The friendship of the Advertiser you put your hand on him, he aint dar."

THE MONTGOMERY ADVERTISER does not quote very many democratic journals these days. Their voice is a rude discord in her ears.

ALEXANDER DUMAS says that he has arrived at an age when the best thing for one to do is to hold his tongue. Will the Montgomery and every section that has bettered Advertiser take note:

DISPATCHES from Washington state that rigid economy in public expenditures will be the republican program for next winter. We can only say, by way of comment, that tion. if the republicans succeed in accomplishing this aim, it will establish a remarkable exception to the rule that an old dog cannot learn new tricks.

THE ADVERTISER tried to force Mr. Oates to again make the race for governor. It is now in order for her to say that he shall not run for the Senate. He deserves great praise for the energy he has put forth in arranging his exhibit and it is hoped that Alabama farmers will interest themselves in the culture of this plant.

THE Montgomery Advertiser takes Governor Oates to taw for land because lie refused to lead and direct his Party in Congress.

Governor Oates is right. No President ever demonstrated less interest in his Party than has Mr. Cleveland. While he in many respecis is a great-man, his a Party leader he is a miserable failure.

As Governor Oates suggests, the opportunity which Mr. Cleveland has had, if properly used, would have made him a greater leader than any President we have ever had. But instead of taking advantage of the opportunity afforded, he cast it aside, in such a manner as in effect to say that he would do as he pleased even if it placed the Party out of power for all time to

The President during the last congress showed an atter disregard for the advice of Democratic leaders. the governor should go out of his way to preach harmony with men who profess what we believe to be wrong principles." Advocates of free coinage may be, and I believe are wrong, but I have no doubt of their honesty in the main. The coinage question does not embody all the principles of the democratic party, but is but one of the policies. If the advocates of free coinage be sincere and honest as we who oppose it profess to be, in what way clean surrender to them? I think not lose the state next year. I tell you, my friend, that if this fight continues to grow in bitterness, as indicated in the papers of each faction, which are more hostile toward each other than they are to the common enemy, the success of the party next year may be put down

A salesman remembered seaing Noyes, or Bedford, one day walking in Mayfair with a gentleman who really was Mac, of whom he gave a good description, and, taking the clerk, the detective started out to make a house to house in Nowe in N yestigation: Now, 1 Mayfair, the first house they entered, was the residence of a famous London dector of the name of Payson Hewett, and Mac had been a patient of his Rut. Hewett knew absolutely nothing about him save only his name and the address he gave— Westminster Palace hotel. The detectives were elated and flew to this hotel. but as Mac had never been a guest they could learn nothing. Still they had cause for rejoicing. Heretwas Noyes giving a fictitious name to a tailor and in company with an elegantly dressed American, who gave a fictitious address to his surgeon. And they were well satisfied that whenever the matter was dug out it would be found that Mac had a hand in the business. Payson Hewett stated that Mac said he was a medical graduate from an American university and said that no doubt he spoke the truth, as he had a perfect knowledge of medical subjects. Mac, before sending his baggage away, had intended to sail from Liverpool by the Java of the Cunard line, and he cabled Irving at police headquarters to meet him on the arrival of the steamer. Mae went to Paris, stopping at the Hotel Richmond, Rue du Helder, under his right name, never for a moment thinking he could possibly come under

In the meantime the Scotland Yard men continued their house to house visitation of the fashionable lodging houses to hunt out Mac. This in huge London was a Titanic task, but they exhibited anarvelous activity in tracing our cleve. in a lucky moment a subordinate, inquiring at every number in St. James' place if an American gentleman was lodging or had lodged there, was in-formed by one landlady that Mac had ben a lodger, but had left a few days before. She was indignant that any one should so wrong Mac and ordered reputation no would have to be on hand not as a friend and confederate, but in his official capacity, and make a genu-ine arrest—that is, unless he could arrange to have Mac taken off the steamer in a small hoat as soon as she came into the lower bay and before the police boat, with its load of officials, came alongside. This Irving and his two subordinates resolved to attempt, so he took into his counsels a great chum of his and a well known burglar of the name of Johnny Dobbs. To him was given the job of getting Mac off the steamer, but he made a serious blunder. Instead of hiring and manning two boats, one to relieve the other, he got only one. For a day or two they came within hailing distance of all incoming steamers, but were ashore on Staten Island taking a rest when bright and early one morning the Thuringia slipped into the harbor. There was a man in the beat with Dobbs who knew Mac, and the plan was to meet the steamer, and as Mac was sure to be on deck on the lookout to shout to him to jump overbeard, and they would pick him up and make for shore. Once ashere and warned, they would not have seen him egain.

After the Thuringia came into the harbor Irving kept the police boat wait-ing over an hour. Then, supposing his friend was safe ashore, he boarded the ship. There were five United States marshals on the police tag, the bank lawyers and some of the private inquiry Irving, accompanied by White and Stanley, jumped aboard the big ship, after giving orders to the captain of the tug not to let any one off until he gave permission. Mae saw the tug and recognized his three friends, but was in n way alarmed until Irving, shaking hands with him, hurriedly explained the state of affairs. Mac took them to his cabin and gave them $150,000 in bonds, $10,-000 in greenbacks, basides English bank notes and two or three valuable dia-monds. Then taking out several bags of that golden store of sovereigns would have made! They knew the marshals detectives they had entrapped aboard the tng would be furious and were morally sure that Irving & Co. had placked their bird. Therefore any appearance of pockets bulging out might lead to disgrace; so, while they hated to leave any, for their fingers itched for all, yet they were forced to that cruel self denial.

In the meantime a storm was raging among the rival officers, who did not elish being duped, and finally by threats orced the captain to bring the tug dongside the steamer. Then they rushed on beard to find Irving & Co. with their prisoner awaiting them-

The marshals went to the cabin and found some £4,000 or £5,000 in sover eigns, but when Mac was searched nothing was found on him but $20 in green-in old, clothing in Mac's trunk at the European express office, 44 Broadway, would take too much time to tell hero, add how circulars were sent out to the banks and trust companies warning them to hold all funds deposited by any of our party, and how Pinkerton and his men recovered large sums in various Suffice it to say that the fatal piece of blotting paper was produced in New lesser points of York along with many evidence, and after a hard legal fight Mac was finally ordered to be given up to the English government to stand his trial for complicity in the great bank

The legal proceedings before the commissioner lasted three full months. The array of counsel on both sides made it a forensic contest between giants, in which all past history was invoked for precedents. This extradition case attracted wide attention.

For the present I leave Mac on the Atlantic, sailing swiftly eastward to meet his terrible doom. CHAPTER VIII.

As narrated in an earlier chapter, I left England two days before the first lot of false bills was sent in. I left sereno and confident of the future. My departure was a happy event in a double ense. All my negotiations had been carried on at a considerable expense of serve, and in leaving I left everything in such trim that success seemed certain, with all chance of danger climinated from the venture. I felt that the trying toil was now all over, with nothing for me to do but to reap the harvest, and that without effort or care on my

DR. F. B. CRUTCHER

The Well-Known Specialist is Now Located in

GADSDEN, ALABAMA

WITH OFFICE OVER THE CITY DRUG STORE.

He treats all kinds of Chronic, Nervous, Blood, Skin, and Private Diseases of both sexes.

Chronic Diseases of long standing permanently cured.

Dr. Crutcher comes to Gadsden with the highest endorsement of the people of Nashville, Tennessee, where he graduated with the highest honors from the old Vanderbilt and Nashville Medical Colleges.

He is a practicing physician of many years experience, and in his special treatment of old chronic troubles has had wonderful success, permanently euring cases after others had pronounced the patient incurable.

Among the voluntary compliments to Dr. Crutcher's skill as a specialist the following from some of the leading citizens of this community will convey some idea of the impression his ability has made upon the public in the short time he has been located in Gadsden:

world that after having Dr. F. B. Crutcher, of Gadsden, who makes a specialty of old chroni-diseases to rake my case in charge and give me thorough course of medical treatment and am now up on my feet again and able to do very good work physician who told me that my case was one of the incurable. and I had made up my mind to die, but thank heaven and Dr. F. B. Crutcher that under his treatment I can now see life as it has come back to me in its blessings. I can praise county, Ala. As for truth of this of suffering I have undergone for the past two years. I am not en-I feel satisfied that by the time I have finished the course of treatment I will be a sound man. I will say further that I had heard other physicians say so much against this doctor that I had no faith in the reatment, but determined in my mind that I would give Dr. Crutcher a trial and so far as I have gone with the treatment I have improved faster than Dr. Crutcher promised me, and I want suffering humanity to know that I can testify for this Doctor.

Respectfully, J. T. OWENS. To whom it may concern:

ALEXANDRIA

We have had quite a foretaste of winter for the past few days and our people have been making good use of it by killing hogs, and getting ready for the holidays.

The advance in the price of cotton this season has been a great help to the farmers in this valley, and although the crop has been shorter than last year, they are perhaps in a better condition financially than they have been in several years.

Mrs. H. J. Dean, of Spartanburg, S. C., is visiting her parents here this week.

Alexandria experienced the heav iest loss it has had in many years by the burning of the Bowling gin last night. The house and machin ery was valued at ten thousand dollars. There is a small insurance or the machinery, but none on the building. The property had been recently purchased by John Wood. The fire was caused by the sparks from the engine of a freight train.

The Methodist parsonage has been moved to this place and all denominations are much pleased with the new minister.

FOR WAR.

Selma Times Tired of Preacting Peace to Those Who Will Not Hear.

The Selma Times, after having advocated a conciliatory course in the Democratic party, in Alabama has finally lost patience with the followers of the Montgomery Advertiser and declares in the follow-Weems, Read, Fannie ing editorial that it is ready for the fight:

The Times, which the Advertiser says is "closer to Capt. Johnston than any other paper, outside the State Herald," came out a few days ago and "for harmony's sake" proposed that the two factions in the democratic party, bury their differences by one side taking the governorship and the other the senatorship. This suggestion was made without consulting any one upon would be stopped.

Capt. Johnston had already announced that he was a candidate have had to stand for that office, and the senatorship would have gone to the goldmen. But how was this proposition received? The Advertiser accused the Johnston men of trying to make a dicker with Oates. Our article was alluded to as an attempt to "shin up to Gov. Oates" The Mobile Register ganized since the last State Con said "here's another soul wishing for a bargain," and a great many other expressions of this sort.

The Advertiser admitted in its Sunday's edition that the governorship had nothing to do with the silver question. That is a fact. The governor of Alabama would be powerless to effect national legislation. The senator would have a voice in that matter and his vote would count as much as any other

WITH OFFICE OVER THE CITY DRUG STORE

He treats all kinds of Chronic, Nervous, Blood, Skin, and Private Diseases of both sexes.

Chronic Diseases of long standing permanently cured.

Dr. Crutcher comes to Gadsden with the highest endorsement of the people of Nashville, Tennessee, where he graduated with the highest honors from the old Vanderbilt and Nashville

He is a practicing physician of many years experience, and in his special treatment of old chronic troubles has had wonderful success, permanently curing cases after others had pronounced the patient incurable.

Among the voluntary compliments to Dr. Crutcher's skill as a specialist the following from some of the leading citizens of this community will convey some idea of the impression his ability has made upon the public in the short time he has been located in Gadsden:

As for truth of this statement I refer the public to all my neighbors who know what a life of suffering I have undergone for the past two years. I am not enfeel satisfied that by the time I have finished the course of treatment I will be a sound man. I will say further that I had heard other physicians say so much against this doctor that I had no faith in the mind that I would give Dr. Crutcher a trial and so far as I have gone with the treatment I have improved faster than Dr. Crutcher promised me, and I want suffering humanity to know that I can testify for this Doctor.
