COUNTY NEWS.

From All Over Calhoun

Minor Happenings of the Week

GATHERED BY THE REPUBLICAN'S ABLE CORPS OF CORRESPONDENTS.

ALEXANDRIA.

Mrs. Fannie Martin has returned from a pleasant visit to her sister at Lincoln.

Mrs. S. A. Green is visiting in Anniston and Oxford this week.

Miss Ophelia Glass, who has been attending school here for the past few months, has returned to her home in Alexander City.

Mr. Frank Wakefield is attending Commencement in Piedmont.

The family of Mr. Edgar Wilkins has moved to Sulphur Springs for the summer.

GRAYTON.

A good rain and a fine season fell last Friday and Saturday.

We are glad to note that Miss Altia Calhoun is once more up and about.

The grass looks fine, while five cent cotton looks pretty sick.

Messrs M. L. Maxwell and son have their saw mill set down, and are cutting some fine lumber.

There are no gold bugs about Grayton. Every body is for free silver.

I saw a man from Jacksonville yesterday. He told me the court house was still there. That is the place for it.

We are going to have pie on the table soon—mulberries are ripening.

It is rumored that the wedding bells ring will again in the near future.

Tell Sam Slim not to forget that county fair this fall.

We are glad the jury got in behind the ballot box stuffers. May be their report will call them to their senses. The people want honest elections and a fair count. Let them have both.

MINK.

The health of our community is good, with the exception of some cases of neuralgia.

The fight against General Green continues. The recent rains reinforced him considerably, and he drove us out of the fields, but the pleasant weather looks favorable and we are making a charge on him. I feel sure that we will yet gain the victory.

Wheat is not doing so well. There is a good deal of rust in it. Oats are looking fine.

Bud worms are putting in good time on the corn, and are doing some damage. We are having a lot of replanting to do.

Messrs Monroe and Macon Carpenter have each had the misfortune to lose a fine horse during the past week.

Miss Ida Dickinson was at Mink, on business, Monday.

Mr. V. L. Weir, and others were here last week, buying cattle. We are looking for them again.

Henry Stanley, of Luke, Etowah county, was with us Saturday night and Sunday.

Col. R. B. Kile is rapidly moving our fine timber to his saw mills in Gadsden. His tram road is busy at work.

Mr. J. C. Carpenter and wife visited their son, J. L. Carpenter, on Sunday.

DE ARMANVILLE.

It has been many years since our farmers have been as late planting corn as this.

Last Saturday a famous bee hunter, whose sight is dimed by age, located, as he thought, a bee tree in the bottom, and invited several of his neighbors to the cutting. The tree was a large one, and after hours of hard labor in felling it proved to be a sound one, and never a bee was found. The joke is much enjoyed, save by those who engaged in the cutting.

Sunday singing exercises is now the order with the young people of this section.

The pastor, Mr. Jones, will fill his regular appointment here next Sunday.

There will be a Sunday school rally at Harmony next Sunday.

A petition for the stock law will be gotten up for this beat to go into effect by fall.

The man who works these days "from sun to sun"
'tis nearly equal to womans,
"whose work is never done."

WHITE PLAINS.

Miss Nora White, who has been teaching in the District School here, left this week for Florence, her home, much to the regret of her many friends, and to the utter undoing of a certain young man.

A sudden death occurred here last Wednesday, that of Mr. Jack Reeves. He was operated upon for strangulated hernia, on Monday. Seemed to be doing well on Tuesday, but died the next day. We extend sympathy to the bereaved family.

CANE CREEK.

Mr. J. B. King, of Central Egypt, had his dwelling and all his household goods burned on last Saturday night. It is supposed that incendiaries did the work.

We attended the grave yard working at Morrisville last Saturday. We worked hard and when dinner time came we eat just as hard—one young fellow had the impudence to say harder.

Wonder if any boys we know would answer to the name "Shin Plaster?" And wonder if they carried their little satchels with them, when they went courting the second time.

We have had lots of rain for the last ten days. The farmers are looking blue and fields look blue also. The cotton and corn, however looks thirty.

I suggest that you give the pictures of your able correspondents and see what a fine lot of photos you will get together. The Herald could not beat them.

Over in Hayne's settlement there is an egg famine. Jack, Bob, Dick, Walter, Frank, Jee. Floyd, Leaborn and others have a hunting club. They hunt up all the eggs during the week, and on Sunday meet in the woods to cook and eat them. The cackle of a hen starts them to running quicker than thought.

OXFORD.

Rev. E. B. Norton and Miss Grace Myatt were married on the 28th inst., at Brookwood, Ala., and are now spending a fews day with relatives and friends in Oxford.

The bridal party together with a number of invited friends was entertained Tuesday night at the residence of Mrs. Norton, the mother of the bridegroom. Rev. Mr. Norton is a former resident of this place and has a host of friends and admirers here who are always glad to welcome him. His lovely bride is one of the most popular young ladies of Brookwood and has a great number of friends in Birmingham, Marion and other places where she is well known.

Rev J. H. Leslie and family are visiting Scottsboro this week. The meeting which had been in progress for nearly three weeks, was closed last week, and Bro. Leslie was very much in need of the rest he is now taking.

Dr. C. Freeman is visiting friends and relatives in Griffin, Ga.

There was considerable interest in milletary circles this week on account of the election a captain for the Calhoun Rifles. 1st Lieut. H. C. Gunnels was elected Captain to fill the place of Major W. A. Orr who was recently honored by the commissioned officers of the state in the election of majors, 2nd Lieut. Harrison was promoted to 1st Lieut., and Junior 2nd Lieut. Cooper was promoted to the 2nd Lieutenancy. Sgt. Frank Robertson was elected Junior 2nd Lieutenant.

Dr. J. W. Norton, of Birmingham, is in Oxford visiting his mother's family.

Oxford Lake is very popular at present, picnics are in full blast and the lake is the most convenient place for those who wish to take a little recreation.

There is still a diversity of opinion in our town on the financial question and other questions of international import. Court House removal is rather too insignificant to claim the attention of our theoretical financiers and embryonic diplomatists. If Mr. Cleveland needs any advice in appointing a new secretary of State, he might correspond with some of the saquacious political advisers of this community.

MORRISVILLE

The recent spell of cool weather was very distressing to some farmers; they say it caused cotton to take the "draw ups," because it is smaller now than it was several days ago. Oates are not large enough, and many other bad things are charged to the cool weather.

Now it has been raining too much.

Last Saturday was memorial day with us. The weather was very unfavorable, but a good number met and cleaned off the cementary nicely. Rev. W. O. Horton promised to be with us but did not appear, and all of us were disappointed.

Mr. J. B. King had the misfortune to lose his dwelling house and all his household furniture by fire, sometime between midnight and daylight Sunday morning. He and family were not at home at the time of the burning.

J. C. Francis and family, of Cane Creek, were among the people who attended church here last Sunday.

BERA.

There was a grave yard working at New Bethel on Saturday. The yard was cleaned and beautifully decorated in the forenoon, and after listening to an able sermon by Rev. Noah Stephens, dinner was served. Every body present seemed to enjoy the refreshments.

Mr. Helton died near Bynums, on Sunday morning.

His death was very sudden. He only lived about fifteen minutes after he became sick.

Chas. Bush, col., lost a valuable mule Satuaday.

Mr. A. Simson, of Fergusonville, visited J. E. Canida on Sunday.

The singing at Eulaton Sunday was a success, and was largely attended.

Messrs Jut Franklin and Wm Pass, of Beat 5, went down to Anniston Monday.

JENKINS.

We had one of the most destructive rains on last Sunday that we have had for a long time. Creeks were overflowing, and land is badly washed in places.

General Green still has the upperhand of some of our farmers.

Mrs. Dorcas Whiteside left for a visit to relatives in Birmingham, this A. M.

Our people are all in good health and if our doctors are depending on the practice they are getting for bread and raiment it is quite a gloomy prospect.

Several of our countrymen visited Jacksonville yesterday.

A Jacksonville Boy's Success.

The friends of Charlie Porter both in Jacksonville and throughout the country, will be glad to learn of the great success he is achieving in business, in the city of Baltimore, where he now resides.

Many will remember him as nothing more than a boy when he left Jacksonville about three years ago to take a position with a drug firm in the aforenamed city, and pursue a course of study in pharmacy. He finished his studies in April, and was graduated sixth man in a class of fifty-eight. A few days since he purchased the business of the firm by whom he had been employed, and a letter to a friend in this city, received a few days since, bearing the modest inscription:

Chas R. Porter,
Pharmaceutical Chemist,
Baltimore, Md.,

Conveyed the intelligence that he was among the business men of Baltimore, as preprietor of a drug store in the most aristocratic part of the city.

Commencement.

ADDRESS BY DR. SMITH.

CONCERT BY MISS LANE'S MUSIC CLASS A GRAND SUCCESS.

Diplomas Awarded Graduates Who Will go Out and Teach in Alabama's Public Schools.

The commencement exercises of the State Normal College at Jacksonville began on Sunday. Rev. Mr. Liston, of the Presbyterian church, preached the commencement sermon to a large, cultivated and appreciative audience at the church of that denomination in this city. The text of the preacher was: "Behold I have opened to you a door, and no man can shut it." Rev. 3: 3. This sermon was pronounced by all, who listened to it, to be one of the most instructive as well as one of the most appropriate that has been delivered in our city.

On Monday afternoon the Alumni Society held its annual meeting at the college building. A good attendance was present, and the following officers for the ensuing year were elected: President, Miss Lucy Whisenant; Vice-Presidents, Misses Annie Forney and Mary Ramagnano; Secretary, Miss Emily Goodlett.

Among other matters that were brought before the Association for discussion, was that of raising a fund by the Alumni for the education of deserving young men and women. The suggestion met with the approval of the entire membership present, and steps were taken to put the movement on foot. The scheme is not to give the funds to those seeking an education, but to make them a loan to be paid out of their earnings after their education is completed. The idea is a good one, and deserves the co-operation of all the alumni of the school.

On Tuesday evening, the college hall was filled by an immense audience, which assembled to hear the concert by the music class of Miss Undine Lane. Miss Lane's musical accomplishments, and the fame she has justly won as an instructor, had prepared all who had come out for a musical treat. Nor were they dissappointed. From the time that the accompanist struck the keys in the opening chorus, until the close of the program, the audience was held in rapt attention, and its delight was frequently manifested by bursts of applause and repeated encores. Especial mention should be made of the vocal solos sung by Miss Katie Ross and Miss Susie Henderson. The attempt to describe the beauty and sweetness of the ir round mellow voices, would be as vain as to attempt to paint the lily or add another hue unto the rainbow."

The instrumental solos, duets, and quartetts were, without exception, well executed, and made a fine impression upon the hearers. The young ladies showed remarkable familiarity with their instruments and reflected great credit upon their teacher.

Miss Louise Lane, in her recitation of Meredith's "Aux Italiens," thoroughly captivated her audience. Her charming grace, expressive gestures, and gentle and sympathetic voice make her an elocutionist of extraordinary powers.

On Wednesday evening the closing exercises of the year took place. The announcement that Dr. O. D. Smith, Professor of Mathematics in the Alabama Agricultural and Mechanical College, would deliver the commencement address, drew a number of our citizens, who had not attended any of the previous exercises. Dr. Smith was happily introduced by Prof. Daugette, one of his old pupils at Auburn, who paid a graceful tribute to the great work he had done for the cause of education. The theme of the speaker was Education, and after commenting most pleasantly upon the complimentary introduction of his friend, he launched boldly into the discussion of his subject, and for forty minutes he held the closest attention of his large audience, in a strong but beautiful address upon this subject, so apropos of the occasion, and of such vital importance to every hearer.

When he had closed his remarks to the graduating class, Prof. Forney delivered diplomas to the following young teachers:—Miss Ada Weir, Messrs W. H. Boyd, Chas. A. Wilkerson, Frank M. Martin, E. B. Bynum and J. C. Broughton.

The year just closed has been a very successful one at the Normal school. While the number of graduates in the normal course is small, their work has been very fine, and six young teachers—thoroughly equipped—will aid next year in the education of the boys and girls of our state. The classes of next year and the year after are large ones, and are composed of earnest, industrious students. Under the scheme, as proposed by Professors Forney, Wright and Daugette, for enlarging and improving the work of the normal school many pupils will be drawn here from a distance, and our school will be able to do far better work than ever before, and better than any other normal school in the state.

BISHOP O'SULLIVAN

LECTURES IN JACKSONVILLE.

He Speaks of the Catholic Church and the Bible

In the court house, Monday night, Right Reverend Bishop O'Sullivan of Mobile, delivered a very interesting discourse to a large and appreciative audience on the above subject.

He explained that the Catholic church believes and teaches that the Holy Bible is the word of God. It was given to men, not written as was the law of Moses, but God inspired men to write it, and guarded them from every error in the writing. Hence, God is responsible for the truth of all that is written in the Sacred Book. It is God's loving message to men. It is a kind of divine presence in the world.

During 1500 years the Catholic church was the sole guardian of the Bible. She preserved it safe through the period of heathen persecution and through the darkness and barbarism of later ages.

During the first 300 years of the Christian era the different parts of the New Testament were scattered in different places in the keeping of the local churches and of individuals to whom the epistles and gospels were first written.

About the year 400, the Catholic church, through her Bishops, collected the scattered parts, united them with the Old Testament and certified to the world that the volume was inspired by God. Thus was formed the catalogue of the Scriptures which was the same then as it is today in the Catholic church.

During the 1000 years that elapsed between the formation of the canon of Scripture and the discovery of the art of printing in the 15th century, the Catholic church inspired her priests, monks and nuns to spend their days and nights in copying the Sacred Volume.

Protestant historians acknowledge that it is to their labor we are indebted for the Bible which we prize so much. To make a single copy was the labor of a year.

No wonder Bibles were not as plentiful as they are in these days of the printing press which multiplies books in millions.

The first book printed after the discovery of the art of printing, the art "preservative of all arts," was the Holy Bible. Several editions of the Bible in the German language were used from the printing press long before Luther seceded from the Catholic church. It was printed in the language of the people, that they might read it.

Therefore it is not true that the Catholics are not allowed to read and study the Sacred Volume. The present Pope has recently written encouraging all to study the Holy Bible.

You may buy a Catholic Bible from any bookseller for a dollar or even less. How then can it be said that Catholics are not allowed to read or even to have in their homes the Holy Bible.

The Pope says that the man who knows the Bible is the bulwark of the Church of God.

Everything in the Bible is divine truth, but all revealed truth is not in the Bible. Therefore St. Paul writes: "Hold fast the traditions which you have learned by word or by our epistles."

There are many divine truths revealed by God and held by most christians which are not written in the Bible, such as the change of the Lord's day from the Sabbath to Sunday, the baptism of infants, etc.

SAM SLUM.

Thinks Carlisle is a Case, Which Circumstances Have Altered. Once, A Man for the People, Now A Man against the People.

The "sound money" convention met in Memphis, Tenn., on the 25th, inst., as per appointment, and they whereased and resolved, and Mr. Carlisle said his piece.

Have you read that piece? If not, you ought to. Not because the argument is convincing and powerful, and unanswerable; but you should read it as a demonstration of the fact, beyond all reasonable doubts, that "circumstances do alter cases." For instance, when Mr. John G. Carlisle was a member of congress, and dependant upon the people for his office, his salary, his living, he was one of the people, and he spoke for the people, even in that speech when he said that to deprive the people of one-half their primary money would be the greatest crime ever committed, and that it would be a greater calamity than war, pestilence and famine. To avert such a calamity, he spoke out in meeting for free coinage of silver, and voted in meeting for silver coinage, because it was for the good of the people who had honored him, and who would continue to honor him so long as he continued to advocate their cause. A very ingrate he would have been, if he had talked and acted otherwise. But now, since he is not for the people or of the people, but for Mr. Cleveland, and of the Cabinet, he yells long and loud for the single gold standard, and leaves the dear people out in the cold, with one-half of their primary money gone glimmering, and, according to his speech in 1878, subject to a calamity greater than war, pestilence or famine.

Surely circumstances do alter cases sometimes, and Mr. Carlisle's case is one of the times.

A writer in the Hot Blast asks, if the free coinage of silver would not banish gold from the country? I answer, no, not a bit of it. We can only judge the future by the past, and gold did not take wings and fly away, from the foundation of the government to 1873, under the free coinage of silver and the free coinage of gold, when equal chances were given to both metals. There is no reason to apprehend the flight of gold if silver should be restored to its natural place as a primary money. That is all that we who oppose the single gold standard, so vigorously advocated by Mr. Carlisle, want, and that's what we are going to have.

"Equal rights to all, special privileges to none," is good, sound Democratic doctrine, and it has especial reference to silver at this time.

FOUND GUILTY.

Ten Years in Penitentiary.

The Jury Find Joe Burton Guilty of Murder in Second Degree and Fix Punishment at Ten Years.

NEW TRIAL REFUSED.—THE CASE GOES TO THE SUPREME COURT.

Judge Brewer Sentences 11 Prisoners and They Will All Remember That They Have Been in Court.

On last Saturday, the jury in the case of the State vs Joe Burton, after having remained in the jury room for about four hours, returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the second degree, and fixed the penalty at ten years in the penitentiary. Counsel for the defense entered a motion for a new trial and Judge Brewer fixed last Tuesday, 28th., as the date for hearing the motion. Able arguments were made, both by counsel for the state and the defense, on Tuesday afternoon; and on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock Judge Brewer rendered his decision, which overruled the motion. Attorneys for defense will take the case to the supreme court.

Thus ends one of the most celebrated trials ever held in Calhoun county. It has consumed fifteen days, and has created an interest throughout this part of the state.

On Saturday afternoon the prisoners convicted during the term, were brought before his honor and received the following sentences:—

John Lawrence, col.—Carrying concealed weapon, $50 fine. Sentenced to 213 days at hard labor for the county, for fine and costs.

Henry Jelks, col.—Petit larceny. Jury assessed punishment of 10 days in county jail. On account of defendant's age, and in consideration of the fact that he had already been in prison for that length of time, he was discharged by the court.

Joe Askew, col.—Assault with a weapon. Fine $25. Sentence, hard labor for the county six months and 197 days for fine and costs.

Lee Brown, col.—Using abusive and obscene language in the presence of a woman. 30 days hard labor for county. Sentence 66⅔ days.

Bill Powers, col.—Grand Larceny. 25 months in penitentiary.

Jake Champion, white.—Grand larceny in five cases, and petit larceny in one case. The prisoner plead guilty in all the cases against him, and received sentences to the penitentiary which amounted to 11 years and 2 months.

Tom Moore, col.—Grand larceny. 5 years in penitentiary.

Bert Johnson, col.—Assault with intent to murder. 20 years in penitentiary. This is the negro that struck Mr. Ramagnano.

Early Vernon, col.—Grand larceny. 25 months in penitentiary.

Willis Brown, white.—Grand larceny. 25 months in penitentiary. Brown is a boy, and when asked what he had to say, replied that he took the gun because he was out of money.

Jim Alexander, col.—Petit larceny.—Stealing cotton. Convicted in three cases, and received sentences amounting to 23 months at hard labor for the county.

Others came over on Monday, and the prisoners were taken to the mines and the penitentiary.

It May Do as Much For You.

Mr. Fred Miller, of Irving, Ill., writes that he had a severe Kidney trouble for many years, with severe pains in his back and also that his bladder was affected. He tried many so-called Kidney cures but without any good result. About a year ago he began the use of Electric Bitters and found relief at once. Electric Bitters is especially adapted to cure of all Kidney and Liver troubles and often gives almost instant relief. One trial will prove our statement. Price only 50c for large bottle. At all the drug stores. 6

Capt. L. Y. Dean, special agent for the Capital City Insurance Co., was in Jacksonville last Monday, and F. O. Hawkins, special agent for the Phenix Insurance Co., of London, was here Wednesday.

Chas. E. Bondurant and Miss Lula have returned from a visit to Mr. Bondurant's father, Brookwood, Alabama.

SPEAKER CRISP.

DEFINES HIS POSITION.

He is in Favor of the Free Coinage of Silver Without International Agreement.

Atlanta, Ga., May 28.—Speaker Crisp puts a quietus on the discussion over his views on the financial question in the following card given out for publication to day.

"Americus, Ga., May 28.—Ever since I gave consideration to the question, I have been a believer in, and advocate of, the free and unlimited coinage of silver. Ever since I entered public life I have spoken and when opportunity offered, voted for it. I still favor the free and unlimited coinage of silver by the United States, independently at the ratio of 19 to 1. How any one at all acquainted with my public utterances and acts can have mistaken or been in doubt as to my position is a mystery to me. My excuse for this card is misrepresentation.

My hope is that this will end it.

"Charles F. Crisp."

Death of Mrs Skelton.

On last Saturday, May 25, 1895, Mrs. Elizabeth Skelton closed her eyes in death in the 85th year of her life, and her body was placed to rest at Four Mile church last Sunday morning, the funeral service being coducted by her pastor, Rev. Mr. Horton, assisted by Rev. F. M. Treadaway.

Mrs. Skelton was the widow of the Hon. Asa Skelton, whom the older citizens of the county well remember. For many years before his death he was one of Calhoun's most prominent citizens, and represented her in the legislature with credit to himself and constituents.

Mrs. Skelton was one of the most gentle, lovable women whom the writer has ever known. Her life was one of humble, Christian consecration and was full of self sacrifices

It was truly said of her by her pastor, that she was one whom to know was to love. For many long years she had lived in the neighborhood in which she was buried, and it was truly stated in her funeral service that no one had ever been known to speak unkindly of her.

Neither had her own children ever heard her in the heat of passion speak an unkind word of any person.

Her life was truly a remarkable one for gentleness of character and true christian devotion.

Death of Mrs. Fullinwider.

On Monday, about noon, Mrs. Fannie Fullinwider, widow of Capt. John Fullinwider, died at her home in this city. She was known to all our people, as she claimed Jacksonville as her home since childhood. She was the daughter of Capt. Hudson, who, in the days before the war was one of the wealthiest merchants in this section of Alabama.

Mrs. Fullinwider's life since her husbands death, a number of years since, has in many respects been a sad one. She has had no means of subsistence save that which came to her through a pension, as the wife of a Mexican soldier. Amid all her reverses of fortune, and suffering from disease, she has exhibited a christian fortitude and devotion, that raised up for her a number of true friends, who were ever ready to extend to her whatever kindness she would accept. Her death, while one of the saddest that has occurred in our town for many a day, was a most beautiful illustration of the saying that death has no sting, and the grave gains no victory, when a christian dies.

WALTER Q. GRESHAM, Secretary of State, died at his rooms in the Arlington hotel in Washington last Tuesday morning. He had been sick for only a few days, and his death was a great surprise.

He was not considered very seriously ill until about 24 hours before his death, when pneumonic symptons complicated pleurisy and other troubles with which he was suffering.

Mr. Gresham was in many respects a great man, and his death removes another of the most prominent men of this country.

Miss Lena Young, of Weavers, is visiting the family of Fletcher McGinnis this week.

THE REPUBLICAN.

Established in 1837, is the OFFICIAL JOURNAL of Calhoun, one of the largest and wealthiest counties in Alabama, and in which are located the towns of Jacksonville, Anniston, Oxford, Oxanna and Piedmont.

CIRCULATION.

It has a larger guaranteed county circulation in Calhoun than any other paper.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The subscribers of the REPUBLICAN are the best people in the county,—a class of people with whom it pays to advertise. Than it there is no better advertising medium in this section of Alabama.

THE REPUBLICAN.

THE indifferent manner in which men now speak of their party fealty is unprecedented in this section.

It is not unsual to hear of a man who has voted the Democratic ticket all his life say that he will vote for no man who does not agree with him on finance. This is true of both gold and and silver men.

THE way Dick of blue-eye fame elbowed his way to the rostrum at Memphis and pranced out in his little nominating speech was a caution. Richard had no idea of missing this opportunity of letting the English barons and dukes, and the American monopolists know of his presence. None of them were there to see and he was determined to say a little speech and have it in print, so they would see it. And what dose Richard want now.?

THE situation in Alabama so far as the Democratic party is concerned is about this: If the national convention adopts a platform favoring the free and unlimited coinage of silver and nominates a man known to be in favor of free silver, we can carry the state easily. But with a gold standard platform, and a candidate after the order of Mr. Cleveland, the State will be swept out of the Democratic column.

WE are patiently waiting to hear the Montgomery Advertiser denounce the Memphis "sound money" convention. It passed a resolution urging the formation of sound money leagues and clubs throughout the south. When it was proposed to organize silver leagues in Alabama, the Advertiser reared and pitched fearfully.

Now let us hear from it on the "sound money" leagues. Let us know if they will not prove enemies to the Democratic party.

EVERY fellow has to buy his own liquor in Michigan now. The legislature has passed a law prohibiting treats. The toper who has been accustomed to stand around the bar, and wait for his friend to "set em up" is out of a job, and as he sees the beer and claret and sherry and champagne going to the other fellows lips and none of it coming his way, he turns in disgust from the scene and exclaims with as much feeling as did the Moor of Venice "Othello's occupation gone!

MR. Carlisle in his great argument against silver and in favor of gold at Covington, said: "Measured by their purchasing power in the markets of the world, which is the only real test, the relative value of silver bullion to gold bullion is about 32 to 1." This is all very true. But does Mr. Carlisle say that this relationship ever existed before 1873, when silver was demonetized by an act of congress, which he himself once denounced as a heinous crime, and the effects of which he likened to those of war, pestilence and famine! Mr. Carlisle may speak the truth, but he does not speak the whole truth.

MR. CARLISLE shuts his eyes to the fact that the low price of silver is due to a discrimination which was denounced by the last Democratic platform. When the gold standard was adopted and silver made a commodity it necessarily decreased in value. Whenever a hope has been held out by congress that silver would be given a free coinage it has enhanced in value, and with the free and unlimited coinage the ratio of 32 to 1 would not exist for a day. Treat silver right, stop discriminating against it, and the old ratio of 16 to 1 which was had for two hundred years can again be maintained.

IF Mr. Carlisle is opposing to convert the people of the South to the single gold standard, we wonder if the following plank in the last National Democratic platform does not ring in his ears, or has he reached that point where he has no respect for the platform of his party?

"We reaffirm the declaration of the Democratic National Convention of 1876, for the reform of the civil service, and we call for the honest enforcement of all laws regulating the same. The nomination of a president as in the recent Republican convention, by a delegation composed largely of his appointees, holding office at his pleasure, is a scandalous satire upon free popular institutions, and a startling illustration of the methods by which a president may gratify his ambitions. We denounce a policy under which the Federal office-holders usurp control of party conventions in the States, and we pledge the democratic party to reform these and all other abuses which threaten individual liberty ty and local self-government."

No greater violation of this civil-service pledge could be made. But it seems that men of the way of thinking of Cleveland and Carlisle do not care a snap of their finger for party pledges. This disregard of the promises made the people fully accounts for the large majority for the Republicans in the next congress, and the division and indifference which exists among Democrats in all the States.

WHILE the gold bug pow-wow was in session at Memphis, resolving that, "We favor in the absence of international cooperation, the retention of the existing gold standard," "and that bimetallism without such agreement would destroy public and private confidence and "involve the country in such panic, confusion and distress that the product of agriculture and the wages of labor would be unremunerative," while such resolutions were being passed by a body styling itself the representative of the people, up in Philadelphia, the old town whose citizens played so important a part in the glorious struggle for American Independence a committee of the grocers and importers exchange, which was appointed to "inquire into the cause of falling prices and, if possible, point out remedies to stop it," submitted a long report which closed as follows:

We recommend that silver be added to its companion, gold, as money of final redemption and your committee believes that the cheif cause of the disorganized condition of trade and consequently falling prices, will be removed."

GOVERNOR Oates in a recent letter, says he is opposed to a Southern man's nomination for the presidency, because, if elected, he would be all the time trying to please the North in order to be reelected.

Strange indeed, that a southern man, and one whom the south has honored, should express such a thought! Can it be that the south, the parent of Washington, of Jefferson, of Polk, of Taylor, of Madison, of Monroe and Jackson, has "lost the breed of noble bloods?"

Is it a fact, that in all this broad southland there is not one man who can occupy the presidential chair, and rise above the base, grovelling, greedy desire to succeed himself?

Are we to accept this declaration of Mr. Oates as true, and by so doing acknowledge a pitiful degeneracy, or are we to deny it as a false and unfair attack upon the south, and believe that its author, in his frantic efforts to survive, has been indiscreet chough to paint his own picture as that of the present public man of the South.

"THE noble duke of York,
He had ten thousand men;
He marched them up a hill one day,
Then marched them down again."

The warlike duke who's the hero in the startling Epic just quoted, has found imitators in the south these last few days. An army of five hundred little gold bugs had orders from Josiah to move on Memphis. Packing their grips, and stuffing their pockets with speeches, they marched up the hill.

Arriving, they were driven like dumb cattle, into the auditorium where they listened to Dick Clark praise Catchings, and Catchings Carlisle, but not one word were they allowed to say. After the meeting was ended, they were marched back to their homes, carrying their little grips, still packed, and their little speeches unsaid. They were brought to Memphis like dry cattle are driven from pasture. They were counted, salted, and the ticks were scraped off, and then they were turned out again,

How many times, in ages yet to come, will history recount to wondering and admiring students, the story of this memorable "march on Memphis," which took place in the year of our Lord 1895.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Makes Pure Blood, Cures Scrofula, Etc.

"My experience with Hood's Sarsaparilla has been very effective. My little girl, five years old, had for four years a bad skin disease. Her arms and limbs would break out in a mass of sores, discharging yellow matter. She would scratch the eruptions as though it gave relief, and tear open the sores.

Two Bottles of Hood's

Sarsaparilla caused the eruptions to heal and the scabs pealed off, after which the skin became soft and smooth. As a family medicine

GOVERNOR CULBERSON, of Texas, during the Confederate reunion at Houston had this to say of the Memphis gold bug convention:

"I see they have decided for a single gold standard, practically, at Memphis. I wonder if they think they are voicing the sentiment of the people of the south, the states they claim to be representing? If they fancy for one minute the people of the south are not in favor of the liberal coinage of silver along with gold, they are simply dreaming dreams. The democracy of Texas is overwhelming for the free coinage of silver. The Memphis convention does not signify much. It was a convention incapable of suprising anybody, for every one knew its plans all along, and knew that it was a movement to help the goldbug factions and their financial policy.

A lady at Tooleys, La., was very sick with bilious colic when M. C. Tisler, a prominent merchant of the town gave her a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. He says she was well in forty minutes after taking the first dose. For sale by all druggists.

SOME of the populist of the state are firing into Senator Goodwyn for suggesting a fusion next year with the Republicans, dividing the offices equally. Among the number who are writing against the fusion, is Amos L. Griffith, of Pell City, who says:

"If Mr. Goodwyn is in earnest, which does he think will make the best Governor of Alabama R. A. Mosley or a populist? We populist up in this neck of the woods are opposed to any fusion with any party! If our principles are right, we would rather be defeated on a straight Peoples Party platform than to be merged into either of the old parties.

Fusion is the worst thing that could happen to the peoples party.

It would be worse than a defeat."

For whooping cough Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is excellent. By using it freely the disease is deprived of all dangerous consequences. There is no danger in giving the remedy to babies, as it contains nothing injurious. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by all druggists.

THE Memphis "sound money" convention was composed of delegates from the towns and cities.

The men who form the great voting population of the the Democracy of the South, the farmers, were not there. No missionary was sent into the highway and hedges to urge them to attend. We suspect it was feared if the framer should be on hand he might ask how it was possible for the farmers to get out of debt by continuing a system of finance which decreases the value of all the products of farm and doubles the farmers indebtedness? This question is a paralizer to the gold bugs on all occasions.

Persons who sympathize with the afflicted will rejoice with D. E. Carr of 1235 Harrison street, Kansas City, Mo., an old sufferer from inflammatory rheumatism, but has not heretofore been troubled in this climate. Last winter he went up into Wisconsin, and in consequence has had another attack. "It came upon me again very acute and severe," he said. "My joints swelled and became inflamed; sore to touch or almost to look at. Upon the urgent request of my mother-in-law I tried Chamberlain's Pain Balm to reduce the swelling and ease the pain, and to my agreeable surprise, it did both. I have used three fifty-cent bottles and believe it to be the finest thing for rheumatism, pains and swellings extant. For sale by all druggists.

"My husband was subject to severe attacks of neuralgia which caused him great pain and suffering. The pains were principally about his eyes, and he often had to remain in a darkened room, not being able to stand the light. Ayer's Pills being recommended, he tried them, using one before each meal. They very soon afforded relief, followed by permanent cure. I am a strong believer in the efficacy of Ayer's Pills, and would not be without them for ten times their cost."—Mrs. M. E. BIMETALIC CONVENTION

AT MEMPHIS, JUNE 12TH AND 13TH.

No Money to be Spent in Employing Hireling Emissaries to Drum Delegates from Cotton Exchanges and Boards of Trade.

But an Appeal Made from Intelligent Patriotism for Every Vicinity to be Represented.

MEMPHIS, TENN., May 26.—The Bimetallic league of Tennessee has issued the following pronunciamento:

"To the People of the United States:—

"The arch enemies of the agricultural and producing classes of our country, moved by greed and encouraged by avarice, have conspired to transfer the essentially governmental function of issuing and controlling the money volume of the nation to a system of banking corporations, full of the vice of class legislation and void of any virtue which commends it to the consideration of a patriotic citizen.

"Undaunted by the failure to secure the sanction of the American congress, the promoters of this nefarious scheme have boldly taken the initiatory step to the object of their conspiracy. Backed by the great power of exhaustless wealth and the influence of high official position, they have publicly convened in the city of Memphis and openly declared their purpose. They demand that the constitutional and inherently sovereign right to issue money be delivered into their hands. They hesitate at no deception, they scruple at no fraud.

"Knowing the innate integrity of our people, they prate of 'honest money.' Appreciating our aversion to paternalism, they say 'the government must go out of the banking business.' They hope and believe that we will not stop to consider that to exact a dollar, which by vicious legislation they have made cost the debtor twice as much labor and double the amount of produce as the one promised, is not 'honest.' They expect the American people to accept as true the statement that the money of the constitution established by the fathers is dishonest for no other reason save the diet of their illustrious accomplices and plastic tools. They hope that the people will ignorantly confound the sovereign prerogative and the inherent duty of the nation to coin money and establish a system of uniform weights and measures with the business of loans and discounts, inherently appropriate to the occupation of the private citizen.

"They think that we will forget that the true question is not whether the government shall go out of the banking business, but whether the banks shall go out of the governing business. Thus they design by the aid of public apathy to rivet the chains which make free men slaves.

"To the end that their hopes may meet with disappointment and their conspiracy with failure—that the toiling masses of our people may be saved from an industrial serfdom more cruel and degrading than chattel slavery—something must be done to meet their cunningly directed and insidious assaults.

"Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty. Our foe is unscrupulous; his greatest victory was achieved by stealthy and corrupt legislation, ledgermain disgraceful to the men who planned it and discreditable to the people's representatives who failed to detect it. The crime of 1873 cannot be explained upon any other hypothesis.

"That the people may come together and take counsel of each other, it has been deemed expedient to call together a convention to assemble at Memphis on this 12th and 13th days of June, 1895. Every community, every city and town and every state in the union is earnestly requested and cordially invited to send delegates to that convention.

"Every vicinity is urged to organize bimetallic clubs, and every club should be represented. It is proposed that this convention shall voice the sentiments of the people. Their country needs their best thoughts, their most careful deliberation and energetic action. They have no money to employ hireling emissaries to drum delegates from cotton exchanges and boards of trades; their own intelligent patriotism is the only fund to which they can appeal.

"The object of this convention is to formulate some definite plan of future action to give direction to the over whelming volume of public sentiment favoring a return to our own, and establishing our independence of alien financial institutions; to devise means for such a campaign of education that it hereafter will be impossible to elect only such men to the legislative and executive offices of the nation as are unawed by power and unbought by spoils.

"W. N. BROWN,

"President Central Bimetallic League of Shelby County.

"D. H. ARCHIBALD, Secretary."

Senator Morgans views.

Washington, May 22.—The income tax decision, its effects upon the revenues and the probabilities of an extra session of congress to provide means for supplying the deficit were the chief subjects of discussion in political circles today.

Senator Morgan, of Alabama, one of the ablest constitutional lawyers in the south, said the decision presented a very grave situation, and he did not care to give an extended opinion of its effects, as the subject would probably come before the senate.

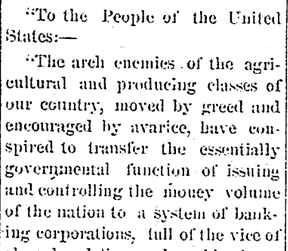

"Besides," he said, "I do not care to hold a post mortem. I'm not a coroner. In a nutshell I will say, however, that the decision leaves the taxing powers of the government in a state of wreck. It will require a long time to gather up the fragments. Principles of taxation, which were considered well settled, are torn up by this decision."

How will the question come up in the senate?"

"In connection with the question of refunding the $75,000 already collected and the refund of the cotton, whiskey, beer and tobacco taxes, all those taxes are as much direct taxes as the tax on personality and are unconstitutional according to yesterday's decision of the supreme court. The members of the court, as lawyers are too apt to do, were seeking a ground for precedents and ancient decisions. They do not hesitate to overrule recent decisions, and Justice Shiras did not hesitate to reverse his own opinion of a month ago, but old opinions and old decisions they held sacred as though the value of a decision, like wine, increased with age."

"What can congress do?"

"Of course" replied Senator Morgan, "congress will have to accept the decision, but an amendment to the constitution is always possible."

ABSOLUTELY PURE

MYSTERY OF THE GREAT RUBY.

By LUCIE ST. DEANE.

[Copyright, 1895, by American Press Association.]

In making the rubies the chemicals give off an overpowering odor, to which my husband and I had become accustomed. The odor was so strange that it would be sure to attract attention in a great city. Officers of the law might make inquiries, thinking we were making money unlawfully, and so discover the truth.

I said we must find a secluded place in the country among the simple folk, who had no curiosity, and, where we could be on our guard against approach from any direction. We found such a place and removed thither.

But we were greatly in fear of those bad men, who were somewhere in New York. They were evil enough to hire others to watch and follow us. So we took all precautions we could, my husband and I not recognizing each other in leaving the city until we reached the country town near which we made our home a part of the time.

My husband staid at the Astor House when in New York because it was convenient to Maiden lane, the home of most of the great jewelers. I went to a hotel farther up town, both of us using our American names, because we were not afraid to appear openly and honestly before the public.

Luchjid succeeded in making the finest ruby of all in the workshop at our country home. It was at my suggestion that he called it Nana Sahib's ruby, for nearly every one knows that that is the greatest ruby in the world. He placed it in the hands of a jeweler named Brown to sell for him.

On the little box in which the ruby was placed my husband always put a mark which told him the exact age of the stone. Knowing that at the end of 20 days it would decay, vanish, turn to nothingness, he must of necessity complete its sale within that period, or he would have nothing to sell.

After he had left the Nana Sahib ruby with Mr. Brown my husband became very much frightened, believing he had made a mistake as to its age. He had given Mr. Brown a week in which to sell it, but Luchjid feared it would not live that long. He sent me to call on Mr. Brown and learn the truth.

I did so. When I admired the jewel and turned it over in my hand and looked at the box, I made the dreadful discovery that within 12 hours the ruby would pass out of existence. If payment was not secured within that time or a little more, all our calculations would go amiss.

Mr. Brown is a very kind hearted man. I purchased a small ruby of him to keep in his good graces, but there was no need of that, for he was so impressed with my appearance that he acted very foolishly and showed that he had fallen in love with me.

[Note by Mr. Brown.—A base libel. There's not a word of truth in what she writes.]

When the morrow would arrive and the gentleman who had purchased the great ruby found that he had nothing of the kind in his possession, he would be sure that he had been robbed. Suspicion would unjustly point to us, so my husband and myself left New York that night and staid in our country home. That was sufficient to prove our innocence if any one should be base enough to make a charge against us.

I learned that the buyer was Mr. Sandhusen, who, like myself, was staying at the Windsor hotel. Although we had never spoken, I knew he was very wealthy, and therefore it would not harm him to lose the sum he paid for the ruby.

When this gentleman opened the box in his desk the next morning, the gem was gone. In his excitement he took no note of the little grains left behind, nor did he notice the slight odor of the released gas, which should have attracted his attention.

The smaller ruby which was sent to Amsterdam crumbled and dissolved on the way, but the jewelers who received it were wise, because they were not Americans. They noticed the odor, they detected the tiny grains and suspected the truth. They examined more closely, and the ingenious scheme was comprehended. They wrote to the jeweler in Maiden lane who had forwarded it to them, and then an investigation was made, which caused everything to become clear.

Before that was done, however, my good husband and I had left America.

We had some dreadful experiences ere we got away on the steamer. Knowing that nothing could be proved against us, we were not afraid and would have remained longer in America but for the persecution of those wicked brothers of Luchjid. They followed us out to our country home and hired a man to help them. They got into a quarrel, and one of them was shot, though, sad to say, not killed.

The man whom they paid forced his way into our workshop, but misfortune came again, for the simple old woman with whom we lived restored him to life when I had arranged everything so as to punish him for helping to persecute us.

We are back in India at last in our dear old home. The only fear I have is of Arnik and Parlee, who must still be very angry, but I pray that they may see the error of their ways and leave us alone. Bismallah!

Judge Brewer went down to Talladega Saturday but came back to Jacksonville Tuesday to hear the motions in the Burton case.

Solicitor B. F. Willson remained in Jacksonville. Judge Akin, representing the defense, did not leave the city. The other lawyers in the case, both for the state and defense went home but returned on Monday.

Deserved Compliments.

All those who attended the concert at the college last Thursday evening have passed the most enthusiastic compliments upon Miss Undine Lane for the progress which her music pupils made during the past session, and on the success of her concert.

Mingled with the many nice things said of Miss Lane in connection with her class and concert, are expressions of sincere regret that she will not have charge of the music department of the State Normal School at its next session. She has given perfect satisfaction as a teacher, and if the vote of every patron of the school could retain her, she would not go away.

She is universally loved by the people of Jacksonville; is a thoroughly competent teacher, and the school which has secured her service for the next year is to be congratulated.

A Faithful Servant.

No more beautiful and touching example of the love and devotion of the old southern negro for "their white people"—as they often call them—has been witnessed here than that of Aggie Forney, the servant of the Hudson's who waited upon Mrs. Fallinwider in her last sickness. Two weeks ago she took her place by the bed-side of the sufferer, and down to the day of her death the faithful negro did not leave her. With no hope of reward, but inspired by a devotion, nothing less than sacred, she watched and waited, through the long days and the sleepless nights, for the destroyer's coming. And when at last, she saw the eyelids of her "young mistress" close in death, her broken heart confessed in tears the sorrow that she felt.

A Correction.

In our publication of the grand jury report in last week's issue we made that part of the report, which referred to the election irregularities discovered in the investigation, read as follows: "we find that there were irregularities." It should have read "we find that there were serious irregularities." The error was an omission of the copyist, in preparing the report for the compositor. In order that the report be given as read to the court, we deem it proper to make this correction.

Knights of the Maccabees.

The State Commander writes us from Lincoln, Neb., as follows: "After trying other medicines for what seemed to be a very obstinate cough in our two children we tried Dr. King's New Discovery and at the end of two days the cough entirely left them. We will not be without it hereafter, as our experience proves that it cures where all other remedies fail."—Signed F. W. Stevens, State Com.—Why not give this great medicine a trial, as it is guaranteed and trial bottles are free at W. B Arbery's Drug Store. 6

On Friday morning of last week, the REPUBLICAN was honored by a visit from Miss Mary Lou Moody and Miss Lou Elgin, of Piedmont, accompanied by Miss Floy Montgomery, of Jacksonville, and Mr. Thompson, of Chattanooga. The Misses Moody and Elgin are on the editorial staff of the womans edition of the Piedmont Inquirer which makes its appearance in that city today. The young ladies were here in the interest of their paper. They are very enthusiastic over their journalistic venture, and inspired by their enthusiasm, we feel no hesitancy in saying that the issue will be a credit to its fair editors and to their beautiful little city.

The address by Dr. Smith at the college Wednesday night was highly appreciated by all our people.

Ed Caldwell and Will Clark went fishing on Monday evening.

By way of being sure of some excitement, in case the fish should not bite, they drove that hundred dollar horse of Clarks. The fish did not bite, and on the way home the horse furnished the fun. Of course the exact facts will never be known. Ed Caldwell has chage of them, but from what could be gathered in the shape of broken spokes, torn cushions, bits of harness, and two weary pilgrims trudging into Jacksonville about sunset, the conclusion is that this horse of Clark's did the Tom O'Shanter act, and ditched both the sheriff and his deputy.

A stranger who met the beast just as he turned into the woods, reported that he had discarded every thing but the collar and bridle.

UP!!! UP!!! UP!!!

The tendency is upward and everything is showing signs of a revival in trade. All Now, my friends don't let croakers discourage you. We are on an era of prosperity, I am in touch with manufacturers and they say look out for higher prices, and just as sure as you they have in years. It is a fact that the cotton acreage has been reduced fully 20 per cent., and the reduction in fertilizer has been 45 per cent. Now isn't it good common sense to reckon the crop this year to be something like three million bales less. These are the conditions, you can make nothing else of it. The question is why not take advantage of this. Well, you and your neighbors have all fussed will make with an ordinary season, but I want to tell you that the use of fertilizers in cultivating is more lasting and you get better returns than any time, and I counsel you to use a few more sacks. Don't say that this is Truitt's way of working off some gumno, but be broad-minded men and put in some. I only have a limited supply any way. By the use of one hundred pounds to the acre while cultivating I believe you will make from one-third to one-half more. I believe cotton will sell next fall for 7½ cents per pound, and I shall not be astonished to see it higher. Remember its no additional cost of cultivating to put in fertilizer now. Write or call on me if you need fertilizer or anything else.

Yours truly,

Miss Mattie Whorton, who has been teaching in Dadeville, has returned.

Mrs. Grubbs while returning from a neighbor's on Tuesday, fell in the middle of the road. She was carried to a neighbor's house and has been very sick since.

A. M. Sealy, of Randolph, and Miss Golihore were married on Sunday by Dr. Davis.

Mr. W. C. Scarbrough visited us on Monday.

TAMPA.

We have been having warmer weather than usual for the first of June. Therefore the little storm of Tuesday evening was very refreshing, not only to man and beast but also to the growing crops of cereals, vegetables and fruits.

While the lightning was flashing, the thunder rolling, the rain falling we read aloud the address of Genl. Wade Hampton, at the unveiling of the Confederate monument, at Chicago. For simplicity and beauty of language it is unsurpassed, and is also, a clear and concise enunciation of the principles for which the people of the South fought so dearly and sacrificed so much. Every young man, and young woman, boy and girl of our Southland should read it carefully and treasure its teaching.

Well, vacation has come, and with it crowds of merry young folks seeking the cool shade and health-giving water of Sulphur Springs. Sunday school picnics on the train, town and country picnics in buggies, carriages, hacks, etc.

Mr. and Mrs. Fulks, from near Gadsden, have been visiting their mother, Mrs. Rachell Treadwell, who is thought to be better.

Our farmers busy plowing and the community enjoying good health, our best wishes.

MINK.

There was a grave yard cleaning at Mt. Gilead last Saturday. After the yard had been cleaned off and the graves decorated, the people met in the church and listened to a good sermon by Elder G. S. Boozer, the pastor of the church. Dinner was then announced, and all present did justice to that part of the program. After dinner we gathered in the church and had some good singing, after which good Sunday school talks were made by Messrs. G. M. Phillips, Frank Palmer, J. B. Roper and C. A. J. Hollingsworth.

Messrs Dina Barnes and Miles Nabors, of Hokes Bluff, visited Mink on business Monday.

We are still fighting Genl. Green. Success to the Republican.

CANE CREEK.

There was a working at Weatherly's cemetery last Saturday. The good people turned out and cleaned off the cemetery, decorated the graves, put up a nice wire fence, and the ladies, as usual, had such a dinner for us as only the Cane Creek women can fix up. You folks eating fried meat and bread and beef three times a day, should have been there. I haven't been hungry since.

Mr. Geo. Loyd and lady, Mr. Robinett and lady, were among our visitors from a distance at the cemetery working.

Mr. J. E. Downing and one-fourth of his family (6) are visiting his mother this week.

We see the accomplished Miss Zula Brothers has returned home from the Normal College in Jacksonville.

Master Frank Brothers, of Jacksonville, is on a visit to his grandpa.

Our farmers are busy killing grass, and crops are growing finely.

Our people complain of hard times, but it doesn't seem like it from the way they have contributed to our neighbor who was burned out.

I passed through Egypt last week and found the flies soaring.

Expect the King will not let Israel go. Moses will have to get his rod in order.

BYNUM'S.

Our farmers are quite busy working their crops. They will have to get a hustle on themselves to keep up with the grass.

We are having a little sickness in town at present. Mrs. Moss has been quite sick for a few days but is some better. We hope she will continue to improve. Miss Maggie Burns, one of our young ladies is ill. Dr. Bullard, of Oxford, is tending on her. We sincerely hope that she will soon be all right again.

Prof. J. E. Hughes and sister went down to Talladega on a visit a few days ago. The professor returned on Sunday, but Miss Ella will spend a while with friends.

We had quite a nice time at the singing, at Eulaton Sunday. A large attendance and plenty to eat.

Rev. Mr. Willson and daughter are visiting the family of Mr. G. W. Burns.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Johnson, a boy, and they are very proud of him.

Mr. T. D. Bynum is visiting in Texas, where he went to attend the reunion.

Miss Daisy Moss returned from Texas on Wednesday. She has been away quite a while. She was gladly welcomed home by her friends and relatives.

A fine boy at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Harrison.

BERA.

Married, at the residence, of E. J. Haynie, Mr. John Self to Mrs. M. J. Varwell, Esquire Haynie officiating. The groom is eighty-five years of age, while the bride is twenty years younger. Mr. Self has been married four times, and is the father of twenty-seven children.

Prof. Stovall has vacated his school for one month, and returned to his father's home at Francis.

Mr. Asa Allen, of DeArmanville, is visiting in these parts.

Rev. T. J. Wren and E. T. Rhodes, of Eulaton, and S. M. Roberts, of Morrisville, are in bad health.

Miss Ella Dickert, visited Misses Sallie and Maggie Haynie last week.

The Sunday school at New Bethel was largely attended last Sabbath.

MORRISVILLE

The weather is getting hot, and vegetation is growing very fast. Crab grass is showing signs of animation is some places.

There is some rust on wheat but I do not believe that it will do much damage.

Mr. John Self, and Mrs. M. J. Varwell were united in the holy bonds of matrimony last Sunday, E. J. Haynie, J. P., officiated. The groom is only 85 years old, has been married four times, and is the father of twenty-seven children. Twenty-five of them are living and doing well. The blushing bride is only 60 years old and this is her second venture in matrimonial enterprise.

Opinions are divided in regard to the action of the grand jury in the charge of fraud in last August and November elections, but the greatest number believe that the grand jury did right.

The silver question is being discussed and very few object to free coinage at 16 to 1.

Prof. Stovall has vacated his school at New Bethel until the first Monday in July. The examination last Saturday showed that he had advanced his pupils a great deal, which speaks well for him.

Esquire E. J. Haynie, created a considerable sensation in his neighborhood, last Friday, by hitching up and ploughing nearly all day. A thing that he has not been accused of doing before in these many days. Some said that bad things were going to happen, others said it was reformation, and finally all agreed to wait for developments.

FERGUSONVILLE.

The farmers have or an extra move now, and are marshalling all their forces in the skirmish with General Green, and as the General is wellnigh omnipresent, they can find him anywhere.

The weather has been very hot for several days and the grass is growing rapidly. Crops too look well, and farmers are running on full time. They will soon have their crops in good shape if this weather continues.

Capt. Charles Simpson and lady, were visiting relatives in our place last Sunday.

Master Clarence Weathers, of Anniston, was visiting his old friends around Fergusonville last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Ferguson drove out to visit Mrs. Sallie Loyd and Mrs. Howard last Sunday This is our Jim, the ex-sewing machine agent now a farmer. For the benefit of the Morrisville correspondent, I will say that Jim has talked farming in the way he did sales in the machine business. Consequently he talked the tassle out of the corn two weeks ago. His Morrisville friend had better come around and hitch on to the ark.

Messrs T. H. Clements and Gus Donahoo are talking of moving their saw mill soon.

Mr. Jim Acker was at home last week, and reports the sale of tobacco good.

Professor Person's school closed on the last day of May.

Mr. J. H. McEachin is threatening to kill grass this week.

The thermometer went to 100 on Monday.

BRUNER.

The health of our community is good.

We have had a world of grass but the farmers, by patience and hard licks, are killing it out very rapidly. They now have the general on the run, and with a fair chance they will keep him moving.

Oats are looking very well. The plenteous rains which have recently fallen were just what the oat crop needed.

Very little wheat was sown in our section this season.

Mrs. Weis, of Birmingham, is visiting her son, W. F. Weis of Bruner.

We rejoice to see the REPUBLICAN shooting at the gold standard. We trust you will throw hot shot into the camp of the enemy, and put them to rout.

How many of your correspondents are for the gold standard?

Down here we believe in the currency of our fathers and we want to get back to their ways as soon as possible. We should like to have Johnston for Governor, and Jno. T. Morgan for President. This would be a ticket for the people.

Let the REPUBLICAN keep up the fight for silver, and every time a gold-bug shows itself, mash it. Don't lose a chance to "bit" them.

WEAVERS.

The extreme weather is making it very difficult to get the crops in good condition. Some of the low lands are not yet planted and will hardly do much good this year.

A good deal of cotton has not yet been chopped, and at this writing it is too wet to hoe.

The oat crop is a good one, but wheat is too thin to yield much.

The repairs for the rock crusher are here and will be attached at once, and the work on the roads will be resumed.

Until General Green withdraws his forces, it might be best to let road working wait awhile.

The thermometer stood at 96 at 2 o'clock, Monday.

There is some sickness this week, but nothing serious.

Rev. F. M. Treadaway filled Bro. Horton's appointment here last Sabbath. Bro. Horton was called away to attend the burial of his brother-in-law.

OHATCHEE.

Dr. Sanders was seen hurrying towards the residence of Mr. W. H. Nunnelly a few days ago. A very little one was the cause of the excitement and there are four in his family now.

Mr. J. A. Orr, who has been spending several weeks in our settlement, had great success fishing while here. He has gone to Memphis to take a position with a cotton firm there this season.

Mr. C. P. Nunnelly leaves us in a few days to take a position with the Dwight Mfg. company, as foreman on their new cotton factory building at Alabama City.

Mrs. Liddie Nunnelly has recovered from a very severe spell of sickness.

Master Charlie Nunnelly went fishing with Mr. Orr a few days ago and caught the largest fish of the season. He came near being pulled into the creek, but succeeded in landing the "Cat".

AEXANDRIA.

Dr. and Mrs. Elrod are visiting their former home in Collinsville.

Miss Ethel Nicolson, who has been attending school here has returned to her home in Collinsville.

Mr. K. Woodruff's little girl is quite sick.

Quite a number of people from here attended the unveiling of the Noble monument in Anniston Wednesday.

Dr. Corley, of Talladega, was among his friends here today. Doctor Corley was once "of Alexandria," and his return is always welcomed.

Almost every day some one from Anniston passes going to the famous Sulphur Springs.

Public Speaking.

Mr. Percy Clark, an old Calhoun county boy, but for several years past a newspaper correspondent at Washington, and Hon John H. Blankhead, the able representative from the Sixth Alabama district, and chairman of the committee on public building and grounds, will address the citizens of Calhoun county at the opera house in Anniston Saturday, June 8th, at 2 o'clock p. m. on the issues of the day. No charge for admission, and all are invited to attend. After the speaking a bimetallic club will be formed for the free coinage of gold and silver without discrimination.

Mr. Marshall, the cotton seed oil man, does not wear that smile because of the advance in the price of oil or meal. Something better than that! A young lady arrived Wednesday night. That's what makes Mr. Marshall smile.

ANNISTON.

The monument erected to the memory of Samuel Noble, Anniston's founder, was today unveiled in the presence of fully 10,000 people. The procession, composed of five military companies, secret orders, fire department and a vast throng of citizens and visitors formed at 3:30 o'clock, and after parading the principal thoroughfares marched to the monument.

After an earnest prayer by Rev. F. P. Culver, the cord which held the veil about the statue was drawn by the hand of little Elizabeth Daves Roberts, the eldest granddaughter of Mr. Sam Noble, and as the covering fell away and disclosed the form of Anniston's founder a thrill of sadness filled the assembled people.

In the absence of Dr. R. P. Huger the presentation was made by Mr. D. C. Blackwell, in words well chosen to suit the occasion. When he had concluded the acceptance of the valued gift was made by Mayor Hight, in a speech that overflowed with love and tenderness for the man whose name is sacred to this fair city.

After the reading of a memorial poem by Miss Christine Cooke and the decorating of the monument by the young ladies, Col. John M. Caldwell, orator of the day, was introduced and held the vast audience spellbound with his matchless eloquence. He was at his best and as the words fell from his lips teeming with brilliant gems of oratory, the multitude listened with close attention. He concluded his address with the following beautiful expression:

"Today we pay him tardy tribute, but never the less in manner worthy of him and us. We place before the world his form developed out of marble as it stands before us silent and still. Pioneer citizen, we have never seen or do we expect to see thy like again. May the inspiration of his work and genius and the recollection of his name abide with us."

All the men in Calhoun county who feel interested in the question of finace should attend the public speaking in Anniston next Saturday. No man in Alabama makes an abler speech in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of silver than Hon. John H. Bankhead. It is hoped that every beat in Calhoun county will be well represented. Let all come and hear words of truth from one who has given much study to this important question.

The first number of the Alabama Leader, the Populist paper published by A. P. Longshore, was issued here last Thursday.

Col. G. C. Ellis, of Jacksonville, was a visitor to Anniston last Thursday.

The subscription to date to secure the girls industrial school for Anniston amounts to $7,918.50.

The commencement exercises of the Southern Female University have been greatly enjoyed by the people here and Anniston appreciates this splendid institution of learning more today than ever be before.

The annual address was delivered by Hon. J. B. Graham, of Talladega. His theme was Education of Women, and the address was full of profound thought, eloquent language, practical advice, and sparkling humor.

The graduating exercises of the Noble Institute this week have been full of interest, and have not been excelled anywhere. This school is doing a grand work, and Anniston is justly proud of it.

The Republican Job Office.

The REPUBLICAN'S job office is now in the hands of Mr. S. H. Lester, who will give it his entire time and attention, and will do promply all work given him.

We have recently added a lot of new type, and are prepared to do better work than ever before.

Persons desiring letter heads, note heads, bill heads, statements, pamphlets, or any other job work, will do well to get the prices at this office before having their work done.

Remember that you can now have any job done promptly and neatly at this office.

W. H. Dean, who attended the reunion a Houston, and afterwards made a tour of the state, has returned to Jacksonville.

Miss Sallie Hoke is visiting friends in Anniston.

PROF. CHAPPELL,

FORMERLY OF JACKSONVILLE,

Carries the People of Milledgeville With Him as Against the Governor of Georgia.

The people of Calhoun well remember Prof. J. Harris Chappell, who a few years ago was President of the Jacksonville Normal School. While here, on more than one occasion, Prof. Chappell demonstrated beyond all doubt that he not only had the courage of his convictions, but on all occasions he would defend what he believe to be the right.

The writer well remembers the aggressive attack which Prof. Chappell made upon a certain well known teacher who denounced the state normal schools during the State Teachers Association when in session in Anniston. He scored the distinguished gentleman so unmercifully that no one else felt disposed to take the rostrum in a speech against normal schools.

As the President of the Georgia Normal and Industrial college, Prof. Chappell recently expelled a girl for a breach of discipline, involving the integrity of her examination. After this, the faculty decided that she was not entitled to a diploma. Another member of the faculty who taught in the Jacksonville Normal school is Prof. Earnest, who stood by Prof. Chappell, as did all the other teachers.

After the faculty had made their decision known, the trustees held a meeting and decided otherwise, as on previous examination the young lady had been passed upon favorably as being entitled to a certificate as a graduate.

After the trustees decided to reverse the action of the faculty, they decided to issue the diplomas themselves.

The following special sent out from Milledgeville gives an account of the sensation created during the night of the commencement:

"When Governor Atkinson announced that the trustees would deliver the diplomas the students, the faculty and the audience were amazed.

After Professor Chappell made his protest Governor Atkinson stepped forward before the applause had died away. With a face white with rage and in a voice choked with anger he turned to President Chappell and uttered these words, amid deathlike silence.

"I have known Professor Chappell a long time, but I never thought he would be guilty of an act so unbecoming a gentleman and so unchivalrous as persecuting a defenseless girl."

He waited a moment to give his words effect and then he said further:

"The board of trustees were guided solely by justice in this affair and they have stood between a gross wrong and the most absolute justice."

Again there was silence.

"And the teachers of this institution," he said, "cannot confer diplomas. Their terms end with this commencement and they have no right to do so under the law."

In the pause that ensued every teacher on the stage and every student arose en mass, and, accompanied by nearly all the audience, started to leave the room.

The governor stood in amazement at such a spectacle, a blush mantling his cheeks. Gray-headed men present never remembered such a spectacle of silent indignation hurled at the chief executive.

Professor Chappell stepped quietly forward and in a few words called back the audience, the governor meanwhile uttering some remarks, the purport of which was not clearly understood.

Then Fleming DuBignon asked the privilege of a word, and stated that the trustees merely meant to do justice to the young lady.

The benediction was pronounced and the exercises were over. But the most humiliating experience yet remained for Georgia's chief executive.

Here Governor Atkinson has been the idol of the college. The students enthusiastically supported him in their own way in his race for governor, and when he was inaugurated they moved Heaven and earth to get permission to attend the exercises in a body. But today as the governor stepped from the stage he was met by 200 angry, tearful faces. Ignoring all rules of courtesy, the young maids hissed him to the echo.

The senior class immediately held a session and unanimously refused to receive their diplomas from the board of trustees."

Before this incident occurred, Prof. Chappell had been re-elected president and all the old members of the faculty had been re-elected.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Weems returned from a visit to Anniston, on Saturday.

Alabama Educational Association.

To the teachers of Calhoun County:

For the first time in ten years the Alabama Educational Association, which is the state organization of white teachers, will meet in easy reach of you. The session will be held in the D. & D. Institute at Talladega, July 2, 3 & 4. Now is your opportunity to become identified with this intelligent and powerful body. Here you will extend your acquaintance, form new friendships, learn better methods of teaching, broaden your views, hear of better fields of labor, and possibly procure better positions with better salaries.

This has been the experience of many teachers who have attended in the past. It is the opportunity of a life time for the ambitious, struggling teacher, who has dedicated his life to the noble work and who desires to rise in the profession.

The annual membership fee is only $1. 00. Send this amount to J. B. Graham, Vice President A. E. A., and Chairman of Entertainment Committee, Talladega, with your name and address.

In addition to the A. E. A., the Alabama Chatauqua Assembly will convene July, 2, and continue to July, 28. The best platform talent of America will be there, including Talmage and Jones.

The best board can be obtained for $1.00 per day, $4.00 to $6.00 per week, and $15.00 to $20.00 per month.

Railroads will give reduced rates.

Beginning on July, 5, a Summer Institute for teachers will begin in connection with the Chatauqua Assembly and continue two weeks under the direction of Prin. J. B. Cunningham, of the Birmingham Public Schools, Dr. Geo. R. McNeil, of La Fayette College, and others equally distinguished. Talladega should be the Mecca of all who want intellectual enjoyment and growth.

For particulars addess,

J. B. Graham, Supt. Education, Talladega County, Ala.

I hereby endorse the above letter and urge the teachers of this county to take advantage of the splendid opportunities afforded. Send the $1.00 membership fee to me or to J. B. Graham, Talladega. This should be attended to immediately so that the local committee may know how many to expect.

L. D. Miller, Supt. Ed. Calhoun County.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at River Junction she was brought down with Pneumonia succeeding La Grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at W. B. Arbuckle's Drugstore. Regular size 50c. and $1.00. 1

Circuit Clerk Weaver has finished the transcript in the case of the State vs. Joe Burton, and it will be submitted to the supreme court this week. The transcript is the longest ever carried from this county and covers one hundred twenty six pages.

I have on hand now by my stock account about $8,000 worth of goods. Most all of these goods were bought since last October and I shall close them out during the Summer for the money as cheap as you can buy anywhere in this section of country. I wish to sell every article in my house before the fall season preparatory to putting in a complete and an entirely new line of goods. Call for our cash prices. PENTON ROWAN.

DELAYS are dangerous. A dollar spent for Hood's Sarsaparilla now may prevent illness which will be expensive and hard to bear. Now is the time to take Hood's Sarsaparilla.

HOODS PILLS cure all liver ills, relieve constipation and assist digestion. 25c.

ILLINOIS DEMOCRACY

ASSEMBLED IN STATE CONVENTION

Pass Resolutions in Favor of the Free and Unlimited Coinage of Silver, and Ask for a National Convention.

A Democratic state convention of Illinois was held last Thursday to consider and define the position of the Democratic party of Illinois on the question of finance.

The convention was large and enthusiastic. It was called to order by the chairman of the democratic central committee. The session was harmonious, and after several able speeches had been delivered, the convention declared the Democracy of Illinois in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1.

A resolution was passed requesting the democratic national committee to call a democratic national convention to consider the money question not later than August, 1895. If the national committee refuses to call such a convention, then the democratic state committees are requested to take concurrent action with the democratic state convention of Illinois in calling such a convention. Delegates were elected to attend a national convention in event it is held.

IN MEMORIAM

John A. Christian.

An earnest, brave, consistent, consecrated life is all that is worth living. It is the only life that leaves behind good impressions, some deeds of praise for mirrors unto men. Such a life terminated, so far as time can terminate it, when John A. Christian breathed his last, and his strong sridit passed from among us, on the bright Sabbath morning, April 28th, 1895 at his home in Oxford Ala.

He was born in Cherokee county, Ala., Oct., 6th, 1895, but he spent his early and school days at the old family home near Talladega, Talladega county, Ala. He attended school in Talladega, and here he was first engaged in business, being employed as a clerk in the large house of that prince of merchants, Maj. James Isbell.

He joined the Baptist church in 1862, and his whole christian life was a business attestation of the truth of his profession, and the depth of his piety.

He was among the first to enlist in the confederate war, he was a member of company E., 10th Ala., Regiment, and there was not a more patriotic, braver and faithful soldier in the service.

After the war, he engaged in the mercantile business in Oxford, and later, he was engaged in the same in Atlanta, and continued in some phase of this business through life. He was married to Miss Georgie Borders Nov., 18th, 1874.

Mr. Christian had many noble qualities of head and heart, many patents of true nobility. In him the elements were so mixed, that nature might stand up and say to all the world, "Behold a man."

"Judge him by the right laid line,
Of truth, he truly will all styles deserve.
Of wise, good, just, a man in every sense."

His character was well balanced, all its parts in sublimest symetry, one in which, virtues buried vices and beauties bore blemishes away.

He filled well all the relations of life. He was a good neighbor, safe counselor, fast friend, solid man, kind father, devoted husband, and faithful, christian gentleman.

He leaves a wife, four children, two brothers, and one sister, and a large circle of friends and relatives to mourn his loss.

"All ye that are about him, bemoan him; and all ye that know his name, say, How is the strong staff broken, and the beautiful rod." Jeremiah 48: 17.

J. C. WRIGHT,
Oxford, May 30th, 1895.

Mr. Geo. P. Ide, left on the north bound train Wednesday, for a visit to his parents in St. Johnsbury, Vermont. He will be gone about one month.

Miss Hannah Crook is visiting her aunt, Mrs. O. M. Reynolds, in Anniston.

Dennis J. Jenkins is now in Jacksonville prepared to clean, bind or mend clothing. Also cleans ladies dresses. Shop at Jerry Crook's.

The Republican.

Official Journal of Calhoun County.

AYERS & CROOK,

EDITORS AND PUBLISHERS.

Entered at the post office at Jacksonville, Ala., as second class matter.

SATURDAY, JUNE 8, 1895.

THE REPUBLICAN.

Established in 1837, is the OFFICIAL JOURNAL of Calhoun, one of the largest and wealthiest counties in Alabama, and in which are located the towns of Jacksonville, Anniston, Oxford, Oxanna and Piedmont.

CIRCULATION.

It has a larger guaranteed county circulation in Calhoun than any other paper.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The subscribers of the REPUBLICAN are the best people in the county,—a class of people with whom it pays to advertise. Than it there is no better advertising medium in this section of Alabama.

THE REPUBLICAN.

MINISTER RANSOM is on his way home from Mexico on sick leave. He was taken sick while en route to Mexico and has at no time been able to transact the business of the legation.

THERE is no longer a doubt but a majority of the papers in Alabama are in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of silver. They continue to step over on the silver side.

IN all probability the Age-Herald will not again question the Democracy of Judge James M. Arnold. If the editor of the Age-Herald can show as good a Democratic record as Judge Arnold has shown, he will stand the test.

BIRMINGHAM is to be congratulated for her pluck in securing the first session of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers of America ever held in the South. The delegates number 500, and will be in session two weeks.

MR. CLEVELAND must be fearfully worried over the rise in prices. He must believe it calamitous. Did he not write that low prices favored the laboring man? and does he not realize that whatever operates against the laborer, saps the strength of the country? You should keep prices down, Mr. Cleveland, so that the laborer may enjoy them.

IN the dedication of the monument to the confederate dead, Chicago has the proud distinction of being the first northern city to do honor to the patriotism and valor of the confederate soldier who died in defense of the cause which he believed to be right.

Chicago is from year to year pressing New York for the place as the largest city in the union, and the Americans on this side of Mason and Dixon's line will hereafter feel more interest in the strides which the city of Chicago is making.

WHILE it gets quite warm in Jacksonville during the day, our nights are always delightfully pleasant. Such a thing as sunstroke has never been known here. This is quite an item in our favor, when we remember that last Sunday there were seventeen fatal cases of sunstroke in Philadelphia. Those fellows up there may down us on questions of finance, but when it comes to delightful weather all the months in the year, they can't hold us a light.

WHEN the committee appointed to select a location for Howard College failed to accept the proposition to locate that institution in Anniston, it made a fearful mistake.

We hope the trustees of the Girls Industrial School will not make the same mistake.

Anniston is indeed an ideal location for this institution of learning. She has advantages which no other competing place can offer. She has made a liberal proposition for the location of the school, and we sincerely hope she will get it.

THE Selma Times has the following item in reference to Dr. Clarke, who was so well and favorably known in Calhoun county: "A very handsome life-size picture of Dr. C. J. Clarke was purchased yesterday and it will be placed in a conspicuous place in the Clarke public school building for colored people. This is a deserved compliment on the part of our colored citizens to one of the purest, best men Selma ever produced. The picture was from the art studio of Harrison, the best photographer in the state."

—As any farmer, says Mr. Josiah Patterson, what was the most prosperous period agriculture has ever known in this country, and if he is old enough or intelligent enough he will tell you that it was between 1850 and 1860. During the entire decade we coined not a single silver dollar and were absolutely on the gold standard. When has the farmer had the most trouble? He will tell you within the past sixteen years, and during that time we have coined over fifty times more silver than was coined from 1792 down to 1878."

Had Mr. Patterson desired to do so, he could not have made an argument more in favor of bimetallism in the United States. He says that the most prosperous period of our history was from 1850 to 1860. We are not old enough to recall those times, but we are willing to trust history, and say that in this Mr. Josiah Patterson is right. This being the case let us see what laws governed the coinage of the two metals. They were admitted to our mints on equal terms. Mr. Patterson says we were on a gold standard at this time. Mr. Patterson knows that statement to be false. He knows full well that the gold standard never existed in this country until the year 1873 when silver was demonetized. He knows that the same fundamental coinage laws existed from 1850 to 1860 that had existed from the foundation of this republic. He knows that these laws were based upon the free coinage of both metals. He seizes the opportunity, however to pervert the truth by saying that we were on a gold basis, when he must know that we were not only using our own silver dollar, but were using those of Mexico and Spain as well; and silver dollars were legal tender in payment of all debts. Always speak the truth Mr. Patterson, and please speak the whole of it.

But Mr. Josiah Patterson says that the farmer has had most trouble during the last sixteen years. Exactly so, Mr. Patterson. Silver men all over the Union agree with you in this. Again you dodge from the truth as if it scalded you. Why not tell it all? Why not say that in the last sixteen years not a piece of foreign silver coin has done duty in our country? Why not speak the truth and confess that during these sixteen years we have had silver gagged by only allowing it the place of legal tender money in five dollar payments? Why not acknowledge that by the devilish fraud of 1873 silver was demonetized, and that the farmer has therefore suffered most in these last sixteen years?

The American people are not satisfied, Mr. Patterson, with their experiences of the last sixteen years. You say they have been disastrous. Suppose you join the people and make a fight for the reinstatement of the coinage laws as they existed from 1850 to 1860, those years of prosperity to which you refer? The friends of silver are willing. See if you can get permission of Mr. Cleveland, to aid in this great fight which the people are waging.

To Hon. W. C. Oates, Governor of Alabama:—There seems to be quite a difference of opinion among the people in this section as to your position on the question of the free and unlimited coinage of silver, and as to whether you will ask the Democratic nomination for Governor next year.

Some say as you voted for the free and unlimited coinage of silver at a ratio of 20 to 1, that you will favor it at a ratio of 16 to 1 in preference to the single gold standard. Others say you will not.

Some say you will not be a candidate for Governor next year, for the reason you stated during your campaign last year that you would not ask a second term. Others say they believe you will ask a second term.

In order that you may be properly understood, if it is agreeable for you to do so, we respectfully ask that you answer the following questions through the columns of the REPUBLICAN:

Are you in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1?

Will you be a candidate next year for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Alabama, or, as announced during your canvass last year, will you be a candidate to succeed Senator Pugh in the United States Senate?

THE bimetallic convention in Memphis next week will be presided over by Speaker Crisp, the elegant Southern gentleman who has easily won the position as the recognized leader on the Democratic side of the House in Congress.

Among those who will address the convention, are Senators Morgan, Daniel and Voorhees,—a trio for ability and statesmanship that cannot be equaled in the United States Senate.

—WHEN we remember the fact that under the operation of the single gold standard there has been an increase in one year in taxe valuations in New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and a few other eastern states to the enormous amount of $412,510,985, it is not surprising that the organized chambers of commerce in New York and Philadelphia should issue addresses to the business men of the south urging that they give no encouragement to the restoration of silver to its position as a standard money metal.

But it is astonishing beyond measure that Southern business men and Southern newspapers should favor the continuance of a policy which has lost to the southern and western states during the last year the astonishing sum of five hundred million dollars.

We confess that we cannot understand how any Southern man can conscientiously favor a system of finance which will certainly make his own section and people grow poorer and poorer every year to benefit the great money centers.

It is not only a theory that the contraction of the currency increases the purchasing power of the dollar and lessens the value of all property and products, and thus benefits only the rich, but it has been thoroughly demonstrated during the past year.

The tax returns show an alarming decrease in values in the South and West, and an enormous increase among the rich in the money centers.

The present system of finace was tested from 1873 to 1878. That is, the coinage of silver was stopped entirely, as at present, during that time. Its effect was thoroughly tested, and it proved so disastrous to all interests outside of the money centers, that in 1878, under the Bland-Allison act, the limited coinage of silver was commenced.

There is no reasonable hope why the present system should be less disastrous than was that from 1873 to 1878.

A change from the present system is an absolute necessity. But instead of enacting a makeshift, as was done in 1878, we should have the free and unlimited coinage of silver as we had prior to 1873.

Already a large number of the Democratic senators and representatives who voted to repeal the purchasing clause of the Sherman bill, see the absolute necessity of the free and unlimited coinage of silver. It is a necessity, and the people are going to have it.

IT is only a short while since Mr. Cleveland, in writing a letter to a Chicago banquet committee, said that the farmers and the laborer had great cause for rejoicing over the fact that prices were low. That while the prices received for produce were off, this was more than compensated for in the low prices at which the necessities of life could be purchased.

Mr. Cleveland said this in a letter. The press dispatcher carried the letter throughout the length and breadth of the country. It passed before the eyes of his worshipers, who accept him as an oracle, and they seized upon it as an argument of unusual weight. For several weeks they told the farmer, on every occasion, that an ideal state of affairs existed. "Why", they said, "it is true cotton is down but look at cotton goods, at flour, at tools, at iron. Don't you see that you are not hurt?" But the farmer saw that he was hurt. And the farmer listened at their speeches as he listened to the wind. Even the argument of great Grover fell short of the mark. A little rise in prices takes place, and while Grover does not write a letter—being estopped by the one just referred too he sends out his lieutenants to tell the people that a rise in prices is a good thing, and that his safe management of affairs publique is the cause of the rise. But what will the farmer say now? Will he believe that Grover is right when he claims that high prices are a benefit, or will they believe that he was right when he said low prices befriended the farmer and the laborer? Will they not believe that Mr. Cleveland is in a desperate strait and that he is trying to stem the tide that is fast bearing him beyond reach of confidence and esteem. Will they not conclude that his efforts are to blind, not to enlighten, to enthrall, not to free? Will they be led this way today, and yonder tomorrow by such varying and inconsistent statments? No. The farmer and the laborer of America are convinced that Mr. Cleveland, though he may be ever so honest in his opinion, lives in an atmosphere, and is surrounded by associations, which are poisonous to their prosperity. They no longer listen to his voice, because they believe that it proceeds from a breast in which there remains no sympathy for their condition.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Purifies the Blood and Restores Health.

Wilmot, S. Dak.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:
"About four years ago my wife was troubled with salt rheum. Although we tried nearly everything it got worse instead of better and spread over both of her hands so that she could hardly use them. Finally she commenced to use Hood's Sarsaparilla and when she had taken two bottles her hands were entirely healed and she has not since been troubled. In December, 1892, my neck was covered with boils of a

There were sixteen of them at once and as soon as they healed others would break out. My neck finally became covered with ridges and scars. I then commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and after taking four bottles the boils had all healed and the scars have disappeared. I recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla to all suffering from any disorder of the blood." F. W. STOWELL, Wilmot, South Dakota.

STEP by step the gold men have grown bolder until they have now thrown off the mask entirely.

When they were fighting to repeal the purchasing clause of the Sherman bill the country was assured that silver would be given a free coinage after this clause was repealed. After they succeeded in this way in securing the help of a number of silver men and repealing the purchasing clause of the Sherman bill, they assured the people that they would go to work to secure the free coinage of silver by international agreement. On the strength of this promise, the silver men commenced to arrange for an international conference. A bill was passed authorizing the senate, the house and the president to appoint two men each to attend the conference. The senate and house each selected two men, but the president has ignored the bill and has not so much as appointed the two men which the bill authorizes him to appoint. He is making no effort to secure the free coinage of silver by an international agreement. On the other hand, he is sending out his lieutenats over the country to fight for the perpetuation of the single gold standard.

They have now thrown off the mask entirely. They take the position that this country has all the money it needs, and argue in favor of the single standard. They offer no plans by which the free coinage of silver can be secured. They no longer even talk of an international conference.

There is now no middle ground in this fight. You must either be for the free coinage of silver or the single gold standard.

It is now a question as to whether you are satisfied with the existing conditions, or will you fight for a measure which will increase the amount of money in circulation and enhance the value of all products.

UPON a certain election day in the state of Virginia, a row took place, in which one of the terrors of the community was knocked down and almost killed. So sudden and so swift had been the stroke of his adversary, that only one or two who chanced to be standing near recognized his assailant. A fellow of the prostrate man rushed up, and in thunder tones demanded, "who struck Billy Patterson?" A crowd gathered to see the rancus, but were disappointed, when a quiet, but determined citizen stepped in front and said, "I hit him," and the valient man of war suddenly cooled off and remarked, "well, you hit him a dickens of a lick."

Since this incident the expression, "who hit Billy Patterson," has gone round the world. The world however likes a change,—be it ever so small. After the coming elections, when glorious Josiah, the gold agitator of the South, shall have been laid stiff and stark at the ballot box of Tennesse, when rampont Catchings shall have rushed to the rescue and demanded who hit his yoke fellow, when he shall have discovered that it was the bold hand impelled by the independent mind of the freeman of Tennessee, it will be for him to confess that Josiah got "a dickens of a lick," and from that day forward, it will no longer be "who hit Billy Patterson," but "who hit Josiah."

AYER'S
THE ONLY
Sarsaparilla
ADMITTED

READ RULE XV.

"Articles that are in any way dangerous or offensive, also patent medicines, nostrums, and empirical preparations, whose ingredients are concealed, will not be admitted to the Exposition."

Why was Ayer's Sarsaparilla admitted? Because it is not a patent medicine, not a nostrum, nor a secret preparation, not dangerous, not an experiment, and because it is all that a family medicine should be.

WORLD'S FAIR
Chicago, 1893.
Why not get the Best?

Are You Pig Or Puppy.

The republicans have cinched themselves square on top of the financial fence. There is no room up there for any other party or faction. Democrats, therefore, cannot straddle, if they would. There is no neutral ground for them to occupy unless they roost with John Sherman and his gang. They must either be for free silver or for gold monometallism. The Memphis "sound money" convention made the issue. The advocates of free silver have accepted the challenge. The lines of battle are drawn. Every body must come out into the open. There can be no skulking, or dodging. Cowardly makeshifts have seen their last days. Those newspapers which expects to carry water on both shoulders will undertake an equilibrist feat impossible of accomplishment.—The Chattanooga News.

As a Doctor Does.

The one great fault with all Liver Pills is that they act suddenly and sharply instead of quietly and continuously. They produce a violent relief and then leave you weakened, with an empty stomach and no appetite for food. This is not what a doctor does.

Every physician prescribes a powerful remedy for a disordered liver, but he then orders also a strengthening tonic, which acts as a purifier, restoring the appetite, toning up the system, and making you feel like a new creature.

This is exactly what is done by Ramon's Tonic Liver Pills and Ramon's Tonic Pellets. Two boxes, two separate medicines, and both at the cost of one. A three weeks' treatment for 25c. Ask your druggist about it.

At all dealers, or mail, for 25c., 5 boxes $1.00.
BROWN MFG. CO., New York.

But no one doubts that democratic victory in November will bring us free silver coinage upon an honest basis called for by the Chicago plaform and no one doubts that Mr. Clarke will be foremost in advocating such a measure, standing side by side with Senator Morgan.—Mobile Register September 22, 1892.

The above was written before the editor of the Register was appointed postmaster at Mobile. No paper in the state is now more bitter toward silver democrats than the Register. The above is a fair sample of the promises made to the people before and after Cleveland's election.—Hamilton News-Press.

THE REPUBLICAN continues to increase its circulation, and the advertiser who wants to reach the people of Calhoun county should place his advertisement in its columns.

MOTHERS

and those about to become mothers, should know that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription robs childbirth of its torture, terrors and dangers to both mother and child, by aiding Nature in preparing the system for parturition. Thereby "labor" and also the period of confinement are greatly shortened. It also promotes an abundant secretion of nourishment for the child. During pregnancy, it prevents "morning sickness" and those distressing nervous symptoms from which so many suffer.

Tunks, Coffee Co., Texas.

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.:
Dear Sir—I took your "Favorite Prescription" previous to confinement and never did so well in my life. It is only two weeks since my confinement and I am able to do my work. I feel stronger than I ever did in six weeks before.
Yours truly,
Cordia Culpepper

A MOTHER'S EXPERIENCE.

South Bend, Pacific Co., Wash.

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.:
Dear Sir—I began taking your "Favorite Prescription" the first month of pregnancy, and have continued taking it since confinement. I did not experience the nausea or any of the ailments due to pregnancy, after I began taking your "Prescription." I was only in labor a short time, and the physician said I got along unusually well.

MRS. BAKER.

We think it saved me a great deal of suffering. I was troubled a great deal with leucorrhea also, and it has done a world of good for me.
Yours truly,
MRS. W. C. BAKER.

We challenge the whole convention that met at Memphis to give the name and address of four poor ride farmers that attended said convention and were in sympathy with it. Give the name of six wage earners. Give the name of six producers. None such were in attendance. The convention was truly bankatorial. None of the people whom the gold standard business oppresses were allowed seats.—Gadsden Tribune.

We were not converted in this revival and we still stand on the democratic platform, and when the president went off on sound moneyism of the republican party we quit him. If Mr. Whitney had any chances for the place of secretary of state, made vacant by Mr. Gresham's death, he destroyed them when he came back to America last week and began to talk for silver. DR. BARTON'S PATIENT.

"AND you don't even know her name!" said Mrs. Renwick. "My dear Kenneth, there never was anything so ridiculous."

The captain of artillery shifted his feet to a more comfortable position on the sofa.

"Of course I know her name," said he; "and a very pretty one it is. Perry—Miss Perry."

"But who is it you are talking about?" said pretty Joyce, who had been preparing a mustard paste for her brother's chest.

Capt. Renwick answered promptly: "My sweetheart!"

"Kenneth, don't be ridiculous!" said his mother, somewhat tartly.

"The sweetest, prettiest blossom in all the Adirondack wilderness!" pursued Kenneth. "The fairest of—Catnip tea! I declare, Joyce, I won't drink it. What do you take me for?"

"It's the best thing in the world for a cold on the chest," said Mrs. Renwick. "Oh, if you had only kept away from that camping party!"

"I mistook her for the boatman's daughter the first time," said Capt. Renwick. "She—"

"Kenneth, don't talk—please don't talk!" urged his mother. "It's the worst thing you could possibly do, with your lungs all congested, and—"

"But I must talk!" said the captain. "Consider, mother, Joyce hasn't heard a word about it. She only came last night. Fancy, Joyce, my being fool enough to mistake her for a boatman's daughter!"

"Why, aren't boatmen's daughters as nice and ladylike as anyone?" said Joyce, readjusting her apron ribbons.

"Oh, but this boatman lives in a perpetual state of shirt sleeves!" said Renwick; "and he is a living fountain of tobacco juice and talks abominable grammar through his nose. And his wife is a low class of Meg Merrilies, who takes too much bad whisky whenever she has an opportunity. How I ever made such a blunder I can't imagine. But Jenkins sent me up to the lake head to hire a boat, and when I saw her sitting there among the water lilies, I jumped at once to the conclusion that this was the boat to hire. 'My good girl,' says I—fancy my idiocy! —'if you will just row me up to Needle point, and call for me again in the evening, I'll give you a dollar.'"

"And she?" said Joyce.

"Rowed me up, of course. I wish you could have seen the way in which she handled the oars. But it was Dolph, the tobacco-soaked old boatman, who called for me at sunset. 'Why didn't you send your daughter?' says I. 'It wasn't my darter,' says he; 'it was Miss Perry.' Well, then, I met her at the picnic. We talked together half the evening. She is as beautiful as she is graceful, and as intelligent as she is beautiful."

"Did you apologize?" asked Joyce.

"Of course I apologized," said Capt. Kenneth. "And we had a good laugh over it. She had been after waterlilies, she said. She paints 'em in water colors. I am to have one when they are finished. Joyce, you must know her. She is a beauty. And she dances like a sylph, and sings like Patti, and—"

"Nonsense!" said Joyce. "A farmer's daughter, seen through the big end of the opera glass! You were always a victim to delusions, Kenneth."

"My dear Joyce, I assure you—"

"Children, children!" remonstrated Mrs. Renwick, piteously. "do have a little common sense. Kenneth, you know you ought not to talk. Joyce, don't you hear how hoarse your brother is? If pneumonia should set in after this exposure—"

Capt. Renwick made an expressive grimace. Joyce looked a little apprehensive.

"Mamma," said she, "you always were a pessimist. It's only a cold that ails Kenneth."

"But it is settling on his lungs, my dear," said Mrs. Renwick, plaintively. "And out here in the wilderness there isn't even a drug store short of fifteen miles. Oh, dear! Oh, dear! why did I ever allow myself to be persuaded to come to the Adirondacks?"

"The scenery, mamma!" said Joyce, soothingly.

"But one can't eat and drink scenery. And this woman knows absolutely nothing about omelettes and French coffee, and she never broiled a beefsteak in her life until I showed her how. As for her soups, they are simply uneatable. And the beds are as hard as the nether millstone, and the mosquitoes are unendurable!"

"All these are trivial annoyances," said Capt. Renwick, skillfully contriving to tip over the catnip tea. "To me the Adirondacks are the garden of the world! I shall never be willing to go anywhere else in the summer. And she says it is even finer here in the winter, with the trifling exception of a little solitude."

"Kenneth," cried his mother, in agonized accents, "you must not talk!"

"My dearest mother, I am all right if you only won't fret!" declared the prodigal son.

But Capt. Renwick's eyes were unnaturally bright, the hot flush of fever burned on his cheek, and his breathing was alternately hurried and laborious.

It was undoubtedly the fact that he had taken a severe cold during the camping-out expedition from which he had just returned, and that this cold had been proof, so far, at least, against all the remedies Mrs. Renwick had used.

"Oh dear! oh dear!" sighed the mother. "Why doesn't the doctor come? Joyce, look out of the window! See if there are any signs of him."

"The doctor!" ejaculated Capt. Renwick, raising himself on one elbow among his pillows. "You don't say you have sent for a doctor?"

"Why, of course I have!" said Mrs. Renwick—"for Dr. Barton, from Nylesburg."

"A snuff-taking old fiend who will dose me with calomel, and experiment on me with every one of the hundred-year-old drugs in his saddle bags!" cried the captain. "I won't see him!"

"Dear Kenneth!" pleaded Joyce.

"My son!" sobbed Mrs. Renwick.

"No!" ejaculated Kenneth. "I'll be hanged if I do! I despise doctors, anyway! And what sort of a medical man do you imagine would perch himself up here on the boughs of these everlasting pines?"

"Kenneth, you must see him!" said Mrs. Renwick.

"Mother, I won't," stoutly declared the rebel.

"But what will he think?"

"What he pleases. It will matter little to you or me what he thinks," said Kenneth. "All I know is that he shan't cross this threshold. Give him his fee and tell him to go!"

Mrs. Renwick and Joyce looked despairingly at each other. Undoubtedly the captain was master of the situation. If he chose to set the doctor and his gallipots at defiance, what was to be done?

At that moment, however, there was a slight rustle downstairs.

"The doctor has come!" cried Joyce, excitedly, "with such a pretty little horse and phaeton. Oh, Ken, I'm sure he isn't old, and he doesn't take snuff. Oh, I'm so sorry I didn't catch a glimpse of him."

"He has come, has he?" said the captain. "Then tell him to go about his business."

Mrs. Ogden, the fat landlady, put in her head at this juncture.

"Please, mem, the doctor," said she.

"Tell him—" hoarsely shouted Kenneth, flinging the pillows right and left.

But before he could complete his sentence the door opened and a tall young lady, in a blue cloth ulster and a pretty plumed hat, came in, with a flat morocco case in her hand.

"Miss Perry!" he exclaimed, staring at her from the sofa, with a face suddenly lighted into new brightness and enthusiasm. "How kind of you to remember me! You are acquainted with my mother, are you not? Joyce, this is Miss Perry."

The tall young lady looked composedly around her.

"I am sorry to hear of your illness, Capt. Renwick," said she. "We must see what we can do for you."

"But," added Kenneth, stretching his neck to get a look at the door, which was still slightly ajar, "where is the doctor? They told me he was coming up."

The beautiful lady sat down and gently took Kenneth Renwick's wrist in her delicate fingers.

"I am the doctor," said she. "Have the goodness to remain quite still for a few moments while I ascertain the pulse and temperature."

Capt. Renwick was struck dumb. An electric thrill seemed to dart through every pulse and vein. But Joyce's eyes sparkled, and the dimples came out around her mouth.

"I AM THE DOCTOR."

"You!" she cried. "A doctor?"

Dr. Barton nodded, still intent on the enamelled face of her watch.

"Pernelia Barton. They call me Perry for short. Capt. Renwick always called me Miss Perry. I don't believe he knew I had any other name."

"And you are really a doctor?" said Joyce. "Oh, Kenneth, how fortunate!"

Dr. Barton examined her patient's tongue, listened at his lungs, and made some obscure hieroglyphics in her note-book. Then she measured out some gray powders in infinitesimal papers, and left her directions in the most business-like way in the world.

"I shall look in again this evening," she said. "It seems to be nothing more than a severe cold. But I do not intend that it shall gain any headway."

"I put myself entirely in your charge," said Capt. Renwick, with a contented air. "I'm perfectly certain that I shall get well."

"I thought you were going to send the doctor about his business," maliciously whispered Joyce.

"But I didn't know what sort of a doctor it was," retorted the captain.

Pneumonia did not set in after all. Dr. Barton proved a true prophet, and soon dispelled the heavy cold. But Capt. Renwick had yet another ailment —in the region of the heart.

"Mother," he said, coaxingly, "wasn't I right? Ain't she lovely?"

"The sweetest girl I ever saw," Mrs. Renwick warmly answered; "and the most talented."

"And if, mother—"

"You will be the most fortunate man in the world," said Mrs. Renwick.

Capt. Renwick made the best use of his time, and, although Dr. Barton's summer vacation was over, she lingered at picnics, and in the pearly shadow of waterlilies he still continued to make many appointments for seeing her; and when he returned to the Seventh artillery he was an engaged man.

"And after the fist of November," he says, "Dr. Barton will be my family physician for life."—Saturday Night.

Messrs. LIPPMAN BROS., Savannah, Ga.: Gentlemen—I have tried your P. P. P. for a disease of the skin, usually known as skin cancer of thirty years' standing, and found great relief; it purifies the blood and removes all irritation from the seat of the disease and prevents any spreading of the sores. I have taken five or six bottles and feel confident that another course will effect a cure. It has also relieved me from indigestion and stomach troubles.

There were two deaths in Jacksonville on the same day last week—both colored people. One was the wife of Dave walker, the other the wife of Jim Whatley. A death in our town is quite a rare occurence, and two in a single day exceedingly so.

The long bridge that spans the gorge near the big spring, has been torn down and a new one built in its stead. The new one is quite strong, and the couples who desire the novelty of standing on the bridge at midnight, need have no fear of its breaking down.

"Many of the citizens of Rainsville Indiana are never without a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house," says Jacob Brown, the leading merchant of the place. This remedy has proven of so much value for colds, croup and whooping cough in children that few mothers who know its worth are willing to be without it.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Norton, of Brookwood, Ala., were in the city on Wednesday, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Bondurant. Mrs. Norton was Miss Grace Myatt, the cousin of Mr. Bondurant, and made many friends in Jacksonville during a visit two years ago. Mr. Norton is a promising young Methodist minister of this Conference.

Mr. Wills was in the Republican office a few days since with some heads of lettuce that are by far the finest specimens of that vegetable that we have seen any where. The variety is what he calls the "sugar loaf," and the seeds were brought by him from Texas several years ago. The heads were ten inches or more in length and about five inches thick. They were compact, and really resembled a cabbage more than lettuce. Mr. Wills informs us that they bleach beautifully and are by far the tenderest and best variety he has ever raised.

One of the most delightful entertainments in Jacksonville for quite awhile, was the breakfast given by Misses Mamie and Addie Alexander to some lady friends, on Monday morning.

The following ladies were present: Mrs. Bondurant; Misses Weems, Crook, Rowan, Williams, Forney, Adams, Frank, Theresa Nisbet, Lane and Burke.

Just before breakfasting, the ladies engaged in target shooting on the lawn. In this contest Miss Frank, by exceptional marksmanship, won first prize, she being closely followed by Misses Weems and Crook, who tied for second place. In shooting off the tie Miss Weems won. The hours after breakfast were employed in the execution of an impromptu musical programme in which each one present took part.

OFFICE OF J. S. ROSAMOND.

MESSRS. LIPPMAN BROS., Savannah, Ga.:

GENTLEMEN—While in San Antonio, Texas last spring I saw your advertisement of P. P. P. in the paper for the cure of rheumatism, and thought I would try a bottle, finding such great relief from it, on my return home had my druggist, Mr. John McClellan to order me a supply. After taking, I think ten bottles, I have not had a pain or ache since, previous to that I suffered for twenty-five (25) years, and could not get the least benefit until I tried P. P. P., and therefore, take pleasure in recommending it to all. Yours truly,

J. S. ROSAMOND.

Minor Happenings of the Week

GATHERED BY THE REPUBLICAN'S ABLE CORPS OF CORRESPONDENTS.

PIEDMONT.

Piedmont is full of visitors who came to witness the commencement exercises of the Seminary.

The commencement sermon was preached on Sunday, in the Cumberland Presbyterian church, by Rev. J. W. Caldwell of Huntsville, and was a most magnificent discourse and an intellectual feast. On Monday night the Primary department gave an entertainment at the Seminary, which was very much enjoyed. Special mention should be made of a recitation by Miss Daisy Harris, a little daughter of Rev. G. D. Harris, which displayed elocutionary talent unusual in one so young. On Tuesday the exercises were made interesting by a debate on "foreign immigration," by music by Miss Walker's class, and declamations by the young men. And the audience was also charmed by a brilliant address, by the gifted young pastor of the Methodist church, Rev. J. W. Bradford. His theme was:—"Hoe your own row," and was a marvel of lofty thought, couched in the most polished language. On Tuesday night the young ladies Lyceum rendered a play called "Rebecca's Triumph," in a very creditable manner.

Today the Literary address will be delivered at the church by Rev. Hines, of Lebanon, Tenn.

To-night Mrs. Little holds an Art Levee, and says it is the best lot of pictures she has ever had to display. I had no idea how many there are, for they hang three deep around the walls of the spacious parlor. It is very evident that only talent, application, and a good teacher could have turned out such a fine lot of work. The exhibit is made from the work of Miss Geneva Johnson, now Art teacher in the North Alabama College at Fort Payne, Mrs. Miller of Gaylesville, Miss Mary Glover, Miss Josie Reed, Emory Faust, George Waring, Miss Mamie Monahan, Miss Mary Hood, Miss Birdie Craig, and Miss Walker. They are in crayon, india ink, pasted and oil, and the larger part are from nature. While they are all lovely I must have space to describe one large canvass, which caused my heart to swell and my eyes to fill when I looked upon it. It is the work of Miss Birdie Craig, a very talented young artist, who is yet a Miss in short dresses and long curls. Upon a chair hangs a coat of "rebel grey," and a faded knit scarf. Against the chair leans a scarlet flag and a sword. Upon a stand lie an old canteen with leathern strap, a roll of confederate bills, a bible with two bullet holes in it, an old razor hone, and an open pocket needle-book. The models were gotten together with difficulty. Gen. "Tige" Anderson kindly lent his coat in which he expects to be buried. The flag is the one presented by Miss Clem Clay (Mrs. Clopton) to Co. G. 3rd. Reg., Ala. Cavalry, at Huntsville when they marched away to the war." The sword which leans against old flag was the property of Captain Oliver Stewart, and has seen service. The razor hone was found on the Manassas battle field; the bible and needle book were carried through the war by H. W. Glover, and in the needle book is to be seen one rusty needle. There is no picture look about it. One seems to see those relics actually lying before him. Every braid, and fold and crease of the coat is there, while the drooping folds of the old battle flag look as though a breeze might lift them.

Mr. T. R. Sparks went with casket and embalming fluid up to Wheeler's Springs this morning, to embalm the remains of Mr. Henry Wilson of Columbiana who went up there this spring in wretched health, and died early this morning.

OXFORD.

It just makes me tired—this everlasting howl of "sound money."

The single gold standard advocates, orators, and newspapers keep up the everlasting din of "sound money." Well who is contending for weavel-eaten, rotten-at-the-heart money? Why did not Gov. Oates say that Alabama was solid for the single gold standard? I'll tell you. It is because he knew that it was not so. He knows well enough that Alabama is for the gold and silver standard just as it was from the foundation of the government down to 1873. He knows that was "sound money."

Gov Oates knows also that when silver is remonetized we will still have sound money. Who do these people expect to fool with their cries of "sound money," any how? Why the veriest fool in the whole of the bi-metalic, free silver throng knows what these people mean.

All, from the least to the greatest, know that they mean gold monometallism. Which makes silver a commodity just like peas, corn, cotton and potatoes. The gold standard, which deprives the farmer, the wage earner, and all people except the married aristocracy of one half of their money. But the people are not fools. They know that by "sound money" is made half money rations.

Listen now for a great ado, since Bryan said at Jackson Miss., a few days ago, that he would not support a single gold standard man if nominated by the next national convention. Bryan is and extremist, and there are extremists on the other side.

Is there a man or a woman or a child that believes that Mr. Cleveland would support a democrat, who was nominated on a platform with a silver plank favoring the free and unlimited coinage at 16 to 1? Not much! Mr. Cleveland and lots of other northern, and New England gold bugs would just step across the line and vote the Republican ticket straight. And let me tell you, they are, heart and soul, with the republican party in the most important issues the people have had to face in the last half century.

Well, they are going to have the opportunity of deserting the democratic party. There will be a silver plank in the next democratic national platform, and it wont be set up edgewise either. It will be laid flat down, and it will be so broad that it cant be straddled, even by a fellow with legs like a pair of tongs—the fellow with long legs and short thighs, bald head and no eyes.

CHOCCOLOCCO.

Last Sabbath we had some fine Sabbath-school talks at harmony, by Mr. S. A. Russell, Dr. Jno. A. Scott, and Hon. Joseph Carthell. There was a large crowd who attended. One who attended, became so much enthused that he started home and forgot his carriage. Dr. Davis can give you any information in regard to who this person was. The Choccolocco Sabbath school cooperated with that of Harmony in the rally.

Miss Brothers, of Cane Creek, is visiting the family of Mr. J. E. Downing.

Miss Nanie Watson, of Weaaers, is visiting Mrs. A. B. Scarbrough.

Mr. Clark Snow, of Oxford has been here selling harrows.

One Wesly Moreland knocked his Father down with a chair a few days ago, and whipped him severely. We dislike to chronicle such things as this, but we think that when a young man acts this way, the world should know it.

WEAVERS.

The battle with Gen. Green continues unabated, and we have a little too much rain to conquer his forces.

The wheat crop is being harvested, and we think the yield will be only moderate, though the recent rise in flour makes home raised wheat look better.

The oat crop promises to be good.

The repairs for the rock crusher were put in last week, and seem to be doing good work, with the exception of the elevator, which gives some trouble.

Dr. B. S. Evans, of White Plains, was in town yesterday.

Mrs. Boyd, of Jacksonville, spent a few days with her daughter, Mrs. Jno. Alexander, this week.

Mrs. Wallace and daughter, of Conyers, Ga., are visiting the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Marston.

Miss Nannie Watson is visiting her Aunt, Mrs. A. B. Scarbrough, of Choccolocco.

Miss Clemmie Weaver, who attended the past session of the S. F. U., is at home.

During the rain storm Tuesday night, a cow and yearling were killed by lightening. They belonged to the Ford family, who reside about one mile west of this place.

The health of our community is fairly good.

The June crop of peaches have ripened sufficiently to afford delicacies for the table.

OXFORD.

We had a good rain last night and this morning vegetation looks as the rose buds of spring time.

Miss Sue Doris repeated her delightful concert Tuesday night and it is not necessary to say that all who were present enjoyed this second performonce of the little folks.

These are red letter days for the Oxford Lake line. Picnics at the Lake are almost a daily occurence, and the electric cars are kept busy carrying the people to and from this delightful resort.

The two story brick building, which is being erected by Capt. Barry, is rapidly nearing completion. It will be a splendid structure when completed and will add much to Oxford's appearance as a business place.

The pupils of Oxford College are very busy getting ready for the commencement exercises which begin the first of next week.

The Calhoun Rifles are having practice drills that they may be ready for the brigade encampment at Mobile the 29th of June.

Sheriff Ed. G. Caldwell was in town this week shaking hands with his friends.

Rev. J. H. Leslie has been conducting a protracted meeting at Oxana for the past week.

Peaches will soon be ripe and then we are going to see our friends who have peach trees.

DE ARMANVILLE.

A refreshing rain fell here Tuesday night. Crops in this section are looking well save where they are in the grass—a few places are badly in the grass.

Prof. Geo. W. Bonner, who has been teaching the past session in Ocalla, Fla., will arrive at home today. His family has been here several weeks.

The Sunday school rally at Harmony church last Sunday, was a grand success. Able speeches were made by Mess. Sam. Russell and Joseph Carthell, and by Rev. John Scott. Harmony Sunday School is one of the best country schools in the state. It is under the superintendency of Mr. Jas. Morris.

The fruit tree agents are again in the land. Fruit is a very uncertain crop in this section, of recent years.

The red bugs are giving fond mothers extra duties. Their presence is felt, not seen.

Miss Celeste Bradfield, sister of Mrs. Jno. P. Story, has been very ill for the past few days.

Farm laborers are scarce here. The idling horde around the cities and towns cannot be induced to come to the country—mostly on account of the "sisters."

LADIGA.

After a long and unavoidable silence, I will give you a few briefs from this place.

Wheat-cutting is now on hand. There is only a tolerably good crop.

The majority of our farmers are working over their crops for the second time. We have had just enough rain and sunshine to make everything grow. Crops are all looking fine. Have heard one farmer say that his cotton had squares on it.

Quite a number of Ladigans went whortleberry hunting last Sunday but as they have promised not to do so again, I will not this time give any names.

J. D. Amberson carried quite a crowd one day last week to gather berries; they found a great many but they were all green.

Mrs. Johnson, with her daughter Mrs. Brown, of Cherokee county, were visitors at Mr. Love Stewrats last week.

Miss Ollie Woodliff, one of Gadsden's most attractive young ladies, and Miss Madge Brewster, of Piedmont, were visiting your correspondent last week.

Our brother P. S. Bedell, of Cherokee, Ga., has been with us most of this week.

E. C. Dobbs, of Piedmont, has been among his friends here this week.

We notice that our DeArmanville correspondent has offerred to furnish teachers for a "school for scandal." Now if there is any one that wants a teacher of that kind, I think they can be well suited here. We have some professionals in that line "to let." We furnish them cheap and with strong recommendations, for they are old hands at the business.

We enjoyed our first peaches today and are indebted to Mrs. Love Stewart for them. They were delightful.

MINK.

We have only one case of sickness in our entire community, and that is not a serious one.

We had a very sad accident to happen here last week. Elder Holden was hoeing in his field when a limb of a tree fell on him, and killed him almost instantly. Brother Holden was an able Baptist preacher, and preached for the church at New Hopewell. The bereaved family have the sympathies of the entire community.

There was quite a novel wedding here Monday. Wm Usry and Miss Crim were the contracting parties, and both walked over to Elder G. S. Boozer's where the marriage took place. After marching over to Brother Boozer's and having the knot tied, the happy couple walked home, the bride leaning on the arm of the groom.

Most every body is up with farm work. Wheat cutting is now engaging the attention of our farmers.

MORRISVILLE

Rev. W. S. Griffin filled his regular appointment at Cane Creek church last Sunday, and preached a very able sermon. His subject was Repentance and the temptation of the Savior.

Farmers are very busy killing grass and other vermine that hinders the growth of their crops.

Oats that were sowed on good ground are looking well. Gardens are doing well and the prospect for something to eat is very good at this time.

Mr. E. A. Womack, the merchant prince of Central Egypt, came up last Sunday and spent some time with his kindred and friends in town. Call again, Alvey, we are always glad to see you.

Many thanks to my Fergusonville friend for the interest he is taking in my future welfare. I will accept his invitation just as soon as convenient to do so, but there seems to be something strange about his corn tasseling so early.

Health in this part of the county is good.

The Discovery Saved His Life.

Mr. G. Caillouette, druggist, Beaversville, Ill., says: "To Dr. King's New Discovery I owe my life. Was taken with LaGrippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but of no avail and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Dsicovery in my store I sent for a bottle and began its use and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. We won't keep store or house without it." Get a free trial at W. B. Abery's drug store. 2

I have on hand now by my stock account about $8,000 worth of goods. Most all of these goods were bought since last October and I shall close them out during the Summer for the money as cheap as you can buy anywhere in this section of country. I wish to sell every article in my house before the fall season preparatory to putting in a complete and an entirely new line of goods. Call for our cash prices. PEYTON ROWAN.

BIMETALLISM.

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING IN ANNISTON.

SPEECHES BY HON. J. H. BANKHEAD AND PERCY CLARK.

The Calhoun County Bimetallic Club Organized and Officers Elected.

On last Saturday afternoon a large number of Calhoun's citizens gathered in the Noble Street opera house, in the city of Anniston, to hear the speeches on the silver question, that had been announced in the newspapers for two or three days previous.

Notwithstanding the unseasonable hour—2:30 p. m.—and the intensely hot weather, three hundred listeners were present, and if the close attention and the frequent bursts of applause with which they greeted the speakers signified any thing, it was that the entire audience was in favor of the restoration of the white metal to the place as a primary money—the place it occupied until the demonetization act of 1873.

Mr. S. B. Trapp, one of the leading wholesale merchants of Alabama, and a man whom every one recognizes as one of the sterling democrats of the state, acted as chairman, and in addressing the meeting, prior to introducing the speakers, he said among other things, that it had recently been said, and by those who pretended to be in position to know, that the so called silver craze which was agitating Alabama and the South, would soon pass by and be lost in oblivion; that the leaders in the movement were disappointed and disgruntled politicians. Said Mr. Trapp: "Let those who really harbor such opinions as these continue to fan themselves into this sleep of ignorant contentment and imagined security. But let me say to you, my fellow citizens, that this great movement of the American people which they denominate a craze, is a struggle for the liberties of the constitution, and is as far-reaching as the very bounds of this great union of American States. Neither are its leaders politicians. In the front rank of this great movement are public men, farmers, merchants, laborers, all standing shoulder to shoulder. The struggle will not end until the free and unlimited coinage of silver is restored. I might say further that there will be no straddling by the democratic party in the future. The next national platform will embrace a financial plank that will read what it means, and mean what it reads, and on this platform will the hosts of democracy march to victory."

Mr. Trapp then introduced as the first speaker, Mr. Percy Clark, a young Alabamian, who for several years has been connected with the leading democratic papers of Washington.

Mr. Clark, in the beginning of his address paid a beautiful tribute to old Calhoun, the parent of John Pelham, of Wm Henry Forney, of John T. Morgan. He then addressed himself to the great question of the day. The speaker declared that the free and unlimited coinage of silver was democracy, that gold monometallism was republicanism; the one struggling to alleviate the condition of the common people, the other attempting to bind about their wrists and ankles the fetters of accumulated debts. He quoted from numerous democratic speakers in support of this proposition and especially from Mr. Carlisle, who has recently and suddenly changed front on this all-important question. Mr. Clark attacked the newspapers of the south that had allowed themselves to be influenced by the administration and by the gold of New York, and had deserted the cause for which they once professed undying fealty. He branded them as traitors, and said that the rapid decrease in their circulation showed but too plainly, that the people had lost confidence in them. Mr. Clark spoke for thirty minutes when he gave way to Hon. Jno. H. Bankhead, congressman from the sixth district.

Capt Bankhead was happily introduced by Mr. Trapp, and as he came to the front of the stage, a round of applause broke from the audience, which gave him assurances that his fight for silver in congress was thoroughly appreciated by the people of Calhoun county.

Captain Bankhead spoke for two hours. His speech was as strong and powerful a presentation of the silver question, and as complete an overthrow of the sophistries of gold-bugism as has been heard in Alabama. It was logical, it was fair, it was without passion, and so earnest withal, that at the conclusion of almost every sentence there came a generous response from his hearers. One by one, the distinguished speaker took up the arguments of the monometallists, and after tearing from them the attractive garments which disguised them, in their nakedness he held them up before his eager listeners as illustrations of rankest deception. He asked that any present who desired to have him explain any point, propound the question, as it would not worry him, but rather afford him pleasure. After having spoken an hour and a half, the speaker said that he would close but there were one or two points he desired to touch on, and the audience cried to him to continue as they would be glad to listen for hours. We regret that we cannot publish Capt. Bankhead's speech. We will soon have him with us again in Calhoun, and we desire to ask every voter in the county to make it a point to hear him.

After the speaking Mr. J. J. Willet announced that it was the desire of a number to form a bimetallic club. Capt James Crook, of Jacksonville, was elected president, and Mr. Archibald Henderson was elected secretary. The club was called the Calhoun County Bimetallic Club, and the secretary was authorized to prepare blanks of membership and send them all over the county. At the next meeting of the club it is expected that there will be more than five hundred members.

A committee was appointed to select delegates to the Memphis convention, and this committee reports the following names:

J. J. Willet, E. E. G. Roberts, Arch Henderson, J. L. Simpson, D. T. Goodwin, J. W. Lapsley, Frank Nelson, Jr., John Pelham, John M. Caldwell, J. S Mooring, W. L. McCaa, J. L. White, T. R. Unfair and Untrue

WAS THE ADVERTISER'S REPORT

OF THE MEETING IN ANNISTON IN BEHALF OF BIMETALLISM.

Prominent Annistonians are Indignant, and Give the Facts in Reference to the Meeting.

For many months it has been well known that statements in the Montgomery Advertiser on the question of the free coinage of silver cannot be relied upon.

The report which it contained in reference to the the meeting held in Anniston last Saturday in behalf of bimetallism was not an exception to its usually unfair and untrue reports. It was so manifestly untrue that a number of prominent Anniston gentlemen expressed their indignation in the following special sent the Birmingham State:

Anniston, June 10.—(Special.)—The citizens of Anniston and Calhoun county are justly indignant over a report of Saturday's meeting in behalf of bimetallism, that appeared in the Montgomery Advertiser and other publications that have strings tied to them. The paper mentioned has been very successful in misrepresenting, not only the sentiments of this section, but of the entire state, and the outlook now is that the last effort to place Calhoun county in a false light before the world will keep the mails from being burdened with any more Advertisers in this direction. This is the report complained of:

IN ANNISTON.

Clark and Bankhead Address a Mixed Meeting.

Anniston, June 8.—(Special.)—Percy Clark, of Selma, and Hon. J. H. Bankhead, of Fayette, spoke in advocacy of the independent, free and unlimited coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1 to a small audience in the opera house here this afternoon. Mr. Clark spoke about thirty minutes, after being introduced by Mr. S. B. Trapp, and Mr. Bankhead followed in a two hours speech. The audience comprised a great many populists and negro republicans, and a score or more of gold standard men who attended on account of the prominence of one of the speakers. After the speech-making, the bimettallic club of Calhoun county was formed, with Capt. James Crook, of Jacksonville, as president, and Archibald Henderson, of this city, as secretary and treasurer. A membership of seventy was secured. The club appointed a committee to select delegates to the Memphis free silver convention.

Your correspondent called on the leading merchants, lawyers, bankers and capitalist today, and below will be found their feelings in regard to the publication, and which I am satisfied voices the sentiment of the entire county.

Mr J. J. Willett, one of Alabama's foremost attorneys, said: "The article in the Advertiser is wholly misleading. The meeting was composed entirely of the representatives of Anniston's best interests: there were present both wholesale and retail merchants and other business men, and four-fifths of the audience were silver democrats."

Mr. John S. Mooring, president, of the Anniston National Bank, asked to be recorded as follows: "I echo what Mr. Willett says, except I wish to add that the Advertiser's article is not only misleading but it is untrue. The audience was composed of men who are equal to any gold standard representative both in intelect, character and standing."

Mr. S. B. Trapp, one of the most prominent wholesale grocers in Alabama, said: "The utterance of the Advertiser is characteristic of the paper in its endeavor to mislead and bias the minds of people elsewhere. The meeting was composed of four-fifths bimetallists that favor 16 to 1 ratio, and the formation of the club after the meeting adjourned, clearly shows the nature, character and judgement of the people that composed the meeting."

In reply to a request for his opinion, Mr. D. T. Goodwin, chairman of the democratic executive committee of Calhoun county, answered:

"The report furnished the Advertiser is unfair and unjust and does not correctly represent the meeting. It was composed of 250 to 300 of the representative citizens of Anniston a few gentlemen of the country who were populists, six negroes and six gold standard men. If it had not been Saturday the attendance would have been much larger and the present membership of the club twice what it now is."

Mr. Frank Nelson, president of the Bank of Anniston, said: "I was present at the opera house meeting and although I did not know the politics of each person in the audience, yet I consider it was made up of the best of Anniston's citizens. The article in the Advertiser is untrue and wholly uncalled for."

Hon. R. B. Kelly, representative of this county, said: "I consider the Advertiser's report as very unjust to our city. The meeting was composed of representative men of this county and it was a large meeting, considering the short notice it was gotten up on."

The expressions quoted above, in addition to the prominent men who compose the bimetallic club among whom are Hon. James Crook, of Jacksonville, who was prominently mentioned as a democratic candidate for governor a few years ago; Hon. Emmett Crook, judge of probate; Judge Lapsley, of Anniston city court; Mr. R. P. Thomason, wholesale grocer; Mr. John M. Caldwell, attorney; Mr. A. W. Bell, wholesale grocer; and others equally as prominent, will satisfy those who have read the offensive article that it does not reflect things as they really exist in Anniston and Calhoun county.

ELECTION OF FACULTY

OF JACKSONVILLE NORMAL SCHOOL.

The Trustees Select Three Teachers Who are Thoroughly Competent.

The trustees of the State Normal School at Jacksonville met last Tuesday and elected Profs. Forney, Wright and Daugette to take charge of this school for the next session, with the understanding that they are to select such other teachers as they deem necessary to make a success of the school.

All three of the gentlemen selected taught in the normal school here during its last session, and are recognized as teachers the equal of any in Alabama.

Profs. Forney and Wright are graduates of the State University of Alabama, and Prof. Daugette of the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Alabama.

The writer has had a conversation with Profs. Forney, Wright and Daugette since their election, and we are confident that from the plans they will inaugurate, and the efforts they propose to put forth, that they will make a grander success of the school than it has ever yet achieved.

It is their purpose to select at once a thoroughly competent lady teacher to take charge of the primary department, and to add other teachers as the attendance requires.

They will at once commence negotiations to secure a teacher who can teach both vocal and instrumental music to the satisfaction of all patrons of the school.

They hope to be able to make the school so acceptable that it will secure the attendance of every child of school age in and around Jacksonville, and that it will draw a a larger number of boarding pupils than ever before.

They will advertise the school thoroughly all through this section of Alabama by sending out catalogue, circulars and other literature, and by a personal canvass. They propose to see in person all the young men in this and adjoining counties whom they think could be induced to come here and enter school.

This school should be the pride of every person in Jacksonville, and while these teachers are putting forth renewed efforts to build up the school, we, as citizens, should go to work enthusiastically and do all in our power to make the attendance next session double what it has been the past session.

Now is the time to work, and no man in Jacksonville can afford to lag or be indifferent. We must make a united effort to have an attendance next session of not less than three hundred.

THE REPUBLICAN.

Established in 1837, is the OFFICIAL JOURNAL of Calhoun, one of the largest and wealthiest counties in Alabama, and in which are located the towns of Jacksonville, Anniston, Oxford, Oxanna and Piedmont.

CIRCULATION.

It has a larger guaranteed county circulation in Calhoun than any other paper.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The subscribers of the REPUBLICAN are the best people in the county,—a class of people with whom it pays to advertise. Than it there is no better advertising medium in this section of Alabama.

THE REPUBLICAN.

ENGLAND buys of us each year $500,000,000 of our products. We buy of England $125,000,000. Why remain a debtor to her.

TEN more battallions of troops are being sent over to whip the little bands of rebels in Cuba. Spain's bills will foot up a nice little sum.

THE President has appointed Attorney General Olney secretary of state, and Judson Harmon, of Cincinnati, as attorney general.

THE lines are being drawn. Kentucky and Ohio republicans declare for gold monometallism. Illinois and Iowa democrats declare for bimetalism at 16 to 1. The platforms for 1896 are being built now.

LET every man in Calhoun county who believes in the free and unlimited coinage of both silver and gold have his name enrolled as a member of the Calhoun County Bimetallic Club. Let Calhoun go to the State convention, to be called at an early date, with the largest club in the State.

THE farmer is in favor of the free coinage of silver because it means higher prices for his products. The laborer is in favor of the free coinage of silver because it means more money and better pay. The money lender is in favor of the single gold standard because it increases the purchasing power of his dollar and lessens the value of all property and products.

A WEDDING is announced between Miss Rockfeller, daughter of oil magnate, and Mr. McCormick, son of the reaper and mower manufacturer. The share of Miss Rockefeller in her father's estate is estimated to be thirty-five millions. Mr. McCormick is one of the wealthiest young men in the country. This is better than Miss Gonid did. Miss Rockfeller believes in patronizing home industry, and takes, instead of a titled count, a machinery manufacturer of Chicago.

FORAKER and his forces whipped out, most completely the Billy McKinley—John Sherman power in Ohio on May, 29. Bushnell, a life long friend and supporter of Foraker, was nominated for Governor.

The convention declared for monometallism which it called by the misnomer, "sound money, and favored protective tariff. It is now in order for the democrats to come out imphatically for bimetallism and a tariff for revenue and elect a democratic Governor in Ohio.

THE Montgomery Advertiser is very much worried about Congressman Bankhead. It wants to know why he is making speeches over Alabama in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of silver. Bankhead is allright. He is simply one of the old fashioned Democrats. He was in favor of the free coinage of both gold and silver in 1873, in 1883, in 1893, and is still holding fast to the Democratic faith as handed down by the fathers, and is only making a little missionary tour over Alabama to urge Democrats to hold out faithful to the end, and to not bow down to the golden calf which is being held out before them.

Here is the thing which worries the Advertiser: It knows Col. Bankhead to be one of the best organizers and schrewdest politicians in the State, and his active work in favor of the free coinage of silver is very alarming to the old lady.

Gladstone's Prophesy.

The United States will become what we are now, the head servant in the great household of the world, the employer of all employed; because her service will be the most and the ablest."

These are the words of Wm. E. Gladstone, the great English premier and statesman. Recognizing the wonderful resources of our country, noting the push and vim characteristic of Americans, he paid this glorious tribute to the United States and painted this brilliant picture of her future. It has been many years ago since Mr. Gladstone gave utterance to these words. It has been long enough for us to have taken the position as "head servant," as the "employer of all employed." Have we attained it? To answer no, would be superfluous. Every American citizen who takes the time to think, or has the patience to investigate, realizes that England still "rules the wave," and that she is playing no insignificant part in controlling the destinies of this republic.

Is it that Mr. Gladstone was at fault? Can it be that he overestimated the powers of the United States, and that in his admiration of our system of government, and respect for our people, he drew too freely upon his imagination? Americans, in whose bosom there remains a spark of national love are ill prepared to accept this view. The truth is it would be a false conclusion. All that this great Englishman has said of us would ere this have taken place but for causes with which he was not familiar. When Mr. Gladstone gave expression to this compliment to American thrift, industry and natural resources he was looking backward to the days when, as thirteen colonies we had risen against English oppression, and under the leadership of Washington, and inspired by the such men as Patrick Henry had refused to "lie supinely on our backs while the enemy bound us hand and foot." Mr. Gladstone had in view the pluck, and bravery, and intelligence and independence of the true American, the same pluck and the same intelligence that had enabled him to seize the undeveloped resources of America, and with only three millions of people defeat the soldiers of England and her foreign allies. He did not know, he could not foresee that what England had failed to do in war she would accomplish in peace, that where the sword failed, corruption would win. He could not foretell that, influenced by England, American statesmen like Sherman and his bond of pirates of 1873, would attempt to scuttle the ship of state, and make the proudest republic of the world the servant of a once defeated and humbled monarchy. Yet this has taken place. Through the treachery and perfidy of her own sons. America bows today in shame before England who, less than a century ago, and for the second time, begged for peace.

In direct violation of the intention of the founders of our financial system, and by a trick so dark and filthy that it smacked of hell, the demonetization act of 1873 was pressed. Even the president of the United States, who signed the bill, confessed that he did not understand its import or he would never have signed it. Many congressmen who voted for it, have since admitted that they did not comprehend its powers, and that it came to them by such means, and through such routes, as to completely disquise its meaning, and to put them off guard. Like a pirate vessel, with guns concealed, and flying false colors, it sailed through the snares and between the barriers which our fathers had erected against treachery, and took a position from whence its guns could bombard the very citadel of American prosperity.

In vain do the aiders and abetters in this vile outrage, at this late day, when its effects have proven more disastrous than they expected, attempt to make defense of their crime. By arguments as "false as dicers oaths" they try to make the people believe that the murder of silver was a blessing to the country. By a wicked distortion of the truth and a malignant perversion of facts do they desire to strengthen their arguments.

But the day of reckoning has come. Lured by seductive promises, the American people have followed to the brink destruction itself. They are now looking for relief and listening to the words of Gladstone, they realize that instead of being the "head servant of the world, the employer of all employed," they are but menials, and that, thus far, this proud destiny has been denied their country. In looking for its cause, they find none, save the financial legislation of 1873, with its favoritism for the rich and its oppression of the poor: "Ill fares the land, to hastening ills a prey,
Where wealth accumulates, and men decay;
Princes and lords may flourish, or may fade;
A breath can make them as a breath has made;
But a bold peasantry, their country's pride,
When once cut off, can never be supplied."

Conscious of the truth of these beautiful lines from Goldsmith, the people are resolved to return to the principles of their fathers. The ballot yet remains, and it will be used to restore a safe currency, and to shake from the shoulders of American industry the foul clutch of English influence.

Wilson vs Oates.

Postmaster General Willson, who delivered the annual commencement address before the students of the University at Oxford, Miss., on June, 4, while speaking on the theme American citizenship,' said: "I long to see the south again in national leadership," and in response to this lofty sentiment he received enthusiastic applause.

How different, the desires of Mr. Wilson—a northern man by birth and education, and Governor Oates, of Alabama—a southern man by birth, by rearing, by education, and the recipient of southern honors! Mr. Oates does not favor a southern man for the presidency, because he thinks that the south has no son worthy of so exalted a station. Why not worthy? Because, he says, if elected he would be forever pandering to northern influence in order to insure a reelection. Mr. Wilson, since his removal to West Virginia, and his election to congress, where he has been thrown every day, with southern men, has learned to regard them as the salt of the earth, the peers of any race that ever existed. In his admiration for them he gave voice to the noble sentiment just quoted.

Aside from the governor of Alabama, he will find few men in the south who differ from him. He can find thousands to cheer his words, and thousands who are at a loss to understand the recent expressions of Governor Oates.

We would not rashly or unjustly criticize the governor. But we were born in the south, and from the day that the first history of the United States with every page emblazoned with deeds of southern men, ay, earlier than that: when at our mother's knee, we listened to the stories of Washington, and Jefferson, of Sumter, and other patriotic men of the south who gave themselves and their all to the cause of American independence, we came to regard the south as the very womb from which greatness is born.

Gov. Oates may be correct: but if he is, history has lied.

ON May the 30th, in the great city of Chicago, one of the most remarkable incidents of this century took place.

During the bloody days of 1862-65, the United States government established a prison, know as Camp Douglas, where southern captives were confined. Unused to the severe winters of that section, six thousand confederates died in prison and were buried near the city of Chicago. For thirty years they have slept there, and the busy world around them has paid little heed to their resting place. A short time ago, southern men began the collection of a fund for the erection of a monument to these dead soldiers, and on May 30th, it was dedicated under the auspices of veterans who wore the blue and the gray.

From different sections of the south, car loads of flowers had been sent with which to decorate the graves, and old soldiers, accompanied by many of the south's fairest daughters, were present to take part in the exercises. Union veterans also, with their daughters, met the southerners there, and, thirty years after the close of one of the most disastrous and bloody civil wars in the history of the world, veterans who opposed each other on the field of battle, knelt over the graves, to do honor to the southern dead.

It was a most imposing scene, and the accounts of it as published by the press of the country, have called forth expressions of gratitude from every section, that the war is indeed ended, and that the mission of the brave, true, noble veteran—whether union or confederate—is "to heal dissention and to foster peace."

May those weak, vindictive, narrow minded men, such as Bantelle, who have dared lift a voice against the performance of this beautiful ceremony, be forever damned in the estimation—not only of this generation—but of generations yet to come.

A BIMETALLIC CONVENTION

The following call signed by well-known Democrats,—men who are as loyal to the Democratic party as any men in Alabama,—is in the eyes of the Montgomery Advertiser something fearfully dangerous. The Advertiser says "there is no wisdom or propriety in it; there is great danger apparent from it; it can possibly do no good; it is calculated to result in great harm:"

Headquarters of Alabama Democratic Silver Club, Birmingham, Ala., June 6, 1895.

The undersigned have been requested by the Alabama Democratic Silver Club of Birmingham to communicate with Democrats in other counties of the State and urge the formation of clubs in each county.

It is expected that when these clubs are organized a consultation will be had and a State convention called to further the views entertained by Democrats who believe in free coinage. We desire to ask your co-operation, and suggest that you confer with Democrats in your county and take immediate steps to organize clubs. It is expected that these organizations will be so complete in the next thirty days that further action may, by conference and joint agreement, be had.

So soon as any club is organized we will thank you to send the names and postoffice addresses of the officers thereof.

M. A. Mason, Chairman; Joseph F. Johnston, S. W. John, W. P. Pinckard, Oscar W. Underwood, J. F. B. Jackson, Robert J. Lowe, Secretary.

We have no idea that the Advertiser can see any wisdom or propriety in this call. It is true that from the Advertiser's standpoint there is great danger apparent from it. From a thorough organization of the Democrats in Alabama who favor the free and unlimited coinage of silver there is great danger that no gold standard man will be elected to any office next year by the Democrats of Alabama. In this way it is calculated to result in great harm to the political fortunes of the gold men.

But the men in Alabama who believe in bimetallism—the coinage of both gold and silver—are going to organize thoroughly, and this organizaton will unquestionably result in the overthrow of men who are making an effort to destroy one half the primary money of this country.

The people are aroused on this question as never before, and they will no longer remain silent and inactive.

ONE of Calhoun's most prominent Democrats in writing us says: "The REPUBLICAN contains more original matter, and is decidedly the best weekly in this section of Alabama."

This, and similar expressions which come to us from all sections of Calhoun county, are greatly appreciated.

Since the Republican has been under its present management, we have labored hard to furnish the people of Calhoun county a local paper of which they would feel proud, and appreciate sufficiently to accord it a cheerful support.

We, from week to week, by the aid of our very superior corps of county correspondents, have given all the news of Calhoun county. In addition to this, we have also given the general news of importance. The amount of matter which we have had put in type from week to week has been done at considerable expense, and while to date we have not made a fortune, yet the subscription and advertising patronage has had a steady growth, and by the time the paper has been under its present management for twelve months, we hope to have it on a paying basis. It has done better than we had a reason to hope when we took charge of it last August, and we have every reason to believe that it will continue to grow in public favor, and that its subscription list and advertising patronage will continue to increase.

It is now well known to be the paper through which the people in every section of Calhoun county can be reached, and every day is being more appreciated by advertisers. It is to day in Calhoun county the paper of the people, and in order to reach the people, advertisers must get into its columns.

While it always becomes necessary to cut down the expense of a newspaper during the summer, we shall attempt to reduce the cost of getting out the REPUBLICAN so as that it will not be done at the expense of its readers. We propose to pull off our coats and work the harder, and hold the paper up to its present size and continue to give its usual amount of reading matter.

In the mean time, we hope our friends over the county will continue to send in new subscribers, and that our advertisers will remain with us during the dull season, and thus aid in building up a first class weekly in the county.

LAST fall during the congressional election when a number of the men who belong to the Peoples party were active in their support of republican candidates for congress the REPUBLICAN took the position that nothing political could be more inconsistent than for the populists to support men who had been life-long republicans, and who still advocated the principles of the republican party; which principles are directly antagonistic to the principles which the peoples party advocates.

But our argument was met on all sides by populists that they would go to any extent to condemn the frauds which had been committed by the Democratic party in Alabama.

To this we replied, that it was not possible for the Democratic party, or any other party, to be guilty of more outrageous frauds in the management of elections than had the republican party in the past.

We are glad to notice that the leading populists of the state now see this question as the REPUBLICAN saw it last fall.

The leading populist papers not only oppose a fusion with the republicans in next years election, but take the same position the REPUBLICAN took last fall as to the frauds which have been committed by the republican party when it had an opportunity.

The Peoples Tribune, Capt. Kolb's paper, in opposing a fusion with the republicans next year, and in answer to a suggestion from H. W. Williamson that the populists should unite with the republicans in order to secure fair elections, says:

"There is no necessity to go outside for candidates for any office the party has to bestow. If Senator Williamson will remember aright, Hayes, Republican, was seated but not elected President. Going back from that tragedy in our history, he will find nothing in Alabama politics to build up a phantasy on that the Republican party has fewer sins than the "organized" Democracy standing against it on the score of fair elections. Corruption in both old parties is the compelling motive of the Peoples Party."

THE New York World has asked foreign Ministers of finance for the views of their countries on bimetallism. In response, the Russian minister said that Russia felt no present interest in the matter.

The German referred the World to the recent speeches in the reichstag, when the resolution favoring bimetallism was passed. Holland favors a conference. So does Belgium. The finance Minister of Spain thinks that country would second any effort of the United States to bring about a conference.

And so it stands. The whole of Europe, save only England, waiting for bimetallism, and all ready to aid in silvers restoration to its time honored position as a primary money. Who are they waiting on? The United States, of course, whom they followed in demonetizing that metal. What is the United States doing? Waiting for some of the other countries to lead.

She ought not to wait. The position of leader in all enterprises or reforms that will have a tendency to ameliorate the condition of humanity, belongs of right to our country. With the world waiting for us to take the lead, why do we halt or even hesitate. It is but an act of justice to the people that country should hasten to undo the wrong 1873. And it should be borne in mind that "justice delayed is justice denied."

SOME days ago the State contained an editorial in which it said:—It is important that all factions of white voters at the South should come together for the preservation of white rule and good government. If we can find common and honorable ground upon which all can stand it is certain that the great body of people would unite and make common cause, leaving all questions of distribution or offices to be determined by primary elections within party lines.

The Montgomery Advertiser attacks this utterance of the State in a most vicious manner, and leaves the impression that it, the Advertiser, does not desire to see the white voters of the south again together.

For once the Advertiser may justly ask the book keeper to credit it with telling the truth. It does not desire harmony in the South. When peace comes, the occupation of that journal is gone. It has ever been a fomenter of strife, a sower of discord, a murderer of friendships.

This is the carrion upon which it exists. Nothing else is palatable. Nothing else will support it.

THE "sound money" convention at Memphis gave orders for the gold standard men to form leagues all over the south. We are patiently waiting to hear the Montgomery Advertiser denounce that convention for giving out such an order in the same manner as it did the proposition to organize silver leagues in Alabama.

Does not the Advertiser think these gold leagues would be as great enemies to the Democratic party as the sub alliances of which it has so much to say?

Or does it think the silver leagues would be all wrong and the gold leagues all right? No doubt but it sees them in this light, as it has denounced the proposition to organize the one and not the other.

THE shooting of the governor general of Madrid by Colonel Clavijdio, a crazy officer, was an unfortunate affair, but the punishment of the assailant was revolting butchery. The day after the shooting, Clavidjo was court marshalled and condemned to be shot. He was driven to the execution grounds, a squad of soldiers drawn up, and the order to fire given. Three balls struck him and he fell, but giving some evidence of life, the soldiers were ordered to shoot again, and then as the dying man lay on the ground in death convulsions, the squad was ordered to fire a third time. THE Montgomery Advertiser and a few other papers in the state which have turned a somersault on the silver question, try to make it appear that to advocate the free and unlimited coinage of silver is to advocate the populist doctrine. If so, then every paper in Alabama must plead guilty to advocating a doctrine of the populists within the last three years,—the Montgomery Advertiser included.

The Democratic State convention of Alabama will also have to plead guilty to the charge of inserting a populist plank in its platform.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. is on every wrapper.

A SCHEMING SCOUNDREL.

BY W. J. LAMPTON.

The fact that I was fifty years old never occurred to me at all. Or if it did it was merely to make me proud of myself that I had run the gantlet of half a century and didn't show a scratch. At least, I didn't see any, though a friend of mine—one of those fellows who go about among their acquaintances doing everything they can to make truth odious—had a habit of telling me every day or two that a man of fifty was scarcely as "chipper" as a man of thirty, whatever he might think about it himself.

In addition to my fifty years I was (which was not counted against me by those persons best able to analyze true graces of character) rich. Not a multimillionaire, perhaps, but enough to make a bachelor very comfortable, not to say luxurious. My business was easy, and I had no help to bother after, except a clerk or private secretary, as it sounded more elaborate to call him, and a young woman who manipulated the typewriter in my office. Concerning these two persons I have considerable to say.

My private secretary, whose name was Jeremy Kilton, was without any exception the most modest and ladylike young man I ever met. He had come to my service highly recommended by friends of mine in the country, and though he had been with me for seven years in town, he never came into the office of a morning that I was not reminded of the green fields and the running brooks and that sort of thing, indigenous to all traditions of the rural neighborhood. He was only about ten years younger than I was, and I have many times sat watching him plodding away at his desk, silent as a sphinx and faithful as a fanatic, and wondered why it was that he should be as he was, and I as I was. I with the money, and he with the numberless good qualities that would be an ornament to wealth, even though he lacked in that polish which wealth seems to demand.

But I paid him a good salary, for I could afford to, and his twenty-five hundred a year appeared to be almost as satisfactory to him as my twenty-five thousand was to me.

Yet he wasn't half the man I was in youth and love of life, and I used to twit him about his advancing years, and tried to get him to go and call on the ladies with me. By all that is lovely, you should have seen him the first time I asked him to go with me to call on a particularly bright and interesting young woman I knew, and whom he had met on one occasion when she had come to my office with her mother to see about a piece of property the mother wanted to buy. The girl had flashed her brilliant eyes on Jeremy, out of pure mischief, because I had told her of his diffidence, and she wanted to make him feel as uncomfortable as she could, and for a minute or two I was fearful that I would lose my valued servant, so evident was his desire to incontinently run away. He blushed two or three colors, and stammered so when he tried to talk to her that I thought he would get his tongue twisted around his teeth, and in a moment of confusion would bite it off. When she had gone, I asked him how he would like to go up and call some evening, and he showed signs at once of hysteria. Then I told him if he would not do that, I would send him up to the house next day with the papers for the mother and daughter to examine and sign, and, though he said no word and bowed in humble submission to my will, I felt so sorry for him that I took them up myself.

And here, I may say that a little thing like a woman never had the least effect on me. At least, in respect of giving me the panicky feeling that overtook Jeremy every time a woman came in sight. He was a bachelor, of course, for how could a man of his sheeplike courage be anything else? He couldn't, and Jeremy was a living example of it. Even the young woman who manipulated the typewriter was a source of discomfort to Jeremy.

She had been with me for three years, and was a most exemplary person, not to say a very intelligent and good-looking one. Being a woman, she did not get as much salary as the man, but she was quite well satisfied with the nine hundred dollars a year I paid her, and I must say my official family was very agreeable in its relations to me and to itself. I felt this particularly, because, for some time past, Miss Higgins—that was the young woman's name—had been occupying a good deal of my attention, and I am pretty sure that if Jeremy had been a dashing young fellow or a dashing old one, he would have made me have more or less palpitations of the heart and other disagreeable sensations which are experienced even by the best of men under some circumstances.

But Jeremy! I wasn't afraid of Jeremy, and the more he tried to fight shy of Miss Higgins the more I twitted her on the growing fondness for her I had detected and was daily detecting in my faithful secretary. Miss Higgins would always laugh at these small pleasantries of mine and would give me her very sweetest smile, partly, I presume, in recognition of various services I rendered her, which were not called for in the contract when she came into my employ.

Why shouldn't I be agreeable to her? An excellent young woman of excellent family, with nothing in the whole wide world against her except that she was poor. Of course, that was an objectionable feature to some, but it was not to me, for I had money enough for two, and I could afford to be entirely disinterested when it came to a question of the disposition of my real sentiments. I had real sentiments, too, and they were all for Miss Higgins. I knew plenty of girls, old and young, grave and gay, pretty and not so pretty, rich and less rich, but I didn't see any of them every day, in sunshine or rain, and I had not the opportunity of judging them as I had in the case of Miss Higgins, who seemed to me a little nicer each time I saw her during those latter days.

Things ran along smoothly enough in the office until the soft, sweet days of early June came around, and then I ventured on taking Miss Higgins driving with me. It was a delightful afternoon, and I was feeling extremely good in mind, body and spirits. Miss Higgins enjoyed the drives as well, and being acquaintances of such long standing and on such an everyday, practical basis, I think we both had a very much nicer time than if our relations had been of the ordinary kind existing between young men and young women.

In any event, I felt perfectly at home, and Miss Higgins was looking so much better than I had ever seen her—she was twenty-four, and when a woman is pretty at twenty-four she is pretty for keeps—that before I really knew what I was about I was making love to her. Not making it, either, expertly, for it had been made in my mind for weeks, but I didn't quite know it until I began to talk to her about it. Then it dawned on me all at once, and if it had not been for the superior judgment and tact of Miss Higgins I firmly believe I would have made an egregious ass of myself.

But I didn't. I reserved that until a later period.

The point I had reached when I left her at her modest, unpretentious home was a firm resolve that on the next day I would have business for Jeremy outside of the office for an hour, and there and then, on the spot where I had first met her, I would make a formal proposition—and get her, as a matter of course. I was assured of that, because there was no other fellow in sight; I was rich and passably good-looking, not so old as people might think I was, and on general principles I was just what a sensible young woman, like Miss Higgins was, wanted.

When next morning came I was in hilarious humor, going so far as to slap Jeremy on the back, thus disconcerting him to such an extent that he stuck his red ink pen in the black and almost said "doggone it," his one weakness of language.

"Old man," said I to him, "why don't you get married?"

"Why don't you, sir?" said he.

"That's just what I'm going to do, Jeremy," said I, "and so quick that it will make your head swim."

"I hope not, sir," said he.

"Hope I won't get married?" said I, with a feeling that poor Jeremy had an idea that it would be a desertion of him for me to marry.

"Oh, no, sir," said he; "I hope it won't make my head swim. I used to be troubled with vertigo, and I wouldn't like to have a return of it, sir."

Loud I laughed and slapped the good Jeremy on the back again.

"Out of regard for you and your faithful services to me, Jeremy," said I, "I will go about it less rapidly than as at first contemplated."

"Have you anyone definitely in view, sir?" said he rather slyly, I thought, seeing that he knew I was slightly variant in such matters.

"Indeed I have, Jeremy," said I, "and I am sure you will be surprised, and at the same time pleased, when I tell you who it is to whom I am about to trust my whole future."

"I am sure I shall be pleased, sir," said he, meekly.

"To be frank with you, then, Jeremy," I said, more seriously, "I am going to marry Miss Higgins."

Jeremy looked at me as the cherubs look up in that great picture of Raphael's.

"The typewriter?" said he.

"The same," said I. "And by the way," I added, "she hasn't come down yet, and it is half an hour after her usual time. I hope she is not feeling any bad results from the drive she took yesterday afternoon. I wonder if she is?"

"No, sir," said he, "nothing is the matter with her. I saw her on my way to the office and she said she would not be down until eleven o'clock this morning."

"That's all right," said I, much relieved. "It will also be better for you, as there will not be that haste which might give you a return of your vertigo. Eh, old man?"

"Yes, sir," said he, and for the first time I observed that he was growing nervous. "I—I—I wanted to say, sir," he stammered, as he lay down his pen and faced me, "that I think you ought to try to marry some one else."

"Oho," I laughed, "perhaps you would like to marry her yourself?"

"No, sir," said he, "I can't marry her."

"Of course you can't, you dear old man," said I. "I'm going to marry her myself."

"That is not the only reason why I cannot marry her, sir," said he.

This was a poser, and I wondered what strange freak had struck Jeremy. The thought of losing me had unsettled his brain, possibly.

"What other reason could there be?" said I, in doubt.

"Because I have already married her, sir," said he. "We have been married three weeks, but we didn't want you to know it until we could get moved into our own little house, then we were going to give you a surprise supper, for you have been exceedingly kind to both of us, and we appreciate it more than we can say."

It was the longest speech I had ever heard Jeremy make, and it wasn't the pleasantest, but what could I do? Nothing, except to forgive them and hurl my heart at some other object to knock it into forgetfulness. Then Miss Higgins appeared promptly at eleven o'clock, and I had to forgive her also.

Nice fix for a man with a heaving heart to be in, wasn't it?

And she hadn't come down at her usual time so that Jeremy would have a chance to tell me what had happened.

Kind of her, wasn't it?

But I got gloriously even by discharging her on the spot and adding her salary to Jeremy's—the sly, old, scheming scoundrel!—Detroit Free Press.

THE DAIRY

RAISING DAIRY CALVES.

The Plan Pursued by Successful Dairymen in Wisconsin.

Dairy farming in this part of Wisconsin (Jefferson county) is practiced to the exclusion of almost all other kinds, a few hogs, of course, being kept for the purpose of consuming the skimmilk. To be successful the farmers must have good cows, and to have good cows they must begin with good calves.

We select the calves produced by the most profitable cows, taking into consideration not only the quantity of milk, but the quality, also, as determined by the Babcock test. Our herd, consisting of forty-six thoroughbred cows, is headed by a full-blood bull. When a calf is born that we wish to raise we allow it to run with the mother one day only unless the cow's udder is in bad condition. In that case we believe it is best for the calf to suck. After the first day teach it to drink, giving the milk from the mother. Give about 8 pounds night and morning for a month. The past season after the first month we began giving 10 pounds of skimmilk in the morning and about the same amount of sweet milk at night. At this age also begin to feed a little fine hay.

At about two months of age they are put into winter quarters, where they are fed skimmilk entirely with a good supply of hay and grain. Begin with 8 or 10 pounds at a feeding, and gradually increase the amount until it reaches 15 pounds. Feed regularly and heat the milk to 90 degrees before giving it to them. Always treat them kindly. The exact amount and kind of grain feed will be governed by circumstances largely and by the capacity of the individual animal. Our calves are given ground oats with a sprinkling of old process oilmeal; probably no two receive the same amount. In feeding grain be careful to not overfeed at first. Begin with a light ration and gradually increase it. Some farmers in my vicinity give calves constant access to grain feed after they have become accustomed to it.

We stable our calves in a warm barn, each one having a separate stall, two of which are shown in the accompanying illustration. Each stall is 2½ feet high, 2 feet wide and 4 feet long from manger to drop. In front of the calf is a manger for hay 2 feet high, 1½ feet long and just as wide as the stall. In one corner, a a, is a little box in which to place grain feed. At the back end of each stall partition is a 2x2 inch timber running from the ground to the ceiling, for support. At the front every 4 or 5 feet is a 2x4 answering the same purpose. A strap on which is placed an iron ring is fastened around each calf's neck. A rope with a snap at one end is tied to the manger and by it the calf is secured. In spring when the grass is well started the calves are turned out to pasture and not again taken up until they are yearlings.—I. H. Everson, in Orange Judd Farmer.

Protecting Pure Butter.

Every farmer ought to be interested in protecting butter, for every pound of oleomargarine that is sold helps to depreciate the price of his own products and to injure the dairy business. If the dairy business is destroyed by fraud butter the dairymen will be driven to general farming and competition with those who do not now produce dairy products. The interest of all is the concern of all in this case.

Two Dogs Whipped by Sparrows.

One of the queerest battles ever witnessed took place near Nashville between two dogs and a flock of English sparrows under a big tree. The dogs began the attack, and the way in which they barked and snapped and tore up the earth impressed the spectators with the fact that victory was theirs. But it wasn't. The sparrows rose like a cloud and came down like an avalanche, and in less than two rounds the dogs were down on their backs and scrambling to escape. Each had lost an eye, and were otherwise so pecked and scarred that a committee of men had to rush in and carry them out of danger, leaving the sparrows triumphant and still full of fight.

Your Dog Needs Exercise.

If you keep a dog on a chain he should have at least two hours' good exercise every day, or even three. His kennel should be turned away from the draught or the prevailing wind, and on stormy nights make a point of throwing a tarpaulin over his house. This is merciful and keeps the poor fellow delightfully snug.

IN MEMORIAM.

John A. Christian.

An earnest, brave, consecrated life is all that is worth living. It is the only life that leaves behind good impressions, some deeds of praise for mirrors unto men. Such a life terminated, so far as time can terminate it, when John A. Christian breathed his last, and his strong spirit passed from among us, on the bright Sabbath morning, April 28th, 1895, at his home in Oxford, Ala.,

He was born in Cherokee County, Ala., Oct., 6th, 1841, but he spent his early and school days at the old family home near Talladega, Talladega county, Ala. He attended school in Talladega, and here he was first engaged in business, being employed as a clerk in the large house of that prince of merchants, Maj. James Isbell.

He joined the Baptist church in 1862, and his whole Christian life was a luminous attestation of the truth of his profession, and the depth of his piety.

He was among the first to enlist in the confederate war, he was a member of company E., 10th Ala. Regiment, and there was not a more patriotic, brave or faithful soldier in the service.

After the war, he engaged in the mercantile business in Oxford, and later, he was engaged in the same in Atlanta, and continued in some phase of this business through life. He was married to Miss Georgie Borders, Nov., 18th, 1871.

Mr. Christian had many noble qualities of head and heart, many patents of true nobility. In him the elements were so mixed, that nature might stand up and say to all the world, "Behold a man."

"Judge him by the right laid line,
Of truth, he truly will all styles deserve,
Of wise, good, just, a man in every sense."

His character was well balanced, all its parts in sublimest symmetry, one in which, virtues buried vices and beauties bore blemishes away.

He filled well all the relations of life. He was a good neighbor, safe counselor, fast friend, solid man, kind father, devoted husband, and faithful, Christian gentleman.

He leaves a wife, four children, two brothers, and one sister, and a large circle of friends and relatives to mourn his loss.

"All ye that are about him, bemourn him; and all ye that know his name, say, "How is the strong staff broken, and the beautiful rod." Jeremiah 48: 17.

MODERN COW STABLE.

One That Is Comfortable for the Animals and for the Owner.

The model cow stable is comfortable for all concerned—for the cows and for the owner. It may be thus described: It is roomy, light and airy; clean and free from dust and the todecommon festooned cobwebs that hang from every beam and window frame. It has sunny windows in which on the coldest days the sunshine makes things look warm within, if the cold is so severe that it is not really warm. But it is built in such a manner that the winds cannot penetrate, and the comfortable, clean, roomy stalls are well littered, and the cows lie and stretch their limbs and chew their cuds with evident satisfaction and comfort. There is plenty of room to move about and do the necessary work. The floor is clean and littered outside of the stalls, if not inside, and when either litter is used, with clean, fresh sawdust, it enables one to go about without soiling a shoe or noticing any disagreeable odor. The gutter gathers all the manure, and this is kept well filled with absorbents, but never with horse manure, which gives out too strong an odor to be permitted in any cow stable. Above are the feed bins and the store fodder, with the cutter and spouts to get the feed down from above into the mixing boxes. There is a cellar under the floor to receive the manure drawn from the gutters with a broad hoe made for the purpose, and swept cleanly down twice a day. The passages are amply wide, and one can go about with the greatest convenience and ease.—Farmer's Voice.

FRESH DAIRY DOTS.

When starting a creamery buy a new outfit throughout.

The cheesemakers of the west are charged with being slow in the adoption of improved methods.

If the butter will not come and the cows are not salted, salting them will frequently remedy the trouble.

If cow owners who have never fed pumpkins will try them once, they will be convinced of their excellence as feed for milch cows.

One of the best dairymen in the country says that he has found it to be best to raise his own dairy stock. He has found out the right of it.

The Kansas legislature refused to pass a law forbidding the coloring of imitation butter to resemble genuine butter. That legislature ought to be ashamed of itself.—Farmer's Voice.

Testimony from the Mayor of Sequin, Tex.

SEGUIN, TEX., January 14, 1893.

MESSRS. LIPPMAN BROS., Savannah, Ga.: Gentlemen—I have tried your P. P. P. for a disease of the skin, usually known as skin cancer, of thirty years' standing, and found great relief. It purifies the blood and removes all irritation from the seat of the disease and prevents any spreading of the sores. I have taken five or six bottles and feel confident that another course will effect a cure. It has also relieved me from indigestion and stomach troubles. Yours truly,

CAPT. W. H. RUST,
Attorney at Law.

SATURDAY, JUNE 15, 1895.

THE REPUBLICAN.

Established in 1837, is the OFFICIAL JOURNAL of Calhoun, one of the largest and wealthiest counties in Alabama, and in which are located the towns of Jacksonville, Anniston, Oxford, Oxanna and Piedmont.

CIRCULATION.

It has a larger guaranteed county circulation in Calhoun than any other paper.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The subscribers of the REPUBLICAN are the best people in the county,—a class of people with whom it pays to advertise. Than it there is no better advertising medium in this section of Alabama.

THE REPUBLICAN.

ENGLAND buys of us each year $500.000.000 of our products. We buy of England $125.000.000. Why remain a debtor to her.

TEN more battallions of troops are being sent over to whip the little bands of rebels in Cuba. Spain's bills will foot up a nice little sum.

THE President has appointed Attorney General Olney secretary of state, and Judson Harmon, of Cincinnati, as attorney general.

THE lines are being drawn. Kentucky and Ohio republicans declare for gold monometallism. Illinois and Iowa democrats declare for bimetalism at 16 to 1. The platforms for 1896 are being built now.

LET every man in Calhoun county who believes in the free and unlimited coinage of both silver and gold have his name enrolled as a member of the Calhoun County Bimetallic Club. Let Calhoun go to the State convention, to be called at an early date, with the largest club in the State.

THE farmer is in favor of the free coinage of silver because it means higher prices for his products. The laborer is in favor of the free coinage of silver because it means more money and better pay. The money lender is in favor of the single gold standard because it increases the purchasing power of his dollar and lessens the value of all property and products.

A WEDDING is announced between Miss Rockfeller, daughter of oil magnate, and Mr. McCormick, son of the reaper and mower manufacturer. The share of Miss Rockefeller in her father's estate is estimated to be thirty-five millions. Mr. McCormick is one of the wealthiest young men in the country. This is better than Miss Gould did. Miss Rockfeller believes in patronizing home industry, and takes, instead of a titled count, a machinery manufacturer of Chicago.

FORAKER and his forces whipped out, most completely the Billy McKinley—John Sherman power in Ohio on May, 29. Bushnell, a life long friend and supporter of Foraker, was nominated for Governor.

The convention declared for monometallism which it called by the misnomer, "sound money, and favored protective tariff. It is now in order for the democrats to come out imphatically for bimetallism and a tariff for revenue and elect a democratic Governor in Ohio.

THE Montgomery Advertiser is very much worried about Congressman Bankhead. It wants to know why he is making speeches over Alabama in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of silver. Bankhead is allright. He is simply one of the old fashioned Democrats. He was in favor of the free coinage of both gold and silver in 1873, in 1883, in 1893, and is still holding fast to the Democratic faith as handed down by the fathers, and is only making a little missionary tour over Alabama to urge Democrats to hold out faithful to the end, and to not bow down to the golden calf which is being held out before them.

Here is the thing which worries the Advertiser: It knows Col. Bankhead to be one of the best organizers and schrewdest politicians in the State, and his active work in favor of the free coinage of silver is very alarming to the old lady.

Gladstone's Prophesy.

"The United States will become what we are now, the head servant in the great household of the world, the employer of all employed; because her service will be the most and the ablest."

These are the words of Wm. E. Gladstone, the great English premier and statesman. Recoguizing the wonderful resources of our country, noting the push and vim characteristic of Americans, he paid this glorious tribute to the United States and painted this brilliant picture of her future. It has been many years ago since Mr. Gladstone gave utterance to these words. It has been long enough for us to have taken the position as "head servant," as the "employer of all employed." Have we attained it? To answer no, would be superfluous. Every American citizen who takes the time to think, or has the patience to investigate, realizes that England still "rules the wave," and that she is playing no insignificant part in controlling the destinies of this republic.

Is it that Mr. Gladstone was at fault? Can it be that he overestimated the powers of the United States, and that in his admiration of our system of government, and respect for our people, he drew too freely upon his imagination? Americans, in whose bosom there remains a spark of national love are ill prepared to accept this view. The truth is it would be a false conclusion. All that this great Englishman has said of us would ere this have taken place but for causes with which he was not familiar. When Mr. Gladstone gave expression to this compliment to American thrift, industry and natural resources he was looking backward to the days when, as thirteen colonies we had risen against English oppression, and under the leadership of Washington, and inspired by the such men as Patrick Henry had refused to "lie supinely on our backs while the enemy bound us hand and foot." Mr. Gladstone had in view the pluck, and bravery, and intelligence and independence of the true American, the same pluck and the same intelligence that had enabled him to seize the undeveloped resources of America, and with only three millions of people defeat the soldiers of England and her foreign allies. He did not know, he could not foresee that what England had failed to do in war she would accomplish in peace, that where the sword failed, corruption would win. He could not foretell that, influenced by England, American statesmen like Sherman and his bond of pirates of 1873, would attempt to scuttle the ship of state, and make the proudest republic of the world the servant of a once defeated and humbled monarchy. Yet this has taken place. Through the treachery and perfidy of her own sons, America bows today in shame before England who, less than a century ago, and for the second time, begged for peace.

In direct violation of the intention of the founders of our financial system, and by a trick so dark and filthy that it smacked of hell, the demonetization act of 1873 was pressed. Even the president of the United States, who signed the bill, confessed that he did not understand its import or he would never have signed it. Many congressmen who voted for it, have since admitted that they did not comprehend its powers, and that it came to them by such means, and through such routes, as to completely disquise its meaning, and to put them off guard. Like a pirate vessel, with guns concealed, and flying false colors, it sailed through the snares and between the barriers which our fathers had erected against treachery, and took a position from whence its guns could bombard the very citadel of American prosperity.

In vain do the aiders and abetters in this vile outrage, at this late day, when its effects have proven more disastrous than they expected, attempt to make defense of their crime. By arguments as "false as dicers oaths" they try to make the people believe that the murder of silver was a blessing to the country. By a wicked distortion of the truth and a malignant perversion of facts do they desire to strengthen their arguments.

But the day of reckoning has come. Lured by seductive promises, the American people have followed to the brink destruction itself. They are now looking for relief and listening to the words of Gladstone, they realize that instead of being the "head servant of the world, the employer of all employed," they are but menials, and that, thus far, this proud destiny has been denied their country. In looking for its cause, they find none, save the financial legislation of 1873, with its favoritism for the rich and its oppression of the poor:

"Ill fares the land, to hastening ills a prey,
Where wealth accumulates, and men decay;
Princes and lords may flourish, or may fade,
A breath can make them as a breath has made;
But a bold peasantry, their country's pride,
When once cut off, can never be supplied."

Conscious of the truth of these beautiful lines from Goldsmith, the people are resolved to return to the principles of their fathers. The ballot yet remains, and it will be used to restore a safe currency, and to shake from the shoulders of American industry the foul clutch of English influence.

Wilson vs Oates.

Postmaster General Willson, who delivered the annual commencement address before the students of the University at Oxford, Miss., on June, 4, while speaking on the theme 'American citizenship,' said: "I long to see the south again in national leadership," and in response to this lofty sentiment he received enthusiastic applause.

How different, the desires of Mr. Wilson—a northern man by birth and education, and Governor Oates, of Alabama—a southern man by birth, by rearing, by education, and the recipient of southern honors! Mr. Oates does not favor a southern man for the presidency, because he thinks that the south has no son worthy of so exalted a station. Why not worthy? Because, he says, if elected he would be forever pandering to northern influence in order to insure a reelection. Mr. Wilson, since his removal to West Virginia, and his election to congress, where he has been thrown every day, with southern men, has learned to regard them as the salt of the earth, the peers of any race that ever existed. In his admiration for them he gave voice to the noble sentiment just quoted.

Aside from the governor of Alabama, he will find few men in the south who differ from him. He can find thousands to cheer his words, and thousands who are at a loss to understand the recent expressions of Governor Oates.

We would not rashly or unjustly criticize the governor. But we were born in the south, and from the day that the first history of the United States with every page emblazoned with deeds of southern men, ay, earlier than that: when at our mother's knee, we listened to the stories of Washington, and Jefferson, of Sumter, and other patriotic men of the south who gave themselves and their all to the cause of American independence, we came to regard the south as the very womb from which greatness is born. Gov. Oates may be correct: but if he is, history has lied.

ON May the 30th., in the great city of Chicago, one of the most remarkable incidents of this century took place.

During the bloody days of 1862-65, the United States goverament established a prison, know as Camp Douglas, where southern captives were confined. Unused to the severe winters of that section, six thousand confederates died in prison and were buried near the city of Chicago. For thirty years they have slept there, and the busy world around them has paid little heed to their resting place. A short time ago, southern men began the collection of a fund for the erection of a monument to these dead soldiers, and on May 30th, it was dedicated under the auspices of veterans who wore the blue and the gray.

From different sections of the south, car loads of flowers had been sent with which to decorate the graves, and old soldiers, accompanied by many of the south's fairest daughters, were present to take part in the exercises. Union veterans also, with their daughters, met the southerners there, and, thirty years after the close of one of the most disastrous and bloody civil wars in the history of the world, veterans who opposed each other on the field of battle, knelt over the graves, to do honor to the southern dead.

It was a most imposing scene, and the accounts of it as published by the press of the country, have called forth expressions of gratitude from every section, that the war is indeed ended, and that the mission of the brave, true, noble veteran—whether union or confederate—is "to heal dissention and to foster peace."

May those weak, vindictive, narrow minded men, such as Bantelle, who have dared lift a voice againt the performance of this beautiful ceremony, be forever damned in the estimation—not only of this generation—but of generations yet to come.

A BIMETALLIC CONVENTION

The following call, signed by well-known Democrats,—men who are as loyal to the Democratic party as any men in Alabama,—is in the eyes of the Montgomery Advertiser something fearfully dangerous. The Advertiser says "there is no wisdom or propriety in it; there is great danger apparent from it; it can possibly do no good; it is calculated to result in great harm."

Headquarters of Alabama Democratic Silver Club, Birmingham, Ala., June 6, 1895.

The undersigned have been requested by the Alabama Democratic Silver Club of Birmingham to communicate with Democrats in other counties of the State and urge the formation of clubs in each county.

It is expected that when these clubs are organized a consultation will be had and a State convention called to further the views entertained by Democrats who believe in free coinage. We desire to ask your co-operation, and suggest that you confer with Democrats in your county and take immediate steps to organize clubs. It is expected that these organizations will be so complete in the next thirty days that further action may, by conference and joint agreement, be had.

So soon as any club is organized we will thank you to send the names and postoffice addresses of the officers thereof.

M. A. Mason, Chairman; Joseph F. Johnston, S. W. John, W. P. Pinckard, Oscar W. Underwood, J. F. B. Jackson, Robert J. Lowe, Secretary.

We have no idea that the Advertiser can see any wisdom or propriety in this call. It is true that from the Advertiser's standpoint there is great danger apparent from it. From a thorough organization of the Democrats in Alabama who favor the free and unlimited coinage of silver there is great danger that no gold standard man will be elected to any office next year by the Democrats of Alabama. In this way it is calculated to result in great harm to the political fortunes of the gold men.

But the men in Alabama who believe in bimetallism—the coinage of both gold and silver—are going to organize thoroughly, and this organizaton will unquestionably result in the overthrow of men who are making an effort to destroy one half the primary money of this country.

The people are aroused on this question as never before, and they will no longer remain silent and inactive.

ONE of Calhoun's most prominent Democrats in writing us says: "The REPUBLICAN contains more original matter, and is decidedly the best weekly in this section of Alabama."

This, and similar expressions which come to us from all sections of Calhoun county, are greatly appreciated.

Since the Republican has been under its present management, we have labored hard to furnish the people of Calhoun county a local paper of which they would feel proud, and appreciate sufficiently to accord it a cheerful support.

We, from week to week, by the aid of our very superior corps of county correspondents, have given all the news of Calhoun county. In addition to this, we have also given the general news of importance. The amount of matter which we have had put in type from week to week has been done at considerable expense, and while to date we have not made a fortune, yet the subscription and advertising patronage has had a steady growth, and by the time the paper has been under its present management for twelve months, we hope to have it on a paying basis. It has done better than we had a reason to hope when we took charge of it last August, and we have every reason to believe that it will continue to grow in public favor, and that its subscription list and advertising patronage will continue to increase.

It is now well known to be the paper through which the people in every section of Calhoun county can be reached, and every day is being more appreciated by advertisers. It is to day in Calhoun county the paper of the people, and in order to reach the people, advertisers must get into its columns.

While it always becomes necessary to cut down the expense of a newspaper during the summer, we shall attempt to reduce the cost of getting out the REPUBLICAN so as that it will not be done at the expense of its readers. We propose to pull off our coats and work the harder, and hold the paper up to its present size and continue to give its usual amount of reading matter.

In the mean time, we hope our friends over the county will continue to send in new subscribers, and that our advertisers will remain with us during the dull season, and thus aid in building up a first class weekly in the county.

Ramon's Liver Pills & Tonic Pellets are a Perfect Treatment for Constipation and Biliousness. ☞ One pill a dose.

LAST fall during the congressional election when a number of the men who belong to the Peoples party were active in their support of republican candidates for congress the REPUBLICAN took the position that nothing political could be more inconsistent than for the populists to support men who had been life-long republicans, and who still advocated the principles of the republican party; which principles are directly antagonistic to the principles which the peoples party advocates.

But our argument was met on all sides by populists that they would go to any extent to condemn the frauds which had been committed by the Democratic party in Alabama.

To this we replied, that it was not possible for the Democratic party, or any other party, to be guilty of more outrageous frauds in the management of elections than had the republican party in the past.

We are glad to notice that the leading populists of the state now see this question as the REPUBLICAN saw it last fall.

The leading populist papers not only oppose a fusion with the republicans in next years election, but take the same position the REPUBLICAN took last fall as to the frauds which have been committed by the republican party when it had an opportunity.

The Peoples Tribune, Capt. Kolb's paper, in opposing a fusion with the republicans next year, and in answer to a suggestion from H. W. Williamson that the populists should unite with the republicans in order to secure fair elections, says:

"There is no necessity to go outside for candidates for any office the party has to bestow. If Senator Williamson will remember aright, Hayes, Republican, was seated but not elected President. Going back from that tragedy in our history, he will find nothing in Alabama politics to build up a phantasy on that the Republican party has fewer sins than the "organized" Democracy standing against it on the score of fair elections. Corruption in both old parties is the compelling motive of the Peoples Party."

THE New York World has asked foreign Ministers of finance for the views of their countries on bimetallism. In response, the Russian minister said that Russia felt no present interest in the matter.

The German referred the World to the recent speeches in the reichtag, when the resolution favoring bimetallism was passed. Holland favors a conference. So does Belgium. The finance Minister of Spain thinks that country would second any effort of the United States to bring about a conference.

And so it stands. The whole of Europe, save only England, waiting for bimetallism, and all ready to aid in silvers restoration to its time honored position as a primary money. Who are they waiting on? The United States, of course, whom they followed in demonetizing that metal. What is the United States doing? Waiting for some of the other countries to lead.

She ought not to wait. The position of leader in all enterprises or reforms that will have a tendency to ameliorate the condition of humanity, belongs of right to our country. With the world waiting for us to take the lead, why do we halt or even hesitate. It is but an act of justice to the people that country should hasten to undo the wrong 1873. And it should be borne in mind that "justice delayed is justice denied."

SOME days ago the State contained an editorial in which it said:—

It is important that all factions of white voters at the South should come together for the preservation of white rule and good government. If we can find common and honorable ground upon which all can stand it is certain that the great body of people would unite and make common cause, leaving all questions of distribution or offices to be determined by primary elections within party lines.

The Montgomery Advertiser attacks this utterance of the State in a most vicious manner, and leaves the impression that it, the Advertiser, does not desire to see the white voters of the south again together.

For once the Advertiser may justly ask the book keeper to credit it with telling the truth. It does not desire harmony in the South. When peace comes, the occupation of that journal is gone. It has ever been a fomenter of strife, a sower of discord, a murderer of friendships.

This is the carrion upon which it exists. Nothing else is palatable. Nothing else will support it.

Terrible Misery

Helpless With Rheumatism and Without Appetite

Tired Feeling and Pains Dispelled by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"I was in terrible misery with rheumatism in my hips and lower limbs. I read so much about Hood's Sarsaparilla that I thought I would try it and see if it would relieve me. When I commenced I could not sit up nor even turn over in bed without help. One bottle of Hood's Relieved Me so much that I was soon out of bed and could walk. I had also felt weak and tired all the time; could not sleep, and obtained so little rest at night that I felt all worn out in the morning. I had no appetite to eat anything, but Hood's Sarsaparilla restored my appetite so that I could eat without any distress, and I have gained rapidly in strength. I have taken five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla and I am as well as ever." MRS. S. A. LEFEBER, Rossmoyne, O.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Hood's Pills cure liver ills, constipation, biliousness, jaundice, sick headache, indigestion.

THE "sound money" convention at Memphis gave orders for the gold standard men to form leagues all over the south. We are patiently waiting to hear the Montgomery Advertiser denounce that convention for giving out such an order in the same manner as it did the proposition to organize silver leagues in Alabama.

Does not the Advertiser think these gold leagues would be as great enemies to the Democratic party as the sub alliances of which it has so much to say?

Or does it think the silver leagues would be all wrong and the gold leagues all right? No doubt but it sees them in this light, as it has denounced the proposition to organize the one and not the other.

THE shooting of the governor general of Madrid by Colonel Clavidjo, a crazy officer, was an unfortunate affair, but the punishment of the assailant was revolting butchery. The day after the shooting, Clavidjo was court marshalled and condemned to be shot. He was driven to the execution grounds, a squad of soldiers drawn up, and the order to fire given. Three balls struck him and he fell, but giving some evidence of life, the soldiers were ordered to shoot again, and then as the dying man lay on the ground in death convulsions, the squad was ordered to fire a third time. THE Montgomery Advertiser and a few other papers in the state which have turned a summersault on the silver question, try to make it appear that to advocate the free and unlimited coinage of silver is to advocate the populist doctrine. If so, then every paper in Alabama must plead guilty to advocating a dostrine of the populists within the last three years,—the Montgomery Advertiser included.

The Democratic state convention of Alabama will also have to plead guilty to the charge of inserting a populist plank in its platform.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labelling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher, That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

A SCHEMING SCOUNDREL.

BY W. J. LAMPTON.

The fact that I was fifty years old never occurred to me at all. Or if it did it was merely to make me proud of myself that I had run the gantlet of half a century and didn't show a scratch. At least, I didn't see any, though a friend of mine—one of those fellows who go about among their acquaintances doing everything they can to make truth odious—had a habit of telling me every day or two that a man of fifty was scarcely as "chipper" as a man of thirty, whatever he might think about it himself.

In addition to my fifty years I was (which was not counted against me by those persons best able to analyze true graces of character) rich. Not a multimillionaire, perhaps, but enough to make a bachelor very comfortable, not to say luxurious. My business was easy, and I had no help to bother after, except a clerk or private secretary, as it sounded more elaborate to call him, and a young woman who manipulated the typewriter in my office. Concerning these two persons I have considerable to say.

My private secretary, whose name was Jeremy Kilton, was without any exception the most modest and ladylike young man I ever met. He had come to my service highly recommended by friends of mine in the country, and though he had been with me for seven years in town, he never came into the office of a morning that I was not reminded of the green fields and the running brooks and that sort of thing, indigenous to all traditions of the rural neighborhood. He was only about ten years younger than I was, and I have many times sat watching him plodding away at his desk, silent as a sphinx and faithful as a fanatic, and wondered why it was that he should be as he was, and I as I was. I with the money, and he with the numberless good qualities that would be an ornament to wealth, even though he lacked in that polish which wealth seems to demand.

But I paid him a good salary, for I could afford to, and his twenty-five hundred a year appeared to be almost as satisfactory to him as my twenty-five thousand was to me.

Yet he wasn't half the man I was in youth and love of life, and I used to twit him about his advancing years, and tried to get him to go and call on the ladies with me. By all that is lovely, you should have seen him the first time I asked him to go with me to call on a particularly bright and interesting young woman I knew, and whom he had met on one occasion when she had come to my office with her mother to see about a piece of property the mother wanted to buy. The girl had flashed her brilliant eyes on Jeremy, out of pure mischief, because I had told her of his diffidence, and she wanted to make him feel as uncomfortable as she could, and for a minute or two I was fearful that I would lose my valued servant, so evident was his desire to incontinently run away. He blushed two or three colors, and stammered so when he tried to talk to her that I thought he would get his tongue twisted around his teeth, and in a moment of confusion would bite it off. When she had gone, I asked him how he would like to go up and call some evening, and he showed signs at once of hysteria. Then I told him if he would not do that, I would send him up to the house next day with the papers for the mother and daughter to examine and sign, and, though he said no word and bowed in humble submission to my will, I felt so sorry for him that I took them up myself.

And here, I may say that a little thing like a woman never had the least effect on me. At least, in respect of giving me the panicky feeling that overtook Jeremy every time a woman came in sight. He was a bachelor, of course, for how could a man of his sheeplike courage be anything else? He couldn't, and Jeremy was a living example of it. Even the young woman who manipulated the typewriter was a source of discomfort to Jeremy.

She had been with me for three years, and was a most exemplary person, not to say a very intelligent and good-looking one. Being a woman, she did not get as much salary as the man, but she was quite well satisfied with the nine hundred dollars a year I paid her, and I must say my official family was very agreeable in its relations to me and to itself. I felt this particularly, because, for some time past, Miss Higgins—that was the young woman's name—had been occupying a good deal of my attention, and I am pretty sure that if Jeremy had been a dashing young fellow or a dashing old one, he would have made me have more or less palpitations of the heart and other disagreeable sensations which are experienced even by the best of men under some circumstances.

But Jeremy! I wasn't afraid of Jeremy, and the more he tried to fight shy of Miss Higgins the more I twitted her on the growing fondness for her I had detected and was daily detecting in my faithful secretary. Miss Higgins would always laugh at these small pleasantries of mine and would give me her very sweetest smile, partly, I presume, in recognition of various services I rendered her, which were not called for in the contract when she came into my employ.

Why shouldn't I be agreeable to her? An excellent young woman of excellent family, with nothing in the whole wide world against her except that she was poor. Of course, that was an objectionable feature to some, but it was not to me, for I had money enough for two, and I could afford to be entirely disinterested when it came to a question of the disposition of my real sentiments. I had real sentiments, too, and they were all for Miss Higgins. I knew plenty of girls, old and young, grave and gay, pretty and not so pretty, rich and less rich, but I didn't see any of them every day, in sunshine or rain, and I had not the opportunity of judging them as I had in the case of Miss Higgins, who seemed to me a little nicer each time I saw her during those later days.

Things ran along smoothly enough in the office until the soft, sweet days of early June came around, and then I ventured on taking Miss Higgins driving with me. It was a delightful afternoon, and I was feeling extremely good in mind, body and spirits. Miss Higgins enjoyed the drives as well, and being acquaintances of such long standing and on such an everyday, practical basis, I think we both had a very much nicer time than if our relations had been of the ordinary kind existing between young men and young women.

In any event, I felt perfectly at home, and Miss Higgins was looking so much better than I had ever seen her—she was twenty-four, and when a woman is pretty at twenty-four she is pretty for keeps—that before I really knew what I was about I was making love to her. Not making it, either, exactly, for it had been made in my mind for weeks, but I didn't quite know it until I began to talk to her about it. Then it dawned on me all at once, and if it had not been for the superior judgment and tact of Miss Higgins, I firmly believe I would have made an egregious ass of myself.

But I didn't. I reserved that until a later period.

The point I had reached when I left her at her modest, unpretentious home was a firm resolve that on the next day I would have business for Jeremy outside of the office for an hour, and there and then, on the spot where I had first met her, I would make a formal proposition—and get her, as a matter of course. I was assured of that, because there was no other fellow in sight; I was rich and passably good-looking, not so old as people might think I was, and on general principles I was just what a sensible young woman, like Miss Higgins was, wanted.

When next morning came I was in hilarious humor, going so far as to slap Jeremy on the back, thus disconcerting him to such an extent that he stuck his red ink pen in the black and almost said "doggone it," his one weakness of language.

"Old man," said I to him, "why don't you get married?"

"Why don't you, sir?" said he.

"That's just what I'm going to do, Jeremy," said I, "and so quick that it will make your head swim."

"I hope not, sir," said he.

"Hope I won't get married?" said I, with a feeling that poor Jeremy had an idea that it would be a desertion of him for me to marry.

"Oh, no, sir," said he; "I hope it won't make my head swim. I used to be troubled with vertigo, and I wouldn't like to have a return of it, sir."

Loud I laughed and slapped the good Jeremy on the back again.

"Out of regard for you and your faithful services to me, Jeremy," said I, "I will go about it less rapidly than as at first contemplated."

"Have you anyone definitely in view, sir?" said he rather slyly, I thought, seeing that he knew I was slightly variant in such matters.

"Indeed I have, Jeremy," said I, "and I am sure you will be surprised, and at the same time pleased, when I tell you who it is to whom I am about to trust my whole future."

"I am sure I shall be pleased, sir," said he, meekly.

"To be frank with you, then, Jeremy," I said, more seriously, "I am going to marry Miss Higgins."

Jeremy looked at me as the cherubs look up in that great picture of Raphael's.

"The typewriter?" said he.

"The same," said I. "And by the way," I added, "she hasn't come down yet, and it is half an hour after her usual time. I hope she is not feeling any bad results from the drive she took yesterday afternoon. I wonder if she is?"

"No, sir," said he, "nothing is the matter with her. I saw her on my way to the office and she said she would not be down until eleven o'clock this morning."

"That's all right," said I, much relieved. "It will also be better for you, as there will not be that haste which might give you a return of your vertigo. Eh, old man?"

"Yes, sir," said he, and for the first time I observed that he was growing nervous. "I—I—I wanted to say, sir," he stammered, as he lay down his pen and faced me, "that I think you ought to try to marry some one else."

"Oho," I laughed, "perhaps you would like to marry her yourself?"

"No, sir," said he, "I can't marry her."

"Of course you can't, you dear old man," said I. "I'm going to marry her myself."

"That is not the only reason why I cannot marry her, sir," said he.

This was a poser, and I wondered what strange freak had struck Jeremy. The thought of losing me had unsettled his brain, possibly.

"What other reason could there be?" said I, in doubt.

"Because I have already married her, sir," said he. "We have been married three weeks, but we didn't want you to know it until we could get moved into our own little house, then we were going to give you a surprise supper, for you have been exceedingly kind to both of us, and we appreciate it more than we can say."

It was the longest speech I had ever heard Jeremy make, and it wasn't the pleasantest, but what could I do? Nothing, except to forgive them and hurl my heart at some other object to knock it into forgetfulness. Then Miss Higgins appeared promptly at eleven o'clock, and I had to forgive her also.

Nice fix for a man with a bearing heart to be in, wasn't it?

And she hadn't come down at her usual time so that Jeremy would have a chance to tell me what had happened.

Kind of her, wasn't it?

But I got gloriously even by discharging her on the spot and adding her salary to Jeremy's—the sly, old, scheming scoundrel!—Detroit Free Press.

Protecting Pure Butter.

Every farmer ought to be interested in protecting butter, for every pound of oleomargarine that is sold helps to depreciate the price of his own products and to injure the dairy business. If the dairy business is destroyed by fraud butter the dairymen will be driven to general farming and competition with those who do not now produce dairy products. The interest of all is the concern of all in this case.

Not Enough.

Liver pills have their good and bad side. They cleanse the bowels and clean out the system, but they leave the patient weak, exhausted and unstrung, with no appetite and no strength.

If you were to go to a physician he would tell you that your liver pills were all right but that they did not go far enough. You need something else to restore the appetite, repair the waste, purify the blood and build up the system. He would give you a tonic.

We supply you with the regular physician's medicine for an entire treatment of nearly three weeks. There is one small case of ten of the Liver Pills (the finest in existence) and there is another box containing fifteen of the Tonic Pellets. You get them both for 25c. Ask your druggist for Ramon's Tonic Liver Pills and Ramon's Tonic Pellets. Together they make a sure treatment for Constipation and Biliousness.

RAISING DAIRY CALVES.

The Plan Pursued by Successful Dairymen in Wisconsin.

Dairy farming in this part of Wisconsin (Jefferson county) is practiced to the exclusion of almost all other kinds, a few hogs, of course, being kept for the purpose of consuming the skimmilk. To be successful the farmers must have good cows, and to have good cows they must begin with good calves.

We select the calves produced by the most profitable cows, taking into consideration not only the quantity of milk, but the quality, also, as determined by the Babcock test. Our herd, consisting of forty-six thoroughbred cows, is headed by a full-blood bull. When a calf is born that we wish to raise we allow it to run with the mother one day only unless the cow's udder is in bad condition. In that case we believe it is best for the calf to suck. After the first day teach it to drink, giving the milk from the mother. Give about 8 pounds night and morning for a month. The past season after the first month we began giving 10 pounds of skimmilk in the morning and about the same amount of sweet milk at night. At this age also begin to feed a little fine hay.

At about two months of age they are put into winter quarters, where they are fed skimmilk entirely with a good supply of hay and grain. Begin with 8 or 10 pounds at a feeding, and gradually increase the amount until it reaches 15 pounds. Feed regularly and heat the milk to 99 degrees before giving it to them. Always treat them kindly. The exact amount and kind of grain feed will be governed by circumstances largely and by the capacity of the individual animal. Our calves are given ground oats with a sprinkling of old process oilmeal; probably no two receive the same amount. In feeding grain be careful to not overfeed at first. Begin with a light ration and gradually increase it. Some farmers in my vicinity give calves constant access to grain feed after they have become accustomed to it.

We stable our calves in a warm barn, each one having a separate stall, two of which are shown in the accompanying illustration. Each stall is 2½ feet high, 2 feet wide and 4 feet long from manger to drop. In front of the calf is a manger for hay 2 feet high, 1½ feet long and just as wide as the stall. In one corner, a a, is a little box in which to place grain feed. At the back end of each stall partition is a 2x2 inch timber running from the ground to the ceiling, for support. At the front every 4 or 5 feet is a 2x4 answering the same purpose. A strap on which is placed an iron ring is fastened around each calf's neck. A rope with a snap at one end is tied to the manger and by it the calf is secured. In spring when the grass is well started the calves are turned out to pasture and not again taken up until they are yearlings.—F. H. Everson, in Orange Judd Farmer.

Two Dogs Whipped by Sparrows.

One of the queerest battles ever witnessed took place near Nashville between two dogs and a flock of English sparrows under a big tree. The dogs began the attack, and the way in which they barked and snapped and tore up the earth impressed the spectators with the fact that victory was theirs. But it wasn't. The sparrows rose like a cloud and came down like an avalanche, and in less than two rounds the dogs were down on their backs and scrambling to escape. Each had lost an eye, and were otherwise so pecked and smirred that a committee of men had to rush in and carry them out of danger, leaving the sparrows triumphant and still full of fight.

Your Dog Needs Exercise.

If you keep a dog on a chain he should have at least two hours' good exercise every day, or even three. His kennel should be turned away from the draught or the prevailing wind, and on stormy nights make a point of throwing a tarpaulin over his house. This is merciful and keeps the poor fellow delightfully snug.

IN MEMORIAM

John A. Christian.

An earnest, brave, consistent, consecrated life is all that is worth living. It is the only life that leaves behind good impressions, some deeds of praise for mirrors unto men. Such a life terminated, so far as time can terminate it, when John A. Christian breathed his last, and his strong spirit passed from among us, on the bright Sabbath morning, April 28th, 1895, at his home in Oxford Ala.,

He was born in Cherokee County, Ala., Oct., 6th, 1841, but he spent his early and school days at the old family home near Talladega, Talladega county, Ala. He attended school in Talladega, and here he was first engaged in business, being employed as a clerk in the large house of that prince of merchants, Maj. James Isbell.

He joined the Baptist church in 1862, and his whole Christian life was a luminous attestation of the truth of his profession, and the depth of his piety.

He was among the first to enlist in the confederate war, he was a member of company E., 10th Ala. Regiment, and there was not a more patriotic, brave or faithful soldier in the service.

After the war, he engaged in the mercantile business in Oxford, and later, he was engaged in the same in Atlanta, and continued in some phase of this business through life. He was married to Miss Georgie Borders, Nov., 18th, 1874.

Mr. Christian had many noble qualities of head and heart, many patents of true nobility. In him the elements were so mixed, that nature might stand up and say to all the world, "Behold a man."

"Judge him by the right laid line,
Of truth, he truly will all styles deserve,
Of wise, good, just, a man in every sense."

His character was well balanced, all its parts in sublimest symmetry, one in which, virtues buried vices and beauties bore blemishes away.

He filled well all the relations of life. He was a good neighbor, safe counselor, fast friend, solid man, kind father, devoted husband, and faithful, Christian gentleman.

He leaves a wife, four children, two brothers, and one sister, and a large circle of friends and relatives to mourn his loss.

"All ye that are about him, bemourn him; and all ye that know his name, say, "How is the strong staff broken, and the beautiful rod." Jeremiah 48: 17.

MODERN COW STABLE.

One That Is Comfortable for the Animals and for the Owner.

The model cow stable is comfortable for all concerned—for the cows and for the owner. It may be thus described: It is roomy, light and airy; clean and free from dust and the too common festooned cobwebs that hang from every beam and window frame. It has sunny windows in which on the coldest days the sunshine makes things look warm within, if the cold is so severe that it is not really warm. But it is built in such a manner that the winds cannot penetrate, and the comfortable, clean, roomy stalls are well littered, and the cows lie and stretch their limbs and chew their cuds with evident satisfaction and comfort. There is plenty of room to move about and do the necessary work. The floor is clean and littered outside of the stalls, if not inside, and when other litter is used, with clean, fresh sawdust, it enables one to go about without soiling a shoe or noticing any disagreeable odor. The gutter gathers all the manure, and this is kept well filled with absorbents, but never with horse manure, which gives out too strong an odor to be permitted in any cow stable. Above are the feed bins and the store fodder, with the cutter and spouts to get the feed down from above into the mixing boxes. There is a cellar under the floor to receive the manure drawn from the gutters with a broad hoe made for the purpose, and swept cleanly down twice a day. The passages are amply wide, and one can go about with the greatest convenience and ease.—Farmer's Voice.

FRESH DAIRY DOTS.

When starting a creamery buy a new outfit throughout.

The cheesemakers of the west are charged with being slow in the adoption of improved methods.

If the butter will not come, and the cows are not salted, salting them will frequently remedy the trouble.

If cow owners who have never fed pumpkins will try them once, they will be convinced of their excellence as feed for milch cows.

One of the best dairymen in the country says that he has found it to be best to raise his own dairy stock. He has found out the right of it.

The Kansas legislature refused to pass a law forbidding the coloring of imitation butter to resemble genuine butter. That legislature ought to be ashamed of itself.—Farmer's Voice.

OFFICE OF J. S. ROSAMOND.

MESSRS. LIPPMAN BROS., Savannah, Ga.:

GENTLEMEN—While in San Antonio, Texas last spring I saw your advertisement of P. P. P. in the paper for the cure of rheumatism, and thought I would try a bottle, finding such great relief from it, on my return home had my druggist, Mr. John McClellan to order me a supply. After taking, I think ten bottles, I have not had a pain or ache since, previous to that I suffered for twenty-five (25) years, and could not get the least benefit until I tried P. P. P., and therefore, take pleasure in recommending it to all. Yours truly,

J. S. ROSAMOND.

MESSRS. LIPPMAN BROS., Savannah, Ga.: Gentlemen—I have tried your P. P. P. for a disease of the skin, usually known as skin cancer, of thirty years' standing, and found great relief; it purifies the blood and removes all disposition from the seat of the disease and prevents any spreading of the sores. I have taken five or six bottles and feel confident that another course will effect a cure. It has also relieved me from indigestion and stomach troubles. Yours truly, Worthy of a Monument.

While the writer was in the country a few days since he mentioned to a poor widow woman something of the recent unveiling of the Samuel Noble monument.

With tears in her eyes, she stated that while it was proper and right that the people of Calhoun county should honor the memory of Samuel Noble, yet there was one other who gave his life to the poor and suffering, and whose body now rests among the sleeping dead in Jacksonville, who as richly deserves a monument to his memory as any man who ever lived and died in Alabama. She then with a heart full of love to his memory, spoke tenderly and pathetically of Dr. John Y. Nisbet.

And indeed, what a grand life this man lived! His was a life of tenderness and gentleness. And above all, he was the friend of the poor. None were too poor to command his services. And if a subscription should be asked to erect a monument to his memory, we imagine the widows mite would come from hundreds of the poor in this county.

Not only was he appreciated for his life of sacrifice in administering to the needs of the poor, but was appreciated by all as a skillful and successful physician, a valuable citizen, an humble Christian gentleman.

His was a grand and noble life, one worthy of emulation, and we would be glad to see the above suggestion carried out and a monument erected.

D. A. LONG.

A Tribute to his Memory by the Harmony Sunday School

In Sunday School at Harmony church, May, 19, 1895, the superintendent appointed a committee to draft suitable resolutions in regard to the death of the beloved brother D. A. Long, who died very suddenly, April 30, 1895.

The committee reported as follows:

This Sunday School is in mourning on account of the death of our dear brother. The relations sustained between him and Harmony church, and of this Sunday School, were of the most tender and sacred nature.

Of the many good members who have served this Sunday School as superintendent, and Harmony church as deacon, no one was more highly esteemed than brother Long, and he was worthy of all the kindness and affection he received.

Why brother Long should be taken from a field where he was so useful and so much needed, we do not understand. But we humbly bow to the will of our God who doeth all things well.

His devoted wife, who was his faithful helper in all the walks of life, shared equally with him the affections of this church and Sunday School. Our hearts go out in deepest sympathy for her, in this her greatest sorrow. And may the grace of God sustain her.

Resolved, That we say for consolation to sister Long and her children,—look unto Him whom our brother trusted, and wait for a happy reunion in that world where there will be no parting, no weeping, no tears, no mourning. And we invoke the blessing of God upon them.

Resolved, That a copy of these, our prayers and resolutions, be spread on our Sunday School book of records, a copy be presented to the family, and a copy of the same be sent to the Jacksonville REPUBLICAN for publication.

Her temper's always sunny, her hair is ever neat;
She doesn't care for candy—she says it is too sweet!
She loves to study lessons—her sums are always right;
And she gladly goes to bed at eight every single night!

Her apron's never rumpled, her hands are always clean;
With buttons missing from her shoe she never has been seen.
She remembers to say "Thank you," and "Yes, ma'am, if you please!"
And she never cries, nor frets, nor whines; she's ne'er been known to tease.

Each night upon the closet shelf she puts away her toys;
She never slams the parlor door, nor makes the slightest noise;
But she loves to run on errands and to play with little brother,
And she's never in her life been known to disobey her mother.

I long to grasp her hand!"
She's the daughter of Mr. Nobody,
And she lives in Nowhereland!

SEEKING TOMANOWOS.

BY ALVIN H. SYDENHAM.

In the land of the Shoshones, in the rugged valley east of the Teton range, at the most silent hour of a night of unearthly blackness, White Bull, the medicine man, sat by the smoldering embers of his fire, considering the question of selecting from the young warriors of his tribe a new war chief who would be friendly to his personal interests.

Red Eagle, the old war chief, who had three days before succumbed to the displeasure of the Bad God by dying of a fever, and was even now being mourned among the pines on the hillside, as the plaintive shrieks of lamenting relatives borne on the night wind indicated, had to be replaced; and to replace a warrior who has led his people from victory to victory for thirty summers is an act requiring the most mature deliberation. Among the young braves the two most eager for the election were Whirlwind and Washakie, both brave warriors, and both far enough ahead of their competitors in deeds of blood and prowess to be considered the only rivals for the position.

As White Bull was peering through the folds of his blanket into the dying embers, a hand stole through the flap of the tepee, which was presently followed by the body of a young warrior, gliding serpentlike in from the darkness.

"Whirlwind, son of the Gray Wolf, what brings thee here?" asked White Bull, not deigning to move. "Hast thou not found the tomanowos?"

"No, White Bull. Four days have I fasted at the top of the thunder-rock; naked and without food, yet I have dreamed not. The Great Spirit has not revealed the secret of the tomanowos. Since breath went out of the body of old Red Eagle have I struggled with Bad God, who is seeking to destroy me. But thy magic power, White Bull, can aid me much. Make me war chief of my people, and all my wealth is thine. Thou knowest the value of the ponies, and of the arrows, and of the furs."

"The Whirlwind is a brave and well-spoken young man. White Bull remembers his endurance in the sunlance. Go now secretly to the grave of Red Eagle and wait until the White Bull comes. Let none of the women see thee."

The young man threw himself to the ground and glided out at the opposite side of the tepee. No candidate for the chieftainship will risk the danger of returning upon his trail. It is an action suggestive of retreat.

After some moments the medicine man struck sharply upon a tomtom and shook the rattle at his girdle violently. He had not long to wait before the flap of the tepee opened again and a tall young man stood before him.

"Does Washakie still desire to be war chief?" he asked, motioning the young man to a seat upon the ground.

"Washakie, bravest of the Shoshones, claims the right to be war-chief."

"But thou hast no ponies to ride in battle. Thou comest not of the chief's blood. Thou hast married no daughter of a chief. By what right, therefore, dost thou aspire to this highest honor of the tribe?"

"By the right of manhood. By my strong arm, by my swiftness, by my skill with the bow and tomahawk, and by my stealth and cunning, I have slain more enemies than any warrior of the tribe. The Bad Spirit can't cheat me. I shall be war chief, and thou shalt aid me, White Bull."

"Good! but what hast thou now for thy tomanowos?"

"The heart of a grizzly bear, the brain of a panther, the arrow-thorn that grows on the thunder-rock, the eye of a lynx, and the foot of a gray wolf."

"Good, my son; but it is not enough. White Bull, wisest of the Shoshones, alone knows the secret of the tomanowos. He can take the young warriors to the spot, but they have not the courage to follow. When they go to wrench the secret from the bowels of the earth, their blood becomes like water. Hast thou a nerve of iron? Will thou follow the White Bull into the country of the fire arrow into the land of the Piss-Splatter?"

"To any spot thou namest."

"Then meet the White Bull at the foot of the thunder-rock at sunrise. He will lead thee into the land of the Fire Spirit, and show thee the secret of the tomanowos."

An hour later the White Bull was [illegible]

the crater, they turned their backs upon the Fire-Hole basin and crossed the mountains into the land of the Shoshones. White Bull at the council fire told of a fight between the two rivals and the Fire Spirit, in which Washakie had been slain, but Whirlwind had come away victorious. Then the crafty deed of the medicine man was rewarded by the election of Whirlwind as war chief.

That summer, when he led his people against the neighboring tribes, Whirlwind placed the tomanowos in the beak of the eagle which crowned his war-bonnet. Though foremost among the falling braves, he received no wound. Bullets struck away the feathers of his war-bonnet, his pony was killed, the wings of the eagle were torn away, but Whirlwind was not touched. And until the Bad Spirit swept the valleys of Idaho with a plague twenty years later, Whirlwind remained the invincible war chief of the Shoshones; for his people believed the tale which White Bull had told of the power of his tomanowos.—Lippincott's Magazine

You have sick headache occasionally, with sour stomach and biliousness. This all comes from a sluggish action of the liver.

There are three things you can do. You can take liver pills which cleanse the whole system out but leave you weakened and exhausted. Ask your druggist for Ramon's Tonic Liver Pills. He will give you two boxes of medicine. These boxes contain exactly what every leading doctor prescribes. You first take a Ramon's Pill which opens the bowels easily and naturally, without violence. You then take the Ramon's Tonic Pellets daily for a fortnight.

TOMMY AND TOODLE.

The Reason Why a Pug Dog Stole a Little Girl's Doll.

"Tommy, where is Toodle?"

Tommy sat up on his hind legs and hung his paws beseechingly. That was his way of saying: "I don't know where my dear Toodle is myself, but if you will find her for me I will be very much obliged."

Tommy is a pug dog and Toodle is his dolly. He loves her as much as if he were a little girl; its mistress has never allowed other little boys to laugh at him for playing with a doll.

"It was his mistress who was asking him about Toodle now; she was a pretty young lady named Miss Fanny.

"Tommy," she asked again, this time very slowly and solemnly, "where is Toodle? Poor Toodle. Tommy doesn't love Toodle. Where is Toodle?"

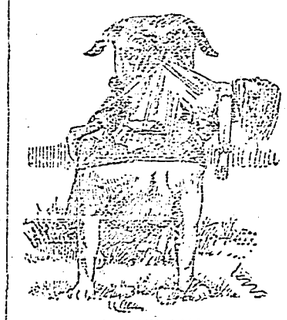

Tommy saw she was not going to find his doll for him, so he gave a sharp little bark as he got down onto his four legs again and ran out of the house.

It was in the summer and he was living in a cottage on a quiet seashore where the front doors stood open all day long. Tommy knew all his neighbors and now he trotted over to the next house. There there was a little girl named Mabel. Mabel was playing with her doll Amy. She was bigger and prettier than poor Toodle, who was only rubber.

"Have you seen Toodles?" asked Tommy, but Mabel had never learned dog talk, and she only dropped her doll and began to run away, crying: "Tommy's barking at me. I'm 'fraid."

Then Tommy did a dreadful thing; he picked up Amy in his teeth and broke for home with her as hard as he could go, and when Mabel saw that she began to cry in good earnest.

Tommy went straight to Miss Fanny and showed her the baby he had kidnaped, but he began to run again whenever she tried to come near him;

DOG AND DOLL.

Mabel soon followed, panting and sobbing out: "He'll kill her! O, Miss Fanny, he'll kill her!"

"Don't run after him, or he will by accident; he doesn't mean to hurt her," said Miss Fanny, while Tommy walked sedately out onto the back porch and lay down with Amy still in his mouth.

"Do you know where Toodle is?" said Miss Fanny, and Mabel understood her, and said yes. Toodle was at their house on the garret stairs, where Tommy had remembered leaving her there when he went over and asked Mabel about her.

"You go get her," said Miss Fanny. "I'll watch him while you are gone, and he'll give up Amy when he sees his own dollie."

And sure enough that was just what he did. Amy was prettier, but poor rubber Toodle with no clothes on was the one he loved. He gave one look when Miss Fanny showed him to her, and then ran and grabbed her in his mouth, and settled himself with her just as you see him on the picture. Miss Fanny photographed him.

"Isn't he a dear, Miss Fanny, don't you think he is?" said Mabel, after she had gathered Amy to her bosom and made up her mind to play she'd been carried off by a dog.

"Well, he's a dear child, you know, and only children are always spoiled," said Miss Fanny, but the truth was she thought he was the greatest dog in the world.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

ADVENTURE IN PERU.

A French Savant Rescued from Certain Death Just in Time.

A French archæologist, M. Charles Wiener, had occasion to measure the height of an interesting Indian observatory in Peru. The ancient structure stood at the top of a precipice, at the foot of which ran a river. The undertaking seemed simple enough, but it proved to be an exciting adventure, with some painful results. M. Wiener thus describes it:

I proposed to take the elevation by a simple sounding, using for the purpose a rope knotted after the manner of a log-rope, and weighted at the end with a bar of iron. As I approached the edge of the cliff I was seized with an attack of dizziness. I stepped back, therefore, and lying flat upon my stomach, slipped forward until my head was over the abyss, and my arms were supported by the last available rock.

Then I let down the rope and in six minutes the iron struck the ground on the shore of the river. Satisfied with the result I started to draw up the rope; but the iron, without my knowing it, had caught in a fracture of the rock, and my sudden pull upon it gave me such a jerk that my left elbow lost its point of support, and I fell flat upon the shoulder and began sliding forward.

My constrained position for the last ten minutes had partially benumbed me; it was impossible for me to get up on my feet; and here I was slipping over the edge of the precipice.

Instinctively I put out my hand and seized the only object within reach.

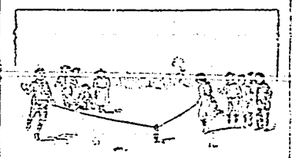

It was a cactus, or the sort known as the torch-thistle. The thorns were driven into the palm of my hand. I cried out with pain, and happily my mule-driver, who had kept prudently in the rear, rushed forward, seized me by the legs, and drew me back to safety.

It took me three hours to extricate the hundreds of spines, barbed like so many fish-hooks, and it was more than three days before I recovered from the torment they had caused me.

AN AMUSING GAME.

How Any Number of Children Can Play "Cat and Mouse."

A good game for from six to twelve children, to be played out of doors, is "Cat and Mouse." The players divide themselves into two camps, the cats and the mice. Both sides draw to decide who will open the game. This being settled, a stake is driven into the earth in the middle of the yard or playground and two ropes are tied to it. One should be about three yards long and the other five. The eyes of the cat and mouse who will open the game are bandaged with handkerchiefs, and each is given the end of a rope, the cat taking the longest one. The game consists in the cat hunting the mouse, by chasing it round and round until caught. Neither cat nor mouse must let go of the ropes. The rest of the players try to help their partners, the cats crying out "minon, minon," when the cat in the center comes near the mouse, and the mice crying "pip, pip," to warn the mouse when he is in danger. As soon as the mouse is caught, the two first players are replaced by two new ones, and the game continues until all the children have had a turn in the center.—Once a Week.

A Retriever's Funny Maneuver.

I knew a dog in Ireland—a large retriever—who had been taught always to bring his own tin dish in his mouth to be filled at the late dinner. For some reason his master wished to make a change and to feed him twice a day, instead of once, to which he had always been accustomed. The dog resented this, and when told to bring his dish refused, and it could nowhere be found; on which the master spoke angrily to him, and ordered him to bring the dish at once. With drooping tail and sheepish expression, he went to the garden and began scratching up the soil where he had buried the bowl deep down to avoid having to bring it at an hour of which he did not approve.—London Spectator.

MESSRS. LIPPMAN BROS., Savannah, Ga.

DEAR SIRS—I will write to inform you that I was afflicted with Blood Disease. I tried one bottle of * * * and it gave me no relief. I was in bed seven months. I tried prominent physicians, and they could not do me any good. I saw your advertisement of P. P. P. in the Apalachicola Times, and thought I would try it. The bottle I got to-night makes seven or eight, and, oh, how good I feel. I have been up ever since and at my business, lumber inspector. You may publish this if you desire. I have informed my friends that P. P. P. is life, health and strength.

CHEAP FEED CHEST.

How to Convert a Sugar Barrel Into a Very Useful Article.

Sugar barrels are much larger than the ordinary flour barrels, and because of the fact that sugar is a heavy commodity—the barrels hold about three hundred pounds—are more substantially made. The accompanying illustration shows one of these barrels converted into a very convenient and useful feed chest for stable use. Such a barrel is also handy in the poultry house for a similar purpose. Where one has room it is well to arrange several barrels in this way, each for a different kind of feed, which makes it convenient for indulging the horses or cattle with occasional changes in their bill of fare

MANAGEMENT OF COWS.

An English Writer Advocates Patient Animals and Kind Treatment.

The following plan of management detailed by an English writer is generally good. Most of us, however, will not agree with his advice to change milkers. He says: Good practical management soon finds out the cows that are good milkers and too soon we hear of the cows that are tough to milk. You may mark them down as bad milking animals. I quite believe in the plan of having each cow's milk weighed, but the want of sufficient and intelligent milkers is an obstacle. The milking should be done as quickly as possible, care being taken to annoy the cow as little as can be helped. Careless and slow milking soon spoil the best of cows and put them difficult to milk for others. It is a good plan to change the milkers at every milking, as it accustoms the cow to different milkers. The cows should be managed quietly and spoken to gently. From calves they should be so treated that they will have nothing to fear from their attendants. Half of the nervous cows one sees have had the life frightened out of them by bad usage. Where cows are abused by bad-tempered milkers, and where, as I have seen, a good cow's tail broken at the rump by a blow from a byre stool, we need not be surprised if some cows are nervous and quick when they see a stranger. Cows being driven by vicious dogs also makes them scared, and I make it a practice not to allow a dog near cows. I have seen some dogs that could be allowed to gather the cows, but only in rare instances, and that where the cows have been reared to it. One quick cow in a herd may do a lot of harm by startling others. When one cow starts the alarm generally the whole crowd follow. Everyone who pays close attention to the milk yield will find that when cows have been alarmed and running, as when for instance they break out of the field, it diminishes the yield of milk. This is why I advocate quiet-tempered cows and kindly treatment.

COWS AND BUTTER.

Some Things Taught by the World's Fair Dairy Test.

The test of cows at the world's fair was significant in more than testing the breeds. A great point was made in favor of small cows, so frequently sniffed at by the man who knows it all. The largest cow tested weighed almost 1,100 pounds. She consumed $22.24 worth of feed while making 147 pounds of butter. During the same period a cow weighing less than 850 pounds only used $22 worth of food to make 179 pounds of butter. Another cow weighing considerably over half a ton used $17.22 of food to make 199 pounds of butter. And another 800-pound cow made from $23.24 worth of food 188 pounds of butter. The two large cows yielded butter at a cost of 15.2 cents and 13.5 cents per pound respectively, while the little cows yielded butter at a cost of 12.58 cents and 12.4 cents per pound. But some one says these little cows are good for nothing for beef when we have got through making butter. This is true; and it is also true that we don't buy a sewing machine or a mowing machine with the view of what they will bring at last at half a cent a pound as old iron. We overlook this and buy them for the work they will do, and demand that it shall be done in the quickest and most satisfactory manner. Don't buy a cow for the beef she will make five or ten years from now.—Hollister Sage, in Country Gentleman.

If the cream is excessively sour, there will be a loss of fat, for in some way it gets the cream in a condition in which it will not give up all its fat.—Farmers' Voice.

Cream, says Mr. Gurler, should always be strained through a wire strainer into the churn. This breaks up any thick cream.

GATHERED BY THE REPUBLICAN'S ABLE CORPS OF CORRESPONDENTS.

PIEDMONT.

June is here and June is lovely, but it will soon be gone. The month of roses, of hot suns, of soft and gentle flower laden breezes! The spring poet feels again the sappy rush of poesy in his blood, for the very name of June is suggestive. It rhymes with tune and soon and moon, also with loon, who could not make a poem with so many good jingles and the thoughts they inspire?

The commencements are over and the happy girl flies away to some secluded nook to rest awile, for June is langourous.

Miss Carrie Monahan is visiting her sister Mrs. Porterfield, of Alexdria, and we all find an aching void without Carrie. The sweetest girl, so full of thought for others, so kind to all!

Mrs Bart Cowden, of Cartersville, Ga., who has been visiting relatives here returned home on Monday carrying three of our girls with her for a summer visit—Misses Mary Lou and Annie Moody, and Miss Nannie Craig.

Miss Fannie Palmer is visiting her sister, Mrs. McKinzie, of Rome.

Miss Myrtle Allgood will leave, on tomorrow, for a long visit to friends and relatives in South Carolina.

Miss Mary Hood and Miss Birdie Sharp will spend awhile in Rome, the guests of Mrs. Abe Glover.

Miss Murla Phillips, of Chattanooga, is visiting her cousin, Mrs. R. C. Craig.

Miss Geneva Johnson arrived at home yesterday to the delight of her many friends. She has taught her first class in Art in the North Alabama College at Fort Payne and given perfect satisfaction. She is a talented artist, as well as a lovely young lady.

Miss Jessie Johnson is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Hunnycutt, in Anniston.

Mrs. Bessie Harbin and Miss Helen Yeatman are rusticating at Wheeler's springs, Cleburne Co. They report lots to eat and a good time generally, and as the hotel there is kept by Mrs. Enloe, formerly of Cedartown, we may be sure the guests are well treated. A party from this place went up there Sunday, dined, and returned well pleased with their trip. They were Adger Alexander and Miss Daisy McCollister, Tom Woodruff and Miss Lou Elgin, Charlie McCollister and Miss Mamie Monahan. Guards: Walker Sharp, Will Pope and E. W. Ledbetter.

E. W. Ledbetter leaves today for the Epworth League Convention at Chattanooga.

Mr. Verlenden, a stock holder in cotton mills, is enjoying life, and good water, at Wheeler's springs.

Mrs. Claude Wolf, late of Knoxville, Tenn., with her little daughters, is the guest of her brother, Dave Cowden. She is on her way to Washington to join her husband H. W. Wolf, who has been promoted in railroad matters to a higher and more lucrative position.

A fishing party composed of W. J. Alexander, Will Alexander, Sharp Stewart, Tom Wilkerson and G. W. Alexander hied themselves away to Crouch's Mill this morning, on Terrapin creek, loaded with fishing paraphernalia. As Mr. Brewster said last week: they generally succeed in having good success.

The versatile editor of the Inquirer, Mr. Vickers, is going to try "pastures new" and start a brand new Inquirer at Tallapoosa, Ga. What is going to be done with the Piedmont paper doth not yet appear, but it is supposed that Mr. Brewster will make it interesting.

Before closing I would like to give a word of caution to the ladies who may have an editorial bee in their bonnets. Don't go it blind. Make a contract with the editor who lets you get out a "special edition." Have it in black and white. Don't undertake it unless he turns the office over to you, and you can hire your own printers. Dont jumble your edition up with other work. Don't undertake it at all unless you can possess your soul with patience, and have so much charity that you are fit for the kingdom of Heaven.

ALEXANDRIA.

The closing exercises of the Alexandria Academy last Friday night, were very enjoyable. Prof. Glass is an excellent teacher, and, besides having given such general satisfaction as a teacher, has during the one term that he has been here, succeeded in heating the school building, and furnished it with desks, and made other small improvements. It is to be hoped he will remain with us another year.

Miss Maggie Woodruff who has been visiting her brother here, has returned to her home near Gadsden.

Miss Carrie Monahan, of Piedmont, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Porterfield.

Mr. J. D. Green, of Oxford, spent Sunday with his parents here.

We are making preparations for the District meeting, that is to begin at Mt. Zion Church, on Friday night, and continue until Sunday.

Mr. Howell, of the firm of Howell and Clark, who has been quite ill, is improving.

Mr. H. J. Dean, Jr., is visiting in Calera this week.

We had a fine rain and some hail yesterday afternoon, but not enough to damage the crops.

Master Charley Martin, Jr., has a pair of goats with which he and his friends are much entertained.

WHITE PLAINS.

Recent fine rains have made our corn prospect very fine.

Oats are being harvested, and the crop is the best we have had for a long time.

We need a canning factory at White Plains. Our fruit and berry crop is abundant, and if it could be marketed, would bring us much silver. When will we learn to the best advantage what nature so freely gives us? We might all be rich if we would but do this.

Messrs. W. C. Scarbrough and J. C. Watson attended the meeting of the board of trustees of the Talladega District School, at Anniston last Tuesday. Prof. Petty was elected principal of the school. He comes highly recommended, and with the hearty support of the district will no doubt succeed in building up a first class high school. Prof. Petty is a native Alabamian, and a teacher of experience and ability.

Prof. T. A. Anderson and family, of Texas, are visiting friends and relatives here. Prof. Anderson is president of the Nacogdoches University. He has a fine school, and is so acceptable to the Texas people that at the last meeting of his board of trustees, he was elected for a term of two years. Prof. Anderson was reared and educated in Calhoun county, and is a son of whom Calhoun may well feel proud, and of the many good teachers we have sent out, no one is more successful than he, nor any more deserving of promotion.

Dr. J. L. Baker is on a visit to his father in Madison, Ga.

There is so little sickness that two or three other doctors might go on a visit and no one suffer on account of it.

JENKINS.

Our little burg is quite lively just now. The blacksmith has more work than he can do. Farmers are neck deep in work, for their oats are to cut, corn to lay by, and many other things ta be done right now.

Mrs. Eaddy and little George are visiting friends here.

Miss Kate Watson is visiting relatives in Oxford this week.

Mr. Joseph Whiteside, of Oxford, is visiting his sister, Miss. Lizzie Whiteside, at his former home near here.

Richard Whiteside went to Oxford last week to see the home folks.

CHOCCOLOCCO.

Our farmers have been in a rush for several weeks, and they have their crops in good condition. We are through with cutting wheat. This year that crop is below the average.

Some of our people are cutting oats. The oat crop is above the average this year.

The crop of whortleberries is considerably above the average. It is reported that Mr. W. W. Scott, of Iron City, has bought and shipped three or four hundred dollars worth. A negro man near here carried fourteen bushels to Anniston the other day and they brought him twenty-four dollars.

Now, Mr. Editor, don't you poor town people envy us country folks? Blackberries are ripe, and so are whortleberries, mulberries, dewberries, peaches, apples and plums. We have plenty of beans, roasting ears and other garden sas, with corn in the crib, wheat in the garner, meat and molasses in the smoke house, plenty of milk and butter, good fat mules. If we have not these things we should have them, so why fret about gold and silver like you town folk.

Summer lights have opened up in our town. Some good colored Baptist sisters, after shouting on Sunday and Sunday night, decided they would stop the sanctified business, and on going home met one of the sanctified women, knocked her down and broke one of her ribs. They were called before Judge Teague, who decided that they were rather too zealous. He tried one, who contributed nine dollars to the business. The other he sent to Judge Crook.

There is a colored couple near here that has not been getting along very well for some time. Occasionally a fight would result. The old lady got the best of it the last time and sorter skinned up the old man's head with a brick.

A son of Mr. Holloway died Monday.

Mrs. Tom Francis and children are visiting Mrs J. E. Downing, sister of Mrs. Francis. Miss Downing of Anniston, is visiting the same family.

Hon. Dick Kelly, and children of Anniston, visited Mr. Kelly's mother on Sunday.

Messrs. John Hughes and Jim Bell have rented Messrs Scarbrough and Milligan's thresher, and will begin to thresh wheat this week.

Lindsay Scarbrough has returned from school at Greensboro.

The entire sanctified band of colored people are to be baptized by immersion next Sunday at Downand Morris mill. There are about seventy-five of them.

CANE CREEK.

There was a most enjoyable fishing party at Francis' gin last Saturday. The young people to the number of thirty, chaperoned by a few older people, gathered there, and spent a most delightful day. The time was pleasantly spent in fishing, boatriding, playing croquet and eating a fine dinner. Miss Fannie distinguished herself by catching the only fish that was caught. Louis was distinguished for his dignity; Tom, for his politeness; George, for his handsome martial bearing; and John and Frank for appetite and capacity.

Last Thursday we had a terrific rain, and on the 25th., a very destructive rain, hail and wind storm. It was almost a cyclone, and trees and fences were blown down. Great damages was done to the crops.

We are promised an essay by one of our most attractive young ladies in in the near future. Her subject will be "my first beans and potatoes." We shall be delighted to send it to the REPUBLICAN for publication. It will make mighty instructive reading. Be good to cut out and put in a scrap book.

Mac Pilkinton plowed up the boss snake. He says it was at least sixteen feet long, and that the scales on it bent the point of his plow. The mule kicked at it and the snake grabbed at his foot, caught hold of the shoe and pulled it off. The snake made off with the shoe in its mouth and Mac and the mule made for home.

The big booger of Morrisville is learning to ride a bicycle, and has succeeded in standing on his head. The boys say he cites rulings of the supreme court when his bike gets contrary.

OXFORD.

The papers report times improving, prices advancing, manufactories resuming work, iron gone glimmering, and that the gold standard folks are happy, or pretend to be, because they think or pretend to think, that the condition Mr. Carlisle predicted when he advocated the cause of the people, and the cause of the Democratic party, would be "worse than war, famine or pestilence," is bringing prosperity instead.

But let me tell you something. It's no single gold standard policy that's producing anything good. It's the silver lining in the cloud. Already those who are far sighted in business matters see that free coinage is coming, and that the country is going to be prosperous, and they are just simply taking time by the forelock. That's all.

Now if the prospect of free and unlimited coinage of silver on equal terms with gold has already begun to usher in better times, will it not be grand when hope ends in fruition; and this,—the best government the world ever saw,—is on the same financial basis it lived and did well on from the time the Declaration of Independence said, "These colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent, 'till 1893, when the republican party demonetised one-half the people's standard money, and made them poor indeed?

They tell us that there's plenty of silver dollars in the U. S. Treasury, and that the government will ship stacks of them, free of express charges, to any bank in the country, but that the banks don't want it,—that they had rather pay $1.50 per thousand on gold and greenback.

Well that's so. The banks don't want silver, but the people do. And the way for the people to get it, is for those who have bullion to have it coined, and fill every pocket about their old clothes with bright, new silver dollars, and carry them home with them and buy land, and hogs, and corn, and chickens, and potatoes, and watermelons and blackberries. Don't you see that will scatter it broad cast all over the country.

We don't want the government to coin the silver and keep it or pay the fellow gold or greenbacks for it. The seignorage will make as much silver money as the government will need. We want the silver coined for the people. They need it, and they are going to have it, and the dead certainty that it is coming has already stimulated trade in some places, and the nearer we approach the time of the free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, the more prosperous times will be, until even Oxford will catch on. And the Lord will not have to open the windows of Heaven to accomplish it either. Just the certainty of the free coinage of both silver and gold is all that is necessary, sure enough.

SAM SLIM.

BERA.

Too much rain last week for the farmers in this locality.

Brother Asa Allen will preach the funeral of G. W. Peterson, at New Bethel, the fifth Sunday in June.

Rev. T. S. Winn is slowly recovering from a severe attack of typhoid fever.

J. W. Ray is preparing to erect a steam gin and corn mill in connection with his saw mill.

J. M. Wilkes lost a valuable mule, from sickness, last week; and H. P. Davis lost a good horse.

Esqr. Haynie has been looking around this week in the interest of the Silver Club. He says that every man he has seen, has joined, but one, and that was a half crazy negro.

There was a severe hail storm on the 12th inst., in the lower part of the count, and the upper part of Talladega county. Cotton and corn were both very much injured.

Esqr. Haynie says that the excitement caused by the recent announcement that he was plowing was unnecessary. His neighbors will all swear that he has not plowed a day.

Prof. P. I Storall is in the burg the guest of J. E. Canada.

Thos. N. Dempsey and Miss Lanry Hiatt were married near Bynums Sunday night, Rev. B. P. Bynum officiating.

Miss Sallie Stephenson visited Miss Sallie Haynie Sunday.

SCHENCKS SPRINGS.

Rev. Hugh Johnson filled his appointment at Angel Grove church last Sunday.

J.D. Crow, of Jacksonville, has moved his family out and is camping here now.

We continue to have a large number of visitors here on Sunday. Among those here last Sunday we met: John Journey, Mrs. Watson, Miss Annie Stevenson, Mr. and Mrs. James Crow with Master Ross Liston, Jacksonville; Mrs. W. P. Cooper, Mrs. E. T. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Crook, Mr. and Mrs. Clate Woodruff, Tom Smith, Alexandria; Mr. and Mrs Oliver Usry, Hebron; Bob Hollingsworth, Lee Boozer, Beat 7.

J. C. Keith, of Anniston, is spending a few days at the springs.

Picnics and excursions seem to be the order of the day. Anniston Presbyterian Sunday School had a picnic here last Friday. Judge Lapsley accompanied them. The boys say they never saw as many pretty girls as came with this picnic party.

Cartersville and Cedartown will have a picnic here Friday, 28th.

The farmers are getting along finely with their crops.

I don't think the health of this community ever was better than at present.

Watermelons are blooming and putting on most charmingly.

Alf Dean's many friends would be glad to see him over here. Come, Alf, if you have to straddle a bicycle.

BRUNER.

Everybody down here is looking blue over the damage done by the big rain last Thursday evening. It was the heaviest rain fall that has occurred here in years past. Land was badly washed in many places, and considerable damage was done to crops.

There was a teachers meeting at Boiling Springs on last Saturday. Quite a large number of our people turned out, and some good speaking was listened to. Mr. Miller, as county superintendent of education, is doing a great work for the people of Calhoun county. He deserves the thanks of all our people, regardless of party. The education of our children is one thing we all agree on.

A new boarder arrived at the Bruner hotel on Sunday morning. No arrangements have been made to settle board bill, but we suppose its mother, Mrs. Anna Finley, will make that all right. We want more money and cheap calico now, for it is a nine pound girl.

MORRISVILE.

Rev. W. O. Horton filled his regular appointment at Morrisville, Methodist church last Sunday, and preached a very able sermon to a large and attentive audience. There were three additions to the church.

Mrs. Fannie Reid, of Morrisville, has gone to Eastaboga to visit her kindred and friends in that locality.

The noise of the thresher is heard seperating the straw and chaff from oats and wheat. Oats are turning out very well, wheat not so good.

We had a very heavy rain this evening, also wind and hail which damaged crops some.

A goodly number of people are making preparations to celebrate the "glorious fourth." Some are going to Anniston, some to Harts Ferry, and some to Alexandria. Good luck to all of them.

There is to be a "shindig" at Cedar Grove next Saturday. Grand mother, and all the balance of the family are invited to attend.

OHATCHEE.

Rev. B. B. Nunnelly preached an able sermon at Oak Bowery last Sunday.

Mr. Chas. P. Nunnelly returned to Gadesden Tuesday after a short visit to his family.

Mrs. Landen and Frank Edmunson, of Anniston, who have been visiting Dr. McRae's family, returned home Tuesday.

Miss. Marcy Jones, of Cedartown, and Miss Ethel Pearce, of Anniston are spending a few days with Mrs. A. J. Tarvin.

Jno. Hamilton is quite sick.

Mrs. O. J. Hawkins, who has been very ill, is reported to be improving.

Mrs. R. B. Coker has a large music class at her home and is making quite a success of her work.

Mrs. J. A. McCorcle, formely of this place, who has been visiting her father in Jolly, Texas., pased sher last week, enroute to Florida, where she will join her husband.

Fruit and berries are getting plentiful now and our crops are looking well.

WEAVERS.

Crops are looking well where they have been worked in time, but the majority of them have suffered some from lack of work, and are a little backward.

The oat crop is not so good as it was thought to be a few weeks since.

It rains enough to make it difficult to kill the large grass.

The rock crusher has been moved to the Dothard farm, and the road in that neighborhood is being graded.

A little affray took place last Friday night at a colored peoples' supper, in which one Blackwell struck his knife in Will Cunningham, under the left arm. The wound is doing well, and no fears are entertained that it will result seriously.

Mr. Monk was married last Saturday to Miss. Malinda McDowell.

The Sunday school at this place expects to have a picnic at the caves near here on Saturday, July, 6.

FERGUSONVILLE.

Several of our masons went down to Alexandria on Monday to attend the installation ceremonies.

J. P. Wakefield had a log-rolling on Tuesday.

We had very heavy rains on Thursday and Friday of last week.

Our farmers are busy "laying by" their oldest corn.

The crop outlook is fine. Corn and cotton both are growing rapidly, and the weeds and grass are doing likewise.

Col. Bill LeGrande passed through our village this week.

Wheat and oats are both late, and neither are very good.

Messrs Simpson and Foster are out with their thresher this week.

Messrs Clemments and Donnahoo have moved their saw mill to Silver Run.

Dan Teague, col., has been crazy for more than a week.

Nothing new in our burg. Nobody dead, sick or married. Only peace and quiet.

PEEKS HILL.

Most of our farmers are about to get Gen. Green under control. Harvesting is about over.

The Sunday school at this place is in a prosperous condition. Mrs. Fannie Gore and her two accomplished daughters, Misses Lula and Emma, are workers in our school. We are glad to have them with us, and hope they will remain at this point.

Misses Lena and Maggie Martin, two of Gadsden's accomplished young ladies, have returned to Gadsden after a week's visit to their aunt, Mrs. J. M. Gray.

J. F. Sheppard has gone to Gadsden on business this week.

Crops are looking well in this section and people are encouraged over the outlook for a fine crop.

The Kentucky Convention.

The democratic convention of Kentucky met at Louisville on Tuesday. They nominated Wat Hardin for governor. Hardin is a free silver man, and has canvassed the state making speeches demanding the remonitization of silver. The convention's platform is a straddle. It endorses the platform of 1892 and expresses confidence in Cleveland and Carlisle, and their administration.

Sometime ago I was troubled with an attack of rheumatism. I used Chamberlain's Pain Balm and was completely cured. I have since advised many of my friends and customers to try the remedy and all speak highly of it. Simon Goldsand, San Luis Rey, Cal.

EDUCATIONAL RALLY.

AT BOILING SPRINGS SCHOOL.

Picnic Dinner—Several Addresses—Young Teachers Advised to Attend Jacksonville Normal School.

On last Saturday the people of the western part of the county gave a school picnic at Boiling Springs and invited a number of speakers to address them on educational subjects. Prof. Robinett, who has taught one of the most prosperous schools in the county at Boiling Springs, had issued invitations to Hon. L. D. Miller, Prof. Jacob Forney and a REPUBLICAN representative to be present.

Mr. Miller left Jacksonville on Friday afternoon for Alexandria, where he attended the closing exercises of Prof. Glass' school on that evening. He and Prof. Glass drove down to the springs the next morning. Prof. Forney and J. F. Crook left Jacksonville in the early morning Saturday, and reached the picnic ground about ten o'clock, after a drive of twenty miles.

The church and school building are situated in a beautiful grove on an elevation, and a more pleasant spot can hardly be found in all the county.

The number of people who had gathered there, notwithstanding the busy season on the farms, showed the interest that the people around Boiling Springs are taking in the subject of education. About eleven o'clock all assembled in the church building, which was better suited to the accommodation of the crowd, and Prof. Robinett, in a very appropriate speech of welcome to the visitors, introduced Mr. Miller, county superintendent of education. The greater part of Mr. Miller's speech was devoted to needed legislation upon educational matters. He commented specially upon the Hundley amendment which was lost in the last election. Mr. Miller is a great advocate of this amendment to the constitution and showed clearly that it would be the greatest aid to education in the rural districts. He asked all who heard him to study the matter, and talk it over with their friends, so that, when an opportunity to vote upon it again is given, it will not be lost, as it was before, through lack of interest on the part of our people, and through ignorance of its inestimable benefits. Mr. Miller briefly reviewed the school history of the county during the past twenty years, and showed that while wonderful advances had been made, we had only begun the work.

Prof. Forney spoke next, on the subject, "A practical education and how to get one." It is hardly necessary to say that his speech was brimming full of good solid suggestions. Every one who knows Prof. Forney, and has heard him in the teachers institutes, or classes in the state Normal school, knows how logical and clear and instructive his talks are. He pointed out the mistakes of the teacher and the pupil, and showed how these errors should be corrected. Prof. Forney spoke for forty minutes, and his speech was listened to with great interest.

After a dinner composed of all the good things in the country—a dinner to which those twenty-mile tourists did full justice—Prof Glass, of the Alexandria High School, spoke upon the relationship of the teacher, the patron and the pupil. Prof. Glass is a most entertaining speaker and spoke for thirty minutes to a delighted audience. In the course of his remarks he referred in the most complimentary terms to Prof. Forney, and paid a high tribute to the normal school at Jacksonville, of which Prof. Forney is president. Mr. Glass advised every young man who ever intended to teach, to go to Jacksonville and take the normal course, assuring them that they would never regret the step.

Mr. Crook then addressed the audience on the condition of our public schools and how we are to better it.

Mr. Miller closed the meeting by thanking the good people of Boiling Springs for the interest they were taking in education, and said that the good work they were doing would have its influence throughout the country. He said that the reference of Prof. Glass to the Jacksonville Normal school, prompted him to say that there was no institution in Alabama that offered superior advantages to young men and women who desired to teach. He advised every father and mother to send their sons and daughters there, and assured them that the results would be most satisfactory.

A number of teachers from the surrounding towns were in attendance. Among them were Prof. Stovall, of Bera; Prof. Parabee, of Francis; Prof. Walden, of Bruner, and Prof. Adams, of Quintette.

Before leaving, Prof. Forney distributed some circulars of the Normal school, and received many assurances of interest in the success of that institution.

MONTEVALLO.

Gets The Girls Industrial School.

The board of trustees of the Industrial School for White Girls met in Montgomery last Tuesday to select a location for the new school.

The committee appointed at the last meeting of the board to visit each of the towns applying and investigate their offer, made a report, which was received on motion of Hon. Sol. D. Bloch.

Nominations were then declared in order and Jasper was placed in nomination by Hon. John McOneey, Ozark by Judge Alston, Montevallo by Hon. Thos. Plowman, Wetumpka by Hon. W. W. Wadsworth, Anniston by Dr. Eager, Tuskaloosa by Hon. F. S. Moody, Camden by Hon. Sol. D. Bloch.

The following resolution was introduced by Judge Austill and adopted:

Resolved, That all the places to be voted for be put in nomination an that the vote be taken by ballot, and that each trustee may vote for three places for three successive ballots, and that 25 votes shall be necessary to a choice. If no place be chosen, then on each subsequent ballot each trustee shall vote for but one place, and that on each successive ballot the place receiving the lowest vote shall be dropped and 8 votes be necessary to a choice.

The balloting then began. Anniston fell out first, then Wetumpka, Ozark, Camden and Tuskaloosa in the order named. This left only Jasper and Montevallo. Four times the vote stood Jasper seven Montevallo six, then Messrs. Bloch and Purifoy, Camden's backers, caucused and cast their votes for Montevallo, leaving the result, Montevallo eight, Jasper seven, and Montevallo was accordingly declared duly elected as the location of the Industrial School for White Girls.

Montevallo's offer was four squares of land adjoining the college building, four residences and eight acres of land adjoining, valued at $30,000; forty-room building and dining hall to be erected, $4000; 160 acres Montevallo coal lands, $6400; 200 acres farm lands, $2000; year's supply of coal free, aggregating a total of $42,000.

After settling the location, the trustees entered into an election of a president. There were eight nominations, and after a spirited balloting and speech making, Miss Julia Tutwiler, of Livingston, was elected.

While Montevallo is doubtless a fine location for the school, we are firmly of the opinion that Anniston was decidedly the best location considered by the board of trustees, and we regret exceedingly that she was not selected.

Editors and Publishers.

SATURDAY JUNE 29, 1895.

THE REPUBLICAN.

Established in 1837, is the OFFICIAL JOURNAL of Calhoun, one of the largest and wealthiest counties in Alabama, and in which are located the towns of Jacksonville, Anniston, Oxford, Oxanna and Piedmont.

CIRCULATION.

It has a larger guaranteed county circulation in Calhoun than any other paper.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The subscribers of the REPUBLICAN are the best people in the county,—a class of people with whom it pays to advertise. Than it there is no better advertising medium in this section of Alabama.

THE REPUBLICAN.

REMIND your friends that they ought to subscribe for the REPUBLICAN.

WHILE it will be fearfully hot this summer, it seems that the silver question is to be kept burning.

THE Southern Railway Company continues to increase its mileage. It purchased last week the Atlanta and Florida at a low figure.

ANNISTON and Jacksonville should unite in an effort and make Schencks Sulphur Springs one of the most popular summer resorts in Alabama.

BOARD and tuition can both be had cheap in Jacksonville, and there is no better place in the state to send a boy or girl to school than to the normal school here.

IT is believed that Bob Mosley and Bill Stephens will work shoulder to shoulder in an effort to give McKinley the delegation from Alabama next year.

THE weather is too hot, and the study of finance is entirely too interesting, for any body to think about the removal of the court house.

THE Oxford Enterprise realizes more fully than ever the need of the free coinage of silver, and will do some good work in its neck of the woods for bimetallism.

THE glorious fourth will be celebrated by the people of Calhoun in Anniston. Let the declaration of independence be read so as to rekindle the fires of patriotism in the hearts of our people.

THE WINTER took off nearly all the lizzard's tails in Calhoun county, it killed nearly all the June bugs, and it has left us precious few gold-bugs. The winter of 1894 was rough; wasn't it?

IT is high time that Calhoun was making the necessary preparations for an exhibit at the Atlanta exposition. What has become of the committee appointed to raise the money to make the exhibit?

WE learn that J. C. Wickes of the Piedmont Inquirer will soon start a new paper at Tallapoosa, Georgia. He is a good newspaper man and will doubtless make a success in in that thriving young city.

THE Montgomery Advertiser has a long editorial, now and then, on our deligtful Southern Climate. From the way the boys in Alabama have had her in "a sweat" lately we did not know she was enjoying it.

THE newspaper accounts of the sickness of Governor Atkinson has given Dr. Holmes' sanitarium an advertisement which will no doubt be worth several thousand dollars to him. It is indeed an ill wind which blows no one good.

WHEN Oliver Goldsmith wrote: "Men wants but little here below, Nor wants that little long." It may have been true; but at this age the average man wants more than he can get, and wants it forever.

IT is stated that at the recent meeting of the Republican league in Cleveland, Ohio, eight hundred delegates wore badges bearing the words, "H. Clay Evans, Solid South Breaker."

ANDREW JOHNSON'S time Mr. John G. Carlisle, Secretary of the United States Treasury, by virtue of the appointment received at the hands of Mr. Grover Cleveland, and gives utterance to one of the most democratic speeches heard, for many a day in free America. When asked, if he would accept the challenge of congressman Bryan, a man elected to congress by the votes of the people, he throws himself back, seizes the lappel of his coat with one hand, catches the other thumb in the armhole of his vest, and says with great gravity, and "profound conceit," that he will not DIGNIFY Mr. Bryan by discussing the financial subject with him.

One would judge from this saucy reply, that the baked meats of the Cabinet, had brought Mr. Carlisle to consider himself as one of America's "immortals," and that the joining in a discussion with a MERE CONGRESSMAN, would be a dignity to the latter and an indignity to himself. It may be that Mr. Carlisle has magnified himself in his own estimation. He may in very truth picture himself a Colossus among men, and from his giddy height look down with feelings of superiority upon all around him. He may do all this, but we think better of him. We incline to the belief that Mr. Carlisle's trip to Kentucky and Tennessee has been an eye opener to him. He had heard of the silver craze, as it has been called, and expected to throw himself in its way, and stop its advance. But when he made his speeches, and talked with his old companions, and learned the truth, he realized as did the Queen of Sheba who went to visit Solomon, that the half had not been told him.

It was on his way back to Washington city, with fallen crest, and dispirited ambitions that he was asked to meet Mr. Bryan, and made this arrogant reply.

Oh! Mr. Carlise, pardon us if we illustrate! Your march upon Kentucky recalls to mind the celebrated Danish King, Knute, who took his seat upon the beach and bade the rising tide come no further. History, whether true or false, relates that the king retired a wetter and a wiser, though an angry man. And you, Mr. Carlisle, are wiser though you are angry, since your experience with the silver tide, that bore you back to Washington.

THE Montgomery Advertiser after having repeatedly denied that Mexico was prospering, is softening a little, and now says that Mexico is more prosperous than any other of the silver using countries, because she produces and coins her own silver.

This is a step towards the front for the Advertiser. Now that it has evinced a desire to tell the truth or rather to tell something that has a "leaning towards" the truth, as well as willingness to investigate, it might do well to make a study of Japan. Here is a country that twenty years ago adopted the single gold standard, and found it a menace to its advancement. Returning to the use of silver, Japan's history has been one of glorious progress. She has just completed a war with China, and the victory she gained has called forth the admiration of the civilized world.

What is the matter with Japan? Let this be the question of the Advertiser. It may yet live to know the truth, and to tell it. The fruits of this campaign of education are even now becoming manifest.

"SOUND MONEY," the latest attack on "Coin's Financial School," is being circulated throughout the country. The first testimonials that greet one on opening it is that of John Sherman, who says that it is a complete answer to Coin, and he thanks the author for theirs efforts.

We shall read the book, though we do not expect to take the same view of it as Mr. John Sherman takes. We have always tried to differ just as much as possible with Mr. Sherman, believing that he is the arch enemy of the common people of America. So if Mr. Sherman says that "Sound Money" is a complete answer to "Coin"; and that "Sound Money" is in accord with his views; then we are convinced more than ever that "Coin's" views are correct. Anything on earth except Shermanism!

ADVERTISERS who want to speak to the people of Calhoun county will do well to remember that the REPUBLICAN is now read by more than twice as many paying subscribers in the county than is any other paper.

LET the teachers of the county carry forward this summer their usial campaign in the interest of education. Picnics, with speeches favoring the better education of the masses, will result in good. So on with the campaign.

THE gold bugs will tell you that free coinage drives gold out of the country, makes it timid, forces it to flee away and hide itself in the coffers of non-silver-using countries, and that it will bring a train of evils on the country that will fetter industry and stop development. Turn him around and ask him why this silver using country, Mexico has continued to thrive under a free coinage of silver. Listen at him grow wise and tell you that it is not the silver that makes railroads pay in Mexico and that, builds cotton factories there, but that it is American and English gold. Turn him around again and ask him if he did not say that silver drove gold out of a country.

Then ask him if we had not better emulate Mexico so that American gold at home to develope our industries and make our railroads pay dividends, and so that we could get some of that English gold to aid us without being obliged to have the United States borrow it of her at the rate of fifty or a hundred millions per year. What will the gold bug say? Not a word. Just look at you with that same intelligent stare.

"The Advertiser sneers at any one who wishes to see the white people of Alabama united, remarks the new Alliance Herald. Sneer is a mild word: this paper has no sort of patience with any one who would play the role of Tillman in this State."—Advertiser.

YET the Advertiser was only a few days since complaining because South Carolina was getting all the cotton mills, and Alabama almost none. Do you know, Advertiser, that Tillman lives in that state? He does. And while we are on the subject of patience, do you know that the autocratic, bulldozing, arrogant and vindictive disposition which has grown on you of recent years has had much to do with the keeping away of these enterprises? Do you know that the noise of the discord and dissension that you have so materially aided in stirring up among the white people of Alabama, has gone beyond the confines of the state and effectually barred the door against these industries? Speaking of patience, do you know that the people of Alabmaa have marked you, and that they have "no sort of patience" with the paper that has proven itself the greatest barrier to the prosperity of this state?

GOV. OATES tried to make the impression upon the people of Alabama, in his recent letter, explain his conduct in the Randolph affair, that he was a kind hearted man.

Well, in this particular case he may have shown it, but he has here of late been guilty of one of the most heartless—almost inhuman—acts that can well be imagined.

Why, he will not let the Advertiser—that great champion of Governor Jones, and would-be defender of Gov. Oates—say one word of him. How cruel to place a muzzle on the Advertiser! How heartless to gag her this way, and not allow, either a word of praise or one defense. The Governor is shrewd. He does not just now wish to be caught in bad company, and at present writing, this well-meaning friend of Gov. Oates, is in rather bad repute in old Alabama.

THE gold standard clubs of New York are not only offering to send broadsides to be sent out as supplements to weekly newspapers, but the REPUBLICAN received a proposition this week to have sent it weekly a quantity of plate matter free of cost,—even the express to be prepaid.

Shylock is willing to spend his thousands to saddle upon this country for years the single gold standard, which insures that he is to grow fat at the expense of the common people.

But the REPUBLICAN wants none of Shylock's broadsides or plate matter. It is fighting for the relief of a people who can never get out of debt and become prosperous under a law which doubles their indebtedness and continues to decrease the value of their property.

IT is very early to commence talking about congressional timber for next year; but people will talk, and we have heard the following gentlemen mentioned in connection with the race in the Fourth District: Robbins, H. S. D. Mallory, John Burns, Dallas; Judge Cobb, Shelby; T. S. Plowman, Cecil Browne, J. B. Graham, Talladega; S. D. G. Bothers, J. M. Caldwell, Calhoun.

FOREIGN advertisers are beginning to appreciate the value of the REPUBLICAN as as an advertising medium, for its space is in greater demand than at any time in the past. It is rapidly being realized by advertisers that reach the people of Calhoun county they must get into the columns of the REPUBLICAN.

THE great fear expressed as to the free coinage of silver by those who desire to continue the present system of finance, which is rapidly financially damning the common people, is that it would drive gold out of circulation. Congressman Bankhead in answering this objection in his Mobile speech said:

"Facts are better than prophecies. In 1873 silver was robbed of its power as legal tender. In 1878 the people forced congress to enact what was known as the Bland-Allison act. From 1873 to 1878, when silver was absolutely dethroned, the United States exported $150 000 000 more gold than was brought in 1878, when the government began to coin silver dollars and during the continuance of the Bland-Allison act we increased our gold in the United States $450,000,000.

While we were putting into circulation $350,000,000 silver dollars we were bringing from other shores $450,000,000 of gold."

Among other things Capt. Bankhead said in his Mobile speech are the following:

"I maintain that the United States can go to the free coinage of silver without the aid of any other country in the world. For many reasons, silver countries cannot use gold, it is not devisable enough for small change, but why can not the United States go to the silver standard alone? They say we cannot maintain the parity of the bullion without gold money. We propose to maintain the parity of the money. The American silver dollars is worth $1 in Liverpool today less one-half cent exchange. It's legal tender qualities gives it the value all over the world. Now, who will deny it?

The founders of the republic builded wiseley when they established a double standard. There is no substitute that can be found for money. If gold should become scarce by reason of exhaustion or cornered, as it is now, the people, could say we will pay you in silver if you restore the coinage.

They say that it is overproduction that produces low prices. An! it is underconsumption. How is it that nearly one-half of the laboring men of the country have been transformed into tramps? The opposition are very zealous to preserve labor and wages. If you will give labor employment labor will take care of wages.

What we need is to apply a remedy that will cause this life blood in commerce and trade to flow, and the way to do it is to re-enact the law that destroyed one-half of the money of this country, and in my humble opinion it can be done no other way.

We want a money that is honest, sound and just. There may be enough money in the United States if it was circulating, but it is not

A continuous era of falling prices can bring nothing but distress, and has been so since time eternal.

How can a man make up his mind to buy real estate if the outlook is that it will decrease 10 or 20 per cent in a few years time.

What we want is to restore silver. This great financial structure was built upon two pillars—one has been torn away, and this immense structure is now standing on one pillar, towering higher and higher, and will eventually topple over, and if we do not apply the remedy it will be too late—too late.

The chains and shackles are being forged. Shall we stand by and see them rivited? We have a duty to perform. That duty is, in my judgement, that which I have indicated. All of these political reformations must come through political organization.

I have been a life-long democrat, and believe four fifths of people are agreed with me on this question. We know that the republican party stands against it, and we must stand together and get a plank of 16 to 1 ratio in the national platform and go into the convention that way, and we can win on that platform.

All of you gentlemen buckle on the armor and declare to nominate one who believes with us.

I would not be here to urge these principles if I did not believe I am right and am with the people. Silver is the money of the country. It is entwined around the democratic party."

SUCH men as Cleveland, Sibley, Carlisle and Byran may desert the democratic fold it the next national convention does not adopt a financial plank to suit them, but the genuine, loyal democrats, those who have no sympathy with mugwumpism, recognize that there is no hope of relief for the people outside the Democratic party, and will continue to fight under the old democratic banner, no matter whether it is lettered with silver or gold.

THE Selma Times thinks Hon. Charley Hooper fine gubernatorial timber, and we think the Times knows what it is talking about. He is all right. He is among the strong free silver men of the state, and after Joe Johnston has served for four years we are willing to take Hooper.

WHILE the gold standard men now pretend to hold out the hope of the repeal of the ten per cent on state banks as a relief from the evils of our present financial system, let it be born in mind that the same men in the last congress who opposed the free coinage of silver also opposed the repeal of the state bank tax.

THE STATE PRESS.

It has been the boast of the Advertiser that the men who supported Gov. Oates last year were simon pure democrats, and could stand by the nominee and the same time it said that unless Johnston was nominated his friends would go over to Kolb in large quantities. Now the Advertiser's ideal comes out and says if a "free silver platform is adopted many democrats will vote the republican ticket." It will take the governor a long time to repair the damage that a remark like that will do the democratic party.—Selma Times.

The Oneonta News, one of the best weeklies in the state, says: "The man or newspaper that says the people of Alabama are in a prosperous condition is either an ignoramus or a gigantic animal of the Munchausen species. True, they are not yet on the verge of starvation, but there are scores of families in every county in Alabama who are unable to send their children to school, because they've no means to buy clothes or books for them. It is a damnable crime for the hired tools of the Rothschild-Morgan syndicate to make these assertions, and sooner or later God's vengeance will fall upon their guilty heads. You may call us a 'silverloon,' but we thank God you cannot charge us with being a liar.

The Montgomery Advertiser says:

"But then Birmingham, the head centre of the silverites in this state, sent only seven delegates, and Montgomery only one, who left at the end of the first day. Evidently Alabama isn't half so wild about silver as The State has been boasting."

And Montgomery, the supposed head centre of the gold bugs, had but one delegate to the Memphis goldbug meeting, and the presumption is, he being a newspaper man, that he traveled on a free pass.

Honorable Craig Smith, who went to the silver convention, was forced to pay his way in those blasted 50 cent half dollars. Evidently Montgomery isn't half so wild over gold as the postoffice organ would have the outside world to believe. So far as delegates go, and so far as Montgomery is concered, was 1 to 1.—Montgomery Journal.

We hear goldites continually asserting that the free coinage of silver would at once drive all the coin out of the country, because an over-valued coinage always expels an under-valued coinage. At the same time they tell us, with great chuckling, of the suspension in 1806 by Mr. Jefferson of the coinage of the silver dollar, and they pretend that this was done because the coinage of the silver dollar was driving all the gold out of the country, the coinage ratio between the two metals then being 15 to 1, and the commercial ratio being 15.52 to 1.

But the truth was just the opposite of this. It was the over-valued silver that was leaving the country, not the under-valued gold. Here is the proof in Mr. Jefferson's coinage order itself written by his secretary, Mr. Madison:

"Department of State. May 1st, 1806.

"Sir: In consequence of a representation from the director of the bank of the United States that considerable purchases have been of dollars coined at the mint for the purpose of exporting them, and as it is probable that other purchases and exportations will be made the president directs that all the silver to be coined at the mint shall be of small denominations, so that the value of the largest pieces shall not exceed half a dollar. I am, etc. "JAMES MADISON.

"ROBERT PATTERSON, Esq., Director of the Mint."

Thus it seems that it was not the under-valued gold leaving the country, and by its exodus alarming Mr. Jefferson [illegible] Madison [illegible] it was the silver coinage, overvalued at least 3½ per cent, that was running away, and which this much talked of order of Mr. Jefferson was intended to arrest and detain in the country. The so-called Gresham law seems not to have been in operation at that time; or if so, it was not working according to "programme."—State.

THE Selma Times in discussing the postmaster editors of the state has this to say of our Anniston friend:

And then, again, there is our little friend Smith of the Hot Blast. Congressman Robbins named him and King Grover appointed him. Robbins is a rampant believer in the free and unlimited coinage of silver. The Hot Blast is an avowed follower of the golden banner and swears by all that is holy and good that Grover is the greatest man that ever lived outside of Georgia, (Smith being a Georgian) and when he dies he will be wafted on Grover's wings to the golden shores of the New Jerusalem, where golden nuggets are as plentiful as hickorynuts in the fall of the year on top of Blue mountain, over look ing Anniston.

The Times believes that Bro. Smith is at heart a silver man, but he is dominated somewhat by Alderman Henderson, of the first ward who thinks Grover will be an angel as soon as the flying machine man makes wings big enough and strong enough to transport him across chasm in the democratic party.

The Cuban Expeditions.

For some time past the Cuban sympathizers in this country have made Florida the seat of operation. Telegrams from the state have frequently told of meetings, the object of which was to collect men and arms and send an expedition to the relief of the struggling patriots. Last week an expedition did leave the state, and Spain has entered a protest.

The president has issued a proclamation, warning those who may be engaged in such attempts, that the law of nations places the heaviest penalties on such violators, and giving notice that detection means a full infliction of such penalty.

This is right. The United States as yet cannot recognize the insurgents of Cuba, although the sympathies of the people of the union are with them. The proclamation will not stop these attempts for the relief of the patriots. The groans of Cuba, as she lies crushed and bleeding under Spanish taxation and tyrany, will awake a responsive echo in America, that will incite daring men to try the most dangerous means for her relief.

We learn that some one in hauling logs to a saw mill, tore one of the bridges on the public road near Weavers, and went away leaving it in a torn up condition, so as to make it very dangerous for any person who might have passed there after night. We learn that similar injuries have been done bridges in other places. Commissioner Coker was in the REPUBLICAN office last Friday, and says he proposed to look after this matter in his district, and see to it that the public bridges are not torn up in such a manner hereafter.

We had a pleasant visit last night from Hon. J. F. Stallings who so honestly and ably represents the second district in congress. He is on his way home to wage a war on what few gold bugs he has in his district, and to convert them from the error of their way. Mr. Stallings, is needless to say, doesn't care to await John Bull's consent to the restoration of silver.—Birmingham State.

THE Hon. Jesse's district has some of the worst sinners in the state, and needs missionary work badly. Messrs Screws and Glass have fallen from free silver grace with a fearful thud and if their congressman succeeds in reclaiming them, we hope he will lose no time in heralding the good news all over the land. While their financial soul seems to be calloused, the congressman while laboring with them can be encouraged with the thought that "while the lamp holds out to burn, the vilest sinner may return."

AN ACT

To dispose of lands which have been or which may hereafter be sold for taxes and bid in for the State and which have not been redeemed or purchased from the State.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Alabama. That all lands which have been or which may hereafter be sold for taxes and bid in for the State and which have not been redeemed or purchased from the State, or which may not be redeemed or purchased from the State under existing laws shall where such lands have been, or may hereafter be held by the State for two years, become the property of the State.

Sec. 2. Be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the Auditor, as soon as practicable after the first of January, 1895, and each year thereafter, to prepare and forward to the Probate Judge of each county in the State a list of all lands sold for taxes in their respective counties and bid in for the State, and which have not been redeemed or purchased from the State and which have been held by the State for more than two years.

Sec. 3. Be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the Judge of Probate of each county upon the receipt of the list provided for in the foregoing section to compare the same with the list in his office, and in each case when he finds the same correct to have the lands described in the list sent him by the auditor advertised once a week for three successive weeks in some newspaper, published in the county, for sale to the highest bidder for cash. He shall also post a copy of this law and a copy of said list at the court house and at some public place in each precinct in the country for three weeks before the sale. If no newspaper is published in the county, then the posted notices shall be sufficient. The expense of such advertisement shall be paid out of the proceeds of sales at the same rate that is now paid for advertising land for tax sales. The bills for such advertisments, however must be first sent to the Auditor of the State, and be approved by him before payment by the Probate Judges.

Sec. 4. Be it further enacted, That all sales under this act shall be to the highest bidder for cash, to be paid to the Probate Judge making the sales. The sales shall commence on the first Monday in November, 1895, and each November thereafter, at 12 m., and shall continue from day to day until all lands are disposed of. When such sales are concluded each Probate Judge shall return to the Auditor a copy of the list sent him, showing what lands have been sold, the names of the purchasers and the amount paid by such purchaser for each lot of land purchased by him. In offering the lands for sale, subdivisions touching each other shall be offered in one lot. Each Probate Judge in his return to the Auditor, shall show what lands were not bid for, and what lands were not offered for sale, and the reason why not offered. He shall also show what lands have been redeemed, pursuant to Section 5 of this act, by whom redeemed, and the amount paid for redemption.

Sec. 5. Be it further enacted, That persons having an interest in the lands described in the lists sent to the Probate Judges by the Auditor of the State, as required by this act, may redeem such lands at any time before the sale thereof, as follows: If the lands which it is proposed to redeem have been sold to the State for more than five years, the party or parties redeeming shall pay five years' taxes for the State and county without interest, or costs to be assessed as hereinafter provided. If such lands have been sold to the State less than five years, then the party or parties redeeming shall pay taxes for each year since the sale, without interest or cost to be assessed as hereinafter provided. In redeeming lands under this section, parties who have paid taxes on such lands after tax sales to the State are to be allowed credit for the taxes so paid, and if they have paid taxes for the whole time for which they are assessed under this act the Auditor shall make a deed to such parties relinquishing all claim of the State to such party, or parties. But in no case is the State to refund taxes paid in such cases. Parties redeeming lands, advertised for sale under this act, after the first sale in November, 1895, shall be required to pay all taxes due with interest at 15 per centum and all costs. When each Probate Judge shall receive the list of lands forwarded to him under this act, he shall call in the county tax assessor, or persons authorized to assess property in his county, and submit such list to him or them: such tax assessor or assessors, shall fix the cash value of the lands on said list, and shall enter such valuation on said list. Each Probate Judge shall then enter in another column the amount any party redeeming will have to pay the State, the county and any city, assessing the property at the prevailing rate and basing his assessment on the valuation fixed by the assessor. If any lots or lands described in such list are situate in the corporate limits of any city, and such city had claims thereon for unpaid taxes, such city, through its proper authorities, may agree to receive its proportionate amount of any moneys paid by the parties redeeming, and in such case shall inform the Probate Judge of the rate of tax assessed by such city, who will calculate the amount due such city as required to do for the State and county and in such cases parties redeeming and paying to the Probate Judge the money due shall be discharged from any other claims on account of taxes therefor due the State, county or such city. The county tax assessor shall receive four dollars per diem while engaged in fixing the cash value of property on said lists as hereinabove required, one-half to be paid by the county and one-half by the State. He shall make up his account against the State for the amount to be paid by the State, and forward same to the Auditor sworn to and accompanied by a certificate of the Probate Judge. When satisfied of the correctness of said account the Auditor is authorized to draw a warrant for the amount.

Sec. 6. Be it further enacted, That the Probate Judge shall be allowed one per centum on the money paid for redeeming lands under this bill, and two and a half per centum on proceeds of sales under the bill. After such sales are concluded and the expenses and commissions are deducted each Judge of Probate shall pay to the treasurer of his county the proportionate amount of proceeds the county is entitled to, and if any city or town is entitled to any part thereof, he shall pay to the official of such city, or town, the proportionate amount it may be entitled to, and the balance he shall send to the Treasurer of the State, with a full account of the amount of money received by him under the provisions of this bill, and how the same has been paid out by him.

Sec. 7. Be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the Auditor on receipt of the returns from the Probate Judges, to make out, execute and return deeds to the Probate Judge, for delivery to the purchaser. Such deeds shall convey to the purchasers all rights, title and interest and claim of the State. The form of such deed shall be prepared by the Attorney-General of the State. The Probate Judge shall collect and forward to the Auditor 50 cents for each deed returned to him for delivery to persons redeeming or buying said property, and if such deeds are acknowledged, 50 cents for the officer taking such acknowledgements. That whenever it is made to appear to the Auditor that any land sold at tax sale has been bought or redeemed from the State, and the money paid, and a deed attempted to be made, but which from irregularity as defective, then the Auditor is hereby authorized to execute a deed to said land to such person so buying or redeeming the same, or to any one holding under him.

Sec. 8. Be it further enacted, That purchasers under this act, are authorized to take possession of lands described in their respective deeds, where the same are not held adversely, and are authorized to recover such lands where held adversely. In case of litigation to recover or defend possession acquired under such deeds, the parties to such suits shall have all the rights, and rest under all the disabilities given and imposed by Sections 597, 660, 661, 602, 603 of the Code of Alabama.

Sec. 9. Be it further enacted, That all laws and parts of laws in conflict with the provisions of this act, are hereby repealed.

Approved February 9th, 1895.

Secretary of State.

of all cases of consumption can, if taken in the earlier stages of the disease, be cured. This may seem like a bold assertion to those familiar only with the means generally in use for its treatment; as, nasty cod-liver oil and its filthy emulsions, extract of malt, whiskey, different preparations of hypophosphites and such like palliatives.

Although by many believed to be incurable, there is the evidence of hundreds of living witnesses to the fact that, in all its earlier stages, consumption is a curable disease. Not every case, but a large percentage of cases, and we believe, fully 98 per cent. are cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, even after the disease has progressed so far as to induce repeated bleedings from the lungs, severe lingering cough with copious expectoration (including tubercular matter), great loss of flesh and extreme emaciation and weakness.

Do you doubt that hundreds of such cases reported to us as cured by "Golden Medical Discovery" were genuine cases of that dread and fatal disease? You need not take our word for it. They have, in nearly every instance, been so pronounced by the best and most experienced home physicians, who have no interest in misrepresenting them, and who were often strongly prejudiced and advised against a trial of "Golden Medical Discovery," but who have been forced to confess that it surpasses, in curative power over this fatal malady, all other medicines with which they are acquainted. Nasty cod-liver oil and its filthy emulsions, and mixtures, had been tried in nearly all these cases and had either utterly failed to benefit, or had only seemed to benefit a little for a short time. Extract of malt, whiskey, and various preparations of the hypophosphites had also been faithfully tried in vain.

The photographs of a large number of those cured of consumption, bronchitis, lingering coughs, asthma, chronic nasal catarrh and kindred maladies, have been skillfully reproduced in a book of 160 pages which will be mailed to you, on receipt of address and six cents in stamps. You can then write those cured and learn their experience.

Address for Book, WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.

NOTICE.

I WANT every man and woman in the United States interested in the Opium and whiskey habits to have one of my books on these disease. Address B. M. Woolley, Atlanta, Ga., Box 337, and one will be sent you free.

ASK a gold bug why he is opposed to the remonetization, the free coinage of silver, and he will answer that it will give us a nation of debased, cheap currency. Let him talk a few moments, and as he warms up on the subject, hear him say that he does not believe in legislating for the silver mine owners. That under free coinage they will take about 50 cents worth of silver to the mint and by having it coined get a dollar in return. Then when you ask him why he said cheap money would result from free coinage, while he now says that it will make the fifty cents worth of silver, worth one dollar, he looks at you in blank astonishment.

IT seems to be altogether possible that Alabama will have at least four candidates for Senate next year. It is well known that Governor Oates and Congressman Clark would each like to have the support of the gold following. It is generally understood that Senator Pugh is not averse to being his own successor. While he has given no intimation of his desire to go to the senate, yet there are a host of prominent Democrats in Alabama who desire to see Hon. John H. Bankhead occupy a seat in the United States Senate.

MESSRS. LIPPMAN BROS., Savannah, Ga.:

DEAR SIRS—I will write to inform you that I was afflicted with Blood Disease. I tried one bottle of * * * and it gave me no relief. I was in bed seven months. I tried prominent physicians, and they could not do me any good. I saw your advertisement of P. P. P. in the Apalachicola Times, and thought I would try it. The bottle I got to-night makes seven or eight, and, oh, how good I feel. I have been up ever since and at my business, lumber inspector. You may publish this if you desire. THEY tell the farmers that it is not the present financial system that is playing havoc with their prospects, but over production. And then again, they tell the farmers that if less attention were paid to politics and more time and labor given to their farms, times would get better and prices would improve. One of these statements is either a lie or a joke. Which one?

THE Peoples Tribune has interviewed the members of the state executive committee of the peoples party, and Senator Goodwyn is the only member who favors the fusion with the republicans next year. There is method in Senator Goodwyn's madness. He is playing to help his contest before a republican congress.

THE present force on the Rome Tribune is giving Rome the best paper she has ever had, and we are glad to see that it is being appreciated. When the editor of a newspaper does the very best he can to popularize and build up his town, it stimulates and encourages him to put forth greater efforts to know that his efforts are appreciated; but the lack of this encouragement makes him tired and feel like looking for a more appreciative people.

WE have never known the pluck and will power displayed by Governor Atkinson in his recent illness to be equaled by any living man. His nerve and bravery is indeed remarkable, and it has won for him more admiration from the people than any of the notable political battles which he has fought in Georgia.

WE have just noticed the statement that Mobile county has 120 paupers in her alms house, which reminds us that Calhoun probably has a smaller number of paupers than any county of her size in state. DR. G. C. OSGOOD, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
DR. J. F. KINCHELOE,
Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. ARCHER, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have, among our medical supplies, what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

The concert, given by the ladies of the Baptist church on Friday evening of last week, was quite a success. The threatening weather prevented many from attending who would otherwise have been present. The program had been prepared with much care, and the reception given each performer by the audience was most gracious. The piano solos, by Prof. Grass, were special features of the evening, and were much enjoyed by those present.

FAREWELL SERVICE.

At Baptist Church Sunday. Dr. Lane Left for Forsyth Friday.

The service at the Baptist church last Sunday was one which will not soon be forgotten.

Dr. Lane in his long pastorate here made many warm personal friends who regretted to see him and his excellent family go away. As an expression of this regret, the Baptist church Sunday morning was filled with both people and sentiment; and the moist eyes to be seen in all portions of the church spoke louder than words of the respect and love in which Dr. Lane and his family are held by this people.

The farewell sermon was beautifully pathetic, and with all the efforts of the speaker he could not control his emotion, thus showing that the relation between pastor and people had been held by him as a most tender one, and that it was severed with the most poignant emotion.

Dr. Lane and family left for Forsyth, Ga., Friday, where he has accepted the pastorate of the Baptist church and the presidency of Monroe Female College.

We find pleasure in commending this excellent family to the people of Forsyth as one which would prove a valuable acquisition to any city or community, and Jacksonville realizes the loss she sustains in giving them up.

While no doubt the people of Forsyth have already learned to appreciate Dr. Lane, they cannot realize what an acquisition they have gained for their city until they know personally well Mrs. Lane and the children.

As an expression of good will, the citizens of Jacksonville presented Dr. Lane with a purse a few days since with which to purchase a handsome suit to wear at his new home.

For several years Dr. Lane was the pastor of Mrs. O. M. Reynolds, of Anniston, and on last Thursday Mrs. Reynolds sent up an express package containing a valuable present for each member of the Lane family.

Numerous other expressions of a similar nature have been given the members of this family by the people of Jacksonville, and they go away with every possible evidence that they not only have the respect, but the love of the people among whom they have lived for the past eight years.

Jacksonville has a number of embryo champion bicycle riders, who are only waiting for a fair and square settlement of the claims of Johnson and Zimmerman to the championship, when they expect to challenge and defeat the victor.

Most prominent among them are: General John H. Forney, Mr. V. H. Marshall, Aldermen Gus Stewart and John Jelks, Mr. Ed. Rowan Mr. J. E. Nisbet.

These gentlemen gave an exhibition of their skill on the streets Tuesday, to the delight of a large number of our citizens.

The most unique exhibition was that of Jacksonville trick rider, Mr. V. H. Marshall. His specialty as introduced yesterday seemed to be that of ferociously daring at the trees on the square, and as the crowd held its breath, anticipating a crash, he would glide by missing the obstacle by a hairs breadth. Now and then his bicycle would imitate a Texas broncho. It would start off at a rapid rate, and then stop and buck. The rear wheel would paw the earth a little. Suddenly it would dart away, the rider sitting it with all the grace and ease that could be expected of one in so exciting and difficult a position.
