handsome competence and spend the remainder of your days in some safe place comfortably. You are not eating."

"Pardon me," said Lapor. "I will drink this coffee and listen to you. I have no appetite."

"Perhaps a drop of stimulant?"

"No," said Lapor. "My curiosity to hear what you have to say is too great to permit me to eat. Proceed."

"There are five orders of men, Mr. Lapor," said Kent. "One order deals with ideas, the other with events. They are incompatible, but supplementary. The greatest achievements

I have taken you over the ground, if you will sell me your mechanical skill for a year and what it will be worth."

Kent waited for a reply.

After a moment's hesitation Lapor said: "It seems to me, sir, that at this time I am not in a position to make terms. If you succeed in demonstrating to me the practicability of your plans, the best I can do is to offer you my services and advice in so far as the scheme meets with my approbation."

"Well, I can only say that such an arrangement will not do at all. I do not intend to implicate you in any of my schemes. I wish to employ your constructive ability at a reasonable price. If the work that I want done is practicable to the engineering and mechanical mind, and you give me your services for a year, will fifty thousand dollars compensate you?"

For the first time he flashed over Lapor's mind that he was listening to a monomaniac; one of those restless and harmless characters who conceive prodigious schemes and make fabulous promises with no other capital than their disordered imaginations. Kent guessed what was passing in his mind, for he said:

"I see the suddenness and largeness of my schemes have disturbed your confidence. Two or three days of investigation will restore it. We can talk farther of the matter after we are better acquainted. Before I show you the underground laboratory, let me explain to you the topographical peculiarities of the country."

As he said this he picked up a map and, moving his chair closer to the table, spread out the paper on the table. "There," he said, indicating a point on the map with a pencil, "is about where we are. This original map is a sketch-plan of the subterranean domain; as I have been able to ascertain, I estimate the length of the extension of the cave to be about eighteen miles in length. There

"A pirate!" exclaimed the captain. "I'll cut her in two," and he impulsively pulled one of the engineer's bells. In another moment the Corinthian had changed her course a point or two and was heading for the San Pedro.

CHAPTER VII.

No one knew so well as Hendricks, who sat in the cabin of the San Pedro, that all this was child's play to what was to come. He had sixteen hundred men to him. He was loaded heavily with coal and the gold had weighed his vessel too seriously to think of getting anything like the speed out of her that he desired. She was schooner-rigged and there was a stiff wind blowing from the northeast. That was in his favor. But he calculated that if one of the westward-bound ocean grayhounds spoke the Corinthian and got her story, the news would reach New York and set the telegraph in operation much too soon for his safety. He had informed himself of the position of all the government vessels and he knew that there was at last accounts a fast cruiser in Mobile Bay. He therefore, calculated as closely as he could the chances of the Corinthian being intercepted; for, disabled as she was, it would be her captain's plan to put her in the route of a westward-bound steamship.

He betrayed his anxiety to the captain, but that personage filled himself with Medford rum and insisted that the worst part of the job was done.

The first thing that Hendricks did was to throw his guns overboard together with all his superfluous shot and ammunition. He then got upstream and stood off in a southeasterly direction until the Corinthian was well down, when he shifted his course and went directly west.

There was another source of anxiety in his crew, but here his matchless cunning and self-reliance stood him well in hand. He knew what he could do with them if he got within American waters, and they were equally anxious with himself to get off the high seas. It blew a stiff gale all the first night and his vessel labored badly. Finally he took his captain's advice, which was to save his coal till he wanted to show his heels to something and take it easy under sail. The consequence was that it was nearly six days before he struck the Gulf stream and he had not seen a puff of black smoke on the horizon.

He had provided himself with four boats, and managed to land thirty of his men with a thousand dollars of American gold eagles in each man's pocket, at San Augustine in the night. They were as anxious as he to part company, and with a thousand dollars every man of them felt as rich as his leader. The moment he had reduced his crew, he clapped on steam, went down the coast and rounded Cape Fear wall to the south. He is known to have

One of Kolb's Papers Desert Him.

Another prop has fallen from under the fast decaying Kolb campaign. Not only the rank and file of those he has deluded are now coming out against him, but now one of his newspapers openly proclaims its desertion. The Oakman News in Walker county, contains a two column pronouncement this week, of which the following is the substance:

"Many are looking on now and asking 'to what is Capt. Kolb leading his followers? There is but one conclusion to arrive at and only one answer to give—that is leading them into the republican party. 'You ask why we say this after having advocated his cause? It is simply because we have watched his movements for the past few months and every move he makes to better his campaign is in the republican direction. We cannot follow a man when we see plainly that he has abandoned every semblance of democratic faith. We like hundreds of others, have followed him, believing him to be a democrat and that he had been wrongly treated. 'Time proves all things' is an old saying, and by the way it has proven Capt. Kolb's purpose very clearly."

"We censure no man because he has not the same opinion we have, but we ask every man who has been following Capt. Kolb upon the belief that he is a democrat and a tariff reformer, to consider whether he (Kolb) is or not."

"There are some who have been kicking for the past two or three months because we have not been strongly advocating Capt. Kolb's cause. Those who kicked did so before they were spurred. After Kolb's visit to the Home Market club we did not condemn him on it, but simply stated we would not defend him on the charge made. Since then we have not said anything against him, but have been silent, watching his movements and manueverings. Time has proven enough for us."

SATURDAY JULY 28, 1894

Birmingham had a fire hundred thousand dollar fire a few nights ago. The fine Caldwell hotel was burned with other buildings. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Col. Jno. H. Caldwell and Hon. Jno. T. Martin, of this place are making speeches for the democratic cause in this and other counties by invitation of the State Executive Committee.

Wm. C. Scarbrough is one of the best farmers as well as one of the best men in Calhoun. He will take care of the interests of the farmers as well as of all. Then what objection can any farmer in Calhoun have to voting for him?

Elsewhere we print a strong and forcible letter from Ex-Sheriff M. W. Woodruff, one of the most influential and deserving citizens in Calhoun. He sees the danger to his people and like a patriotic man warns them. Heed his warning voters!

Some men will tell you this letter is not genuine. If they do, write or go and see him. Every voter in Calhoun knows where he lives.

Reports from the county canvass say that large crowds are attending the different appointments; that Mr. Miller is simply walking all over Mr. Landers; that Mr. Kelly is thumping Mr. Greer heavily; that Mr. Stephens talks most of National matters and the morals of Mr. Oates, and that Mr. Scarbrough makes a modest, vote-making speech and offers to answer all questions asked him as to any local question.

It is Dick and Len who lock horns and lead spics to the occasion; but Richard invariably gets away with Lemmie.

In view of the fact that rumors had been prevalent from the date of his nomination as to the position of Mr. Kelly on two important local issues, Mr. W. J. Scott, of beat 8, interrogated Mr. Kelly while on the stump at the joint debate in that beat. Mr. Kelly answered publicly as to these in his speech, and Mr. Scott declared himself satisfied. This is well. It removes apprehension and strengthens the county ticket. Mr. Scarbrough has announced his readiness to answer all questions frankly from the beginning. We believe the opposition legislature candidates have so far been reticent on this head except Mr. Stephens.

The Democratic nominees for State office, headed by Wm. C. Oates will take care of all matters of reform in State matters, if it be found that any reform is necessary. The Democratic nominees for the Legislature in this county will take care of matters of reform in county government in Calhoun, and some reform is necessary. There will be in position to accomplish what they undertake. Hence reformers can vote for them without fear.

Mr. Miller has made the best county Superintendent Calhoun has had in many years and it goes without saying that he will be elected. Vote the full democratic ticket from beginning to end.

Limestone county has been Kolb's stronghold in the Tennessee valley. His followers in Limestone demanded that he and Oates meet in joint debate. Kolb had to consent. They met at Salem July 24th. The debate was lively; but Oates got the crowd and punished Kolb fearfully. He was simply no match for Oates in debate and confessed it. Oates made a deep impression and gained a great number of votes. Alluding to the charge that he is hostile to the common schools, he showed that he wrote the clause of our constitution securing to the people of Alabama common schools, being a member of the Constitutional convention. He voted for the clause in the Constitution protecting the people against disfranchisement and said he would veto any bill that disfranchised anybody.

The Kolb barbecue at Sulphur Springs Thursday was attended by between 2000 and 3000 people, including men, women and children.

Many of these were from Blount, St. Clair, Cherokee and Cleburne. Perhaps one fourth were democrats who went from curiosity. Had it been known that joint debate would be accorded, the number of democrats would have been much greater. Senator Goodwyn and Judge Zell Gaston represented Kolb. Col. Jno. H. Caldwell and Mr. R. B. Kelly represented Oates. The two former spoke full time and were accorded respectful attention and were frequently cheered. The two latter were howled at and booed from the beginning. Mr. Kelly held out against the clamor twenty minutes and quit. Col. Caldwell spoke his full time and never lost his temper under great provocation. He gave the crowd a good democratic speech, but it appears that a speech of that character was not relished by many of them. A gentleman who has witnessed many political debates the past forty years, said to the writer that never in all his life had he seen any public speaker treated with the discourtesy and rudeness that Col. Caldwell received. While men are shrieking for a free ballot, they ought logically to be in favor of free speech; but it appears otherwise in this case, from all accounts.

The disturbed condition of affairs in Jefferson county has made it possible for the Kolbits to elect Representatives from that county. In this event, unless there are changes in other counties, the Kolbits would control the House of Representatives. Defeat the election of a democrat to the United States senate and inaugurate a dual government in Alabama—the Senate being democratic and naturally unwilling to tolerate the counting in of a defeated candidate. Such a position of affairs would be most calamitous to all the people and every interest of the State. Before this possibility all local issues sink into insignificance. Democrats of Calhoun should trust to the sense of fairness of their county legislative nominees on these issues and take no chances as to Representatives in Calhoun.

Vote the straight democratic ticket from end to end for the good of the State, without respect to your feeling as to candidates.

In this issue of the paper we print the official ballot as it will be furnished managers of election in this county under the law, which requires the names of candidates for all offices to be printed in alphabetical order irrespective of party affiliation. No voter will be at a loss as to the county ticket or as to governor; but the names of other candidates for State office may not be so well known even to intelligent voters. It therefore may be well to remember this: In case of the State ticket the names of the Kolb nominees come first for each State office, except for Attorney General, where the name of the democratic candidate comes first.

We have printed the ticket as all organized democrats should vote it, with the X mark placed opposite the names of the democratic nominees.

Calhoun's Ex-Sheriff and One of Her Best Citizens Writes a Strong Letter.

Every Voter in Calhoun Should Read It.

EDITOR OF REPUBLICAN:—We are nearing a crisis in politics in the grand old State of Alabama, and it behooves every democrat to stop and think before he casts a vote for Reuben F. Kolb for Governor. The time has been when democrats in Alabama did not doubt his democracy; but I am now thoroughly convinced that he is leading his friends and adherents straight into the Republican party; for, since the joint debate between he and Col. Oates, in Limestone county, no one can longer doubt his affiliation with the Republicans. He admits getting money from Hoar; and I therefore do not see how any good Democrat can follow him further. He has deserted all democratic principles, and is now at work to satisfy a selfish ambition and nothing else. He does not care any longer for results, if he can be Governor and then United States Senator, and I believe, if such a thing were possible, he has gone so far that he would trade off the rights of the people of Alabama to satisfy his selfish ends. I entreat you not to rely upon his literature for information, for it is not reliable.

I have always voted the democratic ticket, and always expect to if I know what I am doing; and I want to appeal to every democrat in Calhoun County who has a grievance, that inside the party is the place to have it settled. Kolb is no longer a democrat, but a patent demagogue who is trying to use the word "Jeffersonian" to spoil the country. I am an Alliance man and expect to adhere to its principles as such, and I hope the organization will be kept up for our benefit as farmers, for there is nothing in true alliance principles to interfere with any duty to my God, my Country or my Family; and the Democratic party, and let us keep up the organization for our benefit as farmers. Then let us uphold democracy, pure democracy, such as is professed and represented in the grand old State of Alabama by the Honorable Wm. C. Oates, Democratic candidate for Governor.

Respectfully,
M. W. WOODRUFF.

Two deputy sheriffs attempted to arrest Robt. Hudson and son, near Coalburg, in Jefferson county, July 24th, for some offense connected with the strike. The Hudsons fired upon the deputies and killed them. A posse of deputies and some soldiers went in pursuit of the Hudsons. These were fired upon by the Hudsons and two other men were badly wounded. At last accounts the Hudsons had evaded arrest.

The discounteons treatment of Mr. Kelly at the Kolb barbecue at Sulphur Springs will make him many votes.

Keep the REPUBLICAN of this week and next and take to the polls for the guidance of voters in making up their tickets.

Rev. George Hamp Smith moved to White Plains Thursday. He will not fill the pulpit at the Methodist church in this place Sunday as was announced.

The School Amendment.

Forty-three States of the American Union authorize (many of them require) local taxation for schools. In forbidding it, Alabama stands solitary and alone.

In illiteracy, according to the 11th census, Alabama marches fearfully near the head of the column, only one State, perhaps, leading. The only remedy lies in the adoption of the pending Educational Amendment.

1. It taxes no one. It gives permission to do so under legislation. It is local self-government in its last analysis.

2. It injures no one. All will retain what they now have. Those willing to pay for additional school facilities will have them.

3. The amendment is not self-operative. It will require legislation in each case. This legislation may be adapted to each school district, whereas the amendment is and must be general. For example, where conditions suit, the enabling act may provide for this levy by the trustees after a vote of the people of the district.

4. If the amendment fails, many of our towns and cities will be compelled to cripple their public schools.

5. With the amendment, our school system will make forward movement; without it, we must stand still or retrograde.

6. There is no partisanship in it. It is a question of statesmanship, of patriotism.

In view of these facts, it should command the support of every voter without regard to party or color.

The clause of the Constitution restricting local taxation now reads:

SECTION 2, of Article XI, of the Constitution: "No power to levy taxes shall be delegated to individuals or private corporations."

As proposed to be amended it will read:

"No power to levy taxes shall be delegated to individuals or private corporations; Provided that the General Assembly may confer upon the trustees of the school districts in this State the power to levy within their districts a special tax of not more than one-fourth of one per centum, to be applied exclusively to maintaining the public schools in the districts in which said tax is levied: Provided, that the money collected from persons of the white race, may by law be applied exclusively to the education of children of the white race; and the money collected from persons of the colored race, may by law be applied exclusively in the education of the children of the colored race."

Under the new election law the substance of this amendment will be printed on the official ballot accompanied by the words "Yes" and "No." By each word is left a blank square. If the voter makes across mark by "Yes" he votes for the amendment, and vice versa. If he makes no mark at all it counts the same as a vote against it, for to be adopted the Amendment must receive an affirmative majority of all the votes cast for members of the legislature.

Two Lives Saved.
Mrs. Phoebe Thomas, of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had Consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her and she says it saved her life. Mr. Thos. Eggers, 139 Florida St. San Francisco, suffered from a dreadful cold, approaching Consumption, tried without result everything else then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of this medicine in Coughs and Colds. Free trial bottles at all Dr. Stores. Regular size 50 and $1.00.

From time immemorial it has been the custom, in this country, where a political party accorded an opponent the right of speech, in joint debate, to accord to such a one the most respectful attention and proper courtesy. If reports be true, Mr. Kelly was howled down in twenty minutes, at Sulphur Springs, after being promised an hour and a half of time. Col. Caldwell, an old and honored citizen of the county, was also treated with the greatest discourtesy. There are many good men supporting Kolb in this county, who have proper conception of the proprieties, and we are glad to know that many of these condemn in severest terms the conduct of a number of Kolbits on that occasion Kolb lost votes by the performance.

Vote the straight Democratic ticket from beginning to end.

COMING HOME.

Cannot Follow Kolb into the Republican Party.

Messrs. J. E. Canada and W. Y. Wilson, two good and influential men of beat 4, in Calhoun county, publish the following card, to the people of Calhoun:

We desire to say to the citizens of Calhoun county that in 1892 we voted for Kolb for governor, but now we could not be induced under any consideration, to vote for him. We believe that he is leading his followers into the Republican party and as we have always been staunch Democrats we cannot follow him longer. We would advise his followers all over the State to turn before it is everlastingly too late and vote for a man whom we know to be a simple pure Democrat—Wm. C. Oates.

J. E. CANADA,
W. Y. WILSON.
Bera, Ala., July 24, 1894.

Politics are getting warm in old Bibb, and as each day passes the Democrats become more and more sanguine of success. The signs of the times point with unmistakable certainty to success of the party. They are gaining ground every day, and the Pops are badly rattled. Bibb county is naturally Democratic and a majority of her people are Democratic, and on August 6th they will be found in the Democratic ranks where they belong.—Blosson Journal.

A DAY OF PRAYER

Set Apart by the County Sunday School Committee.

At a meeting of the executive committee and vice-presidents of the Calhoun county Sunday school association on July 17, the following resolution was introduced by Mr. S. E. Dowdell:

Whereas, the unhappy and suffering and even threatening condition of our country should arouse every true Christian in the land to a full discharge of his duty,

Be it resolved, That the chairman of the executive committee of Calhoun county Sunday school association designate a day and hour in the near future and ask each Sabbath school and all churches and every Christian to assemble in their Sabbath schools and churches, first, to confess their sins to almighty God and ask his forgiveness; second, to pray for our rulers, (St. Paul says "First of all, pray for our country"); third, pray that God may so order that peace and prosperity be restored to our people and His kingdom over all nations prevail.

The resolution was unanimously adopted and Chairman Joseph Cartliff fixed the hour of service on the fifth Sunday in July as the time for carrying out the resolution.

The Guntersville Democrat prints a card from Mr. Jos. Noel, who it says is one of Marshall's best citizens, in which he abandons Kolb. Such cards are getting so numerous that it is hard to keep track of them all.—Montgomery Advertiser.

CARD OF THANKS.

MR. ED.—Will you kindly give space in your columns for the ladies of St. Luke's Guild to express their hearty thanks to the "good people of Jacksonville and Piedmont" for the very liberal patronage of the opera "Pinafore," also their grateful acknowledgment and remembrance to the manager, who so ably conducted and the charming ladies and gentlemen, who so generously gave their time and talent to the perfect rendering of the opera.

County Correspondence.

Oxford, Ala., July 26th-94.

Considered from a crop prospect stand point Oxford and vicinity are all right. Considered from a political standpoint Oxford and vicinity are also all right. Democrats are confident of the success of the ticket both State and County, will get there Eli with all feet up. A free ballot and a fair count is what the democrats ask, and all they want. A free ballot and a fair count is what the Jeffersonian, Kolb, and Hoar combination howl for, but they don't want it. Now here is positive proof that they don't want a fair count. They boast of having at this early date succeeded in stealing 50,000 colored votes in South Alabama by inducing 80,000 negroes not to register. They claim that they have a majority of the white vote and as we have kept 80,000 negroes from registering we will beat you badly this time. The idea of a party howling for a fair count after having already as they assert thrown out 80,000 votes, or which is the same thing they have prevented them from being voted. Its like a fellow preaching honesty to you after he has stolen your horse. Stealing votes before an election no more snacks of a fair count than stealing them at an election. And the clamor for a fair count of what is left comes with bad grace from a party that boasts of having already stolen 80,000 votes. Understand these 80,000 are negro votes. The Kolb combination seems to have a special spite at the colored brother. They shoot them for working in the mines, and they whip them for advocating the cause of democracy as in the case of Jack Brownlee in the lower part of this county, and Dan Bagley in Talladega county. The Kolb combinationites are fighters from away back. Some of them asserted that they came to Oxford to the speaking prepared to do "shoot-in" if it became necessary. One made the remark not long since "if the damned niggers was out of the country poor folks could get something to do." Will the colored voters vote with them on the 6th of August? Hardly. Will white men who love law and order vote with them? Hardly, except they are deluded, and how can any man be deluded after the light of these times has been turned on. After Kolb taking collections at his speakings to support our friends the strikers, and after a prominent Kolbite of this county remarking, "the more strikes the better," which means the more destruction of property, the more burning of bridges, the more killing of guards and little girls, the more shooting of negroes (the better. And why the better? It keeps the Kolbits on the war path. You know they are bold in their assertions that "if Kolb is counted out this time we'll seat him," you know how they talk, blood and thunder and shot guns and so forth. And the Kolb leaders are prepared to claim that Kolb is counted out even if Oates should beat him 200,000 votes. They hope to get up a fight and some few of their following are fools enough to attempt to do the bidding of Kolb, Bowman & Co., but a large majority will wisely determine that somebody might get hurt, as it will be different from shooting negro miners. And Oates will be our next governor.

SAM SLIM.

ALEXANDRIA, ALA., July 24-94.
EDITOR REPUBLICAN.—My interest in the welfare of my native State, and especially of dear old Calhoun, prompts me to give your readers my views upon the political contest that is now being waged in the State.

Alabama is now passing equally as momentous a crisis as that of 1874, when the lamented Houston regained her from the political scoundrels that had fastened their lecherous hands upon her vitals. It is the duty of all fair minded voters, and citizens to study well the character of the parties who are asking their suffrage, for upon this issue rests the peace and prosperity of their homes and families, and the credit and honor of the State.

It is clear to any reasonable mind, free from prejudice, that a man who would go to such bitter enemies of the South as that rank republican, Hoar, and to solicit campaign funds from the protection clubs and organizations of the North, whose every interest is directly opposed to the farmers, does not deserve the support of his people. Besides a man whose business methods have been as questionable as Kolb's, should never receive the endorsement of an honorable people. A man, whose lecherous hands, encouragement to lawlessness, and who condemns the State officers in their efforts to protect life and property should never be trusted with the power of State government. If you make Kolb your governor, and defeat John T. Morgan for United States Senator and place the ruffian Bowman in his place, no greater calamity could befall the State, and the honest citizens of the State would hang their heads in shame. The credit of the State would be ruined and capitol would not seek investment in a State so ill governed. On the other hand, make Wm. C. Oates your governor and return Gen. John T. Morgan to be United States Senator, and you place the State in honorable hands; the credit of the State is saved, capitol will seek investment in your borders and your people be honored. The Democratic party is the party of the people and for the people and in the past it has been a bulwark, protecting our people and State from the rapacious hand of the invader, holding sacred the institutions of our fathers, and bringing peace and prosperity in her wake, and let the scepter of State depart from her keeping and howling mobs, and plundering office seekers will be upon you.

Your sister Southern States are watching hopefully for the success of good men and good government, and the perpetuity of Democracy. Do your duty like men.

Hendricks was too shrewd a man not to see that his scheme, however cunning, would only hold for a time. He knew perfectly well that the sailors whom he had got rid of, would proceed immediately to get drunk and in their recklessness, expose the plot up to a certain point. But he believed their stories under whatever promise of pardon or compulsion of punishment could get no further than the statement that the San Pedro had sailed for Panama or Venezuela. The knowledge of the transfer to the pirates was locked up in his own immediate confederates. This fact he reasoned would not prevent the ultimate discovery of the real truth, but it would delay it sufficiently for him to get safely to his subterranean retreat with his plunder. Common piracy was not an idea that anybody would entertain. No steam vessel could keep aloft and coaled up over a week without running across a cruiser. The special conspiracy and the abandonment of the use of the San Pedro, the shipment of the men at New Orleans, the landing of the men on the southern coast must all sooner or later focus the search at New Orleans. But by that time he would be out of sight.

Two facts were of special importance. The officer and crew that had boarded the Corinthian had been photographed by one of the passengers on the steamship, but while this fact had been communicated to New York, the photographs had been carried to England. The other fact was that the passengers all had the impression that the vessel and crew were Spanish and had gone eastward.

Two days had not elapsed before the two pirates with their masts cut off were taken in tow by a small side-wheeler and pulled up the river. They were loaded with derelicts and heavy timber. Hendricks had inserted an advertisement in the papers and it was known he was purchasing material for his improvements somewhere on the Mississippi.

On the morning that the little side-wheeler went slowly up the river in plain view of New Orleans, the United States cruiser Thetis picked up and identified some of the upper works of the San Pedro in the gulf, and a sensational story appeared in a New York paper which stated that the conspiracy to rob the English steamship had been hatched in the United States treasury department, and that the conspirators had transferred her cargo to the bay of Campeche and the treasure was now lying at or near the famous Sisal off Yucatan.

Everything now depended on the progress reaching the Gulf of Mexico before the true story leaked out. It was a few hundred-mile journey, and the vessels crawled along at a pace of only eight miles an hour. Hendricks himself went direct to Memphis by rail, and after several days of intolerable anxiety and constant expectation of meeting with the news that the plunder had been reached to the river, he had the satisfaction of seeing his cargo from the hotel window slowly and laboriously crawling up the stream undisturbed.

He got aboard the steamboat about ten miles above Memphis, and finding Capt. Blinn aboard, he having been similarly picked up, they congratulated each other.

The vessels were run safely into the Wash bayou at night unobserved, and the whole energy of Hendricks and his confederates was then directed to the transportation of the specie to the western end of the Laramie cave.

In spite of the urgent need of haste, this was done deliberately and methodically, and the wild, deserted country favored the two parties who were provided; the two journeys were made at night under guard, and in three days after the landing there were two million nine hundred thousand dollars in the Laramie cave.

Hendricks plans for the immediate use of some of the money are in part known. Three months before the robbery of the steamship, he had, by some scheme, managed to borrow six thousand dollars, which he converted into gold and deposited in the First National bank of Memphis to be drawn against. He now went to the Second National bank of Louisville, Ky., with the certificate of deposit and expressed a desire to change the specie from one bank to the other as a matter of convenience. It was an ordinary business transaction and created no suspicion. He then instead of drawing the six thousand from Memphis, made a fresh deposit of six thousand in Louisville. This gave him a bank capital sufficient for ordinary and immediate use in currency, and the fact that he had not withdrawn the money from one bank to put in the other either escaped notice at the time or was not regarded as of any significance.

His next move was the formation of a supposititious syndicate to purchase the land in Tennessee for a national sanitarium. This project was exploited in the Kentucky papers with great cunning. A corporation of medical men had surveyed the land and were about to purchase it and erect a magnificent hotel, and they had made Mr. Hendricks a handsome offer for it. While all this was maturing the woman whom Laramie had met at Miss Franklin was making purchases in New York, Boston and Philadelphia and shipping goods to Memphis and Frankfort. Her plan was to make small purchases at widely separated stores, giving gold in payment and getting currency in change. She now had sent to Hendricks during a month of operations several thousand dollars in bills.

CHAPTER VIII.

During that month he remained at Laramie, as he called the place, superintending the improvements that he had projected. He had, in fact, done so, and a magnificent castle, with an impenetrable steel fence for several acres around each entrance to the cave.

"During his absence, Laramie had gone over the entire place with a subordinate who appeared to be familiar with every part of it. They had set out with fastenings, ladders and other appliances which were loaded upon a couple of Rocky mountain burros that Laramie found in the place. Through the alley or corridor that led from the rugged space at the entrance, Laramie noticed that the coal measures showed themselves on both sides. The passage opened into a vast room almost circular and with a vaulted roof. Its superficial area was at least three acres and Laramie could not resist the impression that it had been at one time a magnificent natural rotunda. Indeed the rest of the subterranean passages and openings were such as are seen in all the underground caves of Kentucky and Tennessee. Vast accumulations of limestone debris, choked and narrow alleyways, bottomless holes, enormous stalactites and mounds of their fragments where they had fallen. Here and there streams of water flowed sluggishly across the path, and once they encountered a pond or lake about a mile in extent and at one point half a mile in width.

The exploration mainly impressed Laramie with the prodigious expense and the comparative futility of constructing a narrow road on the varying and stony levels. But he saw that it could be built on iron benches against one of the walls with only two breaks that needed bridging.

When Hendricks returned and had closed himself with Laramie in what he called the laboratory, he did not find his engineer very enthusiastic. "It will cost an enormous sum to put a track down," he said, "and it is for you to say that the end will warrant the extraordinary expense."

"I told you before," said Hendricks, somewhat testily, "that the purpose and expense were not part of your consideration. What will it cost?"

"Well, sir, I suppose a rude but solid bracket road can be built on one wall for about six thousand dollars a mile. That's very near a hundred thousand dollars for sixteen miles. Let us say a hundred and fifty thousand. We put up an electric engine if it is not in here by piecemeal and make it faster, ladders and other appliances which were loaded upon a couple of Rocky mountain burros that Laramie found in the place.

"I am instructed, sir, to ask you to order your people below."

"In questionably," replied Laramie. "Then the railroad question is settled," said Hendricks. "Now the lighting system. My idea is to run the furnace chimney through the cave, where the crust is not over ten feet thick and carry it up at the end of the house we are to build over the entrance. But you will see what our difficulty is. We want light to build the road, and until the road is built we cannot get our dynamo and engine into the cave, for they must come in at the other end."

"I would suggest a temporary lighting arrangement," said Laramie. "The difficulty of delivering most of the material at this end can be overcome." "That's very near a hundred thousand dollars for sixteen miles. Let us say a hundred and fifty thousand. We put up an electric engine if it is not in here by piecemeal and make

"Nevertheless it is impossible to get any heavy material through those passages at present and it is not impossible to wheel here from the nearest point until your road is completed."

"How long will it take to build the road?"

Laramie laughed. "It is a question of supply of iron and number of workmen."

"Very well, we have all winter. I will furnish you with a gang of fifty men. If the road is done by next May I shall be satisfied."
